Lucey accepts Hesburgh campus invitation

by Mary Fran Callahan
Senior Staff Reporter

Assistant Director of Security Rex Rakow yesterday acknowledged that five campus thefts occurred last weekend — one $39 theft in Cavanaugh Hall, and four thefts totaling $173 and a book of football tickets in Morrissey Hall.

However, Bernie Negrotto, Morrissey Hall president, yesterday estimated the total amount of cash taken at "about $500."

He estimated that the thief was either experienced or familiar with the hall when he commented, "He knew exactly what he was doing: he went straight to pants' pockets."

He still unclear exactly how much money was taken from Morrissey. Morrissey rector Brother Edward Luther declined to comment on any of the crimes' details, but he did acknowledge numerous thefts. "Thefts have occurred and cash was taken, but I would be reluctant (continued on page 5)"

Campus crime rises, thieves rob students

Cultural diversity develops

by Dan LeDuc
Staff reporter

How diverse is Notre Dame? There are many groups on campus representing a great variety of interests and backgrounds, but how many people are aware of the number of Mexican-American students on campus — or, according to some, the lack of them?

By the year 2000, Mexican-Americans will be the second largest minority in the United States. This fact is too important to ignore when looking at the profile of Notre Dame students.

The Observer began first by talking to Brother John H. Lucey, Notre Dame's Chicano Studies Program. The program was created to enrich the cultural activity in Chicano studies and to provide fellowships for Chicano students to pursue doctoral work.

One of the most successful projects of the program has been the Chicano Series published by the Notre Dame Press. Dr. Samora is particularly proud of the series, saying that there has been no other literature in the field of Chicano studies only in the past ten years to see the increased interest in civil rights.

When talking about Mexican-Americans at the Notre Dame campus, Sr. Dr. Samora comments, "Evidently, the majority of the Mexican-American students are assimilated into the mainstream. A group like MECHA is struggling with the other campus activities."

MECHA is the acronym for El Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano de Aztlán — the Chicano Student Movement of the Southwest.

Dr. Samora pointed out that there are only two Mexican-American faculty members at the university and "it doesn't seem to increase."

The acceptance of Mexican-Americans nationally has been slow in coming, commented Samora. The Catholic Church, foundations and universities have all been reluctant to accept Mexican-Americans equally. Samora said that only 0.08 percent of national endowment money goes to Hispanic groups, but with the new interest of the past ten years this is changing.

It is important to note the individual's background when talking to Mexican-American students. Three things are found to be important: language, and family ties. However, differences do arise.

James Gang Productions, missing for two days after Friday’s flooding in July. The pigeon was turned over to police by a family who found the bird on a window ledge with a message in Arabic taped to its leg. Police feared the message was to Arab guerrillas planning to sabotage Israel.

Thieves are sneaking about on campus. Masked marvels, it seems, from all indications. Just think — someone had the nerve to go through the pants pockets of a Morrissy resident while he and a few friends were fast asleep on the floor. Yes, the pendulum is shifting slightly. Put the wave of off-campus hold on for a moment and take a look at the “criminal” activity on the homefront. Being right on top of the day-to-day news, The Observer has scooped the latest on “on-campus” crime with a lead story concerning thefts that occurred in Cavanaugh and Morrissy. It appears that it isn’t your ordinary thief who’s pulling the jobs. These thefts can not and should not be blamed on some South Bend juvenile delinquent. The thief who may hit your room can be your next door neighbor, an acquaintance or even your roommate. Now don’t go out and buy a gun or a knife in order to protect your domain. And don’t go out to the hardware store and spend your remaining bank balance on chains and locks. This column is not meant to induce mass hysteria or paranoia. It is written as a friendly warning.

I am not writing this purely from an objective level. In fact, three years ago, I encountered objects being taken from my room. What does a freshman know, right? I just thought that somehow in my mixed-up, confused state of mind, I had banished them to never-never land. And then I started getting those “survival” packages from home — guaranteed my mom said, to keep me healthy, if not exactly wise. It was those times that I noticed that small amounts of the food kept disappearing. For awhile I thought I shared a room with a sugar-starved rat. Until after I heard other people complaining of their things being swiped. Stealing is a very visual problem here.

