President Reagan's plan to hand out a tax cut by July 1 ran head-on into congressional realities yesterday, and some of his supporters predicted lawmakers may be working on the proposal for the rest of the year.

Many members of Congress — especially Democrats — say they aren't going to sign on but they consider the Reagan proposal a big risk for the economy and a big windfall for the rich.

Reagan's tax bill, which he outlined in a speech yesterday as part of a plan to revitalize the economy, is targeted on middle- and upper-income Americans in the hope they will invest the money in ways that will create jobs and boost inflation.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., was set on it. There is no assurance those earning $200,000 a year would

A 23-year-old busboy was formally charged with first-degree arson in connection with a fire last week at the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel. The complaint alleged that Philip Bruce Cline set the fire "willfully, unlawfully, maliciously and feloniously." The district attorney's office, who filed the charges, thus rejected Cline's alleged confession in which he claimed he touched off the fire accidentally while engaged in a homosexual act near an eighth-floor elevator. The nine-count complaint specifically named the eight persons who participated in the fire — seven deys of apostasy and one from injuries suffered when he leaped to his death from a hotel window. In another development, Justice court clerk Eileen Carson said Cline's attorney had notified the court he would move to exclude news media and cameras from the courtroom during Cline's arraignment later in the day before Judge Dan Austin. She said the judge would rule on that motion before Cline is arraigned on the charges. The Nevada Gaming Commission, after praising Frank Sinatra for his charitable works and chastising the news media for reporting the entertainer's alleged ties to organized crime, yesterday held a complaint yesterday against former state Sen. Martin K. Edwards of New Castle - the first step in the disciplinary process against him. He awaits trial on federal income tax evasion charges. He was convicted of tax evasion in 1976 and served a year in jail. He was released under an arrangement by which he agreed to pay the tax and interest and to work at least 100 hours of community service. The Independent Stamp Commission yesterday approved a proposal to increase the rate of various postage stamps by 5 cents, and another two cents in the price of a dime postcard. The requests could take effect as early as next month. Postal authorities plan to implement the rate increase as soon as possible. The rate increase will be effective on all U.S. mail, including first-class mail, all domestic mail, and all foreign mail.

The Postal Rate Commission approved yesterday a 3-cent increase in the price of a first-class stamp. The rate increase was the result of a series of hearings and discussions on the matter, and the final decision was made after consideration of the arguments presented by both sides. The rate increase will be effective on Oct. 1.

Study reviews sprinkler system

By Tim Vercellotti
Senior Staff Reporter

A study is currently underway to explore the possibility of installing a sprinkler system in the Administration building, according to Physical Plant Director Donald Dedrick.

The investigation, which Dedrick termed as "quite far along," will determine, among other things, the architectural effect that a sprinkler system might have on the 120-year-old structure, and the cost of installing such a system. Dedrick expects to have some answers within a month.

Dedrick explained that this study is the "logical progression" of a plan begun two years ago, aimed toward making various campus buildings less prone to fire.

According to Dedrick, there are heat detectors, installed against the fire devices capable of sensing a fire. "We depend on people in a building to discover problems, and then call the fire station, or pull the fire alarm," Bland explained. He added that there are 30 new fire extinguishers in the building, as well as a number of fire hoses.

"We depend on people in a building to discover problems..."

It is difficult to estimate the speed with which a fire would spread in the Administration building, according to Bland. "The spread of fire is dependent on when and where it breaks out, and a lot of other things," Bland said.

Dedrick explained that this study is currently underway to determine, among other things, the architectural effect that a sprinkler system might have on the 120-year-old structure, and the cost of installing such a system. Dedrick expects to have some answers within a month. According to Dedrick, ensuring that similar catastrophes don't occur in the future involves time. "We do so much each year. We have to plan. You just can't sit idly by, run pipes down the hall of the building," he explained.

In the meantime, he assured, there is little need to worry. "We have an excellent fire department here on campus," Dedrick said.

Advancement Does Not Require An Advanced Degree

You can spend another two to three years in graduate school or you can turn four years of liberal arts education into a practical, challenging and rewarding career in just three months—say an Employee Benefit Specialist.

Benefits totaling up to 30% to 35 percent of wages and salaries. If you meet pension legislation has created even more de mand for trained specialists. As an Employee Benefit Specialist you'll be called upon to exercise your own judgement, initiative and intelligence in a challenging, professional environment with progressive responsibility.

The Institute for Employee Benefits Training is the first and most prestigious school in the United States, training Employee Benefits and Pension Specialists. This is a dynamic, growing career field in which advancement does not require a advanced degree. Our graduates are in demand by large firms, pension consulting firms, insurance companies, banks, and personnel and benefits departments of corporations. The Institute's Placement Service will place you, too. If not, you will be eligible for a substantial tuition refund.

