Mother of 20 discusses family, work

Editor's note: Dorothy DeBolt, mother of 20 children, author of one book and subject of two recent films, spoke at Saint Mary's last spring about Women's Opportunities Week. She was interviewed by Observer Staff Reporter Anna Jane Dregula.

Q & A

Dorothy DeBolt

Q: What do you think of the Women's Movement and its tendency to draw women away from the home?
A: I think it is very possible for women to have both a family and a career. I think it is a matter of establishing priorities. As a mother of 20 I have precisely both, and I revel in being a part of organizing one's time and determining what you have to forego to be able to achieve both. I am very much in support of the women's movement, in the sense that it is the greatest thing in all respects. This is tremendously important, I feel. I support the Equal Rights Amendment.

Q: What is your advice for young women trying to decide those priorities, between a family and their career?
A: There are those of us who have great capabilities with children and raising a family. I believe that we all instinctively relate to the idea. I loved it. On the other hand, I would have been terribly frustrated had I not been able to do anything at all in my artistic abilities. I happened to be able to use them in the same environment, being with my children, as with my artistic abilities. I think the young woman who finds that she really does not relate too well to children, once having had them, probably should not have more. Also, she should do her darndest then to find an environment which is the best one for that child while she seeks to do something with her life. I think it is probably worse for a mother, so totally frustrated with staying at home with the child, to be a martyr and say, “I am sacrificing to stay home with my child”, because she can do more damage than good to the child in her frustration. I think that some cases of child abuse come about from that kind of thing. On the other hand, if she can possibly work out keeping her own identity, while keeping her own career to whatever degree she can and win’s cope with her child, that is the best.

Q: What kind of outside help do you advise?
A: We don’t. We have no outside help. We are all together with our family. Again, it is a matter of organizing and getting us all to learn how to do everything. We have no social roles in our household. We feel it is terribly important that we all learn how to do everything, eat, live, go out and mow the lawn — and the boys.

Reagan focuses on Reagan foreign policy

BY KELLI FLINT
Senior Staff Reporter

Former United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young discussed American foreign policy Saturday in the Center for Continuing Education. (Photo by Chris Salcido)

Young said that he believes the problems in America today are the result of the loss of American ideals and values.

“In my travels as ambassador, I found that the people caring about the troubles had either been educated in the United States or were educated by missionaries from the U.S.”

Young added that the Soviet Union is not responsible for many of the political crises in countries such as Iran and Iraq.

“We do ourselves a disservice by accusing most political aspects to the Russians”, he said “In this instance the Russians are no match for us. The more we move towards peace, the more competitive we are in the economic market.”

“Our competition is not Russia, but Japan and Germany. While we were developing tanks during the Japanese were developing cars that could run 55 miles on one gallon of gasoline. The current demand is for small cars.

“We forced countries like Japan and Germany into peaceful development. Now they are economically strong. Their governments cooperate with the international market, and have developed export expertise.”

The United States will have to expand their business interests. There is certainly a conflict between American interests and ideology.

“We have a ‘reactive’ foreign policy”, he said. “We need to be more proactive.”

SMC Career Center aids students

BY CATHY DOMANICO

Study skills workshops, interview workshops, human sexuality workshops and Freshman seminars are only a few of the workshops and groups offered by the Counseling and Career Development Center at Saint Mary’s.

Counseling Planning/Placement

MONDAY

FOCUS

Services and Personal Developmental Counseling are provided to Saint Mary’s students, alumni, faculty, staff and their families.

Mary Elizabeth DeFauw, Director of the Center explains that the program developed in 1979 when the counseling center and career center were combined. This union encouraged students to come to the Center to discuss personal or career issues. The focus of the Center is to learn growth and planning skills through workshops, groups and counseling.

On the personal level, students are encouraged to talk to the counselors about theories and dreams of college life. According to counselor Tony Campbell, “we work with a range of problems from suicide attempts to boyfriend problems.”

“Res,” he continued, “is the majority of the students who seek personal counseling are dealing with one or more of the seven developmental tasks faced by all young adults (which are): a) a growing up.”