A colleague of mine is going to read this and tell me that like usual I don’t propose any solutions to the problem. And every week my defense is always the same: No one can solve human madness. Least of all a mad person like me.
Between Iran, Iraq

U.S. to intervene in Gulf

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Carter administration, growing more concerned about the conflict in the Persian Gulf region, is preparing to support a peacekeeping move in the United Nations to try to lessen tensions between Iran and Iraq.

U.S. officials said yesterday that while the administration wants to maintain strict neutrality it is ready to back mediations efforts even if they are based on Iranian accusations that Iraq is largely responsible for the new fighting.

Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie discussed diplomatic approaches at a luncheon with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim. He told reporters only that "there are consultations going on here and in Washington to assess the situation and consider options for actions."

Other U.S. officials, who asked not to be identified, said a decision had already been taken tentatively to work for a U.N. inquiry, although the United States would not play a prominent role.

Waldheim, meanwhile, scheduled urgent consultations yesterday by the Security Council. He said the widened fighting posed a "grave threat" to world peace.

The conflict was on Muskie's agenda in a series of meetings with foreign ministers from Canada, Spain, Iceland and Australia. He and other U.S. officials were reportedly to have had no contact with Iranian or Iraqi diplomats here for the U.N. General Assembly session.

"It's a nutty situation," one U.S. official commented. "We want to play it right down the middle and yet it's a fairly serious situation that could lead to fragmentation in Iran."

The two major concerns are that Iraqi troops might move to take over oil-producing areas of Khuzestan and that the Soviets might be tempted to intervene in Iran. Neither is now considered likely, according to officials.

"Generally speaking, fragmentation works to the Soviet advantage," one official said. "But we don't think they will try to move in. They have enough on their hands."

The possible effect on the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran for 323 days was not clear.

President Carter, campaigning Monday in California, said the fighting might convince Iran it needs friends and neighbors "and therefore induce them to release the hostages."

On Tuesday, the president said the United States' position was one of "strict neutrality" and urged "all other countries, including the Soviet Union, not to interfere with this conflict."

Muskie said that "to the extent that the situation becomes less stable, obviously becomes less predictable, my concern rises."

Most Department officials are inclined to this view. They had pinned their hopes for a settlement of the hostage question on the formation of a new government in Tehran and any stabilization that might result.

Iran denies Iraqi rumors

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Tehran Radio announced yesterday that Iranian militants have transferred their American hostages from six Iranian cities to new locations following claims by Iraq, later denied by Iran, that the hostages had been freed.

An unspecified number of the hostages who were captured in the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran last Nov. 4 were moved out of the cities of Qom, Mashad, Tabriz, Jahrom, Yazd and Kerman to unidentified sites, the broadcast said.

Earlier on Tuesday, Baghdad Radio claimed that the 52 American hostages had been freed. The Iraqi broadcast appeared to be part of the escalating psychological warfare between Iraq and its eastern neighbor, Iran, as the two oil-rich nations continued air, land and sea strikes against each other.

Tehran Radio denounced the Iraqi claim as a propaganda ploy. After an aborted U.S. mission to free the hostages in April, the militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran announced that they had moved the hostages from the embassy to a number of cities in Iran. Since then there has been no comprehensive listing of the exact number of hostages being held in specific locations.

The militants' reported decision to transfer the hostages followed a period during which strident charges by both Iran and Iraq that the other is a United States hiring.

Sophomore Josie Nevarez, a Mexican-American student, has been accepted to the University of Michigan. She and her family were living in a small, run-down apartment in a barrio in Mexico. Josie's parents spoke only Spanish at home. Before she arrived, she had never been to a Catholic church.

Josie feels that the average Mexican-American student is from a Mexican-American community that has been confronting a cultural shock in coming to the University. "People are friendlier here," she says, "but I'm not sure about the language. They don't speak much Spanish here in the cafeteria in Spanish. It made me feel better."

Her parents spoke only Spanish at home. Her barrio wasn't very clean and prepared her for Notre Dame.

Lack of 'American Spirit' depletes National Guard

WEBSTER City, Iowa (AP) — In many of the small towns of America, the National Guard armory—like the church and the school—is a link to a happier past, a part of spirited patriotism.

But that patriotism has faded here in Webster City. "They just don't give a damn," said Maj. Gen. Roger W. Gilbert, Iowa's adjutant general, describing the sentiment in this flourishing community of 8,000 that sits amidst the rich cornfields in the middle of the state.

