WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration appears to be taking a step toward what could be the nation's longest and bitterest school busing battle yesterday, serving notice on Chicago that it will use force to end an alleged widespread classroom segregation.

HEW Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris said she notified the Chicago school board that unless an acceptable school desegregation plan is submitted by Oct. 27, the matter will be referred to the Justice Department for legal action.

Regulations in the Civil Rights Act require a 10-day interim period between the time of a government decision to bring suit and the actual filing of that suit.

Harris said she decided to turn the Chicago case over to the Justice Department because, "I have concluded that compliance cannot be secured by voluntary means and I cannot in good conscience agree to further delay in the guise of negotiation."

She told a news conference that "the Chicago school officials might submit an unacceptable desegregation plan, adding that this is "a real possibility."

In a statement released within two hours of Harris' news conference, however, Chicago school superintendent Joseph Hannon said that school officials will fight the government.

"We will not sit down and discuss with anybody when there are preconditions," Hannon said. "That is not negotiating."

"I would hope again that we could take the gun off the table and negotiate it without them telling us what to do," he said. Harris' actions followed a move by the Chicago Board of Education Wednesday rejecting 72 guidelines set by HEW for reducing segregation in the 475,000-student public school system. Under the guidelines, about a quarter of the city's students would have to be bused.

If the city had accepted the conditions submitted by HEW last week, it automatically would have been given an extension until Nov. 17 to prepare a desegregation plan. Instead, the board voted 6-3 to ask HEW for an additional 170 days to come up with an acceptable plan.

The plea was immediately rejected by HEW officials.

Harris said HEW collected a vast amount of evidence that showed "a clear pattern, over a period of almost 40 years, of intentional Board of Education action to enforce and perpetuate segregated conditions and to avoid integration."

The Office of Civil Rights said the school board fostered segregation by the way it drew school district boundaries and by the ways in which new schools were located, as well as in many other ways.

In its guidelines, HEW had insisted that Chicago school officials develop a plan under which no school would be more than 50 percent white or 65 percent black.
Medical officials to unearth Lee Harvey Oswald's grave

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas County medical officials said yesterday they have asked authorities in neighboring Tarrant County to dig up the body buried in the Lee Harvey Oswald's grave to verify its identity. Oswald was named as the lone assassin of President John F. Kennedy by the Warren Commission. He was gunned down while in police custody two days after Kennedy's assassination in 1963. "Somebody has raised the question as to who is in that grave. The easiest way to find out is to... run some tests," said Dallas County Medical Examiner Charles S. Perry. A request to dig up Oswald's body was made earlier this year by British author Michael Eddelstone, but Tarrant County officials turned to him down.

Student laundry improves

by Janet Regaux

The newly implemented wash-and-fold laundry bundle return is proving to be much more efficient than last year’s method, said Norm Muller, assistant director of Laundry Services.

"The plan was rearranged so that there were one 'in ankle' and two 'out' ankles," Muller said. "Students now pick up their own bundles which are sitting on shelves as they walk in."

Last year, attendants would give each student his bundle and he would pick it up. The more time and caused jam-ups in the laundry office, he said.

Another change created by the laundry service is that laundry cards are used as payment rather than coupons. The coupons proved to be a pain for both the student and us," Muller explained. "Students were always worried about losing them."

If a student goes over his or her minutes waiting time, he can either pay by cash or charge it to his account. "This is much simpler and convenient for everyone," Muller noted.

Muller is responsible for the laundry service of the campus, "I came here last year and saw all of the long lines in the laundry. We want to get students in and out as soon as possible."

Muller also changed the laundry service registration process for freshmen this year. Student used to have to wait in long lines for over an hour to get their coupons and laundry bags. According to Muller, the new registration procedure cut 45 to 60 minutes waiting time for students. "Emil Hoffman, dean of Freshman Year of Studies, was 'really thrilled' with the new registration process," he added.

No more new changes will be implemented this year. Muller wants to see how well this new system works for a year and then evaluate it. "Overall, the new system is great, improvements to last year," he said. "As the year progresses we may find a few flaws that need to be ironed out, and if we do we will add changes to the system next year. All we want to do is to keep improving it."

Roemer chooses assistant director

by Kathy Casey

Rex J. Rakow, director of security at Albion, Michigan, and a native of Mishawaka, has been named assistant director of Security at Notre Dame by James A. Roemer, Dean of Students.

Roemer said Rakow, a 1973 graduate of Indiana University at Bloomington, will work 4 p.m. to 12 a.m., a shift, which would include security for evening events on campus such as basketball games.

Rakow will also be available to 8 p.m. with student groups in the evening, Roemer said.

Roemer noted that Rakow's appointment is effective Dec. 3, is also responsible assistant director of the University's 75-member security force under the supervision of Glenn C. Terry, who was named Security director last month.

Student Body President Bill Roche said of Rakow's appointment: "Somebody of a high level of responsibility will be available to deal with students. Roche stressed the importance of student involvement in the selection of both Rakow and Terry. Both Roche and SBVP Bill Vira interviewed Rakow and Terry, along with all the other final candidates for the position of security director.

"Terry and Rakow working in tandem will add to the quality of the security force at Notre Dame," Vira said. He added that Terry's professional experience as a member of the South Bend Police Force, and Rakow's youth and "proven ability to talk to students," complement each other very well.

Rakow has been at Albion since 1977. Prior to that, he had been a police training specialist for the Southern Illinois Justice Training Program in Carbondale, Illinoris, and a policeman in Richmond, Ind.

