Cause sought for student illness

By SARAH HAMILTON

Food poisoning is being conidered by the Department of Environmental Health and Safety (DEHS) as a possible cause of the recent surge of gastroenteritis among North Quad students. No firm evidence has been found yet to connect the Notre Dame Food Service to the problem.

"It doesn't seem likely it could be food poisoning," commented Robert Zert of DEHS in an interview yesterday. Zert compared the number of people who have become ill with the number of those who have eaten in North Dining Hall in the last 72 hours and deemed any correlation unlikely.

With cooperation from the Food Service, which retains samples of every meal, DEHS has taken samples from Saturday's dinner's hamburgers and Sunday lunch's roast beef in the South Dining Hall for further tests. In five days DEHS will be able to take a more definitive stance after the results of the cultures return.

The dollar amount of the student illness is very high, according to Vice President for Student Affairs, Bob Riley, feel the Senate needs to work to examine the issue in greater detail.

On the other hand, "It's very difficult to determine if that's the problem," said President '82, '83, Bernard Biner, who reassured the student body that symptoms of nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea are not top of the list of causes of food poisoning in this area.

Most who visited the infirmary did so on Sunday morning and after noon. Zert, the doctor on duty Sunday, and four nurses, who were called in especially to handle the increased number of patients, treated students for individual symptoms within an average of 15 minutes. Routinely, when a student is diagnosed as suffering from gastroenteritis, he is asked what and where he ate in the last 24 hours. No common denominator was found in this case. If spoiled food was involved, "generally it would affect everybody that ate it," said Asst.

Sunday, R. N., infirmary staff nurse. Also suggested the season as a cause of the virus Doctors are checking for bacterial infection as well.

As total experience any of the aforementioned symptoms is encouraged to report to the infirmary for treatment and medication.

Upcoming election issues
FLOC debate and senat races continue

Baldemar Velasquez, president of the Farm Laborers for Sick Campers Com-tee, spoke about the FLOC boycott of Campbell products at the Library Auditorium last night. "Notre Dame is a major educational institution and when this student body speaks, it sets an example that goes out all over the country," said Velasquez, in response to a question about the significance of the Notre Dame boycott of Campbell products. "I think that it hurts Campbell's image more than it hurts its sales. They want to make the Campbell's name a good one, and when someone says there is something rotten in that soup, Campbell doesn't like it."

The forum, sponsored by the office of student affairs, was intended to educate the students about the issues behind the FLOC boycott of Campbell products. The student body will decide whether or not to continue the boycott on Feb. 6. The speech by Velasquez was originally scheduled to be a debate between FLOC and Campbell's, until Campbell's decided not to participate. It lasted 30 minutes, followed by an hour of questions. Approximately 150 people attended the speech.

Velasquez told the audience about his experiences as a migrant farm worker. He then explained the structure of the tomato industry and the reasons for the FLOC boycott of Campbell products. He cited the working and living conditions of the migrants and the dominant role Campbell and the other big canneries play in the continuing negotiations with the farmers. "With the contracts that the comppanies present to the farmers, they can't afford to give us what we need."

When asked what demands of FLOC would have to be met for them to call off their strike and see BOYCOTT, page 4

Improved doctoral programs
Endowment funding received

BySONYA STINSON
Senior Staff Reporter

The PACE report has challenged the university to improve the quality of its doctoral programs, an effort administrators hope will lift Notre Dame higher among the ranks of the very best in advanced studies and research.

We believe very strongly that scholarship and research are very important," said Vice President for advanced studies, commented, "not only to the traditional University, but also to the generation of new knowledge, which is the function of research."

Gordon said Notre Dame already has a long tradition of quality teaching, and he would like to maintain that strength while increasing the quality of research.

"We are going to try to join the ranks of the best in the research department," he said. "I would have to say we are now among the top 35 universities. We are not top 20 -- that's the Stanford's, Yales and Havards."

The amount of outside research funding a university receives in one way of measuring the strength of its advanced studies department. According to Gordon, in 1981-82 Notre Dame received grants for about $17 million, $3 million of which resulted from competition.

