Rape data proves incorrect

By Tom Jackman
Senior Staff Reporter

A map compiled by the Security Department and Dean of Students James Roemer that pinpoints all reported rape incidents on campus since 1969 will be re-researched and revised after The Observer last night verified one of several reported inaccuracies in the map. The mugging as it appears on campus in the last 11 years. But upon its release to The Observer, several students claimed the number of incidents was not correct and one rape victim was contacted last night who verified that her incident was not shown on the map although her police report was fully completed. Roemer then decided to retract the map pending further research and investigation.

The map was produced by security upon Roemer's request following two rapes which occurred last month. Roemer said at that time he had not seen a noticeable trend of incidents in one specific area beheading through Director of Security Glenn Terry commented, "it really doesn't show any particular pattern. Over a period of 11 years you can't really say that one area stands out."

Roemer said there's "the best of my knowledge it (the map) is accurate, and it is a bonafide effort on my part." He added, "But I can't give a definitive number, and if we've missed a couple we'll go back to Glenn (Terry) and research it further." Roemer noted that the first draft of the map contained only nine incidents, and that he had pointed out another one that had been left off.

The valuable feature of the map was its cluster of four incidents on Saint Mary's Road between Holy Cross Hall and U.S. Rte. 31, one which occurred in late 1975, two on the same night exactly two years ago, and another last month.

US government urges Americans to leave Iran

The U.S. government urged Americans still in Iran to leave, saying more U.S. citizens were reported seized yesterday and placed with Iranian hostages. The government described the situation as "very serious." Two special envoys President Carter sent to Iran to co-operate in hopes of winning freedom for Americans held since Sunday at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Iran.

U.S. embassy officials said they were in touch with the embassy in the area and the State Department said they would remain in Turkey "pending clarification" from Tehran.

Tehran radio said earlier that revolutionary leaders had closed to all customers by what they called the "enemy Number One." The U.S. has refused to extradite the shah, hospitalized in New York, and said it would not negotiate until the United States has refused to extradite the shah, hospitalized in New York, and said it would not negotiate.

In London, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported that two Americans had left Iran on commercial flights since the embassy was seized. The BBC television also reported Americans were being rounded up around Tehran.

In Washington, the State Department said about 200 Americans had left Iran on commercial flights since the embassy was seized. The State Department urged Americans to pre-register and suggested that the public be contacted by radio, television, and the local press.

Iran denies alleged cutoff of oil; US industry sources disagree

NEW YORK (AP) - The Iranian oil minister and national oil company denied yesterday that Iran, supplier of up to 5 percent of U.S. oil consumption, had cut off its oil shipments from its main Persian Gulf port.

Oil company and embassy reports from abroad aid indicated Iranian oil was still flowing.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said in Washington that although there was a general cutoff yesterday and "conflicting reports about today," there was an announcement that they (the Iranians) are going to resume sales.

Reports of a cutoff, which came from U.S. industry and government sources yesterday, had caused spot marker prices for heating oil and gasoline to jump sharply even though there was a noticeable trend of incidents in one specific area beheading through Director of Security Glenn Terry commented, "it really doesn't show any particular pattern. Created by Gregory Moe Septee, the Philly Pops will open with an all-Gershwin program at the Academy of Music Nov. 18 and 19. "Whatever the Boston Pops people do, they're in for a run for their money," says Nero, the conductor-composer chosen by Sepette to direct the orchestra.

Over 100 percent vote in Benton County election

EARL PARK, Ind. (AP) - Political apathy is an unknown quantity in this Benton County community, where every registered voter - and then some - cast ballots in Tuesday's town board election. The 100 percent-plus turnout came when 14 more than the 230 voters on the town's rolls showed up at the polls.Clerk-Treasurer Virginia Stump said she wasn't really surprised at the surge of voter interest. "Last year, we had a pretty good turnout, but that was the first election here in 19 years," she said.