The general's comment echoes beyond the cornbelt to other states, east and west, when the subject of the National Guard comes up. At a time when citizen-soldiers are being counted on to supply half the firepower in the event of war, public apathy has set in.

"People around here could care less," said Ed Lamson of the Chamber of Commerce in Webster City, a city settled by German and Scandinavian farmers. "This seems to be a time in American history when we don't have much spirit anymore."

Little interest was exhibited here when the Iowa governor announced his proposal to close the Webster City armory and 17 more of the 55 in the state because of lagging recruiting. The people of Webster City shrugged and went on their own way.

For three decades the red brick armory has been a landmark on Superior Street. It was erected in honor of two local youths killed in action during World War II. Guardsmen who went into battle in North Africa with Iowa's 14th "Red Bull" Division.

Today, only 24 Guardsmen drill at the armory, all that's left of Co. C, 4th Maintenance Battalion. Master Sgt. Val Ewing, the lone full-time Guardman, lamented that if the governor's plan goes through, the armory will be turned into a racquetball court. The Guardsmen will have to commute to Eagle Grove, 20 miles away, to train.

But, said Sam Ades, a former National Guard master sergeant who now runs a fast food franchise, "The closing won't raise a ripple here."

Recognizing the recruiting problems that mushroomed with the end of the draft, National Guard officials are looking for new incentives to fill the ranks of the 3,300 Guard units in 2,600 communities. Guard ranks are 84 percent filled, with about 351,000 troops, but the turnover is high, as much as 46 percent in Indiana last year.

Yet, a worsening world situation has placed a greater defense burden on the military than ever before. Guard units are now expected to be on the front lines overseas within 90 days to reinforce the all-volunteer regular Army. In addition, the Guard is frequently called on to help in times of natural disasters, civil disturbances, and other emergencies.

As campaign chairman, Tighe said he has been working to bring Anderson to campus since last October. He hopes there will be an enthusiastic response to Lucy's appearance.

This is the first appearance of a major 1980 presidential candidate on the Notre Dame campus. Fr. Hesburgh has received no reply from Reagan or Bush with regard to his invitation, but President Carter has declined due to other commitments. According to Richard Cocklin, Director of Information Services, the University is still hoping for a positive reply from Vice-President Mondale.

such as "Mexican-Americans Who Are They?" or "Irish Americans Who Are They?"

"If we had a better self-awareness of each other, maybe society would be better. After all, we came to Notre Dame to learn from other people—not just books," she said.

Sophomore Martha Jimenez is a member of MECHA, also. Though her parents speak English at home, Martha is bilingual—Spanish was the first language she learned. She speaks Spanish with her grandmother.

"Family ties are very important," she said, "there is a respect for culture and old-age." This was one reason that Notre Dame first seemed out of reach for her. It was a great "blatant withdrawal." She said that she had felt no "American." While Josie missed the culture, Martha said that she had felt no "Mexican-Americans from California, New Mexico, and Texas might experience some adjustment problems. But, being a Mid-westerner he never had such problems."

"I always knew I was Mexican, but there was no conscious adjustment to it. I still have close ties with Mexico." Junior George Santos of San Antonio is of still another background. George is not from a Mexican-American community. He is from an English-speaking home.

A simple difference between George and Josie would be in their use of the word "Chicano." Josie uses the word interchangeably with the term "Mexican-American." Yet for George, though a lot of good has come from the Chicano movement, it still has racial overtones. George takes the Chicano movement as a reaction to the black movement. He is not a member of MECHA. While Josie has seen discrimination and prejudice in her barrio, George has "never, ever been discriminated against."

"In a way, though," he said, "I wish we would have more discrimination to better understand the Chicano movement."

Because of his background, George did not have the same adjustment problems other Mexican-American students may have had. George represents the other end of the spectrum of Mexican-American students, but he does feel the kinship bonds that are characteristic of Mexican-Americans.

The "compardes bond" — the taking of someone into a family so that they become like a blood relation — is very strong in Mexican-American culture.

Pat Leonardo, Assistant Director of Admissions, noted that this kinship bond is a hindrance in the recruitment of Mexican-American students. Leonardo said that this bond, along with the geographical distance from home, means "we will have to be more aggressive to get the student."

