Waldheim withdraws from UN election

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — In­cumbent Kurt Waldheim dropped out of the deadlocked balloting for U.N. secretary general yesterday but remained under consideration for an unconfirmed third term in office. Ugandan Ambassador Olara Otum­nu, Security Council president for December, was asked by a reporter whether Waldheim’s candidacy had been withdrawn following 16 incon­clusive rounds of council balloting. He said “absolutely not.”

Otumnu said he had asked both Waldheim and the Soviet Union to withdraw his name after the 15-member UN member states. China is committed to electing a Third World candidate and has con­sequently rejected Waldheim and the United States has repeatedly vetoed him. Otumnu said it was possible that, if the 15-member council could not agree on a compromise candidate, it might agree as a last resort to split the next term between Waldheim and a Soviet.

“I want the matter to be settled before December 31,” General Assembly’s current session is due to adjourn, Otumnu said. The Security Council assesses a can­didate for election by the 157-­member council. Otumnu said he expected the council to begin con­sultations with a view to opening the race.

Since the on-and-off balloting began on Oct. 27, Chinese and Americans have rejected both Waldheim and Salin. Balloting has been suspended since Nov. 2.

The five permanent council mem­bers — the United States, China, the Soviet Union, Britain and France — have veto power.

We’re undermanned

Police shortage hits Houston

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press

HOUSTON (AP) — Joining traffic tickets is now considered an extra duty of regular patrol squads in the nation’s largest city. When a severe manpower shortage in the Houston Police Department has eliminated the essential police services.

It means, ‘Unfortunately, you can speed or run a red light in Houston and not get caught if you’re lucky, and you don’t have to be too terribly lucky,” said police spokesman Larry Troutt.

Houston has about 3,000 officers and needs at least 5,000, he said, to cope with a population of about 1.6 million that is growing at a rate of 1,000 people a week.

The department has launched a national recruiting program focused on urban areas in the Northeast and aimed at blacks and Hispanics, but because of the department’s rigid standards, only 70 out of every 1,000 applicants qualify for the city’s new $11 million police academy.

Another problem, said Deputy Chief Bill Gaines, is the tarnished image of the department in recent years and hostility among young people toward any kind of authority, a holdover of the “lifestyle of the 1960’s.”

To complicate matters, nearly half of all applicants are disqualified because of their past use of drugs, Gaines said. At the present rate, “it will take us 10 to 12 years to get to 5,000 and by that time we’re probably going to be behind again,” because of the city’s rapid popula­tion growth, he said.

In the meantime, Troutt said, if a Houston resident is involved in a minor traffic accident or his home is burglarized while he is away, the police department’s advice is don’t call us.

“We’re doing in Houston is saying, ‘folks, we’re undermanned, and until we get it together, you’re going to have to help us out,” said Troutt. He said motorists involved in non-injury accidents should go in person to the nearest police substa­tion or headquarters within 24 hours and fill out a report. Burglary victims are told to do the same thing.

“It used to be that the citizen role in the policing effort was more of a crime prevention effort, said Troutt. “Now we’re actually getting them involved in the working situation — stuff a police officer has had to do in the past.”

According to the department’s statistics, over seven major areas — murder, rape, burglary, robbery, larceny, assault and auto theft, increased 1.6 percent from 1979 to 1980. The number of murders actually decreased from 1979 to 1980 — 657 to 643 — but so far this year, the murder count stands at 650 with about four weeks left in the year.

The police shortage has attracted a chapter of the Guardian Angels, the teenage citizens’ security group, founded in New York City. And some businessmen have hired their own police guards. Merchants in the poor Montrose neighborhood near downtown pooled their funds six months ago to hire two old-duty off­icers to walk the beat, which Troutt said was congested with “prostitutes, con artists and mug­gers.”

Gaines said Houston has 17 police officers for every 1,000 resi­dents — the lowest ratio among the nation’s top 10 cities. He said Philadelphia, which has about the same population as Houston, has more than five officers per every thousand citizens.

The FBI has recommended a ratio of at least 2.5 officers per 1,000 resi­dents, but if that were used, “we’ve been undermanned for 10 to 12 years,” said Gaines.

He said in 1974, when the depart­ment had about half as many officers as it needed to meet the FBI mini­mum standard, it accepted 4,55 mil­lion in federal funds and embarked on a national campaign to attract recruits.

As a result, as many as three quar­ters of the cadets in training here today are from out of state, with New York and Detroit at the top of the list of home towns.