Flood plans retirement; early next year

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., who faces reroll on federal criminal charges, announced yesterday he will resign from the House of Representatives next Jan. 31, for health reasons. "I find that my declining health no longer will permit me to discharge my responsibilities to the full extent to which my constituents are entitled," the 75-year-old congressman said in a statement delivered to reporters by his aides. The announcement gave no indication that the 16-term congressman's pending reroll on bribery and conspiracy charges had anything to do with the resignation.

SMC allocates club funds

By Mary Kay Leydon

The Saint Mary's Student Assembly voted on Sunday to allocate increased funds to the chemistry and sociology clubs. The group's decision came after consideration of appeals from those two organizations. The appeals were formulated after the student assembly allocations were originally granted on Oct. 2. "At that time, clubs unhappy with the money they received had ten days to appeal," SMC Student Government Treasurer Sheila Wixted said.

The chemistry club requested $300 to be earmarked for a speaker series. It received $25. The sociology club requested and received an additional $85 for organization and additional expenses.

Texas shrimp escape contamination from oil spill

COLLEGE STATION, Texas - Texas fishermen were "just plain lucky" the Mexican oil spill hurt them no worse than it did, scientists at Texas A&M University said yesterday. Officials with the school's Sea Grant Marine Advisory program reported that they had found no proof the Ixtoc oil spill had any effect on Texas shrimp production.

"To our knowledge there have been no Texas shrimp caught that have any signs of oil contamination," said Dr. Kenneth Nickerson, a seafood technology specialist, after studying reports from government agencies and the shrimp industry.

"We were just plain lucky," he said. "The spill never really made it to Texas, but that doesn't mean the Texas shrimp haven't been hit hard."

The offshore well in the Bay of Campeche, owned by the Mexican government's oil monopoly, PEMEX, blew out June 3 and has spewed millions of gallons of crude oil into the Gulf of Mexico. Pemex has slowed the flow but is still trying to cap the spill, which threatened major damage to south Texas fishers until seasonal Gulf currents reversed, she said. The oil has spread all the way back to the south.

Kennedy announces candidacy...

Boston (AP)- Sen. Edward M. Kennedy declared yesterday he will seek the presidency in 1980 because "Carter has failed to provide leadership to a country that is 'willing, even anxious, to be on the march again.'"

The last of the Kennedy dynasty to seek the nation's highest political office and the first serious contender for his brother's seat, Kennedy announced his candidacy in Boston's historic Faneuil Hall, issuing what he called stark failures of Carter Administration domestic policies.

Then the Massachusetts Democrat left on a sweeping campaign trip taking him from Maine to South Carolina and to New Hampshire, Illinois, Tennessee, Florida, South Carolina and Connecticut.

Kennedy said that before the last Presidential election, "we were told that Americans were honest, loving, good, decent and compassionate. Now, the President and the party leadership does not understand that we are waiting for something to happen again?"

The most moment of the announcement came when Kennedy was asked whether his wife, Joan, who has lived in Boston apart from the Senator, would campaign for him.

Kennedy supporters in the crowd held up the question. But Kennedy motioned for silence and then turned to his wife, seated on the stage behind him, and said, "Joan?"

"Yes," she said.

"Did we change so much in these three years? Or is it because the idea of leadership does not understand that we are waiting for something to happen again?"

WASHINGTON (AP) - Edmund Gerald Brown Jr., who at 41 is seeking his second try for the White House, rejected political life as a youth and spent 3 1/2 years studying to be a Roman Catholic priest.

Now in his second four-year term as governor of California, Brown will announce his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination this morning at the National Press Club here.

Brown, who uses the nickname Jerry, enters the race as a more conservative alternative to President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., on economic issues.

But Brown also is trying to attract liberals with his opposition to nuclear power, his appointment of women, blacks and Hispanics to high state offices, and highly visible political ties to such liberal figures as Cesar Chavez, Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden.

