Ethiopia invades Somalia

NAROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ethiopian infantry forces, backed by combat aircraft andfanatical Islamic guerrillas, launched an incursion into northwestern Somalia early Wednesday and fighters were in progress along a 27-mile front, Somalia's Defense Ministry claimed.

The announcement distributed in neighboring Kenya by Somalia's national news agency, said the invasion started shortly before dawn when Ethiopian infantry units crossed the border. Ethiopian warplanes bombed at Jijiga, a tank base located about 60 miles south of Reno.

The announcement claimed the Ethiopians have continued a hit-and-run war against the Somalians, and Ethiopia has inflicted tremendous damage on the Somali side of the border.

Ethiopia, with the aid of Soviet advisers and Cuban troops, defeated Somalia in a war over eastern Ethiopia's Ogaden desert region last year. At that time, regular Somali troops fought alongside ethnic Somali guerrillas who were seeking to unite the Ogaden with Somalia.

Since then, the guerrillas have continued a hit-and-run war against the Ethiopians, and Ethiopia has continued the offensive against Somali goals in the Ogaden region. Somalia has long claimed the Ogaden region.

Earlier this month, Ethiopia said its patience was wearing thin over fighting in the Ogaden. It accused Somalia of harboring regular military forces in the territory and warned of possible retaliatory action.

The有了 diplomatic sources in Mogadishu, the Somali capital, said recently there was evidence of an Ethiopian army buildup at Jijiga, a tank base located about 60 miles west of the Ethiopia-Somalia border.

The diplomats, however, doubted Ethiopia would cross the frontier to strike at possible rebel bases inside self-proclaimed Somali territory.

The Soviet-backed regime in Addis Ababa also has problems. The country was still in search of books of worms.
The FBl and state police in Sheridan, Ind. are expected to join the investigation for the theft of $35,000 worth of diamonds, $41,000 in cash and other valuable jewelry, Hamilton County Sheriff’s Lt. Richard J. Russell yesterday. Russell did not reveal the victim’s name or the home’s location, saying that to do so would be detrimental to the investigation. However, he said the thief was prominent. The theft occurred Aug. 15 but was not publicly released until yesterday, when the grandmother of the victim offered a $5,000 reward for the return of the jewelry. Russell said that even if the valuable jewelry were taken were kept in a safe with a combination lock. Although the jewelry was insured through the victim’s homeowner’s policy, Russell said he did not believe it had been appraised.

The Belgium government yesterday denied published reports that it is trying to sell 60 of its 72-F-104s to Turkey. A Belgium government spokesman confirmed that the fighter-bombers were for sale but said Belgium was not negotiating with Russia, as reported in the U.S. magazine Aviation Week. Belgium has no diplomatic relations with Taiwan. The F-104GIs are being sold to make room for 116 F-16 fighters Belgium will bring into service in the next few years.

Recalling Magnavox turntables is the next step for Philips High Fidelity Laboratories following an “ordn,” from the Consumer Products Safety Administration concerning 3,600 of the stereo components. Philips, a subsid­iary of the Royal Dutch/Shell Group, which owns Magnavox and of Knowles, Tenn., has sold the turntables nationwide since March, 1979, for about $140 each. They were sold in stereo equipment stores. According to the Commission, the turntables were wired improperly so that “safety fuses”, which serve as circuit breakers, did not work. In the event of a short circuit, consumers could receive a severe electrical shock by touching any metal part of the turntable or any metal components constructed of metal. The Commission said it had not said that any injuries or deaths have been reported. Being recalled are turntable models 2ZA6-635-448 and 2ZA6-635-948. The names are derived from a label pinned on a label affixed to the bottom of the turntable base.

American dominance of Middle Eastern oil routes would be a benefit to Bush, according to Yash Yechez, a columnist of the Soviet Union. “This is why the United States has increased its war fleets in the Indian Ocean, the Arabian Sea, and the Red Sea,” the government said in a statement. The U.S. has just concluded military pacts with Oman and Somalia. The Indian Ocean sultanate of Oman sits on the western coast of the Hormuz Straits, entrance to the Persian Gulf. Somalia, which recently agreed to allow U.S. military bases on its soil, is strategically located near the entrance to the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean oil routes.

