ND Placement Bureau
Stanelle discusses job interviewing

By DAN MCCULLOUGH

The Observer

Stanelle has decided that the future of the job market is unclear, but that most people should look for a job in the big cities, Stanelle said. He told the group that the best way to prepare is to look at potential careers and choose one that might be interesting in the future.

Looking into the future, Stanelle said that the job market is still not as clear-cut as it once was. He said that it is better to choose a job in the city where you desire to live, rather than in a larger company. He also said that it is important to be flexible and to be willing to change careers if necessary.

Stanelle advised potential job seekers to choose a job that they enjoy and that fits their personal factors. He said that it is important to choose a job that you enjoy and that fits your personal factors.

Kerno said that he did not charge any fees for the trip. An Indiana Motorbus representative said that there were no reservations made for the trip.

Kerno cancelled the trips for the following reason: "The costs of the trip are higher than expected, and the motorhome is not as large as we had hoped." The motorhome was rented for $2,000 for the weekend.

The Observer also has learned that the trip was not as successful as expected. The group was not able to find a place to stay for the night, and they were forced to sleep in their cars.

The Observer is a student newspaper of the University of Notre Dame, page 5.
Two Saint Mary’s students were struck by a St. Joseph County Police car early Sunday morning. The two students, Linda Doen and Arti Carr, were crossing U.S. 31 at four other women at 3:35 a.m. when the incident took place. The group had gone to see one of their friends at Saint Mary’s to obtain a ride to the dorm. As the students were crossing the street the police car hit them. The accident is under investigation by the St. Joseph County Police.

The Notre Dame College Bowl championship was won by the team composed of Mike Kristo (captain), Ray Davis, Ann Roed and Chris Carpy. Kristo’s team defeated the team of Paul McGinn (captain), Brian Stanley, Bill Merkt, and Jeff Picher to win the double elimination campus tournament. The final scores were 210-149 and 205-190. Kristo’s team go on to compete against all-star four man teams composed of two remaining 15 teams. From those eight players, Dr. Peter Keegan, a football tournament director, and conference coordinator of the CCA, will select four to represent Notre Dame in a regional College Bowl tournament this February at Western Illinois University. In earlier action last night, the team consisting of Jim Leons (captain), Steve Zepte, Randy Fano, and Mike Ricardi earned third place by defeating the team of Eric Sues (captain), Bob Bonnoyer, Mark Gorsak, and Judy Neely. The team of Leons and Carson, consisting of 15 regions throughout the nation, participate in College Bowl Regional tournaments in order to play in the national tournament to be held in the spring. CBS radio will broadcast the matches of select teams.

The Notre Dame Cred Union is installing an automatic teller machine in the bus shelter at the Notre Dame Main Complex. A three-year lease of the building is current under construction to make room for the machine. The automatic teller machine (ATM) is one of four such machines the Cred Union plans to have in operation by Jan. 1. Operating under the trade name “D Exchange,” the ATM’s are the result of the Cred Union’s affiliation with Automatic Data Processing, a national banking network endorsed by credit unions in 30 states. — The Observer

Father John Egan, special assistant to the president and manager of Notre Dame Films for Pastoral and Social Ministry, has been named recipient of the Emily M. Schossberger Award. The award, given annually by the Notre Dame Press to a member of the Notre Dame community, recognizing contributions of a personal or charitable cause of scholarly publishing, was presented to Egan during a reception at the university Tuesday night. Egan has been director of the Notre Dame Press, the award was selected “for his assistance in acquiring important manuscripts for the press and for his long-term support of scholarly projects.” The Emily M. Schossberger Award memorialized the first woman executive at Notre Dame who directed the University Press from 1960 to 1972. — The Observer

A federal appeals court yesterday upheld the nation’s largest gun law case, ruling that the Chicago suburb of Morton Grove acted within its authority when it banned the sale and possession of handguns. The court ruled in Morton Grove v. Illinois and registered gun collectors. — The Observer

Last week’s successful attempt to make an artificial heart with a man marks a new frontier for science and raises many philosophical and theological questions. The operation is made all the more dramatic because it involves the heart itself. “It’s heaven on earth.” — The Observer

Eugene R. Kennedy and his estranged wife, Joan, filed for divorce yesterday, agreeing to share custody of their seven-year-old son and settle on an undisclosed alimony and child support payments, a spokesman said. The two appeared in court on Saturday afternoon before Judge John H. Lewis and the divorce will become final in one year, ending a 24-year marriage that they said suffered an “irretrievable breakdown.” — The Observer

Partly cloudy today, with light snow or flurries developing this afternoon. High in the mid 30s. Continued cloudy tomorrow, with highs in the low 30s. — AP
A Social Concerns Seminar, sponsored by Notre Dame's Center for Social Concerns, will take place this year in Washington D.C. over spring break, March 12-19. Thirteen Notre Dame students attended last year's seminar, said, "The purpose (of the seminar) is to acquaint people with issues being dealt with by our government. Each person is encouraged to go talk to their congressmen and state their concerns."

