The chances that student-run WSNDA-M will make a switch to the FM dial next year are "slim," according to a consultant hired by the University to look into the possibility of such a move.

Paul Matwiy, consultant to the Office of Student Activities on the project, said the application for the necessary license from the Federal Communications Commission is being withheld until those involved can decide if there is a good chance the FCC will approve it. "We don't want to promise the students a new FM radio station unless we have a good shot at it," said Matwiy. He pointed out the University already owns one non-commercial license which allows WSNDA-M, the student-run classical music station, to broadcast over the airwaves in South Bend.

The executive board of WSNDA-M started in bid for the switch to FM last fall, when its members began preparing the FCC license application in cooperation with student activities. The board's members (all students) decided the new FM station would operate in place of WSNDA-M, and proposed the station be renamed WYFI (Voice of the Fighting Irish). Matwiy was then hired to advise the board on the FCC application process.

Lewis freshman Sheila McDaniel pauses for a moment from her duties as a WSNDA-M disk jockey. The radio station would like to see itself in a position on the FM dial next semester, but right now such a move seems unlikely. Story below.

Peace Corps Director Loret Ruppe to speak at ND commencement

By DAN McCULLOUGH

Loret Miller Ruppe, director of the Peace Corps, will be Notre Dame's commencement speaker for 1984, The Observer learned yesterday.

Although Assistant Director of Information Services Michael Garvey said, "I can neither confirm nor deny anything until we have lined up all of the honorary degree recipients," it seems clear that Ruppe will be the commencement speaker and will appear on campus May 20.

President Reagan appointed Ruppe, head of the Peace Corps on Feb. 14, 1981. Prior to that she was co-chairwoman of the Reagan-Bush Committee in Michigan during the 1980 election. Ruppe is the wife of former congressman Philip Ruppe.

An official White House press release said Ruppe "has spent most of her life in volunteer efforts, including the International Neighbors Club IV, and has traveled extensively and shared her experiences with past Peace Corps volunteers in many countries." Before taking over the Corps, Ruppe had no previous professional experience.

The Peace Corps, initiated by the late President John Kennedy, has changed from its original image. When initially established by Kennedy, the Corps was staffed mostly by young people affiliated with Kennedy's Democratic administration. In recent years, however, most Corps leaders have been loyal Republicans.

Ernest Hollings

As governor of South Carolina, Ernest Hollings was able to balance the state's budget for the first time in Reconstruction.

As president, Hollings says he would call for an across-the-board freeze on the federal budget and repeal the 10 percent tax cut coming in July to help reduce the federal deficit.

"Ernest Hollings sees the deficit as the biggest crisis of today," says Joe Malvezzi, campaign manager for Hollings in the Mock Convention. "He believes that the economic growth of today is just a kite jerk recession to falling energy prices." Hollings says government should act as a leader in industrial policy. By assisting in research and finance, Hollings thinks government can act as a catalyst in bringing business, labor and agriculture into a partnership.

Besides a deficit freeze, Hollings sees the economic recovery policy as having a foundation in an improved education system. "Hollings believes in improving the public school system," says Malvezzi. "If you improve the school system in every city, you can also improve the state school system and the national school system. By educating people, you can decrease unemployment." Hollings believes democracy in Central America can be sustained through economic and military aid to the region. In order to assure in establishing democracy, aid from outside forces like Cuba and Russia must be stopped.

Foreign policy is another issue Hollings sees as important. Hollings said about American marines in Lebanon, "If they're there to fight, there are too few. If they're there to die, there are too many." He does, however, believe the U.S. should support the president in any foreign policy decisions.

Hollings supports the Kennedy-Hatfield freeze on nuclear weapons. But he does not support nuclear build down because he believes it raises the chance of war, especially in Western Europe.

The reason Hollings dropped out is because he didn't polls in New Hampshire," says Malvezzi. "I believe Hart became a national candidate because of the coverage he received from the media. Hollings didn't receive that kind of coverage." Malvezzi is running the Hollings campaign on campus by himself because he doesn't want people to get involved politically with someone they don't know. "I just want people to take a look at Hollings and get to know what he stands for," says Malvezzi. Hollings has good ideas where the Mondale and Hart campaigns are based on empty promises.

Rubin Asken

Dave McAvoy, campaign manager for Rubinh Asken, believes Asken's campaign is more organized than anyone else's on campus. "At the beginning of the campaign we came in last in a random poll throughout campus," says McAvoy. "Recently, we've been running even in the polls with five of them. We've cut our campaign and have climbed up to fourth in a recent preference poll. Asken is a conservative democrat who believes the U.S. should support El Salvador. "Asken believes we should give economic aid only to those regimes which do not violate the human rights of people," says McAvoy. "He does see Central America as a cold war area."

