ND professor predicts little change in policies with Andropov's death

By JOHN MENNELL
Staff Reporter

The death of Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov has left the world wondering what changes his successor will bring.

Director of Soviet Studies at Notre Dame, George Brinkley, told The Observer, "I don't think his death will have much effect at all. The issues are bigger than one man and the Soviet leadership is more than one man."

In a statement issued by the White House staff, President Ronald Reagan hoped that the new Soviet leader would move toward more positive East-West relations. Reagan is sending a three-day program of discussions, scientists maintain a "doomsday clock" in Washington, the clock currently shows the world at three minutes away from nuclear destruction.

During the three days of the program members of the College will wear green lapel ribbons as a reminder of the motivating factor behind the program -- hope -- which green traditionally symbolizes.

Professors are rescheduling today and tomorrow's classes around the planned events and a series of films and videotapes will be shown throughout the day Monday and Tuesday.

The program will conclude with a Mass for Peace and Justice in the Clubhouse at 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Nuclear program begins at SMC

Where does the Saint Mary's campus community stand on the nuclear arms race?

"Minutes to Midnight: An Exploration of the Nuclear Dilemma and the Ways to Peace," a three-day program of discussions, prayer services, films and videotapes explores the worldwide issue by making it a campus issue.

The program began yesterday as homilies at Mass throughout campus focused on the U.S. Catholic Bishops' pastoral letter, "The Challenge of Peace: God's Promise and Our Responsibility." At three minutes to midnight the Christian Life Commission led prayer services in each dorm. The Union of Atomic Scientists maintain a "doomsday clock" in Washington, the clock currently shows the world at three minutes away from nuclear destruction.

Vonderheide named editor

The Observer general board has elected Bob Vonderheide as editor-in-chief for 1984-85.

Vonderheide, a junior chemical engineering major from Lexington, Ky., expresses optimism about the future of the newspaper. "We've made a turnaround this year in several areas," he said. "Not only have we drastically improved our coverage of the campus, we have also revamped the business side. The improvements will continue."

"Considering the resources available to our organization, The Observer staff does an excellent job of producing a comprehensive and widely read college daily. I'm proud to have the opportunity to contribute to its growth and development."

Vonderheide says that The Observer will greatly benefit from an outstanding returning staff. "I am fortunate to have several excellent reporters, we will have a bumper crop of copy to work with next year."

Proposed changes for LaFortune include pizzeria and laundromat

By DAVID SARPHEIE
Senior Staff Reporter

A pizzeria next to Chautauqua, a laundromat in the basement, and the addition of student government office space on the second floor are just some of the ideas being considered by a special student government committee looking into further renovation of the LaFortune Student Center.

"Basically, we're looking at a lot of possible changes to make LaFortune more efficient," said Brian Callaghan, student body president.

Among the priorities of the committee in the reduction of wasted space on the second floor near the current student government offices: "We hope to use one of the wide entrance hallways for office space." Callaghan said. This might allow several class officers to move their offices into the second floor, be added.

Callaghan also said that the community is considering moving the student radio station, WIND, from present location, in O'Shaughnessy to the third floor of LaFortune, next to The Observer, "The close proximity of the newspaper and the radio station will allow an easier dissemination of information," Callaghan said. "It will also be easier for Jim (McDonnell, director of student activities) who has to keep track of WIND.""}

Dome editor, Jane Bennett, said that the new smaller facilities would not harm the publication, "We don't need all the space we have now," she said.

Callaghan said the committee is also studying the effects of moving the campus hair styling and travel bureau from their present facilities in Hall's first floor to either the basement or first floor of LaFortune.

"Most campuses have their businesses located in one place," she said. "By doing this, we hope to generate as much traffic as possible in the student center."

Director of Student Activities Jim McDonnell said the move of the businesses to LaFortune would not change the amount of social space in the center. "The purpose of the renovation is to not eliminate social space on the second floor would allow the Dome to move to the 1/12 floor," Callaghan said.

