Out-of-court decision made in Go Irish suit

Notre Dame and Fan Action Inc. have reached an out-of-court agreement that will settle a pair of lawsuits involving Go Irish, a local publication covering Notre Dame football.

The agreement will settle a lawsuit filed by Fan Action in September of last year claiming that the University was interfering with the normal business operation of its publication, Go Irish. The University later countersued, claiming that the publication was trying to make itself appear to be connected with Notre Dame.

Under the terms of the agreement, which were signed and submitted to Stark County Circuit Court last week, require the publication to print disclaimers in each issue and advertisement stating that it is not and has never been affiliated with or sanctioned by the university.

"The agreement was signed soon. "I think the parties involved have reached this agreement in an amicable manner," Groves said.

Both sides seemed pleased with the results of the agreement and expressed confidence that the agreement would be signed soon. "I think the parties involved have reached this agreement in an amicable manner," Groves said.

Swimming pool plans finalized

Plans for a swimming pool adjacent to the ACC are in the final stages.

The new pool will be 50 meters long and 25 yards wide, and features two movable bulkheads, making it a multi-purpose facility. Construction of the four-million-dollar pool, which is being designed by Ellerbe Becket Architects, is expected to start in March of next year, weather permitting.

"The pool has absolute flexibility," said Physical Plant Director Don Dedrick. "It will not be used strictly for competition, but also for instruction and recreation.

"The pool will be officially dedicated on September 16."

Two bulkheads that stretch across the pool are the key to its flexibility. The bulkheads rest on the side gutters, and can be rolled up and down and moved because the pool will block the length of the pool. "We could have diving at one end of the pool, recreational swimming in the middle, and water polo at the other end," said Dedrick.

An instructional deck will be a major feature of the new pool. Part of the deck will be separated from the pool by a glass wall, and part will be in the pool area itself.

The diving area at one end of the pool will have three one-meter diving boards and two three-meter boards.

Lockers will be provided for students, the varsity swim teams, faculty, and staff. The ACC will also gain office space, with about 12 new offices to be built in the pool building.

Space for 55 spectators will be provided in a balcony above the pool.

The pool facility will be added to the back of the ACC, starting at gate 6 and going north toward gate 5. The loading dock at gate 6 will have to be moved because the pool will block it, Dedrick noted.

The entrance along Carter field will also be moved back about ten feet to make room for a road behind the pool building.

Entry to the pool will be either through the ACC or from doors next to gate 5.

Pedestrian mall plans completed

Plans have been finalized for sidewalks and an eating area on the new mall, says Physical Plant Director Don Dedrick.

Students will no longer have to walk around a sandy desert on the way to classes or the library. "The place where the old fieldhouse used to be" will soon be covered with grass and sidewalks, and possibly a fountain.

Bench, grassy hills, and trees are other features of the new mall which Dedrick hopes to make a meeting place for the Notre Dame community.

Dedrick's opinion, an especially important part of the mall will be the paved-over area near the LaFortune Student Center. Benches will provide eating and resting place, and symecroes have been planted to give shade.

Paving bricks will be embedded in the concrete, forming a visual focus at the center of the crosswalk.

The area also provides a visual end to the mall, which has been made into an extension of the west lawn of the library. "We continued the line of symecroes going west from the library," said Dedrick. The X-pattern of sidewalks will also be duplicated down the mall.

The mall was not finished during the summer because of the many steam tunnels, sewer lines, and sprinklers, as well as the fieldhouse foundations which had to be removed or replaced.

A continuation of the mall will be found in front of the Center for Social Concerns in the form of a concrete and brick patio.

A fountain might be constructed in the center of the mall, but no plans have been made yet, noted Dedrick.