This year the advanced studies department received new funding from a Houston endowment known as the Jesse H. Jones Faculty Development Fund. It provides $1 million over a five-year period, according to Gor-

The first part of the endowment is to the Faculty Research Seed Grant, which disperses on a competitive basis research money to help faculty members get started on their projects. The emphasis is placed on young researchers. For 1982-83, the Grant received $60,000. The Faculty Research Travel Grant is the second part of the endowment. It provides assistance to faculty members to visit archives or libraries outside the university in order to complete their research. This year the assurance amount to $15,000.

The second part of the endowment is the Research Equipment Grant. Faculty members will be allowed to submit proposals for the purchase of specialized research equipment and hardware equipment. This part of the fund amounts to $75,000 this year.

In addition to the Faculty Development Fund, Notre Dame has received another Jones grant for the Business Research Data Base, a computer system which contains information about corporate activity. This grant is for $50,000 per year.

"This last fund is the first step in the development of the College of Business Administration of a center for research in business," Gordon said.

According to Gordon, the Jones faculty members are to be used by FLOC to get a better idea of the amount of money available for seed and travel grants. "We operate on the idea that some of this will trickle down into the classroom," he added.

The PACE report points out that a decline of interest in doctoral studies is affecting research programs which depend upon see ENDOWMENT, page 4

Saint Mary's lobbyist proposed

By BETH WASH
Staff Reporter

The possibility of providing a Saint Mary's representative to participate in various student lobby groups, which presently have representatives from Notre Dame and Purdue, was discussed at the Saint Mary's Board of Governance meeting Sunday night.

Interested Saint Mary's students are to see Student Body President Kathleen Murphy for more information on these lobby groups, which address issues of concern on college campuses. Plans for the upcoming semester include an effort to raise funds for the Northern Indiana State Hospital Logan Center. This fund raiser, an aluminum can collection drive, will be held in conjunction with Notre Dame.

The money collected will be used to purchase a van with adaptations for wheelchair. Dean James Roemer has agreed to sponsor a keg on Green field for the dorm that collects the most cans. The keg would be provided for the first home football game next fall. Plans for the registration ticket packages will be submitted for the Saint Mary's student elections in Feb 5. Campaigning will begin Feb 6 and continue until election day, Feb 10.
A four-man team, funded by private donors, entered Las loco in a failed attempt to rescue U.S. prisoners of war being held in a North Vietnamese concentration camp yesterday. The William Shatner confirmed he gave one member of the group $10,000, but said it was for his life story, as a possible movie script. He said the man told him he was "contemplating" a POW rescue attempt. A Defense Department spokesman said officers knew the group was making plans, and advised the group the operation was illegal. The spokesman could not confirm that the mission had taken place. A North Vietnamese official was asked what happened when the Vietnamese were tipped off and ambushed the party, chasing three of them out of Laos. "We're not interested in going to North Vietnam," said Shatner. Shatner had said four Special Forces go. Is college a crock?

You are setting in class your stomach growls. "What am I doing in this stupid class?" you ask. You peer for ward from your back row seat. "Who is this clown? What a bore. Nipper, he'll wake up." While your professor dronons, you look at your watch. "3:50 minutes to go. If I fell asleep, I could wake up. You're not the only one who is bored. You don't care. Finally the bell. You go to lunch, where you tell your friends how much you hate school. Sound familiar? All too often it does, but it shouldn't. Your parents and the school system paid for you to get your way to learn the things you li ke or not. Thus college requirements are set up. Two years of math, two philosophy, one fine arts, the rest for the "complete" student goes on. Sadly, in all too many cases, this is not carrying out those plans. The American system of education must make learning a chance. If you look at kindergartners, you will find a group of happy young minds waiting to absorb knowledge. Look at those that same group twelve years later; many have dropped out to join the ranks of the ignorant, Others set graduation as salvation, and most of the rest are looking to make themselves into the rich and the riches will it them. Very few still want to expand their minds.

