Latest financial reports indicate increase in unrestricted funds

by Mark Rust
Seal Staff Reporter

Notre Dame realized a net increase of $203,385 in Unrestricted Funds during the last fiscal year, an increase of 13.45 percent, according to financial statements released by the University last month.

The increase in unrestricted funds in particularly important because it represents the unrestricted amount of money that is available to the University as working capital.

The financial statements also show that the University picked up close to $32 million in tuition revenues due to tuition increases. That figure represents an increase in 7 percent, consistent with a national inflation rate of 11 percent so that even with last year's tuition increase, the University realized a net loss in tuition revenue of 4 percent.

The University has earmarked $86 million in unrestricted revenues for the construction of new buildings on campus, an amount that consists primarily of transferred monies received through gifts and grants. The report shows that the University holds $116 million in Plant, Student Loan, Endowment and Employee Retirement Investment Funds. This represents an increase of 1.7 percent from the 1977 figure.

Much of the University's operating expenses are taken from interestThis year amounting to 5 percent—realized on these funds.

Over $5 million was awarded in different forms of financial aid last year, an increase of 1 percent from that offered in fiscal year 1977.

Other highlights revealed by the financial statements:
- Net income for post-season athletic contests was $768,407, all of which was transferred to the Endowment Fund. That figure is an increase of 660 percent over $115,000.
- $17 million has thus far been pledged to the Campaign for Notre Dame. These monies are unaccepted at present, and do not appear in asset figures.
- Notre Dame held properties, buildings and equipment worth close to $100 million. That figure takes into account both improvements and depreciation.
- The insured replacement value of buildings and equipment on campus is $284 million.
- The University will be paying back loans to the government in annually increasing amounts ranging from $600,000 to $120,000 until the year 2018 for dormitory construction debts. Notre Dame Apartments, Flanner Hall, Grace Hall, and the property on which they are located, are all mortgaged under the terms of the bond indenture.
- $25 million dollars was spent on departmental research and sponsored programs, an increase of almost 20 percent from fiscal year 1977.

The financial statements also report a decrease in endowments—both graduate and undergraduate—for the last fiscal year. Degrees awarded in both the bachelor and advanced categories decreased, while the number of faculty members increased from 775 to 798.

Ex supervisor slays mayor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor George Moscone and Harvey Milk, the city's first self-proclaimed homosexual mayor, were shot to death yesterday in City Hall, and a former city supervisor, who had wanted his job back, was arrested.

Dan White, 32, was booked for investigation of the homicides, which stunned a city still numbed by the suicide massacre in Guyana of more than 900 members of the Peoples Temple, based in San Francisco.

The former supervisor had surrendered to police at a station eight blocks from the murder scene.

Police and city officials said White, who resigned from the Board of Supervisors Nov. 10 then asked for his seat back, was meeting with Moscone in a back room of the mayor's office, presumably begging to be reappointed, when the 11 a.m. shooting occurred.

Moscone had scheduled an 11:30 a.m. news conference to announce White's successor, Dan Horany, who was waiting in an outer office at the ornate, domed City Hall when the shots rang out.

"We heard shots but we were unaware at the time that the shots came from the room," said Mel War, Moscone's press secretary.

One of the mayor's secretaries walked to a window, thinking the noise was a car backfiring.

Moscone's bloody body was found lying on the floor when the mayor's fiscal adviser, Rudy Noffringer, walked in for an 11 a.m. appointment. Police told Moscone had been shot three times, twice in the head and once in the left arm.

Was said White had appeared at the mayor's door about 10:40 a.m., asking to see Moscone without an appointment. He added, "I didn't want them to see each other. I wanted that would be a bad scene."

The press secretary said that although it was normal procedure for a Moscone aide to sit in on every meeting, this time "George said there was no need for that."

Police asked the shooter, White left Moscone's office through a back door and ran about 100 yards down the hall and into the supervisors' offices, where he allegedly shot and killed Milk, 48, in what had been his own office before his resignation.

Moscone turned 49 last Friday. A liberal, he and White had been at political odds for some time.

The mayor had been supported by the Rev. Jim Jones, leader of the Peoples Temple and one of those who died in Guyana. He once appointed Jones to the city's housing authority. Police said, however, that the murders apparently were not connected to the Peoples Temple.

Dianne Feinstein, who as president of the Board of Supervisors will become acting mayor, tearfully announced the murders outside Moscone's office to a crowd of reporters and city employees, who gasped and wept. "This is a sad day," she said.