After graduating from Clay Senior High School in South Bend, Rakow earned a bachelor's degree in police administration at Indiana University and is now working on a master's degree in occupational education at Southern Illinois University.

Rakow was one of three finalists for the position of security director earlier this fall.

SMC Board of Regents affects daily activities of students

By Charlotte Bradley

The Saint Mary's Board of Regents, as the sole governing body of the college, affects the daily activities of all SMC students.

The 27-member board, established in 1971, is vested with the authority and responsibility for the operation of the college, in accordance with the status philosophy of the college, the by-laws of the corporation, and the laws of the state of Indiana.

As stated in the by-laws, if the college has a lay president, the chairman of the board must be a C.S.C. nun, and vice versa.

One-third of the members must be sisters of the Holy Cross. The Board makes the policy decisions of the college, such as forming the budget and hiring the college president, although its decisions are based on input from the administration.

The members of the Board include alumnae, college administrators, sisters of the Holy Cross, community business leaders, and one faculty and one student member.

Members are elected for three-year terms and can serve up to six consecutive years.

St. Margaret Michael King is chairman this year of the Board of Regents. King is also Regional Superior of the Midwest Region of the Sisters of the Holy Cross.

President of Saint Mary's, John M. Duggan, is a member of the governing board of Regents and is an ex-officio member of all other committees.

Dorothy M. Fiegel, the faculty representative on the Board, is chairman of the Department of Chemistry and Physics at SMC.

The students are represented by Sheila Marie Witzel, the student body treasurer. Maryanne Ryan Burke, elected this year as president of the SMC Alumni Association, is a Board member.

Nine new members were elected this year, including: Burke, Thomas J. Bunch is corporate vice president of the Automotive Control Systems and Materials Group, and one of the Bendix Corporation.

For Archbishop Biskup
Cathedrals to hold services

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Services will be at 11 a.m. Monday in St. Peter and St. Paul Cathedral here for the Most Rev. George J. Biskup, 68, archbishop of the Catholic Archdiocese of Indianapolis for 12 years.

He died Wednesday night in St. Vincent Hospital. Biskup resigned as head of the Indianapolis Archdiocese in March because of a series of health problems during the past several years, including a recurrence of cancer.

The Rev. Msgr. Francis Tuohy, who was named temporary administrator pending the pope's selection of a successor, said, "Archbishop Biskup was a kind and gentle person who dealt with others in a very sensitive manner. He was very understanding of all persons who came to him with problems, always generously giving them much of his time."

"Perhaps his most outstanding quality and one that will continue to have lasting effects on the church here was his ability to share responsibility with persons whom he appointed to various ministries."

Seniors complain of losing time

by Stephan Sharp

Some seniors are complaining that they will miss up to a half day of vacation time in Acapulco next week due to poor flight scheduling. Fr. Mario Pedi, senior class moderator, said, however, that part of the problem has been solved.

Several seniors became upset at Tuesday's "Trippermute" when they discovered that their American Airlines flight will be the last one to arrive in Acapulco and the second one to leave. Normally, flights are staggered so that the last senior trippers to arrive are the last ones to leave.

"It doesn't seem fair to pay the same price for 12 hours less time in Acapulco," said Clare Stack, a senior from Lyons who was scheduled on the last flight.

The flight schedule handed out to the seniors on Tuesday lists the first group as arriving in Acapulco at 12:00 noon and the last one as leaving at 11:30 p.m. (acapulco time).

Pedi said that the last flight arrival time has been moved up to 8:59 p.m. "The improved time means that being on the last flight won't shoot Sunday night, and that's what most people were complaining about," Pedi said.

Normally, the trip committee charters flights and therefore has more control over departure and return times. Pedi explained that this year no planes could be charted because the airlines are losing money on charters. The last flight into Acapulco, filled with 130 Notre Dame and Saint Mary's seniors, was added by American Airlines to its regular schedule of Mexican flights, but only at a group rate. The airline set the times of departure and return. Pedi also noted that all seniors must fly with the same airline both to and from Acapulco in order to qualify for a group rate.

On international routes, the airlines don't fly as regularly as on U.S. routes, and long delays between flights are common.

Andy Barfuss, senior trip coordinator, said that most seniors believed the scheduling could have been done better, but he stated that few people have called him to complain. "I know how those people feel," Barfuss said. "I ended up on the last flight too."

Costs soar, profits fall with nation's airlines

NEW YORK (AP) - The skies aren't as friendly for the nation's airlines any more. Costs are soaring, profits are almost gone and employees are being laid off.

The airlines are trying to cope with the problem by raising fares and cutting back on discounts, hoping that won't prompt air travelers to stay home.

The signs of trouble are everywhere. The Air Transport Association reported yesterday that air travel in September was only 7.5 percent above levels of a year ago, far below the 15.3 percent boost in August.

United Airlines announced that layoffs of 100 pilots and 95 pilot trainees and said more layoffs are to come. TWA also has announced major layoffs and many other airlines are not filling vacancies.

American Airlines reported a 97 percent decline in third-quarter profits. That was partly because America's DC-10 jetliners, which account for more than 20 percent of its capacity, were grounded for most of July after a DC-10 crash in Chicago that killed 23 persons.

Trans World Corp. said its profits fell only 32 percent, but added that was because its nonairline subsidiaries did well. Braniff Airlines on Thursday reported a loss of $8.8 million for the quarter, compared to a profit of $15 million a year ago. The loss came despite a 35 percent increase in revenues to $370.7 million.