Defense spending is another issue Asken has addressed. He believes in strong defense and favors an annual increase of about 5 percent in the defense budget. Asken would spend more on defense only if it would achieve specific objectives as part of a national defense strategy.

Asken opposes a unilateral nuclear arms freeze, but he believes the U.S. should resume arms control talks with the Russians. Asken's proposal is the elimination of the B-1 bomber and the MX missile. Asken recognizes a strong need to reduce the federal deficit. He would allocate restraints on spending to assist in reducing the deficit. By repealing the 10 percent across-the-board tax cut, Asken says the federal deficit could be reduced by $30 billion in fiscal 1984, and by $777 billion by 1990.

As a pro-life supporter, Asken is the only democratic candidate to come out against abortion. He supports the idea of a constitutional human life amendment.

McAvoy says Asken has a good chance of winning in the Mock Convention. "In order to win, we have to create a momentum," says McAvoy. "We have a solid support from campus and many student government officials."

As an effort to familiarize students with the Asken campaign, McAvoy plans to hold a happy hour in which platforms and buttons will be distributed. McAvoy has used a tape recorder to drive in which the election committee will contact each of the candidates with an appealing candidate and if we can get the students familiar with his ideas, we have a good chance." John Glenn

John Glenn, another conservative democratic presidential candidate in the Mock Convention, is a strong supporter of job legislation as way of fighting unemployment. If elected Glenn says he would provide $225 million to see GREEN, page 4

A person claiming to represent Notre Dame won the "Wet Willie" contest this year at the Burton in Fort Lauderdale during spring break. A student who asserts he is that person says he danced an incorrect version of the contest with an ignominious case over his head to remain anonymous. Last year a Notre Dame student won the "Wet Willie" contest and was nearly expelled. Dean of Students James Rozier issued a directive before spring break instructing students to stay away from such contests. — The Observer

The "Shamrocks Against Dystrophy" campaign, held the week before Spring Break, raised close to $2,000 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Most of the money raised came in the form of特色s and small change, according to campaign chairman George Jordan. The money raised will be used by the South Bend MDA office to provide services to local patients. — The Observer

New permanent I.D. cards will be used beginning next spring. The current I.D. cards will have no void date or the student's birthdate printed on it. Beginning with the fall 1985/86 semester students who have enrolled will also have their permanent I.D. card embossed with a date (e.g., 84N085). This will validate the I.D. card for the entire academic year. — The Observer

A $2,000 Hibernian Research Award has been established by Charles Fanning, professor of English at Bridgewater State College in Bridgewater, Massachusetts and David Brundage, senior research scholar at City University in New York. The award was given by the Charles and Margaret Hall Cashwa Center for the Study of American Cathedricism at Notre Dame. Fanning is an American literary critic, and Brundage is an American historian. Brundage is doing research in the history of Irish-American working people in Colorado during the 1890s. — The Observer

A few solved problems

Mark Worscheg
Managing Editor

Inside Tuesday

Costello chose all of the movies for the semester, a change from when the sponsoring club could not only pick the film, but the exact date as well. He says last year "clubs could pick any movie they wanted. It didn't allow us to make any package deals with any movie company."

The quality of campus films "had been deteriorating," he says, and clubs who received bad lottery picks often had to show unattractive movies. The profits from the screenings now goes pooled and distributed to campus clubs.

Costello says she has received complaints from some students that the weekend price hike to $1.50, but rising rental fees justify the increase. She says from the view point, it seems the biggest problem has been keeping change supplied to the ticket-takers, and problems with film projection have also been greater this year.

Nevertheless the better movie offerings have made the problems seem minor, and it's hard to argue a recent release isn't worth another 50 cents.

The views expressed in the Inside column are the views of the author, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the editorial board or staff.

Laundry Notice: To insure that all charges for special/express laundry, drycleaning and tailoring are able to be billed, all items picked up after April 13, 1984 will be strictly billed to the students' accounts. All charges to the students' accounts will be permitted. However, this does not apply to the regular student bundle service. Any amount over the bundle allotment will be charged to the students' accounts. All charges will not be assessed any interest. Students are reminded that their accounts must be billed prior to graduation. Invoices will not be sent. We will have balances owed, as a result of exceeding the laundry allotment, for seniors only, on May 10, 1984. Any bundle invoice by a senior after that date may result in a negative balance which will require us to collect cash upon receipt of the bundle by the senior.

Senate abolishes one OC commission seat

By MIKE MILLEN

The off-campus student commission will no longer be a member of the student senate as a result of a resolution passed unanimously at last night's student senate meeting.

The current off-campus commissioner, Doug Honeywell, was not present at the meeting. "I have no comment," he said later in a phone interview.

