Start of food sales inspection disputed

By DAN MccULLOUGH
Senior Staff Reporter

The Student Affairs Office and the Environmental Health and Safety Department have conflicting accounts as to which of the two University offices initiated the recent health inspections of dormitory food sales.

Michael McC. Austin, Environmental Health and Safety specialist, said yesterday that the investigation was entirely his idea. "The report initiated from my office. I initiated the report," he said. "There was no discussion of the food sales issue in this office prior to late October." Father John Van Wolvleac told the Observer Tuesday that problems with food sales conditions were discussed at a meeting over the summer and the group "decided that we've got to inspect them." He said he didn't remember exactly when the meeting took place or who at tended.

McCauslin said that "he was not aware of what they discussed" at the meeting. "I was not there.

Van Wolvleac said he contacted McCauslin concerning the issue af-fter the summer meeting.

McCauslin conducted the spot inspections in November along with Fire Captains Mark Erzenwein and Fred Schleiger, and Firefighter Wayne Minick.

He said that Van Wolvleac was the only person to receive a copy of his three page letter which outlined the food sales inspections results.

"There was only one copy of the letter. I have the original and Father Van Wolvleac has the copy," he explained.

In his letter, McC. Austin said, "The health, sanitation, and fire safety conditions found within the food sales are deplorable." Unsafe food stor age, improper and infrequent sanitation and waste disposal, and rodent infestations were among the problems the letter cited.

The letter went on to recommends limiting food sales to prepackaged foods and requiring proper training for food sales operators.

McCauslin said the allegations made by South Bend pizza supplies distributor Martin Milliken, linking University Food Service Director William Hickey with the food sales investiga tion were "absolutely untrue."

He added that Wednesday's Observer article that included the allegations "made it sound like (the investigation) was preplanned. That lends itself to a lot of problems in that it almost sounds like I got together with Father Van Wolvleac and we assaulted the problem together. Father Van Wolvleac wasn't even aware of what I was doing."

Van Wolvleac, however, said the Student Affairs Office did play a role in the investigation. "If something endangers the life or health of our students we (Student Affairs) must respond," he said.

He added that the Milliken allegations were "a complete fabrication."

Protesters brave cold for speeches against Euromissile deployment

By PAUL McGINN

More than 100 people braved near freezing temperatures yesterday to protest the Student Affairs office's decision to display the deployment of Pershing II and cruise missiles in Europe. Calling for members of the peace movement to "link arms across the nation and across the Atlantic," Elisabeth Klaus of the Women's International League for Peace and Justice termed the fight against nuclear weapons "of humanly significant survival." "Our thinking about nuclear weapons is out of date," said John Monczynski of Notre Dame Magazine, "that weapons are a dead end."

Monczynski, who heads the St.
Joseph County Nuclear Freeze Campaign, cited a recent Parade magazine article in which scientist Carl Sagan predicted even a small-scale nuclear exchange would release so much soot into the atmosphere that the temperature of the Northern Hemisphere would drop dramatically.

Klaus, a German citizen working on her master's degree at Notre Dame, said the U.S. decision to deploy the missiles contradicts the will of the majority of people in Western European nations.

"People in Western Europe want peace," and believe the deployment of the cruise and Pershing II missiles "will increase the probability that the Day After will one day occur," said Klaus.

Talk of a protracted nuclear war frightens most Europeans, she said, because "there is no way to limit a nuclear war."

And even if NATO and the Warsaw Pact nations were able to fight a limited nuclear war in Europe, between five and 20 million people would die according to U.S. government reports, she said.

"Computer errors," Klaus added, see MISSILE, page 4

Leftover IDs from lottery at Student Union office

By MARK WORSCHEN

Students who did not pick up their ID cards after the Billy Joel ticket lottery yesterday can retrieve them at the Student Union secretary's desk, said Ed Konrady, Student Union concert commissioner, last night.

The question of who will be liable for lost IDs, however, remained unanswered. As the lottery began to break up, several stacks of IDs could be seen being passed through the crowd. Inside, dozens of IDs were left on the Ombudsman counter as students attempted to retrieve their own and IDs of friends.

James McDonnell, director of student activities, said the largest concert ever handled was the Bruce Springsteen show three years ago. The lottery for that concert was "a

Billy Joel might have been flut-ted, but many of his fans almost got flattened at yesterday's ticket lottery, organized by the Concert Commission of the Student Union. I've been involved with lotteries before, and this is the most ridiculous one I've ever seen. It's five o'clock and I've been here since 2:30. It seems like it would have taken a minimal amount of sense to move us to Washington Hall," said Bill Thaman, senior, as he bravved the cold outside of LaFortune Student Center.

"Kind of disorganized," commmented Sheila Kroned, a freshman from Saint Mary's. Some students were even more emphatic in their criticism of the event. "I think it's obscene that they can't run it any better than this. They should have anticipated the crowd and held it in a bigger place," said Kevin McAlleery, a junior who at 5 p.m. had not been able to purchase tickets.