A senior engineering student incurred burns to her face and upper part of her body in an acetylene explosion in a metalurgy laboratory at St. Joseph's Medical Center and released. A preliminary investigation of the incident revealed that Richards was mixing an acid solution in a pail of acetylene when it became overheated, forcing a lid to blow off an ethylene bottle. -AP

A mansion dynamited for a training film to show beer salesmen how sales can blow up in their faces burned longer than expected — it exploded in flames again early Sunday, 12 hours after the blast. A precaution, firefighters were among the estimated 200 people who witnessed the fiery explosion around 3:45 p.m. Sunday, but later day, they left thinking the wreckage had cooled. They were called back to the scene around 3 a.m. Sunday after what was left of the brick mansion burst into flames, Baltimore County police Capt. John Gumbach said. The house had been scheduled for demolition because its 40-acre property is to become part of an expressway, was blown up as part of a training film for Cost's beer salesmen. The explosion was meant to introduce some 90 minutes of serious sales tips for Cost's salesmen. After the explosion, a narrator in the film said: "This disaster has a time when you had a safe and it blew up in your face." -AP

America's legal system, marred by the threat of courtroom battles, too, has grown "too costly, too painful, too destructive; too inefficient for a truly civilized people." Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said Sunday before a meeting of the American Bar Association. In a speech that also attacked some forms of lawyer advertising and frivolous lawsuits, he said: "The legal profession has lost the public's confidence by sticking to its adversarial tradition. In his annual address to the ABA's winter convention, he repeated the theme of lawyer incompetence and conduct that have marred his 1½ years as chief justice. He touched off a firestorm in '77" by saying half the nation's lawyers may not be qualified to represent clients in court. Burger said the proliferation in lawsuits is one of the problems. There are more than 600,000 lawyers in the country today, with 5,000 new ones joining their ranks each year. More than 300,000 lawyers are ABA members. Despite what should be increased competition, the cost of hiring a lawyer is going up, he said. -AP

How to get a job

Inside Monday

The ice is melting, the birds are singing, and ultimate froshie games have been rejuvenated on the quad. But the thrill of Spring may serve as a grim countdown for at least one slice of the ND student body: graduating seniors who have yet to find a job. Second-year senior — the very term implies the inevitable search for that all-encompassing collegiate goal: a job.

And as time ticks away (last Friday marked the 100-day trial), another 1,000 more and more seniors are beginning to feel pressure of the lack-of-a-job syndrome.

Unfortunately, many students ignore one of the most valuable job search resources on campus, Career and Placement Services. A vast warehouse of career information, Placement Services has retained the unknown source in students' lives.

As the normal surplus of Arts and Letters majors at Notre Dame grows, it is vital that Placement Services does not try to line up more liberal arts interviews. Perhaps the sorry state of affairs for Arts and Letters has some home after examining some sobering statistics. Unemployment in the 20-24 age group has been hovering at 12 percent and, while liberal arts graduates dominate those with college degrees standing at the unemployment line. Moreover, last year's number of job offers dropped a third from the 1982 level, according to College Placement Council estimates. On the whole, Career and Placement Services should be commended for its efforts. After all, the office is a service to students. The University is in no way obligated to find jobs for its prospective alumni, that responsibility lies squarely on the shoulders of each senior.

Simply put, seniors cannot rely on the administration for guidance in their job search as they have for so many other facets of student life. The in loco parentis model breaks down as seniors are forced to send out their own cover letters, resumes, and follow-up letters.

The word coming down from recent grads is make your moves now, if you haven't already. Even juniors should begin to check into their interests as the semester winds down.

For most seniors, success has come relatively easy, being accepted by ND in the first place attains a certain tenuity to success. Taking the initiative to act now just might save a lot of job misery down the line.

Busi agenda for Senate tonight

‘Alternative’ SPB petition

By BOB VONDERHEIDE
News Editor

Two students will seek last-minute permission from the Student Senate tonight to get their names placed on tomorrow’s ballot for student body president.

Chapin Engler and his running mate, John Dardis, put up petitions yesterday advertising their unoffical ticket as “The Alternative” that can bring “radical change to our student government.”

But because Engler and Dardis failed to submit a required 200-signature petition by last Monday, the senate will have to “validate” their ticket tonight in order to make votes for Engler count. The senate, however, will only consider Engler’s candidacy if he presents a “petition for a disputed case,” which is re- quired by the Student Government constitution.