Furthermore, you will earn graduate credit towards a Master of Arts in Legal Studies through Antioch School of Law for all coursework completed at the Institute. If you're a senior of high academic standing and looking for a meaningful career, contact your Placement Office for our catalog and arrange to have an interview with our representative.

KXAS reports second attempt

PORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Secret locator beacons encoded in videotapes and Christmas presents laced with electronic gadgets were part of an abandoned effort to stage a second rescue mission in Iran, a Fort Worth television station reported yesterday.

KXAS-TV also reported that a helicopter crash killed one man during a practice exercise for the aborted second rescue effort.

Eight Americans died and five others were injured April 25, 1980, when the first aborted rescue effort ended in an inferno near Monticello, Utah, in which 22-year-old Jay Schatte of Fort Worth died, occurred during a training exercise for a second Iran rescue mission.

At the time, Capt. Phil Hale, an Army spokesman, disliked the crash was in any way connected with a second rescue effort, telling Schatte's parents and reporters that the accident was part of a routine training exercise.

A sum of know? I had an idea it (planning for a rescue attempt) was going on when he was out here (visiting in Fort Worth)," Schatte's father, John, told The Associated Press.

Schaue said he suspected his son died training for a second mission because he had trained for the first, failed mission.

A month after the crash, the idea for a second rescue mission, a plan so secret that former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie did not know of it, was scrubbed, the station said.

The idea was abandoned, the station said because — despite elaborate schemes involving sophisticated transmitters — planners could still not pinpoint the exact location of the hostages.

U.S. officials were not available yesterday night for comment on the report. But several top Pentagon sources told the AP they recalled no exercises being held in preparation for a second raid.

KXAS reported that Dallas Cowboy coach Tom Landry became an unwilling cover for the government to get secretly coded video tapes into Iran.

Landry did not speak to reporters and did not made tapes to Dallas stations.

But the station said the tapes were rigged with electronic signals to turn on or off television sets in secret locator beacons.

Pope reiterates social concern

CEBU CITY, Philippines (AP) — Pope John Paul II, hailed by more than 1 million Filipinos in this cradle of East Asian Christianity yesterday, condemned casual sex, upheld priestly celibacy and strongly reaffirmed a Roman Catholic Church ban on artificial birth control, divorce, abortion and polygamy.

Reflecting his pastoral concern, the pontiff at the same time stressed that the church "as a good mother" will aid its children "in difficult times."

It was the pope's most comprehensive statement on family issues since the Roman Catholic bishops discussed the subject in a month-long Vatican synod last autumn.

The pope was greeted by huge crowds in this city where he celebrated a 2 1/2-hour Mass at the spot where the Portuguese explorer Ferdinand Magellan raised the cross of Christianity for the first time in the Far East in 1521. Meanwhile, Vatican Secretary of State Agostino Casaroli said yesterday that the pope "hopes and wishes" he could visit China.

Relations between the Vatican and Peking were severed in 1949 when the communists took over the mainland, but Vatican sources have said there had been encouraging signs in the last two years that a rapprochement can be worked out. In Peking, Catholic Bishop Michael Fu reacted without enthusiasm to the pope's overture. Speaking in English, the pope declared that the church will "never dilute or change" its teaching on marriage and family which, he said, is firmly rooted in the Bible.

Hofman discusses problems

by MEGAN BOYLE
News Staff

Stressing the need for social facilities on campus, freshman Dean Emil T. Hofman addressed a group of 50 students last Wednesday on the subject. "The Big Band Era or What It Was Like Being Your Age When I Was Your Age."

"Socially, what we have at Notre Dame today is not much different than when the University was an all-male institution," the dean commented. He contended that partisanship and the leg policy did not cause the campus' social deficiencies.

"Drinking beer by the leg doesn't provide the answer to what you, the students, really want and need," he said.

Although he sympathized with the administration, he did say he saw the construction of a social center on campus as a partial solution to the problem of social life.

"What we need is a place with a club atmosphere," he explained.

Hofman suggested "a decent theater" would be a good place to start when planning a social center, since it might be franchised at little cost to the University.

He emphasized the importance of expert consultation in the planning of a new facility, because, he said, he believes social recreation is an essential to the Notre Dame community. "We, the faculty and administration, are educators, theologians, chemists. We need a consultant in this field to advise us," Hofman said.

The dean concluded his talk by soliciting student response to his suggestions.

Judges, psychologists responsible?

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The judges and psychiatrists who allowed Steven J. Judy back on the streets after numerous acts of violence must accept some blame for four murders he committed and the death penalty he now faces, a therapist who counseled Judy for three years said yesterday.

"It doesn't make you feel as though you're a great success when someone you worked closely with and cared about, becomes something you had hoped he would not become," said Carol L. Hill, department head for Baha School at Central State Hospital.

"I still feel an emotional attachment to him. I spent a lot of time working with him. I felt there must have been something else I could have done, but I don't know what," he said.