The death toll stands at more than 25 people during a 24-hour violence spred in Turkey. Police and officials said gunfire believed to be rightist terrorists raised a house in the capital city of Ankara and killed three university students. They said that the area is a base of the security forces and leftist militants in Istanbul, southern Turkey, killed three people and wounded scores of others in a clash. The government said it has arrested 50 people as a result of the attack, and that there is no decisive information indicating an organized attack. Estimates range from 2,100 people killed this year despite the declaration of martial law in almost one-third of the nation.

The nude woman who appeared during Saturday morning children’s programming caused the dismissal of three employees last month at WSB-TV, Atlanta, Ga. Now the station is looking for those responsible for the dip. “We have reconsidered our decision and, based on the length of service these people have with the company, we have reinstated them,” said a station spokesperson. The station was flooded by complaints when the picture of the bare-breasted woman flashed on television screens between Saturday morning cartoons and cartoons last month. The picture apparently came from a movie that was being watched by control room technicians off the air.

Columbus passed Cleveland in the latest U.S. Census to face its distinction as Ohio’s largest city for the first time in 80 years. According to preliminary figures released by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, Columbus has taken the lead by about 13,000 people. Columbus preliminary population count is 545,934. Cleveland’s population came to 532,858 officials with both cities had forecast that Columbus would not lead the state in population until the mid-1980s.

Not yet time for coed dorms

Notre Dame to many, including myself, is just your basic all-American university. Like any other college or university in the country, Notre Dame has its ups and downs—especially when it comes to the social life on campus. Now for those who have been away from college for a while, you’re probably sick of hearing about the lack of social activities on campus, the limited opportunities to meet people from different races and just Notre Dame male-female relationships in general.

This past week an Observer editorial posed an idea to help register increasing social battles on campus. Coed dorms. A real brainstorm. According to the editorial, most relationships are strained and I agree wholeheartedly that a change is long overdue. However, setting aside one of the newly constructed dorms for cohabitation purposes in all honesty can only hurt any chance for real change at this point in time.

Perhaps within the next ten years the Notre Dame administration and its contributing alumni will be able to accept coed dorms but I think for now—1980—change has to occur first in administrative policies such as part-time, kegs on campus, lack of a feasible student center, etc. It’s hard to predict whether or not a coed dorm on campus could survive. There are many, many...

Charles Rice, another professor of law, said if the Court were to force women to register, their ruling would be a “legal bomb” dropped on the nation. Rice said the Court will hand their names to Uncle Sam. But they do think women can be active and beneficial members of the military. Maureen Fitzgerald, a ROTC student, commented, “People should register. There’s a lot of things women can do besides the front line. They have responsibility and obligation too.” She added that she believes the Supreme Court will have the legal right to register women to force women to register.

Women in ROTC, however, hold slightly different attitudes. They said they do not feel they are discriminated against since females have been called upon to hand their names to ROTC student, Betty Spinelli, stated adamantly that "women would be worthless in the front line, but they still have the responsibility to serve in some capacity." Spinelli, however, thinks women socially have not been considered for both sexes. Though the government to start women socially have not been considered for both sexes. Though the government to start...
Diplomat escapes ambush attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen fired machine guns and a rocket-propelled grenade at a three-car convoy carrying U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean yesterday, but Lebanon’s state radio said Dean escaped unharmed.

Reliable sources said unidentified ammunitions attacked the ambassador’s convoy as it was leaving his summer residence near the Presidential Palace.

The lead car in the American convoy returned the fire and three persons were arrested, the sources said. The other two cars in the convoy sped from the area, which is controlled by the Lebanese army.

The attack came just hours after Dean said the United States was working with Israel and the United Nations to end the violence between Christian militia men and Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon.

It was his first public statement since he sparked an uproar August 21 by condemning an Israeli attack on Palestinian guerrillas strongholds in the area.

U.S. State Department officials said at the time that Dean had erred in making the condemnation statement without prior consultation with Washington.

Dean’s statement yesterday was designed to avert condemnation of any side involved in the southern Lebanese violence by name. He made it after a 45-minute meeting with Lebanese Foreign Minister Faud Butros. His general opposition to cross-border violence is expected to be welcomed by the Lebanese government of President Elias Bachir, which has been long campaigning for recognition of its 1948 frontier line with Israel as the permanent border between the two countries. Lebanon was dismayed when the State Department failed to endorse Dean’s condemnation of the Israeli raid last week.