Cec Serna, who also participated in last year's conference, said, "anyone who is interested in national and international issues would be perfect for this trip."

"Most representative," said Jimenez, "were very open to their constituents' views, a kind of sober you up. You realize your responsibility as a citizen, and that there is a way to make your will known and it is your responsibility to make your will known."

"I wanted to know what Washington politics was like," continued Jimenez. "I was really intrigued by the whole process...I knew about it theoretically, through books, but this offered an opportunity to experience it first-hand. I wanted to see what pressures congressmen were under — to see what kind of lives they led."

According to Marcia LeMay, campus coordinator for the Seminar, students who go to Washington will have the opportunity to listen to and discuss concerns of social justice with government officials, representatives of lobbying groups, and Notre Dame alumni living and working Washington, D.C.

"You really get a feeling for the power structure in D.C. . . . the people who have the power are influenced by those around them — mostly their aides."

"You find out about all of these issues," Serna continued, "and it becomes very easy to tell others about them, because you are talking from an informed point of view."

Jimenez explained that workshops are held for the students before they go on the Social Concerns Seminar, so students can understand the issues in which they are interested. Those who go on the trip, she said, should "be very open to different ideas on issues — to see what the opposite side has to say, and where the difficulties lie."

Serna had the same view, pointing out that, "You get to meet a lot of people who have the same concerns as you do, but different viewpoints."

Both Jimenez and Serna were impressed with the fact that one could go to Washington and actually be present when national decisions are made, talking to those who are responsible for it. "There is no other place where you can be around the people who are making the decisions, and see how they react to your feelings."

The Seminar is offered as a one-credit pass-fail course in Theology and requires a few preliminary meetings, readings, a reflection paper, and an evaluation afterwards. Applications will be available starting Wednesday, Dec. 18, in the Center for Social Concerns. The deadline for returning the applications is Jan. 25.

ND Film Club Presents:
John Wayne &
Bruce Dern in
The Cowboys
1972 Color 126 min Warners PG $85
Directed by Mark Rydell. Written by Irving Ravetch, Harriet Frank Jr., William Dale Jennings. Music by John Williams, Starring John Wayne, Roscoe Lee Browne, Bruce Dern, Slim Pickens, Colleen Dewhurst. Genre: comedy, drama, action and adventure...

...Brazil

Going home on break? We have vehicles going to several points across the U.S. Call: WILSON DRIVEAWAY

Attention Juniors with a flair for the creative... Get involved in being Dynamic... We need you for the Jr. Parents Weekend... by designing the program cover for our JPIW Liturgy. Anyone interested, please contact Jenny Grapenthin at 3847 or 3850 before Dec 15.

Memory Photos, inc.
1723 South Bend Ave. ~ at the Butler's Pantry (walking distance from campus) Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Student Special
12 exposure film $5.50
double print of each negative includes processing with student I.D.
Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Special $10% Discount on all work done here

The Theatrical Club announces the following performances:

The program cover for our JPIW Liturgy. Anyone interested, please contact Jenny Grapenthin at 3847 or 3850 before Dec 15.

The Observer

Theatrical Club announces the following performances:

The program cover for our JPIW Liturgy. Anyone interested, please contact Jenny Grapenthin at 3847 or 3850 before Dec 15.

Theatrical Club announces the following performances:

The program cover for our JPIW Liturgy. Anyone interested, please contact Jenny Grapenthin at 3847 or 3850 before Dec 15.

Theatrical Club announces the following performances:

The program cover for our JPIW Liturgy. Anyone interested, please contact Jenny Grapenthin at 3847 or 3850 before Dec 15.
Robert D. Orr, Indiana’s governor, laid out his plan Monday for higher sales and income taxes and hinted he would accept changes aimed at easing the tax burden on needy Hoosiers. "Today is a day of opportunity for all of us," Orr told a joint session of the Indiana House and Senate. "Let us put aside the partisanship that may weaken the opportunity for a financially healthy Indiana." Opening the first day of the tax-raising special session, Orr endorsed a plan to raise the state income tax from 3.0 to 3.5 percent and to boost the sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent. Referring to the recommen­ ded increased income tax, Orr said, "I believe careful considera­ tion should be given to lessening the impact this increase will have on low-income families." - AP