Brown describes that balance as his "canoe theory - you paddle a little on the left, then you paddle a little on the right and you keep going right down the middle."

Brown won re-election as governor by a landslide in 1978, breaking all modern California electoral records, but that victory is credited more to the success of his "canoe-theory politics."

Despite his early reputation as a liberal in the mold of his father, former California Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown, the younger Brown has parted company with most liberals by endorsing a proposed constitutional convention to write a budget-balancing amendment to the Constitution.

His most dramatic turnabout was over California's tax-cutting proposition 13, which he first opposed and then embraced as "the will of the people" after it was approved in the November election last year.

The two issues Brown talks about most today are fiscal restraint to end federal budget deficits and his opposition to nuclear power.

His favorite audiences are college students. He tells campus rallies that the New Deal philosophy of "throwing money at problems" has failed, and that a new generation of leadership with a new vision is needed.

Brown, who has been campaigning and raising funds since July, enters the presidential race a distant third in the polls, behind Kennedy and Carter.

Brown gained some surprise victories in 1976, when his late-starting campaign contributed to Carter's defeat in the Maryland, Nevada and California primaries.

ND power plant completes preparations for winter

by Tim Vercellotti

As winter approaches, the power plant has finished preparations for the oncoming cold weather by stockpiling fuel and ensuring that the campus-wide heating system is in order. According to John DeLee, director of utilities, the plant has a more than adequate supply of coal, heating oil, and natural gas. The system runs primarily on coal, so there is very little danger of any sort of shortage this winter.

The plant is responsible for all campus heating needs, including the classrooms and the ACC. The system is based on steam, which is piped into the radiators of each building. Any malfunctions in the system are reported by a computer located in the plant.

"The nicest thing about this system is that in seventeen of the dorms, there are thermostats in each room," DeLee explains. "That way, students can determine the temperature that they want without freezing or roasting their neighbors."

In the evening, the plant automatically reduces room temperatures by about four degrees for the night. In buildings that are not being used, the heat is shut off entirely. Should the lower temperatures prove uncomfortable for students, they can always raise their thermostats.

Not only are the individual thermostats a convenience, they are also very economical. DeLee revealed that because there is no overheating roughly $100,000 was saved last winter.

DeLee projected that the cost for heating the campus will run around $95,000 for this winter. To keep these costs as a minimum, DeLee offered a few suggestions.

First of all, turn your thermostats down to a comfortable level (anywhere from 60-65 degrees) before going to bed. Also, dress warmly during the day, and try to set your thermostats no higher than 60 degrees.

Energy conservation paid off last winter in more than just dollars. Recently, the University was presented the Governor's Award for Energy Conservation as a result of a campus-wide effort. DeLee hoped that conservation measures would be practiced as extensively in the upcoming months as they have been in the past.

Protestors allegedly abuse American hostages in Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) - American hostages held in the U.S. Embassy in Iran are being "pushed around, abused, injured and mishandled," but there is no evidence that any have been seriously injured, a U.S. official said late yesterday.

Word of the mistreatment was given to reporters as President Carter's special mediators found themselves stalled in Turkey with Iranian authorities refusing to negotiate with them.

The official, who asked that he not be identified, said there was no evidence that any of the estimated 60 American hostages held in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran have been "beaten, stabbed or shot." U.S. officials said the Iranians have brought new weapons into the embassy compound, including machine guns.

But State Department spokesman Hoddin Carter said he had no evidence that there had been any shooting.

"We have been unable to confirm with any of our sources that there has been firing," the State Department spokesman said.

The two American negotiators sent to seek the release of the Americans were held captive in Turkey when Iranian leaders refused to let them into the country.

Ramsey Clark, a former U.S. attorney general, and William Miller, a staff member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, were reported by the State Department to be waiting in Istanbul for further instruction.

State Department spokesman Carter said the two emissaries, carrying a personal message from President Carter to Iranian leaders, would remain in Turkey indefinitely "pending clarification" of the Tehran government.