Concert Commissioner Ed Konrady admitted afterward the mistakes were the result of poor planning on his part. "What hurt us was that I planned on only 400 tickets, so when the lottery began to break up, showing up because of the timing of the lottery and of the high demand for tickets. The lottery could not have been moved to another location on such short notice," he said.

Nevertheless, Konrady said, "I don't feel we (the staff) did a bad job. Even with better planning, the best I could have done was put it in St. Joseph's and use a form of tickets instead of IDs."

"We expected to sell 1,500, and we ended up selling over 2,000 tickets. What caused the delay was that in students would put in five or six IDs. From the point of view of the students, I can see their strategy. Our problem was getting the IDs out fast enough," said Konrady. "Everyone added, 'People who purchased tickets will get tickets.'"

The AOC will seat 12,000 for the Joel concert.

"In a typical student lottery we will sell less than 1,000 tickets. In this one we sold 2,735 tickets," said James McDonnell, director of student activities. He said the largest concert ever handled was the Bruce Springsteen show three years ago. The lottery for that concert was "a

A dance, the Presidential Dinner, and an address by former Notre Dame football star Rocky Bleier highlight activities planned for Junior Parents' Weekend, to be held Feb. 17-19.

Junior Mike Schmitz, chairman for the weekend's planning committee, announced the schedule for the annual event, commenting that some changes and innovations promise to make the weekend "an event which all juniors can participate in and enjoy."

The festivities begin Friday night with a dance in the uptown concourse and basketball arena of the ACC, featuring a live band, cocktails, and an international food buffet of ethnic hors d'œuvres.

Saturday offers a wide range of activities, beginning with academic presentations by the Colleges of Arts and Letters, Engineering, Science, and Business. A reception immediately afterward will provide both students and their parents the opportunity to meet with faculty members on an individual basis.

Performances by the jazz bands and Shenanigans, as well as a showing of the film "Wake Up the Echoboom," are scheduled for late afternoon. The entertainment will be followed at 5 p.m. with a Mass in the ACC, celebrated by Father Theodore Hesburgh, University president and the annual Presidential Dinner. Throughout the day, the Center for Social Concerns will conduct an open house for juniors and their parents.

The weekend will conclude on Sunday with a brunch at 10:30 in stead of the earlier breakfast served in previous years. Former Notre Dame football player and Pittsburgh Steeler Rocky Bleier will be the guest speaker for this event.

Information concerning hotel availability and complete descriptions and schedules for all events have been sent to the parents of every junior. Total cost for the weekend, which includes admission for three persons to the dance, Presidential Dinner, and brunch, is $102.50.

Reservation deadline is January 31, but Schmitz advises students to make their hotel reservations as soon as possible. He also encourages juniors whose parents cannot attend to participate in the events. "We'd really like to see the whole junior class attend the activities. It's one of the few opportunities to have the whole class involved," he said.

Juniors needing information packets may pick them up at the Student Activities Office in LaFortune.

Informational slide shows will be shown next week by the Holy Cross Associates in an effort to publicize their one-year post-graduate program of Christian service.

A.D. Murray, who participated in the program the last year, is coordinating the presentations. Murray said the purpose of the slide shows is primarily to generate more knowledge of the program in the student body.

Although she said the program has no shortage of volunteers, Murray indicated she would like to see more students considering the Holy Cross Associates as an option. "It (the program) provides the student with a reflection period after college and an opportunity to do Christian service," she said.

Murray described her experience in the program as remarkably "simple." The year involves living as a community in a single house with five to six persons. Each volunteer works for some social agency, such as helping the elderly or a minority group, and is paid $5,200 per year for his or her services. The low wages save the agencies money.

Members of each house pool their salaries and use the money to buy food, clothing and other items. All cooking and household jobs are done by the community.

The Holy Cross Associates currently has houses in four cities: Colorado Springs, Colo.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Portland, Ore.; and Hayward, Calif.

The presentations will be held Sunday Dec. 4 after 10:30 p.m. Mass in Grace Pic. Monday Dec. 5 at 6:45 p.m. in the Center for Social Concerns; Tuesday Dec. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in Dillon, and Monday Dec. 12 at 4 p.m. in the Saint Mary's Student Affairs Room.

Scholars study Thomas Merton

Special to the Observer

Scholars from across the U.S. are coming to Saint Mary's Little Theatre Dec. 10 to participate in a day-long conference to examine the life and writing of Thomas Merton, considered by many the most influential Catholic writer in the 20th century.

The conference, titled "Thomas Merton 15 Years Later: The Difference He Makes," will consist of seminars dedicated to the monk's contributions to philosophy, art and the Church.

Merton, who entered the Trappist monastery of Gethsemani in 1941, died in Bangkok, Thailand, on Dec. 10 1968.

