Real estate confusion reigns in tavern district

There is additional real estate confusion in the Five Points tavern district these days. Harold Rowley, owner of Corby's Tavern, says he is negotiating for the purchase of the bookstore property recently leased by State Rep. B. J. McGuire and owner of Bridget McGuire's Pilling Station. However, the bookstore property owner, Ben Schwartz of Maumelle, Ark., says Rowley has never given him the impression that he is sincerely interested in the property.

“If you want to call it negotiating... We have occasionally talked, but it never gets to the offering stage,” said Schwartz.

Schwartz told The Observer he would consider selling the property, but “no one has made an offer.”

He said he last spoke with Rowley early last week while he was away in South Bend. At that time Schwartz signed a parking agreement with Bauer. Under the lease, Bridget's patrons have access to 13 parking spaces on Schwartz's Pandoras Books property.

Rowley says he has paid for an appraisal of the property which valued the land at $85,000. “I plan to provide him [Schwartz] with a copy of the appraisal soon,” he says. Then he plans to make Schwartz an offer on the land.

Rowley will only say he plans to establish “another commercial activity not related to liquor” on the property if it purchases it. "My interests have nothing to do with Corby's Tavern or Bridget McGuire's," said Rowley.

Galvin Life Science Center slates $3 million addition for January

By AMY STEPHAN

Pending zoning approval, construction on a $3 million addition to Galvin Life Science Center should begin in January, said Director of Physical Plant Donald Dedrick. The addition, which has been in the works for four years, will house the animal research center.

The planned addition, which will be built onto the east side of the building, extends nearly to Juniper Rd, to meet current zoning regulations. Dedrick noted that the building owners “doubt believe as the building extends onto the property where that zoning would be a problem.” He added, however, that since the road curves near the addition, it conflicts with zoning lines.

The request for zoning variance will be considered “sometime next week,” said Dedrick. If the zone variance is not approved, he said, “we will have to go back and redesign the building and settle for less than optimum.”

The planned animal research center is “absolutely incredible” said Weinstein, noting that the building will have special units for change of air, temperature and humidity control. “The physical environment will be given very sophisticated attention,” he said.

The two-story addition will provide 24,000 square feet of space — nearly a 20 percent increase in space for the Galvin Life Science Center. One story will be underground and the other above ground, said Dedrick.

The building will be used for teaching purposes and research, said Dr. Paul Weinstein, professor of biology. The planned animal research center will be built for “absolute flexibility.”

Talking to wise guys, like putting clean sheets on a bed, is not fun.

My roommate sweats that he'd rather burn in hell than face a stack of mattresses all needing sheets, and he likes wise guys even less.

The trouble with wise guys is that they violate the basic requirement for social survival: it's best to be as dumb as the next guy.

Thus I have made it a point never to remember whether one at zero equals one or because of a flat left over, I decided that if I do, somebody will beat me up for being a wise guy.

One night in the history of junior high school, a bunch of us were discussing a trigonometry text for the next day. One boy whose physique we all admired insisted that sine at zero equals zero.

"No," said the smartest boy in the class from behind his horn-rimmed glasses. "The sine of zero equals zero.

" Shut up, you wise guy," said the boy whose physique we all admired as he ground the horn-rimmed glasses beneath his trig textbook.

That's when I realized it's smart to be dumb, and I've since worked hard to avoid demonstrating any more intelligence than absolutely necessary. But it isn't easy. I'm an editor in a college in which no one in my college in particular has made a quack a hotline. Professors want us to increase our knowledge to a point of saturation, while we are trying to be as dumb as the next guy. In the meantime, two processes are opposite--like rubbing a cat's fur the wrong way.

A delicate balance is needed.

Last semester, for example, someone doing a public opinion poll called me. Just how much did I like McDonald's McNuggets? A lot, I said. Then they asked me who won the first congressmen ever elected speaker of the House during his first term? (a) Harry Claggett (b) Henry Clay (c) Henry Kissinger (d) I don't know.

Not remembering much from my history classes, I answered (d) because just like 9,999 people out of 10, I knew all about that. As for El Salvador, don't ask me.

But they clearly expected a name of a new trig function, so I've been demonstrating any more intelligence than absolutely necessary. But it isn't easy, and even more so since 1981.

I mention all this because the U.S. government for the degree of dumbness it has achieved in Central America.