Judy, 24, convicted of the 1979 murders of the 19-year-old Jamie Christine and her three infant children, is scheduled to die in the electric chair March 9, in the first execution in Indiana since 1961.

Nouwen to speak

Henri Nouwen, a native of Holland, and a former visiting professor at Notre Dame, will offer an illustrated presentation on "Vincent the Comforter: The Ministry of Vincent van Gogh" tonight at 8 p.m. in Washington Hall.

The program is sponsored by the Student Union and the Center for Experiential Learning as a part of the 20th anniversary celebration of CIA.

Ordained to the priesthood in 1957, Nouwen studied psychology and theology at the University of Nijmegen and was a fellow in the program for psychiatry and religion at the Nijmegen Foundation.

Nouwen is an associate professor in pastoral theology at Yale Divinity School, and lectures extensively both here, and abroad. He has written a book, "A Time to Kill: Open Hunch, Our G2 solitude and Reaching Out."
Parnell announces ‘work...’

By NORMAN PLATE
News Staff

Professor Charles Parnell, Direc­tor of the Foreign Study Programs at Notre Dame, recently an­nounced a meeting for any stu­dents interested in work programs in Britain or Ireland.

Chris Lawrence and Carole Dodd of the “Work in Britain” program, and Seona Mac Reamonn of the “Encounter Ireland” and “Work in Ireland” programs will be available for questions at the International Stu­dents Lounge in the basement of LaFortune from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Monday. There will be formal presentations by both groups in the Little Theater in LaFortune at 4 p.m.

The “Work in Britain” program is available through the Council of International Educational Ex­change (CIEE). In cooperation with the British Universities North American Club (BUNAC) in Lon­don, those who qualify for this program are given a “Blue Card” which permits them to obtain “work experience of any kind, anywhere, for any period up to six months, starting at any time of the year.”

Both Ireland programs are the result of cooperation with the Uni­on of Students in Ireland (USI). The Work in Ireland Program is run by the CIEE, which issues work permits for qualified students. The work permit is valid for any four consecutive months, but most partic­i pants visit Ireland during June, July, and August. Both the Work in Ireland Program and the Work in Britain Program cost $50, which is used to cover the cost of processing the work permit.

The Encounter Ireland Program is “a one month homestay edu­cational and travel exper­ience.” The program costs $795 including round trip transportation between New York and Dublin. The par­ticipants stay with host families and are exposed to many cultural events, including a series of lectures at Trinity College.

“I recommend these programs all of the time,” said Professor Par­nell, “I think it is a good way for a student to see the country and ex­perience a different lifestyle.”

“The church condemns any at­tempt through the practice of polygamy to destroy the unity of marriage, and any attempt through divorce to destroy the marriage bond,” he said.

“I owe it to my apostolic office... to reiterated vigorously her con­demnation of artificial contra­ception and abortion,” the pope said.

The Philippines, Asia’s only predominantly Catholic nation, does not recognize divorce and bans abortion.

In an address earlier in the day, John Paul upheld mandatory celibacy for priests.

A river of humanity flowed across this central Philippine city of 500,000, singing and dancing and desperately trying to catch a glimpse of the pope, who came here on the third day of his six-day tour of the Philippines.

The wife of Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos, Imelda, flew in on an announced visit and at­tended a solemn Mass the pope celebrated in a vast abandoned air­port packed with a million faithful.

Great Taste...Less Filling
Pulling America back together again

Many people believe that Time Inc. owns and operates a single magazine, Time. Another, older group, perceives this corporation as keeper of two publications — Time and the revived Life. There is another, better-read group, which is aware that this company owns these two magazines, plus Sports Illustrated and either People or Fortune. And there is yet another, much smaller group, which knows that Time Inc. is the corporate conglomerate which owns seven publications (the five already mentioned, as well as Money and the new science magazine Discover), a book publishing company, and several other endeavors. Finally, there is the corporation itself whose self-perception includes all of this, as well as the notion that Time Inc. is author of the national attitude and director of the national interest.

And, in many ways, with respect to these last two roles, the conglomerate is correct. When Henry Luce founded his magazine empire way back in the 1920s, he began with the chronicler of Big Business, Fortune. In those days, when newsprint was still considered a luxury item and the English language was the language of the nation, Fortune was the only magazine to focus primarily on business. While other magazines tended to cater to a broad audience, Fortune was the first to address the new middle class with an eye towards the future and the new economy. Its articles were written in a thoughtful, intellectual style that was accessible to a general audience, and it quickly became a must-read for business leaders and entrepreneurs.

As the nation grew and changed, so did Fortune. It expanded its coverage to include politics, culture, and technology, and it became a major player in the national conversation. In the 1960s and 1970s, Fortune was at the center of a number of important debates, from the civil rights movement to the Vietnam War. Its articles were widely read and influential, and it played a key role in shaping public opinion on issues of national importance.