The Thames Water Authority awarded a 46- year-old auto mechanic a trophy, a fishing rod, and $370 yesterday for being the first angler in 150 years to hook a salmon in the River Thames. "It was nothing," said Russell Ding, from the southwest London suburb of Stanwell. "The salmon was knocked over (exhausted). For a salmon, he didn't put up much of a fight." Ding reeled the six-pound 12-ounce salmon into his boat on Aug. 25 near Chessery Weir pool, upstream from the capital. High fish, chief ex-ecutive of the water authority, said at the award ceremony that Ding's catch proves anti-pollution efforts have succeeded in cleaning up the river. "The catching of a salmon by rod and line proves beyond all doubt that the Thames is now clean and will support even the most fastidious of fish," he said. - AP

Arabic-speaking hijackers freed their last 19 hostages from an Air France jetliner in Tehran yesterday and then surrendered, ending a five-day ordeal during which they forced an American passenger to kneel on the tarmac for 45 minutes with a gun to his head. Iranian officials said five hijackers gave themselves up, but four radio activists said they were still free in the grants that seized the jet's Saturday on a flight from Vienna to Paris and diverted it to Tehran Sunday. They released more than 90 other passengers at stops along the way. Dr. 55-year-old wife, Margaret Ann, of Birmidford, Mass., were among the eight passengers and seven crew freed in Tehran. The Parthenon, one of the glories of ancient Greece, has lost some of its glory over two millennia and the government has announced plans to spend $15 million to restore some of the ravaged statue. Minister Melina Mercouri announced yesterday that a way had been found to restore the temple without marring its famous silhouette with scaffolding. For eight years experts have been working out a plan to save the Parthenon and the Erechtheum temple, which share the summit of the Acropolis, high above Athens. In addition to the wear and tear of nearly 25 centuries, both monuments have suffered the modern ravages of industrial pollution. Acid rain already has eaten away the delicately carved faces of the carvings — the six sculptured female figures that support a porch on the Erechtheum. The government has spent more than $2.1 mil lion in the past six years restoring the Acropolis temples, which are visited by an estimated 5,000 to 10,000 people daily. - AP

By a 2 to 1 margin, Americans would prefer a nude hotel to the floor lower income tax rates to a government that forces it to find new revenues, according to a Gallup poll commissioned by a federal-state panel. The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations said Wednesday that the survey found that the income tax, considered by most economists to be the most regressive of all forms of taxation, is viewed by the public as the least fair tax it pays. The revolt against the income tax follows polls showing interest, the survey also found, with higher-income groups giving much more support for the sales tax than lower-income respondents. Asked what would be the best way to raise federal taxes, if that becomes necessary, 52 percent of those polled chose a new national sales tax on all purchases other than food. Twenty-four percent preferred higher-income taxes and 25 percent said they didn't know. - AP

Nuclear armament class begun with address by Father Hesburgh

By THERESA GUARINO Staff Reporter

The nuclear dilemma has pained humans into a corner from which we must emerge together, said University President Father Theodore Hesburgh yesterday at the first meeting of a new class on nuclear armament.

Hesburgh's involvement in the nuclear armament issue began two years ago when the university set aside a day to look at the issue. "It suddenly came home to me that all other issues, such as world hunger, would be irrelevant if we didn't solve the nuclear threat," he said.

Hesburgh then called together two groups of world scientists and religious leaders in the hope that they could discuss the problem. The scientists were needed to lend credibility to their statements, since "people tend to say that religious leaders don't know what they're talking about," Hesburgh said.

Numerous conferences have been held in Vienna, Jerusalem and the Vatican over the past several years. Thirty-six members of the Academy of Science met at the Vatican and composed a five-page statement declaring that the only answer to the nuclear dilemma is to eliminate all such weapons.

Hesburgh also spoke about the consequences of nuclear war, saying, "at the worst we would have obliterated humanity or reduced it to the stone age.

"The first two bombs (Hiroshima and Nagasaki) eliminated what were one million times this force. We used, according to Father Theodore Hesburgh, said, "The primary issue is supervision." Some individuals arrived without coaches and other students were poorly supervised.