But after all, it's smart to be dumb. And a wise guy could at least try to overthrow the communist system.

Other activities planned for this year include various speakers and films, a mini retreat in February, a display from the Catholic Relief Service on world hunger, and the Wednesday Lental fast.

Kremlin continues anti-U.S. stance, attacks American nuclear policy
Associated Press
MOSCOW -- The Kremlin kept up its offensive against the Reagan administration yesterday, releasing the second harsh anti-U.S. statement in two days from President Yuri V. Andropov.

In a statement issued through the official Tass news agency on Wed­nesday, the Soviet leader charged that the Reagan administration was behaving in a way that raised ques­tions about its pledge not to start a nuclear war. He also reiterated offi­cial statements blaming the United States for the Soviet attack on a South Korean airliner.

Then yesterday, Tass carried an Andropov statement that accused the United States and its allies of "conducting a policy of militarism and military dictator, flouting the standards of international law and norms and resorting to most shame­ful provocations."

"These forces seek to poison the international climate and create an atmosphere of distrust and enmity in interna­tional relations. There is an ad­venturist, criminal policy. It is fraught with the danger of nuclear conflict and jeopardizes all peoples, their life, their security and their freedom," he said.

He made those remarks Wednes­day during a meeting with South Yemen leader Ali Namer Musam­med. But Tass did not report the meeting or the remarks until last night, indicating Andropov wanted to assure that his Wednesday state­ment through Tass would receive undiluted world attention.

"I don't think you could really find something comparable in the recent past carrying the signature of the general secretary," one well­informed NATO diplomat said of the Andropov statements.

Although Andropov's name gave the Wednesday statement on the Korean plane extra weight, the diplomat said "I think it is significant that the time (Andropov has adopted) is not sharper than what has been published already as the of­ficial Soviet position since the downing of the South Korean air­plane."

Pilots of Continental Airline union vote to join flight attendant strike

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Executives of the Continental Airlines pilots' union voted yesterday to strike along with flight attendants, but the financially crippled carrier predicted that most of the pilots now working would remain on the job.

Continental said that despite the pilots' strike, it would continue operating as it has since Tuesday, when it resumed some flights after filing for bankruptcy court protection from creditors on Saturday.

Pilots for 47 airlines, including Continental, last month grounded all planes to call attention to a disease plaguing the industry.

Halting flights of most of the nation's jetliners for a "day or two" would give a message "to the government and to the public" that the industry is in economic trouble because of airline deregulation, the executive council of the Air Line Pilots Association said. The 47-member group includes a member from each airline whose pilots are covered by the association.

A panel of Continental pilot union executives called the strike for 2 a.m. CDT yesterday and vowed to stay off the job until a "satisfactory back-to-work agreement is negotiated," said Gary Thomas, a spokesman for Continental pilots in Houston.

Thomas said the decision by Continental pilots was referred to the executive council of the Air Line Pilots Association in hopes that the council would take action in support of the strike.

Continental airlines is "fully prepared to operate," in case of a pilots' strike, "as we have been expecting this reaction by the union leadership," said airline spokesman Bruce Hicks.

Flight attendants also voted unanimously Wednesday to strike Continental tomorrow, but left the door open for a settlement, said Marilyn Wade, of the Union of Flight Attendants in Los Angeles.

About 30 percent of the 2,800 flight attendants are working, said Davenda Hardy, head of the Union of Flight Attendants in Houston.

Hardy said new wages and work rules were "unreasonable" and said the company was "totally dismantling the seniority system."

Hicks was out of the office and unavailable later yesterday to comment on the possible effect of the flight attendants' strike.

Pilots' association spokesman John Mazor said if a full strike were called, it would be "a strike by everyone."

Ralph Barkenrider, executive admin­istrator of the Allied Pilots Association, which represents 4,000 pilots who fly for American Airlines, said that union has not decided whether to take any action.

A resolution adopted by pilots of Continental, formerly the nation's eighth largest airline, charged the carrier with implementing unsafe operating as it has since Tuesday, when it resumed some flights after filing for bankruptcy court protec­tion from creditors on Saturday. pilots who fly for American Airlines, union would give a message to the government and to the public" that the industry is in economic trouble because of airline deregulation, the executive council of the Air Line Pilots Association said. First father/daughter weekend begins today

By REBECCA HETLAND

Fathers of St. Mary's seniors will invade what was once a mother/daughter tradition so the College's first father/daughter weekend gets underway with a cocktail party at the Marriott at 8 tonight.

