Alumni Association van to serve as center for info in Florida

By TOM MORRILL
Assistant News Editor

An Alumni Association van will serve as an information center on the beach at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., during March Break, March 15-20.

The purpose of the center, to be located near to the Shannon Yacht and Beach Club, is to provide a service to the students," says Charles Lennon, executive director of the Alumni Association. Services will include a message exchange, a car pool locator card, and a hospitality center.

Lennon added that another purpose of the center, which will be staffed by Notre Dame and Mardi's Alumni from the area, students, and two Alumni Association professionals, is to try to prevent an occurrence similar to the current incident during last year's spring break.

Last year, a Notre Dame student was involved in a shooting contest at the Burt Rutan in Ft. Lauderdale. He was fined for his actions, and a letter was sent by Student Body President Brian Callaghan to the University informing them that Notre Dame students would no longer participate in activities of this kind.

According to the Broad St. Newsletter, Brian Callaghan officially acknowledged that this group of alumni were "concerned about the image of the city being created by topless women in and sex-tititious concoctions. No, as Lennon put it, the city was just 100 percent behind it."

The information center in Ft. Lauderdale will be a mobile center. Lennon expects the students to use it as an "information center."

In an attempt to "change their image," Lennon said the city will provide a stage and professional entertainment for the centre six week spring break period," as well as sponsoring the Grand Slam on the beach." He expects these events to include tennis, swimming, volley ball, and other beach games.

Other events which Lennon has tentatively planned for the week include concerts by the Shannonians in Ft. Lauderdale. Miami and Palm Beaches Notre Dame St. Patrick's Day Parade on the first Saturday of the vacation, and Mass on the last Saturday for students before they leave for school. The Alumni Association also plans to distribute sandwiches and soft drinks for the trip back.

Callaghan said he "probably will send a letter to 25, 50 or all schools" to try to set up interschool competitions and happy hours. He also intends to "try to get some students to help out with the van," which he will be financed from 10 to $20.

About 1500 students are expected by Callaghan in Ft. Lauderdale during March break. Thus, member of the trip's planning committee, was "initially coincidental," but word of the Alumni Association's plans "helped confirm our decision," he said. "I have support from the students of what he calls a"

Dean Witter president opens lecture series

Special to The Observer

Philip Purcell, president and chief operating officer of Dean Witter Financial Services Group of New York, and a Notre Dame graduate, opened the annual Financial Institution Series last evening with a lecture on "The Continuing Evolution of Financial Services" last evening in the Center for Social Concerns dining room.

Amy Search, vice president of the Finance Club and chairman of the Financial Institution Series, says that the speeches are very useful to the students. The financial aspect and economic aspect is very relevant. The financial industry is constantly changing and it is important to be knowledgeable. They will talk about the services of the bank and how they can make the students aware of certain trends. The student can also get general employment contacts and also become aware of different opportunities," she said.

The series, sponsored by the Notre Dame Finance Club, will continue tonight and tomorrow. Robert Wilmouth will lecture on "Financial Futures — the Newcom Player in 1.5 Financial Markets" tonight at the GCE auditorium. A reception will follow in the Notre Dame room in the Morris Inn. Wilmouth is the president and chief executive officer of The National Futures Association in Chicago. Wilmouth has served as president of the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago National Bank of San Francisco.

ND-SMC Amnesty International to hold petition drive for bill

Of the requirements of a prisoner of conscience is that he or she has never "used or advocated violence."

Amnesty International was founded in 1961 with the belief that every person has the right to hold and express his convictions and has an obligation to extend that same freedom to others. It has since grown into a worldwide human rights movement that is independent of any government or religion. Today, there are 1,600 Amnesty groups in 35 countries in Africa, Asia, Europe, the Middle East, North America, and South America, respectively. Individuals or affiliated groups work for the release of prisoners of conscience.