According to Leonardo, Notre Dame has a good reputation with Mexican-Americans and Hispanics in general because there is a "natural relationship" in Catholicism. He also noted that the university is starting to work with Hispanic alumni this year to increase recruiting effectiveness. Leonardo also feels the university did a good job with the funds available for financial aid. Josie and Marty agreed, saying, though it's only a small part of his image.

"There is a strong commitment in the Admissions Office," Leonardo said.

Is Orion Really Elvis?

By Cindy McAfee
Time Staff Writer

A mask worked for the Green Hornet. The phantom has been wearing one for years.

And professional wrestlers like the Masked Mask use them as part of their acts.

Suddenly the mask helps make these entertainers famous while disguising them at the same time. It stands to reason if a mask would work for them it might work for a singer, too.

Orion Eckley Darnell, who prefers to be known simply as Orion, is a singer who will appear Saturday at the Morris Civic Auditorium. He never parts with his mask. He says he's too ugly to take it off.

But his mask is only what this singer calls his "trademark." And it's only a small part of his image. This 6-3, slim, dark-haired pretense of Shelby Singleton, owner of Sun Records, sounds exactly like Elvis Presley, singing or talking.

But despite persistent rumors that Orion is Elvis incarnate, the singer says it isn't so.

But that doesn't mean that his record company isn't taking advantage of his uncanny resemblance to the King.

Orion is merely the singer's stage name. His character is based on a novel called Orion written in 1977, according to Country Style magazine.

The book's main character, Orion Eckley Darnell, is a superstar known for a lifethreatening disease, turning to the life of a recluse after fooling the world. But, he finds the life of a recluse boring, too, and takes to the stage again.

According to an interview with the author, Gail Brewer-Giorgio, in Country Style, she received a telephone call in 1978 from a caller named Orion. Although she tried to convince the caller that there was no such person, the character was merely in her imagination, the caller insisted.

"I remember that day," said Sally Smash of Sun Records. "It was wild."

She says Orion's past is kept deliberately hazy and that she really knows very little about him. She does know that he is a singer signed to fit the part of the Elvis-like character.

"The author of the book is being very cooperative in helping with the promotion," she said.

During a telephone interview, Orion said he had known Ms. Giorgio before she wrote the book, after a quick consultation with someone in Shelby Singleton's office.

Although he tries to keep his past vague, he says he's been "singing in the shower since I was a little boy" and has sung in church many times.

He's a bit touchy about his mask and says that "nine out of 10 people don't care about the mask. It's just part of the trademark, like Kiss. They wear paint." He added that one of the mask's purposes is to keep his personal life separate from his professional identity.

He says he writes some of his own music, "when the mood strikes me," and that he plays the guitar. He especially enjoys audience participation in his act.

He's unmarried and says he's "23 and holding" and doesn't really mind the Elvis rumors, though he doesn't believe the King staged his own death. The magazine articles linking him with the late performer don't bother him "as long as they spell my name right."

The biggest lies in the world

WASHINGTON — The big- gest lie in the world is, "The check is in the mail!" — except during an election year, and then you get some whoppers to top even that.

"I promise, if I am elected, that you will get a tax cut, and I will also balance the budget." "When I become president, the Russians will know we mean business." "I guarantee that everyone who wants to work will have a job." "I will give you less government — not more government." "My goal is to see that all the people get medical care at a price they can afford." "Let's make no mistake about this. I am for the farmer." "My first priority will be to see that everyone gets decent housing at reasonable interest rates." "I intend to take strong measures to ensure that every worker in this country shares in the fruits of his labor." "My first concern is to cut red tape, and to encourage business to proceed with projects to help build a strong economy and compete with overseas imports." "I will not appoint anyone to public office for political reasons." "My vice president will be in on all my decisions." "I will work closely with Congress and keep them advised about every foreign policy decision I make." "My staff will be kept to a minimum and my door will be open to the Cabinet members at all times." "The sick and the elderly will have someone in the White House who cares about them." "I intend to take the high road in this campaign and not deal in personalities." "I will never lie to you." "The only reason I have sought this office is that I believe the country needs leadership." "This is the best kosher frankfurter I've ever tasted." "I would say, with a few exceptions, that the media has treated me fairly." "I demand to rebuild every American city in this country.

