Saudia Arabia breaks ties with Egypt

RIYADH, Saudia Arabia (AP) Saudia Arabia decided yesterday to break diplomatic relations with Egypt because of its continued support for the Egyptian government. The decision was taken at a Cabinet meeting headed by King Fahd and endorsed by Prime Minister and Interior Minister, Prince Abdullah bin Abdul Aziz, also chief of the Saudi national guard.

The agency said the decision was taken at a Cabinet meeting in Riyadh under Deputy Premier and Defense Minister Prince Fahd, after a series of meetings, as the Arab League ministerial meeting was underway in Bagdad. Prince Fahd also vowed to pursue sanctions against Sadat's regime.

Information Minister Mohammed Abdo Yamani said the decision to sever relations with Egypt was taken "because of the Egyptian government's refusal without taking into consideration the minimum of demand, that the Arabs had been looking forward to as a basis for the peace plan - namely the exchange of diplomatic representatives with the Zionist enemy inside, in the Golan Heights, and in Lebanon, and the exchange of envoys with the Syrian Arab Republic for the same reason. The agency also said that the decision was taken "because of Egypt's continued support for the Zionist enemy in the Middle East, in accordance with the decision of the Arab League ministerial meeting to sever relations with Sadat's regime and the Afghan government." The agency also said that the decision was taken "because of Egypt's continued support for the Zionist enemy in the Middle East, in accordance with the decision of the Arab League ministerial meeting to sever relations with Sadat's regime and the Afghan government." The agency also said that the decision was taken "because of Egypt's continued support for the Zionist enemy in the Middle East, in accordance with the decision of the Arab League ministerial meeting to sever relations with Sadat's regime and the Afghan government."

Crew coaches discover body in Saint Joseph River

by Michael Lewis

Executive News Editor

The body of a 50 to 60 year old woman was found in the St. Joe river yesterday, about 100 yards west of the Bittersweet road bridge. Cate Graham and Joann Gormley, coaches of the Notre Dame men's and women's rowing teams, discovered the body at 7:05 a.m. yesterday during morning practices. They tied a rope around the body, towed it back to the team's base, and notified the police. Graham said the police arrived about 10 minutes later. The body was then taken to St. Joseph Hospital for an autopsy. "At first I didn't think it was a body," Graham said. "It was so white it looked like a plaster mannequin." - St. Joseph County Coroner Dr. Stanley M. Koscieslaw said the woman was between 50 and 60 years old. He said she was "apparent drowned." He estimated that the body had been in the river for about a month. He was not able to positively identify the body, except to say that the woman was "probably from Elkhart," since no missing persons reports had been received recently in the St. Joe. Koscieslaw said the St. Joe County Sheriff's office are continuing their investigations.

Congressman John Brademas speaks on Soviet military concerns at local press conference

by John M. McGrath

Senior Staff Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter returned to work amid indications there might be an announcement by week's end of a treaty with the Soviet Union to limit strategic nuclear weapons. But White House and State Department officials said the long-expected arms accord was not yet wrapped up.

These officials, who declined to be identified, said the Russians would like to have all major issues settled before announcing a summit meeting between Carter and Soviet Premier Leonid I. Brezhnev.

"There are things that are of substance still undecided," one official said.

The U.S. position is that if there is general agreement on the major treaty provisions, Carter and Brezhnev could supply some of the Enlishing touches at the summit in late May.

But, in any event, at least one more session between Secretary of State Cyrus V. Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin is expected and the date for that is still not set.

In a speech to the National Academy of Sciences here, President Carter called on science professionals "to help shape an educated public debate" on SALT.

Noting that many of the issues involved "are very complex technically," he said, "The participation of scientists will be crucial."

Touching on one key issue without elaborating, Carter said: "If science gave us nuclear weapons, it is no less true that science has given us the extraordinary means of verifying compliance with treaties governing those weapons.

In more general terms, the president told his scientific audience: "SALT II will reduce the risk of nuclear war by lowering levels of strategic arms, constraining development of new weapons systems, and contributing to a more stable political relationship with the Soviet Union."

Former President John F. Kennedy, who was assassinated in 1963, said in his diary: "The three great tasks of our time are: to reduce the danger of nuclear war; to make war unnecessary; and to make peace a reality.