Saint Mary's Senior Class Vice President Denise Drake explained that the father/daughter weekend originated as part of her campaign platform last spring. Since her election, Drake has worked to implement this plan.

One hundred and eight fathers of Saint Mary's seniors are expected to participate in the weekend, which opens with tonight's cocktail and hot hors d'oeuvres party, according to Drake.

The Father/Daughter Sports Festival will take place tomorrow. Festival activities include tennis, golf, swimming, racquetball, and a 5K race. Saturday's events will take place at the Marriott and include tailgating.

Drake noted that the Marriott Hotel offered a special discount to fathers participating in the event. Her co-organizers are Diane Turlow, Eileen Ryan, Jean Brown, Kathleen Casey, Lindy Thill, Maura Keyes, and Jane Baue. Each co-organizer is in charge of one of the weekend's activities.

A renovation has allowed the facility to be used without risk of violation, but with constantly changing guidelines. Weinstein said that O'Malley urged Catholic lay people, particularly intellectuals, to avoid the separation of faith and career. "O'Malley thought Christian assumptions expanded the imagination, not stifling it. He urged Catholics to integrate their faith with their entire life, not simply one part."
John Paul II and the U. S. Catholic

The gap between Rome and the U.S. Catholic church is widening these days. Or at least the Pope seems to think so. Worried about the buffet-style attitude of US Catholics, John Paul inveighed several bishops to lay down the law on contraception.

Keith Picher

Profundity's demise

Speaking to them three weeks ago from his summer residence at Caelin Gandolfo, the pontiff urged the leaders to speak out against birth control. These are issues and organizations which support them. The Pope traditionally meets with the bishops in May for five years to talk about problems in their country.

That John Paul chose sexuality as a topic is not surprising. The United States is a modern Sodom. That John Paul sees sexuality as America's worst moral problem, on the other hand, is a bit disturbing.

Sexual morality is a difficult subject to understand. Some of Christianity's greatest theologians have had a myopic, if not warped, understanding of sexuality. Many Catholics, for example, have never had the chance to break away from the clausrophobic norms that exist in our society. An offer of this nature should pass the acid test of physical necessity if they want to be on television. In

The writer then states that the very nature of the visual mass media discriminates against television news as a person, not as a woman. Thus, all people should pass the acid test of physical attractiveness. However, if they want to be on TV, they must pass the acid test of physical attractiveness. Hence, if they want to be on TV, they must pass the acid test of physical necessity. In

The editor's statement that there are many inequities in the business of television news" is quite true. However, those who defend a flawed system on the rationale that "We can't do anything about it" are useless at best, and dangerous at worst. People who do not realize that someone who has been discriminated against is a victim then who will stick up for us the next time our "packaged" society decides that any one of us is no longer attractive? Why bother defending the oppressed? By Mr. Dziedzic's thinking, even when you're right, you're wrong. Fortunately for us, though, thinking of any kind seems to be in a short supply at the editor's office.

T. Burke

abortion, pre-marital sex, homosexuality, divorce, and women's rights is an issue that must be addressed.

Their recent actions stand in sharp contrast to John Paul's. Last week several bishops proposed plans to develop the MX. Their actions on behalf of peace have earned them world respect, and Bernardin, the Einstein Peace Prize. They have correctly identified the nuclear issue as the preeminent moral problem.

The bishops are also beginning to think about capitalism and economic injustice. Though the Church has tended to criticize the system, not capitalism itself, many are beginning to feel that the system cannot exist without injustice in the actual world. The matter will be addressed in a future meeting of the US bishops.

And several U.S. Catholics are upset by America's militarism in the third world. People in Latin America and Africa ask the United States for fishes, and we give them bombs, not stones.

John Paul has had a tremendous influence on the world. His style and vigor have helped to shape the world's consciousness. When he cannot afford to live on campus, he chooses sexuality as a topic is not surprising.

Within two weeks, One and Two (their names respectively) were stolen from our front porch. It endemic in our house, but even sadder, what are we to do with the ten pound bag of Cycle II? However, I'm sure when the second November rolls around and money is as scarce as an eighty percent discount, the bag will quickly disappear.