Today's New York Times reported that friends of the Shah say he has offered to leave the United States because of the crisis in Tehran, but that doesn't, family and "friends have dissuaded him.

"It is our hope that they will be able to proceed with their mission at the earliest opportunity," spokesman Carter said.

President Carter on Tuesday night sent Clark and Miller to meet with top religious or civilian officials, including the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who makes his headquarters in Qom, a religious center.

Clark and Miller flew to Athens, but by the time they arrived, were being told they would not be welcome in Iran. They then flew to Istanbul where the mission stalled.

"Frankly, we're sitting and waiting," said a U.S. official, who asked that he not be identified.

Although the State Department insisted yesterday that U.S. officials had received permission to go to Iran, Khomeini, Iran's religious revolutionary leader, was insisting that no Iranian official had been authorized to negotiate with them.

An Iranian government broadcast, broadcast, maintained that there has been "pushed around, abused," but no evidence that any Iranian official had been authorized to negotiate with them.

"reasonable" chance of success and that "sound financial package" but may not succeed.

"We have tried to take off our rose-colored glasses and look at the world as it is, but we cannot give you a guarantee," Miller told the economic stabilization subcommittee of the House Banking Committee.

The subcommittee plans to meet again later this week to consider amendments which will determine the shape in which the administration proposal for loan guarantees is sent to the full Banking Committee for consideration before going to the House floor.

Miller repeatedly told the panel that the administration's plan has a "reasonable" chance of success and that without loan guarantees Chrysler faces bankruptcy, which he said would be more costly to the taxpayers than the proposed bailout.

He also said the government does not plan to take over the management of Chrysler and determine what kind of automobiles it makes.

"Think this is a reasonable financial plan," he said. "If we fail, we lose some money. I don't think we ought to take over Chrysler and run it.

Miller reiterated that the Chrysler aid plan was intended as a "one-time program" and would not set a precedent for governments aid to other failing businesses.

He said he had no philosophical objections to a proposed amendment by Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wisc., chairman of the Banking Committee, that would require Chrysler to concentrate on fuel-saving vehicles to qualify for the loan guarantees.

But he said he would have to review the Reuss proposal before commenting in detail.

Miller stresses possible failure for Chrysler bailout

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of the Treasury G. William Miller told Congress yesterday that the administration's proposed $1.3 billion bailout of the Chrysler Corp. is a "sound financial package" but may not succeed.

"We have tried to take off our rose-colored glasses and look at the world as it is, but we cannot give you a guarantee," Miller told the economic stabilization subcommittee of the House Banking Committee.

The allocation Tuesday of $40,000 in University funds for hall social space improvements represents a dual victory for the students of Notre Dame. Not only is the allocation indicative of a new responsiveness on the part of the Administration to the social needs of students, but it also reflects a new effectiveness on the part of student government.

Lack of adequate social space has been a concern that has concerned students for many years. However, the Administration has unfortunately been slow in addressing this matter and many students have social, as well as academic and athletic needs that have been altogether too difficult to accommodate. While in the past the University has allocated funds for improvements in specific halls, the recent allocation marks a significant step in the improvement of social conditions for dorms throughout campus. The Observer applauds this commitment.

Student Government is to be commended for the role it has played in helping the Administration become sensitive to the social needs of students. Members of student government have worked closely with the Administration on the student government, and the progress in social space improvements and Tuesday's allocation is largely the result of their efforts.

The Observer has been well served by the student government and the Administration in this case. The Observer applauds the positive steps that have been taken toward a circumstance of a problem that has long plagued this campus. We hope these efforts will be followed through by continued commitment to the improvement of social life at Notre Dame.

WASHINGTON—The campaign manager and one of the presidential candidates were having a steak dinner.

The one thing I have no intention of bringing up, if Teddy runs is Chappaquiddick. And that's because I consider it a matter that has no place in presidential candidates.