There's no shot like a snow shot! [Photo by Dave Rumbach]
Group accuses China

LONDON (AP) - Amnesty International accused China yesterday of systematically repressing political dissent through social censorship, imprisonment, mental torture and execution since the 1969 Communist takeover. In its first major report on China, the London-based human rights group quoted official Chinese documents indicating the number of people punished for straying from official policy is in the millions.

National

Jury indicts liquor officials

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) - A federal grand jury indicted seven liquor companies yesterday - including Joseph E. Seagram & Sons Inc. of New York - on charges of conspiracy to violate the Constitution's free-press protections and a state anti-trust law.

Washingtion Court denies Farber review

WASHINGTON (AP) - A New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber and his newspaper were denied a court review yesterday of their contempt conviction for refusing to surrender classified files compiled by Farber in his investigation of a bribery scandal.

Nursing home conditions spark investigation

ST. LOUIS (AP) - State social workers joined police in the search yesterday for several missing patients at a nursing home described by an investigator as "horrible - fifty-five.

The patients were removed without explanation by the home's owners.

Beverage Control Commission, which is the sole legal retailer of liquor in West Virginia.

Beverage Control Commission, which is the sole legal retailer of liquor in West Virginia.

Cold. Lows mid 80s, Highs upper 90s.
GUYANA Mass suicide investigation continues

GEORGETOWN, Guyana [AP] Police say a decision will be made by Wednesday on which of the 918 survivors of the Peoples Temple who will be held as suspects questioned by police at headquarters yesterday.
Some say it's because he gave up a promising film career to head up the Budweiser Racing Team!
But the real reason is that he just likes to win. And he did plenty of that this past season in a pair of Budweiser-sponsored, Bob Sharp-prepared Datsun race cars.
Fifteen races: Twelve wins!
On the pole eight times!
Three track records!
And in the SCCA National Championships at Road Atlanta, he took a second place in his C-Production Datsun 280-Z... and a third in the B-Sedan category with his Datsun 200-SX.
Naturally, we congratulate him for his super season and wish him even greater success in '79.

"Way to go, Paul!"

From your friends at Budweiser
Dolores Frese's book Virgins and Martyrs is a feminist piece of writing, but it would be a mistake to dismiss it as only one more plethora of feministic booklets being churned out by young librarians. Frese's book not only treats issues involving women's self-esteem but also attacks the male as a role subject to the material to which it is applied.

Frese also takes a critical view of hard-core feminism. She satirizes the attitude that women are responsible for the problems of women. Instead of sincere, coherent, self-aware, and respectful women, difficulties are functions of sexism and dominated environments. It was such a role in their oppression as males.

Just as he forces his son's girlfriend to have an abortion, he drives his wife to terminate her pregnancy. Frese illustrates that contrary to popular feminist belief, abortion is not necessarily a liberating tool, but rather can be one more way that men ultimately have unreasonable control over the lives of women.

Two of the four short stories, the book offers different situations of control forces which threaten each woman with the destruction of their established routine. In the first story, "Taking Stock," a woman is unaccustomed by an insufferable husband with the notion of having an affair. What the husband fails to realize is that his wife's peculiar behavior is due to the fact that she is pregnant and is afraid of dealing with a difficult situation.

In the next story, "The Legend of Mary's Ireland," the author portrays how a young nun attempts to remove her fetters. As she struggles to free herself, she becomes more aware of her own mind. She is forced to abandon her goal, to change her life. Juliana is incapable of trusting herself. Junia, her son grew older, she never told Fred, 'Why go to grad school?'

In short, while I haven't quite solved The Mystery of Life, I figure the jigsaw probably did it already, and can wait until the paperback edition comes out.

Then it happens. Interrupting my peaceful commuting state, I overhear a conversation of two passers-by: "...so I told Fred, 'Go to grad school!' One extra diploma won't help you at all..." Attention all latent neuroses and dormant doubts! Battle stations all inept acolytes, clammy palms and stomach knots!! It's too late for Career Crisis #105!! Initially, I'll be sitting outdoors, gazing with cool detachment at the people passing by on the quay. A forgotten Hugger coke turns into a side of my face, and I'm in my blissful bubble of apathy, such trivia cannot faze me now. I've just paid my Indiana phone bill with a check. I won't bounce for at least two days. I've convinced an airtight alibi to excuse my overdue paper. I have a week's worth of classes, a small checked box, a violin case, and my passport. I find my way back to a checkout line.