O’Donnell talks on student life

Student activities are an integral part of a college community. In or­der to better understand how stu­dent activities are run at Saint Mary’s, The Observer asked Mary Anne O’Donnell, director of Stu­dent Activities, to comment on cer­tain aspects of student activities. Q: What duties does you office entail. A: Working all student organiza­tions in leadership development, program planning, faculty rapport, coordinating organization and budgeting is an overall descrip­tion of my job. I believe that there is a great number of other responsi­bilities included in the job.

Q: Do you feel there is a lack of activities at Saint Mary’s? A: Not a lack of activities, but too much of the same. Sometimes things are lacking. There is a need for a wider variety of activities, and that is where student interest surveys come in. The sur­veys are being distributed to find out what kinds of activities stu­dents want most.

Q: Do you feel Mary’s students feel pressured into going to Notre Dame to participate in activities. Do you feel this situation exists? A: No, there are several clubs which are co-sponsored with Notre Dame. It is true that some Saint Mary’s activities are more popular than others among students.

Q: What are some of the biggest problems that student activities are facing? A: Some problems are lack of students, and lack of publicity because some events are not publicized early enough. This situation is being remedied through publicity workshops where student leaders learn how to properly ad­vertise their events.

Q: Do you feel there is adequate public notice in activities at Saint Mary’s? A: See Q&A, page 5

Cheerful as the "Annie" she portrayed on Broadway 16 years ago, Miss Bruce said yesterday she is resting up after successful leukemia treatments and the feels "really good." Just two hours after receiving her last radiation treatment at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City, she put on her best smile and went to the beach. "I'm just thankful," she told the woman who had encouraged her around the world. Miss Bruce, the second star of the Broadway musical "Annie," was released from the hospital Monday after 40 days of treatment aimed at eradicating all evidence of leukemia. "She's in complete remission now," said her physician, Michael Sorrell, explaining that with new drugs and treatment methods there is a 65 to 75 percent chance of a long-term cure for the childhood cancer. For the next two years, Miss Bruce will go to the hospital once a month for a check-up and will take oral medication daily, Sorrell said. — AP

Eugene Rostow, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, in The Hague, Netherlands, said yesterday that the United States views European protests against nuclear arms "with great sympathy and understanding." "If the protests is a very natural and reasonable reaction by people who have slowly and reluctantly come to recognize the nature of Soviet foreign policy and the menace of the military buildup on which it rests," he said at a news conference. A circuit judge has decided that a Manitowoc, Wis., man who killed his parents can collect part of their estate. A jury had found Charles J. Wilda guilty of slaying the couple Feb. 13. But Wilda also pleaded innocent by reason of mental defect, and the jury ruled he was not legally responsible for the shootings. Judge Allen J. Deehr ruled Wednesday that, because of the jury's decision, Wilda, 39, is entitled to a portion of the estate which attorney Louis Croy says is valued at $50,000 to $60,000. Wilda has been committed to Winnebago Mental Health Institute, where law exists to state the bill for his treatment. — AP

Allen fails to report former client's names

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard V. Allen failed to disclose the identity of his consulting firm’s clients despite a legal requirement that any of the firm’s work directly involved with him be listed if they paid at least $5,000 per year before he joined the White House.

White House spokesman David Engle yesterday was not sure whether the national security advisor would have listed his clients and other White House officials refused to discuss the issue.

Allen has argued that the White House counsel’s office told him he did not have to list his clients because technically, he was an employee of the company, Potomac International, and fees were paid to the firm.

Federal law requires an incoming government official to identify sources of “compensation in excess of $5,000 per year and to give a ‘brief description of the nature of the duties performed or services rendered’”.

The main exception to the requirement is if the official was an employee of the firm and not “directly involved” in work for that client.

Allen has said he does not recall who in the counsel’s office gave him the advice not to list a client list. He refused to discuss the issue further yesterday.

Allen initially reported that he stepped down as president and sold the Potomac International Corp. in 1978, but after press inquiries, he said he had made a mistake and amended his disclaimer form to say he remained president until he sold the company in January 1981 — a few days before joining President Reagan’s White House staff.

Allen’s business had said he had only five to seven clients, all of whom were Japanese or affiliated with Japanese firms.

“Allen has said he does not recall who in the counsel’s office gave him the advice not to list a client list. He refused to discuss the issue further yesterday.”

The committee is still looking for a theme for the formal. Anyone with ideas is encouraged to submit them to the Student Activities office, or to any of the committee chairpersons.

The committee views the decision as an important attempt to gain the confidence of the university.