I believe we should put out a press release saying that we're trying to see if we could get a TV panel with all the presidential candidates. Each candidate is largely the result of their efforts. However, the student body has been served well by its student government. The student body has also served well by its student government. The student body has been served well by its student government. The student body has been served well by its student government. The student body has also served well by its student government. Democrats dominate elections

Cleveland Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich, accused by his party of being a spoiler for the past two years, spoiled the Democrats' otherwise perfect record for holding onto Mayor City Majorities.

The Maverick Democrat lost in Tuesday's balloting, while the Democrats kept hold of all the other city halls they controlled. Their mayoral candidates won in more than one-fourth of the nation's big cities as scores of Republicans claimed inroads.

San Francisco and Houston failed to elect mayors in non-partisan elections, and a quick start for the runoffs indicates the real sparks are yet to fly. Houston Mayor Jim McConn led the crowded ballot but fell far short of the majority he needed to avoid a runoff and now faces Councilman Louis Nacey in the Nov. 20 showdown. The two are arch rivals and the next two weeks are certain to be exciting.

"Get ready, baby," McConn taunted. "We have some things we'll have to talk about that might make Mr. Nacey run for cover."

"Mayor, you must be drunk again," Nacey shot back. "Don't come out with that stuff."

McConn got 42.5 percent of the vote in a bid for his second two-year term. The final unofficial tally was McConn 80,412, Nacey 56,761. Leonel Castelli, a former city controller who resigned as head of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to enter the race, received 44,685 votes.

In San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein got 42 percent of the vote in a bid for her second city hall term, but still faces a Dec. 11 runoff against Quentin Kopp.[continued on page 12]

The Volcano Fizzles

Music Bigley

I feel like I'm stranded on a sandy beach
Stuck in my plushy red velvet chair
Playing it for all that's worth
I'm just paying for my sins on earth

He goes on to suggest that his life of "fly-by-night" has been a "flameout" and that he has come "to a fairly nice place"

Haven't found the answers like some that I know
I'm just paying for my sins on earth

"Chanson Pour Les Petits Enfants" is by far the best song on the album. It was a gal-Swenson sounding song about two aliens who land on some Caribbean island where they are celebrated. The two fly away in the night, but Buffett leaves the listener on earth to let him listen to the rest of the album and possibly fall asleep.

As you flip the album over, thinking to get more of the same, be prepared. There has been laid back, and it becomes hard to "Survive" the rest of the album, because it is possible it might put you in "Dreamscape" land. This side is full of some down right eerie lyrics, but some of the songs are still filled with laughter.

"Lady I Can't Explain" is one of those half-assed Buffett rockers with commercial potential. "Boat Drinks" is one of the better songs on the album, and in it Buffett sings that he is "in love" with a girl who drinks too much.

The album opens with a good title track, and lands you on some local bar pick-ups. It's catchy calypso tune Buffett sings that he is "in love" with a girl who drinks too much.

The album continues with "Treat Her Like A Lady" and "Stranded on a Sandbar." Both songs have in their own way, ballads by which is co-written by David Loggins, who had the hit "Please Mr. Postman." Buffett's tune Buffalo says that he is "in danger" of losing the girl who loves him.

This is the space age. Please don't worry....

The Volcano; is nothing but a disaster. The album purists it is an enjoyable album. Volcano has already climbed the charts, and may go higher, but it is not the best Buffett has put out so far.

I'm not no limburger

Michael A. Korbel

Pat Metheny Group

American Garage

Chalon Mullins

I got an introduction to the material on this album last week at a concert in Chicago. Consequently, it's the album I would want this album when I came out two days later. Several subsequent listenings have only reinforced this favorable first impression. As a follow-up to the tremendous Pat Metheny Group Album, American Garage maintains the high standard of this effort, and even improves on it.