In the 1980s and 1990s, Fortune continued to be a leading voice in American journalism. It covered major events like the fall of the Berlin Wall, the dot-com bubble, and the 2008 financial crisis with depth and clarity. Its articles were known for theirfact-based reporting and thoughtful analysis, and it became a trusted source for readers who wanted to understand the world around them.

But despite its success, Fortune was not immune to the pressures of the media landscape. As other magazines struggled to adapt to the digital age, Fortune found itself in a bind. Its print edition was losing readers to online competitors, and its advertising revenue was flat or declining. In 2019, Time Inc. announced that it was closing Fortune, along with several other magazines, and transitioning its content online.

Today, the work of Fortune is carried on by its successor, The Economist. The Economist is a British magazine that was founded in 1843 and is known for its in-depth analysis and thoughtful commentary on global events. It is read by policymakers and business leaders around the world, and its articles cover a wide range of topics, from politics and economics to culture and technology.

In conclusion, while Fortune may be gone, its legacy lives on. Its work as a chronicler of Big Business, as a voice for the middle class, and as a guiding light for readers who want to understand the world around them, will continue to be felt for years to come.
Student applauds escorts

Dear Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Student Escort Service. As a resident of the O’Hara Great Townhouses, it is a great relief to know that I don’t have to be afraid to stay late at the library. Prior to the insta­lling of the Service, I called Security on two separate nights for an escort home. Once they never showed up and the other time I was told to ask for more rides because of the cold, not the danger. The spirit of concern exhibited by the male students and their willingness to provide positive steps to help alleviate the dangerous situation is a refreshing change. The or­ganizers and volunteers of this service deserve our appreciation and encourage­ment for their contributions to the safety of the Notre Dame Community.

“Save our space”

Dear Editor,

I have never held in much esteem the notion that progress as it is popularly understood is worthwhile merely because it is possible, or because there is an “apparent” need for it (unverified need), for I am speaking of the coming reshaping of Lafortune Student Center. I am, like most, the victim of rumours as to what renovations are being planned for the space. That my primary purpose in writing this is to ask that the plans be made available.

When I was in high school here in South Bend, one of my pastimes was going to the campus with friends to play pool, pinball, and similar jiggery-pokery. I see that those actions were of no benefit to the campus and that my only reason for doing them was because they were there. I fear now that Lafortune will be overrun with peculiar varmints, high school and college students alike, so as to make it an un­bearable place, and to drive the respect­able discourse and atmosphere away. If, as I have heard, the planners intend installing pool tables, pinball, and whatnot, it will do no good, but will certainly bring about some undesirable changes. Again, I do not at present know the surrounding circumstances. But I do know that there is nothing wrong with Lafortune the way it is. Lafortune is a good atmosphere, good hours, excellent maintenance, but above all, everyone enjoys it.

It seems that student govern­ment is responding to the need for “social space,” and that is admirable. But student government must be discreet in its distinction between “social life” and “social space.” Social life is ade­quate without social space, but not vice versa. The Dorms all have their own lobbies, some of them very nice, with many ad­vantages over Lafortune, as well as their own amuse­ments. There is no reason to instigate wicked­ness and encourage the baser side of social life in Lafortune any more than there is a reason to do so in the dorms.

I might greedily mention that Lafortune is, literally, the only place off-campus students have to go. Great things are not decided there, but it is for off­campus students the only on­campus speakeasy. It is their base. If this base degenerated, the already mounting off-campus dis­array will evolve into an outcry so hot and fiery that student govern­ment will have to wear ashenRamesses.

Buildings go up these days with no discerning characteristics among them, save for bizarre names. Lafortune is one of the few grand old buildings left on campus. Of course, it is the old problerm of preservation over “progress,” money talks, swaying, pandemonium values, and now it’s fashionabile, now it’s not, etc. Big deal. We don’t need gen­eral appraisal anymore. More than South Bend needs more haircuts and hairbeads. We do need to remember that one cannot float down around in social “space” without social life, and when that “space” is degenerated, there’s not much of a place left. But, do at least let students know what progress is planned for their home.

Bob Riley

Wake up America!!

Dear Editor,

Like most reporters dealing with a specific subject that he or she feels the self-righteous need to comment on you take an in­dividual’s comment, fabricate a mendacious extreme, and then de­velop a dramatic piece of sensational journalism. I agree with you that a number of indi­viduals were probably black­balled unjustly due to the investigations of the House Un-American Activities Commiss­ion. However, the HUAC reflected the attitude of most people in the United States during that turbulent period.