At the heart of the airlines' problems is oil price increases - the same factors that brought higher profits earlier this year. Initially, the oil squeeze brought increased business, as persons fearful of finding gasoline lines were by air. But the airlines were unable to raise fares as fast as their fuel costs increased.

The airlines have countered with sharp fare increases, but those were delayed by the Civil Aeronautics Board. The "de-regulation" of the industry made it easier to lower fares than to raise them.

Many of the fare increases have taken effect and others are pending. "By the end of the year, fares will be up at least 27 percent from last year," said Thomas G. Plaskett, a senior vice-president of American Airlines.

The airlines have countered by making it easier to lower fares as fast as their fuel costs increased. The airlines aren't as friendly for the students as they used to be.

The flight schedule handed out to the seniors on Tuesday lists the first group as arriving in Acapulco at 12:00 noon and the last one as leaving at 11:30 p.m. (acapulco time).

Pedi said that the last flight arrival time has been moved up to 8:59 p.m. "The improved time means that being on the last flight won't shoot Sunday night, and that's what most people were complaining about," Pedi said.

Students to change before game

As a pre-game psyche move for the U.S.C. game, the students are called on to take part in a game where change from blue to green as the Notre Dame football team runs onto the field just prior to the kick-off.

The change is to be a simple substitution of an article of clothing, such as putting on a green jacket over a blue sweatshirt. After The Change, cheer the Green Machine on to victory over the Trojans of U.S.C.

Assault on smallpox erases affliction

The Observer

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—It probably killed Pharaoh Ramses of Egypt 3,000 years ago. Africans and Indians worshiped it. In 1777, a Somali cook named Ali Maow Maalin became the last person known to catch it outside a laboratory.

Over the centuries, smallpox killed, scarred, blinded or permanently scarred hundreds of millions. When an epidemic began, people could do little more than wait for the fever, the vomiting and the pustules to subside. English physician Edward Jenner produced a preventive vaccine 180 years ago, but there was never a cure.

Now smallpox is about to be erased from recognized lists of human afflictions. On Oct. 26, officials of the Geneva-based World Health Organization, which led the final assault on the virus, will travel to Nairobi to declare that smallpox has been eradicated.

The only countries not presently certified smallpox-free are Kenya, Somalia, Ethiopia and Djibouti. Nomadic population movements there hindered detection and isolation of virus outbreaks.

But WHO teams have completed intensive surveys in the Horn of Africa region and the four countries will be cleared next week.

According to public health officials, the victory over smallpox marks the first time science has eliminated a disease. The campaign cost billions of dollars, with WHO contributing $100 million.

"After two years without a single case, there is no chance smallpox will return," Dr. Zaud Islam, WHO’s disease-control officer in eastern Africa, said in an interview.

"It’s a man-to-man infection, with no stage in animals, insects or impure water. There are no human carriers, who spread the disease without showing symptoms, as there are for typhoid. When symptoms come, they appear on exposed parts of the body, like the face, and cannot be hidden. And there is an effective vaccine.

This makes it comparatively easy to deal with," he said. "You won’t find another major disease about which all these things are true."

If the doctors are right, and they say the probabilities are overwhelmingly against error, smallpox from now on will exist only in a few laboratories for research purposes.

Yet even there, accidents can occur.

Janet Parker, 40, a medical photographer, last year became Britain’s first smallpox fatality in five years after she apparently came in contact with viruses that escaped through a laboratory ventilation duct to the floor above.

In the subsequent outcry, professor Henry Beach, 49, a world smallpox authority, cut his studies short, leaving a note saying he had ignored basic safety precautions in handling the viruses.

Britain later tightened regulations at 11 laboratories where dangerous viruses are held. WHO says a global reserve of 200 million doses of smallpox vaccine is being kept as a safeguard.

The origin of smallpox is unknown. Ramses died at age 40, and his mummy bears what could be smallpox scars. Christian leaders recorded smallpox in southern Europe around the fifth century.

Some West Africans revered smallpox as Sopona, a god whose name they rarely dared mention. Ancient Hindus worshiped Sitala, goddess of smallpox, and practised a form of quarantine by refusing to enter a house for fear of angering Sitala.

Chinese inoculated themselves by snuffing powder from the crusts of smallpox pustules, hoping to acquire a weak case of the virus that would immunize them. Persians swallowed the crusts.

Jenner’s vaccine was made from the harmless cowpox virus, but Britons initially rejected it—they thought it would make them moo.

Smallpox arrived in America from England in the 1600s. In 1792, almost half of Boston’s 18,000 residents caught it. Thomas Jefferson was the first U.S. president vaccinated against it.

Smallpox had disappeared from industrial countries when in 1967 WHO launched its eradication campaign, mostly in Africa.

Some 131,000 cases were reported that year. Islam estimated that more than 10 million unreported cases occurred, of either the Asian strain that killed 30 percent of the victims or an African strain that had a death rate under five percent.

Medical teams first tried mass inoculations but later switched to isolating the virus in remote areas.

"That was more effective," Islam said. "In fact, when we were certificated free of smallpox, only one-third of the country had been vaccinated."

West Africa reported its last smallpox case in 1970. A year later, central Africa had its last recorded case. The last case in Kenya—non-fatal—was in 1977 when 9-month-old Fatuma Adan was infected by a visiting Somali relative.