If you don't know, the group consists of Pat Metheny on guitar, Lyle Mays on Piano and keyboards, Mark Engan on bass, and Dan Gottlieb on drums. On the album, Engan and Gottlieb remain in the supporting roles to which rhythm players are usually relegated. The only exception in which Engan occasionally takes over and supplements the statements of the theme, but he has no solos on record as he does in concert, where he improvises with authority and imagination. He's the main color for Buffett to form a rhythm section in the great tradition of jazz rhythm sections. Listened to enough, it is both loose and tight with the beat, and how Engan supports him solidly throughout.

May's piano playing reminds me of that of Keith Jarrett. He has the same lyrical tone and the same coloration. His piano sound is similar to his clarinet blues inflections, accentuates the offbeats, and attacks the keyboard with a deft, but daring touch. His solos are featured prominently as that of the jazz and not the rock artist. He uses a pure, full sound, without distortion and without frills. He doesn't bend notes, like Rollins, and instead of emphasizing the blue notes (fifth, seventh and sevenths) and his style is very melodic and engaging. In his solos, he emphasizes message rather than technique. He's not out to dazzle you with runs of sixteen notes. Listen to "(Cross the) Heartland" for an example of his unhurried improvising. But it's not that he doesn't have the chops. His solo on the title track is that demonstration. In fact, his deity is all the more impressive for the clarity with which each note is sounded. All in all, he is perhaps the finest of a tremendous crop of young jazz guitarists.

May's and Metheny combine for the composition of all the tunes on this album. I use the term "composition" advisedly. None of the tunes are in blues song forms, with exception of the track "Speranza," which is a jester answer to Buffett's "Ilimburger..."

One thing I heard in concert that I missed on the albums is just how hot this band is. They can really build up a head of steam. I found particularly true during Metheny's solos, when he has the full sound of the band behind him. The music is so pleasing you may have a tendency to play it at a low volume level. But this is misleading. Buffett's band and the rhythms are quite audible.

We were at a party,
His ear lobe fell in the deep
Someone reached in and grabbed it
It was a rock and roll diamond.

"There's a Moon in the Sky(Called the Moon)" is a backhanded tribute to the Space Age. Nobody gets left out, not even the Van Allen Belt: Magnetic gamma rays surround the Van Allen Belt surrounds it

This is the space age

Please don't worry....

"12 Girls" is my favorite from the album, one meant to sing those praises of the "principal girls of the USA." It has the strongest and fastest beat of any song I've ever heard. It's extremely hard to sit still during this song, as you want to jump up and down and dance with it. Having fun with this music is one of the strong points of "The B-52's" and it's rather apparent that "The B-52's" have an awfully good ad time for their music.

I'm not sure what "Dance This Mess Around," is all about. This is a very, very great song to scream at the top of your lungs. It's a joyous lover raves the question; "Why won't you come with me; I'm not no limburger?" Those of you who call for 80 number phone numbers on bathroom walls will enjoy "6666-8674," and "Herowo" sounds a lot like Patti Smith, even better.

The album begins with "Downtown," Flurka Clark's hit from the 60's. The B-52's have taken this from its original (the original is a good indication of the type of music they really like) and made it a little looser, and to the point. They have taken a little wasteland South Bend is. But when the opportunity arose to catch two superlatives acts in the same week, we blew it. Given the importance on live performance in music, I don't think that this can be recompensed. We can still hope such opportunities will come along again, and that those who call for 80 number phone numbers in your bathroom will never be blown again.
NOW YOU CAN EARN OVER $6,500 WITH ARMY ROTC.

Before you graduate from college! Because now, you can combine service in the Army Reserve or National Guard with Army ROTC. It's called the Simultaneous Membership Program (SMP). And, depending on your academic year when you enter, SMP can help you earn over $6,500.

Here's how it works. If you qualify and a vacancy is available, you become a member of an Army Reserve or National Guard unit as an officer trainee and, at the same time, enroll in the Army ROTC advanced course at your college. Your Reserve or Guard membership will pay you at the minimum level of Sergeant E-5, and you'll receive $100 a month during the regular school year as an Army ROTC advanced course cadet.