Washington Hall

Theater balcony reopens

by Mike O'Brien

The balcony of the Washington Hall theater in open again with the completion this summer of work which bolstered the platforms supporting the columns.

Washington Hall, built in 1881, houses the Communications and Theater Department, the Marching Band, the ND-SMC theater offices and several classroom facilities.

Donald Dedrick, University director of Physical Plant, said that the hall’s balcony was closed last spring when a structural study revealed that the pillars supporting the platforms were slightly overstressed and might post a hazard in the event of extreme overcrowding.

Dedrick reported that the University did not wish to take the chance of having problems with the balcony and ordered it temporarily closed until work men could beef up its columns.

He added that he did not know of any accidents or injuries occurring as a result of the overstressed pillars.

The cost of the project, according to Dr. Mitchell Lifton, chairman of the Communications and Theater Department, was approximately two thousand dollars.

"no part of this building is unsafe or condemned"

In a related story concerning Washington Hall, Professor Mitchell Lifton, chairman of the Communications and Theater Department, reported he had requested that part of the top floor of the hall be remodelled into faculty offices, but studies showed the work could not be done without substantial engineering changes.

Lifton added that a grant will probably be sought to revitalize and remodel the hall’s entire interior structure. He emphasized that such a grant was strictly in the thought stage at present.

Reagan, Carter confrontation leaves both sides guessing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and his Republican challenger, Ronald Reagan, were locked in a fierce debate yesterday over how, when and with whom to kick off the 1980 presidential campaign debates. Both sides were insisting they're eager to debate each other, one on one, but they were stymied over whether independent candidate John B. Anderson ought to be included in the opening forum.

Their disagreement left uncertain whether Carter and Reagan will reach agreement on any of the debate invitations from the League of Women Voters, the National Press Club or other organizations.

Meanwhile, campaigning in Ohio, Reagan accused the Democratic president of plunging the economy into a "severe depression" that is throwing hundreds of thousands of people out of work.

The GOP nominee told a Columbus Union convention that "workers and their families today are suffering more than at any time since the Great Depression of the 30's."

Reagan's use of the word "depression" was disputed by Alan Greenspan, former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers and a Reagan policy adviser. Greenspan said he "wouldn't describe it as such," although he was sure depression conditions existed in certain parts of the country.

The debate flap was generating harsh exchanges between the staffs of the two candidates.

"They're afraid of a one-on-one debate," said White House press secretary Jody Powell, after Reagan refused to agree to Carter's conditions for a joint appearance before the National Press Club.

"We very much want a one-on-one debate," said James Baker, the senior Reagan campaign aide in charge of the GOP side of the debate negotiations.

Only an hour after a fruitless negotiating session Tuesday at the headquarters of the League of Women Voters, the President snapped up the press club invitation for a one-on-one debate. Baker termed that move "showmanship."

Baker told the press that Reagan couldn't accept its invitation until negotiations with the League had been completed.

The Reagan aide also said, "It would be just basically wrong to squeeze Anderson out of the first debate."

At the League negotiations, Carter campaign chairman Robert Strauss said it was the President's "strong preference of almost insistence" that the first encounter include only Carter and Reagan.

Asked why the Carter campaign is so opposed to Anderson's participation in the opening debate, Gerald Rafshoon, the Carter media adviser said, "We don't want to debate two Republicans at the same time."

Anderson, a Republican congressman from Illinois, dropped out of the race for his party's presidential nomination last April.

"Exploiting various subjective and objective difficulties that have arisen in the country, anti-socialist elements are trying to join efforts in order to push Poland off the socialist road it has chosen; a road which meets the vital interests of the entire Polish people," Tass said in statements read over national television.

Strikes swept Poland after a July 1 end to costly meat subsidies that sent prices soaring. The Baltic area protests, which began Aug. 14 and involve an estimated 300,000 workers, jumped from purely economic issues into social and political demands that led to the present crisis.