Research Update

"Biobricks" are getting a smelly reputation, says civil engineer James E. Alleman. They are a cheap, effective new construction material that is getting a bum rap because of its humble origins. Alleman, a professor at Purdue University, says he has to put up with maudlin understandings and a lot of crude jokes in his quests to turn sewage sludge into a useful construction material. "When people hear of biobricks, they don't know what to ask," Alleman said. "One wonders if the bricks are brown or if they smell or if they will get slick and slimy when it rains." Actually, biobricks look, smell and feel like other bricks, he said. In laboratory experiments, Al­ leman found that 95 percent of the clay and shale that customarily make up bricks. He found that the higher the sludge content, the more water bricks will absorb. That's good up to a point because bricks that absorb water form a stronger bond with mortar than bricks that don't. But too much water absorption makes bricks susceptible to cracking from the stresses of freezing and thawing. The best bricks contain about 50 percent sludge. Alleman found. The sludge that goes into biobricks contains mostly dead cells of the bacteria which digested the original raw sewage. Sludge may also contain sediment such as clay which has washed into sewer lines. - AP

Wall Street Update

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 24.20 yesterday to 1,054.56. Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 83.88 million shares, against 71.54 million in the previous session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 24.20 yesterday to 1,054.56. Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 83.88 million shares, against 71.54 million in the previous session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 24.20 yesterday to 1,054.56. Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 83.88 million shares, against 71.54 million in the previous session.

Economic Update

Robert D. Orr, Indiana’s governor, laid out his plan Monday for higher sales and income taxes and hinted he would accept changes aimed at easing the tax burden on needy Hoosiers. "Today is a day of opportunity for all of us," Orr told a joint session of the Indiana House and Senate. "Let us put aside the partisanship that may weaken the opportunity for a financially healthy Indiana." Opening the first day of the tax-raising special session, Orr endorsed a plan to raise the state income tax from 3.0 to 3.5 percent and to boost the sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent. Referring to the recom­ mended increased income tax, Orr said, "I believe careful considera­ tion should be given to lessening the impact this increase will have on low-income families." - AP

Research Update

"Biobricks" are getting a smelly reputation, says civil engineer James E. Alleman. They are a cheap, effective new construction material that is getting a bum rap because of its humble origins. Alleman, a professor at Purdue University, says he has to put up with maudlin understandings and a lot of crude jokes in his quests to turn sewage sludge into a useful construction material. "When people hear of biobricks, they don't know what to ask," Alleman said. "One wonders if the bricks are brown or if they smell or if they will get slick and slimy when it rains." Actually, biobricks look, smell and feel like other bricks, he said. In laboratory experiments, Al­ leman found that 95 percent of the clay and shale that customarily make up bricks. He found that the higher the sludge content, the more water bricks will absorb. That's good up to a point because bricks that absorb water form a stronger bond with mortar than bricks that don't. But too much water absorption makes bricks susceptible to cracking from the stresses of freezing and thawing. The best bricks contain about 50 percent sludge. Alleman found. The sludge that goes into biobricks contains mostly dead cells of the bacteria which digested the original raw sewage. Sludge may also contain sediment such as clay which has washed into sewer lines. - AP

Wall Street Update

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 24.20 yesterday to 1,054.56. Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 83.88 million shares, against 71.54 million in the previous session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 24.20 yesterday to 1,054.56. Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 83.88 million shares, against 71.54 million in the previous session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 24.20 yesterday to 1,054.56. Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 83.88 million shares, against 71.54 million in the previous session.

Economic Update

Robert D. Orr, Indiana’s governor, laid out his plan Monday for higher sales and income taxes and hinted he would accept changes aimed at easing the tax burden on needy Hoosiers. "Today is a day of opportunity for all of us," Orr told a joint session of the Indiana House and Senate. "Let us put aside the partisanship that may weaken the opportunity for a financially healthy Indiana." Opening the first day of the tax-raising special session, Orr endorsed a plan to raise the state income tax from 3.0 to 3.5 percent and to boost the sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent. Referring to the recom­ mended increased income tax, Orr said, "I believe careful considera­ tion should be given to lessening the impact this increase will have on low-income families." - AP