Athletes who were eliminated from the competition on Wednesday were allowed to stay until its completion on Sunday.

Beauchamp, noted that the hall managers employed by the university did everything they could, but "the problem was more than they could handle." In some cases, these managers had little support from the adult supervisors.

Beauchamp assumes that the hall managers "wouldn't bring in a program like this again," but added, "if we did, we would insist upon the fact that the organization would supply adequate supervision or we ourselves would provide supervision.

"We thought it would be neat having the Junior Olympics here. On the surface, with the assurances we were given, it seemed like something that would be good to have here," said Beauchamp, adding that officials involved are "very disappointed.

"We're evaluating the whole summer program," Beauchamp said. This includes summer camps that the university sponsors and other outside organizations such as The American Youth on Parado, who stayed at the campus the week before the Junior Olympics.

"I don't want to give the impression that there were ravaging hordes running through the halls," said Beauchamp. "Overall, a large percentage were well behaved.

"Everything that had to be repaired to be usable has been repaired," Beauchamp said. The AAI paid for all repairs.

Jr. Olympians' vandalism repaired

By AMY STEPHAN Copy Editor

Broken screens, mattresses, and sinks, locks clogged with super glue, and punched-out ping pong tiles are some of the remnants that 4,800 Junior Olympic left when they held their national meet at Notre Dame this summer.

The athletes were housed in almost every dorm on campus and caused some damage to every dorm they used, according to Father William Beauchamp, assistant to the executive vice president.

Beauchamp added "disaposive activities," which brought complaints from some summer students and "overwhelmed" the hall managers, were an even larger concern in the vandalism.

A general lack of organization of the part of the AAI (Amateur Athletic Union) was behind the problem, said Beauchamp.

The AAI allowed students to register late for a $5 late fee. Thus, although only 4,800 students were registered for the program, 4,800 students showed up and university officials had to find housing for these unexpected guests.

Beauchamp said, "The primary issue is supervision." Some individuals arrived without coaches and other students were poorly supervised.

Korean jet lands on Soviet island

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) A South Korean jetliner that was missing for hours while en route from New York to Seoul with 269 people aboard, including a U.S. congresswoman, landed safely today on a Soviet island, Korean Air Lines said.

The airline did not say why the plane had landed on the island of Sakhalin, although a KAL spokesman in New York, Bonnie Willics, said she had been told it was a forced landing. She said arrangements were being made to send an alternate plane to the island to pick up the passengers and bring them to Korea.

The Boeing 747 had been unaccounted for since it last gave its position southeast of Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost main island, more than six hours before the first report that it had landed on Sakhalin. The Soviet island is north of Hokkaido.

Among the passengers was U.S. Rep. Lawrence P. McDonald, D-Ga. His staff said he was going to South Korea to attend a ceremony marking the 50th anniversary of the U.S.-South Korea defense pact.

An assistant of Rep. McDonald, Nelson Brown in Washington, confirmed that the 84-year-old congressman was a diplomat on the plane.

A spokesman for Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said McDonald was making the trip at the invitation of Helms and several other senators.

South Korea and the Soviet Union have no diplomatic relations.

Economic slowdown hailed as good news

WASHINGTON (AP) The government said yesterday its main economic forecasting gauge rose last month, the smallest gain in almost a year. But Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige welcomed the slowdown, saying "this recovery's strong phase...is largely behind us," and more moderate and sustainable growth likely will follow.

Tom Robinson of Merrill Lynch agreed, saying the report offered an "additional sign" that the economy will not continue to expand as rapidly as it reckined inflation and higher interest rates.

The forecasting gauge, the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators, is a compilation of a dozen forward-foresight indexes covering manufacturing, employment, prices and other areas.

The index rose in June, with a 0.9 percent increase, to 102.5 from 101.6 in May. That was less than a percentage point. Strong advances of 3.1 percent in January and 2 percent in March were posted.