The world, as any educated and self-respecting individual knows, is as complicated place to live. Although I decry our increasing dependence on the authority of academic/geopolitical/secular "knowers" to come to grips with understanding how our society works, this effort is still worthwhile. Let's begin by well-intentioned assassins of the human condition who know a little about the topics concerning many of us. It's easy.

In the "women in the priesthood", it is a corner point. Although a whole host of people have "honest" effort to delineate some of the difficulties facing American Catholics with regard to the entry of women into the Church, some of his more erratic and unsubstantiated generalizations, I am making my own investigation.

It's heated: "The pope reserves the priesthood for men. The "tradition and theological discipline. Traditio-

... is the Church, some of his more erratic and unsubstantiated generalizations, I am making my own investigation.

The Church's ministry of leadership is for all Catholics, not exclusively male, it tried not to be a man's association. Indeed, it was a part of the Church's life, on the basis of equal rights, is something that belongs to a suitably renewed Church today. This means not only women as coresponsible in different advisory and administrative positions, but also the admission of women into the Church's special ministries and to ordina-tions. Sociocultural reasons have been the objection of ordination of women for a theological debate, but the time is ripe for more for a non-traditional ministry. Does anyone believe that no decisive theological reasons have been presented.

Thumbs up:

(2) He boldly asserts: "The pope speaks with the words of faith - those who oppose him on this issue use words of logic." Come now, Pat, words are words. The pope expresses himself generally by words and, believing Catholics who disagree generally have the reason of faith, as well as logic. Your simplistic, and dichotomous, exegesis is demeaning to serious Catholics whose faith is in God. Jesus is not a moral exhortation: "You shall know the truth and the truth shall set you free." Impel them to act in congruence with that faith. Authentication means more than seeking full ministerial duties, it falls are more closely aligned with Scripture than those of the Church.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration has broadened its search for a secretary of education after former New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca apparently called himself out of the job, White House sources say.

A day after President Carter signed a bill creating the Department of Education, White House aides said the search is far from over. The list of the best-known names in public education are under consideration, they indicated.

These sources, who declined to be identified, said that at least seven names are on various lists, but that no list has been sent to Carter. No consensus candidate has emerged among the White House staff, they said.

Student Government is concerned with the impact of students into tenure decisions. At present, the only student input in the form of student evaluation forms. These forms are not used uniformly to evaluate teacher performance. Imbrisco said. Imbrisco is also concerned that students do not realize how they can affect University decisions about tenure.

Three members of the Black Cultural Arts Council attended yesterday's meeting and requested that the Committee support their efforts in their negotiations for an increased budget allotment from student government and increased recognition as a campus organization. While support of this kind lies outside the charter of the Student Affairs Committee, a discussion ensued which allowed members of the SG Board of Commissioners and the BCAC to clarify their positions. SG officials noted that they had not permanently refused to fund the BCAC but had only delayed funding until commitments from other sources could be determined.

Student Government Executive Council President Hope Marrero updated the Committee on University Housing. Marrero explained the system by which SG representatives and University representatives were reviewing dormitories to decide on necessary renovations. According to Marrero, a committee had been formed to research each dorm. After all the dorms had been looked at, the committee prioritized the dorms and the renovations. The possibility of these renovations is now being evaluated by the Affairs Committee.

Other issues discussed at the meeting include a possible change in the structure of hall judicial courts, an update on off-campus security and the student input into the selection of the new campus police security director.

Jim Zarzana, Graduate Student and SG President, also reported to the Committee on the actions of the recently revitalized GSU. Marrero emphasized the groups concern with the accreditation of Memorial Library and the increased availability of travel grants to graduate students. These grants are allowed to graduate students who wish to participate in conferences across the country.

POET RECEIVES NOBEL PRIZE

STECKHOLM, SWEDEN (AP) — Greek poet Odysseus Elytis, who seeks "true reality" through vivid works strongly rooted in the landscape, life and age-old tradition of his native land, was awarded the 1979 Nobel Prize for literature yesterday.

The 68-year-old Elytis, little known outside the Greek language, edged out a half-dozen internationally acclaimed writers who had been highly touted favorites for the prestigious honor.

Reached by telephone in his small bachelor's flat in Athens, he told a reporter he was surprised and thankful "on my own behalf and my country" as a poet and a Greek.

The literature prize, awarded by the Swedish Royal Academy of Letters, was the last of the six 1979 Nobels to be awarded. Each is worth $100,000. Five of the 10 laureates are Americans, including four of seven science Nobel winners. The awards ceremony will be conducted Dec. 10 in Stockholm.

Elytis — whose name for Odysseus Alexandria — is the second Greek to win the Nobel for literature, Giorgos Seferis, a fellow poet in the surrealist-influenced Greek school of the 1930s who was the laureate in 1963. The 18-member Academy said in its citation that Elytis' poetry "depicts with sensuous strength and intellectual clear-sightedness modern man's struggle for freedom and creativity."

It praised its "sensuality and light" and its portrait of the world around us with a "wealth of freshness and astonishing experiences."

Elytis' best-known work is a cycle of mythical poems entitled "To Anax Eisi" ("Worth It Be"), which was published in 1959 after more than a decade's work. The academy called it "one of 20th-century literature's most concentrated and finely raked poems."

Elytis was born to a well-known intellectual family on the island of Crete in 1911, just a few years before it was freed from Turkish rule. He studied law and political science at the University of Athens.

back from the first injury of spring drills through the final snap of the 1979 Cotton Bowl. And after a slow start, he had a spectacular season.