You stated that “‘conspirators can never have the power or the resources to adequately infiltrate a political system as complex as ours.’ Had you studied the his­tory of our country you would clearly see how wrong or naive you are. It was the HUAC, sup­ported by the testimony of Whit­aker Chambers, that exposed (to this day) the greatest infiltration of Communists in our govern­ment’s history. People whose aim it was to destroy our government from within by such methods as delivering classified materials and other documents to the Soviet Union, facilitating the hiring of ot­her communists in order to disrupt our government (especially during times of war). Alger His was convicted by the HUAC of active espionage. He was not some unimportant government employee, but assist­ant to the secretary of state. Not only was he unconditionally guilty of passing top-secret docu­ments to the Soviet Union, but he also played a very important part in the writing of the Treaty that was presented to Stalin in 1945 at the Yalta Conference. One need only look at the deplorable conse­quences of that Treaty to post­ulate what government he was working for.

It is reporting like yours that makes Americans afraid and hatefully standing up and fight­ing for what they believe. Liberty makes authority necessary, and author­ity makes Liberty possible and effective. Just because we hold personal freedom sacrosanct does not mean we as a nation have to accept terrorist groups, whose purpose and ideologies are aimed at undermining the foundations and values of the government that makes one’s freedom possible.

Back in the late ’40s and early ’50s people were as amazed that communists had infiltrated our government as you or I would be amazed to find out that the Soviet Union was sponsoring Sister Teresa.

Communism is a threat to you, to me, to every individual who loves their freedom, country, religion, family, yes even their souls. McCarthy took an idea into an irrational extreme. However, that does not mean a committee such as the HUAC would become powerful enough to dictate policy. The “danger of freedom” you so prophetically warn us about will not come from any ac­tion taken by one agency of our government, but by the inaction of the American people. The potential for terrorism in this country is a grave threat to the stability of our country because our desire to protect freedom has broken into an obsessed tolerance for anything. Americans are constantly told by the press that if today we do not accept subversive groups tomorrow America will be a totalitarian government.

The great danger in America refuses to stand for what it believes — liberty, politically, socially, religiously — that will lose the freedom is so deeply cherished and that has been the foundation of the greatest and most revered nation in the history of the world, a nation which every other country in the world is wonder, in awe, and in Hope.

Which Pizza?

Pizza is a staple of collegiate diets everywhere. During four years of college, an average student consumes at least twice his or her own weight in pizza. A large number of establishments vie for the student dollar. The choices in pizza range from one creating pizzas six inches in height, to a few pies just over one quarter of an inch. In between, styles vary from the familiar, flat round pizza, to such specialties as "deep dish." "Chicago-style," "Italian-style," and even one known as "hand-tossed." In addition, filling abound ranging from the popular pepperoni, to the eschewed anchovy, and even include fats like pineapple.

Each establishment has its own idea of the Perfect Pizza. Personal preferences vary as well, some like 'em laden with a myriad of items, while others enjoy a thin pizza hugging the plate. This comparison is in no way complete, but instead covers the most popular of the local eateries. The reviews are based solely on the taste of the pizza. Whether a pizza was thick or thin did not matter. How well the product achieved its goal was the only criterion. Special attention was paid to the the quality of the cheese, the taste of the sauce, and the texture of the crust. A pizza was deemed at the sauce was greasy in taste, the cheese was unassuming, thick crust. The sauce is reminiscent of tomatoes. The cheese on top is lacking in taste, but does not have rich mozzarella flavor. A well-stocked salad bar with a variety of vegetables is available, one of the best locally. A couple of sandwiches grace the menu, but the reason to go to "Godfather's" is a pizza. A Jukebox containing all that is and was "top 40" and several video games are also present. "Godfather's" pizza is thick and filling. The entire concoction, however, is in general bland. Fortunately, marinated cheese and hot peppers are available to spice things up. For some, the restaurant's biggest shortcoming may be unavailability of beer or wine. This is because a law forbids it to the proximity of a local church.

Pinnchio's

This restaurant is fairly close to campus, but not often thought of as a place to go. It should be. Lovers of thin crust pizza will be delighted. The pizzas come with an ultra-thin, crisp crust with a floopy flavor. The sauce tastes rich in tomatoes, but is applied very thin. By far the best ingredient is the cheese. Unlike some of the foregoing, genuine connoisseurs used elsewhere, this mixture is rich in flavor of mozzarella. A PJinchio's you can find the best thin pizza available and you can have it delivered to your door. The setting is nice, and much, much beer can be consumed.

Price per person: $4

Village Inn

Located up the strip, the best thing that can be said for the Village Inn is that it has a full bar. The pizza is not good. The crust is cracker-like and bland. There was too much tomato sauce, and the little cheese present is of the tasteless variety. The toppings are so weak with the mushrooms tainting fresh from the can.

The interior is beating, displaying signs of war and wear. The salad bar is large and soup is available, too. A jukebox awaits those in need of tunes. A better bet would be one of the sandwiches of which there are many to choose from. Prices have been lowered recently making it acceptable to the budget conscious.