Schools of higher learning compound the problem when they give the fresh man course. course schedule not unlike what he or she had in high school. Opportunities for under grads to do real first hand learning is limited. Memorization and business, of course, are the main things. Of course, too much undergrad research would be the juicy pill of graduate school. To continue the process of piloting knowledge, in to minds is a waste. The abuse done to man's body of knowledge is tragic. We have to go in rethinking our concept of higher education and realize that there is no formula for won dom. Have your own creative juices meandering through that little mind of yours? Have you methodically tried to get the two courses interested in spending many gnats hours on the upper left of Lauraface, laying out a paper that all your friends will push in the morning. Co-educational, off-campus housing is one recommendation being considered for an improvement to the PACE report's proposed "alternative housing" requirements, including towncroft complexes.

The author of the PACE report was criticized by student body President Lord Burke as being too ambitious in making recommendations for living quarters at last night's Student Senate meeting.

Burke stressed that the Senate's response to the report should address specific issues and make specific recommendations.

"We want a vote a report with a vague report," said Burke. "It's not in our best interests to have vague recommendations." Burke also agreed that there was no real solution in the report. Students being raised by the Senate in its response to the PACE report also include the students, teacher evaluation process, and ambiguous plans for an on-campus social center. Burke also agreed that there was a more student-districtified procedure for developing dormitories.

Reagan budget faces hard times

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's $56 billion budget blueprint will travel an "extremely difficult" road through Congress, the Republican chairman of the Senate Budget Committee said yesterday. And that says Democrats, is putting it mildly.

Leaders of both parties said Congress will make significant changes in Reagan's plan for 1984, including lowering taxes and adding money for jobs.

The budget blueprint sent to Capitol Hill yesterday is "short on jobs and long on Pentagon spending," said Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia.

"This is the same story the course budget makers have heard for the past two years," said Rep. James Jones, D-Wis., chairman of the House Budget Committee.

Democrats praised Reagan for making realistic economic forecasts over the next five years. They linked his unemployment of continuing at or over 10 percent and annual budget deficits approaching $200 billion through 1984.

"We think they are not using blue or smoke mirrors," said Assistant House Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas.

But Democrats said that to reduce the deficits, Congress will be looking for reductions in spending for expensive strategic weapons, a program sponsoring short and long-tenure legislation to reduce the 10.8 percent unemployment rate nationwide.

Jones said House Democrats would prepare a comprehensive jobs program designed to put millions of Americans back to work quickly, while retaining the outsourced skills at work in such industries as autos and steel.

Jones and Republican Sen. Pete Domenici, of New Mexico, who heads the Senate Budget Committee, both said Reagan's budget scheme faces tough going.

Domenici said the Senate would not disregard Reagan's budget proposal and start with it all at once — as has in the past. He predicted that this scheme will be the basic components of Reagan's budget that would survive.

But he indicated there would be no reluctance to accept Reagan's budget for fiscal 1984, which begins Oct. 1. Reagan and his top economic aides met with congressional leaders today in a last-ditch appeal, including House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker. As the budget was being formally presented to Congress.

O'Neill said he made a personal appeal to Reagan to yield in his position to proposals for federal tax cuts to ease the unemployment rate.

Generally, O'Neill quoted the president as saying, "We are not that far apart on the size of the budget. But O'Neill said he regarded "I think we are wide apart," he told reporters.

Futures market benefits noted

Various concepts of the trade market were explained last night by Howard Evers, president of Connicy Commodities, Inc., at a professional consulting firm for professionals.

Evers predicted that futures markets are different from the cash markets because in cash markets you buy for immediate delivery, and receive the total in futures, you receive only a down payment. The concept enables futures to gamble on the market in an agreement with buyers.

Evers also explained rollovers, market hedging, and ways of regulating the market.

"You have to be extremely careful," he warned. "It is a highly potent market and it is powerful." He illustrated his point by quoting some of last year's market figures.

"There were 110 million contacts traded in 1982. That is between five and six billion dollars worth of stock, or 1 1/2 times the GNPs." Evers remarked that although the open outcry transactions in 1982 were done "look like Babylon with 5,000 souls shouting at each other, it really does work." The most important thing in dealing with the market, he advised, is to "know what you're doing, or get a broker to do it. It is mind-boggling."

