President Reagan ends six-day trip to Communist China on good note

Associated Press

SHANGHAI, CHINA — President Reagan received the warmest welcome in Communist China and said at a farewell banquet that the United States and China are planning "to write a new chapter of peace and progress.""Wishing up his final day in China at a banquet given by Shanghai Mayor Wang Dasan, Reagan said, "My trip to China has been an important and enlightening as any I've taken as president." Reagan also finally got an opportunity to speak directly to a Chinese television audience with out having his remarks censored, but there was still a much shorter speech, which was translated into Chinese.

Hart contends he is only Democrat to beat Reagan

Associated Press

ANDERSON, Ind. — Democratic presidential contender Gary Hart portrayed himself yesterday in this auto industry town as the only candidate in his party who could beat Ronald Reagan.

The Colorado senator was greeted by a crowd of more than 300 supporters who waited at the Anderson Municipal Airport to welcome Hart's message to the group.

Hart proclaimed that the 1984 campaign will be a "watershed election." "This country cannot afford four more years of Reaganomics for the rich," he said in the crowd cheered.

Hart warned that the country cannot afford a "costly and unnecessary and dangerous nuclear arms race." Hart also put in plugs for Indiana's farm economy, saying that farm exports must be encouraged to improve the lot of agriculture.

Hart called for an industrial policy that would modernize the auto industry rather than protectist legislation that would bail out a few ailing companies.

The candidate drew more cheers when he called for rerouting money cut from the nation's education budget, saying it should be used to finance everything from free lunches for schoolchildren to guaranteed student loans for college students.

"I say to Mr. Reagan that if you think education is too expensive, wait until you find out how much ignorance costs," he said.

Hart proposed to find the additional money for education by canceling the MX missile and the B-1 bomber.

Hart made a veiled reference to former Vice President Walter Mondale, who was in South Bend Monday, saying "I hope this party will nominate a candidate who has not sought political action committee special interest money." Hart shared a platform with local Democratic officials, including Rep. Craig Campbell, D-Anderson, who described Hart as "our party's best chance to beat Ronald Reagan." Campbell remarked about the presence of local United Auto Workers officials and said "I don't believe for a minute that just because the UAW made an endorse-

LaFortune renovations planned

By MARK POTTER

The new Student Center students have been asking for is not probable in the immediate future but a remodeling LaFortune is, according to the university. The LaFortune Renovation Committee plans for the building.

Tyson said part of the delay is due to the renovation. The University has received $15 million in grants for the renovation.

McDonnell said he has been working with students regarding the renovation. He said he submitted one set of plans for the building.

McDonnell said he has been working with students regarding the renovation. He said he submitted one set of plans for the building.

The University is interested in the plans and wants to make improvements, said McDonnell. He said he believes this to be especially true since the "all-accredited report was approved by the Officers and Trustees and it calls for action and for immediate plans to be developed." McDonnell said, "Maybe we have all those all-accredited parties in the halls because we don't have a college town, a big city, or a good student center. Like other universities have."
Sociologist Gordon Zahn: Pacifist and Roman Catholic

Though many U.S. Catholics have yet to recognize pacifism as a legitimate option in today's world, the U.S. bishops' pastoral letter on peace and war gradually is making more persons aware of the Christian commitment to pacifism, says Catholic pacifist Gordon Zahn.

The 66-year-old Zahn, a professional sociologist and historian who served four years in a U.S. Civilian Conservation Corps camp as a conscientious objector to World War II, is the author of In Solitary Witness, a biography about Franz Jagerstatter, a Catholic Austrian peasant, against the advice of his local bishop, refused to serve in Hitler's army just on war and was beheaded.

What follows are excerpts from an interview Zahn gave while at Notre Dame last month.

Have you been differing their pastoral letter on peace and war, taken the prophetic edge away from the laity and assumed the role of prophet in the Church?

It (the pastoral letter) is really rather a caution step ahead, a step to viewpoints which do have more radical connotations. For example, the elevation of pacifism as a legitimate option for Catholics is a pretty big step even in the final version they (the U.S. bishops) do go back a bit and seem to put it entirely on an individual basis. So, that's important.

With the discussion of non-violence, the same thing happens. But, that and many of the other things that I've never been recognized before — as a group position.

And in this case, they go beyond the question of legitimacy, and place it as a viable option, possibly efficacious. They strongly recommend further study in this situation.