All indications suggest a nuclear weapons treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter returned to work amid indications there might be an announcement by week's end of a treaty with the Soviet Union to limit strategic nuclear weapons. But White House and State Department officials said the long-expected arms accord was not yet wrapped up.

These officials, who declined to be identified, said the Russians would like to have all major issues settled before announcing a summit meeting between Carter and Soviet Premier Leonid I. Brezhnev.

"There are things that are of substance still undecided," one official said.

The U.S. position is that if there is general agreement on the major treaty provisions, Carter and Brezhnev could supply some of the Enlishing touches at the summit in late May.

But, in any event, at least one more session between Secretary of State Cyrus V. Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin is expected and the date for that is still not set.

In a speech to the National Academy of Sciences here, President Carter called on science professionals "to help shape an educated public debate" on SALT.

Noting that many of the issues involved "are very complex technically," he said, "The participation of scientists will be crucial."

Touching on one key issue without elaborating, Carter said: "If science gave us nuclear weapons, it is no less true that science has given us the extraordinary means of verifying compliance with treaties governing those weapons."

In more general terms, the president told his scientific audience: "SALT II will reduce the risk of nuclear war by lowering levels of strategic arms, constraining development of new weapons systems, and contributing to a more stable political relationship with the Soviet Union."

(continued on page 2)
Cambodian refugees flee to sanctuary through southern frontier in Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) -- Fifty thousand Cambodians fleeing a major offensive in their own country trekked south along the frontier, Thailand, apparently on their way to sanctuary in western Cambodia, where they are expected to seek refuge.

...Arabs

[end of page 1]

The large number of refugees, as well as victory claims by the new pro-Vietnamese Cambodian regime of President Heng Samrin, indicated the forces of toppled pro-China Premier Pol Pot were suffering heavy losses in western Cambodia.

Vance and Dobbyn have been meeting regularly over the past few weeks on major sticking points. These have included a definition of new missile systems and methods of assuring verification of terms of the accord.

The accord would limit U.S. and Sino-Soviet long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles through 1985. It has been in negotiation for seven years and seemingly on the verge of completion for 18 months.

Carter, returning from an 11-day Arab League members that participated in the anti-Sadat Baghdad meeting would take similar action soon.

...SALT

[end of page 1]

The accord would limit U.S. and Sino-Soviet long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles through 1985. It has been in negotiation for seven years and seemingly on the verge of completion for 18 months.

Carter, returning from an 11-day Arab League members that participated in the anti-Sadat Baghdad meeting would take similar action soon.

...SALT

[end of page 1]
Student businesses cause controversy

By Pat Tomney Jr.
Staff Reporter

Student-run businesses have been under close scrutiny in recent months, as attempts to expand these businesses have met strong opposition from University officials.

Currently, the only continuous student-run businesses are the Student Union, Hall Food Sales, the birthday cake concession and Flanner Records (which is closing at the end of this year).

Many other businesses, such as the Stores, are student-concession stands, are run as "one-shot" events.

In order to get any merchandising activities approved, a student must follow two steps. He must first submit a plan to the Student Union Service Commissioner, Curt Hench. If the idea is approved by the Student Union, it must then be approved by John Reid, Student Activities director.

According to Reid, "Merchandising is understood to be any kind of activity providing a service of a product that involves an exchange of funds. The attempt is to limit that activity so that it is given to groups over individuals in order to spread out the benefits.

"It is the University's belief that the student business need to be regulated. Reid responded, "it stems from the sheer volume of requests to merchandise on campus, and we need to screen them out. We also want to sell them a need, or demand for their products.

Reid has been a key figure in the recent dispute over the sale of non-food items in Hall Food Sales. The controversy arose when the administration discovered that Flanner Food Sales was violating University policy by selling magazines. The University ordered Flanner and four other dorms offering non-food items to stop selling these products. This action brought a strong protest from students, who ran a compromise proposal from Student Body President Bill Roche. Under Roche's proposal, all dorms could sell ten non-food items from a list of 25 items approved by the University.