Student Body Vice President Cathy David recommended the commissioner be made a member of the Hall President's Council, saying there are currently two off-campus representatives on the student senate, and no off-campus representatives on the Hall President's Council. She reasoned the off-campus commissioners have no means of receiving pertinent information discussed at the HPC meetings.

The hall presidents seemed favorable to the idea, David added, responding to arguments the senate could not mandate policy for the HPC.

Student Body President Rob Bertino announced the formation of a committee to study the proposal to increase the student activities fee from $30 to $40. The issue will be discussed in future meetings.

A debate regarding the candidacy of Harold Augustine for Senior Fellow was opened. Debate ended when some student senate members objected to the discussion. Executive Coordinator Ray Wise said, "I don't think that the issue can be decided." David echoed this philosophy, saying, "This is a decision for seniors and not for the business of our business."

Bertino announced a new policy regarding the recording of senate votes and other information. He said votes, and separate subcommittee participation will be tabulated beforehand, and will be made public in the future.

Office hours have been set up so that anyone can discuss student government related issues with the student body president and vice president. Bertino will be available on the second floor of La Fortune from 10-11 p.m. on Sunday and Monday, and David from 11-12 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

In other business, Bertino noted a new constitution deadline has been extended to Friday. He stated a new constitution would be voted on at the next senate meeting.

Architects students move Beaux Arts Ball to South Dining Hall

By JENNIFER BIGOTT

Staff Reporter

Changes have been made in this semester's Beaux Arts Ball, according to Dan Rectorwold, vice president of the student chapter of the American Institute of Architects. The AIA sponsors the dance each semester.

The Beaux Arts Ball was cancelled last fall due to the combination of crowded conditions in the architecture building and alleged instances of alcohol abuse. According to Rectorwold, crowding was a problem at the last Ball because ticket was sold before the Ball and at the door. When a surprisingly large number of people turned out, the building could not house all those who had purchased tickets. Additional complications arose from the presence of alcohol, which was prohibited.

Consequently, almost two weeks after the event, Dean of Students James Reemer said there would be no more Beaux Arts Balls in the future. "It's a University building and what you do inside of a school building is very controlled, and I guess there's a question as to whether we were complying with those rules," said Rectorwold.

Since then, officers of the AIA have talked with Reemer about previous problems. As a result, the AIA will sponsor another Beaux Arts Ball. "We view the Ball as one good way for us to reach out and open up to the campus," said Rectorwold.

Approximately, 600 people attended the last Beaux Arts Ball. Proceeds from the event are allocated for various operating expenses of events designed to promote campus awareness of the AIA. Student Senate events include lectures, seminars and exhibits.

"We've delegated authority and gotten more people involved," said Rectorwold.

"We're forming a new FM station on campus. The station will be housed in the South Bend area for the first time," said Rectorwold. "The FCC is investigating the possibility of operating a new FM station in the area.

According to Rectorwold, the station would "simply be an FM station in the South Bend area." The station's purpose would be to broadcast in stereo on the AM dial. WVII will also relocate its facilities to the La Fortune Student Center, moving into a new studio described by Matwiy as "one of the top two in the South Bend area."

Saint Mary's selects commissioners

By JEAN STEINWACHS

Eight new commissioners for next year's student government at Saint Mary's have been chosen. United new commissioners will be Lisa Fitt (entertainment), Jane Alcaini (movies), Kacey Hotten (public relations), Trish Callo (election), Mary Beth Lavezzorio (typography), and Chris O'Connor (traditional events). Dotte Murray (industrial arts), Liz Adams (off-campus) and Jeanne Budak (Christian life). The graphic/publicity commissioner will be chosen Wednesday, and the athletic commissioner at a later date.

The criteria for the choices were an application and a fifteen minute interview with the student body president, vice president of student affairs and vice president of academic affairs. Some new changes have taken place in student government commissions. The speaker, alumni and development commissioner have been taken over by the vice president of academic affairs, and the off-campus commissioner will be a student government representative. There will also be an RA representative as a commissioner next year.

Anne Marie Kollman, vice president of student affairs, said the RA commission will "hopefully get student government and RAs working together more than they have in the past." Budak says her commission "wants to allow the students to voice opinions about Christian life through meetings in halls. We also hope to get more students involved in volunteer work." Lee Ann Franks, student body president, stressed student government is willing to listen to students, and the meetings are open to anyone interested in attending.

lion in funding to aid victims of the recession. Glenn is an advocate of the Women, Infants and Babies program and by giving $100 million to this program, Glenn claims the governor's rationale could reduce economic problems within families. Like Haldeman, Glenn believes education is an important issue in the upcoming election. By ensuring equal access and opportunity to all people in the school system, Glenn sees the 11% as continuing to be a leader among nations.