Rugby club continues service with food drive

“The Notre Dame Rugby Club, still suffering under an "indefinite" probation incurred last spring, will sponsor a food drive for South Bend’s Northeast Neighborhood this Sunday afternoon.”

The club will seek food donations between noon and 6 p.m. from students living in the neighborhood. Students can also drop off contributions at Notre Dame Avenue anytime next week.

The food collected will be used to provide Christmas meals to residents of the low-income neighborhood where many off-campus students live.

The food drive, however, is just one of several community service projects the Rugby Club is sponsoring.

“Notre Dame representatives are Lisa Lombardi and Mike Kelley. Saint Mary’s representatives are Nancy Stoll and Kathleen Engler.”

"Good and getting better"

Poll reveals a healthy America

WASHINGTON (AP) — In its annual pulse-taking of America's health, the government said Thursday people are taking better care of themselves than ever and the problem now is how to care for the large number of people who live longer as a result.

"The level of health in this country is good and getting better," Dr. Edward N. Brandt Jr., Assistant Secretary of Health, said in presenting the yearly overview.

But Dr. Salley Wolfe, an associate of Ralph Nader, said the credit for that must go to previous administrations.

At the very time they are announcing this good news, the Reagan administration is unleash[ing] a plague upon this country," said Wolfe, director of Public Citizen's Health Research Group.

He cited proposed spending cuts for government health and safety agencies such as the Occupational Health and Safety Administration and Environmental Protection Agency.

Brandt noted society's success in persuading people to live longer is putting "great stress on the nation's health care resources."

The solution to the demand for health services in an aging population will have to be in prevention and education so people will enter old age in a healthful condition, he said.

Some other highlights of the report:

- The nation's life expectancy rate after years of increases, fell slightly in 1980, but Brandt blamed low winter's semi-annual, seasonal epidemic for that.

- Life expectancy was 75.8 years for an infant born in 1979 but it fell to 73.6 years for a baby born in 1980.

- The rate of deaths caused by motor vehicle accidents dipped dramatically between 1979 and 1975 but has climbed again.

- Joel Kleinman of the National Center for Health Statistics said lower speed limits and the gasoline shortage accounted for the decline; an increase in the number of small cars in use accounted in part for the more recent increase, he said.

The rate fell from 29.6 deaths for every 100,000 people in 1970 to 21.5 in 1974 but climbed to 23 in 1978 and 24.2 in 1979 for which statistics were included.

While fewer people smoke, those who do are smoking more. In 1965, 25 percent of male smokers said they smoked at least 25 cigarettes a day. By 1980, the percentage had grown to 34. Among women smokers, heavy users increased from 20 to 27 percent of the total in 1965 to 24 percent in 1980.

The nation's health care bill rose by 11.7 percent in 1980 and by 15 percent in the first quarter of this year. In 1980, health care cost an average of $467 for every person in the country.

About 40 percent of adults who have had at least 15 years of school have done four or five "good health practices"—such as sleeping seven or eight hours a night, not smoking, limiting alcohol consumption, controlling weight and being physically active. But only 40 percent of those with less than 1.2 years of education had that many good health practices.

Retaliatory effort
Solidarity threatens strike

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity declared yesterday that Polish authorities wrecked chances for reconciliation by using force to end a student protest, and that the union will consider a retaliatory general strike.

The statement late developments of the past weeks prove that by opting for violence the government has jeopardized the possibility of dialogue with society," the independent union's leaders said after a meeting in central Radom.

The statement blamed the government for ignoring a new law giving greater autonomy to factory workers, and attacked the Communist Party's call in Parliament to give the government "extraordinary" powers to end strikes.

"The unhearing in of the so-called extraordinary measures is tantamount to an attempt at liquidating civil and employee rights won in 1980," the statement said.

Union chief Zbigniew, who put his 9.5 million members on alert after the raid Wednesday, said he may ask for a referendum among factory workers on such a strike if the Parliament grants such powers to the government.

There was no reaction from the government, but the state labor newspaper, Glos Polity, seemed to warn the union not to declare a general strike, which would be the first since police heat union members in northwest Poland in March.

"The situation is inflammable and dangerous as never before," the paper said.

The raid on the firefighters' academy was an apparent effort by the authorities to demonstrate a new, tough attitude in the face of Communist demands for an end to strikes crippling Poland since Solidarity's formed 16 months ago as the first union free of party control in the Soviet bloc.

