Students cite false arrest, brutality

By Kelli Flint

A group of Notre Dame students plans to press charges of false arrest and negligence against the South Bend Police Department following an incident that took place after the Notre Dame-Air Force football game.

The incident involves a dispute between seven students and a group of middle-aged men who allegedly stole the wallet of one of the students. The students requested that their names be withheld from this article.

The seven students eventually became involved in fights with the officers outside a motor home parked near Green Field, although the students claim they never retaliated in the fighting. When police intervened, four of the students, but none of the men, were arrested.

Police Sergeant Williams, who made the arrest, did not interact the incident the same way as the students. "The students said they were not going to fight the police," he said. "I knew that we told them to disperse and they wouldn't."

"They were arrested for disorderly conduct. They were fighting the older men back. We were not willing in any way, shape or form. They were warned to leave the area. We arrested the students after they resisted, but we did not press charges against the men."

Originally, there were three students walking the road between Edison and Juniper, near a group of motor homes, according to the student whose wallet was taken. "We were approached from a motor home by two men, he took the wallet of age," he said.

"The men began playfully wrestling with us. Then they shook hands with us, and we parted. About fifteen minutes later, we were returning by the same path. When we reached the motor home, the men approached us again."

"They began to push us over the wire along the sidewalk, down an embankment. We again pushed them out of the way. They then took our wallet.

"I think that if it would be safe for the wallet alone. We ran into some friends near Green Field, and decided to return for the wallet," the student said.

"When we arrived at the motor home, there were two men standing in front of the home. One of them had my wallet. My friend asked for the wallet. The man waved it in front of his face, and my friend took it."

IABC decide, "21 in favor of Corby's"

By John A. Higgins
Staff Reporter

Corby's Tavern's liquor license was renewed by the Indiana Alcoholic Beverage Commission yesterday. The three-member commission's vote of 2-1 to allow Corby's to continue operations marked the end of a seven-month battle that pitted Corby's owners against South Bend city officials and northeast neighborhood residents.

The struggle began last April when the local board of the ABC decided to recommend to the state commission that Corby's license not be renewed. Board members said that the hotel management was not making an effort to "clean up their act" following a number of arrests of minors. Corby's owner, CTC, Inc. appealed the decision to the state commission, claiming that the board's decision was "arbitrary and capricious" and "not based in fact."

A series of hearings before the commission in Indianapolis concluded in September.

"I just through three days of hearings and I had to make a decision," ABC Commissioner Morton Tidwell, who voted in favor of the license, said. "My decision was that they were probably entitled to one more year to straighten up their act."

"In my mind, the city just didn't prove they were that bad."

Military scare
Soviets alert troops on Polish border

BERLIN (AP) - A flurry of fresh reports of Soviet military moves on Poland's eastern and western borders erupted yesterday as Poland's Communist Party Central Committee met in Warsaw to deal with the labor turmoil that has alarmed the country's Warsaw Pact allies.

Moscow "categorically" denied that Red Army troops on Poland's eastern border had been put on the highest state of alert or that there had been any mobilization of Soviet forces.

The reports renewed concern that the Soviet Union might be considering military action in Poland to quell unrest and halt moves that the Kremlin sees as undermining Communist Party rule.

The Central Committee meeting in Warsaw opened with a warning from Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania that Poland's independent labor leaders must "sober up" and cooperate with the party. There were reports that party leadership was divided on how to cope with militant union leaders and the Polish economic crisis.

In Washington, U.S. defense officials said they were notified that the Soviet Union planned to close off areas in East Germany along the Polish border and dismissed the action as routine.

Immigration policies need reform

WASHINGTON (AP) - The kindest critics of U.S. immigration policy say it is unfair, the toughest that it is literally murderously damaging. But with an estimated 1.2 million legal and illegal newcomers expected to cross American borders this decade of this century.

The Carpathian region of central Europe, especially Poland, has been a major source of illegal immigration to the United States, bringing an annual immigration total to its highest level since the first decade of this century. There was a peak in 1929.

With the current record low U.S. birth rate, immigration will account for almost half the nation's population growth this year, said Michael Tietelbaum, a population expert at the Ford Foundation.

In addition, thousands of illegal aliens are crossing U.S. borders. Estimates place their numbers anywhere between 300,000 and 500,000, bringing the annual immigration total to its highest level since the first decade of this century.