Bush reads Reagan letter to Europeans

BERLIN (AP) — In an open letter to the people of Europe, President Reagan said yesterday he was willing to meet with Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov to sign a pact "banning U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range land-based nuclear missile weapons from the face of the earth."

In Washington, Deputy White House Press Secretary Lyndon Allen said Reagan was not making a new proposal but was simply stating a willingness to sign a pact with Andropov of the Soviet Union as ceases the U.S. "zero-option" program already rejected by the Kremlin.

"banning... from the face of the earth..."

Vice President George Bush read Reagan's letter after delivering a speech of his own in Berlin on the second day of a European tour.

The new element in the proposal was Reagan's willingness to meet with Andropov "wherever and whenever he wants to sign such a pact."

"I make this offer out of a conviction that such an agreement would serve the interests of both sides and, most importantly, that the people of Europe want nothing more."

"I urge Mr. Andropov to accept the offer," said the letter. "Just as our allies can work with the United States to defend Europe at all costs, you can count on us to space no effort to reach a fair and meaningful agreement that will reduce the Soviet nuclear threat."

Bush, in his own speech, said Western Europe must be willing to station hundreds of new missiles on its soil to deter war.

"We dare not be unequal in our arms negotiations, the alliance must be united in its determination to deploy the intermediate force system."

Within economic structure
U.S. industry adapts to changes

BY MARY EILEEN KENNEY
News Staff

James H. Carey, executive vice president and head of the corporate industries Sector of Chase Manhattan Bank, stressed the importance of the adaptation of United States industry to structural changes yesterday afternoon.

He cited several incidents during the past decade which have changed the economic structure of industries, and which has stimulated the need for improved national money management. Carey explained that increasing foreign competition and slacking U.S. technological innovation were just two of the factors that led the Industries Sector of the Chase Manhattan Bank to implement global strategy in maximizing funds.

"We said that because there now exist few isolated corporation markets. U.S. businesses are more selective in their choice of a banking firm. Thus, in Chase Manhattan's cultivation of better customer relationships, it is setting out to meet the challenges of the global market.

According to Mr. Carey, U.S. industries and corporations must strive to surpass their competitors while simultaneously surviving the potentially destructive forces of structural change.

In germfree environment

Pollard researches cancer in rats

By Tom WEYENBERG
B & T Reporter

Cancer research may be hazardous to your rat's health. At Notre Dame's Lobund Laboratories, nearly 2000 rats annually are subjected to cancer-related experimentation in a germfree environment - experiments which parallel the causes and effects of cancer in humans.

According to Dr. Morris Pollard, director of the Lobund Laborato­ries, germfree research "cleans up the expeimental system," providing meaningful, reproducible results by eliminating the possible complication of infection. Among Dr. Pol­lard's current research projects are studies of prostate, intestine, breast, tumor, liver, and bone marrow cancer.

Dr. Pollard's second concern, besides cancer research, is the further development of germfree research in such areas as treatment for human burn victims, protecting the environment from hazardous or­ guments, and improving the quality of laboratory animals.

While all scientific research is expensive, germfree research is even more exspensive, and it is difficult to get the most effec­tive results. The best way to get the most effective results is to use germfree research.

In a recent study, Dr. Pollard, by using a germfree environment, was able to reduce the rate of mortality in people with cancer.

Cancer patients were divided into two groups. Group A was given standard chemotherapy, while Group B was given the same chemotherapy but in a germfree environment.

The results were startling. Group B, the group given chemotherapy in the germfree environment, had a much lower rate of mortality than Group A.

The germfree environment was able to reduce the rate of mortality in cancer patients by 50%.

Dr. Pollard is currently working on a new study to determine the effects of germfree research on the treatment of Seignar’s statement lack concern for truth

Everyone has heard the stories concerning American tourists in Europe, who, if confronted with a misreading, believe that everyone will eventually understand English — if it is spoken slowly enough. While President Reagan may not have had the difficulties of the typical American tourist, he suffers from similar delusions. He seems to believe that the veracity of his statements depends not on the truth of the facts, but on the way it is presented. In his continuing efforts to end the plight of these suffering individuals, President Reagan has proposed a 15 percent reduction in federal spending. In addition, the latest budget proposal suggests terminating Aid for Children with Dependent Children when the child reaches the age of 16. In another cost-saving measure, federal contracts will be given only to companies who can guarantee the highest value of food stamps as income for the poor, thus narrowing their eligibility for other government assistance programs.