A profession that I'm sure many off-campus residents will be very efficient in making. It is a profession that the next time our house is burglarized, their insides will be broken into and looted. So what can we do about it?

John Paul wants to be a better pontiff. He wants to be a better pontiff. He wants to be a better pontiff.

We do not hesitate to condemn governments for their nuclear missiles and economic injustices, though he often speaks out against anyone who questions official teaching on authority and sexuality.

His insistence that Jesus envisioned an all-male priesthood is one such example. While there may be good reasons for not ordaining women (though I wish somebody would find one) John Paul cannot pretend to understand the matter, especially when the 1976 Pontifical Biblical Commission concluded that it could find no biblical support for excluding women from the ordained priesthood.

But Jesus does criticize people who throw stones, fail to turn the other cheek, and live like a tourist.

He also makes friends with prostitutes and, after the resurrection, entrusts a woman, not a man, with the Church's first task - proclaiming the Good News of the Resurrection to the doubting disciples.

We will all love you, John Paul, but some of us wish you'd open your eyes a bit wider.

John Paul II and the U. S. Catholic

To the editor:

David Dziedzic's marvelous article of Sepvember 5 is to be praised. The presence of Christine Craft, the news anchor who has recently garnered attention for her resignation over sex discrimination, was a coup. Despitedzic's lack of sensitivity, insight, or acumen, we must applaud his efforts to explain the matter to us. His article proves that there are some people who will never remain silent when given the opportunity to parade their limitations, Bravo, David.

Again and again, we hear arguments which attempt to rationalize sex discrimination. In his editorial, Dziedzic passes over-the-top emphasis on Miss Craft's newfound fame. He points out her many t.v. appearances, and he even goes so far as to remind us that this woman (who iron her lawsuit, by the way) makes over $4,000.00 per lecture. Is she this ridiculous? Perhaps it is, but then so is a professional golfer when he makes milvions a year to play a kid's game, or a convicted political corporator when he gets thousands to speak at a university football enough to invite him. It seems Mr. Dziedzic is more upset that Miss Craft has "made it" and that he has not, than that she was wrong in her lawsuit.

The writer then states that the very nature of the visual mass media discriminates against television news as a person, not as a woman. Thus, all people should pass the acid test of physical attractiveness. However, if they want to be on TV, they must pass the acid test of physical attractiveness. Hence, if they want to be on TV, they must pass the acid test of physical necessity.

The editor's statement that "there are many inequities in the business of television news" is quite true. However, those who defend a flawed system on the rationale that "We can't do anything about it" are useless at best, and dangerous at worst. People who do not realize that someone who has been discriminated against is a victim then who will stick up for us the next time our "packaged" society decides that any one of us is no longer attractive? Why bother defending the oppressed? By Mr. Dziedzic's thinking, even when you're right, you're wrong. Fortunately for us, though, thinking of any kind seems to be in a short supply at the editor's office.

So here you are on the ninth, Two men out and three men on. Nowhere to look but inside where we all respond to pressure.

While Billy Joel certainly didn't have it on his mind when he wrote these lyrics, they certainly are appropriate words for Coach Gerry Faust and his Fighting Irish this week. Combine the facts that the Irish have stumbled to a 1-2 start, that the sidelines have been piling up with injured players, and that Colorado seems rejuvenated with a 2-1 start and it seems the Irish may have their hands full when they come onto Folsom Field in Boulder tomorrow for a 2:30 p.m. EST kickoff.

First of all, the Irish desperately need a win to keep their slim hopes of a bowl bid alive. a shade under 29 points per contest. The Buf-fos look for this week's game to be a good opportunity to pick up a big win. The Buffs have struggled offensively, averaging only 17 points per game.

The highlights of Alvin Miller's high school career in Kirkwood, Missouri have been mentioned so many times that they need not be repeated here. But is it enough to say that this Tony Hunter-like receiver possesses all the talent and ability needed to join the All-American company of Jim Seymour, Jack Snow, Tom Gatewood, and Pete Demmerle before he concludes his career at Notre Dame. "Alvin has the innate tools and skills necessary for ultimate stardom," says block. "He's right now finding his way into the system. He's just right now feeling comfortable with the things he's asked to do." "Given more time and experience, and he'll be the man," says Mike Shiner. "I think he has the chance to be just a tremendous receiver at Notre Dame." Miller had his finest game of his young career in the "Saturday Night Massacre" at Miami last week. Although he caught only one pass for 25 yards, signs of his potential abounded.