WEDNESDAY FOCUS

On paper, the laws provide a ceiling of 20,000 immigrants a year from each country. In reality, that means spouses of American citizens in a country like Mexico, where there is a long list of people hoping to immigrate, have to wait as long as two years to be legally reunited with their relatives, while a pastry chef from Norway with no relatives here can be admitted in a matter of months.

The select commission—made up of four cabinet secretaries, four members of the House and Senate, and four presidential appointees—was established in 1978 to propose new immigration laws. With final recommendations to Congress and the president due on March 1, the commission staff is meeting beginning today, joined by the commissioners on the weekend, to review two years of findings.

In previous sessions the commission heard from a number of critics, including activist immigration attorney Rick Swartz who says that U.S. government policy led to the death of scores of Haitian refugees who were sent back to Haiti because they were not qualified to enter under U.S. refugee laws.

"During the Carter administration, several thousand Haitians have been returned to Haiti, turned outside the law."

An arctic storm yesterday attacked the upper Midwest, sending temperatures to cold levels and highways and sent hundreds of cars and trucks skidding, resulting in at least four deaths. Snow flung by winds of 35 mph accumulated up to 8 inches deep as the storm swept across parts of Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan. The mercury dropped to 18 below zero at International Falls, Minn., the coldest spot in the contiguous states.

It was also below freezing in the states to the south. It was 15 below at Valentine, Neb. Slick highways and driving snow were blamed for two death in Nebraska, one in Iowa and one in Wisconsin. The snow was whipped around by blizzards winds up to 80 mph. Ga, counties were posted on Lake Michigan. The fast moving storm dumped up to 8 inches of snow on parts of Illinois in its sweep toward the east.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., of Tennessee was elected yesterday to lead the new Republican majority in next year's Senate. He immediately pledged to help shepherd President-elect Ronald Reagan's programs through Congress. "I intend to try to help Ronald Reagan perform on the commitments he made during his campaign, if he couldn't convince the American people," he said. "That's what I intend to do."

The decision was likely to be the Senate election winner. The one choice which caused more furor than finding a rooster in the staghorns last year was the most conservative Senate in recent years. "We pass too many laws," said Baker, who has a reputation as a moderate in what is expected to be the most conservative Senate in recent years. The senator, who ran unsuccessfully for the GOP presidential nomination this year, has been Senate minority leader for the past four years, when Democrats controlled the Senate. His party's 53-47 majority is now 59-41. Baker plans to convene in January, will make Baker the senator with the final say on which bills are passed...

Carter warns Soviets
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration warned the Soviet Union yesterday that an attempt to invade Poland or intervene in Polish internal affairs would trigger "most serious and adverse" consequences for East-West and Soviet-American relations.

Jody Powell, President Carter's chief spokesman, issued the warning to reporters as a "serious mistake" for any nation to underestimate the will and determination of the United States merely because the U.S.S.R. seeks to change the transition between presidents.

"An invasion or invasion of Poland would be most serious and adverse for East-West relations in general and particularly relations between the United States and the Soviet Union," Powell said.

"I think it would be a serious mistake for any government under any circumstances to assume that in a period of transition between one administration and the next that the American government lacks either the will or the ability to respond," Powell told reporters.

Powell declined to speculate on what steps the United States might take if the Soviet Union moved against Poland.

He said Carter has discussed the situation by telephone with several key European leaders over the past few days.

"It's a situation that's being watched closely and with concern," Powell said.

He said the United States would be ready to support Poland "with every weapon at our disposal" and would make it "easier for the government to invade a worker's privacy.

Fuchs said the commission's recommendations will probably also include the following:

"New rules on which and how many newcomers are granted entry."

A revamped foreign aid program aimed at eliminating the factors which cause people to immigrate in the first place, mainly poverty and repression.

"Tighter controls on illegal immigration. These efforts are likely to be linked to an amnesty program for undocumented aliens already here. A government Accounting Office report estimates their numbers to be around 5 million. Experts differ on the economic impact of illegal aliens, but Fuchs said there is little disagreement among commissioners that amnesty is a wise, necessary and humane step.

"We have people in the United States without documents, most of whom are productive working members of society," he said.

"They are an underclass. They are here already. They live in fear of apprehension."

"In some cases, they are so anxious they don't seek proper medical attention. They are afraid to send their children to school, afraid to take the risk of the United States" the man grabbed his jacket and began pushing him. A student stepped in to break it up. At this point eight or nine men jumped out of the motor home and be­gan punching us.