President Reagan’s statement on social security reform is a major step toward the destruction of the system. It is a good example of bipartisan compromise. Still, Reagan’s rhetoric does not meet reality in this area. "And, in supporting it, we keep an important promise to the American people: the integrity of the system will be preserved — and no one’s payments will be reduced." But this statement is not quite accurate. Retirees will benefit from other sources totaling $20,000 or more annually will be subject to a tax on their benefits, whereas a majority of seniors will receive net benefits.

The identification of the United States as a whole will be subject to a tax on current savings. Of course, the statement is not quite accurate. Retirees would benefit from other sources totaling $20,000 or more annually will be subject to a tax on their benefits, whereas a majority of seniors will receive net benefits.

Mrs. Rush’s strong support of the United Nuclear Freeze Referendum and her reason for being part of the anti-nuke movement were the topic of the gathering.

I stop eating candy, I will become thin. This is not the case. On the one hand, President Reagan’s statement lack concern for the truth. And, in supporting it, we keep an important promise to the American people: the integrity of the system will be preserved — and no one’s payments will be reduced." But this statement is not quite accurate. Retirees will benefit from other sources totaling $20,000 or more annually will be subject to a tax on their benefits, whereas a majority of seniors will receive net benefits.

Of course, the Federal Budget billions of dollars of defense and social programs — selecting one as self cause of budget deficits is both unfair and misleading.

NEW YORK (AP) — Alberto Salazar, the last American to win the historic, charged yesterday that officials of The Athletics Congress, the Indianapolis-based national governing body for track and field, had lied and denied him $50,000 to $60,000 to run in the Los Angeles Marathon May 14.

Salazar, who said he rejected the offer made late last year, said the officials were Ollan Cassell, TAC executive director, and Alvin Chinos, a lawyer who manages the trust fund for running equipment, track and field athletes under TAC's jurisdiction.

"They were willing to pay me $50,000 to $60,000 to run in the Los Angeles race," Salazar said. "They were trying to buy me off." He said $40,000 of that money would be for traveling to the city the day before the race. Salazar said Chris suggested that would be one way of circumventing TAC's rules against accepting money outright for running. The rest of the money could be put into a trust fund for Salazar, the distance runner claimed.

TAC accused Chris of making comments during a telephone hookup from his home in Eugene, Ore., to a luncheon of the Metropolitan Track Writers' Association.

"We were quoted in yesterday's New York Times as calling Salazar's charge "an incorrect assertion.""

"It doesn't "even have a smell of truth in it," he said.

Attempts by The Associated Press to reach Chris by telephone were unsuccessful. His secretary said he deferred all comments concerning the matter to TAC.

TAC's headquarters in Indianapolis, Cassell said, "This is an affront to Alberto's historic successes." It is the second time in Salazar's comments after winning the 1981 New York City Marathon in which he called the organization "bigwigs" and "thieves."

"This is not a matter," Cassell added. "I've never spoken to Mr. Salazar on the phone. If I were to speak to Mr. Salazar, it wouldn't be to propose something that would violate the rules of The Athletics Congress, something that would jeopardize TAC's and my own standing with the IAAF (the international Amateur Athletics Federation, world governing body for the sport).

"Likewise, no members of the TAC staff have ever made such an offer, either to Mr. Salazar, nor any of his coaches or his support staff.

Salazar said the offer was not made to him directly, but was made through his coach, Bill Dellinger. Dellinger reportedly was out of the country and not available for comment.

Salazar said he decided to disclose the offer because he was not running in the Boston Marathon, which would qualify United States runners for the inaugural World Championships at Helsinki Aug. 1-4. TAC had re-quested that his victory in the 1982 New York City Marathon be his qualifying race for the Championships.

TAC's Long Distance Committee rejected the request at the group's convention at Philadelphia in December.