Peggy Prevoznik, student body vice-president, said last night that the senate can either vote to place Engler’s name on the ballot or vote to make “The Alternative” a legitimate write-in candidate. Without senate approval, write-in votes are not counted.

The two official candidates for president, Rob Bertino and Chris Tayback, are voting members of the senate. According to Engler, Director of Student Activities James McDonnell said he would asked Bertino and Tayback to consider not voting on the issue tonight. Bertino’s campaign manager, Dave McAroy, is also a student senator.

Engler’s poster says “this is not a joke” and he said he has slept only three hours in the last two days because of a busy campaign schedule. Engler said his ticket is not on the ballot because he and Dardis missed a mandatory meeting for candidates.

“We didn’t even hear about it.”

Not hearing about the meeting, he said, represents one of the reasons he and Dardis are running.

“We cannot divorce ourselves from being students,” Engler said, “so our government would be a union of students rather than a senseless bureaucracy.”

Engler advocates a “new beginning” based on direct communication between students and student government officers. He also favors an Article in The Observer that would present a separate issue area for students to mail in comments.

Engler and Dardis also promise to hold office hours each night from 6 p.m. to 1 a.m. Also on Engler’s platform:

• Promise to collect student opinion before approaching the administration.
• Plans to increase the artificial atmosphere of campus through seminars, films, exhibits and cultural events.
• Promise to develop a good rapport between Student Government and the Center for Social Concerns.

Engler is a junior from Dillton; Dardis is a junior who lives off-campus. Dardis is the student coordinator of Amnesty International.

The proposal for a major reorganization of the Student Union tonight will pass the Student Union Steering Committee and will be put to a vote by the Student Senate today. The meeting will be held in room 120 of Hayes Heath at 6:30 p.m. and open to the public. The Steering Committee finished revising the plan last Sunday afternoon, “It just took some time to iron out the details,” said Student Union Director Dave Druliff.

In order to pass, the plan will need a two-thirds majority — twelve of the eighteen members — supporting the legislation.

If the proposal passes this steps will be amended to the Student Government constitution and go in to effect.

If Dardis fails to pass, few options will be open for its success. One of these is a student vote. The proposal could, in theory, be passed by a two-thirds majority popular vote, but Dardis is a minor party member, so he would not be considered.

Rights Commissioner blasts Reagan policies

By MICHAEL SKELLY
News Staff

Mary Frances Berry, a member of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, spoke yesterday evening as part of the Black Cultural Arts Festival.

Berry found herself in the national lime light last year after she and three other members of the commission were fired by President Reagan. Critics of the firings maintained that they were an attack on the independence of the commission, which was set up by Congress to act as a watchdog on civil rights enforcement. Berry was later re-appointed by Congress which generally supported the commission’s independen-ty.

Berry alleged that Reagan had tried to turn the independent commission into “nothing more than an arm of the administration.” She is perhaps the most outspoken member of the Commission whose former chairman include Dr. Theodore Hesburgh. Berry, an expert in civil rights law, adamantly defended affirmative action laws, saying that such legislation is necessary to correct historical inequities and is specifically designed for qualified people. She also said she would be “willing to abandon affirmative action if some adequate substitute were found,” but that she saw none on the horizon.

Berry also characterized affirmative action as a “beacon of hope for the unqualified.” Whom she said would be more likely to work to be become qualified if they would not be discriminated against in the future.

Berry was also critical of current welfare regulations, particularly Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Citing the fact that “welfare rules in 25 states require able-bodied males to leave their families before they can qualify for relief,” she said such laws are anti-family and lead to a disproportionately large number of female-headed single-parent households.

War between Iran, Iraq heats up

Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iran shelled seven Iraqi cities and towns yesterday, killing 14 people and injuring 89 others, and Iraq retaliated by attacking four Iranian areas, Iraqi ofcials announced.

Both Iran and Iraq have warned each other of the attacks, in some cases naming the specific city or town and warning residents to evacuate — an apparent new policy, which an Iranian official said “should be accepted by world public opinion.”