Achieving competence is the first of the developmental tasks. It involves the development of intellectual and social abilities, as well as physical and manual skills. The young adult must also face the initial task of becoming aware of personal feelings and emotions. Without emotional independence mature autonomy cannot be achieved. Often a young adult has difficulties coping with problems without the aid of others and the counselors at the Center help individuals deal with this.

The fourth developmental task for college students is establishing identity. Identity is confidence in the ability to maintain continuity. To establish this, the student must understand his own characteristics, physical needs and be sure of his sexual identification.

Once personal identification is established, a student should be able to express greater trust, independence and respect for others. Developing tolerance for a wide range of people is an important aspect of this task.

Clarifying purposes and developing integrity are the last of the developmental tasks. To develop these purposes individual must formulate plans and priorities and deal with interests and lifestyles. The task of developing integrity involves making one’s values more personal. Individuals must provide a set of beliefs to be used as a guideline and begin to live accordingly.

These developmental tasks are a normal part of the maturation process. Often college students have difficulties achieving them. Along with DeFauw and Campbell, the Counseling and Career Development Center is provided with other counselors like Mary Thes and Pat McQuinn who confidentially help students through these growth processes. DeFauw is a certificated psychologist, and a psychometrist is on hand if necessary.

It is the responsibility of the Career Center is only for Seniors. In fact, DeFauw stresses the importance of early decision making. The Center provides workshops and counseling for all classes.

For all students having academic difficulty, the Center designed a voluntary program with Teresa Mary, Dean of Academic Affairs, and Susan Vasek, Freshman Academic Advisor, to teach students the basics of time management, study techniques and other valuable skills.

Heppen cancels lottery; overcrowding continues

BY JOHN M. HIGGINS

There will be no lottery of on-campus housing space this year. University Director of Housing Michael Heppen said Friday. Heppen explained that a sufficient number of students had decided to live off campus.

The possibility of a lottery was announced in February after a record number of students submitted contracts for on-campus housing next year. Heppen had set this Friday as the deadline for students to renge on their contracts without the standard $150 and $50 deposit.

The overcrowding in the dormitories has not been completely eliminated, however. Some freshmen students will be forced to live in the study lounges of Grace and Flanner Halls. Heppen said “the largest number of returned contracts were in Grace and Flanner.” Heppen said “some upperclassmen will be required to live in study lounges on floors 2 through 11.”

Heppen explained “that incoming freshmen would be required to live in the quonset huts.”

A release from the Housing Office states that in the future junior will be issued residence contracts “on a space available basis” and that a committee would be formed next fall “to study the various options.”

Heppen declined to comment on the makeup or function of the committee.

President Reagan, still running a mild fever, received doctors' orders at his noon press conference to cut his travel and public events on Monday because of what doctors described as "a temporary indisposition." The president, 77, who is recovering from surgery last week, said the fever is "not anything significant but just a temporary thing that makes him feel a little bit weak." (AP)

Poland's Parliament postponed the start of the new legislative session for several days, the Associated Press reported. The move followed a clash in which Jaruzelski, Poland's leader, requested that opposition lawmakers "temporarily withdraw from the legislative chamber" to allow for organizational changes. The government and opposition have been at odds over a range of issues, including economic reforms and the country's transition to a market economy. (AP)

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., arriving in Poland for the start of his Mideast mission, met some resistance to his proposed Persian Gulf "strategic consensus" stretching from Pakistan to Egypt. The U.S. perception that outside threats to the Middle East are of concern to those nations is not yet accepted by the Egyptians, said a U.S. official who attended talks between Haig and Foreign Minister Kamal Khalil. A U.S. official, who declined to be identified, said there was opposition to stationing U.S. forces in the Sinai as a peacekeeping force. He also ruled out a formal agreement for U.S. use of the Red Sea for "rapid deployment." He said the official would be the same as giving the Americans a base, which the Egyptians are not willing to do. — AP

Gale W. McGee, United States Ambassador to the Organization of American States (Pan American Union), will discuss Latin American New Dimensions for the '80's on Monday, April 6 at 7:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall at Saint Mary's College. The talk is open to the public without charge. From 1959 to 1977 McGee served as a Democrat in the United States Senate from Wyoming. In the Senate, he chaired the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, and was also a member of the Foreign Relations and Foreign Operations and Governmental Affairs Committees. The author of several books and articles on international relations, McGee was a special assistant to the President and was also a special assistant at the State Department. He had served previously as a delegate to the United Nations and several international events. He holds a Ph.D. in American history from the University of Chicago and has taught at several universities and business schools. Ambassador McGee's visit is sponsored by the Saint Mary's government departments and government-sponsored clubs and organizations. McGee will also speak to various classes during his visit to the College. — The Observer