Price per person: $3

Shakey's

Everybody knows about Shakey's all you can eat deal, but since they are a pizza place, what is their pizza like? The crust is rather tough. The tomato sauce is the culprit here, it comes out of every crumb. The tasteless cheese is swash in a sea of this overly sweet/tomatoey mixture. Worse yet, the few bits of topping were three Frenchies amongst this mine. Frankly, the pie is not too good.

What Shakey's has going for it is if it's all you can eat deal. It's a very good buy for the money. Crunchy but tender garlic bread, spaghetti made with that same tomato sauce, better than the "real" "real" pizza that are pretty good. All this and the pizza make for a filling repast. It's not too great, but it does its job. Even better is a high quality large screen T.V. that provides a nice diversion if you are saddled with some doit as a companion. An adequate salad bar is available, but this is evidence with numerous video games. The decor is uninspired, and patrons are forced to sit upon plastic barchets which discourge littering. Signs proclaiming Shakey's greatness litter the walls.

For those in need of a substantial fill-up, Shakey's should suffice, but do not go just for the pizza.

Price per person: $3.50

Barnaby's

"Barnaby's" is a broadly-based establishment located between pizza and sandwiches. The pizza is of the thin variety, the crust thin and crisp. The sauce is present in small quantities, and very brave in taste - a plus. The cheese is the sought after, natural tasting dairy delight. It's flavor makes each piece a shell to pine over, and leaves a nice moleque after-taste. All the toppings are good, one combination in particular that deserves note is Canadian bacon and cheese. Each bite first crunches and then disolves into oozing cheese and meat, a good experience.

The interior is a dark and handsome with Pacherack decor, with heavy beamed, hard floors, and heavy furniture. The lack of a jukebox is compensated by piped in music that reminds one of a dentist office. Bored children with quarters will find few diversions, since there are no video games in sight. All sorts of beers and wines may be purchased for consumption.

The Stag at Eve

He sat on a bar stool, drinking too much and making philosophies in his head. "In the nude, I think," he thought. "The universe is haunted, and my head is haunted, but the carnets are haunted by his ghost. That's the reason people drink.

He thought of the cello sadness of a Mother symphony, so grand and melancholy, or the plangent French of a Pied song. "They leave you all stretched out," he thought, "like thieves crucified against an evening sky."

Letters To A Lonely God

He enjoyed making up images when he was drinking, because he liked to imagine that he had poetic gifts. He made one more up at himself at times when other fel­lows would have been drunk.

He remembered the day and the hour when he became aware of life as a search. It was always a finding, is a finding, is a Search. Life, because it is always a searching and never a name, a face, a name. It live in the shadows of deep desires that have no object to name, but which I must look for anyway, irrespectively, whether I want to, or not.

He felt so far from himself, that maudlin with drink, he began to cry.

"I am such a romantic ass," he sobbed. "I feel I should have died with all the others, I have been here and then, I am a finding, is a finding.

It was plainly and simply a finding. That's the reason people drink. Because he liked to imagine that he had poetic gifts.

"I'm going to my best friend's stag at eve had drunk his mouth dry, given her your boarding pass, find a seat in the back of the plane, turn around and never say another word. We didn't have to wait long.

"The writing was on the wall. The stag at eve was passing overhead."

The tragedy is not that things are broken, it's that they are not remended anymore...

A Hellish Experience

Walt Disney's latest effort to scare the teenage and adult market, The Devil and Max Devlin, indicates that Disney is still locked in the Polynesian mode. Humans be­tween the ages of 12 and 20 comprise the majority of the movie-going public. Disney's traditional well-laundered, squeaky-clean fare, literally screeched off the names and other glimpses of flesh, and litanies of naughty words. Unfortunately, Disney's strategy to lure the potentially female audience into seeing the film is based on a false premise. It's just as much, for films devoid of sexy aspects translates into films devoid of interest.

The Devil and Max Devlin opens with promise. It offers an insightful view of Southern California's insidious decadence. Numerous films have stepped on society's toes, but this film's obvious crusade is fresh — giving the viewer a sense of hope. This hope proves to be unattainable, however, when the film's characters decide to live life in a universe haunted, and my mind gets shoved against a wall.

"God damn stupid college kids," said. "Foul rotten kids. All they ever have on their minds is baldheaded and gruesome."

"We're doing it for the love of the kids, he himself had finished the search that begins with the center of consciousness and ends face-forward against an unspeakable wall.

Elliott Gould stars as Max Devlin, a despicable manipulator of an apart­ment complex gone to seed. The Devil and Max Devlin is an easy pull in a run of excellent films, but also a rare amusing moments. Gould refuses to help any old lady across the street and subsequently trips on her case. As per L.A., Gould's mistake is to fall under the weights of a bus loaded with beings belonging to a cult (Hare Krishnas, best known for their sandwich board airport book vending). They begin7ing at Gould's idle life. The scene works because the absurdities of life come together.