The strike has spread to central Poland, including a giant factory plant southwest of Warsaw, factories in Rzeszow in the southeast and Lublin in the northeast, and to Lodz and Wroclaw, Poland's second- and fourth-largest cities.

The official Gdansk Radio reported short supplies of vegetables and fruit, and in delivering parcel post, and gasoline rationing.

Tests offer leukemia sufferers a distinct ray of hope

BOSTON (AP) - For the first time, a new test allows doctors to predict accurately when patients treated for leukemia will relapse and suffer a new bout of the disease.

The test, given to people whose leukemia is in remission, spots cancerous cells in the bone marrow before they have multiplied and spread the disease throughout the bloodstream.

"It can give advance notice to the physician that the patient may go into relapse three or four months from now," Dr. Prat Rao, a biologist, said in an interview. "It gives him time to take steps and make a preventive strike to head off that outcome.

Doctors would then use traditional chemotherapy or drug treatment to battle the relapse, he said.

Rao developed the test, called the pcc technique, at M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston. A report on the first use of the technique was published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The report was written by several doctors connected with the Institute.

Leukemia kills 16,000 Americans each year, but until now, doctors have not been able to predict how long victims will remain healthy once their disease goes into remission.

"The physician has no way of knowing whether the patient has been cured or is in temporary remission or whether the disease has become resistant to continued therapy and the patient is about to relapse," the doctors wrote.

Using the PCC technique, the doctors followed the progress of 19 patients whose leukemia was in remission. During the study, 14 of them relapsed, and the test accurately predicted the fate of 11 of those patients.

The doctors found that the test gave them an average of 31.2 months warning that the patients were about to suffer a relapse.

"The results of this study suggest that the PCC technique can be useful in the prediction of relapse in patients with leukemia who are clinically in complete remission," the doctors wrote. "It technique appears to be quite accurate.

The test, still considered to be experimental, now takes two days to perform and in time will be simpler and less expensive.

St. Ed's offers residents hope for the future

by Paul McGinn

Waiting for the all-clear signal to be given, the 40 or so former residents of St. Ed's looked upon the scene of the hollowed-out building. Some thought of the years past, while others talked of what might be in store for the structure. But all shared the common desire to be able to see the remains of their cherished hall.

Yesterday at 3:30 p.m. was not the first time residents have seen the building since the fire, but it was their first chance to see the reconstruction process in action.

Entering the building through the rear doors (above which rested a red-lettered "Hard Hats Required" sign) some of the former residents let out many "Oh's" and "Wow's" as they progressed down the corridors and up the staircases. Most seemed oriented as to just how and where everything had been and they commented on the scope of their experiences while living at St. Ed's.

Charles Dobson, a sophomore, admitted, "I was shocked. I was shocked by the smell of charred wood for the first time since entering the hall."

Glancing around the first floor area, the residents became aware of how little destruction the flames had actually done. The beams showed no scars and the floors were uncharred. The carpenters were working to prepare the countershocking and the replacement of some smaller wall beams which were severely warped by the water damage.

Glen Gurtcheff, a two-year resident of St. Ed's, admitted, "It won't be the same." But, he added, "I'll move back in."

Gurtcheff recalled the charred remains of all remnants of plaster with the sinks laying on the floor and with the windows smashed.

"Someone shouted, "They ripped the guts out."

When questioned about his feelings of St. Ed's, Mike Marx, a sophomore, said that the incident was "like a home burning down."

"Stating that he would return to St. Ed's next year, (as would almost every student who toured the building) Marx questioned whether it was practical or realistic to reopen the dorm by the end of the year, and simply said, "Why not Keenan?"

Mounting the steps to the third floor, the residents encountered the smell of charred wood for the first time since entering the dormitory. Although the walls (or what was left of them) and floors showed only a warped appearance, the ceilings were very charred.

Kevin Tenta, a sophomore, said that improvements were definitely needed. He too expressed the hope that the basis of the dorm plans would remain the same.

ND Grad becomes mall magnate

by Kelli Flint
Senior Staff Reporter

The University Park Mall is owned by Notre Dame graduate Edward DeBartolo, Sr., the world's largest developer of shopping malls.