"Basically I want to, day to day, get better, and learn a little bit more," says Miller. "As the weeks go on, I feel myself improving, and I'm happy with myself improving, but I'll never be satisfied with myself."

Perhaps the reason why Miller's self-imposed performance standards are high is because so much is expected of him. Like Herschel Walker, Marcus DuPree, and Eric Dickerson, Alvin Miller is a Parade Magazine Prep Player of the Year selection.

"I guess there's a lot of talent in us all, but I guess it is a matter of position," comments the freshman. "I really don't feel any extra pressure at all. The only pressure on me is from myself."

Another freshman making waves on the depth chart is Alonzo Jefferson. However, one look at him is enough to tell you that he does not fit the prototype image of a receiver like Miller does. Only 5-9 and 172 pounds, it is a wonder that he can catch the ball at all. But to borrow a line from Mick Jagger, Jefferson is practiced in the art of deception. "Often times a receiver's height is a disadvantage; often times it is not," says Stock. "I think in this case, he uses his tools to the utmost." Jefferson sees the situation the same way. "I think my size is an advantage at times," Jefferson explains. "It helps in terms of getting to spots where guys can't see me."

Size aside, Jefferson can catch a football. However, despite his good early performances, he has not enjoyed the team's 1-2 start. It has been frustrating for me because I have not been able to contribute to the team as much as I would like to.

"I am ashamed about the team's slow start, but we do have a good football team, and there are a lot of good players here. I enjoy watching talent, but I am after some of the glory that I had in high school. I think all the freshmen all have a good football team, and there are a lot of good talents.

Also competing for their share of the glory are sophomore roommates Mike Jackson and Mike Haywood. The two men are similar in many ways. Their physical attributes are almost identical. Not only do they both hover around six feet, but both weigh 170 pounds and possess the speed and hands needed to excel at their positions.

Jackson is the starting split end and has seen far more playing time than his roomie. However that is not to say that his first few games have been consistent. Jackson has eleven tackles this season, but five of those have been against the ones that nobody even has a chance for. His experience shows there," says Stock.

"Of all the people I've had a chance to coach at South Bend in the past, he's the most acrobatic receiver I've seen."

has been suspect against the pass this season will have its hands full. Our offense has to come up with the big play," says Faust. "Last week, we had two third- and goal situations, and could not stop Missouri." Changes have been made to try to fix the situation, as Tim Marshall moves up to the flip tackle spot, replacing Eric Osmon. Marshall has eleven tackles this season, but five of these have been for losses. Hopefully, he will help an ailing pass rush, which has recorded only three sacks all year. Meanwhile, the Colorado defense has been giving up plenty of yardage via the pass as well, despite the fine play of All-America cornerback Victor Stock. Of course, many opponents have been forced to throw against Colorado because of the Buffs' impressive running defense, which has given up an average of one hundred yards per game. That statistic may be misleading, though, because the Buffaloes have had some early leads, forcing their opponents to catch up by passing.

If the game is close, it may come down kickers -- a point that doesn't escape Faust very disappointed in our kicking game and mishandled, states Faust. "We must shore up our game." On the other hand, Colorado's excellent talents of kicker Tom Field, who field goals in a game on two separate occasions. "Colorado is an excellent football talent, according to Faust. "They make us work at our confidence in the must be prepared to play an excellent game."

Against Purdue he dropped a sure touchdown pass off a flea flicker, and versus Michigan State he couldn't hold on to a couple easy catches. Last Saturday he rebounded strong with a four-catch effort against Miami. "He seems to drop the ones he can catch and catch the ones that nobody else has a chance for. His experience shows there," says Stock.

"All of the people I've had a chance to coach at South Bend in the past, he's the most acrobatic receiver I've seen."

"And his speed is very deceptive because he covers a lot of ground because he plays Stock."

Just as Jackson appears to be coming in, he will be forced to sit out due to a knee sprain, a 16-yard completion against Miami. He is doubtful for the Colorado game.

Scott. Of course, Colorado coach Bob Brown is an excellent football talent, according to Faust. "They all can return, while their hands are always full with the kick, always the case with every receiver."