But Gould ends up in a fine representation of hell. Extras abound in a scene whereby they meet, and endless misery. It exemplifies what Holy Men have been warning about for years. Gould literally scared off the masses who preferred glimpses of flesh, and these folks in has merely been the placement of PG ratings on standard film's plot as the chief devil who negotiates a deal with Gould, whereby he, the devil, will be given the entire "Hollywood" section of the city.

"Foul rotten kids," he said. "You know it, neither of us was speaking and neither was too proud to back off and apologize. Then, before the stewards served dinner.

"All the good experiences," he thought, "are the only promises of something better in the future. The future has no object to name, but which I must look for anyway, irrespectively, whether I want to, or not.

"You can tell it's getting closer to game time — Digger's got his game face on." — an unidentified observer

Now that's an understatement. Digger the Teacher has suddenly become Digger the Creature (like from "Capades."

However, other than the poor lighting, no one would notice that the Black Lagoon.) Everyone and everything that gets in his way gets a piece of his mind.

The team has spent the week at Moreau — evicted from the ACC arena by the annual invasion of the Ice Capades. However, other than the poor lighting, no one seems to mind the extra walk. Distractions here are few and the only noise beside the bouncing balls and squeaking sneakers is Digger:

"C'mon, let's do it and let's do it right!!"

He implores.

Coach Fallon looks for best tennis team ever

BY MICHAEL ORTMAN
Sports Writer

Let's see that one more time! That's what Irish tennis coach Tom Fallon has to be saying to himself about his 1981 team. For the third straight year, Fallon has almost his entire squad returning from the previous season, and with a little good fortune, his 25th Notre Dame team could be the winningest ever.

With seven of eight starters back and a rigorous 35-match schedule ahead, the quest for a third consecutive 20-win season should be somewhat easier than it was a year ago when the Irish finished with an impressive 20-3 record, the best since 1967, and their fourth Eastern Collegiate Tennis Championshhip.

The only man Fallon lost to graduation was captain Carlos Falvey, who played second singles and finished with an individual slate identical to the team's, 20-3. Harris was also paired with the 1981 captain Herb Hopwood (Arlington, Va.) at first doubles, a duo that made a serious bid for a berth in the NCAA tournament with a 20-3 mark.

On top of the Irish singles lineup for the second straight year will be sophomore Mark McMahon (San Diego, Calif.). As a freshman, McMahon played all but two matches at number-one singles, compiling a 16-7 overall record.

Right behind McMahon will be Hopwood, a seasoned Irish veteran who owns a 46-29 career singles mark. Hopwood compiled a 15-8 slate at third singles last spring. "Here's an incredibly mature player," says Fallon. "He has a real desire to win and to fill the captain mold, and he really has no weaknesses on the court."

Junior Jim Falvey (Ocala, Fla.) should fill the number-three singles spot. In two years on the team, Falvey has played only three singles matches, winning two of them. Last season, however, Falvey teamed with freshman Tim Noonan (St. Louis, Mo.) at third doubles, forming one of the most consistent and effective doubles teams. "Jim's quickness is his biggest asset," says his coach. "He makes routine, what others have trouble getting to."

The number four and five spots are very close, however. Senior Mark Hoyer (Port Clinton, Ohio) will fill one position and junior Tom Hartnell (Rochester, N.Y.) will fill the other. Hoyer has run the gamut during his Notre Dame career, playing number six as a freshman, first as a sophomore, and last spring, posted a 17-5 record at fourth singles. "Mark's a fiery competitor," says Fallon, "and he's got perhaps the best serve on the team. When Mark sets his mind to it, he can beat almost anybody."

Hartnell possesses tremendous reach at the net, using his 6-3 frame to his advantage. Hartnell is the only player on the roster to play singles in every match over the last two seasons, posting a 37-14 record at number five. "Hartnell is basically a serve and volley man," explains Fallon, "but his long reach is such an asset, especially in doubles."

The schedule this spring is the busiest ever and one of the toughest in recent memory. Three top-20 contenders — Michigan, South Carolina and Southern California — grace the agenda.

Icers to host Colorado College

Showdown! The Athletic and Convocation Center becomes the scene of a faceoff between WCHA teams tonight. Notre Dame hosts Colorado College for its first WCHA sweep of the year, the Tigers by only three games with two remaining in the regular season. Notre Dame is looking to at least bunch on the number-eight spot — the last qualifying position for the playoffs — after this weekend. The fourth point on the line here this week could determine the playoff hopes for either team.

Face-off both nights at the ACC is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. EST and plenty of tickets remain available. ND-SMC students may purchase reduced tickets for $2.50 at the door.