"We were getting pummelled. We weren't really trying to fight back. We were just trying to keep them from hitting us." South Bend police were gathered at the corner of Edison and Juniper Road, according to another student who was invol­ved in the incident. "When they saw what was going on, they came over," he said. "While the fighting was going on, a friend of mine who was not involved in the fighting went over to one of the policemen and asked him to intervene. The policeman knocked him down and hand­cuffed him.

"He was the first to get arrested. His glasses were knocked off when the policeman hit him. He asked the officer to pick up his glasses and appre­hend the man who hit me (his friend), but he only shoved him into the car. The glasses were never retrieved," the student noted.

"When the policemen began arresting the students, the old men bolted. The police did nothing to apprehend these men.

"After I saw two of the stu­dents arrested, I went to the police officers and asked them to apprehend the old men. They told me that this was not their jurisdiction, and that I should take my complaints to the county," he added, even though the officers had just arrested two of the students.

"I then turned to talk to another police officer. This angered the first officer, and he grabbed me. When he did this, I asked him to tell me his name. He responded to this by hand­cuffing me and putting me in the car.

"A fourth student was arguing with the policemen about the incident. When he saw that the officers would not assist him, he walked away from the scene. After he had gone about fifty yards, one of the officers said, "Let's get him." Then three offi­cers went after him and tackled him on the road by the parking lot," the student said.

They said that they were arresting us for refusing to leave the scene. This guy was leaving the scene and they tackled him from behind.

"When we got to the police­station, the officers did not read us our rights. They would not allow us to make a telephone call, or tell us what the charges against us were. They kept telling us 'this is my jail and I call the shots.'

"We spent six hours in jail within twenty minutes, and the charges were. During this time they took mugshots of us, confis­cated our possessions, and made fingerprints," noted one of the secured students. "They then locked us in separate cells. It was totally ridiculous.

The student pointed out that at approximately 3 p.m. before the police received reports of Students James Roemer tele­phoned the jail. A student claimed that Roemer apparently had already learned of the arrest, and he arranged for their release at that time.

The four students did not gain their freedom until better than five hours later. "Two of the student (who were involved in the scuffle, but not arrested) were badly beaten and had to be taken to the hospital." The stu­dent noted here that these two friends were not arrested be­cause, as he quoted one police­man, "they got what they de­served."

"When they (the two injured students) returned, they went to Carroll Hall and spoke to the assistant rectors. The assistant rectors then called Dean Roemer, who in turn called Chief of Security Glenn Terry. Terry went to headquarters and ar­ranged for our release," at 10:50 p.m.

"The officers made us sign a release form stating that we would not press charges for false arrest," one of the arrested stu­dents claimed. "I said that sign­ing that form would be an ad­mission of guilt. The officer said that if we didn't sign the form, we would have to remain in jail until Monday. I was the only one at the time in that cell, certainly not two days.

"I only let the students go because I didn't want to ruin their careers over an un­necessary conduct charge," said Sgt. Williams. "We want to show that we do have sympathy as far as students are concerned who are trying to obtain their education. We would also like to have the same respect returned."

One student responded to Williams' claim that the students were guilty of disorderly con­duct, pointing out that the policemen could not have actu­ally seen the fight begin because their view was obstructed by the number of recreational vehicles parked in the area. It was two or three minutes after the begin­ning of the fighting that the fights spread to the road, in view of the police." The student re­emphasized that "at no time did any of us throw any punches."

The students who were arrest­ed intend to press charges of false arrest and incarceration, accord­ing to one of the students. The police department was negli­gent," he said. "I would also like for anyone who witnessed the incident to contact The Observer."

Dear Editor,

You will not find here a defense of the "higher values" of all those titillating magazines, the names of which Mr. Sealy will not even deign to mention. I am pretty well reconciled to the idea that people will do whatever they damn well please—especially if they want to do a thing badly enough, you can be sure it will be properly rationalized into a moral framework. Or they will simply ignore the discrepancy between what they claim to believe and what they want to do; I don't hear anyone barricading their own hypocrisy.