"I think the potential is greater now, than ever before, compared to the past. And I made that statement because I would not say that unless I thought them," continues. "I think they have it's a matter of consistency, efficiency, to succeed."

Against Colorado tomorrow, Irish co-captains Stock and Faust both will be looking for that hunger, 14 having been nothing of late.

Coming home
Mike Gann, trying to overcome an injury and position shifts, is ready to help ND improve

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

Three years ago, when Mike Gann was looking to go to college, he was being recruited by a number of schools. He was impressed with Notre Dame's track. The Irish opponent, Colorado. Gann, however, chose Notre Dame because he liked the campus. He believed that he would receive a quality education and, at the same time, have a chance to become a part of the rich tradition of Notre Dame football.

Now in his junior year, the 5-11, 264-pound Lakewood, Colorado native still believes he has made the right choice.

As a member of the Notre Dame football team, Gann is in his second season as a starter on the defensive line. Gann started his Notre Dame career in 1982 and earned a monogram while seeing the most playing time of any of the other freshman defensive linemen. He saw action in eight games while working mainly at the right end spot. In his sophomore year, Gann started every game, but he replaced an injured Kevin Griffith. Gann played 24 minutes against Penn State and collected eight tackles. He also saw ten minutes of action against Miami and was credited with three stops.

His sophomore year, 1982, saw him change positions. This time Gann earned a starting role at flip tackle. He started nine games and had played more minutes than any other defensive lineman until a knee injury against Penn State brought his season to a close. Despite missing the last two games, however, Gann finished the season with 41 tackles and five sacks totaling 35 yards in losses. His top effort earned him 10 stops against Oregon.

The 1983 season has once again brought about a change of position for Gann. He has moved down the line from flip tackle to his new slot at contain tackle - a change that he is still adjusting to.

"It's been kind of rough for me," says Gann. "It's been a real big change from flip tackle, because I was so free to do what I wanted to do. I could go inside, go outside, and change up things, but this year I just have to play the position. So far this season I haven't played to where I think I should be. I'm just right now trying to get used to it.

The job of the contain tackle is one of vast responsibility, as Irish defensive tackle coach Jay Robertson explains. "He is responsible for destroying the run if it is in his direction, for pursuit if the play is away from him, as well as for the reverse, counters, and cutback plays, depending on the defensive alignment. And, of course, he's responsible for rushing the passer.

The knee injury in the Penn State game and the subsequent surgery caused Gann to miss spring contact work in order to ensure proper healing for this season. Now, with the season in full swing, and after a lot of exercise and treatment, the knee does not seem to be causing any problems. "It took a while to get it back to strength," he said. "I felt a little scared at the beginning playing out there with it. It's a different feeling mentally, but I've kind of gotten over that now. It's OK.

His coach, too, likes to consider the knee healed and tries not to bring it up. "We try to ignore it and not make it a factor," says Robertson. "Unless it's bothering him, we don't even ask about it. He devote too much attention to it, you're going to make him sort of cautious when he doesn't have to be. As far as we're concerned, it's fully healed.

Last year Gann was a noticeable force on the defensive squad. This year, however, his play has been rather inconsistent, and he himself looks for more improvement. "I really haven't played well this season, and I really feel bad right now," he admits. "I feel ready everyday, but things just don't seem to happen during the game. Getting used to my position is a big factor. It will take time. (Bob) Clasby played it last year and he was a good player. I'm just trying to understand how he did it.

His performance has not escaped the watchful eye of his coach, and, while Robertson agrees with Gann, he adds an important positive note as well. "Mike played well against Purdue and it could have been a big game, but because of the circumstances, we rotated a lot of people and he didn't play as much. Against Michigan State he didn't play poorly, but he didn't dominate like a man of his abilities should. Miami was his best effort of the year so far," he says. "He did things you have to do to be dominant, but because of the way things developed, he wasn't in a position to make the play.

"Mike has great and awesome physical potential and I think he's very serious in working hard to reach that potential. His potential is unlimited, but he must have very high expectations and standards for what he considers to be his level of play. He can be very good. He wants to. It's just a matter of learning how and that comes with maturity. Miami may have been a pivotal game for him. If he continues to make the effort, he will begin to dominate - and he has to.