Glenn also strongly endorses the Kennedy-Hartford freeze. However, Glenn feels it is not enough to advocate a freeze, if the freeze perpetuates unnecessarily high levels of strategic arms. Glenn holds that the only safe and sensible route to nuclear reduction is to return to the bargaining table with the Soviet Union.

Along with the reduction of nuclear weapons, Glenn supports an increase in conventional forces. He also endorses the replacement of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with a central military staff and establishing an independent office for evaluating the Defense Department.

Glenn says he would cancel the MX missile and develop a small, more accurate land based missile. Glenn wants to establish a strong and diverse manufacturing base which he sees as essential to the United States economic security. By developing a coherent set of policies, Glenn says the U.S. can better compete at home and abroad.

Allen Gates, campaign manager for Glenn on campus, was unavailable for comment.

Social researchers mail computer attitude quiz

By BUD LUEPKE

News Staff

Technology. It shapes our lives. The telephone has become essential in every home. The television set is for many, an intrinsic part of daily living. In 1984, computers are the "new" technology.

The Social Science Training and Research Laboratory is mailing to random students a survey concerning attitudes towards computers. The survey is aimed at discovering different conceptions of, and feelings towards, computers.

Dr. Stephen Arndt, a program/consultant at the Lab, came up with the idea of the survey while in his own work with computers. He explained, "Once I sat next to a guy working a computer, and he was sweating. Some people fear computers. I had never thought of them (computers) that way." Arndt said he worked with computers in the Navy and now has a computer in his home.

The survey was mailed last week to 1500 undergraduate students, about 20 percent of the student body, and were sent completely at random. About 250 surveys have been returned, and Arndt said the return rate is less than what he had hoped for. Arndt said he expects to receive the rest of the surveys within the next two weeks.

The survey itself includes a wide range of questions. It begins with questions aiming at categorizing students by year, sex, department of study, and experience with computers.

The survey then asks the student how he views computing and people who work with computers. For instance, do you view computers as feminine or masculine? Do you view people who spend a lot of time with computers as socially introverted or socially extroverted? For these questions, a student may circle a number one through seven, one being one extreme and seven being the other.

All of the questions have degrees to their answers such as this:

The survey next asks for the student's personal attitudes toward computers. For example, using a scale of one through seven, it asks if you view computers as easy or difficult, as humanizing or dehumanizing.

The survey's purpose, as Arndt admits, is unclear at this time. He has no hypotheses yet. "For now," he said, "I just want to find out what the conceptions (of computers) are. You see advertising making assumptions about what people's misconceptions are, but no one ever really went out to ask them," Arndt also said, "Once I know what the conceptions are, I can then think about what sort of advertising the impact of technology on society." Arndt expects the results of the survey to be compiled by the end of May or June. To find out more about the survey or its results, Arndt can be contacted in the Social Science Training and Research Laboratory on the fifth floor of the Memorial Library.

The important points behind Viewpoint

On March 25, a new administration took over at The Observer; its first issue was printed the next day. The current issues of The Observer are now the product of this new and still inexperienced group. If the first breaths of new leadership came du Lac, inadequacy, experience will probably be to blame.

Viewpoint is no exception. New people, new writers and new leadership mean errors in both the appearance and the content of this page. Hopefully, these errors will start to disappear as I become more settled as editor.

The Viewpoint page in The Observer is the one place where issues and ideas are examined and discussed, and where the reader is given a chance to respond. Occasionally, the opinion expressed will be an official statement from The Observer's editorial board. This statement will be published in the form of a house editorial. A house editorial is a consensus of the ideas of the ten members of the editorial board and will appear when important issues surface on campus.

The house editorial, though, is the exception rather than the rule. Most of the articles you will read on this page will be the opinions of the individual students who contribute to Viewpoint. These articles will raise important issues and will hopefully prompt you to formulate your own ideas.

You will not always agree with the opinions on this page. Sometimes you may be down-right offended. But if the writer has expressed himself clearly, and has inspired you to think, then he has certainly fulfilled his duty as an editorial writer.

But Viewpoint articles will not be confined to student writers. The Observer is always looking for new people with new perspectives. In the future this page will seek out articles from faculty and administrative staff, who with their experienced and professional point of view may offer accurate descriptions of such things as the changing job market, the dynamic future of personal computers, or the explanation of the official course offered at Notre Dame.

The Viewpoint page serves a vital role as an open forum for ideas and opinions at Notre Dame. One of its duties is to provide space for all members of our community to express their opinions. P. O. Box Q provides our readers with the opportunity not only to respond to articles appearing in The Observer, but also to allow readers to expose on issues they see as significant in the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community.

P. O. Box Q

Dear Editor:

It's refreshing to see that The Observer has decided to branch out into unexplored territory with bold new additions to its format; now we, the readers, are blessed with funny, accurate parodies of the simple-mindedness and naiveté that threaten this university.