In 1977, Amnesty International won the Nobel Peace Prize. The leader of Notre Dame's Amnesty group, John Dardis, believes that the Notre Dame-Saint Mary's contribution to Amnesty International is vital. "The petition drive goes to the root of a difference, which is the prisoner of conscience," he said. "People throughout the world are being arrested and punished solely for their beliefs. Amnesty International wants to draw attention to these injustices and put an end to it."

Dardis believes that the petition drive will be a success. "Last year we had a petition drive for the International Women's Day. We collected signatures for the release of six female prisoners of conscience, and in a few days we had close to two thousand signatures this year, our goal is to reach two thousand signatures, and think that we can do it."

David Dziedzic, Observer editor-in-chief, with two student government members, answered questions concerning the University's demand that the Observer join the University Unit Budget Control System at last night's Senate Meeting. See Elizabeth Flor's story below.

ND-SMC Amnesty International to hold petition drive for bill

By JOHN JOHNSON AMORES

The Notre Dame-Saint Mary's Amnesty International organization will hold a petition drive for a universal amnesty bill in the North and South Dining Halls on Nov. 9 and 10.

The proposal will call for a universal amnesty for all prisoners of conscience. "People who are incarcerated because of their political and religious beliefs and ethnic background."

The drive is part of a world-wide effort coordinated by Amnesty International to help gain support for the resolution, which was presented to the General Assembly of the United Nations on Dec. 10, 1983. The date marks the 4th anniversary of the signing of the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

The Student Senate held open forum meeting last evening between student government members and the Observer. By mid-March, the Senate will answer questions concerning the University's demand that the Observer join the University Unit Budget Control System. The reason I'm here is to find out what everyone thinks," Dziedzic said. "The major purpose of going under the University budget system is that the Independence of The Observer would be under question. Brian Callaghan, student body president said, "As the situation stands right now, we were given an ultimatum," Dziedzic said, "no deposit, all money in the University bank account by January 1st."

Dziedzic stressed that The Observer wants the University to have the ability to review the books at the end of the year, but not to allot the money during the year. "They could choose, at any time, not to allot it. If so, we have absolutely no recourse," Dziedzic said.

The Observer has proposed third-party accountability through the hiring of a professional accountant to conduct an annual audit. Dziedzic estimates this cost at $1,000 or less. The University has estimated that this would cost approximately $50,000 a year. A newspaper must consider its own finances to be independent. If others are signing our checks and doing our payroll, then we do not have independence," Dziedzic said again.

Currently, The Observer receives nearly one-third of its revenue from a $5 a semester student fee collected by the University. This amounts to approximately $70,000 a year from Notre Dame students.

Mark Rolles, Student Union Commissioner, remarked that the amount is more than the Student Union budget. Rolles said, "The Observer should be accountable to students for their budget."

Citing that the 1982-1983 editor-in-chief made, approximately $5,500 last year, Rolles said, "Is The Observer a student organization or a job?"

Although all students pay a mandatory fee for the newspaper, they have no control over what is done with their money, Rolles said.

Dziedzic agreed that students have a right to know where their money is being spent. "It's a student see SENATE page 3

Inside Tuesday

The first Fall Festival in Notre Dame history concluded Sunday. This is news to a few people. The fact that there a Fall Festival is news to a few more. The Fall Festival got a slow start because it fell on the same day everyone returned from fall break. Students were back in dorm mode yet. Three days of rain at the beginning of the week didn’t bode for a feverish atmosphere for the activities either. In fact, the real spirit for the festival really didn’t fully emerge until the weekend.

While only a showing success, the Fall Festival was far from a failure. The results weren’t bad for the first year. Liza Salvador and Tina Persson, the chairwomen for the fall festival, said that some activities, such as the Fun Run and the Tug-O-War, were cancelled due to inclement weather, said Salvador. Others, like the Bun Contest and the dress days failed because of late publicity, she said.

If Notre Dame decides to make the Fall Festival an annual event, a great deal can be learned from the successes and failures of last week.

