Veterans for Constitutional Rights, a group being formed in South Bend, yesterday called for the institution of federal court consideration of V.A. American Bar Association decisions. Veterans Administration decisions "There is no way to hold the V.A. responsible," said Marozsan. The group hopes to gain support by publicizing their cause. They plan to inform ND/SMC representatives of legal representatives. The group is seeking to battle the news blackout by providing opportunities for discussion and debate on related topics. The program is expected to participate. Applications are being made to start one there. The sites for the plunge are chosen by program participants, with the student's first choice being honored whenever possible. If students choose their home cities, or cities in their general area. If a program is not of this entity in a particular city, an attempt will be made to start one there. Students are put into small groups according to the cities to which they are going. The plunge is directed by a contact in the city. "We look for people who are already in programs or who are operating programs in parishes, or who are working in agencies trying to alleviate the problems and injustice," said Weisert. In addition, Weisert said "the center knows personally most of the contacts in the cities. The contacts have schedules which are structured so students can get the most out of the program, and they have guidelines in which the students are supposed to operate." According to Warren Wright, a member of the Urban Plunge's organizing committee, the plunges are run by priests and sisters who are socially active in parishes. A few programs, such as the one in Warsaw, Poland (AP) — Founding members of Solidarity and Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk defied the Communist government's orders on strikes with a sit-in yesterday, demanding reinstatement of the dismissed workers. Western workers who left the Baltic port city six hours after the eight-hour strike began said the police had taken no action by then. However, Polish television reported the police used "means of coercion" on some groups of onlookers who defied orders to disperse before the deadline.

The official news agency PAP said workers went home peacefully but several groups "Christian prayer for peace" outside the shipyard and at the Gdansk railway station were forcefully dispersed by police. The Western reporters said later that the protest decided to strike again today for eight hours. They said the shipyard's 17,000 workers assembled outside the regime's new gates if the government closed down the yard.

The government television service said that a section of the workforce at the Gdansk shipyard stopped work, but claimed pictures taken in the yard showed there was not much interest among other workers. However, the telecast said the police moved in between 2 and 3:30 p.m. after the strike was said to end for the day.

The government cut all Telex and telephone communications with the coast at 11 a.m., and highways to the area were blocked to incoming traffic, making it impossible to obtain an accurate estimate of the number of strikers. The strike in the giant shipyard where Solidarity was banned in August 1980 had been scheduled to end for the day.

One official source in Warsaw said the situation was not out of control in all five of the coastal provinces and two in the interior of the country where Solidarity support was strong. Three large convoys of police trucks were seen heading north toward Gdansk.

The Gdansk strike was the first open defiance of the Communist government's orders to end it Friday by Parliament, to annul the liberalization measures won in a nationwide strike wave in the summer of 1980.

The Congress of Solidarity, presidential commission of four top Solidarity leaders still at large called a four-hour strike Nov. 10 and a boycott of the new unions.

The new law cancelled the registration of all unions and the right to strike. It authorized the organization of local unions only under Communist Party control.

Brother William Mewes, a Holy Cross brother from China, has been appointed state coordinator for the Indiana Nuclear Weapons Freeze campaign. He previously coordinated the campaign in Indiana's Third Congressional District. Mewes described the campaign as a "grassroots movement" which seeks to halt the production and deployment of nuclear weapons and delivery systems in both the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. He expects to collect several thousand signatures in a statewide petition drive which ended yesterday. Mewes, citing opinion polls which showed "79% support for a nuclear weapons freeze resolution," said his goal is to convince Indiana legislators that their constituents favor the freeze. Richard Langford Jr. and Jon Hilter rose a weapons freeze, while their November oppositions, Democrats Floyd Fitzhugh and Jack Bodine favor it. Copies of the petitions will be given to all legislators, as well as President Reagan. Mewes said the group plans to reintroduce a freeze resolution in the Indiana state legislature. A similar measure was defeated earlier this year. Mewes described the resolution as non-binding, and requiring the concurrence of the Soviets. — The Observer

These include better fire safety training for employees, improved fire safety equipment, and stricter enforcement of fire safety regulations. President Reagan yesterday before returning to the White House to work on what aides insist will be a "non-partisan" speech on the economy.

In a speech prepared for delivery to a Republican rally, the president accused the Democrats of engaging in a tough fundraising battle. The rhetoric yesterday followed the pattern White House aides have said will characterize presidential speeches in the final three weeks of the midterm election campaign - blame the Democrats for economic hard times and accentuate any positive economic developments.