"Anyone on my administration who commits an impropriety will be immediately dismissed." "My first act in office will be to make us self-sufficient in energy." "No one will go hungry as long as I am president." "Make no mistake about this. I'm for the small businessman." "I will see it that women are treated as equals with men in job opportunities, pay and respect." "I have spoken to the people and I have listened to what they have to say." "This is the best chicken gumbo I've ever tasted." "I can't do the job without your prayers." "I can't do the job unless you elect Hap Gable as congressman from this district." "It doesn't matter to me personally if I win or lose, but it does matter to this great country of ours.

(continued from page 7) statement the night before that the election would decide "whether this nation will make progress or go backwards and whether we have peace or war." First Reagan declared the president was guilty of "inconceivable" and "unforgivable" statements. "To accuse that anyone would deliberately start a war is beneath decency," said Reagan, who told his audience in Carter's native South that he has seen four wars in his own lifetime.

In a new charge of his own, Reagan added that Carter "lacks the vision and the will necessary to restore America's margin of safety and to preserve a genuine world peace." Reagan's running mate chimed in with his own criticism. Campaigning in Illinois, George Bush said, "I don't think the American people are going to buy that instruction" (from the president).

Anderson launched his attack from Harrisburg, Pa., where he declared: "the choice is not peace or war." He said voters face a decision about which candidate can set the best foreign policy. "To suggest anything less than that is to demean the conduct of the campaign," he said.

Anderson, whose attacks on Carter have intensified in recent days, added, "I will not condone any effort on the part of the president to use scare tactics to suggest that the election in November is a choice between peace and war."

In a television interview in Los Angeles before he learned of either of his rivals' comments, the president reportedly said he did not intend to imply that Reagan would start a war.

"Second ... to when I got drafted ... when I knew I had a job," Thompson said.

George Reynolds of the Bengals had their best week of practice the season preparing for the Pittsburgh game.

"Last week was the best week in practice I can ever remember a team having ... and I was still scared to death," Gregg said. "Guys really had great concentration on what they were doing. I think they gained some confidence from the two heartbreaking losses at the beginning. It was like they were saying, Hey, we're not half bad. It's still early in the season—three games into it—and a lot can happen."

Pete Johnson, who had lost his starting fullback job to second-year man Charles Alexander, may have regained it with his hard running. He led Cincinnati rushers with 19 carries for 65 yards.

"This was a game I felt we had to win," Johnson says. "I said before the game, 'We're going to win today if I have to do it myself.'"

"I was hoping I'd get to carry the ball. For our passing game to go, we've got to establish our running game."

LIGHTS, CAMERA, DIGGER — NBC and TVS have announced tentative TV dates for five Irish basketball games this season. The January 16th battle at Marquette inaugurates Notre Dame's new TV season, with episodes planned at Maryland (January 26, 1:30 EST), in the ACC against UCLA (February 8, 2:00 EST), and against Virginia (February 22, 2:00 EST) and DePaul March 8, 1:45 EST.

The latter two contests will be played at the Horizon Arena in Rosemont, a northern suburb of Chicago. The Virginia game is Notre Dame's home-and-away series with the Cavaliers while the Horizon is DePaul's new home court, the Blue Demons having finally outgrown legendary Alumni Hall.

The two Horizon games are both scheduled for Sunday afternoons, which normally means a national TV appearance. The other three games are Saturdays, which may be either regional or national contests.

ADD END — Belated birthday wishes to Bruce Springsteen, who turned 31 yesterday (it may not be sports, but some things are more important ...).
Young QB leads Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP) - Coach Forrest Gregg is impressed with the way quarterback Jack Thompson came off the bench Sunday to lead the Cincinnati Bengals to an upset victory over the National Football League champion Pittsburgh Steelers. But it's too early for starter Ken Anderson to concede his job. "Jack Thompson helped our cause and his Sunday," Gregg says. "I don't know what Kenny's situation is. You would cause and his champion Pittsburgh Steelers. Forrest Gregg is impressed with Anderson aggravated the injuries to Anderson. And he seems to have convinced several veteran teammates that he's ready to step in. "I thought Jack played extremetly well. There were a lot of key things Jack did that people don't notice," wide receiver Isaac Curtis says. He was particularly impressed with the way Thompson stayed in the pocket to throw him a touchdown pass despite heavy pressure. "He was being pursued, but he hung in there and waited instead of dumping it off to a running back," Curtis says. "It makes me feel good that he had that confidence in me." Thompson surprised writers when he said his performance Sunday was only his second greatest sporty thrill. (continued from page 13)