A prolific writer, Merton wrote numerous books and articles about every social and religious issue.

The Soviet Union is "an incredibly paranoid society" that "cannot even patrol its own borders" and which "is willing to shoot first and ask questions after," he said.

Persons should write their Senators and Representatives, Monczunski said, and urge them to stop Euromissile deployment and to work for better peace agreements with the Soviet Union which ensure verifiable reductions of nuclear weapons.

SMC granted unrestricted $5,000 funds
By MEGAN KOREMAN
News Staff

Saint Mary's College has received a $5,000 unrestricted operating grant from Household International, a multi-industry corporation based in Illinois. Money from an unrestricted grant is usually put into the College's operating fund rather than designated for any specific purpose, according to the Saint Mary's Development Office.

In announcing this grant, Donald Clark, president of Household International, said, "We base this grant on the institution's interest in economic issues. Household's program is designed to support institutions which encourage discussion of the principles of a free-market economy consistent with a free society."

Saint Mary's is one of 36 private colleges and universities, including Notre Dame, to receive a new unrestricted operating grant from Household International this year. The Prospect, Illinois, based corporation has also made 25 ongoing grants to educational institutions this year.

Besides the unrestricted operating grants, Household's Support for Higher Education program also makes research grants to departments specializing in finance, merchandising, engineering, transportation and insurance. Household has contributed more than $3.97 million to American colleges and universities since the program began in 1956.

Social group launches adoption of families

By JENNIFER BIGOTT
News Staff

The Social Justice Commission at Saint Mary’s is sponsoring an Adopt-A-Family program to provide food and clothing for approximately 18 families this holiday season, according to Angela Attanasio, chairman of the Social Justice Commission.

Names of families in need were obtained by the commission from the Saint Vincent DePaul Society, a charity organization in South Bend.

All halls are participating in the program, however each hall works differently in deciding on the number of families they will sponsor, said Attanasio. "People representing every facet of campus life at Saint Mary’s College are involved," she added.

Students from almost 15 different clubs and organizations are helping this year. Efforts to get the entire campus involved with helping the needy can largely be attributed to Annie Day of the Christian Life Commission, said Attanasio.

Students were asked to bring food and clothing back from Thanksgiving break for their "family." Families were assigned before break, so the students knew what to bring from home. Also, students are asked to donate $1 so necessary items can be purchased for the families.

The Social Justice Commission plans to collect donations of food, clothing, and money on Dec. 5. These will be distributed to families before final exams. Items will be sorted and the money will be pooled "because we don’t want one family having a total overabundance and then another family not really having anything at all," said Attanasio.

Dear Editor:
The University of Notre Dame students are affiliated with numerous human rights groups. The students concern themselves with issues such as nuclear arms in Central America, South Africa, Poland and many other faraway places. World-wide interest in liberty and social justice is a right, not a privilege, and students wish to share their ideas with other students at Notre Dame who feel obligated to protect any and all human rights.

I refer to the multi-minority and non-minority work force here on campus, particularly at the North Dining Hall. Last week, five full-time employees, with combined service of over fifty years, were fired. There were no explanations given, only a faint rumor of an internecine incident which occurred six months ago and involved just two of the five fired workers.

Last week when Director of Food Services, Mr. William Hickey, announced that three managers and two minority workers were fired, it was stated that the University would not comment on personnel matters.

At the North Dining Hall, the "upfront jobs like making and serving food belong mostly to the non-white minorities, Orientals, Blacks and Hispanics. Food Services style of placement promotes racism, and the University will therefore continue to tolerate racism. As for unions, perhaps the University will have to tolerate it; the present worker-employer relationship apparently provides little or no job security. This is our campus. Before we preach about how things should be elsewhere, perhaps we should make things that way here.

Dear Editor:
Campus liberals

Despite how free thinking and independent we college students claim to be, we are not very impressionable. I know several students here at Notre Dame who feel obligated to protect anything even slightly controversial.

The day of the Captain Crunch eating contest, I saw several students parading about with Captain Crunch-Way posters on their backs. Fine. But when I see the same people distributing posters decrying U.S. involvement in Grenada a few days later, I begin to wonder.

Are these true feelings, or merely the manifestation of some urge to continually question and complain without thinking of real solutions or causes?

Many of our peers approach the nuclear arms issue in the same manner. How many students across the nation have hopped onto the nuclear freeze bandwagon without really understanding the causes we will end up worse off. I am not saying that the nuclear freeze movement is wrong, rather, I challenge students to think the issue through from top to bottom before forming an opinion. Don’t feel pressured to join the nuclear freeze movement just because it is in vogue. Understand what you are arguing for.

For a student to blindly follow what the freeze fathers dictate is as bad as a soldier blindly obeying the orders of a military dictator.