Let's face it: of the "hard" and "soft" versions of vicarious sexual stimulation in magazines, we need hardly even address those lower-budget rags, in which the photography is handled with all the grace of an anatomical or plumbing manual. Take it the "pornography" shockingly accessible to Mr. Sealy is along the lines of Playboy, Penthouse, etc., which are nothing if not blatantly exploitative of women, but which try to convince us of their pseudo-aesthetic sensitivity with misty photographs and occasional "poetical" marginalia. These products are fully capable of manifesting their own banality. It is not that the female body isn't simply a great deal of fun to look at, especially when treated with some sensitivity—it's just that we get offended when the editors of Playboy seem to insist that there are really people out in the world living like this, and that we're missing out on it. This is a lot of malarky. But those photos are still there. We're going to want to look at them.

The problem here is not that we have any trouble recognizing how stupid these magazines can be; the problem is Mr. Sealy's fear that they seem to be invading his world. In appealing to Christianity and the university environment to ban pornography—and we can suspect that Mr. Sealy might include the "nasty" passages from James Joyce or Alfred Stieglitz's nude photographs—he exploits both Christianity and this university in order to protect himself from threats to his own vulnerable beliefs. In doing so he means that pornography destroys the connection we have with God by exalting the fleshly side of our nature. This is utter drivel. On the one hand, pornography does no such thing. It is hardly an "exalting" of our physical nature but is rather a falsification of it in the patronizing after the Alabama game, I fail to see where the students really did any wholesale destruction. All they were doing was celebrating a victory in the biggest college game of the year. What were they supposed to do after the game, go back inside and watch Love Boat re-runs? The most amazing thing about the "crime" is the speed with which the mayor's office reacted. The Observer's article, printed only two days later, already mentioned a possible meeting between Mayor Parent and Notre Dame to "remedy the situation." It's comforting to know that the mayor finally realizes the extent of the crime. One an...

The Irish boast a perfect 10-0 slate in the all-time series with the Crusaders. In their most recent meeting (at the start of the 1978-79 campaign), Notre Dame prevailed, 37-3.

Junior Rob Davis (Woodcliffe Lake, N.J.) will open the Irish assault at 118 pounds, with Fisher (Buchanan, Mich.) at 126 pounds and junior Curt Rood (Sturgis, Mich.) at 134 pounds.

Mills, a sophomore from Mount Pleasant, Mich., who won an unprecedented four prep state championships in Michigan, will anchor the lineup at 142 pounds, while Campana (Denver, Kenlowa) will battle at 150 pounds. Junior Brian Erard (Reston, Va.) will get the nod at 154 pounds, while sophomore Paul DeBaggis (Cleveland Heights, Ohio) will wrestle in his accustomed 167 pound slot.

Junior co-captain John Iglar (Cin­ necticut, Ohio) rounds out the upper weight lineup at 177 pounds. Physically, the Irish have been plagued by many recurring injuries (Campana being the most recent example), but Bruno believes his charges are mentally primed.

"Mentally, we're going great," says the mat mentor. "The team exudes a spirit and a togetherness, while constant growth and improvement is also evident."

The Indiana State Invitational, which features Indiana and Ball State along with the host Sycamores, is an open tournament to which the Irish will send both a first and second team.

"The Indiana State tournament will be valuable because it will give a lot of our younger wrestlers our first taste of collegiate competition," says Bruno. "We have such a young lineup that many of our wrestlers might not have the chance to get competitive experience otherwise."

First-year wrestling coach Bruno, Joseph Bruno, may be new to Notre Dame but he is certainly no stranger to wrestling. A veteran of 16 years of coaching (12 at the high school level), Bruno boasts an impressive 101-31-2 record as a head coach.

"The sky's the limit here at Notre Dame," says Bruno. "I see no reason why Notre Dame cannot develop into a national wrestling power; maybe even The national power."

Bruno, who joined the Irish staff in August, currently is completing a four­ year program toward a doctorate degree at Stanford. He is researching pertinent implications for interdisciplinary-humanistic studies and specific applications to stress control and the psychology of athletics.

While doing his doctoral work, Bruno revitalized the Cardinal Stanford program that had lost its luster status. "It left what could be termed a comfortable 1978-79 campaign), Notre Dame

Bruno explains.

"One of my friends back in California called Notre Dame 'a Sleeping Giant' and I hope I can awaken the 'Sleeping Giant' in the team and in every wrestler's coach."

His interest in weight training has led to the research and implementation of his ideas in many programs designed to fulfill both men's and women's sports-related needs. This interest also led to his current dual appointment as coordinating supervisor and coach of women's and nonwariness weight training at Notre Dame, a capacity that led Bruno to design and supervise the University's two new weight facilities.