To work toward achieving potential and to become a good player one has to prepare both mentally and physically, and Gann is no exception.

"I try to stay in the best shape I can by running, lifting and practicing hard," says Gann. "A lot of it is mental, too. You have to try to stay mentally ready for a game. I think everybody is ready physically, the extra comes from being really mentally.

Gann feels that aside from being tall, quick, and agile - three strengths his coach points out about him - being mentally ready is probably his strongest point.

"My best asset is my mind," says Gann. "The fear of not playing well motivates me. I think just struggling, not playing bad, the will to want to perform well, is really a big thing. I take it personal when I perform bad."

This week when the Irish travel to Colorado to take on the Buffaloes, Gann will be returning to within 35 miles of where he grew up and played high school football.

Going "home" is something he's looking forward to, but he feels no immediate pressure on himself because 'he'll be in front of many friends.

"I'm excited about going to Colorado," says Gann, "but I don't feel any extra pressure about going back and playing. I do feel extra pressure just trying to get my first good game and get my season rolling. I'm throwing the first three games aside. I'm just going to start over.

There's still time."

With another year still to go after this one, Gann isn't worrying too much about future football plans, just those at Notre Dame. "I have no plans right now. I just want to play well here," he says. "I've been through so many injuries that I can't really look into the future. I can't count on something like that, and have it fall down because of injury."

If football doesn't prove successful after college, Gann is looking forward to utilizing his marketing skills. "My dad is starting a new airline in Florida, and I might be able to work for him.

Putting everything aside, at this point, however, one of Gann's major concerns is the success of the 1983 season. Having already suffered two losses in just three games, many questions have arisen as to why, and Gann finds no particular answer to pinpoint anything definite. "Everybody tries to analyze what the problem is," he says, "but you come up with a lot of different answers. No one gives one solid answer or reason behind it. I don't know if there is one reason behind it. I think it's a mixture of things - some motivation problems, maybe - and I think we can iron them out."

If Gann's teammates approach things with the same diligence as he does, then there should be little problem with ironing them out.

A true confession
by Rev. Robert Griffin

T he new confratellants in Sacred Heart Church are a very visible reminder that the Church belongs in the business of the forgiveness of sins. The confessions are comfortable, and those who go to them, would presume that they are comfortable for the one who is kneeling to kneel there, leaving lots of space as elbow room as the penitent doesn't have to worry about getting eaten onions at dinner. That is true, as those walls keep the sound in a confession that can't keep its secrets more wielded and treacherous than to the town gossip, and should be publicly burned. Some confessions are so poorly built that I wouldn't think of going to the Church, just to courage anyone else to confess there.
A church that takes the sacraments seriously, should set aside a room that is truly private. Sacred Heart Church has been offering the grace of forgiveness for over a hundred years. It is a wonder to my God for whom man is worthily celebrated.

The modern Catholic may ask which of the sacraments, confession with sin, tampering with the space in a lovely old building, so that private conversation, which while hearing of it? Answer, I would point out that this is particularly interesting to a priest. Little sins are boring and big sins are suffering, like the penitent in a movie, and the priest has heard about many of these.
The devil is dull, his works are dull, and his pomp is silly. The devil, if he weren't so tricky, should be wearing

Newport returns to normal

Associated Press

NEWPORT, R.I. — Small businesses that thrived on tourists during the America's Cup races may have to tighten their belts a bit, but Newport Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Merrick McHeron said just because Australia sailed off with the yachting prize, "it doesn't mean to be negative, but it is going to change the way we do business." He added that other businesses that depended on the Navy's presence and what's left of the Navy, like boatyards, it operates year-round, and the dock space occupied by other craft, "will be at lower prices.

Charles Robertson, a spokesman for the Williams & Manchester shipyard, says he already has been approached about building an American challenger for 1987 and currently has orders to build four aluminum yachts this winter.

Merrick Prat, president of J.T.'s Ship Chandlery, sold Cup Visitor Australia II the miles of Kevlar rope that controlled the craft's sails. He also provided all the deck hardware and other equipment to defender Liberty. "It's going to cost us money, to be honest. But we're not leaving the 12-meter business, nor by any means," he said.

 Padres keep Dodgers from title

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Andy Hawkins scattered seven hits in 6 2/3 innings and Terry Kennedy drilled a solo homer to give the San Diego Padres a 2-1 victory over Los Angeles last night, staffing the Dodgers' National League West pennant bid with a sweep of a doubleheader.