Bower is currently serving as music professor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and looks forward to developing the music program. The CBT will forced on them through the use of radio and television programs over a three-month period. The coalition will compile any incidents of explicit sexual, vulgarity and profane language and broadcast the list of "most offensive" and "least offensive" television programs. The CBT will then contact advertisers who are judged to be the most offensive. Insurance companies of the country will declare a nationwide boycott of their products. The industry of broadcasting television advertisers is not new one. Violence on TV was the focus of a boycott by the National Parents and Teachers Association and other education lobbying groups during the mid-70's. Those groups were upset that programs featuring violent competitors and Hutch and Baretta were respected. Violence in television was an acceptable behavior. While these shows eventually were pulled off the air, it was more due to the actions of advertisers than to the pressure of the boycott.

The difference today is the mood of the country. People are running scared of Rev. Jerry Falwell and his Holy Crusade. Every politician in the country has an ax to grind with Rev. Falwell. Television is in trouble. For an industry that is based upon the creation of fantasies, the magic of creative and passive audiences is quickly coming to an end. Net­ works, producers and advertisers are feeling the pressure of militantly dissatisfied audiences.

For years, television audiences have catered swallowing whatever the networks pumped out. The networks abandoned their creativity for profit and audience ratings. Initiation is the key to success. If a show worked once, it will work again. And again, and again, and again. Single-cam is in Quebec, and it's a racket.

I Irish women ‘fantastic’ in W. Michigan Invitational

The meet started off with Freshman Laura Montgomery in the 200 meter preliminary heat, and finishing with the eighth best time among the 16 team dual. While that was a more than adequate start, the real fun began with freshman Rosemary Delgado's 18.30 200 meter run — good enough for a share of the meet.

“Rosemary just ran an outstanding race,” praised Amato. “It really gave us a great push, lightened everyone up and set a tempo for us.”

What followed was a tremendous exhibition of what Notre Dame performers have been proud of in their athletic history — reaching back, and winning over the odds.

Sophomore Barbara Jacobs was second in the 1700 meter run, and would have scored 21 points and block five shots. Chicago was led by Artis Gilmore with 20 and Dwight Jones with 17.

NBA roundup

Rockets win, take series

Houston 89, L.A. 86

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Houston Rockets upset defending NBA champion Los Angeles 89-86 Sunday to win their opening playoff series two games to one, holding last year’s hero, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to just 10 points.

The Rockets now play at San Antonio Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the opener of the Western Conference semifinals, a best-of-seven-series.

Mike Dunleavy threw an 18-footer, sending the Rockets ahead 87-86 with 15.6 seconds left. Johnson dribbled up court, kept the ball and then badly missed a 14-footer. Johnson, the MVP of last year’s Laker championship, missed 12 of his 14 field goal attempts and five of his 11 tries from the free throw line.

K.C. 104, Portland 96

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Forward Reggie King scored 30 points in the second half and dominated play inside as the Kansas City Kings downed Portland 104-96 Sunday and eliminated the Trail Blazers from the NBA playoffs.

The Kings beat the Blazers twice in Portland to win the best-of-three series 2-1. The Kings meet the Phoenix Suns in the semifinals of the Western Conference playoffs.

The series starts Tuesday in Phoenix. It was the first time the Kings have won a playoff series since the franchise moved from Cincinnat i.

Kansas City led by as many as 12 points in the first quarter before the Blazers made a final run.

Portland sliced the lead to three, 96-93, on a driving basket by Kevin Ransey with 1:34 to play. But Sam Lacey hit a 16-foot bank shot and King scored on an offensive rebound to put the game out of reach.

King led Kansas City with 28 points and grabbed 15 rebounds. Billy Ray Bates paced Portland with 34 points, and 22 in the second half.