When Notre Dame opened the 1978 season by losing to Missouri and Michigan, Montana was missing wide-open receivers and throwing interceptions at very opportune times. It was easy to conclude that deep down inside, Rusty Lisch was bitter.

Notre Dame's coaching staff de- cided during last season that unless Montana was injured, they would not use Rusty Lisch at all. That way, he could take an extra year of eligibility and quarter back the team in 1979, when Montana's graduation would leave Dan Devine without an experienced quarterback.

If he were bitter, Rusty Lisch might have said thanks, but no thanks. Or he might have said take this job and shove it. Or he might have just laughed.

But instead, he decided to return. Rather than quietly and safely finish his education, Rusty Lisch decided that he was strong enough to take the risk. The risk that he might fail, that he might be booted by his own student body. But he could only make that decision because football is not the most important thing in his life.

"My outlook on life is that I'm a Catholic, and everything revolves around my faith," says Lisch. "Football is just a means to get where I'm going. God gave me a certain talent, and I try to use it for Him just like I try to use my other talents in everyday life.

That philosophy enables Lisch to put his experiences of two seasons ago in a positive light.

The real 'Comeback Kid'

The Notre Dame-Southern Cali- fornia football game renews the most glamorous intersectional rivalry in college football, and the attention paid the game is greater than any other regular season contest in the land. Just ask the two coaches for a few minutes of their time and you'll be told to get in the back of a long line behind well-wishers, media, and ticket-seekers, and that "Coach is in a film taxi right now."

It boggles the mind to think that on top of preparing their teams for the biggest game of the year, both John Robinson of USC and Dan Devine of Notre Dame must also take care of lots of extraneous chores. In the midst of all the excitement, however, neither Robinson nor Devine has lost sight of the fact that he has a game to try to win tomorrow.

"I think it's an important game for both teams," Devine says. "Southern California is trying to regain national recognition after their tie with Stanford last weekend...and we have a chance to jump up in our national prestige. The important thing to both teams is winning just for their own personal pride."

Without a doubt, both teams boast superlative football traditions, as Robinson infers when he says "Both teams are used to winning."

Southern Cal comes into the game with a 5-0-1 record and a fourteen-game unbeaten streak, which means that the Trojans have just held off the previous holders of the title. "This is a great year for us," says Robinson. "We're the strongest of the two squads, the Notre Dame team that was to use the game as a springboard to national prestige. The important thing to both teams is winning just for their own personal pride."

But Devine admits that the Trojans are the stronger of the two squads. "Physically, we can't stand up to them so we're going to have to play a perfect game with no fumbles or mistakes," he says, "Vegas Fagan is certainly one of the best backs I have seen, and he and Charlie are two premier backs to be on the field. We're not the strongest of the two teams, but we're not going to be on any individual players in a game like this one."

The game will pit two very talented teams against each other, as both coaches confirm, "You have to be good to be playing at USC or Notre Dame."

The real 'Comeback Kid'
Battle for Heisman tomorrow?

by Mark Perry

Traditionally, the Notre Dame-USC game has had a big hand in deciding the national champion in football. In five of the last seven years, the winner of this intersectional rivalry has gone on to claim at least a share of the national crown.

And with USC highly ranked all season and Notre Dame still clinging to championship hopes, tomorrow's game could be of equal importance.

But in addition to the battle for football supremacy, another post-season honor may be decided on the gridiron of Notre Dame Stadium tomorrow afternoon. Because Charles White of USC and Vagas Ferguson of Notre Dame have emerged as two of the top contenders to win the Heisman Trophy, the most prestigious award in college football.

Along with defending Heisman winner Billy Sims of Oklahoma, White opened the season as one of the favorites to win this coveted title. Sims has been hurt by some early-season performances, allowing Ferguson to burst on the scene as another possible candidate.

Both of these players have a couple of things going for them, things that are thought necessary to win the Heisman:

1) They are offensive backs. Only two players, Larry Kelley of Yale in 1956 and Notre Dame's Leon Hart in 1949, have won the Heisman and not played in the offensive backfield (both were ends). The trophy has gone to running backs the last seven years.

2) They are in Publicity. A key to winning the Heisman, no matter how good you are. Notre Dame and USC are both schools that get extensive media coverage throughout the year. It also helps if your team wins most of its games.

3) They appear on nationally televised games. This also helps the publicity angle, as the writers and broadcasters who vote for the Heisman sometimes get their only exposure to certain players through television.

4) They are very good football players. This is a must if you want to be picked the best in the country. Both players have the proper credentials.

The two coaches would be the first to back this up last point.

"I've said it before, but Vagas has to be regarded as one of the top running backs in the country," says Irish coach Dan Devine. "He has been so consistent week after week that everyone assumes he'll get his 100 or so yards and he usually does. He's all-everything as far as I'm concerned."

"Ferguson does a great job of finding an open lane and searching out the little crack when there isn't one there," praises USC mentor John Robinson.

But Robinson has some high praises for his own back. "I don't know if we've been around a man admire more than Charlie White. He's a fierce competitor, can run with the best, has great balance and vision, is an excellent receiver and is the most complete back in the country."

"White is probably the best of the lot. He's a great ball handler, great pass protector, big and fast,"

Devine echoes. "We know that White's the kind of back you're just going to try and contain him. He's a great competitor and I'm sure he'll want to play especially well against us."