The assault by some 500 commandos backed by several thousand police and army troops was the biggest show of force in Poland's labor crisis, and came amid an apparent freeze in talks over a union-government front of understanding.

Although there were no injuries, Solidarity chapters across Poland reacted angrily to the raid, declaring strike alerts in Warsaw and Gdansk and demanding tough action from national leaders.

A Solidarity spokesman in Warsaw, where some 34 unionists seized during the raid were released without charges, said, "People are getting upset because they can see we're being quite often outmaneuvered.

The raid ended a week-long sit-in by about 520 cadets demanding they be given civilian status by the Interior Minister and that their school be included in a new academic reform bill that limits police access to campuses and gives students broader power to elect administrators.

New questions raised

Wood death remains mysterious

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New questions were raised Thursday about the drowning of Natalie Wood, a woman who was near the actress' yacht when she reported she heard a female voice screaming for help and then said she heard someone say “We’re coming to get you.”

Marilyn Wayne, who was aboard yacht Splendour off Santa Catalina Island Saturday night, said she told authorities earlier this week that she heard a woman’s cries at 11:45 p.m. on Saturday.

The Splendour and the Capricorn were moored about 150 feet apart in Anchorage Cove on the island’s north side, Harbor Master Doug Oudin said Thursday. Only one other boat was nearby, although Oudin said “75 or 80” were moored in the cove
Saturday night.

Ms. Wayne, 8, a commodities broker for Shenan American Express in Beverly Hills, said she woke up at the sound of screams.

Ms. Wayne said she thought the woman might have been attending a boudoir party on a nearby sailboat, and she and her friend, whom she didn’t identify, went back to sleep when they heard someone respond.

She said she could not see anyone and “it was too quiet a deep sleep, so I wasn’t listening that carefully.”

“Despite the fact there was a woman calling for help, the appearance was not urgent,” said Ms.
Wayne. “She seemed well within reach of several boats if not on top of her own. And there were so many boats in the harbor it didn’t seem to be an emergency situation.”

Los Angeles County Lifeguard Capt. Craig said he stopped at the Capricorn while looking for Miss Wood Sunday and was told of the screams.

Capt. Craig said the screams “didn’t sound relevant at the time. We were just looking for a person, so it didn’t seem all that important.”

Investigators refused comment
Thursday on Ms. Wayne’s report.

Assistant County Coroner Richard Wilson said the coroner’s office learned of the reported screams through news accounts yesterday and doubted they would affect the findings of death by accidental drowning, noting “no evidence of foul play.”

Coroner Thomas Noguchi has said Miss Wood slipped and hit her head while trying to board a dinghy tied to the Splendour. Wagner and Walken had quarreled, the coroner said.

Detective Roy Hamilton said
ofﬁcials talked to both men and there was no indication there had been any argument.

Her body was found floating in the cave at 7:45 a.m. Sunday. She was buried Wednesday at Westwood Memorial Park after a private Rosary service.

White House Conference
On Aging concludes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House Conference on Aging ended yesterday with near unani-mosity of adoption of nearly 600 recommendations despite an undercurrent of complaints that pro-administration forces had rigged key committees.

By the end of the four-day meeting, even 81-year-old Rep.
Claude Pepper, D-Fla., an early critic, was praising the outcome.
Pepper called the conference’s Socio Security proposals “wonderful, reform recommendations.”

“Democracy has a way of rising to it’s proper height,” he said. “There may have been some influence in the early days that I didn’t like, but I think a lot of came out in the wash.

These reports are good reports on the whole. They deserve, on the whole, implementation.”

President Reagan saluted the delegates for “unselfish contributions” and for making “a productive, memorable, memorable conference.”

“Our goal has not necessarily been to reach unanimous agreement on every issue, but rather to have diverse views and arrive at recommendations for the common good,” he said.

Conference critics who declined to be identified produced what they said were documents obtained from conference ﬁles on a detailed plan to stack key panels, and “pointadverse” of the Reagan administration and orchestrated committance votes through a system of committee “whips” some were dubbing it, “Gray Scam.”

David Newhall, III, chief of staff for Health and Human Services
Secretary Richard S. Schweiker, denied that the Reagan administration had manipulated committee assignments or tried to stage-manage the conference.

Saturday was the ﬁnal who chairman of the Leadership Council of Aging Organizations, called alleged attacks “reprehensible, absolutely a crime against the Santa Fe park.”

“Someone should demand an investigation by the attorney general.”

The committees took conﬂicting stands on some issues, including Social Security policy. But there was consensus on trying to protect present beneﬁts for elderly and keep the same level of protection for the future.