The DeBartolo Corporation currently operates 43 shopping malls, according to public relations representative Ruby Kelly. "The most recent mall opened by the DeBartolos is the Paddock mall in Ocala, Florida, which opened on August 13
"Kelly said. Another mall, Bay Park Square is scheduled to open on October 1, in Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Kelly added that it usually takes from 18 months to 2 years to put a mall into operation. The DeBartolos have opened 5 malls this year, and currently have 26 in the planning stage.

The DeBartolos are tremendous supporters of Notre Dame, according to Kelly. "DeBartolo, his son, and many members of his family are Notre Dame graduates," Kelly said.

The University Park mall was opened on March 17, 1979. "The mall has been extremely successful," Kelly said. "The DeBartolos are responsible for introducing the Hudson company to Indiana through the University Park Mall."

The mall houses over 100 stores, most of which are nationally franchised. The University Center, located on the east side of the mall, provides an additional shopping area. The center is anchored by Service Merchandise, a catalog-showroom retailer. The University Commons, an additional shop-ing wing, is currently in the planning stage. The Commons will be located to the east of the mall.

The DeBartolos recently bid
20 million dollars for the Chicago White Sox. DeBartolo has confidence in the White Sox, but will not publicize plans for the team until approval for the purchase is final, according to Kelly.

In a recent statement, DeBartolo said: "The present Board of Directors has recommended our offer for purchase of the franchise to their stockholders, but complete takeover will not be possible until we obtain approval by the American League in November. Following that approval, we will evaluate the organization and make the necessary changes on and off the field that we feel obligated to make to improve the franchise."

DeBartolo also stated that the purchase of the White Sox was made in conjunction with his daughter, Marie Denise DeBartolo York, and had no connection with the ownership of the San Francisco 49ers, currently owned by his son, Edward J. DeBartolo, Jr.

One man tells another Hofman plans shopping trip

by Mary Leavitt
St. Mary's News Editor

Dr. Emil T. Hofman and the Office of Freshman Studies are sponsoring a bus trip this Saturday to the various shopping centers in the South Bend area for this year’s freshmen.

"The purpose of this trip is to introduce the freshmen to the various places they will be shopping in their next four years here," Hofman said.

The excursion will last approximately four hours. University Park Mall will be the first stop. Students will be allowed time for shopping here before returning to the bus.

Next, the students will tour the various shops on U.S. 31, including North Village Mall. Turning here, the bus will then cruise downtown.

The bus will then make a second stop at Scottsdale Mall. After reboarding the bus, students will be taken through the south residential area with the eventual destination being the 100 Center in Mishawaka. After a stop here, the students will return to Notre Dame by way of the Town and Country Mall.

Throughout the trip, various places of interest will be pointed out to the shoppers.

Hofman planned the first excursion nine years ago and has been coordinating this activity yearly since then.

The bus will leave from Stephenson Center at 1 p.m. and return at 5 p.m. Tickets are available free of charge from the Freshmen Year Office. Approximately 250 tickets are available.

...Center

The unique nature of the 100 Center also requires some special marketing programs due to the relatively small number of shops.

"We're not a shopping center in the normal sense of the word," Brademas explained. "We know we can't compete with the malls on the level, but neither do we consider them competition because we're unique — especially in this area.

Special promotions are also a regular part of the 100 Center's success story. Last year's arts and craft festival drew a crowd of 25,000 and other activities like outdoor concerts and the Oktoberfest celebration in the Fall serve to heighten public awareness of the Center's unique atmosphere.

Brademas has also taken more constructive steps to increase business for the Center. The construction of 104 units of high-rise housing for the elderly and 54 townhouses for young "free-spend­ing" professionals not only increases a captured market for the Center's tenants, but also provides job opportunities for the on-site residents.

The recycled brewery not only serves as an aesthetic home for tenants, but also as a low-cost commercial rental facility.

Brademas noted that rents in most malls are now running between $12 - 15 per square foot, while the 100 Center offers its tenants a rate of about $7 per square foot.

Transformed brewery provides complete entertainment center

by John McGrath
News Editor

In the time span of about ten years, a burned-out brewery in Mishawaka has been trans­formed into one of the most exciting shopping complexes in middle America.