"Our program is beginning to work," said Reagan, citing declining interest rates and soaring stock prices. The president said he shares the "ache and frustration" of the growing numbers of people who can't find work, but added that there is no quick, easy cure.

Republican political strategists fear the nation's 10.1 percent unemployment rate - the highest in 42 years - will be uppermost in the minds of voters when they go to the polls Nov. 2. If that assessment is correct, Republicans could lose the congressional gains of their 1980 election triumph.

Even in the "blooming Sunbelt state" of Texas, unemployment has reached 8.4 percent - the highest level since state figures were first compiled 10 years ago.

Republican Gov. William Clements is engaged in a tough re-election battle against Democratic State Attorney General Mark White.
Residents panic
Liberian search refugee camps

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Liberian army surrounded and razed the Palestinian refugee camps of Sabra and Chatilla yesterday, conducting house-by-house searches for guns and demolishing shacks built with our building permits.

Panicked camp residents reported that men in civilian clothes had entered the camps overnight, leading away several people. Liberian paramilitary forces attempting to calm the residents said the men were plainclothes policemen, and that no further camp searches would be allowed by people out of uniform. There was no explanation for the searches being conducted after nightfall.

As the army searched the two camps where hundreds of Palestinian refugees were massacred last month, Western diplomats reported that a new contingent of 450 Italian troops will be sent to Lebanon tomorrow to join the existing multinational peacekeeping force.

The new contingent would bolster the American, French and Italian peacekeeping force to 4,200 men. The Lebanese government requested the force after the massacre of hundreds of Palestinian refugees in Sabra and Chatilla Sept. 16-18.

Liberian security sources reported Sunday that Christian militiamen were filtering into Moslem neighborhoods and have kidnapped dozens of leftists in the past week. Liberian Moslem leaders claim 150 people have been kidnapped by the militiamen in recent days.

The paramilitary security forces in Beirut issued a statement late yesterday saying the abductors were plainclothes policemen arresting wanted criminals.

The army prosecutor in charge of investigating the massacre in the two camps said yesterday that a total of 528 bodies had been recovered and 991 people are still missing.

South Bend, are run by justice and peace centers.

The big purpose of the program is to let students experience the problems that people have in the inner city. Weissert explained.

"I don't think you really understand the problems people are in involved in unless you are in touch with them," Weissert said. "A book can give you the theory, but you need to be in touch to really understand." Kevin Hayes, a senior, said I expected to learn about life in an urban setting, and find out the differences between that and my own suburban life. Their worries are different.

While we worry about whether there is gas in the car, or whether to cut the grass instead of playing golf, they worry about how they will get food on the table, and where it will come from."

"I wanted to get my feet wet in the world of social justice," said senior Dan Kreuzel. "I wanted to see the different ways people were alleviating problems that people have in the city. Weissert explained.

"I really had a good experience with the people who were working,"

Leslie LeMay, a veteran of two plagues, said "I think we go in with the idea that people are not fighters against their situation. I think they are fighting more than we who are so concerned about social justice."

"I made me realize," said Hayes, "these people's problems are not all self-inflicted. Instead, the problems are much more complex than direct cause and effect. They involve structures in society, politics, and economics, not just human behavior."

Our experience shared by many is eating in a dining hall, or a soup kitchen. Angelo Capozzi, also a task force member, said "The dining hall was a really heavy experience. You stood in line, ate, and sat with the people. The people I met there showed a duality of hope and despair."

"The plunge has a positive effect on most people," said Kevin Hayes.

"I would recommend it to anybody," Kreuzel said. "They are two days that will change your life one way or another. I would hope everybody would do it at least once before they leave Notre Dame."

SAPB discusses frosh elections

The Saint Mary's Board of Governors discussed Freshman Council elections and Student activities Programming Board events at a meeting Sunday night.

Elections Coordinator Monica Gugle reported that campaigning for 21 Freshman Council candidates began Sunday night and will end tomorrow. Elections will take place on Thursday in each of the residence halls.

The Student Activities Programming Board will hold its first Coffeehouse of the year at 8 p.m. in the Saint Mary's clubhouse, with the Jim Cours Band scheduled to begin playing at 9:00 p.m. The SAPB is also sponsoring the movie Arthur Saturday at 7 and 10 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

Student Body President Kathleen Murphy is enthusiastic about the 1982-1983 school year. "The Board is working very hard. I think the students have an overall good feeling about the school," Murphy said that she has been receiving mostly positive reactions from students.