Knights of Columbus contribute

Two representatives of the Knights of Columbus of Notre the South Bend charity today at 3:30 p.m.

Ernie Mayor, Grand Knight, and Pete Cournoyer, Deputy Grand Knight, will present Brother Flavius, C.S.C., director of Corvilla House, with a donation of $5000. The contribution will aid in funding the operation of this home for the mentally retarded. Corvilla House, a private institution, receives no state or federal aid.

The Knights of Columbus have been aiding Corvilla House for 10 years, continuing the tradition this year, the Knights exceeded their gain of $2500, the amount donated by the group last year. This year the money was raised from holding steak sales at each of the home football games.
America, assassinations and John Lennon

Tom Jackman

"But now these days have gone, I'm not so self-assured.
Now I find I've changed my mind, I've opened up the door."

Then there is the assassin, always invariably raised to celebrity status, even favorably in the case of an assassin from the country of Mark Chapman, a diagnosed paranoid schizophrenic, who set rules a country of small intelligible people? Having chased his name in history, Chapman joins Sirhan Sirhan Charles Manson, James Earl Ray and others in a unique sort of Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, forever immortalized as another American star killer.

"All I want is the truth."

This gruesome assassination process has happened many times before. It riveted many people that John Lennon was murdered. It revolved many people to see how the rest of the world reacted to the killing. It will happen again. It seems that the sickness process, in which the act receives more attention than the victim, is not recognized until it happens to someone who has deeply affected one's life and ideas. That shouldn't keep us from dreading it in any and every case. John Lennon was a Working Class Hero.

Christmas Nazz brings yuletide cheer -- tomorrow

I'm confused. I recently came across an old research study conducted by Dr. Gene Miskel at a major university. It was published in 1971. I've read about it. Gene Miskel said last summer that it was a must. I haven't seen it yet and I am not sure why. I use it as an example of how bad tooth decay from a recent overdose of Sugar Smacks has become. As a similar occurrence "Aber" (my favorite 1971 Oldsmobile) needs a rebel carburator, said Rex, my trusty mechanic. "No question about it," he said. "This was last August. No one has touched Aber's intake." Since May and he's still running -- 90,000 miles young. Need and muft are usually followed by an achievable condition, as in "One needs Linear advertising to get a job." I'm afraid I have Big Mac and O'Donnell. Perhaps I overlooked the remainder of Rex's statement. Meanwhile, the engine needs a rebel carburator to have a chance of making a comeback this year." But, then, perhaps, nothing is impossible. There are quite a few fragmented needs and dreams existing around in conversation these days. Try to listen for them. But don't be fooled. Some conversationists use clever disguises ("Outdoors are joy" or "a fix of Springsteen"). They have even returned as caught in the开设s of the upper crust. "Dabbing simply must have that far ..." (Sometimes they do complete the thought). "Or I'll just die." The problem is that "necessity" is being used more and more these days. It has come to apply to everything from getting a job to saving money. Of course, our everlogical Grinch has been a comeback unsuccessful Christmas ritual to many people, just as others claim that Christmas would not be the same without the three mandatory showings of Dick's A Christmas Carol each year. The introduction to tomorrow's Christmas Nazz will feature the two campus Minstrels, O'Donnell and Feeney, who will sing the opening song accompanied by O'Donnell's guitar. Specially featured acts include guitarist Paul Bertolini of the Notre Dame Jazz Band; Anne Denny, singer and reader of "Twas the Night Before Christmas" and Mark Davis, narrator for "The Grinch's Bun". "Another favorite act, according to the Grinch's Guide to Christmas," will be performed by Mark Davis, Greg Sadowski, Anne Denny, John Wilmes (Fagno), Pat Feeney (Jester) Bill Eckert, and Dan Keusal (Scrooge). "Other Christmas traditions include ..."

I hope I have the time.

We face economic hardships today also. We are "tightening our belts." It has been while since I ran into someone selling apples or pencils, but I know a few people who had to get rid of a tax shelter or two. Just like everything else, they don't make recessions like they used to. But we do complain. No one likes to tighten their belt, but it may be a little easier if we take some of the cashiers sweaters we're wearing. This is the season for thinking about people who don't have what we have. It is a time of charity. I will try to think about what I have or don't have, about needs and musts, about what I depend on and what I may come to depend on. It seems like a bit about thinking. I hope I have the time.