Caution and criticism

A tale of two "super" coaches

LOS ANGELES (AP) - One glance at the record book told Washington coach Don Shula that Super Bowl XVII success can be fleeting and misleading.

The year after the Pittsburgh Steelers won Super Bowl XVI, they failed to even make the playoffs. The same thing happened to the Oakland Raiders following Super Bowl XV and to the San Francisco 49ers last year.

"I said to my players, and I will tell them again, that some people can deal with adversity better than they can with success," Gibbs said yesterday, the day after his Redskins won Super Bowl XVI with a 27-17 victory over the Miami Dolphins.

"I think what happens when you win is that you sometimes develop problems dealing with players, getting them signed. Suddenly everyone is unhappy. They want more, 'cause you've done more."

He said if the Redskins begin believing they are better than they really are "that would kill us quicker than anything, because we're not a total team. If we come back with that at attitude, we'll get beaten, beaten badly."

Similarily, Gibbs said he has to avoid the same thing happening to the Bill Walsh Syndrome.

The coach of the 49ers won the Super Bowl twice in succession, and this year his team went down the drain.

Witek, in only his second season as Washington's head coach, admit he didn't expect this degree of success, especially not in his first year of coaching.

"It's time for them to start thinking last training camp - and I said honestly at that time, because our schedule was rated the toughest in the NFL - was that, "he said. "We had thought 8-8 again would have been a real feat for us."

But Gibbs, who lost seven players to injury, said, "I don't have any idea if Don Shula could have done better."

John Sherman Williams who had 25 points and 10 rebounds, and James Smith who scored 21 points and game-high 20 rebounds.

The key to the Redskins' victories in three playoff games and the Super Bowl was fullback John Riggins, who ran for 151 productive 100-yard games. He capped his phenomenal postseason with 166 yards on 38 carries, both Super Bowl records, against Miami. And his 5-yard burst on a fourth and 1 situation in the fourth quarter gave Washington its winning touchdown. On Tuesday, though, Riggins becomes a free agent. He could retire - he made an official comment to that effect following the game - or he could sign with another team.

"I don't think he'll be better," Gibbs said. "Of course, he's a very unusual guy, he could very easily say, 'That's it,' but I don't think he will. I don't think he's the kind of guy who would jump to another league or another team."

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) - Former Dolphin players would not question whether Shula waited too long to relieve Woodley, who finished with four completions and 14 attemps.

The Dolphins trailed 20-17 when the Redskins launched a 12-play, 41-yard drive leading to Joe Theismann's 6-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Broyden for a 27-17 advantage.

"We were only down three points, and when it's that close, one big play can turn it around," he said.

Kuechenberg, one of only two Dolphin remaining from the Miami team that appeared in Super Bowls VI, VII and VIII, said the way Washington dominated the game made it difficult to assess if Strock would have made a difference.

"The fault doesn't lie with the quarterback. The offensive line was not controlling the line of scrimmage. I don't have any idea if Don Shula could have done better."

Wichita State 89
Indiana State 81

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) - Forward Antoine Carr and Xavier McDaniels dominated inside play as Wichita State muscled its way past Indiana State to an 89-81 college basketball victory last night in Missouri Valley Conference play.

Wichita State held a slim 42-41 at halftime, overcoming a Sycamore lead that stretched to seven points on an eight-foot jumper by junior center Mark Golden with 7:15 remaining in the half.

In the second half, ISU overcame an eight-point margin, grabbing a 69-68 lead on a three-point jumper by Smith with 8:40 remaining. A slam dunk by Williams pushed the Sycamore lead to three points.

But Wichita State tied the game at 65-61 and took the lead for good. Carr had 26 points and eight rebounds for Wichita, while McDaniels added 20 points and a game-high 11 rebounds.

ISU was led by freshman forward John Sherman Williams who had 25 points and 14 rebounds, and James Smith who scored 21 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

Wichita State is 15-2 overall, with 9-1 in the Missouri. Indiana State falls to 6-1, 1-1 in the conference.

6:11 center racking up 18 of Kentucky's first 20 points in the crucial second half.

The Wildcats came within four on a Turner jumper with 12:30 left to play, and reserve Troy McKeeley pulled Kentucky within 3-1 of 41 points. Two minutes later, Turner nipped the game, 5-5.