Letters to a Lonely God

The hard-eyed look

by Rev. Robert Griffin

I was at a party, standing by the table where the refreshments were laid out. Another guest, missing himself a drink, made the observation: "They're running out of ice," I remarked. "I don't think so," he said. "I haven't had any ice, until I met a man who was watching ice peculiarly." I turned to his acquaintance and asked what was up. He smiled humorously, and witty. The other guest moved away as though he was embarrassed he heard me.

At dinner, where stories were being told, I offered a joke. A Russian soldier came home from three years on guard duty in Siberia. His wife, Natasha, offered him a three month overhaul of her husband. She knew that an ice-cream sundae would come after the great successes continued in the pop/ballad mood of herself.

The change wasn't immediately apparent until the hour, I answered without enthusiasm. Ten years ago, when Joel was a young man, saxophones here power the song. Money", his first album, was a huge hit, yet his second album, 52nd Street. Because I am an innocent man therefore I am. The secret world inside me is not recognized. It's a reflex action, they hate me, they ignore me, they stigmatize me. The change wasn't immediately apparent until the hour, I answered without enthusiasm. Tonight's Friday Night Film is "Chan is Missing," a 1981 movie depicting a search by a Chinese-American taxi driver and his restless nephew through San Francisco's Chinatown. The picture is ordinary, yet filled with the humor and ironies of cultural assimilation. Admission is $2 for the 7:30 p.m. showing in the Annenburg.

On Saturday at 7 and 9:15 p.m., "Kramer vs. Kramer," the poignant story of a divorce and the relationship that develops between a single father and his son, will be shown in Carroll Hall at Saint Mary's, for $1.

"The Great Justice," a Chinese Association film, will show Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Auditorium.

"Equinox Flower," a 1958 Japanese film in which a father seeks to arrange his dear daughter's marriage, begins Monday at 7 in the Annenburg. At 9 p.m. on Monday,"Pensies from Heaven," a 1961 film, combines drama, comedy and original recording from the 30's to construct "a world where the songs come true," fantasy by an unsuccessful sheet music salesman. The drama looks back at the roots of musical extravaganza in a lingering Depression. Admission is also $2 for this Annenburg movie.

A student band called Bhythm and Methods will play in the Nazz tonight, beginning at 9.

MISCELLANEOUS

Today, until 5 p.m., the annual Christmas pottery and card sale will be held at the Student Center Ball of O'Shaughnessy. The sale is supported by the Suite Museum, the Ceramics Department, and the department of Art, Art History and Design.

A philosophy lecture titled "Mathematics with the Early Wic-egens" will be presented by Dr. Phyllis Rooney of the University of Iowa, today at 3:30 in the Library Lounge.

Bobby Joels: surprise again with a 50's-top-tapping sound

by Vic Sculli

O ne never really knows what to expect from Bobby Joel. The man has become known for keeping his audience on the edge by varying his sound from album to album. After the great successes of The Stranger And Glass Houses, Joel could have very easily been easier to believe him when he sings I'm a man who needs from strangers is smiles on his own brand rather than just reusing the old sounds, as the Stray Cats have done. (We all had a little taste of this loneliness.) I want the easy/Easy money/I can't believe that people aren't seeing me inwardly as an innocent man for he is a friend of mine, my friend! I put on my shark skin jacket and Sunday at 2 p.m. Guest soloists from the Cleveland Ballet will perform in this story of a child's magical Christmas, described as having "great music, dazzling magic, brilliant pagentry, and stunning scenery." THEATRE

"The Investigation," a portrayal of the post World War II trials of Nazi war criminals in Nuremberg, opens tonight in the Theatre. The play by Peter Weiss will be presented by the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Theatre Company at 2, 7:30, and 10 p.m. in the Center for Continuing Education. Admission is $5, or $2.50 for senior citizens and Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community members. Two can get in for the price of one tonight, opening night. Call 288-3240 for more information.

The Notre Dame Student Players, in association with Music Theatre International, present the classic "Fiddler on the Roof," today and tomorrow at 8 p.m in the Saint Mary's O'Laughlin Auditorium. Student performers will perform the original New York stage production of this play about a Jewish village in czarist Russia. Admission is $4 at the door. For information call 239-5233.

The South Bend Civic Theatre presents "The House of Blue Leaves," a "zany comedy," today and tomorrow at 8:30 p.m in the Firethorn Theatre. For reservations call 234-5660.

St. Peter's upsets Michigan State

Associated Press

FAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. - Saint Peter's basketball team made life miserable for Michigan State and its

2-5 freshman center in the first half, but the Spartans said they the last two minutes of the unranked and unheralded Peacocks'

75-66 victory last night over 11-ranked Michigan State won't be an eternity.

In the second game of the doubleheader at Brendan Byrne

Aren, 11-0, Michigan State scored 23 points and had rebounds to lead Ohio State, 20, to a 72-68 upset of the

No. 5 Maryland, 1-1.