Both White and Ferguson come into the game with the kind of early-season statistics you need to win the Heisman. White has gained 740 yards on 100 carries and has scored seven touchdowns. He now rank sixth in the all-time NCAA rushing list with 4,535 yards, and only needs 181 more to move into third behind Tony Dorsett and Archie Griffin.

Ferguson is also close in some categories. He has 627 yards on 94 percent of Notre Dame's rushing total on the season) on 142 carries, and has scored six touchdowns.

But trophies and records matter little to these backs at the present time. The big worry is the game itself.

"It would be great to win the Heisman," White admits, "but what I want USC to do is keep winning, and hold on to take care of themselves."

"I never think about individual performances or records," says Ferguson. "The team is the most important thing, and winning is the most important thing for the team. Whichever records or rewards come as a result of that effort will be a bonus after the season is over."

"It's a good bet one of these two young men will be getting that bonus; a bronze statue that says to everyone 'I'm the best there is!'"

Little Joey: 'The other Browner'

by Craig Chal

Sports Writer

It's only fitting that Saturday's Notre Dame-Southern Cal classic is Homecoming. Because, in a way, Joey Browner is coming home.

But he's not coming home to stay. Unlike his older brothers - Ross, Jimmie, and Willard - Joey wasn't lured to the Northern Indiana wilderness and the Golden Dome. In fact, they're precisely why Joey Browner opted for palm tree and sand instead of Saga and snowflakes.

Browner never considered bringing his talents all-state at two different positions in two different states - to Notre Dame, because he didn't want to play in the huge shadow of his three brothers.

"I wanted to go somewhere where I could develop into my own man," says Browner, a freshman defensive back for the Trojans. "I was always being compared with my brothers, especially Ross, because I used to play defensive end."

And before any Notre Dame fans with vivid images of Ross chomping down Tony Dorsett from behind still fresh in their minds begin to chuckle too loud, consider this: Joey didn't even wait until he was a senior to break all of Ross' records at Western Reserve High School in Warren, OH - he did it as a junior.

As a senior, he kept busy by playing five different positions for Southwest High School in Atlanta. In the process, he was named city's player of the year, and gained all-state, all-country and numerous All-America accolades.

Joey Browner has seen his share of Notre Dame-USC battles, but if you believe him, that's all he ever thought he'd do.

"The games were exciting," Browner says. "But that didn't enjoy being here, I didn't think too much about the teams."

When reality finally slapped him in the face, Joey still didn't give much thought.

"I never thought I would play at Notre Dame," he says. "If my brothers hadn't come to Notre Dame, I would have considered it."

Although his decision to break with what had almost become a tradition might seem to cast Joey in the role of the family's black sheep, nothing could be farther from the truth.

"My brothers didn't really say much about the whole thing," Joey insists. "They were just glad that I had the opportunity to play college ball."

As far as Browner is concerned, his decision to go West couldn't have worked out better.

The six-foot, three-inch, 200-pounder has worked his way into the second-string cornerback slot for the Trojans, and hasn't had a second thought.

"This school (USC) is a lot like Notre Dame," Joey says. "It's the same caliber of football, and I really feel at home with it."

But still, there will be a lot of people in Notre Dame Stadium Saturday thinking that Joey Browner will be making his first home appearance of his career against Notre Dame's fourth Browner brother.

"I never thought I would play at Notre Dame," he says. "If my brothers hadn't come to Notre Dame, I would have considered it."

Budde exhibits "Jeckyll and Hyde" act

Brad Budde walks with a slow gait out of USC's gymnasium and rests his 6-5, 255-pound frame on the steps outside. He is warm and amiable to those who approach him. He speaks in gentle tones, inviting friendship.

Budde, football's transcendent all-American, is at home in Corvallis, Oregon on an early September afternoon. USC's Southern Cal team is on the Oregon State University schedule for this week, so Budde has been in Oregon for a few days. He is expected to return to Los Angeles by Sunday.

Catholic committee schedules conference

Pope John Paul II's messages during his recent visit to the United States will be examined in the context of ministry for social justice during the annual fall conference of the Catholic Committee on Urban Ministry. Nearly 500 participants are expected to attend the meeting which begins Sunday at the University.

Organized around the theme "Toward a Just Economy for the 80's," the four-day meeting will move from analyzing the problems to assessing the appropriate church and community response and, finally, planning specific strategies for action. The Protestant Committee on Urban Ministry will cosponsor the conference.

Dr. Helen Volkmener, S.P., executive director of the Notre Dame-based national network of clergy, religious and laity engaged in ministry for social justice, noted this year's successful effort to increase minority representation especially among women, blacks, and Hispanics.

Archbishop Marcus McGrath of Panama will deliver the opening address, entitled, "Economic Justice: A Global Religious Issue." Sunday at 8 p.m. at the University's Athletic and Convocation Center, where all sessions will be held. Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College faculty, students and staff are welcome to attend sessions without paying the registration fee.

"We aren't JUST textbooks you know!"
I've just finished reading a letter with a heartwarming tale of a young woman, who has told you she now has another love. His words are so clever, she's compensation for the generosity, so sorrowful and self-sacrificing, it's heartbreaking to me. I can't imagine the world without love. As always, I'm sitting by the fire, dreaming of a girl who's sitting through a meadow, the earth steamed with the sweetness of friends, the play is a part of him he's kept since young. I will take him to his mother's house. A young man asks my help, and I want to hug him, because he's so shelted he can run to. I can tell that pain is felt because a part of him that never existed is now being born. The child being father to the heart. He must until we found it wouldn't help. If I were his father, I could say: "My son, a father and husband's love is shaping of man experiences." I could not have loved my mother so well in this marriage, if myself had not also lived through the losses of my bones being laid. I could not have felt so enriched at your mother's loving me, if another had not turned me down. The love I gave your mother at your beginnings was a tree known visits from the winter's blast an encirclement of a thousand sums of summer."