This proposal must be approved by Reid in order to be implemented. Reid refused to comment on it. "I am going to meet with the committee that approved the proposal, but I don't want to make any prejudicial remarks," Reid stated.

Reid expressed hope that he would make a decision by Friday, or by Monday at the latest.

In the past, Reid had expressed strong opposition to the expansion of food sales operations. "The philosophy is that there isn't supposed to be a duplication of services already offered. Getting into other items would be a hall monopoly, which is not in our purpose," Reid asserted.

Don Ciancio, Flanner Hall president, objected strongly to this philosophy. He said, "I don't think that they should dictate what we should do. They're worried about our groceries, but we're too small to do that.

Ciancio also feels that students get more direct benefits when their hall makes money than when the University makes money. "We can't feel the benefits directly through the University the way we do now in Flanner," Ciancio said.

Flanner Records is another student-run business that ran into trouble with the administration. Flanner Records has been selling records to students through an order system for eight years. At the end of this semester, it will be shut down by order of the University.

According to co-owner George Molitor, the store ran into difficulties soon after he acquired it for $1000 in the spring of 1977. "When I returned in the fall, Bro. Benesh (then Student Activities director) asked me to come in and talk. Benesh allowed me to operate for two years to keep from taking a financial bath," Molitor stated.

When asked why the operation was stopped, Molitor replied, "Bro. Benesh gave no reason for it in the letter which shut us down, but he told me in a conversation that it was competing with the bookstore.

I thought I'd be able to sell the business, but now I'll barely break even.

Molitor expressed bitterness over the decision. "I think it was totally arbitrary. I thought I'd be able to sell the business, but now I'll barely break even.

Molitor found the present regulations on student-run businesses excessive. "I think that students should be able to run almost any business they want. Since students have to study, too, their businesses won't be that large," Molitor commented.

Administration officials expressed sentiments very different than Molitor's and Ciancio's. Bro. Kieran Ryan, assistant vice-president for Business Affairs, was especially vehement in his criticisms of student businessmen.

When asked for his position on the matter, he said, "Student businesses cause controversy. Ryan responded, "Although food sales are regulated, I don't think that they should be.

Some aspects of food sales bother Mason, but he does not want them shut down. "In suspension companies frequently cite food sales in their reports. I am also concerned about sanitary questions," Mason stated.

When asked why the number of student businesses must be limited, Mason replied, "When there's a lot of businesses, you need more monitoring and order control. I don't think the University can be left being responsible for things far apart. Mason was unable to name an instance where this occurred.

Mason wondered why students wanted to run businesses. "Why do they want to be the boss?" Mason replied. Currently, student businesses are under tight control, and is doubtful that the policy will be changed in the near future. Although this system may help protect the University and students from unscrupulous businessmen, it also seems to stifle student initiative.

Student Club holds meeting

The Washington, D.C. Area Club will hold a mandatory meeting for all members tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the basement of Farley. Nomination and election of officers for next year will take place, along with consideration of some constitutional changes. ALL MEMBERS MUST ATTEND!!! Anyone interested in running for office should call Jane Kirby at 5804.

D.C. Club holds meeting

The Washington, D.C. Area Club will hold a mandatory meeting for all members tonight at 7 p.m. in the basement of Farley. Nomination and election of officers for next year will take place, along with consideration of some constitutional changes. ALL MEMBERS MUST ATTEND!!! Anyone interested in running for office should call Jane Kirby at 5804.

UMOC

Ugly Man on Campus, the annual event designed to determine the "ugliest" woman on the ND-SMC campuses, is in full swing now. Voting will be conducted in the dining halls tomorrow thru Friday according to UMOC chairman, Steve Dear.

The proceeds will again go to supporting Sister Maria's Planned Day School in South Africa.

The winner of the UMOC contest will be announced at the last Wednesday Social Center, on Saturday night. "Great," last year's ugly man, will be the master of ceremonies.

Road Rally

Yes, it's good news for all you up-and-coming race drivers because the An Tostal Road Rally will commence once again on Sunday Saturday at 9 a.m. A minimum of 100 contestants will converge to drive through some of the most picturesque and answer questions along the route. Bring a wheeled vehicle (no hovercrafts, please), at least one passenger and one or more infants. Unfortunately, we couldn't get Mario Andretti to be honorary starter, but if you have any questions, call Ann at 5701, Jim at 287-5726.