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Ron Jaworski says the name of his game is confidence. The Philadelphia Eagles' quarterback hasn't been talking about self-confidence. He's always had that. He's talking about the faith Coach Dick Vermeil has in the "Pilestone" ability to throw the ball. Vermeil's faith hasn't been misplaced. His unbeaten Eagles have won three games, and scored 100 points. Jaworski has triggered this offense with 96 completions on 83 attempts for 575 yards and eight touchdowns. Only two of his passes have been intercepted. Jaworski says the thing that has made him a mature field director is that his teammates have elected him a captain. "It's a great honor. I want to get out there and do my job. I always had confidence in my ability. Some people think I'm cocky. I am not that at all. I just feel if they ask me to throw 100 passes I can complete 100," Jaworski said.

The quarterback spoke after the Eagles routed the New York Giants 35-3 in the National Football League's Monday night nationally televised game. "We proved ourselves to be a good football team," said Jaworski. "I don't know how far we are from being a great football team." Jaworski threw three touchdown passes against the Giants, completed 20 of 29 for 266 yards, with one intercepted. He teamed with wide receiver Ron Brown to lead Montgomery to beat the Giants the 10th straight time since 1975. Montgomery gained 87 yards running and 120 yards passing to lead 154 points for the Eagles' 862 yards total offense. He was described by Newsday columnist Sam Parks as triggering the key to the game, a great running back who simply thumbs his nose at the road.

But Jaworski runs this team as if he were a big book. He can complete the final word when he moves on the ball. Jaworski said he especially likes Monday night football. "It's the greatest thing in the country," said the one-time Youngstown State quarterback. "I know the guys in the bars are rooting for me and I don't want to let them down.

Jaworski, now in his fourth season with the Eagles, spiritedly defeat that Vermeil has thrown him.

"Now he's turned me loose. He feels I'm the right quarterback," Jaworski observed. "I've had a lot of breaks go against me in my time. Now I'll take 'em while they're going for me." Jaworski said.

What is the difference between this year's Eagles and the 1975 team that went two games into the 1979 playoffs? "We're more aggressive on offense, the coach has confidence in me and our different formations. We're going after people, and the coach has confidence we can stop the other team's running game," Jaworski said.

makes a point. Pitt has been skipping along from win to win. But actually coming no closer to the real national powers than watching them play on national TV. Just who do they think they're fooling? Certainly not the people of Pittsburgh who have found a plethora of excuses for not buying tickets. The people at Pitt will tell you that the Steelers are a national power. For Forrest Gregg is impressed with the economy of Alabama or a Texas or even a Southern Cal on the schedule. They'll not only sell more tickets, they'll also gain some credibility as a real national contender. C'mon, Coach Sherrill. If you wanna be a big boy, you gotta play with the big boys. Besides, what are you worried about? You can handle those guys. Can't you?

In that season opener freshman was Dave Austgen with four goals, while Mike Corbisiero, John O'Hara, and John Mosley contributed two each.

HARRY O — Add one more tribute to the lengthy list of accolades Notre Dame's All-America placekicker Harry Oliver, has earned. The Associated Press has honored Oliver as its second-team placekicker in the Midwest Open. The All-America single-footedly defeating the pesky Wolverines on Saturday. That field goal echoed the second longest in Notre Dame history. Dave Fenske's 60-yarder against Army in 1976 and a 51-yarder vs. Michigan State in 1977.

Irish linebacker Bob Crabbe was a finalist for AP defensive honors by virtue of his 19 tackles against Bo's boys. Oliver joins teammates Mark Zachvin and Scott Zeteck, who were the defensive players of the week after the Purdue game, on the AP honor roll.

CARTER'S REAL ESTATE — Sophomore running back Phil Carter has a chance to write his name in Notre Dame record books next weekend. Should the 193-pound halfback gain 30 or more yards again over 100 yards for the season, then he will be the only the fourth player in Irish annals to gain 100 or more yards in three straight games. Carter yard out 142 yards against Boston College, and scored two touchdowns, and combined with the fourth quarter of Saturday's thriller pushed his total for that game to 103 yards.