At the end of your second year of advanced ROTC, you'll be commissioned a second lieutenant and, assuming there's a vacancy, serve with a Guard or Reserve unit while you complete the requirements for your college degree. Upon graduation, you may continue service with a Guard or Reserve unit while pursuing your civilian career, or you can, if you prefer, compete for active duty as an Army officer.

So if you'd like to earn over $6,500 while you're still in college, get into SMP. Because SMP can help you do it. You can bank on it!

northern New England, and the State where the farm residential primary will be held next February.

Speaking at a local restaurant, Kennedy repeated his criticism of the Carter Administration's handling of energy and said:

The soaring profits of the oil companies announced in recent weeks are being achieved at the expense of the consumers of America, particularly the home owners of New England who have to pay the exorbitant and unconscionable prices the industry is now charging for home heating oil and other energy products.

Kennedy was asked about criticism from the White House that he has been unable to find an issue on which he differs sharply with President Carter.

He replied by singling out the Carter Administration efforts to combat inflation.

He said that if he is elected, it would be "clear from the very start" that the person responsible for the battle against inflation.

Kennedy also released yesterday a statement that he underwent a physical examination several days ago and was found to be in excellent condition.

It disclosed that he had successful surgery for minor skin cancer on June 22, and in a report on taxes, Kennedy said he paid $315,508 in U.S. income taxes last year. His adjusted gross income was $702,697.

Choir presents concert tonight

The Saint Mary's College Collegiate Choir, a mixed-voices group including Notre Dame students, will join the SMC Women's Choir for a dual concert in the Little Theatre of Mieaur Hall tonight at 8:00. The Collegiate Choir will present selections from Holst, Brahms, Hovhaness and Haas; the Women's Choir has chosen works of Deering, Kennedy, Rossini, Schubert and Mendelssohn. Schubert's "Staendchen" will feature mezzo-soprano Nancy Kennedy, voice instructor at the College, as soloist.

Raymond Sprague, assistant professor of music and director of both choral groups, is concert master for the program, which is open to the public with no admission fee. Accompanists are Becky Zink of South Bend, Ann Armstrong of Elkhart and Barbara Phillips of Ballwin, Missouri, and Carol Calahan of Loganport.

The Women's choir, which sings annually at a spring Mass in Chicago's Holy Names Cathedral, has recently received a grant from the Indiana Arts Commission to support a number of concerts throughout Indiana. Both choirs have made several appearances in the Michiana area.

Sprague, who earned his D.Mus.A. at the University of Colorado, Boulder, is a member of the review board for The Choral Journal.

Citizens vote on number of tax bills

"Votes across the nation looked into their pocketsbooks and then cast their ballots to slap lids on tax increases, to order limits on government spending, and to refuse to pay new bottlenecks and can deposits."

In Washington state, voters on Tuesday overwhelmingly agreed to link increases in state taxes to the growth of personal income, and they turned down a bill that would have required a 5-cent deposit on all cans and bottles.

"I think the message coming out of the polls is that people are tired of paying to live in their communities," said state Rep. Ron Dunlap.

Dunlap predicted that Tuesday's polling foreshadows tax troubles in all state capitals.

Koff, the city's most conservative supervisor, Mrs. Feinstein - appointed to her post after the assassination of Mayor George Moscone - noted the large number of voters who went for other candidates and punched for their help in the runoff.

"I want those people to know this is a mayor who is going to listen to them," she said.

Koff urged his own supporters to "Keep the faith with me the next four weeks and I'll keep faith with the city of San Francisco the next four years." Final returns in the mayor's race gave Mrs. Feinstein 81,115 votes and Kopp 76,784.

Things also were still streaming in Kentucky where fast-food tycoon John V. Brown was elected Governor, to keep the office in the Democratic fold and frustrate GOP comeback hopes.