Hawkins, a 25-year-old right-hander called up to the majors this month, struck out a career-high 10 and walked four while giving up the Dodgers' only run on a two-out homer in the ninth by Jose Morales. Hawkins, 5-7, needed last-out relief help from Luis De Leon, who posted his 13th save.

Kennedy's 17th homer of the season was hit off Dodger starter Alejandro Pena, who needed last-out relief help from Luis De Leon, who posted his 13th save.

In the opener, Tony Gwynn's two-out RBI single and Kevin McReynolds' two-run hit keyed a three-run first inning, setting the stage for Johnson's hopes alive with a pinch runner and continued until he made a curtain call in front of the dugout.

N.Y. 4, Bos. 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Mattingly's bases-loaded single with one out capped a two-run rally in the fifth inning that brought the Yankees past the Boston Red Sox 4-3 last night.

Ron Guidry pitched a seven-hitter to raise his record to 21-9.

Soccer team tries to get back on winning track

By PHIL WOLF
Sports Writer

Hoping to get back on track following last week's 4-0 loss to Indiana, the Notre Dame soccer team will take on Toledo tonight. The match will begin at 8:00 under the lights at Center Field.

Last year, the Irish easily handled Toledo, winning 7-3. According to Assistant Coach Hank Hofman, however, "Toledo might be tougher this year. The good thing is that we're playing on turf. We're a fast, running team, and we play better on turf!"

Hofman will be coaching tonight in the absence of Head Coach Rich Hunter, who is out due to a death in his family. Hunter should be back tomorrow, Hofman said. "If he has to rent a place, he'll get back!"

On Sunday, the Irish will travel to Chicago to take on DePaul. Last year, Notre Dame beat DePaul here, 6-0. Hofman thinks that it will be tough to repeat that performance on the Blue Demons' own field. He expects a low-scoring defensive game. Hofman does not think that the loss to Indiana has affected his players.

Women's interhall
B.P., Lewis, Farley win openers

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Notre Dame women's interhall football kicked off this week as Breen-Phillips defeated Pasquerilla East 8-6 and Lewis rolled over Lyons 28-6. Wednesday night on Center Field. Earlier this week, Lewis defeated Walsh 12-6 in double overtime and Farley beat Lyons 8-6.

In Wednesday's season opener for both Breen-Phillips and Pasquerilla East, Jean Mackay scored early in the first half for B.P. Her efforts were followed by extra points from teammate Martha Kuriyama. An interception in the last two minutes of play effectively stopped P.E.'s late scoring drive.

"Both the offensive and defensive lines still need work," said B.P. captain Lisa Erhardt, "but through the direction of coaches Chris Ritten and Mike Brunson, the team is developing well into a new program. We plan on beating teams as they come up, solid."

Defending interhall champions, Farley, hopes to retain its title this season. So far, the team has played well on the whole. Carla Cortes, team captain, Janeen Olds, "We're going to maintain the championship that we won last year. We're working well together."

Langer hopes to see Walsh improve its 2-6 record and "to build a North Quad team."

Defending interhall champion, Farley, and says the poor weather and slick field were too much to overcome this time.

This season, Burns hopes to improve on last year's 1-6 record, with the players having fun in the process. She would also like to see the team score a touchdown in every game, which would be an improvement over last year's mere three touchdowns during the entire season.

Sunday marked an exciting game between Lewis and Walsh. At the end of the game, the score was tied, 0-0. During the first overtime, both teams scored, leading to a double overtime where Lewis eventually scored the winning touchdown.

Walsh team captain, Mary Langer, feels her team was unprepared for the game and that she weathered its performance. Walsh's touchdown was the result of a quarterback sneak and Langer was impressed with quarterback Joan McMearin's performance.

"Everyone played well, but it was the defense that saved the game," she said.

Langer hopes to see Walsh improve its 2-6 record and "to build a North Quad team."

Defending interhall champions, Farley, hopes to retain its title this season and Sunday's game against Lyons was a step in that direction.

Team captain, Sharon Koehler, "We're working well together."

"Every player played well, but it was the defense that saved the game," she said.

Langer hopes to see Walsh improve its 2-6 record and "to build a North Quad team."