Sporting a roster that boasts 16 national meet winners, including 11 who own all or part of a varsity record, Dennis Stark will take his Irish swimming into their 23rd season Friday night for the annual Notre Dame Invitational Relays. The six-team, all-relay meet is slated for 7 p.m. in the Rockne Memorial Pool. Among the five visiting schools will be four of last year's contestants—John Carroll, Toledo, Wisconsin-Stevens Point and Wisconsin-Milwaukee. Illinois' lenient tiebreaker is the newest entry. The meet took last year's title handily with 96 points to Stevens Point's 76.

John Carroll tied Toledo for third with 71 points and Milwaukee finished fifth with 67. The Irish have four days to rest before the regular season gets under way at Wednesday (Dec. 10) when they play host to Western Michigan at 4 p.m.

Irish boast many backs

By Kelly Sullivan
Women's Sports Editor

Outstanding running backs are synonymous with Notre Dame football. The Trojan coaching staff seemed to have no problem coming up with a Heisman candidate every year to power their fullback-oriented offense.

The Notre Dame football staff, however, had a problem in the backfield department. But they're not nearly as bothered by it as Irish opponents are. Notre Dame simply has more talented backs than they know what to do with. Head coach Dany Devine can only play two at a time. And that leaves him with impressive depth in a position where there is one senior among the top eight halfbacks.

Of course, everyone knows the exploits of starters Phil Carter and John Sweeney, both merely sophomores. And substitutes Jim Stengel and Paul Buchanan, who have been almost as much action this season as the starters, have turned in superb performances as well.

But how about their underclassmen?

There's junior Bernie Adell, a contender at the fullback slot, and senior Barry Morrison, who boasts impeccable credentials from Ipswich High School in Massachusetts. One of the most heavily recruited players in the New England area his senior year, Adell led his high school to a state crown while rewriting its record books.

Another heralded athlete, junior Ty Barby, has been a dependable runner for the Irish at either fullback or halfback. A prep All-American, he was the 1977 recipient of the Washington D.C. area's high school player of the year award. Barber, a regular kickoff returner for Notre Dame, started only one game and fashioned yet finished second on the team in rushing with 172 yards in 40 attempts.

The Class of '83 has yielded its share of talented ball carriers. Alabama native Rodney Morris, heavily recruited by Bear Bryant and by Nebraska's Tom Osborne, is another hard-driving Delaware recruit at the fullback slot, and has seen considerable action on this season's specialty squads. Morris earned all-state and all-American honors in high school also.

And there's another sophomore candidate for fullback, bruising runner and blocker, Larry Moriarty. This is Moriarty's first season of competition with the Irish, after playing his freshman year for Santa Barbara City College. There he was named to the all-conference squad and grabbed MVP honors after helping his eighth-ranked (emotionally) team to a 12-2 mark in Division III. His coaches at Santa Barbara called him "the strongest ball carrier we've ever had." A member of the Notre Dame staff, Moriarty has a reputation for annihilating opponents who stand in his way.

Other running backs on the roster include talented freshmen Greg Bell from Columbus, Ohio, and John Mooney, a Nebraska native who played for nearby Culver Military. Both are highly recruited here I knew they had some experience that other players might discourage the capable athletes. But they simply don't give up.

"That's the great thing about these guys," relates Gruden. "They always come back trying. They always realize next year's another year, and you never know what's going to happen." Adell holds to that philosophy too. "Sure, transferring crosses your mind when you're not playing as much as you'd like to. But at a school like this where there's so much talent, you just have to wait your turn — it's like a pecking order. I just have to practice hard and be ready all the time."

"I don't mind being on the prep team," explains Morris. "My thinking is that any time the defense goes out and does great, I helped prepare them, so that's my contribution to the team.

"The coaches are fair. When they have a chance, they'll play everyone but the main objective is to win and we all understand that."

Bell, too, has made the transition from stand-in to prep squad. "It's something I had foreseen."

"I knew it would be real competitive, but I just have to stick it out," he adds. "I contribute by not making any mistakes when I'm called upon, and by just doing my job."

Gruden tutors backfield

Coaching football does not carry any guarantees. One doesn’t know where his next assignment will be let alone when an opportunity will arise. Yet for running back coach Jim Gruden, the uncertainty is trivial if one is an assistant at the University of Notre Dame.