The 100 Center, located at the 700 block of Lincolnway West, is the brainchild of local developer T. Brooks Brademas. With the help of financing from the area industrial development commission, and a lot of perseverance, Brademas and his associates have created what they call "a family oriented shopping-entertainment center" on the banks of the St. Joseph River.

The center has prospered in recent years, mostly on the strength of its uniqueness, and now has a commercial tenant list of over 35 businesses, 10 professional offices, two movie theatres, and a 29-unit motel.

The center contrasts sharply with the modern image of a shopping center or mall both in its physical structure and in its tenant makeup. Relying heavily on small, locally-owned "mom and pop" type stores, the 100 Center conspicuously lacks the run-of-the-mill mall tenants like well-known national clothing, food, and accessory chains. But more than anything else, the 100 Center's physical plant sets it apart from other shopping complexes throughout the nation.

Following the lead of other major building recycling projects like San Francisco's Cannery, and Market Square in Philadelphia, Brademas and his associates embarked ten years ago on the $5 million endeavor of offering modern conveniences to potential tenants while trying to preserve the original integrity of the brewery.

Kahn's Brewery first structure was built in 1853, and through the years, various additions were added, including a boiler house, stables, ice storage building, shipping facilities, and an underground charcoal pit.

The brewery shut its doors in 1951 following a destructive fire which only served to crown the problems of shrinking market share due to competition from the rising centralized national breweries.

"It was really unique to take a 135-year-old building and redesign the place for a high technology business like WRBR or Channel 14 without losing the atmosphere of the place," recalls Brademas. "It took a lot of patience, but we found ourselves compromising between 20th century technology and 1850s construction techniques."

At the beginning of every semester, the World Hunger Coalition appeals to the students on Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, to give away their lunches on Wednesdays. From this and other fund-raising activities, the Coalition collects money and distributes it to various projects all over the world. This is an attempt to give the students an idea of where their donations are going.

The projects the Coalition sponsors are chosen on the basis of what those people are trying to do to help themselves develop and overcome the problems of deprivation, especially lack of food. As much as possible the Coalition concentrates on small, grass roots, self-help projects. Among the work done by big projects, the Coalition sees itself as being more helpful by working on a smaller scale. Needless to say our funds are very limited, but we also believe space is available to many of our members in touch with the people who are involved in grass roots work, i.e., on the site than through big organizations. This way we also assured that our donations are not whittled away in adminis-trative expenses.

Investment in Man came into being in 1970, growing out of another organization, The Students Welfare Association. The project has since then become quite distinct from the Association. Its focus is on rural agricultural development, and its location is an experimental farm 25 kilometers from the city of Poona in the western part of India. The area is arid and has an average annual rainfall of 12 inches. The problems a farmer faces with such scant rainfall are formidable, yet because of the poverty of the villages, very few if any agricultural specialists graduate choose to work in these areas. Investment in Man and The Students Welfare Association have tried to persuade some of the people from this area to come back and work in their own villages after college, and there has been some success.

The project has twenty workers, some of whom work full time and others part time. There are also some students who help out. The main activity is the demonstration farm. The idea is to acquaint the farmers and villagers with newer and better methods of farming and how best to overcome the problems of farming in such an arid climate. New techniques are experimented with and if successful then the people can use them on their own land. Some of the things experimented on so far include soil and water conservation, and dairy farming. The workers also try to provide some sort of tourist service for the animals. The tourist is not yet rare, for the people of the area. There are still tremendous odds to fight, especially with agriculture and a rising population, but Investment In Man is a start and a good one which hopefully will be followed through especially by the younger generation for whom the attraction of the city is still very great. In letters to the Coalition, the people at Investment In Man, have sent their appreciation and thanks to the whole younger generation for whom the farming in such an arid climate. Hollywood has found the perfect way to cap off a dismal summer of movies with the release of “The Man with Bogart’s Face.” This low-budget, low-rent, made-for-TV rip-off has the makings of a Gorey script. If you’ve ever seen a made-for-TV movie, you might think of it as being unequaled in the genre. Last summer, Paramount dusted off a little-known film called “Nightmare at Camp Crystal Lake” and tried to sell it as a horror film, while this summer’s release, “The Man with Bogart’s Face,” is a hard-core, no-BS, straight-from-the-streets-of-Beverly-Hills kind of a movie.