A father has his own ways of expressing his support to a child. Even the lonely that only a young man should understand. That pain, too, has its uses. An ache in a tooth can drive us to a dentist; an ache in the heart can lead us to seek new heaven. Surely we must lose life before we can find it as an everlasting joy. The heart that never exsists has a vacancy to be filled by another. God's love is ever present. But don't know how big it is, how deep it is, how lovely it is. Maybe it isn't what we want, but we lost love, and found it again, in arms that embrace. Loneliness is a single sorrow.

Love, For Colored Girls, and Aunt's (Michelle) Houseman.

Since the basic characters lack originality, she across's rarity that must breathe life into the production. Some of the actors achieve an almost implausible K. Lombardi aptly interpreted the character of Annie with an effervescence and cutting innocence that won the heart of the audience. Miss Hannotine, the bitchy and selfish orphanage overseer, was portrayed by Laurel Chrin as a humorous "villain", although her actions failed at times to fully realize the potential of the dialogue.

Nowwood Smith's portrayal of billionnaire Oliver Warbucks. Although Simmane commanded the stage with his arrogant and authoritative voice, I could only imagine the occasional warming of his Wall Street-hardened heart to Annie until halfway into the last act of the play when Warbucks made a sudden leap from robber to saint so to speak. What bound Annie together, even the common theme of recognition, was the music and dance composition. Choirmaster Charles Strauss and choreographer Norwood Smith aptly interpreted the characters of Annie with an effervescence and cutting innocence that won the heart of the audience. Larocca, a senior from Chicago, feels that keeping club members interested is a basic problem. "Disorganization and the lack of coaching tend to turn people off," she says.

Molarity

by Michael Molinelli

With Notre Dame's athletic reputation as awesome as it has become, other schools often seek out the club to compete against. Larocca feels that the club's size and appearance is often an embarrassment.

The club now sports a 2-9 record, but that mark doesn't bother Larocca. "We've improved a lot, but you can't tell all that much from our record, but we have improved," Larocca feels that last spring the club's participation along with the men's volleyball club in the United States Volleyball Association helped to improve the player's abilities.

Designing a T-shirt to sell...

On the other hand, volleyball was just an interest since then she has been "bugging everybody about it.""

Chiefly through Larocca's efforts that interest group is now in its third year as a club sport. One of the many hassles Larocca and the club have encountered in the past three years is the filling of the club's petition for varsity status.

As a club sport, volleyball receives just $1,000 a year for expenses. The team does not have a paid coach so in the past it has relied on the volunteer efforts of Sandy Vansleger and Mel and Sue Goralski.

Most of the club's allotted funds this year have gone toward equipment. The club has purchased a referee's stand, game balls and many other necessities, but much money must be reserved for paying match officials and traveling expenses.

"All of the other teams we play are varsity and it shows," says Larocca. "Of the club's uniform situation, we look like we've got a pick-up-game going when we go." Astrid Howes, co-ordinator of Women's Athletics at Notre Dame, dug-up some matching jerseys for the club, but Larocca stresses that they are hardly adequate. The team members have purchased shorts on their own and new jerseys are currently on order.

"We're trying to have the idea of designing a t-shirt to sell. A portion of the proceeds will help us at this," says Larocca. The club also plans to have a raffle and various other fund-raisers.

Transportation is a major problem for volleyball. Club members must use their own transportation away from matches. In the past, the club has spent some of their funds to rent a van, but Larocca says that this is just too expensive. Another problem with van rental in the past was finding a member old enough (21) to sign the necessary forms.

The newly purchased equipment has enabled the club to host its first home matches this year. But, facility problems still hamper the club. Practice and match time must rotate around the varsity teams. An added complication for the club is the temperature in the ACC; the hockey ice considerably cools the arena and visiting teams.

The Evansville, IN, native defended her title beautifully, losing only nine games en route to her second straight championship. According to Legay, the second win was just as good as the first.

"It's really nice to be able to say that you are a state champion. I wanted to win badly, and I was able to because I played with a little more poise than I did freshman year. It would have been icing on the cake if we could have finished as team champs again, but everybody played well, and we qualified for regionals as a team, so we have nothing to be disappointed about.

Actually, the Irish might have had the team title, had it not been for one of man's oldest enemies, the common cold. That dastardly evil infected Tina Stephan, the Irish sixth singles player, and forced her to settle for second place in this year's tournament.

"I hate to use my physical condition as an excuse for my play in the finals," stated the sophomore business major from Barrington, IL. "Tina won her first two matches easily before succumbing to the forces of nature and Lynn Williams of DePauw. 'I'm kind of dippity, pointed because I really didn't play as well as I would have liked. But I still have regionals to look forward to.'"

Last anyone be misleading, these were not the only Notre Dame representatives in the state competition. In the no. 1 singles position, Cindy Schuster lost in the first round, and Paddy Mullen lost to the eventual tournament winner in the semifinals of no. 3. In doubles, no. 1 Hoyer and Legay lost a close semi-final match to tourney winners Paity Coash and Maureen Fitzgerald of Saint Mary's, and the second doubles team of Schuster and Stephane lost a heartbreaking three-set final (3-6, 7-6, 7-5) to DePauw, and Stacey Orabensky and Molly Walsh lost the the eventual champion in the semi-final of no. 3 doubles.