In the pastoral you've got that instruction that we must regard as normal the path of persecution and the possibility of martyrdom. That's a very important aspect.

To that extent, you have at least the beginnings of people who, in the status of pacifist, the biggest contribution of the pastoral is that which was previously dismissed as the type of thing (a pacifist) you get differing or trying to show something worthy of examination by the Catholic community. It spoke of it and compared it to the more important recent action in the U.S., which was its a starting place. They haven't spoken a final word and they give no impression of having spoken a final word.

You say this is a starting place. What is the next step?

There's going to be continuing stress on defending conscientious objection (by the bishops). I would imagine one of the things that I would certainly be pushing for is a more explicit condemnation of certain forms of militarism.

It could be in keeping with the spirit of the document to say that a Catholic can't serve on the Trident or in a missile silo, or something like this. Or even that a Catholic can't train to do it.

I think there has had to be established his right to classification as a C.O. I would like to see the emphasis of the bishops and the Church be on basically assuming that a Christian is not supposed to take part in war and would have to justify accepting military service. It would be a switch of emphasis. It would bring us back pretty much to what the early Christians were doing.

How do you make the average Catholic aware of pacifism as a viable option?

There are different forms of education programs (which can be) undertaken at the parish level. Obviously that's very important — that's where you can reach these middle-class Catholics who have never heard of the whole idea of pacifism.

As far as the people at parish levels, there is a task of undoing what has already been learned (about pacifism). The best you can expect out of a parish education program is at least an awareness of the new trend and the implication.

What do you see as the major problems with the peace movement itself?

In terms of the Catholic peace movement, (there) is the problem of liberation. My full sympathy is with liberation movements, but I would reject aligning myself with those groups which incorporate violence as a way of seeking resolutions to problems. There are those (such as Jesuit Father Daniel Berrigan and his brother, a furrier Josephite priest, Philip Berrigan) who feel that liberation has to be confrontational.

The good and bad thing is that confrontations get noticed. The good thing about the notice is that people now know their position in courts and certainly get press attention.

The negative effect that goes along with that is that confrontation sometimes discourtes the message. It's a communication problem, I think.

1960s:... (from the 1st, on Oct. 27, 1967, when Philip Berrigan and three others "announced" draft records in a Baltimore Selective Service office with duck decoys and a near-fatal assassination. The second, on May 17, 1968, when Daniel and Philip Berrigan and seven others burned, using homemade napkins, hundreds of draft cards outside a Selective Service office in Catonsville, Md.) were magisterial.

But as the (Daniel Berrigan) seems to escalate both in number and in frequency of action, I think the point got lost and if not lost completely, was at least clouded by the resentment of many people.

I don't intend to dismiss their recent actions. For myself, I have more individual (ways of protest). The important thing that we have to recognize is that there is no dichotomy between prayer and protest.

Panama Archbishop ordains priests at ND

By KERRY HAVERKAMP
Staff Reporter

Four priests were ordained into the Holy Cross Order by the Archdiocese of Panama last Saturday at Sacred Heart Church. The new priests are Michael E. Connor, Joseph V. Corporea, James E. McDonald, and Arthur Wheeler.

Following their ordination, the newly-ordained cleremen have a variety of plans. Connors is intending to do parochial/pastoral work. Corporea wishes to teach foreign languages at Notre Dame or one of its extensions, and is also contemplating missionary work in South America. McDonald will be on campus in a residence hall next fall, and is preparing to do doctoral work on a Ph.D., which he may complete in London. Wheeler, who has a Ph.D. in history, wishes to continue working at the California parish where he has been a deacon. He is also considering teaching at Notre Dame or in London where he has taught before.

Wheeler said he decided to join the priesthood because he felt a call. "I wanted to be a priest all my life and felt that it wasn't a choice but an answer to God's call." He described it as "a rugging of the Holy Spirit."

According to Father Andre Leveille, head of vocations at Moreau Seminary, there are two main reasons young men choose the Holy Cross Order. One is that the order is committed to a community-centered life. The second is the wide variety of ministry options to choose from, such as missions, parish work, and teaching. Wheeler said he had been leaning toward the Jesuit Order until he came to Notre Dame for his doctorate. His experiences with the Holy Cross priests turned him toward that order.

To become a Holy Cross priest a man spends a year as a candidate, a year as a novitiate, three graduate years in theology, and a year as a deacon. As a deacon, the priest-to-be serves an internship with a master priest and can perform all services, such as marriages and baptisms, with the exception of Mass and confirmations. Father Leveille called it a type of "on-the-job training."