Center Tommy Best scored 22 points and forward Shelton Gibbs scored 20, including two crucial free throws with 35 seconds to play, as St. Peter's held on after seeing an 18-point first-half lead dwindled to nine points.

"It's a scary feeling," Dakides said.

"You hate to see a game go out from under you when you've been in control so long.

Michigan State, 2-1, came back from a 26-8 deficit to pull with Shelton Gibbs' two free throws with 36

seconds to play.

But Gibbs calmly sank two free throws after a shot-clock technical foul was called on Michigan State's guard Debrazha For grabbing St. Peter's Bernard Hargrove on the inbounds play after Vince's two foul shots.

The dead-ball technical foul was called because Referee Tim Hargrove said Johnson was trying to foul Hargrove before St. Peter's Phil

Jamison could complete his shot attempt on the basket to make an inbounds pass.

"I'm not sure we've ever been associated with basketball," said

Michigan State Coach Jud Haischke. "I've never been able to allow him a convention for the ball. Hargrove was fouled four times in a 1:30 span leading up to the technical foul.

After Gibbs' two free throws, Norman Luckett converted a layup to give St. Peter's a 66-61 lead with 30 seconds to play.

"I think we lost the game in the first 10 minutes. Their overplaying, aggressive defense really bothered us. It took nothing away from them. I give them credit," Heathcoate said.

"It was a wild and crazy game," said

Dukiet, fifth-year coach at the tiny Jesuit school across the Hudson.

"In the last five games, the Irish have reached the following scores: 82-54 and 84-53. This year should be a different story.

Don't let the modesty of this electric backcourt player fool you. He has a wide range of talents. "Scott Hicks is a guard that's got good potential," says Phelps. "I think that he handles the ball very well in transition and he's a better shooter than people think. Plus he's very creative with the ball.

"He is not John Paxson, but he's the guard we wanted to come in here. I don't think it's fair to compare Scott Hicks with John Paxson because of what John Paxson was as a senior. Hicks is only a freshman - but he's going to be a very good player." Hicks began Cathedral's all-time scoring lead after having played small forward at Cathedral, where he averaged 20.4 points, 10 rebounds, and 3.4 steals per game as a senior. Hicks became Cathedral's all-time scorer by shooting 50 percent from the field and 69 percent from the free-throw line during his senior season.

Named to the prep all-America teams of Parade, Basketball Weekly, Scholastic Coach/Adidas, and the National High School Athletic Coaches Association/Converse during his senior year, Hicks led Cathedral to a 20-3 record.

"It was one of the nation's early signees in the initial year that option for high school seniors. His decision to attend Notre Dame was based to a some degree on his proximity to his Indianapolis home. "I just wanted to stay close to home," says Hicks. "I was also turned on by the academics and the tradition."

Hicks may also have been influenced in his decision by the Irish sophomore Barlow. "I've been good friends for about six years," says Barlow. "I just told him (Hicks) that Notre Dame was a nice place, that I enjoyed it here, and that I thought he could handle the academics.

At the moment, Hicks is playing the role of the off-guard in the Phelps offense. "He's a second guard," says Phelps. "I don't think that he's a point guard."

"So far, Digger has made his role out to be one of all shooting," adds Hicks. "

Another freshman who will counted on to do his share of shooting is in 6-7, 205-pound Donald Royal. The product of St. Augustine High School in New Orleans, Louisiana, has front-line quickness that every team is looking for.

"Donald is a quick front-line player that gives us somebody who is going to be a good defensive player," assesses Phelps. "And he is somebody who's very quick going to the hole offensively. He's going to be a good rebounder, so his going to be a good rebounder," continues Phelps. "He's not a good shooter right now but we're working on that."

Royal was not that much of a scorer in high school, averaging 12.7 points. But maybe it was his 14.2 rebounds or 4.3 assists per game that were more important than he led St. Augustine to a 35-0 record and the Louisiana state championship in his senior season.

Phelps sees more in Royal than pure statistics, though. "I just like the way he plays the game," says the Irish coach. "He's an athlete. He knows how to play ball.

Royal also knows that there is much for him to work on in the years ahead at Notre Dame. "I've got to learn to face the basket. I'm used to playing with my my back to it. But everything will take care of itself. I just want to come in this year and contribute, to give the team whatever it takes to win."

There should be no shortage of playing time for Royal, or any of the other freshmen, to work on their games.

"We're a young team," comments Phelps. "They need to get playing time."

"Joining the relative youth of his team, Phelps quipped, "You know, Royal won't be 18 until May so he doesn't even wear a jock. He's still in diapers."

Royal, in fact, mentions that the chance for playing time was a part in his decision to attend Notre Dame.

"It came down to Notre Dame and UCLA. I chose Notre Dame because the academics were stressed more and there would be more playing opportunity."