The plot is simple: Bogart’s Face, a long-lost relative of Humphrey Bogart, is discovered in a small town in the Midwest. The mayor of the town, played by Ronny Cox, is determined to make a name for himself by bringing Bogart’s Face back to life. This he does by hiring a group of movie stars to help him bring the character to life. The movie stars include Burt Reynolds, Jack Nicholson, and John Travolta.

Unfortunately, the cast is not up to the task. Burt Reynolds is miscast as Bogart’s Face, and he struggles to bring the character to life. Jack Nicholson is even more miscast as the mayor, and he is more convincing in his role as the town’s comic book illustrator. John Travolta is the only member of the cast who can be said to have given a convincing performance. He plays the town’s resident bathhouse owner, and he brings a certain charm to the role.

The movie’s plot is predictable and formulaic. Bogart’s Face returns to life, the mayor becomes a hero, and the town’s fortunes brighten. But the movie fails to engage the audience. It is a movie that is trying too hard to be funny, and it ends up being a tedious watch.

Overall, “The Man with Bogart’s Face” is a movie that is best left on the shelf. It is not worth the time or money to see it.

1st Lt. D.A. Woods, the only woman among the ten, told defense attorneys that she read about the Garwood case before being selected as a prospective juror.

John Lowe, chief defense attorney, pressed Ms. Woods, and she said she could not be held responsible for her mental state.

Vietnam will probably be a critical part of his defense.

Ms. Woods said she knew Garwood's mental state was indeed on the line, just as bad as the other.

Though the private rooms and hallways gave a post-bellum Tara effect, the bathrooms looked as they did when the building was totally occupied. Even the toilet paper remained untouched in the dispensers as it had before the blaze.

Looking up the staircase at what was the fourth floor, the residents thought aloud about how much the top level meant to them. For many, the chance to get a room on the top floor was an opportunity not to pass up. But for this year, and maybe for good, the realization of "King of the Hill" is but a dream.

Looking upon the scene of the historic building from outside, one conjures up feelings of a mausoleum, but after hearing the sounds of workmen hammering and sawing, and the residents' talk of the plans for next year, the impression is that St. Ed's is indeed on the way back.

Fouts' record-breaking passing, the Chargers reeled off a 12-9 regular season record, a mark equaled only by the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

En route to their playoff berth in 14 years, the Chargers buried eventual Super Bowl champion Los Angeles by scores of 35-7 and 40-16.

The Chargers and Broncos will be severely tested by rugged early schedules. San Diego plays six of its first five games on the road, while Denver opens with Philadelphia, Dallas, San Diego, New England and Cleveland.

We look at the first five games...and realize how tough it's going to be for us to get through that and still be a contender," said Miller, who guided the Broncos to a 10-6 record last year.

San Diego's road schedule includes Dallas, Miami, and Washington, along with home games against Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Miller made it official this week by naming Robinson, a former aide of John Jefferson, passed for 4,082 yards to crack Joe Namath's all-time NFL passing yard receivers in Charlie Walt Walsh, currently a major contender for the starting quarterback position vacated by Rusty Lasch last year. Other contenders for top Irish signal caller include Kiel's fellow freshman, Scott Grooms and seniors Mike Courcy and Tim Kegel.

Veeck in good condition

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Veeck, owner of the Chicago White Sox, was listed in good condition yesterday at Illinois Masonic Medical Center, where he has been hospitalized since Sunday with respiratory problems.

Veeck, 66, continued receiving inhalation therapy and remained in the hospital's intensive care unit, a spokesman said. Veeck has a recurring respiratory problem and probably will be hospitalized a few more days, he said.

Veeck was hospitalized only two days after the White Sox board of directors approved the sale of the American League club to Howard J. DeBartolo of Youngstown, Ohio, for an estimated $20 million.

Who’s knockin’ at the door?

Ever since Dan Devine shook the world (with the timing if not the content) by announcing that he would leave Notre Dame for greener pastures after the 1980 football season,iev. Edmund & Joyce, the man who will choose a successor for Devine’s Maaslow prescription, has acquired some interesting new pals.

Touchdown!

Dean Macmull [86] jums Pete Holohan and Tony Hunter on what has been termed the best Irish receiving corps in history.