Economists have said they feared that as businesses increased their borrowing for expansion in the recovery, their needs for credit would collide with the government's record borrowing to cover the federal budget deficit. Thus the competition for money would push interest rates higher.

Wednesday's report said seven of the 11 available indicators rose in July, with the biggest contribution coming from an increase in outstanding consumer credit. Consumer willingness to take on more debt is often interpreted as a sign of confidence in the economy.

Also boosting the indexes were increases for the average workweek, manufacturer's new orders for consumer goods and materials, building permits, stock prices and the money supply, and a decline in initial weekly claims for state unemployment benefits.

One was unchanged, the speed at which vendors were delivering goods. Index components measuring wholesale performance in July were consistent with expectations for new businesses, contracts and orders for plant and equipment and sensitive materials prices.

One component, that measuring changes in inventories, was not available for the month.

"Other recent reports have shown that housing sales, retail sales and orders to factories fell last month, but this has led some economists to believe that the awaited slowdown hasn't yet arrived," he said. "That, combined with the third quarter, following the vigorous annual growth rate of 9.2 percent reported for the April-June period."

July's advance in the index was the smallest since last August, when the index fell 0.1 percent, the report said. It was the only one this year that had less than a percentage point. Strong advances of 3.1 percent in January and 2 percent in March were posted.

Barclays economists have said they feared that as businesses increased their borrowing for expansion in the recovery, their needs for credit would collide with the government's record borrowing to cover the federal budget deficit. Thus the competition for money would push interest rates higher.
Riot police clash with solidarity supporters

WARSAW, Poland (AP) Riot police clashed with more than 10,000 Solidarity supporters in cities yesterday, but allowed Lech Walesa and 2,000 others in Gdansk to demonstrate in peace yesterday on the third anniversary of the outlawed independent labor federation.

The police also let more than 1,000 workers march peacefully in Warsaw for two hours. And when they moved in to disperse another crowd of 5,000, violence was minimal.

The demonstrations, called by Solidarity's underground committee, were the first on a national scale since the lifting of martial law July 22. However, they were not nearly as widespread as those last Aug. 31.

The biggest turnout was reported in Nowa Huta, the southern Polish industrial city where a worker was killed as striking May 1 and another was shot by police during a demonstration after Solidarity was outlawed last Oct. 8.

An estimated 10,000 workers poured out of the Lenin steel works after the day shift and marched toward the center of the city, chanting "Solidarity" and other pro-union slogans, a government spokesman who witnessed the march reported.

Riot police blocked them, firing tear gas and spraying them with water cannon, the spokesman said. Witnesses said the demonstrators hurled stones at the police and at other marchers.

Several people were injured, and a number of the marchers were arrested, the official said. Clashes reportedly continued into the evening.

A violent police reaction also was reported in the southeastern city of Wroclaw. Officials there said the police used tear gas to disperse a crowd that tried to place flowers on the grave of a young worker killed during a demonstration a year ago.

In Warsaw, more than 1,000 steel and automobile factor workers marched without interference from 2 to 4 p.m., the hours set by the Solidarity underground for a boycott of public transport and street marches.

Meanwhile, 5,000 Solidarity backers assembled in central Constitution Square, whistling and clapping at small police patrols who moved among them urging them to move on.

Eight killed in mental home blaze

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) A fire that quickly spread through a rustic cottage-style dormitory at a rural home for the mentally handicapped killed eight people yesterday and injured two as they slept, authorities said.

The fire, which apparently started in faulty electrical wiring, broke out between 1:30 a.m. and 2 a.m. in one of four dormitories at Annandale Village, a private center located on 100 wooded acres about 35 miles northeast of Atlanta. Sixteen residents and four staff members were sleeping in the one-story building at the time.

The dead - four men and four women, all residents of the center - were not identified immediately. Their bodies were taken to the Gwinnett County morgue.