Like Scott Hicks, fellow freshman John Bowen also announced his decision to play basketball for Notre Dame early. For Bowen, the decision had been made a long time ago. "Basically, I always wanted to come here since I was a little boy. The mystique, tradition, the percentage of ballplayers who go on, all turned me on. I just had a real good feeling."

Bowen is much like Irish sophomore Tim Kempton in his style of play. He hits the boards hard and is not afraid to shoot. In fact, Bowen is unofficially the top rebounder in Pennsylvania high school history, with 2,163 for a 19.1 average.

His 21.1 points and 19.2 rebounds per game as a senior aided Warren Area High School in Warren, Penn., to a 29-3 record and gave Bowen a spot on the all-America team of Basketball Weekly. He finished second in the state for the second straight year. As with most freshman players, Bowen has a number of things he must work on. For one, he has played zone defense throughout his entire career and now must adjust to the man-to-man that the Irish play.

"I just want to get the system and get used to a new coach," Bowen says. "It's an opportunity." Bowen is looking for. "He's a quick front-line player that gives us something that there's no Trispuckas, there's no Woodruff.

All you're looking at is a bunch of guys who want to win."

Four or five years down the road, Phelps may well be mentioning the fact that there are no Hickses, Royals, or Bowens on his team that year. Whether these three are deserving of such merit at that time is something that everyone will have to wait to find out. After all, Paxson, Trispuckas, and Woodruff all were unknown and untested freshmen at one time in their career.

Everything these three freshmen of the class of 87 have done in the past will do little in making a name for them. Now is the time to do that. The ball is in their court.

Limited playing time during one's freshman year is nothing to be alarmed about, however, at least according to Phelps. "I told them in recruiting not to put everything in their first year. It's going to be a four year process for you. But each year you're going to see us get better."

"I think that they're three talented people," Phelps continues. "I wouldn't have them here if I didn't think they had potential. Right now there's no Paxson, there's no Trispuckas, there's no Woodruff.

Irish captain

The Notre Dame hockey team is on the road again this weekend. After a successful non-conference sweep last weekend at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, the team resumes Central States Collegiate Hockey League action as it faces St. Norbert's.

Located in De Pere, Wisconsin, a small community just south of Green Bay, St. Norbert's is expected to be one of the more challenging opponents on the league slate.

"Because of their coach's experience, we are expecting them to be well-prepared," says Irish coach Lefty Smith.

St. Norbert's coach Hank Therrien is a former professional hockey player. He never made it to the National Hockey League, but he did play with the Ft. Wayne Komets of the International Hockey League and the Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League.

"Of course their coach's experience, we are expecting them to be well-prepared," says Irish coach Lefty Smith. "We don't think it will be our top competition, but it should be interesting.

As happens when dealing with mid-season programs, it is difficult to obtain accurate reports about an opponent's strengths and weaknesses. The best analysis usually comes when the games are actually played.

St. Norbert's currently sports a 2-3-1 record, while Notre Dame maintains an impressive 9-0-0 overall mark.

With things going as well as they have so far this season, team attitude is one factor that must be watched closely. Smith feels, however, that his players are readying themselves in the right lines.

"Their attitude is really excellent," says the Irish mentor. "Had we not faced St. Thomas and Michigan-Dearborn, though, we might have had a little problem. But winning all four against the good competition brings in the prospect of going undefeated.

And Notre Dame's junior co-captain Brent Chapman believes that his teammates are maintaining the proper mental motivation to continue their success. "We want to keep undefeated," he says. "We're been told that we've faced our stiffest competition. St. Norbert's probably isn't as good as St. Thomas or Dearborn, but if you want to stay undefeated, you've always got to be prepared.

"If we keep thinking and playing like we are now, we'll do really well," adds junior forward Steve Ely. "Avoiding injuries, however, will be an important factor as well."

Injuries will not be a problem for the Irish this weekend, though. Everyone should be ready to play.

Sophomore defenseman Bob Thebeau had the flu and missed the weekend series against Dearborn, but if he's healthy, you've always got to be ready. "As we are now, we'll do really well," Chapman adds.

Substitutes doing well

Wrestlers winning despite injuries

Inexperience creates doubt in people, and many times inexperience dispels these doubts. Such was the case in the Notre Dame wrestling team's first two triangular meets of the 1983-84 season. Because of injuries and the flu, the Irish used a substitute lineup consisting of many inexperienced wrestlers to win their first two triangular meets.

On Wednesday, November 23, while most students were either at home or going home for break, the wrestling team competed in a meet in Michigan against Olivet and Siena Heights. The Irish prevailed beating, Siena Heights, 27-17, and squeaking by Olivet, 21-18.

Against Siena Heights, Notre Dame relied on its lightweight wrestlers to provide an early lead. Siena Heights' strength showed in the heavier classes, but the strength of Notre Dame's heavyweights was enough to hold off Siena Heights. Louis Carnesale, a 5-8 junior, led the wrestlers to win their first two triangular meets. Because of injuries to our competition is getting tougher."