Sixers 125, Bucks 122

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Julius Erving scored 36 points, including a pair of game-winning free throws with 38 seconds remaining, as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 125-122 Sunday in the first of their best-of-seven NBA Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series.

The 76ers, Central Division champions, led 122-121 with 53 seconds remaining after a field goal by Sidney Moncrief.

Milwaukee's Quinn Buckner, however, failed to convert a free throw, giving the 76ers a one-point lead. The Bucks then missed a pair of free throws on the last possession of the game.

Cichy attempts change

By PAUL MULLANEY
Sports Writer

For Steve Cichy, 1980 was a disaster. While making a tackle on the opening kickoff of the season's first game, Cichy crashed the sixth vertebrate in his neck. The injury wasn't discovered until after the game — after Cichy had gone the distance in Notre Dame's 31-20 win over Purdue. It was Cichy's first and last game of the season.

For Cichy, 1981 looks a lot brighter.

"The healing has stabilized," he says. "They tell me that the only way I could hurt it again is to get hit in exactly the same spot, exactly the same way, with exactly the same impact. It was truly a freak accident."

Nevertheless, Cichy has his work cut out for him. Any athlete will tell you how difficult it is to bounce back after missing an entire season. But what will make it tougher for Cichy, both this spring and in the fall, is his switch from strong safety to linebacker.

"Right when I got back from Christmas vacation, coach (defensive coordinator Jim) Johnson told me that they wanted to move me to a linebacker," Cichy says. "He said that I would probably be able to help the team most at that position."

"If that's where the team needed me, I'd play there. If things don't work out there, I can always go back to strong safety."

Regardless of where Cichy is most needed, his physical appearance has already transformed that of a linebacker. At 6-feet-2, 218 pounds, he has always been a menacing tackler.

"I guess the position is probably more suited for me, because of my upper body strength and the physical nature of my play," he says. "But I'm still going to have to work extra hard with the transition."

"At linebacker, when you get up to the line of scrimmage, your instincts aren't as refined. Right now I feel like I'm in class one day, and have a whole the next. I've just got to go over things again and again to get it right."

"A lot of progress has been made, but I've still got a lot of things to learn, especially in regards to tech- nique. But so far I've been pleased."

Also pleased with Cichy's progress is Johnson, who ranked the new linebacker among the most im- pressive performers in the first week of spring drills.

Spring Football '81

Cichy realizes, however, that he'll have to impress the coaching staff right up until the September 12 opener against LSU. With the likes of Br coils, Mark Zavagno, Rick Naylor and Joe Rudenski around those competing for fall jobs, Cichy will have plenty to do in order to at tain his personal goal — winning a starting berth.

"We're very rich in talent," admits the Finge, D.N. native. "But it really brings us together and makes us better football players.

"In most cases, if I was first team getting into practice, I wouldn't feel any pressure except to improve myself. But with six or seven solid line backers like we have, it really makes you want to improve. You really don't have much choice."

Cichy, who is expected to receive an extra year of eligibility due to last year's injury, is excited to play the type of defense that head coach Ger ry Faust and Johnson have planned for the upcoming season.

"We'll show a lot of different fronts," he says. "Maybe we'll have a 5-4 to go along with our four-man front. We'll mix it up. We'll gamble a lot, and we'll blitz a lot, because we've got a lot of talented line backers and defensive backs to cover up if a gamble at the line of scrimmage doesn't pay off."

Cichy claims the team is ready to take a 5-3 lead over the eventual national champion,Verdana Angelakis of Penn State. Angelakis, who led the Irish bulls to the national title, calmly rebounded to take a 5-3 decision.

After that match, Twila had to face the 1979 Champion and eventual four-time All-American, Kathy McCann of Notre Dame, originally an alternate, was able to compete when a California fencer was unable to make the trip. She placed 46th.

A pair of clutch 5-4 victories over Virginia Van of Cal State Berkeley and Cindy Frew of North Carolina enabled Kitchen to advance to the final 24. The field then was split into four groups of six, and in order to remain in contention for the individual title, Kitchen had to place in the top three in her round-robin group of six.

Twila rallied from a 0-3 deficit to take a 4-3 lead over the eventual national champion, Jana Angelakos of Penn State. Angelakos, who led the Irish bulls to the national title, calmly rebounded to take a 5-3 decision.