The Observer editorial entitled "Come to Paradise, come to Notre Dame" really had me in stitches. The author seems to touch all the right buttons on this page. Sometimes you may be down-right offended. But if the writer has expressed himself clearly, and has inspired you to think, then he has certainly fulfilled his duty as an editorial writer.

Hopefully, during the upcoming year, Viewpoint will meet this goal with consistency.

P. O. Box Q

Dear Editor:

I can almost remember when I too was a freshman, when I thought Notre Dame was paradise, when Friday quizzes were "tests of integrity"... Freshman year was when the reasons for coming to Notre Dame were still fresh in my mind, when my naive and innocence were staunchly guarded against all that was evil by the protectors at the Freshman Year of Studies.

Imagine thinking that the reason why every Chemistry 115 student received the same quiz was because it made grading so much easier. Surely it was obvious that these were tests of character, not chemistry.

Academic competition motivates students to work harder, learn better, and struggle more to achieve that precious academic edge over their peers. Unfortunately, this competition also breeds backstabbers and cheaters.

As a tutor for freshman Chemistry, my job was supposed to help falling students become more proficient at learning the subject matter. Most students enrolled in these tutorial sessions were not "F" students, but rather "P" students struggling to keep up with the competitive edge.

A sadder point was that some students were not interested in learning chemistry, but in learning how to get the coveted "seven" on the weekly quiz. In so doing, these overachievers denied proper instruction to the students with real problems.

When a person steals answers on a quiz, the cheater is the only person harmed, when a student steals the opportunity to learn from another student, this is a greater offense.

But wait... let us not forget that this is as close to paradise as an earthly paradise can be... where freshmen and teachers are above reproach, well, at least backstabbers here do not long have.

Dear Editor:

On the bottom of this page are two controversial issues receiving attention on this page during these past weeks: the campus alcohol problem and the campus cheating problem.

Many members of the student body, faculty, and administration agree that there is some form of abuse regarding both these problems. A major concern of these persons is that both abuses have been readily accepted as part of the everyday life at Notre Dame.

Since the administration feels that the best way to handle situations such as these is to take away the source of the problem (e.g. taking care of the alcohol problem by taking away alcohol) I feel that the administration should remain consistent in its behavior by simply doing away with all exams as a solution to the cheating problem.

And, as a public service to the Notre Dame community who have the right to know the opinions of some of The Observer’s readers, here’s a sampling of some of the treasures discovered at the bottom of the waste basket.

Dear Editor:
Recently I had the opportunity to spend three weeks staying with my brother in Grace, and I certainly must say that I can’t figure out what everyone is complaining about. The movie played on the South Bend radio station was great, and, after nearly a month of listening to those vibes, I’d like to tell everyone that they’re just a bunch of space bums. The music is perfect as far as I’m concerned.

Dear Editor:
I’ve been reading entirely too much about the alleged cheating in The Emil Holman’s chemistry class, and I’ll have you know I’m pretty smart sick off all. I read a few months ago about the hype that went on your campus due to the popularity of Cap’n Crunch, and as a concerned citizen, I think the whole thing was a big mistake. I happen to know the Cap’s personally, and he’s about as bad as they come. Yeah, just ask him to tell you some of the things he did in Baltimore. Lauderdale over here does a pretty old man. Also, if possible, I’d like to come to your school to conduct a series of lectures on this lied behavior. Can this be arranged?

I’ve come to a conclusion. Pattallenges are useless. I mean, think about it. If Joe and Mary fall asleep in Joe’s room and are caught after 2:00 doing nothing but sleeping, they still get in trouble. But if people are gonna have sex, they don’t have to wait until after two in the morning to do it. Joe Jackson fans will be surprised if not, perhaps, agast at his latest effort, Body and Soul. Once bitter and cynical, Jackson has become personal and hopeful in his music, which has developed and matured both musically and lyrically since his earlier work.

Body and Soul follows musically along lines rooted in Jackson's last two albums, in which Jackson showed his ability with 40's and 50's era jazz and the clean, more modern sounds of Night and Day. Jackson's musical expertise and maturity is prominent throughout the album, and is most pronounced in the last two songs, "Be My Number Two" and "Heart of Ice."

"Be My Number Two" is a song about love and hope threatened by cynicism and self-doubt, and features an impressive combination of tenor sax and violin, which brings the clean and musically superb song to a close. Liberal use of sax, violin, trumpet, and piano gives Body and Soul a full, well orchestrated sound. "Heart of Ice" closes the album on an upbeat and positive note which is in sharp contrast to the instrumental, and is indicative of where Joe Jackson stands musically.