The last Notre Dame gridiron star to turn the rushing hat trick was Neil Worden in 1953. Prior to that Marchy Schwartz (1979) and George Gipp (1920) accomplished the feat.

IT HURTS SO GOOD — Linebacker Bob Crabbe's bone-crushing tackles have also earned him a place in Irish football lore. The Cincinnati native has set a team record with 187 tackles last season, an average of 17 per Saturday. This year, he is averaging 15.9 tackles per game.

In the 13 games Crabbe has started in his Notre Dame career, he has recorded at least 10 tackles 12 times. Likewise, he had the team in tackles in 11 of the 13 contests. ALABAMA SHOULD TRY IT — Notre Dame's 1980 football schedule ranks as the ninth toughest collegiate slate in the country this year. The 1979 records of this season's opponents, reveals that Irish foes compiled a 63-34-4 mark (591) last year as not facing the Irish. Tons of the collegiate list are Penn State (661), Duke (625) and Rice (600), followed by Temple, TCU, Boston College, Wisconsin, SMU, Notre Dame and Syracuse.

HOW DO YOU RATE? — Two Irish offensive threats rate in the top twenty of NCAA state rankings this week. Running back Phil Carter is 16th in rushing at 122.5 yards-per-game and offensive tackle Bob Crabbe, 19th in pass blocking, 19th at 12.5 yards-per-penck-return attempt (he was 6th at 35.0 last week).

BO-HO - Most Notre Dame fanatics thought that Bob Schenbecher's nightmares would end after Ohio State's Woody Hayes retired.

Schenbecher has another monkey on his back. Currently his 12th year at Michigan, Bo has lost only three non league games in his tenure. All three of the Wolverines did not lose another game outside the Big Ten until ten years later, when Notre Dame field-goal the Wolverines to death 12-10. Coach Lefty Smith, usually boant from yells before the season begins, now employs a microphone to direct practice.

Theismann speaks out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Theismann believes the National Football League should take stronger measures to protect its quarterbacks from being picked up in the air and slammed to the ground. The Washington Redskins' quarterback feels suspensions, and not 15yard penalties, are necessary.

"On my [I'm talking about," said Theismann Tuesday, two days after he was slammed to the ground by Oakland's second year defensive end, Willie Jones. "You're in a vulnerable position, coming down on your head, neck and shoulders. And you have to figure you're being hit on the ground with your own weight behind the impact."

Theismann, a seven-year veteran, said his shoulder still was sore from the hit by Jones. The Raiders' player picked up Theismann and turned him over, slamming him to the ground as the referee whistled the play dead. The Raiders were assessed a 15-yard penalty for unnecessary roughness.

"If they want to protect the quarterback, something should be done about that particular play," said Theismann. "And they should do something before they start losing a lot of quarterbacks."

He cited two examples in recent years where quarterbacks were seriously injured on the play — Pittsburgh's Terry Brubaker by "Turkey Joe" Jones of Cleveland in 1976 and Minnesota's Tommy Kramer by Jim Youngblood of Los Angeles in 1972.

"You've got to draw the line," said Theismann. "I take shots. That's part of the game of football. This stuff is not part of the game."

Theismann said a 15-yard penalty is not a stiff enough punishment.

"If you start taking money out of guys' pockets (with a suspension), they'll start using their heads a little," he said. "It's an easy cast on. But it's going to be every player's job to protect his own quarterback. Anybody who has been in this position will agree with me.

"There's got to be something. Who the hell cares about a 15- yard penalty."

"It's an easy cast on. But it's going to be every player's job to protect his own quarterback. Anybody who has been in this position will agree with me."

"We want to create an awareness of Notre Dame hockey," exclaimed Busch. "We are offering trying to purchase our ticket package for $50 which includes one ticket for each Irish home game this year. A seven-game Friday night package ($14) and an eight-game Saturday option ($16) are available as well. Students may fill in ticket applications at the Ticket Office on the second floor of the Aquatic Center during regular business hours. Busch says ticket distribution is planned for right around fall break."

Breakaway campaign itself involved a combination of radio, television, newspaper point-of-purchase and billboard advertisements promoting Notre Dame hockey, as well as a direct-mail campaign with 15,000 families.