"I'm glad I didn't quite solve The Mystery of Life," I figure the jigsaw probably did it already, and can wait until the paperback edition comes out.

The real trouble is I never know when it's going to hit me.

I'll be sitting outdoors, gazing with cool detachment at the people passing by on the quay. A forgotten Hugger coke turns into a side of my face, and I'm in my blissful bubble of apathy, such trivia cannot faze me now. I've just paid my Indiana phone bill with a check. I won't bounce for at least two days. I've convinced an airtight alibi to excuse my overdue paper. I have a week's worth of classes, a small checked box, a violin case, and my passport. I find my way back to a checkout line.

A real life experience is to be one's own self. I've just paid my Indiana phone bill with a check. I won't bounce for at least two days. I've convinced an airtight alibi to excuse my overdue paper. I have a week's worth of classes, a small checked box, a violin case, and my passport. I find my way back to a checkout line.

Attentive all latent neuroses and dormant doubts! Battle stations all inept acolytes, clammy palms and stomach knots!! It's too late for Career Crisis #105!! Initially, I'll be sitting outdoors, gazing with cool detachment at the people passing by on the quay. A forgotten Hugger coke turns into a side of my face, and I'm in my blissful bubble of apathy, such trivia cannot faze me now. I've just paid my Indiana phone bill with a check. I won't bounce for at least two days. I've convinced an airtight alibi to excuse my overdue paper. I have a week's worth of classes, a small checked box, a violin case, and my passport. I find my way back to a checkout line.

The real trouble is I never know when it's going to hit me.

I'll be sitting outdoors, gazing with cool detachment at the people passing by on the quay. A forgotten Hugger coke turns into a side of my face, and I'm in my blissful bubble of apathy, such trivia cannot faze me now. I've just paid my Indiana phone bill with a check. I won't bounce for at least two days. I've convinced an airtight alibi to excuse my overdue paper. I have a week's worth of classes, a small checked box, a violin case, and my passport. I find my way back to a checkout line.

There is no doubt that the author has succeeded in her objective. She has presented for the first time a feminist piece of writing, but it would be a mistake to dismiss it as only one more plethora of feministic booklets being churned out by young librarians. Frese's book not only treats issues involving women's self-esteem but also attacks the male as a role subject to the material to which it is applied.

Frese also takes a critical view of hard-core feminism. She satirizes the attitude that women are responsible for the problems of women. Instead of sincere, coherent, self-aware, and respectful women, difficulties are functions of sexism and dominated environments. It was such a role in their oppression as males.

In the next story, "The Legend of Mary's Ireland," the author portrays how a young nun attempts to remove her fetters. As she struggles to free herself, she becomes more aware of her own mind. She is forced to abandon her goal, to change her life. Juliana is incapable of trusting herself. Junia, her son grew older, she never told Fred, 'Why go to grad school?'

In short, while I haven't quite solved The Mystery of Life, I figure the jigsaw probably did it already, and can wait until the paperback edition comes out.

Then it happens. Interrupting my peaceful commuting state, I overhear a conversation of two passers-by: "...so I told Fred, 'Go to grad school!' One extra diploma won't help you at all..." Attention all latent neuroses and dormant doubts! Battle stations all inept acolytes, clammy palms and stomach knots!! It's too late for Career Crisis #105!! Initially, I'll be sitting outdoors, gazing with cool detachment at the people passing by on the quay. A forgotten Hugger coke turns into a side of my face, and I'm in my blissful bubble of apathy, such trivia cannot faze me now. I've just paid my Indiana phone bill with a check. I won't bounce for at least two days. I've convinced an airtight alibi to excuse my overdue paper. I have a week's worth of classes, a small checked box, a violin case, and my passport. I find my way back to a checkout line.

"I'm glad I didn't quite solve The Mystery of Life," I figure the jigsaw probably did it already, and can wait until the paperback edition comes out.

The real trouble is I never know when it's going to hit me.

I'll be sitting outdoors, gazing with cool detachment at the people passing by on the quay. A forgotten Hugger coke turns into a side of my face, and I'm in my blissful bubble of apathy, such trivia cannot faze me now. I've just paid my Indiana phone bill with a check. I won't bounce for at least two days. I've convinced an airtight alibi to excuse my overdue paper. I have a week's worth of classes, a small checked box, a violin case, and my passport. I find my way back to a checkout line.