Like his music, Joe Jackson's lyrics have matured markedly since his early albums. Body and Soul delivers a much more personal message than Jackson fans have heard before, as a closer picture of the artist is allowed to develop. "The Verdict" sees Jackson's cynicism melt away as he gropes for what he knows to be right amidst reality, in decision, and fear. "Go for It" displays an optimistic side of Joe Jackson that has never before shown itself in such clear terms.

While Body and Soul deals with primarily the same themes that Jack­son has written about in the past, glaringly absent are the bitterness and cynicism that once colored Jackson's point of view and that are evident in the well-played "Is the Really Going Out With Him?" from Look Sharp! In looking at how we treat one another and ourselves, Joe Jackson has, apparently, grown up and accepted the imperfection of life.

Much of what Joe Jackson tries to accomplish through Body and Soul is written in an explication of the album printed in generously super­linear text on the back of the cover. Most of the album was recorded in studio and wood half using digital systems. The recording quality of Body and Soul is excellent. As a whole, Body and Soul is much more instrumental than Joe Jackson's earlier albums. Most of its songs are able to stand up by them­selves, but are better taken as parts of the whole album. Likely can­didates for radio airplay are "The Verdict," "Be My Number Two," and "Happy Ending," a cute boy-meets-girl duet. These three songs seem to have enough lyric to attract radio listeners, whereas other cuts may prove to be too instrumental.

Body and Soul, like most Joe Jackson albums, different than all of his other work. This fact may com­fort some disappointed fans who won't appreciate Jackson's musical progress. It seems to be taking him farther away from his earlier expres­sions of bitterness and cynicism, which so accurately exposed many human wants, weaknesses and disap­pointments without giving in to these personal stumbling blocks.

By Gerry Bernard Body and Soul, Joe Graham Mahy, bass. Vinny Zummomo, guitar; Ed Rosneyd, keyboards and violin, Tony Aeticci, saxes and flute; Michael Morenere, trumpet and flugelhorn; Gary Burke, drums. Production by Elaine Fairwell, vocals; Joe Jackson, vocals, piano, sax, and M Records

Dancin' Irish not just a sideshow

The Dancin' Irish, a squad of ND and SMC girls who perform to the tunes of such singers as Michael Jackson, The Cars, and George Ben­son, are in the process of stepping out into areas other than the home basketball scene.

The squad, composed of sixteen or seventeen girls, is best recognized for its performance of various dance routines during halftime at ND varsity basketball games. They are, however, involved in other activities which extend beyond these occasional, brief per­formances. In fact, the character of the Dancin' Irish is shown in their en­hancement of campus spirit and enter­tainment and their promotion of unity between schools, is that of one of the more dedicated and social or­ganized dance units.

Preparation for events begins with a two-day clinic which instructs all prospective Dancin' Irish can­didates on the choreography of two dance routines. During the two days which follow these clinics, the girls are judged by a committee on their ability to master one of the routines and on their showmanship. After ac­ceptance, the squad follows a rigorous schedule which includes a one or two hour daily workout finishing with a final videotaping with the help of Saint Mary's Assis­tant Athletic Director Tim Dillon.

All routines performed by the squad are choreographed on a volunteer basis through group input. So far, aside from home basket­ball games, the Dancin' Irish have participated in such activities as the homecoming parade, dancing on the quad, selling programs before foot­ball games, and on occasion performing at halftime during an ND soccer game.

Co-captains Cheryl Diaz and Jill McPartlin agree the season has been successful, with the exception of a few unforeseen problems. These problems began with the loss of their moderator, Jan Bishop, and the lack of a replacement. When asked about the effect on the squad of coping without a moderator, Patty Whitehouse, a two year veteran, commented that Bis­hop had never closely associated with or assisted the squad. The cap­tains had always been self-sufficient and responsible for coordinating ar­rangements for games and choosing uniforms.

Without the authority of a moderator, the squad faced various scheduling problems due to lack of voice in the athletic department. Eileen Hogan, also a two year mem­ber, expressed frustration over the apparent lack of input on the part of the department, which resulted in the squad being denied the opportunity to perform at the best attended games.

Further complications matters, the Dancin' Irish were forced to operate without University funding, although they did receive assistance from Saint Mary's College.

The squad is optimistic with regard to the future. Their main obj­ective is to broaden their horizons and to overcome some of the dif­ficulties encountered this year.

An important priority this year is the quest for a "home base" offering guidance and representation to the squad. Guidance could be found in departments other than Student Activities, with which they are currently affiliated. Once this is attained, the Dancin' Irish hope to expand their performances into other areas, possibly including ND soccer games or dance recitals in the South Bend community.

In any case, the Dancin' Irish are truly a dedicated and professional group, willing to make the sacrifices and commitments necessary for quality performances. With the continued support of the student body, (and the hope of a new sound sys­tem), the Dancin' Irish look toward continued expansion into other ac­tivities while always remaining Notre Dame basketball's "halftime show."

match, said junior Paul Najarian. "After Hawaii, in the locker room, you could almost smell the sweat. We just said let’s go for it.