Notre Dame set the stage for this week's showdown by sweeping Michigan State last week, 2-1 each night. MSU's first sweep of a league opponent this year. The Irish gained two points on Colorado College, which split with Wisconsin (losing 4-3 in overtime) and the Tigers clinched one fourth place on Minnesota-Duluth, which won 5-2 over Vermont after the Irish tied for eighth place Duluth by only one point and both Notre Dame and Colorado College will be keeping a watchful eye on this week's series between first-place Minnesota and Minnesota-Duluth. It takes place in Minneapolis this weekend.

87-65 victory
Iowa beats Indiana

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Indiana Guard Isaiah Thomas was ejected from Thursday night's Big Ten men's basketball game by Iowa with Iowa hitting the Hawkeyes' Senior Night faceoff in the face in the final minute of the contest. Thomas, a 6-1 sophomore, apologize to the floor to the floor after the game, and Krafcisin shouted, "He's got no big deal."

Current incident occurred as Iowa was wrapping up a 78-65 victory to leave the Hawkeyes in sole possession of first place and put Indiana into the tie for second with Illinois. Wednesday, Iowa (17-10, 7-6 Big Ten) Thomas was trying to get open between the free throw line and basket.

Hockey tickets discounted

The Notre Dame Athletic Department has announced that the team may purchase tickets for this weekend's home hockey series with Colorado College at a reduced price. All Weekend Pack rush 24 tickets can be purchased for only $2.50 at this door (with student identification) both tonight and tomorrow night. Faceoff for both games is 7:30.

In the opinion Krafcisin tried to hit Thomas back and as the Indiana goalie kept trying to get through, Krafcisin shouted, "He's got no big deal."

Krafcisin, who like Thomas is from Chicago, said the incident was out of character for Thomas. He called Thomas "a heck of a player," adding "I don't think he's a crybaby."

Thomas said he was just trying to get by Krafcisin and noted he had never before been thrown out of a game.

"There's just no reason for that type of reaction," he said. "I can't blame the officials. It was just a stupid play.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight saw it differently, a little differently. He contended Krafcisin grabbed Graham's jersey before the incident.

"He was trying to get around that (the jersey grabbing)," Knight said. "I thought it was a good play. It was a play you don't want to see, that's all. It's too bad. You can't do that."

Iowa, 25-6 overall, leads the Big Ten conference's second place, which is 21-18-2 overall. Krafcisin hit two free throws to give Iowa a 71-65 lead.

But according to one well-informed national writer, it is still not certain that the Irish will make Teir process to call it the best. For instance, Georgi fizian Frenkles Kercher Walker was able to wrap up this weekend's series on the road. Notre Dame is 7-7-0 after league opponents.

Notre Dame received the season at Colorado College with a split. The Tigers (14-21-2, 5-15-1 in the WCHA and 12-18-2 overall.

Wednesday was the first day that high school football players could sign national letters of intent and The Observer was able to learn the names of 18 of those signers. Yes- terday The Observer gained the names of five more recruits who plan to continue their student- athlete roles at Notre Dame.

It is believed that Notre Dame has received national letters of intent from 24 student-athletes. Reportedly the Irish are seeking to sign at least two more prospects and possibly a third.

Leading the list of names that The Observer acquired Thursday is Parade all-American Van Pearcy. Pearcy, a running/hack-wide receiver from Andrews, Tex., is a world-class American, is considered among the top five running backs in the country.

Jack DeRosa, from Hayward, California, it also interested in Notre Dame. He, however, is an outstanding basketball player and is yet undecided upon sport to which he plan to continue.

Teamwork and attitude are the watchwords for this weekends Central Collegiate Conference College meet at Ann Arbor, Michigan. "We want to try and qualify both of our distance medley and two mile relay for the NCAA's" says head coach Joe Piane. "Our attitude is excellent right now, and that always helps you to run better."

With the team in a top mental and physical state the chances are better than good that both teams will run well enough to qualify. The NCAA Indoor Track Championships are scheduled for March 13-15 in Detroit, Mich.

The two mile relay squad is made up of seniors Chuck Aragon, Tim Macauley, junior Rick Rodgers, and sophomore Jim Meyers. The same team ran 6:30.6 at the Knights of Columbus meet two weeks ago. The qualifying time is 6:33.0 to each half-mile will have

T and A to aid runs

The distance medley consists of a half-mile run, followed by a quarter mile, a three-quarter run, and 1 mile. Jack Eady will join Aragon, Macauley, and Rogers and two mile relay.

Percy should have no problems with Notre Dame's admission office either — should be decide to sign — after compiling a 4.0 grade point average in high school.

Hockey coach Brian Bouic is in Andrews and plans on staying until the deadline. Percy chooses between Notre Dame and Southern Michigan. Percy had a signed non-refundable contract letter-of-intent to SMU. However, an investigation of the SMU athletics department by the NCAA has prohibited Percy to reconsider.

Reportedly Aaron Roberts, a running back from Detroit Catholic Central, has narrowed his choices down to Notre Dame and the University of Michigan. Roberts, yet another college All American, is considered among the top five running backs in the country.