Father Leveille commented that on the whole, the number of men in the U.S. choosing the priesthood has fallen, but the Holy Cross Order has increased its intake. The order has 120 seminarians now and more seniors are entering this year than ever before.

CSC sponsors lunch programs open to all

By FRANK LIPPO
Senior Staff Reporter

Today from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30, Alicia Garcia, a Chilean immigrant, invites you to a Spanish lunch she has prepared at the Center for Social Concerns.

This lunch is the latest in a series of once-a-month ethnic lunches sponsored by the Center for Social Concerns to benefit a community service program or a family.

Mary Ann Roemer of the CSC is the coordinator of the program. She said the service has been run on an experimental basis this year, and it has been so successful that next year it will occur about twice a month.

The CSC allows a community service program or family to use its facilities. Usually with the help of about four students, the group prepares the meal. The meal is advertised and served to the public.

Roemer said, "We wouldn't allow an organization to come in just to make money. Our criteria is that any money made goes to an area of real need."

Such organizations as the St. Augustine Soup Kitchen and La Casa Mexican-American Day Care Center have served lunches. There have been other Spanish lunches and also Cambodian lunches prepared by Asian refugees. Roemer said that from 50-100 people have attended each of the lunches, which have ranged in price from $1.25 to $3. She added, "We try to connect our work with students here on campus as well as the outside community."

Roemer said, "Through coming to these type of activities, we would like to have the students become aware of the other opportunities we offer at the Center." Some of the other activities the CSC sponsors are the Urban Plunge, the Senior Reflection Group, the semester in Mexico and various peace and justice activities.

She said, "We realize that many students are active in such activities and we encourage others to participate. We feel that such activities should be a part of the education here at Notre Dame."

Roemer stressed the hospitality and fellowship of the Lunch Program. She said, "We see a lot of suffering and sadness but fun times are a part of any service activity. It's not just the grim aspects that should gain publicity. Celebration is also a part of our work."

Today's lunch will consist of salad, bean and vegetable soup, dessert, and coffee or tea, for $2.50. There will be live Spanish music and the meal will be outdoors, weather permitting. Proceeds from the lunch will go to the Garcia Family, who recently arrived in America from Chile. Anyone interested in helping with this or other programs may contact Roemer at the CSC.
Reagan signs nuclear agreement with China

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The U.S.-Chinese nuclear cooperation agreement signed yesterday gives American manufacturers like Westinghouse and General Electric an entry into an already spitted bidding war with the British, French, Japanese and West German makers.

While there's no guarantee the pact will bring new business to the American nuclear plant makers, industry experts are confident they'll get their share of work on the 10 to 12 units the Chinese will build in the next decade.

"The other countries have certainly had a head start, but we've got a good product," said Bob Szalay, senior vice president of Atomic Industrial Forum, an industry trade group.

Government reports economy lag

A rate of 3.7 percent from April through June, compared to an 8.3 percent pace in the first three months of the year.

WASHINGTON - Government economists agreed the March setback for the national economy was exaggerated by unusually bad weather in the second part of the quarter. No one expected in coming months.

Jack Carlson, of the National Association of Manufacturers, said the index "points to the emergence of a major slowdown during the latter part of 1984" of 5 percent growth in the third quarter.

Christopher Bahnam, head of a Brazilian consumer group, said the decline in the indicators should "allow some softening of interest rates, reflecting the fact that GDP growth is in the markets of an overheated economy begin to subside."

Supreme Court gives more power to appeals courts in cases of libel

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, in a decision that could save news organizations millions of dollars, greatly reduced yesterday that appeals courts have broad power to second-guess decisions in libel cases.

The 5-4 ruling, greeted with a sigh of relief by news media representatives, killed a $210 million award to the late Lee Arenberg, a grand jury witness who authored an anti-Semitic magazine.

"The requirement of independent appellate review... reflects a deeply held conviction that judges... particularly members of this court... must exercise such review in order to preserve the precious liberties established and ordained by the Constitution," Justice John Paul Stevens wrote for the court.

Bruce Sanford, a Washington lawyer for the Society of Profes­sional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, praised Monday's ruling.

"We are pleased and affirmed, reassuringly, the critical need for cool, dispassionate, appellate scrutiny of jury verdicts against the press," he said. "An era of punish­ing the press for engaging in its legitimate public service of reporting the news will have practical and salutary benefits."