First, Notre Dame must decide whether or not the Fall Festival is a Homecoming — the organizers are even unsure of this. This year’s event was a quasi-Homecoming atmosphere, yet Salvador and her aids were, there, but student activities were absent.

The traditional collegiate homecoming spirit associated with the election of a court may be something the University could use. This event is a possibility.

Because of this fall, a completely different approach is necessary. The festival needs a real name and a real identity. The spring Antalot festival is the most successful and eagerly anticipated event of the year on campus. The majority of the students who would want to have the vaguest idea what the name. An Antalot means, but they certainly know what it implies.

A fall festival could not rely on student enthusiasm and collegiate antics like An Tostal. The spring fever that makes the most possible desirable is almost now. The event must be planned accordingly.

In addition, An Tostal is successful because it is designed to reach and involve the individual. This was what a fall festival must do. Many of last week’s events were not successful simply because the students did not know about them.

Salvador and Persson agree that scheduling the event or where it was by planning at one of the publicity events.

The posters also contained only the Monday to Thursday schedule. The weekend events, which weren’t included on the original poster and coincided with Fall Festival atmospheres, were canceled due to scheduling conflicts. A complete scheduling complete for every student would be handled.

The scheduled events included the fireworks, the special dinners, the dance and the boerne were the most successful. If more students had been aware of the banana contest deadline and the Saturday parade, these would have been successful too.

For its first year, the fall festival showed much potential. The idea of some sort of autumn event to parallel the spring An Tostal is certainly desirable. With a new name, some additional organization and more student involvement this year’s fall festival may prove to have been the seed from which a meaningful autumn student event will grow.

The march and parade, some 30-000 people in the student parking lot, will include several protest meetings and a march past the White House. The event is sponsored by several national organizations which are concerned about U.S. military intervention in Latin America. A woman attending the Notre Dame-Pittsburgh football game Saturday reported an assault by two youths, one wearing a Frankenstein monster mask, in the stadium concourse near the student section. The woman, an Ohio resident, told police she was returning to her seat around 5 p.m. The youths were both approximately 5 feet 9 inches, 150 pounds and wearing blue jeans. One had a grey sweatshirt while the other wore a red and blue jacket. In the first incident, campus police arrested a member of a religious sect and confiscated "Irish" stickers that he allegedly was attempting to distribute without permission. ND observing quintencentenary of Martin Luther's birth with events

Notre Dame will observe the quintencentenary of Martin Luther's birth today through Thursday with a series of celebration events entitled "Martin Luther: 500 years".

The quintencentenary celebration, sponsored by Notre Dame's Department of Theology, will include a lecture, a symposium, an ecumenical prayer service, an organ recital and a special bibliographical exhibit in the east concourse of the Memorial Library.

According to Notre Dame president, Father Theodore Hesburgh, the celebration is "in the spirit of the Second Vatican Council, which urged Catholics to acquire a better understanding of the history, doctrine, spiritual and liturgical life, religious psychology, and cultural roots of other Christian faiths."

"Since recent theological dialogues have brought Catholics and Protestants closer to agreement on many issues, it is even more fitting that a Church that admits it is ever in need of renewal take a second and more benign look at the leader of the Reformation," Hesburgh added.

Martin Luther broke from the Church in the 1500's. His criticism of the church formed the basis of the Protestant Reformation. Luther's understanding of the history, doctrine, spiritual and liturgical life, religious psychology, and cultural roots of other Christian faiths.

Protestant Reformation. Luther's understanding of the history, doctrine, spiritual and liturgical life, religious psychology, and cultural roots of other Christian faiths.

Father Richard P. McBrien, chairman of Notre Dame's Department of Theology, said, "The differences between Catholics and Lutherans, once thought to be irreconcilable, are now perceived to be less than imposing. One might even suggest that if Luther were alive in today's Catholic Church, he would not feel compelled to break communion with it."