Letters to a Lonely God

The first casualty of World War II, as far as I was concerned, was my brother. He wasn’t wounded or killed in any of the big battles against the Germans or Japanese, but he was wounded by the war. He suffered pain every time he read a newspaper. I couldn’t stand to stay in the same room with him when the radio was on, reporting American losses in the South Pacific. He would yell and swear and carry on as though he could feel every sniper’s bullet lodging somewhere in his brain. I felt that he lived the dead, for in the big war, at least, they wouldn’t touch him until his injuries were healed. He had, as a result of this accident, just the slightest stigma in his walk which would undoubtedly disappear with time. You probably wouldn’t even notice it, but doctors noticed it, when he went for a physical. He tried to talk the medics into missing him, but they always said the same thing: “It wouldn’t be fair to you. You could get hurt too easily.”

He would come home looking as whipped as a galley slave, humiliated and ashamed; rejected by the Army, Navy, and Marines, and finally classified by the Draft Board as 4-F. “This is the Big Show of our generation,” he said in the histrionic rhetoric that young men use in war. “There were guys down at the army, trying to tail their physicals. They were wetting their pants over having to go. They’re drafting the cowards and keeping the heroes. We deserve to lose the damned war.”

It scared me to hear him talk about losing the war. I was a young kid in high school. I had seen the newscasts of the goose-stepping German armies and the planes making rubble out of cities. He was my brother, and he was hurt, but as much as I loved him, I was sure we would win. He walked with a limp, slurred his speech, and was bearish.

“Shut up!” I yelled at him. “I don’t like hearing that shit. What would happen to the family, if the Gestapo came? What would happen to Pat and Grandpa?”

He went off on the beaches, he said, in a line out of Churchill. “We could drive them into the sea.”

The old men could fight beside the young men, and nobody would ask whether your draft board knew you were carrying a gun.

My thoughts drifted into the room while we were talking. He said to me, “I hate to hear you wishing harm on my country. To me.”

I’m not sure why you afraid. Your grandfather was a brave man, and his father was a soldier, as brave as they come, in the Civil War. It may never have been great heroes, but none of us was afraid, or, if we were, we kept the secret until God was our judge.”

He turned back to me. “Why don’t you go to Canada,” he said, “and try to enlist there? The Canadians have been fighting since 1919. Maybe they have a lesser version of the GCAT.”

“I thought of the GCAT,” my brother said. “Their doctors are tougher than our own.”

“You probably wouldn’t make it,” my father said. “American fliers are the best and the beautiful. But when the casualties have been heavy, any service takes a second look around it. You’ll be the same. (If you see long enough. The fliers are cut up early, and the line shall be the last, instead of first, and the bats shall not enter at all.)

“Then I’ll be suspicious,” my brother said. “They’d want to know why I’m classified as 4-F.

“I never taught you to lie,” my father said. “If they won’t take you, it will be for a good reason, same as here. There’s only one piece of advice I want to give you.”

“’I’m listening,” my brother said.

“Never speak badly of your country,” he said. “That’s part of patriotism. A man loves his country like he loves his family by himself, without flag or home, a man isn’t worth anything.”

My brother never made it into a Canadian outfit. One day, we got a call from Italiana, Nova Scotia. My brother wrote that he was shipping out. He’d been able to get into the Merchant Marine.

It was nearly a year before we saw him again. He had seen more die, but the never mentioned it. He wasn’t going back, he told us. He got tired very easily as though he had been drawing on energies that burned out early. There was a sadness about him that made him a stranger.

Old sailors have a certain kind of look, when they’ve been in peril on the sea. My brother, I thought, had that look.

On December 15, 1945, my father died. I came home from my freshman semester at college for the funeral. Talking with my brother, I mentioned how happy dad had been for him when he got into the war in the only way he could find. He said: “Dad was the best man I ever met, but he told me one thing I know is wrong. Do you remember the night that the three of us talked?”

“Yes,” I answered.

“Dad told me I should never speak badly of my country,” he said. “But every time I hear the President or the politicians talk of getting into war, and people cheer them instead of shouting ‘Boo’————, I think badly of my country, and I would never hesitate to say so. If patriotism means saying, ‘My country, right or wrong, then I would hate being a patriot.’

As I said at thebeginning, my brother got hurt by World War II. After forty years, I’m not sure if his wounds would have qualified him for the gratitude of the government and the American people. He certainly wasn’t buried with military honors.

Any visitor to the Notre Dame campus sees many interesting buildings which have years of history and explanations connected to them. One prominent campus feature which has a long history and public history, is the large population of squirrels. Where did they come from? Why are they so well looking?