“I’ve had the great fortune of being associated with Notre Dame,” says Gruden. “It’s a tremendous institution and the people are fantastic. Coaching for Notre Dame is a thrill not only because the players are gifted athletically but they are more than just athletes. They’re great people.”

“As for what the future holds, I’m not certain. The only thing that matters to us coaches is that we do the best job possible,” adds Coach Gruden. “As far as technique is concerned, there’s really very little teaching involved when you have a back as great as Vagas. One thing I learned early was when you have an extremely talented athlete it’s best not to over coach. You’re better off just letting him run.”

“Of course, with someone who lacks the great tools, you better coach like hell,” he adds jokingly.

However, there’s more to being a successful running back than just running ability. “Our toughest job is to make our back field the best in the defenses,” says Gruden. “We have to make sure that our players know how our lineman will block and know where the running lanes are. After that, 75 percent of the battle is conquered and the rest depends on our back’s strength and quickness.”

Gruden claims that the full backs have the largest responsibility because they are unaccustomed to their role as blocking backs.

“The full backs have to learn how to be proficient blockers. In high school, they were used almost exclusively as runners, not blockers. We have to make a tremendous adjustment. They have to learn how to adjust to blocking guys who are on the run while still maintaining their balance.”

“The fullback’s responsibility is compounded because they have to be quick enough to lead the sweep and strong enough to tend to the on the field tackle plays too,” adds Gruden.

Whether coach Gruden will continue to draw X’s and O’s for the Irish backfield in the future is at present not determined. “I was introduced to Coach (Gerry) Faust last week but he gave no hints as to who he would retain from the current coaching staff. The players haven’t been exposed to the coaches their opinion but I found him to be a very congenial person.”

Uncertainty will always be associated with coaching football. Yet, Jim Gruden’s association with Notre Dame makes that uncertainty seem worthwhile.

Irish down Montana State

there was no unbeaten record on the line in 1974, 1976, and

The highest-stakes intersectional rivalry between the two universities has been contested annually since 1926, with the exception of 1945, 1944 and 1945. Going into the 52nd game in the series, the Irish hold a 27-20-4 edge (although the Trojans have prevailed in eight of the last 10 meetings).

In fact, the Irish have a six-game losing string in the Los Irish backed behind Joe Montana for 19 fourth quarter points and appeared to tack USC quarterback Paul McDonald with more than recollection of how Montana State won all seven games it played in Pac-10 history. But it would have been a game-ending fumble which the Irish recovered. However, boasted a second second goal to manage a 27-23

RATe CHART. The Irish defense is continuing its dominance of NCAA defensive categories. A comparison of the Trojans and Irish:

Notre Dame USC

Rushing Defense 48-10, 0-82 27-27
Passing Defense 11th - 111.3 yds. 72nd
Total Defense 4th - 213.5 yds. 8th - 243.7
Scoring Defense 4th -13.1 15.3

The defense's string of quarters without surrendering a touchdown was snapped in the fourth quarter of the Air Force game. They set an all-time team record of 25 straight quarters without allowing a touchdown. California was the last 27 full quarters without allowing a six-pointer on the ground. Irish foes have managed only 10 points in the last six games.

If the defense keeps its stingy pace, it could finish with the best average of any Irish squad in recent years. The total defense ranking (213) would be the best since the Irish 252 yards per game. The rushing defense mean (102) would be the best in five years. The Irish pressure defense points shy of Dave Reese's single season record for a placekicker, set in 1977.

HARRYING THROUGH THE RECORDS - Irish placekicker Harry Oliver is still rated third nationally with 1.7 field gains per game. His 70 point total for the season is only five points shy of Dave Reese's single season record for a placekicker, set in 1977.

Oliver has converted 17 of 22 field goal attempts this year.
A breakdown of those field goals by distance:

0-19 yards - 2 of 3
20-29 yards - 3 of 3
30-39 yards - 6 of 6
40-49 yards - 7 of 10

in the game. The basics are hurting us.

And the hole grows deeper. Only two league games remain before Christmas break. Then,

As February nears, come the crucial drives towards the playoffs.

If things don't change soon, Notre Dame's hopes for home ice will be all but gone and the race will be to make the playoffs — which the Irish have never experienced.

South Bend is not a hockey hotbed. Opposing players agree the fans here are bad. Notre Dame players feel it, too. "Playing on the road and at home, in terms of crowd motivation, is like night and day," was one comment.

But it's no excuse. Not for 10 losses in a row here. Noiseless fans don't make home ice work for you.