"It is appropriate, therefore, that Notre Dame should mark the 500th anniversary of Martin Luther's birth with these scholarly events as well as a liturgical service which really forms a fundamental principle of Vatican II, that the most effective eucharist is a spiritual eucharist."

...Amnesty

Dardis points out that the effect of the world-wide petition drive and the resulting amnesty bill will be two-fold. First, the project will raise consciousness about the issue of human rights, reinforcing the general human rights movement that has grown in the last few years.

Second, the bill is a genuine attempt to address and solve the problem of human rights violations throughout the world.

"The best thing about the U.N. proposal," Dardis says, "is that even if it does not accomplish all of its goals, it will still draw people's attention to the problem of human rights violations. In that way, our effort will always be a success."

Dardis also stresses the full importance of a petition signature. "If you sign the petition, you will be contributing to the formation of a U.N. resolution. I hope that everyone will consider the significance of the bill, as well as the potential effect that it could have to help many of the world's prisoners of conscience."

Is President Reagan testing the waters?

The Max Lerner Column

down it will be clear that the American media have had more clout than the Cubans. It will also be clear that the whole operation was carried out in the teeth of the American foreign policy versus our allies. Additionally, if Reagan is allowed to get away with such an outrageous action without suffering any backlash from the American public, Grenada could become the closest West European nation.

In short, if we do not condemn the recent American actions, we are complicit.

Voting 108 to 9, the United Nations General Assembly has condemned the action, and the US had to exercise its veto power in the Security Council to avoid further condemnation.

The invasion, a manifestation of Reagan's militaristic foreign policy, has shifted global opinion away from the Soviets for their shooting down of the Korean jetliner. It has also reinforced Reagan's mantra over the Sandinista invasion of Afghanistan that a ruthless ring is forming.

The political fallout in Europe over the invasion will continue to grow as a deployment of American troops in Persia is now more firmly in place. The peace movement's claim that Reagan is "trigger happy" has gained added credibility.

And in the long run, the invasion could mark a watershed in our NATO relationships, as Europeans have expressed a growing anti-American tone.

World opinion also, the most frightening aspect of Grenada, and of our own diplomatic hypocrisy, is that there are still many American politicians who believe in the American way of life and believe that their way is the only way.

For the scenario to work for the CIA's terrorist allies, they will have to provoke the Nicaraguans to strike back, possibly into Honduras where 4,000 US troops are stationed for "maneuvers." This will serve as the justification they need to wage war, telling the American people that it is necessary to restore "peace and freedom." And so begins the Vietnam of the 80s.

Why does Reagan want war with Nicaragua? Because Nicaragua serves as an example to other Central American countries of the successful overthrow of a Marxist dictator. Anastasio Somoza, who owned most of Nicaragua before the Sandinista's revolution in 1979. Despite all our rhetoric about self-determination, we would prefer if Nicaragua were once again a client state, of "puppets" of the US, as it was under Somoza.

As a means of justification, Reagan's myopic world view has placed Nicaragua in the context of East-West hostility, allowing him to ignore the very popular Sandinista government that has provided Nicaraguans with land, education, health care, and political liberties they never knew under the US-backed Somoza dictatorship.

Why does Reagan want the "friendlies," like South Africa and Chile, as two of the worst examples of human rights abusers, while our "enemy" (Nicaragua) is a popular government that does not have to employ repression to maintain its rule?

As supposed intelligent and informed students of history, we should be concerned about what our government is doing in Central America. Let's speak out in opposition to Reagan's policies now, while we have only ourselves to blame for the war against Nicaragua.

Students on this campus should be outraged by Reagan's Central American policies. If we fail to voice our discontent, we can only blame ourselves for the ensuing violence in Nicaragua.