In other actions Monday, the court:

crossed. But these are subject, as are all of the points in the submitted plan, to approval by the Officers of the University.

McDonnell said, "some of the Goals of the Sigma Delta Chi National and state activities can be implemented immediately. Needed in the near future is an Undergraduate Club in the bathroom could be done rather quickly."

Although Tyson said, "cost has been a barrier," McDonnell said, "if it is really a priority, if Notre Dame really wants to do it, it can do it."

Tom McCaffery, one of the students on the LaFortune Renovation Com­mittee, also believes this. He said, "I think if the University was serious on making a commitment it would get done."

"St. Mary's is serious on provid­ing an alternative to alcohol abuse... they would renovate LaFortune."

Mike Quinn, a student on the committee, said, "I would be surprised if it doesn't get done this summer because of the alcohol policy. It is a must. It require­ment to provide an alternative to our current social life."

Former Nazi victims finalize plans for Holocaust Memorial Museum

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Survivors of Nazi horrors gathered in a drizzly rain yesterday to begin transforming two death camp-like buildings into a U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum that will show "the dark side of human civilization." The symbolic groundbreaking for the $100 million privately financed museum near the Washing­ton Monument was a focus of the an­nual Days of Remembrance for the 6 million Jews and countless other European minorities slaughtered and persecuted under Adolf Hitler.

"If you remember, you shall live," said Elie Wiesel, who survived Auschwitz and came to America to teach, campaign for human rights and become chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council.

Wiesel told Vice President George Bush and more than 400 people at a noontime commemo­ration in the Capitol Rotunda that memories of the death camps provide lessons for now and warnings for the future.

"The world unleashed madness more than 40 years ago, and that madness is still dominating the minds and souls of too many countries," said Wiesel.

"No cause is more noble, no en­deavor more sacred," he said, than to offer future reporters a graphic portrait not only of "the inhumanity of the killer but also the humanity of his victims.

Wiesel and other survivors are raising funds to create a memorial il­lustrating the horrors of genocide and the daily lives of death camp victims.

There also will be computerized archives of Nazi extermination records seized by the United States after World War II.

Seen by Wiesel as a "magnet for all who visit Washington," the museum will be housed in two century-old buildings, donated by the US. government, that have served as auditors' offices, warehouses, stables and a fish hatchery.

The ROTC, just war theory: At peace at Notre Dame?

Editor's note: The following is the first of a two-part series on the University's Reserve Officer Training Corps program at Notre Dame.

When Saint Augustine wrote to Publilca, "Do not think that it is impossible for you to please God while engaged in active military service," he was not thinking about pacifism. It is not difficult for those taking another's life to not automatically sin.

To a people whose Master instructed them to "love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, and pray for those who treat you badly" (Luke 6:27-28).

Michael Baxter

such a suggestion must have been startling. But, recognizing the human propensity for war, the Church thought it wise to amend the above-mentioned accommodation for circumstances (namely, defense of the innocent against murderous aggressors) in which lethal force might be justified.

Out of this reasoning, though not inapt, moral provocation has come the "just war" tradition. The Catholic Church finds that, should the Christian soldiers in the first century adopt in taking up their vocations of military service, they must not only document their jobs, in their pastoral letter on war and peace, call "a requirement of our faith."

The just-war principle provides a more useful approach to the issue of the moral legitimacy of war. If the just-war principle is correct, both the Just War and the War in Heaven of the Apocalypse are legitimate. The first, the moral justification of war in which all nations are engaged; the second, the model for the ideal war, which the Church hopes will come about in the future.

Those who treat you accommodation for circumstances (namely, defense of the innocent against murderous aggressors) in which lethal force might be justified.

"If anyone advocates or has applied practical policy, just war theory that could mold Notre Dame students in R.O.T.C. to honest, effective, even radical pacifists; and in ways that pacifists believe would make any foe in combat, find morally inaccessible. After all, students enrolled in R.O.T.C must be willing to find themselves in a position to do exactly what their Christian community calls them to do in the interest of peace and against violence.

"Just war ethics is a set of principles designed to guide such restraint. The principles of just war ethics are of roughly two types: those defining the right of a nation to go to war, just bellum, and those defining the proper conduct within a just war, just bellissimo.