A real life experience is to be one's own self. I've just paid my Indiana phone bill with a check. I won't bounce for at least two days. I've convinced an airtight alibi to excuse my overdue paper. I have a week's worth of classes, a small checked box, a violin case, and my passport. I find my way back to a checkout line.

The real trouble is I never know when it's going to hit me.

I'll be sitting outdoors, gazing with cool detachment at the people passing by on the quay. A forgotten Hugger coke turns into a side of my face, and I'm in my blissful bubble of apathy, such trivia cannot faze me now. I've just paid my Indiana phone bill with a check. I won't bounce for at least two days. I've convinced an airtight alibi to excuse my overdue paper. I have a week's worth of classes, a small checked box, a violin case, and my passport. I find my way back to a checkout line.
Carter warns of ‘tight’ budget next year

ST. LOUIS (AP) - President Carter, declaring that “no aspect of government will be sacred,” warned the nation’s top urban leaders yesterday that the next federal budget will be “very, very tight” and that they should expect severe restraint to help fight inflation.

“All of you have seen through the budget cycle yourself, and you know what to do,” he said.

Carter is committed to cutting his 1980 federal budget by between $15 billion and $20 billion to achieve a federal deficit of no more than $30 billion. White House officials have said military spending would not be cut, raising concerns among city officials.

Carter left little doubt that urban programs will be reduced. City leaders are anticipating these cuts, said Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles.

The League of Cities says it supports Carter’s anti-inflation strategy, including budget cuts, as long as it does not lead to an economic downturn that would substantially increase unemployment.

Carter, addressed that concern, asserted that “we do not anticipate a recession or, of course, a depression.”

The National League of Cities says it supports Carter’s anti-inflation strategy, including budget cuts, as long as it does not lead to an economic downturn that would substantially increase unemployment.

Carter, addressed that concern, asserted that “we do not anticipate a recession or, of course, a depression.”

The National League of Cities says it supports Carter’s anti-inflation strategy, including budget cuts, as long as it does not lead to an economic downturn that would substantially increase unemployment.

Carter, addressed that concern, asserted that “we do not anticipate a recession or, of course, a depression.”

The National League of Cities says it supports Carter’s anti-inflation strategy, including budget cuts, as long as it does not lead to an economic downturn that would substantially increase unemployment.

Carter, addressed that concern, asserted that “we do not anticipate a recession or, of course, a depression.”

The National League of Cities says it supports Carter’s anti-inflation strategy, including budget cuts, as long as it does not lead to an economic downturn that would substantially increase unemployment.

Carter, addressed that concern, asserted that “we do not anticipate a recession or, of course, a depression.”

The National League of Cities says it supports Carter’s anti-inflation strategy, including budget cuts, as long as it does not lead to an economic downturn that would substantially increase unemployment.
Irish sweep weekend

(continued from page 8)
Murray Eaves took advantage of an evening penalty to Scott Cameron for the Wolverines' second goal of the night, but freshmen Paul Tomich answered back with his first career goal at 11:26 to close out the victory for the Irish. Steve Buckland ended the night with a Michigan goal at 17:20.

The Irish could not have given Garvey more trouble than they did, unloading 54 shots on him, 41 of those in the first two periods. Irish goalie Lauren Stimson, who picked up his sixth win of the season, was more than plenty of help of front, being called on for just 19 shots.

Saturday: Micheleau, Rosecastle

The Irish again fell behind early with the first Roads goal of the second period as Notre Dame climbed back on top 3-5. Perry lived up to his billing at 3:54 off a pass from freshman Bill Rothstein and John Harty. Then put the Irish ahead with his first of three goals of the evening on a power play.

Stimson would not have been able to regain the lead, however, had it not been for the outstanding performance of junior Greg sbil during the period. The St. Alum native made 12 saves yielding nothing. Four of those stops were aaronic from point blank range.

"It felt great getting back into the nets and winning," smiled Svoboda, who played an outstanding game Irish third in AP BB poll

1. Duke (42) 2. 0-1-0 1. Maryland (46) 1-0-0 3. Louisville 2-1-0 4. UCLA 0-0-0 1. 2-2-0

"Our defense were left. There are no other words.

The Irish front-liners Greg Merezhed and Scott Cameron were too much for the Wolverines on the ACC. (photo by Ray Lee)

"We controlled play for most of the evening and it was great to see 'Royal' play in goal like he did Saturday.

The Irish have their work cut out for them this weekend once again when they travel north to Hough­

The overall speed of the Irish was especially apparent in this game. I thought our team might have had more to do in one per cent of the time this season. Whether or not we will continue to split in the nets, however, is still a question mark.