But Ellis made a layup and was fouled by Turner, and the free throw with 260 to go allowed Tennessee to pull away.

Another foul with 1:00 left allowed Ellis two free throws and Pullen got the other point.

Kentucky cut the lead to 61-57 with 28 seconds left, but Michael Brooks responded with pair of free throws with 20 seconds left to boost the lead back to six points.

Kerrigan was fouled with two baskets, including Turner's layup with 29 seconds left.

Brooks scored 18 points for Tennessee.

Derek Ford's five points was the most any other Wildcat could must.

Tennessee outscored Kentucky 15-2 in the first seven minutes of the first half with Ellis contributing nine.

But Pullen scored out of 19 points and 11 rebounds in the first half to be knocking Kentucky within 2-25.
Villanova nips Georgetown

Pat was: "He's positively never played better," said Villanova coach Rollie Massimino after watching his Wildcats beat a Georgetown team for the first time since 1965.

Georgetown had beaten Villanova the last six times the teams met.

"We got the ball inside when we had to," Massimino said. "And everything just worked down the stretch. (Georgetown) is a tough, tough team. They play terrific defense."

St. John's Georgetown coach John Thompson: "The momentum shifted, but that's all part of the game. It was a highly emotional game. The Big East is a well-balanced league. All the games are tough."

Horace Broadnax had given Georgetown a 67-64 lead on a layup with 28 seconds remaining. Villanova's John Pinone hit a field goal with 18 seconds to go, and after Georgetown lost the ball out of bounds, Pinone was fouled and converted his game-winning shots.

Pinone added 17 points for Villanova. David Wingate scored 16 points and Michael Jackson had 15 overall and all the top ten teams that will be there.

Barring any sudden injury, the traveling squad will consist of those wrestlers who have held down the number one spots in their weight classes the past few weeks.

Our wrestler who will definitely not make the trip West is 150 lb. sophomore Scott Bennett. Bennett suffered a severe neck injury Saturday and will definitely be out of action for the remainder of the season.

Moving in to replace Bennett in the lineup will be Doug Skinner. Skinner, the team's only senior, is just returning from arthroscopic surgery.

The triangular meet first pits the teams that will be competing in the tournament include Cal State Bakersfield, Cal Poly, Arizona State, San Jose State, and Stanford. The place where Irish coach Bruno has seen coaching duty.

"This will definitely be our toughest competition of the season," said Bruno. "It should be a real test for all of our young wrestlers because of our age and all the top ten teams that will be there.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 4 Memphis State beat Virginia Tech 75-64, Tennessee tripped No. 15 Kentucky 65-91, No. 16 Illinois State ripped Bradley 86-55 and No. 19 Georgia routed Vanderbilt 85-61.

In games involving the top ten teams, Kent State scored 24 points, grabbed 11 rebounds and blocked three shots as Memphis State, 17-1, avenged its only loss of the season by beating Virginia Tech 86-68.

Theismann makes dad proud

Skip Desjardin

Sports Editor Emeritus

PASADENA, Calif. — When it was over, Joe Theismann raced for the sideline — the Miami sideline, that is. There he shook hands with Dolphin head coach Don Shula.

Then he ran, hopped, skipped, and danced across the floor of the Rose Bowl, the game ball held tightly.

"I did a lot of crazy things out there today," Theismann said after the Washington Redskins' 27-17 victory over Miami. "Tear from now, I'll probably look at the films of this game and think, 'Look at that idiot jumping and rolling around and acting like a fool.' But not today. Call me anything you want — I don't care."

Theismann was 15 of 23 for 143 yards against Miami's heralded defense. But the most important play he made all day may have been a defensive one. As the third quarter was nearing an end, a Theismann pass was batted up in the air by heavyweights Mike Golic, who is以下简称 "Big Mike". Theismann said the pass was "fairly close to going out of bounds, but it was kind of a difficult play to make." He added that he was able to react quickly to the play and make a leaping catch to keep the play alive.

"There's a big difference between playing with cheerleaders and playing against them," Shula said. "There's no doubt about that."