To find an answer, I went to the most obvious source: the little buggy therapists. You ask. how can the stupid critical humans have the answer? As I found out, they were right.

I first suspected it when one day I happened upon an old priest squirrels. I was in front of two squirrels, handling each one personally one at a time. Making sure not to disturb them, I approached very quietly. As I drew into ear-shot, I overheard the priest say, “So then, there you go, I don’t think you’re a priest.” Both squirrels promptly fell over, their little furry bodies wracked with rodent laughter. The priest looked up, and noticing me, began nervously tossing pieces of bread completely out of reach. I person

My suspicions were confirmed a week later when I witnessed a prank by two of the crowd. One day, I noticed a young couple approaching a single squirrel with a dining hall doughnut. At first he appeared static, staying low beside the tree trunk. The couple went in, extending the month before them. The squirrel came forward, retreated, came forward again, operating very indicates. Then I noticed two other squirrels in the-bringes above, waiting silently. The one on the ground seemed to be detached to cover the encounter with the above other. This conversation went on for a few minutes, before the couple went over to the two squirrels, who seemed startled to the tree trunk and disappeared. Simultaneously, the couple was seen getting a bit more sarcastic about the exercise of the two squirrels, seemingly not worth their lauding their their bodies. Despite being selected by the Miami Dolphins in the fourth round of the 1971 draft, Theismann realized that his chances for taking over Bob Griese’s job were slim, so he signed with Toronto’s regional rivals, the Canadian Football League. He starred there for seasons, playing for over 6,000 yards and rushing for 1,000 more.

In 1974, the Washington Redskins obtained him from Miami. But with the indomitable Billy Kilmer still throwing passes into old age, it was not until 1978 when Theismann became the "Skin number one" quarterback.

Since then, he’s proved himself as one of the more durable and consistent quarterbacks in the physically demanding and perilous role of an NFL signal caller.

In 1979, he was the second highest rated passer in the NFL. The following season Theismann threw for 3,000 yards. This season, with two games still remaining, he has already gained 2895 yards through the air and has thrown 15 touchbacks for a respectable rating of 75.9.

Theismann’s leadership qualities include that five players with 20 or more receptions. Leading the pack, surprisingly enough, is in running back, speedy Joe Washington. Wash-

No. 18 UNLV crushes Arizona

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — No. 18 Nevada Las Vegas, paced by forward Larry Anderson’s 16 points, raced to a 69-49 victory over Arizona in a non-conference basketball game last night.

The Rebels, who led 38-33 at halftime, saw their lead dwindle to one point in the opening minutes of the second half. But sophomore guard Jeff Collins, Arizona’s leading scorer with 19 points, went to the bench with his fourth foul and Las Vegas immediately ran off seven straight points to quell any momentum.

The Rebels, who also got 12 points from senior forward Sidney Greer and 10 from guard Marc, increased their record to 9-4.

Arizona, which also got 14 points from senior forward Greg Cook in losing its season opener.

Each man outplayed his opponent at home last winter, with Foster dominating the game at Paulson Pavilion, and Paxson gaining recognition as one of the better forwards.

“Joe being big, Phillips admits, “but we’ve got to stay with them on the boards. That’s the only way we can hold our own against bigger teams.”

Frazier-Cumming's 'fight' ends in draw

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Frazier, his age and a roll around his middle showing, returned to the ring for the first time in almost five and a half years last night and battled to a 10-round draw with Floyd "Jumbo" Cummings.

Referee Nate Morgan scored it 46-45 for the 30-year-old Cummings, who turned pro in 1979 after serving 12 years in prison, but Judge Harold Maravitz scored it 47-47 and Judge Collins Brown saw it 46-46, making the decision a draw.

There were no knockdowns, but Frazier almost staggered in the third round and nearly hit the deck in the eighth.

"Smokin' Joe," the former heavyweight champion who will be 58 on January 12, landed his fatted left hook on several occasions, but more often he missed.

Earlier in the day, Frazier had told 40-year-old Muhammad Ali, who had called him from Nassau, The Bahamas, that he will fight Dec. 11, that "I'm not old.

"He might not be an old man, but he was an old fighter on this night before a crowd of about 6,000 that cheered him on at the International Amphitheater

Frazier, who weighed 229 pounds — five and a half pounds more than Cummings — was the harder hitter, but Cummings landed many more punches and was more effective to the body.

In the third round, Cummings sent Frazier back on his heels with one two to the jaw.