Brown, who is married to former Miss America Phyllis George and has criticized in the campaign for a get-set life style, said his big victory over former Republican Gov. Louise Nunn proved "The mud didn't stick." Nunn announced his retirement from politics.

Virtually complete returns gave Brown 553,677 votes and Nunn 537,932.

In Mississippi, William Winter led Republican Gil Carmichael, who got strong backing from his national party and presidential candidates Ronald Reagan and John Connally with counting almost complete. Winter had 372,106 votes and Carmichael 241,592.

A moderate who had been twice rejected before by conservative Mississippians, Koff urged his own supporters to keep the faith and help what should not head a state government which will include a record number of blacks in its legislature.

After two years of fighting Cleveland's bankers and the Democratic American Instrument, Kucinich lost to Republican Lt. Gov. George V. Voinovich but went down swinging, blaming his loss on the "money powers."

Miller said he is opposed to giving loans guarantee to a company that the use part of the money to issue additional stock for its employees.

"To do so could infringe on the collective bargaining process, among other things," he said.

However, Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said that he did not think he or most senators would support a plan that did not ensure employee stock ownership.

"I think it is the sense of the Senate that if American business wants to receive this kind of aid, it should not provide windfall benefits to existing shareholders but should be shared with employees," Long said.

Obviously worried about Iran's oil export shutoff, this student has gone to great lengths to be sure that his dinner horn can still be heard. [Photo by Tim McKergow]
You, a faithful follower of this space, have been a mountaineer for some time now. You've studied the fundamentals, selected your gear and experimented with methodology. In short, you are nobody's fool. Nonetheless, you also know a little knowledge is a dangerous thing. So you want to learn more. Smart thinking.

First, you must realize that once the basics of mountaineering are mastered, it is only nuance which distinguishes the true artists from the merely adequate. Therefore, attention to detail, especially in matters of clothing, is vital.

Always protect the head according to seasonal fluctuations. In winter, a warm hat is mandatory. (The head, after all, is the chimney of the body. Avoid cerebral heat loss - it diminishes your psychophysical abilities.) In summertime, a sun visor or a billed cap will guarantee crucial visibility among the craggy peaks.

Pay particular regard to your footgear. Shoes should be sturdy and stable. A secure footing is of utmost importance. Without it, you're asking for trouble. Point of order: while mountaineering is pursued for fun, it is nevertheless serious business. If you are going to down the mountains, rather than vice versa, you must be confident of your standing. Between the head and the feet lies the area known to pros as "the body." Mountaineering bodywear is usually based on personal preference. However, keep a keen eye out for one common criterion. Your clothes should be comfortable and flexible, allowing for open movement, specifically in the vicinity of the arms. A free and responsive arm is a mountaineer's best friend.

Certain accessories, of course, complement and complete the regulation garb. Expedition flags to mark your territory in public places, connecting ropes for those who prefer the security of mountaineering in tandem and backpacks filled with beer nuts, mugs, bottle openers and other paraphernalia. Beyond these standards, wardrobe styles range from the rustic to the refined. And well they might, for mountaineers are a rugged and individual lot, joined only by a common taste for excellence.

Don't just reach for a beer. Head for the mountains.

Move on to the NCAA Championships in Bethlehem, Pa., on the campus of Lehigh University. The Irish have been very unpredictable in this year’s competition. After a slow start in the Notre Dame Invitational, they rebounded with a strong performance against Loyola of Chicago. They then finished second in the Big East meet and twelfth badly in the Central Collegiate Championships.

Coach Joe Piane has maintained throughout the season that he is not content with the second-place potential, but to this point it has remained mostly as potential. Piane is the one of the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Schools from the Big Ten (including Iowa despite the many Independents from the six-state area will compete. Piane expects the most competition from schools like Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, and Illinois State. Indiana finished ahead of the second-place Irish in the Big East meet. Both Illinois State and Michigan tallied fewer points than the Irish in both the Notre Dame Invitational and in the Central Collegiate Championships.