Eight other residents and the four staff members escaped, but two of the residents were hospitalized for treatment of smoke inhalation and minor burns. They were listed in satisfactory condition at Buford General Hospital.

Johnny Griffin, one of the staff members who lived at the cottage, said he was sleeping in his basement bedroom and was awakened by one of the alarms. He said he smelled smoke and heard someone banging on a door upstairs.

"I opened my apartment door and the smoke just rushed in and choked me," he said. He rushed next door to another cottage and asked someone to call the fire department.

Tom Griffin, acting fire chief of Gwinnett County, said the survivors "got out right away ... I have no real way to determine why some got out and some didn't."

The building, the oldest of Annandale's dormitories, was equipped with smoke detectors and fire alarms, and the fire department had conducted drills at the home recently, Griffin said.

Challenger successfully launches Indian weather satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger’s astronauts launched a triple-duty satellite for India yesterday and were told by President Reagan that the space flight of America’s first black astronaut demonstrates that “we are in an era of brotherhood here in our land.”

But the astronauts were later startled by the high, piercing sound of an alarm signaling the possibility of fire in an instrument bay. The alarm turned out to be false.

Reagan also found inspiration in the part being played by Dr. William Thornton, who is aboard the shuttle to learn why some astronauts get sick.

"Bill, at 54 the oldest astronaut ever to fly in space, you have an especially warm place in my heart," said the president, who likes to joke about the fact that he is 72. "It makes me think of some day I might be able to go along."

The president was at his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., and the shuttle was 184 miles high, en route from Hawaii toward the West Coast on its 23rd trip around the Earth.

The astronauts were ending a day in which they made their $250 million satellite delivery, the most important part of their six-day flight.

Reagan told Lt. Col. Guion Bluford, the first black man to earn the gold pin that denotes an astronaut who has flown, that he is paving the way for many others.

"You are making it plain we are in an era of brotherhood here in our land and you will serve as a role model for so many others and be so inspirational," Reagan said. "I can’t help but express my gratitude for you."

Earlier, when Mission Control asked Commander Richard Truly how things were going, he exclaimed: "Shoot, we never had so much fun in our whole lives."

The satellite, which can handle more than 8,000 telephone circuits and beam television to receivers in 100,000 rural communities, will also improve weather forecasting in India.

"The deployment was on time ... and the satellite looks good," mission specialist Bluford reported as the payload spun away. He said the crew felt a "slight clunk" as the satellite was released.

It was the sixth successful communications satellite launch for a shuttle crew. Bluford gave the commands that started the satellite spinning at 40 rpm for stability. At 5:49 a.m. EDT, he pushed a button that sprang the payload out of the cargo bay.

Truly fired Challenger’s engines so the ship was a safe 12 miles away when the satellite’s onboard rocket fired 45 minutes later to propel it toward parking space 22,900 miles above the equator south of India. It will it each that spot Friday.

INMST is equipped to transmit weather photos every half hour, a boon to many segments of India’s economy, including agriculture and aviation. Flood control, irrigation planning and disaster warnings are important benefits anticipated.

James W. Frick, vice president for public relations, alumni affairs and development at Notre Dame was named assistant to Father Theodore Hesburgh, University president, this summer.

William P. Sexton, chairman of the University’s management department was named as Frick’s replacement. Sexton will assume the position Thursday.

Frick’s new position will be as a consultant to the University. He had announced his intention to retire last spring and to serve as a consultant.

Among Frick’s notable accomplishments is raising more than $300 million for the University as vice president. Sexton will oversee the alumni association, special projects for development, information services and the Notre Dame Magazine.

Sexton came to Notre Dame in 1966 as a faculty member in the College of Business Administration. He has been head of the management department since 1976 and has directed the master’s program in administration.

Frick, 34, a 1960 graduate of Dartmouth College and a 1966 Notre Dame law graduate, served as associate director of the university association, and as budget director and director of the university promotion office. He is now director of alumni relations.