Early in the fourth, Frazier turned away from Cummings, who was bent over from a low blow. After a few seconds hesitation, referee Morgan motioned for action to resume.

"He can't fight, this old guy," Cummings' handlers shouted as Jumbo forced Frazier back with several head and body shots.

The Bruins are led by a trio of sophomores, All-Americans, including center Nei Thompson (13.4 ppg.), forward Jacki Joorest (9.2 ppg.) and guard Mar Hargrave (9.1 ppg.).

"We will have the advantage of being able to see them play," Distefano said. "We taped their game on TV tonight, so if we can execute our game plan, we should have a good show."

Freshman Laura Dougherty put on the best shooting performance last night, connecting on 4-of-5 from the floor, and 1-of-2 from the charity stripe... Whenever the subject of Notre Dame football arises in bars and homes across America, talk usually turns to the long list of outstanding quarterbacks that have played under the shadow of the Golden Dome. Names like Luckack, Hornung, Lamonica, Cielestis, and Montana are largely responsible for the legendary tradition accorded Notre Dame football.

Certainly one of the greatest signal callers to play for the Fighting Irish was Joe Theismann, who dominated playing fields in 1969 and '70. Correctly bunting aerials for the Washington Redskins, he is recognized as one of the most consistent quarterbacks in the NFL.

The success of any quarterback is largely dependent on the quality of his receivers. Fortunately for Theismann, he has been teamed up with good receivers for most of his career. Even during his high school days in South River, N.J., Theismann had a teammate by the name of Drew Pearson, who has been known to catch a pass or two.

At Notre Dame, it often appeared as if Theismann and the Fighting Irish could play successfully with just one receiver as Tom Garwood became a one-man pass catching corps. During the '69 and '70 seasons, Garwood accounted for almost half of Notre Dame's total passing yards, including unprecedented marks of 77 receptions for 1,123 yards in 1970.

It was during this same season that Theismann earned his well-deserved reputation as one of the greatest of all Notre Dame quarterbacks. He threw for over 2,400 yards and 16 touchdowns to lead the Irish to a 10-1 record and a number two ranking in the AP's final football poll.

Theismann performed brilliantly in every contest that year, but no one will ever match his courageous performance against USC. In that memorable game, he threw for over 520 yards under conditions which were considered just a little less than ideal. It was the greatest singular performance of any football player, college or pro, that I've witnessed. And I don't see how it could ever be equalled again.

Whenever the subject of Notre Dame football arises in bars and homes across America, talk usually turns to the long list of outstanding quarterbacks that have played under the shadow of the Golden Dome. Names like Luckack, Hornung, Lamonica, Cielestis, and Montana are largely responsible for the legendary tradition accorded Notre Dame football.

Certainly one of the greatest signal callers to play for the Fighting Irish was Joe Theismann, who dominated playing fields in 1969 and '70. Correctly bunting aerials for the Washington Redskins, he is recognized as one of the most consistent quarterbacks in the NFL.

The success of any quarterback is largely dependent on the quality of his receivers. Fortunately for Theismann, he has been teamed up with good receivers for most of his career. Even during his high school days in South River, N.J., Theismann had a teammate by the name of Drew Pearson, who has been known to catch a pass or two.

At Notre Dame, it often appeared as if Theismann and the Fighting Irish could play successfully with just one receiver as Tom Garwood became a one-man pass catching corps. During the '69 and '70 seasons, Garwood accounted for almost half of Notre Dame's total passing yards, including unprecedented marks of 77 receptions for 1,123 yards in 1970.

UCLA battle poses questions

By Skip DeJardin
Associate Sports Editor

The questions are roaring through the air like a stiff Santa Ana wind. Have the Bruins become preoccupied with the prospects of their season? Is the four-game losing streak by NCAA probation is the Notre Dame-UCLA rivalry in jeopardy when the probation is over? A 24-point Irish redbound from Tuesday's loss in L.A. to Friday night.

UCLA's shocking 57-54 loss to Rutgers last night (see related story)

The score of that thing is sticking like a bone in your throat. The Bruins can't be counted on to win...or lose. The UCLA system is in full-time overdrive. Two free throws, narrowing the Scarlet Knights lead to 55-49, with 3:05 left, led to the victory. The Bruins will have to try to live up to the high expectations the Bruins have placed on them for the season. The scene will be similar to that of the Top 20 poll. The Bruins will be looking for both to show the aggression needed on both offense and defense for the Irish to play most effectively as a team.

Ertle's driving layup as the clock ran out cemented the victory for the Bruins.