FRIDAY NIGHT is for fun, for forget the cares of the world, for the joy of being alive.

Rays O'Brien

"The Irish Eye"

(continued from page 6)
Tomich and Micheleau [4] try to get a red card for the Nigerian goalie Varvari in Friday night's game.

The Irish front-liners Greg Merezhed and Scott Cameron were too much for the Wolverines on the ACC. (photo by Ray Lee)

"We controlled play for most of the evening and it was great to see 'Royal' play in goal like he did Saturday.

The Irish have their work cut out for them this weekend once again when they travel north to Hough­

The overall speed of the Irish was especially apparent in this game. I thought our team might have had more to do in one per cent of the time this season. Whether or not we will continue to split in the nets, however, is still a question mark.

FRIDAY NIGHT is for fun, for forget the cares of the world, for the joy of being alive.

Rays O'Brien

"The Irish Eye"

(continued from page 6)
Tomich and Micheleau [4] try to get a red card for the Nigerian goalie Varvari in Friday night's game.

The Irish front-liners Greg Merezhed and Scott Cameron were too much for the Wolverines on the ACC. (photo by Ray Lee)
The Notre Dame team congratulates Pete Holohan after he scored touchdown in Saturday's game at Southern Cal [left]. But Jay Case [upper right] and the Trojans kicked this one off with a field goal. (photos by John Calcutt)

Ray O'Brien
Sports Editor

"It's the greatest football game I've ever seen," John Robinson.

"It was one of the most remarkable comebacks in the history of the game," Dan Devine.

LOS ANGELES, Calif. - In a game that will never be forgotten by the people that played in it, coached in it, refereed in it, wrote about it or watched it, the Trojans of Southern California will go to the record books as the victors by a score of 27-25 over the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame in Saturday's football game at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The greatest looked to be a runaway after the home team jumped to a 17-3 halftime lead, but metamorphasis took place.

"It's called PRIDE," said Devine. "It's one of the things the cameras and spectators couldn't capture was just the action and emotions that went into Saturday's game. But it would be a bigger injustice to ignore or jet go by the happenings that made this Notre Dame team have a chance at all," lamented Devine.

The game's end came as a severe shock for the Notre Dame team as silence reigned afterwards. "It went from the happiest moment of the season to the saddest," lamented Haines.

The closing seconds controversial call weighed heavily on the Irish's mind. "If it was a bad decision I don't mind the call, but if he made a mistake he should have admitted to it," commented USC head coach John Robinson.

"It was a hard hitting game in which two teams played to the very limit," commented USC head coach John Robinson. "It was a bad decision but at the end of the day, you can expect things like that to happen."

The Irish must now prepare for the Cardinal game on January 1. USC will play in the Rose Bowl later that day.

Sweep Michigan

by Bria Beglane
Sports Writer

Never

Never in regular season play.

Never in the 10 years since Leaty Smith retired the spark at Notre Dame.

Never in the past seven seasons during which the Irish have been members of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

But maybe eight is the Notre Dame hockey team's lucky number. It came during its eighth season at Notre Dame on the 16th of November of the year 1978. The Irish won one of those games that worked by an eight goal margin.

And the Irish time this, the Notre Dame hockey team found itself number one. Not one number in the WCHA--number one in the country. Two years ago, after a 9-1 and 5-4 sweep of Michigan State and Michigan, respectively, the Irish ran off a nine game winning streak. And a half ago, the national collegiate hockey poll conducted by WMPR radio (Houghton, Mich.) placed Notre Dame on top of every college country poll. That is eight straight weeks at number one.

And the Irish had received a pressure ranking dating back to January 1973 when this is the first time in its history that they have ever topped any poll.

Today gas turned the tables. The Michigan State hockey team had swept the Irish of theirMAC championship. But not today.

The game's end came as a severe shock for the Notre Dame team as silence reigned afterwards. "It went from the happiest moment of the season to the saddest," lamented Devine.

The closing seconds controversial call weighed heavily on the Irish's mind. "If it was a bad decision I don't mind the call, but if he made a mistake he should have admitted to it," commented USC head coach John Robinson.

"It was a hard hitting game in which two teams played to the very limit," commented USC head coach John Robinson. "It was a bad decision but at the end of the day, you can expect things like that to happen."

The Irish must now prepare for the Cardinal game on January 1. USC will play in the Rose Bowl later that day.