Lebanese government recaptures West Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) About 10,000 Lebanese army troops, backed by tanks, artillery and machine guns, swept into West Beirut in three columns yesterday, routing Druze and Shiite Moslem militiamen in fierce house-to-house combat. The state radio said the troops restored control over virtually all the city's Moslem sector.

Thunderous artillery barrages, either from Syrian-held positions outside the city or Lebanese army batteries, shook the city. Police said 24 people were killed, including six Lebanese soldiers, and 49 wounded. The army said it captured 40 militia groups, including seven Palestinians and four Syrians.

The latest deaths brought the casualty toll in the fighting that began Sunday to 79 killed, including two U.S. Marines, five Frenchmen and 27 Lebanese soldiers, plus 326 wounded, including 14 American Marines, seven French troops, three Italians and 89 Lebanese soldiers.

The Americans, French and Italians are part of an international peacekeeping force in Beirut.

Fighting also broke out in Tripoli yesterday between rival Moslem militia groups. And police said 25 people were killed and 60 wounded in the battles 50 miles north of Beirut.

With the army pursuing the militia in West Beirut, President Amin Gemayel offered his political opponents a "national reconciliation dialogue" designed to "chart Lebanon's future within the framework of territorial integrity and total sovereignty."

But Druze leader Walid Jumblatt, whose Progressive Socialist Party militia battled the army alongside Shiite Moslems, rejected the offer and called on all other Lebanese politicians to do the same.

"It is treachery," Jumblatt said in a statement issued in Damascus. "On the one hand they send their army to kill and butcher the Moslems of West Beirut and on the other, they invite us for a dialogue just to fool our people and public opinion."

Nabih Berri, leader of the largest Shiite militia group, Amal, denounced sending the army into West Beirut and appealed to Arab heads of state to halt "the massacre of Moslems in Beirut."

Gemayel, a Christian, is allied with the dominant rightist Phalange Party, and his army is Christian-led, although made up largely of Moslem troops.

The three Lebanese army brigades pushed westward from the old Green Line that divides the city into Moslem and Christian halves.

Their M-48 tanks and armored personnel carriers advanced with tank cannon and machine guns firing.

The Laborites were in touch with members of at least two of Begin's partners, the National Religious Party and TAMI, an ethnic faction representing Sephardic (Oriental) Jews. They have nine seats.

The leader of another religious party in the present coalition, Avraham Begaev of Agudat Israel, made clear that Begin's successor would have to negotiate to retain the support of his party's four members in the Knesset.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens said the committee vote would be by secret ballot. No matter who won, he added, "we will continue the policies that have been followed under Mr. Begin."

Much depended on whether the popular 70-year-old prime minister would give his blessing to either candidate. In the past, he has preferred Shamir, a 68-year-old Moshe, in the underground fight for Jewish statehood in Palestine.

This pier on the St. Joseph river, built this past summer, was the site of the Rowing Club's accident Sunday. Six members suffered burns caused by a weather-resistant pier finish in the water. The students are now recuperating.

NEW YORK (AP) — France's Yvanick Noah, showing no ill effects from his 5-7, 6-2, 6-4 victory over John McEnroe on Tuesday, defeated young Scot Davis 6-1, 7-6, 6-4 yesterday in a first-round match in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Noah, a 19-year-old, who captivated the French Open in May — the first Frenchman to win that clay court title since 1946 — was joined in the second round by Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, the No. 2 seed. Lendl brushed aside Florin Segarceanu of Romania 6-2, 6-0, 6-2 at the National Tennis Center in Flushing Meadows, and No. 5 Mats Wilander of Sweden swept Guy Forget of France 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Also winning her opening-round match was defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd, who dropped the first game before crushing Britain's Shirley Wale 6-1, 6-0.

Noah has only played one other Pro Tennis Tour match since the French Open — partly because of a 42-day suspension and partly because of residiments in his right eye.