"For me, it wasn't a bad tournament. I would be lying if I said that we didn't want to win, but I'm very pleased that we did qualify for regionals. I'm sure that we can play a little bit better than we did over the weeks, and I am sure this we are still capable of doing well at regionals. We'll try to schedule a few more matches the spring, so then we can do about winning, the regional championship.

Baseball team closes fall slate
by Bill Marguard
Sports Writer

"We had a lot of ups and downs in our fall season this year," remarks Notre Dame baseball coach Tony Vicelli. "But we look back on the last month and a half of baseball.

Yet coach Kelly's words may have been something of an understatement when one considers the 5-1 start the team jumped out to before dipping to its final 6-6 autumn mark.

"We certainly proved to ourselves and to other that we can play with the good teams, but we also found that concentration was a key factor when we play those good teams.

"You can't let up for a minute in this game," adds the fifth-year head coach.

One of those good teams was undoubtedly Illinois State, whom the Irish dropped a twinhill to Sunday afternoon at lake Koster Field.

The Irish jumped out to an early 1-0 lead in the first inning of the opener. But five quick Illinois State runs in the top of the second frame sealed Notre Dame's fate as the 5-1 score stood at the end of the contest.

In this highcap, the Irish fought back from an early 3-0 deficit to take a 4-3 lead in the fourth inning on Greg Rosenbruee sacrifice fly and a bases-clearing triple by George Iams. But Illinois State slipped past the Irish with a three-run outburst of their own in the sixth, and Notre Dame's two runs tallies in the bottom of that frame came up short as the Irish absorbed a 7-6 defeat.

"A big inning here or there really made the difference this fall," remarks Kelly. "Overall, I though we played well, but it was those brief lapses that hurt us.

So with the autumn season now over, what does Kelly see as the weak points that will need work this winter?

"We'll be pushing hard about execution," Kelly says. "You take a calculated risk in the fall because you cannot place adequate emphasis on all aspects of the game because practice time is so short.

"But I can see several bright spots. This fall definitely demonstrated that you are as good as your pitching, and I think the core of a good staff if everyone can stay healthy.

Offensively, the hits were there, but the power really was not. We got the bar on the ball, but unfortunately we hit it at something," conceded Kelly.

"We struck out relatively few batters, which is encouraging - we just have to get more from our hitters.

In the 12 autumn games, Irish batters only struck out 10 times, just over three batters a game.

"Just putting the ball in play puts you at an advantage, because it makes your opponent work for the out.

With three months off now until the winter workout begins, Kelly-closes the scoreboard on another fall season with mixed emotions.

"Naturally I like to finish strong, but our receipeperformance indicates that our players are going to have to make up their minds to work hard to achieve that success. We have a lot of preparation physically and mentally before next spring.

Tennis team takes 2nd at Indiana tournament

On the strength of impressive singles performances, the Notre Dame women's tennis team grabbed a second place finish in last weekend's state tournament. Depauw, the only team the Irish lost to during the regular season, topped Notre Dame by three points.

Two newcomers and two veterans on the Irish line-up were the biggest stories of the weekend. Freshman Linda Hoyer knocked off the top two seeds in the second singles division en route to a state championship in that bracket. Meanwhile, the Port Clinton, OH, native was almost speechless about her performance.

"I don't know what to say, being state champ is just a great feeling. I went into the tournament knowing I had to play well, and after I got by the top seed (in the first round) it was pretty much all downhill from there.

Another newcomer to the Notre Dame lineup, sophomore Carol Shukis, played in the fourth singles position. Shukis, who was seeded second in the draw, unfortunately lost her matches easily, and then faced top-seeded Karen Turman from DePauw. The two split the first match, but the second saw Turman claim the final set, three to two.

"By the time we started the second set, it was over. Everybody else on the team had finished--we were the only ones left on the courts. That was one of the things that helped me through the third set. We are such a close team, and having everybody out there cheering for me really helped me to win that set.

Veterans also played an important role in this year's Irish showing, and two key figures from last year's tournament, sophomores Mary LeGray and Tina Stephon, were in the top seed as coach Joe Segal again this year.

Legyes, who played in the fifth singles position, was the top seed in this year's tournament on the basis of her play during the year, and her championship in last year's state finals. (She was fifth singles champion.)

A closet rab-rab goes public

There he goes again, they're saying, picking USC to beat Notre Dame just to attract attention. Sorry, Folks, but that kind of attention I can do without. I got more than enough of it when the Irish beat Michigan and Michigan State.

There is one thing, though, that people don't seem to understand. The predictions which appear in the paper are what the writers think will happen, not what they want to happen. Or at least that's the way it's supposed to work.

Frank LaGrotta, who should be an expert on the matter, has accused me of being a rab-rab. And I have to admit that he is right. When I sat at the typewriter, wondering how I was going to explain myself, the band marches past LaFortune, playing the Victory March. After the goose bumps went away, I began to wonder how I could pick against Notre Dame.

Think back to the last time you didn't study for a test (you threats will have to bear with me). When you walked into the classroom, you probably thought you wouldn't do very well. But that certainly doesn't mean you didn't want to do well.

If some member of the football team got tired of picking Notre Dame to lose, and decided to