This is not denying that there are areas that could be improved, but we are working within our means to achieve that improvement," she explained.

Murphy would like to see more participation in student activities. "We'd like to offer these activities and have the students take part in them," she explained. The main concern of the board is to do the best job possible to ensure that students are well represented. In order to achieve this the board hopes to keep communication lines open within the board and between the board and students.

Prof stresses ethical development

By ROBERT F. SCANLON
News Staff

A Notre Dame economics professor, in a critique of development policies in the Third World, said that cooperation should be as much as possible, that the ends of those policies must be evaluated to assure that they are ethically sound.

Professor Denis Goulet, an expert in international development, said that current development programs have too often stressed the importance of modern consumer goods, while ignoring their harmful effects on underdeveloped societies.

Goulet feels that growth schemes have ignored traditional cultural aspects of Third World countries while increasing the dependence of those nations on the West.

Speaking of the "Matthew Arnold Syndrome," Goulet quoted the Victorian poet, saying that less developed countries (LDC's) are "wandering between two worlds, one dead, the other powerless to be born." Goulet says that while LDC's have emerged from their traditional past, they have not yet found an effective path for the future. The reason for this, according to Goulet, is that the leadership of many LDC's feels torn between the desire for membership in the global economic community and the wish to maintain individual national character.

Goulet pointed out that there are conflicting opinions within the Third World, with some leaders calling for a basic restructuring of the world economic system while others advocate the alleviation of immediate needs. The central role of heavy industry in the development of LDC's is also being re-evaluated.

While Goulet thinks that the failure of Western industry-based development schemes has contributed to the Third World dilemma, he also emphasizes the domestic shortcomings of LDC's. These include corruption, widespread quagmire, excessive traditionalism, and a shortage of effective leadership.

Economic Update

An icy stretch of water above Alaska named Diapir Field may hold the biggest reserves of oil and gas found in the United States in the past 15 years, spurring a huge upsurge in the 18 million acre lease sale this week, which could bring in a record $3 billion in bids. Many oil company officials believe the lease sale yesterday in Anchorage, Alaska, may be the most lucrative of the 41 sales to be offered in Interior Secretary James Watt's leasing program. Watt, who is considering extending oil and gas drilling on virtually the entire U.S. coastline for drilling over the next five years, is hoping the piling up of successful bids will silence critics. "What we need is a big one something that will show that the oil industry wants this land," Watt has said. Many of the biggest companies in America are no longer the sources of employment that they used to be. Pan American World Airways had more than 40,000 on its payroll at the start of the 1970's, and now it has top off another 5,000 by the end of the year. International Harvester used to have more than 100,000 employees around the world. It's now below 65,000. U.S. Steel has 140,000 employees, down sharply from the 200,000 for the 1957 peak. Litton Industries Inc., the company that made the new liquid-crystal television screen in place of the conventional cathode ray tube, is among the latest to ease the job cuts. This morning it announced that it will lay off 3,500 workers, leaving it with about 25,000 employees. Like all others of its type, Litton is engaged in electronics, but not in electronics.

The Notre Dame baseball team, now 5-7, were defeated in a doubleheader 6-3 and 5-1 by Loyola University here Sunday. A scheduled doubleheader between the two teams Saturday was rained out.

"I'm discouraged and disgusted. It was a poor display of mental and physical baseball," the experience showed today," said Coach Larry Gallo. "The doubleheader was lost in the first game. "It was as though we said, 'Here we go again,'" continued Gallo, "we lost seven games this season because of defense. I wish we would get the crab out of us, like 15-1 instead of 5-1, so we can say that it just wasn't our day.

The biggest difference between the two teams in the doubleheader was that the Irish had another scoring threat, but two scored on a single by Dingle. Notre Dame's first five batters were under .400 for the day, had five extra base hits, contributed led the team's nine RBI and scored eight of the team's 11 runs. In comparison, Notre Dame's top five batters were under .300 at the plate, had no extra base hits, one RBI and scored two runs. Without Phil Dingle, who was four for six on the day, the first five Irish batters would have been 1-13 for the day.

"When the defense was bad, the hits and batters try to make up for it," remarked Gallo. "The pinch hitter and batters press themselves too much.