The Iraqi armed forces attacked the Iranian port of Bandar Khominei and the petrochemicals complex in the city as well as “specific targets” in the cities of Abadan, Gulf Harb and Sar-e-Pola-Zahab, said a communique from the Iranian military command.

“We will continue to strike at these installations until they are completely destroyed,” said a com-unique aired by Baghdad Radio.

The Iranian barrage came one day after an Iraqi attack saturated the southern Iranian oil city of Dezful, 50 miles east of the border. Iraq said the Dezful attack fulfilled a threat made Feb. 2 to retaliate for the military action the day before. It was the second attack on the city in recent months.

Iraqi shells fell on Abadan, Seyran, Khorram shahr, and in the city of Dezful, after warning residents to evacuate.

In response, Iraq said it is planning to attack the oil facilities at Massa- mand and Khanaqin after warning residents to flee. There was no word on whether this attack was imminent.

Elderly brought to Notre Dame

By Bud Luepke
News Staff

This summer the Notre Dame Alumni Association will participate in the Elderhostel program, a network of more than 600 educational institutions offering residential academic programs for senior citizens.

Jim Pollicata, director of alumni continuing education, heads the program for Notre Dame. Pollicata, who is in his second year with the Alumni Association, says Elderhostel as service oriented. "We want to offer it to alumni as well as people who have never had a chance to come here, people who know Notre Dame only through football."

Pollicata said the program hopes to cover its costs but said, "the Alumni Association might have to subsidize it in the program's first years."

Elderhostel was founded by Marty Knowlton in 1975. It began with five New Hampshire institutions and 200 senior citizens. Now Elderhostel boasts more than 600 participatory institutions throughout the 50 United States as well as Canada and 11 European countries.

Over 80,000 elderly will be involved this year.

Elderhostel at Notre Dame will consist of three separate weeks of courses. Tuition is $190; this covers room, board, instruction, and all social activities. All participants will stay on the first floor of Lewis Hall which during the summer is called Alumni Family Hall. The Notre Dame program allows for 45 residents and up to five commuters per week. "We want to give them the experience of being a student at Notre Dame," said Pollicata.

Elderhostel courses will be offered during the weeks of June 10-16, July 17-23, and June 24-30. Each week will include what Pollicata calls "a balance of diverse options." The program is structured so a social course, an arts or humanities course, and a course which demonstrates the character of Notre Dame would be taught in each rotation. For example, the three courses for week one are: Reaganomics, taught by economics professor Thomas Swartz; "The Art Museum", taught by Dean Porter of the Snite Museum; and "Faith and Story", by English professor Thomas Werge.

Thursday, March 8 will be declared Elderhostel day in Indiana and Pollicata hopes to get founder Marty Knowlton to visit Notre Dame for the occasion.

Undoubtedly, the most pressing issue on campus is the need to get students involved in the decision making process of the University. Most students aren't aware of the student representatives presently serving on the various University committees. Through these people, we believe students can have a voice in University decisions on such important matters as curriculum, financial aid, etc.

We are against monetary compensation because student government is, and should remain, a voluntary organization. We do, however, advocate academic credit as an alternative on a non-graded credited basis (as with Urban Plunge). It would allow the affected people more time to spend doing their job, which is in itself a learning experience.

This issue should be brought straight to the board. We do see the need for a student on the board but because of problems of confidentiality and consistency, we would instead propose to appoint several recent graduates for a five year period, insuring confidentiality, consistency, and most importantly, an accurate student opinion.

The projects we consider to be of top priority to accomplish are currently the restructuring of Student Union and the continuation of the renovations of LaFortune. If the University affects any alcohol policy, Student Union and LaFortune must be able to pick up the slack. Even if no such changes are affected, however, we will see the Student Union and LaFortune as being vital to the social life and therefore contributing to the overall well-being of the student body next year.

We support the restructuring of the Student Union for the following reasons. By establishing a system whereby each Student Union commissioner heads a committee comprised of the respective commissioners from the halls, a working relationship which has long been absent, can be formed between the Student Union and the halls. More importantly, utilization of the Dorr unit would be what creates participation. By working with the dorms instead of in competition against them, Student Union can prove itself as being the larger more important entity on campus. To us, the only problem is trying to get the hall governments on a similar February-January calendar. If the halls can't agree on an enabling or enacting change, Student Union can remain on its present April/March calendar and the restructuring can otherwise stay intact.