"Even though Notre-Hofe Officers at Notre Dame will have little control over the decisions that send the United States to war, they will have some authority over specific military policies within a war waged by the US. The principles of the proper conduct within a war are most relevant. Of these, the principle of proportionality, which forbids actions that result in more evil than the good they seek to achieve, is an especially murky area for just-war ethicists (See "The Pastoral Letter on War and Peace," paragraphs 101-102).

"The Church shares this wisdom and wishes to pass it on to the officers-to-be at Notre Dame. As a people, we believe that those who kill the innocent suffer a death more grievous than that of their victims. The love shown to our Master enables us to be this kind of people and calls us into this kind of action.

"The question of the moral legitimacy of R.O.T.C. must be taken up with this Christian perspective in mind. The question is, how well does the R.O.T.C. programs at Notre Dame train officers to protect the lives of the innocent, even when that might run contrary to the policies of the military organization in which they serve?

Michael Baxter, a professor seminar in the Congregation of Holy Cross teaches religion at Asia Santa Cruz High School in Phoenix, Ariz.

Rector responds

Dear Editor,

In response to "Rector Banns Banners" in the April 30 Observer, I would like to correct an unjust accusation.

Though I do not believe students have a right to use University-owned sheets to advertise (there are always the "Personals"), and do not think students have a right to litter the walls of the buildings, I did not initially forbid banners.

The first banner on St. Ed's was "Bend Over ND." This is insinuating to all those who care about the life of those who might be sensitive to students' needs. As a punishment the individuals were told to take down their banner and since they had insulted both our hall and our school, they were not allowed to put up another banner.

The second banner advertised "Coke is in 84-85." Despite the double entendre, I allowed it to stay.

The morning after the Student Body Vice President told hall members that banners should not center on alcohol and should be more responsible, a banner appeared on St. Ed's saying "Our Father Who art in Heaven, Give us our 7 & 7." I then banned banners on St. Ed's because I do not intend going every morning checking to see which is offensive and which is not and a parody of the Lord's Prayer I find offensive.

"If any member of the CIC will work toward changes in the Directive Draft (changes that the Dean of Students has admitted are nego- tiable), then I will allow anything that degrades both this hall and this University. I think I have the support of the residents of this hall in this matter. After all, there were only 52 out of a possible 183 signatures."

Assistant coach Bob Beitel handled the squad on an intercollegiate basis the last half of the 94 campaign.

McCann named wrestling coach

Two-time All American, an NCAA Top Five finisher, McCann also earned Academic All-American honors twice. McCann is perhaps best known for his caliber to handle our program. As a Chicago native, McCann has produced an impressive 76-45 dual record since taking over the Notre Dame program in 1976. Three of his last four teams finished among the nation's top 10, including the 1982 squad which ended up 15-1 in dual meets and took the time to compete in the NCAA Tournament.

McCann takes over for Brother Joseph Bruno, C.S.C., who had been the Irish head coach the last four seasons. Assistant coach Bob Feigel handled the squad on an intercollegiate basis the last half of the '84 campagin.

Frans McCann is responsible for the program's increase in the number of athletes and talent in the Notre Dame wrestling program. McCann has helped the program gain many new recruits and has added to the list of greats in Notre Dame's wrestling history. State goal. As if eight seconds was not quick enough, Frankello was again just seven seconds after his first goal. Ohio State never recovered from the sudden outburst as the Irish added three more goals by the end of the quarter. Meanwhile, Notre Dame goalie Rob Simpson was in the form of his life. The Buckeyes cut the lead by one goal after the first half, improving his save percentage to 70 percent.

The Buckeyes finally became the first team in the nation to score two goals in the final half, halting Ohio State's winning streak. Ohio State's loss was the first time they failed to clear the ball from their end, allowing Ohio State to score a man open near the Ohio State goal. Thirty seconds later, the Buckeyes cut the lead further by one with a Notre Dame player in the penalty box, but that was as close as they could get. The Irish went on to score two more goals in the second half, and both teams scored twice in the final quarter as O'Carley experimented with different lineups.

Ohio State also went with a different lineup besides Frankello and the Buckeyes. Frankello and McCann are expected to return for next year's season. McCann is expected to return for next year's season as well.

NFL Draft today
Teams pick from depleted crop
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Heisman Trophy winner is gone. So is the top quarterback and the top-rated defensive lineman.

Now it’s the turn of the National Football League, which set by quiet agreement last morning that its prime prospects, to pick over what’s left.

When NFL teams sit down today at the draft table and begin to make their picks, they will find the crop depleted — nine players considered first-rounders have signed with the United States Football League and perhaps 30 of the top 100 prospects have already been drafted.