A highly-placed source in the University’s mailroom has provided a quick peak at some of Fr. Joyce’s mail, and some of the return addresses are quite interesting. Along with the household names like Shula, Hank Stram, Lou Holtz, Gerry Faust and George Welch—are a few names you might not expect to see.

Former President Richard M. Nixon is rumored to have called a play that backfired for George Allen’s Washington Redskins during Super Bowl VII in 1973, and he’d like the job. Nixon, who played football while at Whittier College, claims he’s qualified for the position because when he is inevitably forced out of the job, he will already have a preparedness questionnaire from which to choose. He could recite the “peace with honor” theme, or the “I’m not a quitter” classic of 1974. But the most likely choice would be the “you won’t have Richard Nixon on that and anymore” favorite.

Billy Martin, who is certain to punch somebody in the nose, has asked that things go so well in Oakland, wants the job in the worst way—because as head football coach, he’ll make himself eligible to coach the Bengals Boats each spring.

The second most powerful position in the country, because he feels it’s the second most powerful position in the country. And I do hope he has refined his driving skills. The University tends to take a dim view of his mistreatment of referees. Just ask Al Hunter. Teddy might be a lot of fun in Senior Bar Saturday nights after the games, though.

Chicago mayor Jane Byrne has thrown her hat into the ring, too. She says that Titlete’s prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that she can’t run a city, she’d like to try a football team. The athletic department wouldn’t have any money to send the women’s field hockey team to China. You’d even be able to afford the return trip—if you wanted to. I imagine, a real live leprechaun to play with.

I hear you’ve been having some financial problems in the athletic department. No problem, Bert Lance has already told me he’d be glad to come along. In two months, you’d have enough money to send the women’s field hockey team to China. You’d even be able to afford the return trip—if you wanted to.

Phills-inner and Tony Hunter on what

The Rugby Club will meet tonight at 7 p.m. in the LaFortune Ballroom. New members are welcome.

Purdue coach Young says

Herrmann for Heisman

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Quarterback Mark Herrmann "is one of the greatest quarterbacks in the country and he will be a great pro," coach Jim Young said yesterday.

Young made his comments during the Purdue stop on the 27th annual Big Ten Skywriters tour.

"I just enjoy watching Mark practice," Young said in some of his strongest comments so far about Herrmann. "He’s just unbelievable to watch, his ability and sense are phenome- menal. You just have to be around him to understand how great he is.""Herrmann, asked if he was bothered by suggestions he may be a Heisman trophy candidate, said, "I can’t help but thing about the Heisman trophy, but it has to be secondary. My goal is to be champion of the Big Ten.

"The Big Ten championship is everything to me this year. That’s what I came to Purdue for. A trip to Pasadena (for the Rose Bowl) has evaded us so far. Myself and my family are trying to keep low-key about the other things (personal recognition.) The writers move to Notre Dame today. Purdue and Notre Dame meet Sept. 6 on ABC television in the season opener for both schools.

Touchdown!

Digger Phelps, Wally Butts, Woody Hayes and Jeff "Vinyl" Jeffers. But the most interesting letter was mailed from "1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D.C." It read:
Dear Fr. Joyce;

As you know, I’ll probably be out of a job by the first of the year. But you must appreciate the fact that I’ve never run lower than second in any of the polls.

I feel that beyond my personal abilities, I could provide the University with an excellent staff of assistant coaches. First and foremost, the women’s librbers would have to be pleased, because everybody knows that Rosalyrn makes all the big decisions. I’d even let her call the plays—Phil Carter left, Phil Carter right, Phil Carter up the middle.

Of course, Billy would be my recruiting coordinator. We’d be particularly strong with foreign players. I hear those Latinos are pretty fiery. And there must be a good football player or two among the Cuban refugees. They’re sure not good for much else.

These days, every sports team needs a good drug source, and who better than Hamilton Jordan? All I can say about Ham is that he never uses the stairs.

I hear you’ve been having some financial problems in the athletic department. No problem, Bert Lance has already told me he’d be glad to come along. In two months, you’d have enough money to send the women’s field hockey team to China. You’d even be able to afford the return trip—if you wanted to. I imagine, a real live leprechaun to play with.