The injury forced him to retire during an opening-round match in the Prague International tournament in Munich, and he later pulled out of the ATP championships for the same reason.

Against Davis, a member of the U.S. Davis Cup team and a qualifier here, Noah's all-court game was in command. The match was delayed for over an hour when Davis held serve to begin the fourth set. But Noah, who won his first-round match against Emilie Raponi Longo of Argentina in the first match on today.

Besides Noah, other seeded women won their opening-round matches Wednesday in- cluded No. 9 Andrea Tavana of Hungary, No. 10 Julie Doris of Britain, No. 10 Zina Garrison, No. 13 Barbara Parrotter, and No. 13 Claudia Koidhe of West Germany.

Temenoswaris defeated Jill Davis 6-3, 7-6; Durie ousted Ros Fairbank of South Africa 6-3, 7-6; and Pablo Alfonso eliminated Leigh Thompson 7-5, 6-1; and Yvonne Barnes and Carolina Callea of France 6-2, 6-2.

Other seeded men who advanced were Nos. 10 John McEnroe, defeated by Thomas Muster of Austria 6-3, 6-1, 7-6, and No. 10 Jimmy Connors, defeated by Alex Metreveli of Georgia 6-4, 6-1.

Mats Wilander of Sweden notched his third straight win over Jimmy Connors 3-6, 7-5, 6-1. 6-1.

Joachim Johansson of Sweden, who was on deck.

Noah, showing no ill effects

Gold says Kelly. "I would be terribly disappointed if he didn't get better day by day, week by week."

If he does continue to improve, the defense may have to change its name from the "Gold Rush" to the "Gold & Blue Wrecking Crew."

On the strongside is the season veteran, Rick Naylor. The coaches are expecting more from the veteran Naylor than he contributed last season.

"He's had some great games," recalls his coach Greg Blache, "but he needs consistency."

The consistency to which Blache was referring was lacking in Naylor's game last season. For example, against Michigan, Naylor played superbly with nine tackles, but the next week against Purdue he failed to make a stop. Against Oregon he was credited with eight stops, but, in the next game against Navy, he had only one tackle.

In the unbalanced 5-2, Naylor will line up on the line of scrimmage alongside the down linemen, but occasionally he will drop off to form a 4-3. Blache also indicates that the Irish will play a 5-4 if necessary. "Rick has the flexibility to play on and off," says Blache. "With his experience, he knows how to handle those situations." At defensive end is Mike Golic, perhaps ready to step out of the shadow of his older brother, Bob, who is now with the Cleveland Browns. "Mike worked hard this summer," comments Blache. "He's bigger and stronger and doing a good job for us so far."

Playing behind Kevin Griffin for two seasons, Golic turned heads at the Blue-Gold game in May when he was the game's defensive MVP with six tackles.

Backing up Golic are sophomore John McCabe and freshman Robert Banks. McCabe appears to have found a home at end while Banks is going through the pains of transition from high school to college.

"Ranks is struggling with the system," says Blache. "He's handling it all well but he needs time and experience. We are not disappointed. He's had to go from learning 3 or 4 coverages in high school to 10 or 12 here."

With the lone exception of Naylor, the middle of the defense will be inexperienced and thus unpredictable at times. Lonkin was counted on heavily because of his experience and consistency, but his absence forces Coach Faust to shuffle his cards knowing all the while the ace is on the sidelines.

Victory '83 upsets Aussie contender

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Victory '83 of England posted a major upset in the America's Cup trials on Thursday, defeating Australia II and its vaunted winged keel by 13 seconds in the first race of the foreign finals.

The British boat, which has experimented with removable wings on its own keel, grabbed a 14-second lead at the start and didn't trail at any of the marks in the 24.4-mile race, held under 19-knot winds and choppy seas on Rhode Island Sound.

Victory '83 now leads 1-0 in the best-of-seven series that determines which 12-meter foreign yacht will challenge a U.S. boat for the sailing world's top prize.