We support the HPC alcohol policy. We see three groups of drinkers on campus: First, the alcoholics. They will drink regardless of the rules. They must be treated, not punished. Second, the responsible drinkers; they do not pose a problem. Lastly, there are those who regularly abuse alcohol. These are the students who get "trashed" every weekend and become destructive to themselves, others and property. We believe that it is this group that should be targeted by any alcohol policy reforms. The HPC proposal is a contract system where the abuse drinker is first given a warning. A second offense within four weeks requires that a person sign a contract stating that a third offense within six weeks will result in a stricter punishment and/or treatment. Such a proposal tackles the problem without simply moving the problem off-campus.

There is indeed a lack of respect for Student Government. This is probably due to its history of failing to take on the major issues. We think that there is most likely a desire to effect­ually represent students before the administration. Do you agree that such a belief is present, and what would you do to change it?

Q: What in your opinion is the most pressing issue on campus?

Q: Do you think that a student should serve on the Board of Trustees?

Q: What are the good points and bad points of the proposed changes in the organization of the Student Union?

Q: What projects would you consider to be of top priority to accomplish?

Q: Do you think there is an alcohol problem on campus? Do you think the University needs to do anything about alcohol? Considering all the proposals for an alcohol policy, which do you think is best?

Q: Many students do not seem to hold student government in high esteem, believing that student government is either unwilling or unable to effectively represent students before the administration. Do you agree that such a belief is present, and what would you do to change it?
Marine pullout said compromise decision

Associated Press

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — President Reagan’s decision to remove U.S. troops from Beirut but to escalatate shifting from Navy ships was a compromise to accommodate the vastly differing views of Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, a White House official said.

“The policy is a balance between the two views, but also a balance that the president agrees to — that you continue to support a U.S. diplomatic position in the Middle East, at the same time according more protection to the Marines,” said an official, insisting on anonymity.

Weinberger, and reportedly the Joint Chiefs of Staff, believed that the 1,500 Marines in Beirut as part of a multinational force were extremely vulnerable and were serving no useful military purpose.

Shultz reportedly disagreed strongly with attempts within the administration to withdraw Marines since he believed their presence was vital in supporting the shaky Lebanese government of Amin Gemayel.

Reagan, new policy, announced six days ago, in effect satisfied the concerns of both men.

Reagan, meanwhile, ended a five-day vacation near Santa Barbara on Sunday and flew back to the White House after a week marked by widespread confusion about his plan’s details. There was confusion when Reagan made a decision to withdraw the Marines, when their withdrawal would occur, and the administration’s rationale for the shelling.

Asked about this seeming confusion within the administration, the official said there was no concern inside the White House about the appearance of disarray.

“Our policy hasn’t changed, but the implementation of it has to vary from time to time to meet changing circumstances,” he said. “And I think that is not a negative, but a positive.”

Several high-level administration officials disagreed publicly with Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes’ statement that Reagan made the decision in principle Feb. 1 to withdraw The Marines.

Weinberger told the House Foreign Affairs Committee on Thursday: “The decision was made much later.”

SMC students protest ND car ban

By ANNE MONASTYRSKI

Several Saint Mary’s students are protesting a rule prohibiting them from driving on Notre Dame’s campus. These students maintain that the security guards grants passes as long as they do not see a Saint Mary’s parking sticker on the car.

Notre Dame is a “pedestrian campus” according to Dean of Students James Roemer.

Saint Mary’s Dean of Students Sr. Karel Jackowski was not aware of the rule preventing Saint Mary’s students from getting 15-minute passes. “If Notre Dame wants a pedestrian campus it’s their right,” said Jackoowski. “Saint Mary’s is ‘not in a position to tell them how to enforce their policy,’” she added.

The two have gained a “mutual respect” when the “policy is a compromise of more students equally.

‘The question of unity. We (Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s) share so much, but when it comes down to policy making nothing is unified,’” said Catanzaro.

According to Roemer, there has always been a rule forbidding cars on campus, however two years ago the policy was reinitiated following an incident involving Saint Mary’s student. The rule forbids students driving on campus except in carry-ning heavy objects and this must be done after 6 p.m.