Research Update

"Biobricks" are getting a smelly reputation, says civil engineer James E. Alleman. They are a cheap, effective new construction material that is getting a bum rap because of its humble origins. Alleman, a professor at Purdue University, says he has to put up with maudlin understandings and a lot of crude jokes in his quests to turn sewage sludge into a useful construction material. "When people hear of biobricks, they don't know what to ask," Alleman said. "One wonders if the bricks are brown or if they smell or if they will get slick and slimy when it rains." Actually, biobricks look, smell and feel like other bricks, he said. In laboratory experiments, Al­ leman found that 95 percent of the clay and shale that customarily make up bricks. He found that the higher the sludge content, the more water bricks will absorb. That's good up to a point because bricks that absorb water form a stronger bond with mortar than bricks that don't. But too much water absorption makes bricks susceptible to cracking from the stresses of freezing and thawing. The best bricks contain about 50 percent sludge. Alleman found. The sludge that goes into biobricks contains mostly dead cells of the bacteria which digested the original raw sewage. Sludge may also contain sediment such as clay which has washed into sewer lines. - AP

Wall Street Update

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 24.20 yesterday to 1,054.56. Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 83.88 million shares, against 71.54 million in the previous session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 24.20 yesterday to 1,054.56. Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 83.88 million shares, against 71.54 million in the previous session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 24.20 yesterday to 1,054.56. Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 83.88 million shares, against 71.54 million in the previous session.
We at The Observer are perfect. We have, over the course of our 16 years as an independent student newspaper, attained such a level of competence and judgment that no suggestion, criticism, compliment or complaint could help us improve the service we render to the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community.

Does that seem strange? Conclusive? Completely false? Could be. We wouldn't know.

Those of us who work for the newspaper are proud of the job we do. We stand in a unique position as a completely independent college newspaper, publishing daily without the benefit of a journalism department or faculty advisor. Nonetheless, we realize, in more modest moments, that we are not perfect.

As Margaret Fosmoe so aptly noted in her Inside Column, "in many instances, the situation does not allow an unbiased view. Sometimes the roles of journalist and student conflict, making controversial decisions and self-evaluation even more difficult.

So...

To gain further insight to some ways we could improve our performance as the voice of the community, The Observer scheduled a general readers forum at 5:30 last night in the Library Auditorium. The meeting was widely publicized through the personals column, display advertising, an editorial last Friday, and posters plastered all over both campus - not to mention Mrs. Fosmoe's article yesterday.

The appointed hour found a dozen of The Observer's editors and managers facing a throng of 12 people. All 12 were Observer employees.

Giving the expected speakers the standard University allotment of 15 minutes before cancelling the affair, the Observers waited politely - and a little hopefully.

But it was not to be.

Perhaps it was the press of imminent exams, the airing of a Charlie Brown Christmas - perhaps all of Notre Dame's and Saint Mary's had to wash their hair last night. Whatever the reason, only readers disguised as empty seats attended.

This apparent vote of confidence does wonders for our ego.

Readers will continue to see the same paper, with which, apparently, they find no fault. We will continue to accept letters to the editor(s), but of course there won't be any complaints.

We're perfect!
Sports Briefs
By The Observer and The Associated Press

The Gymnastics Club has changed its practice times to Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at 7 p.m. All practices will be held between 4 and 6 in the afternoon. - The Observer

The Tae Kwon Do karate club's practice originally scheduled for tonight has been rescheduled for tomorrow night because of the basketball practice. Practice will be held at normal time at the ACC. - The Observer

Where between the delivery of the first opportunity for an Residents around the...
The Observer

Today

Doonesbury

Simón

Fate

Photius

The Daily Crossword

Garry Trudeau

Campus

T.V. Tonight

Brian

The Student Union Academic Commission Presents:

One of America's Most Important Political Columnists

"The American Journey"

A retraction of de Tocqueville's 1831 tour of the U.S. to find out how democracy is working

Thursday Dec. 9, 1982 8:00 p.m.

Library Auditorium

Student Union Academic Commission presents:

A lecture by

CHARLES T. MANATT

Chairman, Democratic National Committee

"The Future of the Democratic Party & 1984 elections"

Wednesday, December 8 8:00 p.m. Library Auditorium
Top returnees for the Irish include senior co-captains Dan and Tom Gibbons and sophomores Paul McGowan, Bohdan King and Leonid Paxson both say they are in line for the job, but that B. B. King and Mike Murphy both say they are "too close to the heart" of the program than either of the Notre Dame athletic officials.

There are others, as well. "I come to you from the Russian game (an exhibition loss to the Red Army)," says Knight. "But, of course, defense funds the offense, as we've already discovered that the Russian game is not the same as the one we're going to see tonight."

"The night before the season is over, they gave up to 200 yards in the air," says Knight. "I think the situation is going to be much the same this year."

"Well, in college basketball, there has been a lot of change and development in the last two years," Knight says. "We have seen a lot of change and development in the last two years."