At 8 a.m. yesterday, the wrestling team returned to South Bend with two more victories under their belt.

This time the victims of the Irish were Western Illinois and Millikin. Western Illinois, 34-6, and Millikin, 27-17, were paced by pins from Eric Crown, Luke Disabato, and Matt Stamm. Especially impressive was Disabato, a sophomore, in the 190 class.

"Luke wrestled aggressively and technically, his moves were working," said Bruno. "I was very pleased. He just looked really good." In losing by 44 points, Millikin was simply outclassed by the Irish. Notre Dame won every match except in the 190 class. Included in those wins were pins by Helmer (167-pound class), Fleming (118), Glenn Glogas (134), Carnesale (158), and Matt Stamm (heavyweight). Crown won the 126 class by a forfeit.

The Irish will travel to Terre Haute, Ind., today to compete in the Indiana State tournament. Besides bringing a perfect 4-0 record to ISU, Notre Dame will once again carry a depleted lineup with many substitutes. Bruno wants to rest some of his first-team wrestlers so that their injuries will heal in time for the upcoming triangular meets.

"We're getting a lot of mileage out of our inexperience," said Bruno. "And that's giving our young guys experience, and it's giving all the injuries time to heal."

Irish swimmers start season successfully

By LARRY BURKE
Sports Writer

The swimming season at Notre Dame got off to an impressive start last night, as the Irish women's swim team defeated the Hornets of Kalamazoo, 98-43, at the Rockne Memorial Pool.

The men's team also opens its season this week, in the 19th Annual Notre Dame Swimming Relays, which take place tonight at 7 p.m. at the Rockne Pool.

Dennis Stark, coach of both the men's and women's teams, was decidedly pleased with the women's performance last night. Besides being an important confidence-building win for the team, Stark pointed out that the team's effort answered a lot of questions about the depth of this year's Irish women's squad.

"This being our first meet, we went into it sort of blind," noted Stark. "The fact that we had a solid lead at the halfway point enabled us to change our lineup a bit and get a look at some underclass people very early in the season to say, but I believe that, overall, this team has more depth than last year." Last year's women's team posted a 7-4 record in only its second season of varsity competition. This year, Stark has eight monogram winners returning, who, along with some talented newcomers, form the nucleus of a potentially outstanding team.

It was an all-around team victory for the women last night, as fifteen different swimmers placed in the individual events for both the men's and women's teams.

Stark, who won the 200-yard freestyle, and freshman Monica Boss and freshman Monica Carey, who won the freestyle, and Devine Stark, who won the 500-yard freestyle, and placed second in the 1000-yard freestyle, and freshman Monica Walker, who finished first in the 200-yard individual medley. It should prove to be a busy weekend for Stark, who, in addition to the women's meet against Western Ontario on Saturday morning (10 a.m. at Rockne Pool), opens his 26th season as Notre Dame men's swimming coach tonight in the Notre Dame Relays. Also competing in this annual event are Wabash, Wayne State, and Xavier. The men also have a meet with Western Ontario on Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Rockne Pool.

As far as the men's team is concerned, Stark is also looking for major contributions from senior freestylers Daniel Carey, William Green, and Timothy Jacob. The Irish have experience and talent in the backstroke, with juniors Paul Beno (backstroke), Brian Carey (butterfly), and sophomore Brian Harding (breaststroke). Stark also has two experienced divers in juniors Richard Volan and Michael Kennedy. The team will need solid contributions from leading freshmen prospects Stephen Coffey, John Harding, and Mark Jansen, however, in order to improve on last season's 9-4 record.

Overall, the outlook appears bright for Irish swimming this season. With the experience and leadership ability of Stark, and plenty of talent on both squads, this should be a big year for swimming at Notre Dame.

It's your youth against experience as ND battles highly-ranked UCLA

To say UCLA-Notre Dame is just another basketball game would be like saying World War II was just another skirmish. Claudia Brinkley is just another woman, and a Rolls Royce is just another car. Let there be no doubt about the matter — when these two teams collide tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. under the South Dome of the ACC before a capacity crowd and national television audience, it will be a big game for both teams.

There are two teams with something to prove. For Digger Phelps and the 2-1 Fighting Irish, a victory over the Bruins would erase the painful memories of a dismal season to date. For the Irish women look to bounce back and the 2-0 Fighting Irish, a victory would not only set their tone this season, and deserves a benchmark for this. Notre Dame is the tournament favorite in the ACC this season, it will be a tough match up under the ACC's 85-86 opener. Digger Phelps is the team's leading scorer and rebounder the past two years. Gray is averaging 10.5 points per game while pacing the Bruins in rebounding at nine caroms a contest. Phelps

Irish women look to bounce back

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. The Fighting Irish are not a basket ball team, coming off a poor showing in the Notre Dame Classic over the Thanksgiving weekend, gets another chance to beat a nationally-known power such as UCLA. As a familiar opponent, UCLA visits the ACC in the second half of a men's-women's doubleheader.