PONTIAC, Mich. — Billy Sims rushed for 364, yards last Saturday, only the second player in NFL history to break the 300-yard mark in a game. The Detroit Lions running back, who has the ball at his disposal almost every play and finished the Lions' win over Buffalo 360 yards with two touchdowns and a safety as the Lions ear ned a 15-5 National Football League victory over the New York Giants last night.

The victory evened the Lions record to 6-5. Buffalo's quarterback, running back Butch Woolfolk fumbled the ball away on an inside run. Sims' arm was hit by defensive tackle Doug English. Giants center Rich Imbry felt the ball hit the end zone and was tackled by Mike Finn for the safety, giving Detroit a 1-2-2 record.

Attention.

The Giants, who are last in the East and winless in six games, fell to 2-7-1. They got field goals of 27, 56 and 19 yards from kicker Tom Haji-Shok. The 56-yarder tied the club record.

frier. They move on the court, but it's a scared kind of movement. They become afraid to go all out on their blocks and approaches. They become a little hesitant."

The DePaul match on Saturday was marked by more of the same. Losing a tough first game, and not being used to playing in the Arena, Notre Dame played poorly and hesitantly in the last two games. It could not control the DePaul height advantage at the net and was caught a number of times with "sink shots."

The highlight of the weekend was the first game of the DePaul match. The Irish eventually lost, 15-15, but both teams played well. The lead changed hands a number of times as both teams traded spikes in a game marked by competitive net play.

Notre Dame fell behind early, but regained the lead largely on the play of Terese Henken, who scored on several shots. The Blue Demons took advantage of some slow movement by the Irish to regain the lead, eventually extending it to 14-11. The Irish fought back, but a bad pass halted their charge and DePaul finished the game off.

That game seemed to take a lot of wind out of the Irish as they became sloppy on serves, and sets and passes began to go away. DePaul had to work for it, but eventually they took the final two games to gain a sweep. "We weren't concentrating," Vanslager said. "No matter what the score is, whether it's 15-15 or 0-0, the concentration has to be there and it has to be consistent on every play."

Although there will be no more home games, the Notre Dame season will have a fair amount of action remaining. The regular season will end tomorrow when the team travels to IUPUI -- Ft. Wayne. After that the team will take a break as it准备好for the North Star Conference tournament, which will take place on November 18-19. It will also participate in a tournament over Thanksgiving Break in Louisiana.

In the meantime, the injury-plagued Irish will try to rebuild and play better than their 10-21 record indicates.

Knight tells students of Olympic politics

Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. -- United States basketball players who make it to the 1984 Olympic Games must remember that they will be involved not only in a sport but also in politics, Indiana Coach Bob Knight said yesterday.

"Anything that's international first is political," said Knight, who will coach the U.S. men for the Olympic Games in Los Angeles next summer. "The Olympics are as political as they are athletic."

"My guess is that the Russian team that comes to the United States and loses might never be known about in the Soviet Union. But you can bet the farm that if they come to the U.S. and win, everybody in the Soviet Union will know about it."

Knight told about 800 people who attended his lecture at IU's Alumni Hall.

During the 'four-hour' lecture, Knight dispelled rumors that he might take a coaching job in the National Basketball Association.

Developing a bad habit

Here we go again. In case you haven't noticed, a very disturbing pattern has begun to develop with the Notre Dame football team. The pattern began after the Notre Dame team, driving toward a national championship, traveled to Alabama and won a clutch game, 7-0, on national television.

The Irish, whose chances for a national title were in jeopardy after losing a tie the previous week, moved to No. 2 in the country and earned a bid to the Sugar Bowl. Only the seniors would remember the inconsiderable excitement the Irish fans had about a team that won that game so much.

Almost six months later, on Nov. 5, 1980, the Notre Dame football team has failed to win a game that it should have. Included in this list is Southern Cal in 1980, Georgia Tech in Mich.igan, Arizona in Miami in 1981 and 1983, and Pitt last Saturday.