The Irish got out to a quick start against the Bobcats, as Najarian won at fifth singles 6-2, 6-0. He followed with a 6-4, 6-3 win over Knevezick 6-1, 6-0 and captain Tim Noonan defeated Meadeo 6-1, 6-4 at second singles. 7-6, 7-3, 6-1.

"I played really well today," said Najarian. "I located the best court form in Florida. Yesterday, I was so cold I didn’t do so well, so today I got psyched up for the match."

"He (Knevezick) got dis­couraged. He was a good player, but after I won the first set, he didn’t get it back on me."

Even after his win, Noonan wasn’t totally happy with his play. "I’m still not playing as well as the team cap­tain. I played well on some big points -- that’s the difference."

"He tried to come in on the second set, and I hit my passing shots real well. I think he might have been interior after that."

"I wasn’t too pleased with our performance today," said Fallon. "We still made too many unforced errors. We came too well, but two­gether, we just need more practice."

Tomorrow, Notre Dame will be on the road again, travelling to Bowling Green University. Last year the Irish defeated the Falcons 7-2 in Courtesy.

"They always do a good job of us," said Fallon, "last year we had a close match."

Parker comes home, leads Reds past Mets

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Dave Parker delighted a hometown crowd with a three-run homer in the second inning that put the Reds lower than the eight-foot outfield wall modern-day baseball history was made between the league's two worst teams playing in a festive atmosphere.

Reagan tossed out the ceremonial first ball as a last-minute substitute for baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, then sat in the dugout of Baltimore's defending world champions for one inning before departing by helicopter.

A first-inning home run by Cal Ripken Jr., the league's Most Valuable Player of 1983, provided Baltimore's first run off Hoyt, who won 24 games and the Cy Young award last season. Hoyt finally came out after 7-1/3 innings, having yielded seven hits, three by Dan Ford.

Britt Burns earned the save for Hoyt, coming on after Ford and Ripken had singled with one out in the eighth. Eddie Murray then singled home Ford.

The White Sox, last year's AL west Division champions, already had struck for two runs before Ripken's opposite field drive into the right field bleachers.

Singles by Rudy Law and Carlton Fisk, and a ground out by Baines produced the first run off Scott McGregor, an 18-game winner last year.

Chicago loaded the bases on walks to Greg Luzinski and Tom Paciorek before Fisk scored on a sacrifice fly by Ron Kittle.

The White Sox made it 3-1 in the second when a sacrifice fly by Law scored Julio Cruz, who had walked. Dickie Thon scored on a fielding error by first baseman Murray.

SEATTLE — Georgetown has Patrick Ewing and Houston has Hakeem Olajuwon, but the Hoyas are NCAABasketball champions because they also have a host of reserves, led by freshmen Michael Graham and Reggie Williams.

While Ewing was named the Most Outstanding Player in the Final Four after his personal battle of 7-footers with Olajuwon, Williams and Graham carried second-ranked Georgetown to an 84-75 victory over Houston for the national championship last night.

"It's a dishonorable feeling. We're elated to win the national championship," said Coach John Thompson, whose team narrowly missed the title in 1982. "It's much harder to get here than win one game for the national championship.

"Guy Lewis is an excellent coach. They've been to the Final Four three straight years."

Thompson and his players embraced joyfully as the final seconds ticked off, the memories of the runner-up finish to North Carolina two years ago were wiped away. But it was sorrow again for Houston, which was upset 54-52 by Georgetown to top L •

The Observer Tuesday, April 3, 1984

The Hoyas made good on the free-throw line down the stretch, as they stopped the Cougars' six-game winning streak.

Houston could take some consolation in rolling up 75 points against the Hoyas defense, which held opponents to an average of 57.4 points in previous games this season.

Georgetown, champions of the Big East, usually uses 10 players but had to do without standout defensive guard Gene Smith, who suffered a sprained right foot in a 53-40 victory over Kentucky in the semifinals Saturday.

While Ewing was sitting down to avoid further foul problems late in the first half, Olajuwon picked up his second and third personals before sitting out the last 42 seconds of the half. This marked the first time in four tournament games that Olajuwon did not play the entire game.

Ewing got his third personal with 12.08 to go and Georgetown leading 55-49. But he went out for only about a minute just before Franklin's two free throws cut the Houston deficit to 57-54.

Toronto Maple Leafs fire Nykoluk

TORONTO — Mike Nykoluk, described this season by Toronto owner Harold Ballard as "too nice a guy" to fire, was told by the Maple Leafs yesterday his contract will not be renewed for the 1984-85 National Hockey League season.