In the first game the Irish jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning. With two outs, Steve Bich Rest hitting a two out rally, the Braves made it 1-1 in the second. Following a single and a stolen base, Adam Demsey knocked in a run in a double. Bradley added another, unearned run to complete the scoring at 5-1.

In the bottom of that inning the Irish had another scoring opportunity. The number nine hitter reached third on a two base throwing error and a passed ball with no outs, but the top three batters of the inning could not knock him in.

Both teams scored a run in the sixth. Bradley's run came on a solo home by clean-up hitter Jim Linden. Notre Dame scored its run on a David Clark double off the fence after Dingle had singled, cutting Bradley's lead to 5-2.

In the final inning the Braves obtained two unearned runs. The Irish added one, making the final 6-3.

Bill Stonkis was the losing pitcher for Notre Dame. "Stonkis should have won this game. We gave them five runs," continued Gallo. "Stonkis threw a great game.

In the second game, Bradley started a rally with two outs in the first off Irish pitcher Bill Martin. Frank Schramko tripled off the fence and was knocked in on a double by Lindeman on a 0-2 count. The following batter got an infield hit and stole second. On the throw trying to catch the runner stealing second, Lindeman came from third to score another run.

With two outs in the top of the second, the Braves made it 1-0 in the second. Following a single and a stolen base, Adam Demsey knocked in a run in a double. Bradley added another, unearned run to complete the scoring at 5-1.

Brettsch was the winning Brave pitcher as he struck out eight batters and allowed only five hits. Notre Dame left 11 men on base during the game.

The Irish will host Bethel College this afternoon at 3:30 on Jake Klimek Field. The game is a make-up for the first three games, we'll do it 5-1.

But if our pitchers do the same consistent job they've done the first three games, we'll do OK."

after last year's disaster, are too quick to interpret signs of improvement as signs of an impending championship. Two weeks in a row, Mike Johnson has had to win both games single-handedly. A great kicker does not a national championship make.

But a great defense might. And here the Irish are, quite literally, second to none. Though the Hurricanes had more success on the ground than anyone else this year, it is important to note that Kevin Griffith missed much of the game with a knee bruise. He will almost certainly be back in time for the stretch drive that lies ahead.

Notre Dame cannot win on defense alone once it starts to play teams like Pitt, Penn State, and Southern Illinois. But there is no doubt that the Irish have done just that so far. Had it not been for two Dave Duerson interceptions, an Anthony Carter punt, and Michigan may have driven for the winning score, and Michigan State may have tied the Irish on a similar late drive.

They're getting it now. They make their errors, but it seems that they're learning from their mistakes.

The Indiana University-Purdue University at Fort Wayne Invitationals this past weekend points out the weaknesses left in the wake of the injuries. Varshager and Anderson were forced to use every player on the roster while the team lost two of three matches and had to settle the eighth place in the 12-team field.

"With our starting six, we shouldn't have lost to any of the other teams," said Anderson.

There was one bright spot, however, as freshman goalie Sue Medley, who had played very little this year, performed very well. "She didn't make any crucial errors," explained Anderson. "She passed the ball well and played a good team game where other girls played individually, not playing their positions well. It comes with lack of experience."

The injuries have come at a bad time. The team is the midst of a grueling road schedule that will not end until November 12. Tonight it travels to Southwestern Michigan College to take on the host team and Kellogg College. There is another triangular meet Thursday in Chicago.

We must come down off the clouds — fans and players alike. A difficult road lies ahead. Notre Dame has the talent to beat everyone left on the schedule. But that talent has yet to play to its full potential.

It does, keep the champagne corked. But keep it cold, just in case.

Notre Dame scored nearly 200 for the two days, but Southern Illinois played a superb second round, jumping from sixth place to third. "We are very proud of the team. They performed well during the fall season. We are hopeful that the spring season will be just as successful then," O'Sullivan stated. "This has been my best team in the fall in my ten years here."

16 more field goals that year. After Saturday, senior Mike Johnson has earned the respect to burn even brighter with his field goals of 29, 42 and 52 yards — the latter coming with only 11 seconds left in the provided winning 16-14 margin. For the season he is 6-of-8 in field goals.

As Coach Gerry Faust has said, he earned the scholarship that was given to him this year. And he has earned his own niche in the legendary pantheon of Notre Dame heroes.