Each of these was a "must-win" game. Not like the Pitt game last season when Pitt was No. 1 and the Irish were coming off three poor showings in a row. Notre Dame really had nothing to lose when it traveled to Pittsburgh. Granted it was a great win that will live in my memory when I graduate, but it wasn't a "must" win.

The Michigan game last year was another big win, but once again, it was not a game that had to be won. After all, it was the first game of the season and Michigan was favored.

Circling back to the Michigan game, almost everyone 1 game mentioned was national, but not the only reason they were "must win" games. USC and Georgia in 1980 cost the Irish a national championship. Michigan in 1981 cost Notre Dame a No. 1 ranking and it went in rolling defeat in the Sugar Bowl last year. Notre Dame always has a Sugar Bowl bid. The loss to Miami in 1981 gave Notre Dame its first losing record in 17 years and the loss cost the Irish the great deal of respect. Finally, the Pitt game lost Notre Dame a sure major bowl bid and even more respect.

There is more. Since 1980, Notre Dame has a terrible 2-8 record over the last three games not considered. What a struggle the stretch run is so important in college football, this is another alarming statistic.

What does all of this mean?

Well, at least it explains the performance of many of these games, especially the last two games.

The major characteristic of each game is a subpar performance by Notre Dame. Notre Dame usually were not the weaker team, but they played like a weaker team. They didn't approach things like a Notre Dame team, a normally strong Notre Dame line was manhandled. It was not always the case of the best team winning.

Saturday's game is a good example. Notre Dame had a better team, but it didn't make the big play when it was needed to, turned the ball over many times and couldn't capitalize when the Panthers made their few chances. We'll talk more about how Irish misdirection continued to get us and playing like a very nervous, very big game, team. (The players even admitted as much.) They didn't deserve to win.

In fact, when was the last time Notre Dame made a big play in a game? We think it's been a while. It seemed that Notre Dame was a team that could depend upon winning every single game.

There is only one way to describe how the Irish performed against Pitt and against the other teams I mentioned.

They choked.

The question is, "Why?" I mean, hasn't it been the mark of Notre Dame to win the big ones? I wish I knew the answer, but it seems to be that the solution doesn't reflect the characters of the inviduals on the team. Rather, the character of the team is as a whole is poor. The team cannot win a game when it has to - at least not yet.

A lot of the blame has to rest on the coach who is responsible for his squad's performance on the field. There is some reason that the team gets shipped and loses confidence on the field. The fact that the coach that is Booth is even emotional, and insensitive on the sidelines is probably the reason. Therefore, unless some player can come along and bring the decisiveness and confidence on to the field, there will continue to be problems. Right now, there is nobody who can do this.

Something has got to change.

For the last three years, we have been told by experts that Notre Dame should be among the top teams in the nation. It hasn't happened, it's not like the team hasn't had the choice. Each year there has been at least one game that could turn things around. Each time, the team has failed.

One day Notre Dame will win that game that turns things around, but it's hard to say when that will happen. This week at Penn State, Notre Dame is a huge underdog and the Sugar Bowl bid is actually riding on the outcome, it is a must-win game, frequently.

Most Notre Dame football history is marked by big wins and great respect. That is beginning to change. The students have been disappointed many times and bounced back. One day, they will not rebound. Hopefully, it will not come to that.

Sports Volleyball team loses two over weekend

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Editor

The 1983 season has not been as productive for the Notre Dame volleyball team as it was expected to be. Injuries, mental and physical mistakes, and a much tougher schedule took their toll. Thus, it was only fitting that those problems led Notre Dame to a pair of losses as the home season came to an end.

The losses, to DePaul (15-13, 9-15-8) and the University of Evansville (15-7, 15-12, 15-13) on Sunday were the first games that the volleyball team played that have been played in the ACC. Main Arena, but the bad luck that the players and team still did not change. Last year, the Irish returned home, but usually the ACC. Pit, but this year they have lost both at home and on the road as their play has been in consistent.