The student involved a Saint Mary’s student who got a pass under false pretenses, according to Roemer. “It was a mistake in judgement when the guard granted her the pass. The student parked her car on the gras by a dorm and an altercation took place between her and the hall rector when she refused to move her car.

“We try not to let anybody on campus,” said Roemer. “Safety is one of the biggest concerns.” Once students are given a pass, they “park anywhere they please,” he said. “One thousand cars are parking inside already,” said Glenn Terr, director of security.

The rule applies to students whether they be from Notre Dame, Saint Mary’s, USIR, or St. Joseph High School said Roemer. Having cars on campus presents a “terrible” safety, security, and parking problem, said Roemer.

The Observer endorses Bertino/David ticket

Rob Bertino and Cathy David have the experience, drive and philosophy needed for effective term as student body president and vice president.

Bertino, a student senator from District 1, has a fine record of accomplishments including installing lights on the Stepan basketball courts, developing an outdoor ice rink, opening St. Michael's Laundry to women and improving the quality of parking lot D-6. David, the president of Breen-Phillips Hall, adds a strong punch to the Bertino ticket. Qualified herself to serve as student body president, she wants to avoid a second-in-command complex and vows to work on a par with Bertino. David is an example of the strong female leadership this campus needs.

The ticket of Chris Tayback and Kelly Fitzgerald has a number of good ideas. For instance, a governing body to approve Observer and WFPP expenditures (in lieu of the University's budget system) is an interesting idea. While questions of feasibility and practicality are many, the suggestion shows a willingness to involve students in decision-making processes around campus.

But this willingness is lacking in other areas of the Tayback/Fitzgerald platform. Though Bertino strongly endorses student input through mailings and referenda, Tayback could not think of a single occasion during the past year when student input should have been sought through a referendum.

The number of student privileges threatened or taken away this year proves that student government should not be isolated. It is time for student government to "represent the student body to the administration, rather than mediate between the two," as Bertino's platform states.

Tayback also seems to have a good vision of student government's role. He is quick to point out that student government should concern itself not only with so-called "parking lot" issues, but also with more substantial matters. Unfortunately, his platform is no better than Bertino's at reaching this end.

Bertino's platform is not without shortcomings. He fails to emphasize the importance of legislative power for the senate and is willing to settle for a recent graduate, rather than a student, on the Board of Trus­tees.

Both tickets agree on several issues. Both believe that the number of student privileges threatened or taken away this year proves that student government should take a position on campus issues immediately. Both think larger issues such as Uni­versity investments are worth their scrutiny. Both want to continue renovation of LaFortune Student Center.

But the Bertino/David ticket has researched the details of these proposals more thoroughly — offering specific solutions when their opponents manage only rhetoric, or in a few cases, misinformation.

Through both agreements student government leaders should be held accountable through evaluations, Bertino supports semiannual evaluations with published results. Tayback looks at such evaluations as personal statements, primarily for the benefit of those leaving office.

Neither ticket fully understands the importance of improving relationships between students and the faculty, or between Notre Dame and Saint Mary's. But Bertino and David plan to work on such solutions by first addressing the divisions and their causes, rather than looking for panaceas.

For these reasons, The Observer editorial board unanimously endorses the ticket of Rob Bertino and Cathy David.

The great debate equalizer

The same is true of Harry Truman against Dewey in 1948.

The question is not that they saw no reason to give their opponent an equalizer. In those days campaigns were a succession of cannon blasts from each camp in succession, mostly reported in the press, sometimes aired. The big guns were the long campaign speeches, but there were no direct confrontations of the candidates.

The electronic technology arrived with its portent of power, and it could have changed the two straight dozenenson campaigns in 1952 and 1956. A debate would have been more nimble and articulate in face-to-face combat. But Ike played the hero who was not to be barried into it. Only Richard Nixon had his TV miracle hour with his 1952 speech about Patricia's cloth coat. But TV was to play him a grimy adventure into higher Polish politics was the price he paid for his folly.

In 1950 a gloomy Jimmy Carter felt a debate might restore him as a once and future king, but a Reagan on a rising arc of confidence brought him down for good.