ACADEMY AWARD WINNER

The Observer Tuesday, April 24, 1979- page 3

Simeone Signoret in MADAME ROSA

ATTENTION GRADUATING STUDENTS

Measurements will be taken for CAPS and GOWNS Tuesday April 24th and Wednesday April 25th between 9:00 - 4:30 at the NOTRE DAME BOOKSTORE

SÉNIOR CLASS BASEBALL ADVENTURE

Sunday, May 13

White Sox vs. K.C. TICKETS $1.00 on sale Tuesday, Wednesday & Thursday (April 24, 25, 26) 12:30-2 pm in LeFortune
Don't leave school without it.

Now that you're going out into the world, you're going to need the American Express Card. It's indispensable, for vacations or business.

But don't wait, because we've made it easier to get for graduates. All you need is a $10,000 job (or the promise of one). It'll be tougher later, so look for this display in the Student Center and other locations around campus.

The American Express Card.
Don't leave school without it.
Sex Is Only Part of It

Features

Tuesday, April 24, 1979—page 5

Mr. Toobey

Inspiring students is one of the many aspects of being a professor. I have been fortunate to be associated with many talented and inspiring students throughout my career. It is always rewarding to see the growth and development of young minds and to witness the impact that education can have on shaping the future. As a professor, one of the most satisfying experiences is hearing from former students who have gone on to make significant contributions in various fields. It is a testament to the importance of education and the role of educators in nurturing the potential of individuals. It is my hope that through our continued efforts, we can inspire the next generation of thinkers and leaders to make a positive impact on the world.
Michael Molinelli to speak at civil rights lectures

Patricia M. Derian, assistant secretary of state for human rights and humanitarian affairs, will be the speaker at the annual Civil Rights Lectures of the University of Notre Dame Law School. The principle discussion of "Human Rights and American Foreign Policy" will be at 9 p.m. tonight in Room 122 of Hayes-Healy Center. A coffee hour with Ms. Derian will be at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. The speaker was recently appointed by President Carter to the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe, and a U.S. delegate to the Belgrade Conference. Prior to her state department appointment, she served the HEW Policy Planning Group of the Carter-Mondale transition team, and during the presidential campaign was an advisor to Carter and a deputy director of the presidential campaign.

Long active in civil rights related work, she has served as the president of the Southern Regional Council and an OEO Project Director. She was also the founder of the Mississippi Civil Liberties Union, a member of the National Prison Project Steering Committee, and the Board of Directors of the Center for Community Justice.
The Irish Guards II kept winning, defeating U.S. 6:30.) The Guards were keyed by Jerry Anderson and Tom McLynen who each had 6-2, 7-5. Rich Matheny led six and John Hank five for U.S. 6:30. Express, led by Tim Trip (nine-for-17) and Jim Scosc (seven-for-17) whipped Long Shot, 21-12. Dick Allison had four for the losers while Willie Moore crashed the boards to the tune of 14 rebounds for U.S. 7-11. Other games involving favored teams included Staparugason and the Combat Wardb's 21-0 win over the Boilermakers along

Bookstore Note

Lonnie and the Lugnuts had to be disqualified when it was discovered that they had previously been penalized for a move that apparently broke bookstore rules. Dan Price, who served as walkon on the 1978 football roster, was a fourth Varsity player. Later Price said he regretted having to do that, but he says the mistake was obviously unintentional. Other varsity players were Mike Bell, Larry Cichy, Mark Rayam, and Bobby Leopold.

LOST: Girls blue gym bag, sweets. Addie sideh and others. Please. Call 272-3306.

LOST: At Lane's Easter party before break-Dawn, green wool winter sweater and lining from coat. Please return. North hall, other． Call Valeria Watkins 584-7584.

FOUND: At Illinois State Sunday evening. To cornor 2797.

LOST: I just need to try to see it over the whole season. Those of us who truly are striving for the "best interests of baseball" certainly hope that they do not.

LOST: Girls blue gym bag, sweets. Addie sideh and others. Please. Call 272-3306.