"It's just not consistent," said Notre Dame coach Sandy Vanslander. "The passing is inconsistent as well as the moves around the court, the defense, the blocking, the hitting, and other things. If we can do those on the several occasions when we win, we should be able to do them consistently.

The Irish were able to perform well for periods of time over the weekend, but those periods were too few to allow them to keep up with the good DePaul and Evansville teams.

Against Evansville, Notre Dame did not start the game with its best play and the Aces were able to take control of the game. They took advantage of Irish mistakes to win the first game easily. Things got worse for the Irish in the second game. The Irish began to play better, however, the Aces won the game and put Notre Dame deep in the hole. We just were not able to execute our skills properly," said Vanslander. "It was one of the key things we focused on going into the third game - just work on execution."

The execution did improve in that game as the Irish held Evansville bad for a sweep. The key in the game continued as the Irish had an early lead. However, the Aces fought back and took control. Notre Dame then lost its serve when there was some communication that was not on track to serve. The Irish lost some momentum and the Aces won the game and match. "When we get ourselves under control and we kind of break a rhythm in the court," explained Vanslander. "It emotions take control and the girls see LOSSES, page 6.

Evans picked first in re-entry draft

NEW YORK — Darrell Evans, the San Francisco Giants free-agent infielder, was the No. 1 pick yesterday in baseball's re-entry draft, being chosen by 17 teams in a selection process that several clubs said was becoming less important to building a winner.

"The Baltimore Orioles had a lot to do with this," New York Yankees General Manager Murray Cook said. "They winning the American League pennant had a profound effect on the approach of a lot of teams. They're going to look for more of their own team and system and away from free-agency."

Danny Gooden, a recent big winner in the free-agent market, made only one selection in the free-agent draft. That was Evans, whom they picked in the second round.

In last 29 of the 45 available free agents were picked by fewer than four teams, meaning they can negotiate with any team they want.

"We are approaching the free-agent market differerntly than we have in the past," said General Manager Hank Peters of the Orioles, who won the World Series with their time-proven mix of surefire homegrown talent and a few surprising trade acquisitions. "We will adhere to our policy, which has been very consistent, and that is the magic formula."

The Orioles selected negotiating rights to seven players, including Evans.

The New York Mets and Minnesota Twins did not pick anyone, passing in the first two rounds, which automatically eliminated them from the draft.

People have had bad experiences with free agents," said Mets General Manager Frank Cashen. "I guess overall the Yankees have prospered. Our farm system has been pretty weak as we were developing a team for years. I see no reason to make cosmetic changes now."

After Evans, the next two most possible picks in the draft were relief pitchers Kent Tekulve of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who was chosen by 12 teams, and Rich Gossage of the Yankees was selected 11 times. The Pirates and Yankees each retained the right to negotiate with Tekulve and Gossage, respectively, and did New with Evans.

Agent Jerry Kapstein of San Diego represented two of the top three picks. Evans and Gossage. Kapstein said neither player had expressed a desire to be with a specific club, and neither had ruled out the possibility of returning to his former club.

Kapstein and Cook each said reports that Gossage would not return to the Yankees unless owner George Steinbrenner fired Manager Billy Martin were untrue.

"In a move that might signal the breaking of another precedent, the California Angels retained the rights to their free-agent player Rod Carew. And, it appeared, the Angels might be the only club interested in the 38-year old veteran seven-time American League batting champion since he was not selected by any club in the draft."

Some other top names also received little attention. Infielder Manny Trillo of Montreal was selected only once, and outfielder Dave Parker of Pittsburgh and catcher Ted Simmons of Milwaukee were picked by only two teams.

"I think clubs are getting more selective," San Diego General Manager Dave Mientkiewicz said. "They're looking for players who fit specific needs. They're not drafting a Carew's for Carew's sake. They're looking deeper into their plans and finding the one or two guys that can make them a winner."

"It's not a grab bag anymore."