By 1958 a chastered Nixon — again a can­didate (the 1964 Goldwater disaster was debateless) — resisted Hubert Humphrey's pressures for a debate, and in 1972 McGovern's. But his successor, Gerald Ford, feeling he had to make it on his own, foolishly took on a belligerent Jimmy Carter in 1976 — and his ghastly adventure into higher Polish

Every debate has ended in the incumbent president or party losing. Will this one? Not necessarily. Ronald Reagan's talents for the presentation of himself on TV have by now become legendary. He may be the incumbent president who will break the pattern of his­tory.

Campus comments: Should student government members receive compensation?

I think people who participate in student government choose to do so, and therefore should not expect any compensation. But since they spend so much time and effort, they could receive some academic credits.

Paula Patton, one of UCLA's virtu-come a house of horrors for the beloved Bruins.

Paulay opened in 1965, and during its first decade, the Bruins, then the lords of college basketball, had a remarkable 149-2 record there, including eight unbeaten

But over the past five seasons,

Saturday, UCLA lost to Oregon happened. It was the Bruins’ fourth home loss of the season, the only other time they suffered that embarrassment was four years ago.

“I think the way we play

so inconsistently at times,” said

Coach Al Miller. “Not many teams have an overall three-game losing streak for the first time since the 1979-80 season.”

“I don’t think there is any doubt the players are beginning to lose faith in the Oregon State team.

It is not an abdul, but I think the differences are bothering the players.”

Charlie Sitton scored 21 points for Oregon State, which took the lead for good with 54-52 on Steve Woodside's rebounds basket with 7:59 remaining.

Oregon State, meanwhile, won its third straight game.

“That’s only the second time we have been able to come in here and work,” said Coach Ralph Miller. “For the state of Oregon, this has to be great. We’ve had both Oregon schools come in here and beat

UCLA.”

Steve Ely answered right back for Notre Dame, scoring on a quick shot from a face-off just four minutes later to put the Irish back on top 2-1. The pesky Penn State offense continued to work, however. When the puck took a bad bounce near the Notre Dame blue line and eluded defender Bob Ricci, an open Powers picked it up and let go a drive that caught the far corner to Al Harrington's stick side to knot the score at two.

Notre Dame regained the lead again at 17:08 when Parsons picked the top corner after taking a pass from co-captain Brent Chapman. Trailing 2-1 going into the final 20-minute, the Nittany Lions wasted little time making a comeback as Nick Pappas and Lynn Siep connected twice within three minutes, and suddenly the Irish were behind for the first time in the game.

"We got a little too lackadaisical and didn't play with enough intensity," said Jeff Badalato. "By the time we picked up their goalie started coming up bag, and it was too late."
Thebeau's shot from the right wing at 1:14 enabled the Irish to tie the score.

Yes, more so as a person. Ray Meyer may be a basketball coach, and a good one at that — Saturday's win was his 75th. But, while he may be an even better person, and, considering all that he has done in college bas-

DePaul outmuscles Irish, 62-54; Notre Dame says goodbye to Ray

By WILL HARE
Sports Writer

It was a case of the good, the bad, and the ugly as DePaul overwhelmed Notre Dame 62-54 at the ACC Saturday.

Good spirits were felt by all who attended the game as Blue Demon coach Ray Meyer lived up to his reputation for being able to accommodate them all—because that is the type of man he is.

While sign writers attempting to meet this basketball legend named Ray Meyer have never been able to get it just right, DePaul's netminder John Davis and into the hearts of the Demon fans.

"We missed the "rock" (Kepton) inside today," said Irish coach ginger Phelps. "We're a different team without him."

The Demon guards used Donald Royal and Cecil Tucker. Royal, a 6-foot, 6-inch старин, started for just the third time this year. Tucker, a 6-8 senior, was recently benched for disciplinary reasons but played just 24 minutes at 1:30.

Royal and Tucker each logged 22 minutes.

"I thought they did a terrific job, starting in his first big game," said Irish coach Joe Howard. "But we felt like we could do some of the things that we needed.

DePaul's frontline of Tyrone Corbin, Marty Dallas, and Holmes outscored the Irish frontline 24-27 and aided the Demon victory.