The Irish have been trying to break into the big time and the Bruins have a major role in seeing that they don't make it. The teams have played twice in the last two years, with the Bruins taking all three. Both front line players have turned out to be. Results, with a better team than in past years, looking for her team to rebound from last weekend and treat the visitors rudely.

"It's a sign of a good team to profit from its setbacks," says DiStanislao. "The more time we can put between us and last week the better."

What the Irish will have to be is the 6-3, 180-pound Marita van Helvoort, the native of Indianapolis, who poured home 11 points per contest. At the other end, USC's 6-5 sophomore Joseph Price, who sees scoring support from 6-5 sophomore Jim Dolan, who averages 12.3 points per game. Dolan leads the inside game, which has disappointed many Irish fans in the first three contests. Tim Kempton and Ken Barlow, Notre Dame's twin towers, need to increase their offensive production in order for the Irish to challenge the powerful Bruins.

However, both front line can not concentrate solely on offense. UCLA also has some big men who can put the ball through the hoop. 7-0 junior center Stuart Gray continues to improve in his consistency. Gray is averaging 10.5 points per game while pacing the Bruins in rebounding at nine caroms a contest. Phelps sees Gray as a key factor in tomorrow's matchup.

"So much will depend on how well Stewie Gray handles himself inside," says the veteran Irish mentor. "When he plays well in terms of scoring and rebounding, he can make UCLA a great team. Kempton played well against him last year, but this is another season."

In the backcourt, the Bruins will turn to their "super-sub," Gary Malconon. Malconon came off the bench this season to lead the Bruins to an 85-86 opening win over Idaho State to pace the team with a career-high 16 points and eight rebounds. He's a physical player who won't be afraid to mix it up under the basket with Notre Dame's big men.

While the "aircraft carriers" will provide fans with plenty of action, the backcourt matchups could prove to be exciting. Both teams have plenty of quickness at the guard slots, and the tempo of this game could be extremely fast. For UCLA, flashy freshman guard Scott Hicks leads the Notre Dame backcourt crew with 12 points as costing, and he also leads the team in steals with seven. He receives scoring support from 6-5 sophomore Joseph Price, who pours home 11 points per contest. At the other end, USC's 6-5 sophomore John Buchanan and junior Dan Duff have split the task of directing Phelps full court press on defense and run-and-shoot philosophy on offense.

A new quickness in the backcourt pleases Phelps as he tries to match up with the blazing Bruins.

Hicks, Royal, and Bowen will play big role in '83-'84

By JEFF BLUM

"Depth" is the key word when summing up what this year's crop of freshmen will bring to the '83-84 Notre Dame basketball team.

The three freshmen players. Scott Hicks, Digger Royal, and John Bowen, add to the core of a relatively young, but experienced, team. In recruiting this year's class, Irish head coach Digger Phelps came up with a second guard in Hicks, a quick forward in Royal, and a 6-5 swingman in Bowen. Although Phelps lost prize prospect Dave Pospisil to North Carolina, he seems to be satisfied with his new additions to the Irish squad.

"I'm happy that we have depth," says Phelps. "If anything, the freshmen just add to what we've had for a while. Now we're so competitive we're so deep that we're looking at the all-star game and we really don't see anybody doing well in it."

"I'm not going to say how good we're going to do, but we'll work hard in practice this week and I think we'll be fine." The class of '87 is also Chapter Two of the four good recruiting classes that Phelps hopes to put back to back. Putting four good years together would likely give Notre Dame the power status in college basketball that they lost two years ago with their 10-17 season.

"When those four arrive on the scene next year, they will meet up with some experienced sophomores. Hicks, Royal, and Bowen all should contribute considerably playing time this year.

"We're a young team so we're going to get these guys playing time," says Phelps in reference to the freshmen. "And they're going to have a great opportunity."

The freshmen who has perhaps the most duty so far this season is the 6-5, 180-pound Hicks. Making his Notre Dame debut Nov. 16 against the Yugoslavian Nationals, the native of Diapolis, Ind., delighted the Irish crowd with his 20 points and five rebounds, leading the team in scoring and being in third best rebounder that night.

The fact that Hicks does so well in the rebounding department despite his smaller stature is really quite surprising. He possesses exceptional jumping ability, as evidenced by the fact that he led his high school team, Indianapolis Cathedral, in rebounding during both his junior and senior years. And Hicks did this despite being flanked by taller teammates, one of those being current Irish mate Ken Barlow.

"I think that my biggest strength is my ability to jump quick," says Hicks. "I need to work on my backcourt game a little more because I played forward in high school."