But rather than call a news conference to announce the move, the firing came during the club's annual Molson Cup award presentation.

Nykoluk appeared to be on his way out from behind the bench as long ago as the all-star break, but was given a vote of confidence at that time by Ballard.

Team captain Rick Vaive, who registered his third successive 50-goal season for the Leafs to claim the Molson Cup for the third consecutive year, said it was unfortunate the blame for the Leafs' poor performance this season had to rest on one person's shoulders.

"It's everybody's fault," said Vaive, one of the bright spots on a club that finished last in the Norris Division with a 26-45-9 record. The 45 losses were the most ever suffered by the Leafs in one season. "It's unfortunate one guy has to lose his job over it."

The club also was ravaged by injuries in every area for most of the season and the club Nykoluk had to work with put together three winning streaks all season — one of four games and two of two games.

Irish linebacking corps looks strong

By JOE BRUNETTI

Notre Dame linebacker coach George Kelly should feel lucky. He has three high school all-Americans to fill two spots at inside linebacker for next year's football team.

In addition to being highly touted out of high school, Tony Furjanic, Mike Larkin and Mike Kovaleski each has proven his ability to perform well in crucial situations.

If there is one thing that the three lack, however, it is experience. Each of the three have only one year of experience on the starting defensive unit.

"They're all young. They've only played one year (on the starting team)," says Kelly. "But, their abilities are far in excess of the total linebacking picture that I have had in years."

To what degree the Notre Dame linebacking corps will be able to dominate opponents depends on whether Larkin returns to his form of 1982.

Overcome slow start

Lacrosse team defeats Kenyon

By MIKE SULLIVAN

Sports Editor

The ultimate goal this year for the Notre Dame lacrosse team is to win the Midwest Lacrosse Association title, so, although games against the Dukes and Georgetown are important, the MLA contests are the games that really matter. This past weekend, Coach Rich O'Leary's Irish took a step in the right direction by punishing Kenyon College, 17-7, in their MLA opener.

Notre Dame used its superior depth to an advantage against its hosts. The Irish gradually turned a close game into a rout by pulling away in the second half.

"We used a lot more players than they did," said O'Leary. "We tried to run, be aggressive, and wear them down. I did feel we had a better team, but if things went wrong, like getting ahead, then I felt we could win the game because of our conditioning."

Tony Furjanic

Larkin had a banner sophomore season in '82, making a second-leading 112 tackles for the Irish. The 6-1, 221-pound, Moeller High School graduate broke his arm prior to the opening of last year's season, finishing third on the team in tackles with 62.

"Kovaleski is a real competitor," prances Kelly. "He surprised us last year. He learned fast, but more importantly, he performed well under pressure."

The mainstay for the Irish at middle linebacker will be junior-to-be Tony Furjanic. Besides having to meet the need to excel as a player, the role of a leader may also fall on the shoulders of the Chicago native.

"I would hope he'll be a leader," Kelly says of his 6-2, 231-pound star. "He's not the type to speak out. Instead he leads by example."

As a freshmen, Furjanic earned a monogram through his impressive play on special teams. He had a stel­lar season in 1983, leading the Irish defense with 142 tackles, and start­ing all 12 games. He also shined in the Liberty Bowl, garnering a pass in­terception and later being named the Notre Dame defensive MVP.

"He's had an outstanding spring. He has started where he left off last season," comments Kelly. "His abilities at the point are on par with the Zavagnins and Crables."

One problem Kelly will face is what to do with all the talent and on­ly two starting positions available. "I'm not sure," says Kelly. "It's still too early to tell, but one may play outside linebacker."

With all of the talent Kelly has available, the inside linebacking positions again will be a strong suit for the Irish.

Men's tennis team gains weekend split

Men's tennis team split a triangular match last weekend at Courtney Tennis Center.

The Irish dropped a 7-2 decision to the University of Hawaii Friday, before regrouping to defeat a feisty and previously win­less Ohio University squad, 6-3, on Saturday.

The victory raised the Irish record to 10-6, halfway to their sixth con­ssecutive 20-win season.

Earlier Saturday morning, Hawaii improved their record to 3-15 after a 6-3 victory over the Bobcats.

The offense was not limited to just Peasall and Trocchi, though, Tom Gore and Joe Franklin each con­tributed a goal and two assists, while Ben Rooney and Gayhardt added two goals apiece. On defense, Rob Simpson started in the goal and came up with eight saves. Pat Poletti and Brian McKeon contributed a save apiece, while Steve Cloud led a defense that had to play without one of its stars, Justin Shy, who missed his second straight game with a thigh bruise.

Notre Dame will now take its 2-2 record to Lake Forest tomorrow in what O'Leary hopes will be a good tune-up for Saturday's crucial test against Ohio Wesleyan in Delaware, Ohio.