Australia II's innovative wing-like keel has helped the boat dominate the windward legs of races all summer. But the Aussies cut the British lead by only three seconds on the third leg and lost 27 seconds on the second windward leg.

The British boat held a 45-second lead going into the final windward leg. The Aussies made up 32 seconds during a furious tacking duel on the last leg, but Victory '83 crossed the finish line 13 seconds ahead.

Both boats flew protest flags, which will force an immediate hearing on any rules infractions. The outcome of the protest was expected to be announced Thursday, according to officials of the challenger race committee.

Meanwhile, Liberty and Courageous split two shortened races yesterday as the U.S. finals continued. Liberty was ahead by 31 seconds in the first race, shortened to three legs, and Courageous led by 1:06 in the two-leg second match.

In the day's final race, Liberty topped Courageous by 42 seconds over a shortened, eight-mile course. The New York Yacht Club must pick one of the boats to defend the Cup by Sept. 8. The two 12-meter yachts have almost identical records in the final series, making the NYYC's job tougher, although Liberty has a better overall record this summer.

A foreign challenger and a U.S. defender will battle for the Cup in a best-of-seven final series beginning Sept. 15.

The start of the foreign finals had been delayed for three days due to fickle winds.

Australia II had roared through the preliminary races with a 4-4-5 record and was a heavy favorite to quickly defeat the British boat. Victory '83 was 31-18 in the preliminaries, but had won only two of nine races against the Aussie yacht.
Quarry scores TKO against Guerra

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Former heavyweight contender Jerry Quarry began his comeback last night by making short work of unheralded Lupe Guerra, needing only four punches to score a first round TKO.

Quarry, who had fought only once in the past eight years, roared out of his corner and raced out to meet Guerra. The 38-year-old wasted little time as he slammed Guerra to the canvas with a powerful left hook in the second in the first round.

Guerra, who was named as an 11th-hour replacement this week for Rocky Casale, got back on his feet. But he did not stay up long. Quarry was immediately on top of him. He threw three punches and the third was another left hook that put Guerra on his back again.

Guerra's corner threw in the towel, and the bout was stopped 12 seconds after it had begun.

Quarry, whose last fight was in 1977, has returned to the ring with hopes of winning a world championship. Although he never captured the title in the heavyweight ranks, he has started down the road that he hopes will end with a cruiserweight crown.

Quarry said of the first blow that stunned Guerra and determined the outcome of the bout.

Quarry said he will next fight on Sept. 28 in Scranton, Pa. The announced opponent is Steve Morano.

Quarry, who in his prime had fought heavyweight champions Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier, improved his record to 52-9-4. Guerra, out of Omaha, Neb., dropped to 22-9-1.

Broken arm sidelines Larkin for season

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Assistant Sports Editor

Gerry Faust's voice was understable somberly yesterday afternoon when he announced at the annual Skywriters' Luncheon that junior linebacker Mike Larkin would be lost for the 1983 football season with a broken left arm.

The injury occurred in practice on Monday, but was not diagnosed as a broken arm until yesterday. The arm was broken last spring which kept him out of the final practice and out of the Blue-Gold game.

"He had been wearing a pad over his arm, but it was a case of wearing the wrong pad at the wrong time."

The 6-1, 219-lb. Larkin was the regular weakside linebacker last season after having an impressive freshman year. He was second on the team to Mark Zavaghin in tackles with 112, one behind Zavaghin's total of 113.

"Obviously, Larkin, probably one of the quickest linebackers in Notre Dame history, will be difficult to replace. It is no surprise that Faust is not ready to make a commitment on a replacement.

"I'm not ready to make a decision about who'll replace Mike," said Faust. "I'm going to talk to the players before I make the decision."

It appears that sophomore John McCabe, senior Tom Murphy, or junior Joe Bars will take over the spot. Fortunately for the Irish, the linebacking corps is one of the deepest groups on the squad.