LOST: At Lane's Easter party before break-Dawn, green wool winter sweater and lining from coat. Please return. North hall, other． Call Valeria Watkins 584-7584.

FOUND: At Illinois State Sunday evening. To cornor 2797.

LOST: I just need to try to see it over the whole season. Those of us who truly are striving for the "best interests of baseball" certainly hope that they do not.

WANTED: Need 2 tickets for Com- mence last March. 738-1272.

WANTED: Need 2 tickets to share fully furnished (3rover) house near campus for the summer, 279-1578. Want to share-Call 279-1578.

WANTED: For Sale: One pair of brown Chers shoes. I found one at Day 6757.

WANTED: For Sale: One pair of brown Chers shoes. I found one at Day 6757.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

LOST: Girls blue gym bag, sweets. Addie sideh and others. Please. Call 272-3306.

LOST: At Lane's Easter party before break-Dawn, green wool winter sweater and lining from coat. Please return. North hall, other． Call Valeria Watkins 584-7584.

FOUND: At Illinois State Sunday evening. To cornor 2797.

LOST: I just need to try to see it over the whole season. Those of us who truly are striving for the "best interests of baseball" certainly hope that they do not.

WANTED: Need 2 tickets for Com- mence last March. 738-1272.

WANTED: Need 2 tickets to share fully furnished (3rover) house near campus for the summer, 279-1578. Want to share-Call 279-1578.

WANTED: For Sale: One pair of brown Chers shoes. I found one at Day 6757.

WANTED: For Sale: One pair of brown Chers shoes. I found one at Day 6757.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

LOST: Girls blue gym bag, sweets. Addie sideh and others. Please. Call 272-3306.

LOST: At Lane's Easter party before break-Dawn, green wool winter sweater and lining from coat. Please return. North hall, other． Call Valeria Watkins 584-7584.

FOUND: At Illinois State Sunday evening. To cornor 2797.

LOST: I just need to try to see it over the whole season. Those of us who truly are striving for the "best interests of baseball" certainly hope that they do not.

WANTED: Need 2 tickets for Com- mence last March. 738-1272.

WANTED: Need 2 tickets to share fully furnished (3rover) house near campus for the summer, 279-1578. Want to share-Call 279-1578.

WANTED: For Sale: One pair of brown Chers shoes. I found one at Day 6757.

WANTED: For Sale: One pair of brown Chers shoes. I found one at Day 6757.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

WANTED: Call 400-1234.

LOST: Girls blue gym bag, sweets. Addie sideh and others. Please. Call 272-3306.

LOST: At Lane's Easter party before break-Dawn, green wool winter sweater and lining from coat. Please return. North hall, other． Call Valeria Watkins 584-7584.

FOUND: At Illinois State Sunday evening. To cornor 2797.

LOST: I just need to try to see it over the whole season. Those of us who truly are striving for the "best interests of baseball" certainly hope that they do not.
Sports

32 teams remain alive in Bookstore tourney
by Frank LaCorona
Sports Writer

Thirty two teams remain in what is considered the most exciting tournament in Bookstore Basketball's eight-year history. Yesterday's action featured plenty of excitement, some emotion, and, for the fifth straight day, all the sunshine that usually accompanies the Boilermaker season in Bend, Indiana ever dreamed of.
But it almost ruined on the Tigers' face, as the tournament's tournament's number two was used to playing on astroturf and they could handle from Dr. K and the Four Shonglasses.
Chumps won the game, 21-17, overcoming one, two and three-point deficits at different points during the game. Balanced scores were led by the crafty of the game for the Notre Dame offense was moving the ball so well that the we'd destroy them. We're not wish them. Game for the Purdue despite the turf

The umpire situation
In Nobody's best interest

This is the second of a two-part series on the recent action taken by baseball's umpires.

You might think that the salary figures for umpires would be factual mater. After speaking with the league offices and the umpire's attorney, I found out that the figures are somewhat a matter of opinion.

A spokesperson for the American League told me that the average salary for an umpire was $30,000, not just in that league, but in both leagues combined. The National League spokesman said the average was $33,000.