"We got us a lot of easy as far as letting us play," said Holmes. "We came out on top in the first half, but our physical game was a big factor in the second half, hit the high notes and took the game."

DePaul led all scorers with 25 points.

Marty Cherry's slam dunk from a Jerry McMillan pass with 17:57 gone in the Demon netminder and the Irish could never surpass their deficit.

Still, Notre Dame had its chances. After trailing 52-41 with 3:47 left, the Demon defense limited the Irish to just 11 points over the final 2:37.

"The ref gave us a lot of leeway as far as letting us play," said Holmes. "But we played a very close game."

The Irish were able to beat Harry Perrett's Wildcats, who had won the game with a 15-9 record, by putting together their best of defensive performance since the first game of the year in November. Six players scored in double figures, led by Carrie Rucker's 20 points, and the combined efforts were enough to offset a 15-point barrage by Villanova's freshman sensation Shannon Penneselle.

"It was a very pretty game, in isolation we were very physical, and we usually overwhelmed in physical games," said Irish coach Mary Disansberry. "But we were able to lose the game, and Mary Murphy and I were talking about how these things run in circles and the bad streak would eventually end.

If the win, indeed, turned things around, it could not have come at a better time. With the prospects of a below-.500 season looming larger and larger, the Irish girls, who are now 9-12, desperately needed a win over the Wildcats.

"It's hard to tell right now if we've turned things around, but it sure feels good," said Raker, whose 10 of 11 performance from the foul line helped hold off the Wildcats in the second half. "They're a good team and we were close in the end, but we still won.

The fact that the Irish won despite the close score may be the most significant point of the whole game. Until Saturday, Sthansilas' team had been having a very hard time in close games. In fact, the Demon defense was not scored on in the last 14 games before Saturday.

The Demon defense has allowed just 11 points in the last 13 games.

Notre Dame overcomes Villanova

When the Notre Dame women's basketball team beat the talented Villanova Wildcats, 81, 79, Saturday night in the ACC, it brought back some memories of two of Notre Dame's most dominant players.

After trailing 52-41 with 3:47 left, the Demon defense limited the Irish to just 11 points over the final 2:37.

"The ref gave us a lot of easy as far as letting us play," said Holmes. "But we played a very close game."

Record 21-1-1

Hockey team defeats, ties Penn St.

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

JOHNSTON, Penn. — The Notre Dame hockey team came away with a tie and a win this weekend in its non-conference series at Penn State. The two teams skated in a 4-1-1 tie on Friday; but on Saturday, the Irish made it known that the tie should never have been written into the Notre Dame ledger by a 6-1 score.

Chippy play at times by each team, and a no decision official, led to both games being penalty-filled affairs.

When the team's tempo dropped, fans, upset on Friday morning in the lockerroom before practice, it was probably an over-recognition of the crazy things to come.

The Notre Dame record now stands at 21-1-1 with just four games remaining in the regular season.

After a slow start in Friday's game, the Irish lost 3-2 after two periods, but found themselves having to rally in the final period to salvage the tie after Penn State scored twice early in the stanza. Four separate players had the Notre Dame goals.

On Saturday, the Irish again got off to a slow start and trailed 1-0 after the first period. Gary Becker got the Notre Dame offence going with his tally early in the second period. Both teams were penalized as Parsons each added two goals as the Irish went on to score six points in each of the final two periods.

In respect for the potent Notre Dame attack, the Penn State team played a laid-back, zone-style defense that kept the Irish offence from getting on track.

"They were concerned about getting blown out," said head coach Leathy Smith. "So they just laid back and looked for some breaks."

Joe Howard's slapshot from the left point at 6:08 of the opening period opened the scoring for the Irish and put the Demon netminder 1-0 lead that lasted until the 15:00 mark of the second period. The eventual Irish win 1-8, 8-0 win at St. Louis that saw the Nationals confidence grow.

The Demon forwards got even when Greg Powers tipped home a centerman closeout.

The goal brought the Penn State team back into the game but the face of the game began to pick up.

"They sensed that we were off," said Tom Parent. "They knew we weren't taking it to them like they