If two different figures weren't there, the umpire's attorney, Richie Phillips insisted that the average was only $27,000. All three did make over $15,000, but I got conflicting figures for the maximum salary. The league agreed that the highest payed umpires were offered $41,000 for 1979.

Phillips disagreed.

"They're lying to you," he insisted. "Nobody
was offered more than $40,000."

After hearing this from Phillips, I called the National League office once again and told the Public Relations Director, Blake Cullen, what Phillips had said. "If he doesn't think that any of them were offered over $40,000, he's full of (expletive) and tell him to his face. Ask him how much Ed Vargo was offered."

Phillips' argument was somewhat more elegant. He liked to compare the figures to the officials in the National Basketball Association who he also represents. "If you tell me
what they have offered, and left
numbers, you can't negotiate."

Phillips may have been thinking about last year's contracts and Cullen was referring to this year's offers. However, one umpire, Bill Haller, did make over $51,000 in salaries last year, including his World Series salary.

Cullen explained the pay structure for the National League. "Our league pays about
$3,000 in salaries for the average umpire,
almost $10,000 each in benefits (retirement, Blue Cross Blue Shield, dental care, etc.), and then, of course, the $35 per diem. Then they get paid for extra games too - $1,500 for the All-Star Games, $4,000 each for the playoffs, and then there's the three poor guys who have to head to the second round and take $1,000 each for the World Series. All together, our league pays out over $2 million for umpires each year.

Nevertheless, the umpires are relatively well
paid - as well as the players and (face it,
people don't buy a ticket to see the umpires),
and not as well as they'd like to be, but nevertheless, well paid. Umpires are in the top
7 percent of America's wage earners. Of the 24
umpires in the National League, 14 were offered contracts which called for salaries in excess of $40,000.

The two sides of the issue look like this:
Predictably, the leagues feel that the umps
are getting it on. "Our position," the National League said, "is that we feel that the umpire situation
In Nobody's best interest

This is the second of a two-part series on the recent action taken by baseball's umpires.

You might think that the salary figures for umpires would be factual mater. After speaking with the league offices and the umpire's attorney, I found out that the figures are somewhat a matter of opinion.

A spokesperson for the American League told me that the average salary for an umpire was $30,000, not just in that league, but in both leagues combined. The National League spokesman said the average was $33,000.

If two different figures weren't there, the umpire's attorney, Richie Phillips insisted that the average was only $27,000. All three did make over $15,000, but I got conflicting
figures for the maximum salary. The league
agreed that the highest payed umpires were offered $41,000 for 1979.

Phillips disagreed.

"They're lying to you," he insisted. "Nobody
was offered more than $40,000."

After hearing this from Phillips, I called the National League office once again and told the
Public Relations Director, Blake Cullen, what Phillips had said. "If he doesn't think that any of them were offered over $40,000, he's full of (expletive) and tell him to his face. Ask him how much Ed
Vargo was offered."

Phillips' argument was somewhat more elegant. He liked to compare the figures to
the officials in the National Basketball Association who he also represents. "If you tell me
what they have offered, and left
numbers, you can't negotiate."

Phillips may have been thinking about last year's contracts and Cullen was referring to this year's offers. However, one umpire, Bill Haller, did make over $51,000 in salaries last
year, including his World Series salary.

Cullen explained the pay structure for the National League. "Our league pays about
$3,000 in salaries for the average umpire,
almost $10,000 each in benefits (retirement,
Blue Cross Blue Shield, dental care, etc.),
and then, of course, the $35 per diem. Then they get paid for extra games too - $1,500 for the All-Star Games, $4,000 each for the playoffs, and then there's the three poor guys who have to head to the second round and take $1,000 each for the World Series. All together, our league pays out over $2 million for umpires each year.

Nevertheless, the umpires are relatively well
paid - as well as the players and (face it,
people don't buy a ticket to see the umpires),
and not as well as they'd like to be, but nevertheless, well paid. Umpires are in the top
7 percent of America's wage earners. Of the 24
umpires in the National League, 14 were offered contracts which called for salaries in excess of $40,000.

The two sides of the issue look like this:
Predictably, the leagues feel that the umps
are getting it on. "Our position," the National League said, "is that we feel that the

...