Gary Anderson, quarterback of Nebraska, is the only top-caliber running back available this year. He is Reggie White, the 280-pound defensive tackle from Tennessee; gone is Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young, who signed a $45 million contract with the Los Angeles Express.

In fact, the free-spending Express has snapped up more than a dozen prospects who might have been drafted on the NFL’s first round. But for NFL teams — and for the many fans who treat the draft like the opening game of the next season — there’s still enough left to make for an interesting, if somewhat confusing, day.

The New England Patriots, who dealt with the Cincinnati Bengals after the Bengals declined to match the kind of money the USFL was spending, took wide receiver Irvy of Nebraska and immediately signed him. Then the Houston Oilers, declining to pay Marshall’s price, said they had agreed to terms with Fryar’s Nebraska teammate, guard Dean Steinkuhler.

That leaves the New York Giants, who need offensive linemen and coveted Steinkuhler, may, despite one of the NFL’s strongest backfield units, pick the player they consider the play the best in the draft — linebacker Carl Banks of Michigan State. Or they may trade for additional compensation and take offensive tackle Bill Roberts of Ohio State.

In addition to Banks, defensive standouts include Marshall defensive backs Mooney Cade of Texas, Russell Garrett of Southern Methodist, Leonhard Coleman of Vanderbilt and Don Rogers of UCLA, and defensive linemen Bill Mass of Pri, Rick Bryan of Oklahoma, Keith Mil­ land of Washington State and Ron Fauron of Arkansas.

James Patterson set a personal best in the Drake Relays this weekend, running a distance of 25 feet, three-and-a-quarter inches, the jampacked good for a second-place finish for Patterson. Notre Dame also placed three members in the IC4A Championships in Indianapolis.

THE WEALTH OF EXPERIENCE YOU GET IN THE ARMY PAYS OFF IN COLLEGE

A lot of what it takes to be a good soldier is what it takes to be a good college student.

So it shouldn’t surprise you that more and more young people are going to college by way of the Army.

They’re getting the benefits of Army skill training. The opportunity to live and work with different kinds of people. And the chance to travel.

They’re also getting the financial benefits of the Army College Fund. If you qualify, the Army College Fund can mean as much as $15,200 for college for serving two years or $20,100 for serving just three years.

See your Army Recruiter and ask for the Army College Fund booklet. It’ll tell you how to go to college a much wealthier person. In more ways than one.

Lacrosse team breezes to its fifth straight win

By MIKE SULLIVAN

Sports Editor

Three weeks ago, the Notre Dame lacrosse team hosted a 0-3-5 mark and seemed to be on the way to a rather underwhelming season. However, after the team's fifth straight win Saturday -- a 17-4 rout of Ohio State -- Irish coach Rich O'Leary and his players are wishing the 1984 season would not end so soon.

The surprising case with which Notre Dame handled Midwest Lacrosse Association opponent Ohio State is the latest chapter in what has turned out to be the lacrosse team's greatest season in its short history. The victory improved the Irish record to 9-5 (7-1 in the MLA) with only a game this Saturday against Michigan State remaining. The win also kept Notre Dame in the thick of the race for the MLA title.

The Bulldogs, who were supposed to give their hosts a tough time, found themselves swamped by the Irish who were still riding the momentum from their big upset of Denison a week earlier. By the time the visitors scored their first goal with 6:42 left in the third quarter, Notre Dame already had scored 11 times. In fact, the margin was never less than nine for the entire second half.

"I was really shocked that we beat them as bad as we did," said O'Leary. "I thought they'd dominate us at midfield, but they didn't. I think they're capable of matching up with us, though."

On Saturday, Ohio State matched up with Notre Dame for about three- and-a-half minutes. Then the avalanche of Notre Dame domination was in full swing. The Irish scored three goals in 15 seconds and added a fourth less than two minutes later.

Sophomore Tom Corrigan started off the scoring by getting past an Ohio State defender for an open shot. Eight seconds later, freshman Joe Franklin took a pass from Bob Trucchi and dumped it in the Ohio State net for a 6-0 lead.

"I think we've been a bit too soft lately," said O'Leary. "I think it was a gutsy little victory for us."

As O'Leary had predicted, the Irish would not end so tame. The Irish hitters unleashed three runs in the second, 16-2 that included a big inning.

"I think we had a chance to warm up," said O'Leary. "Joe Franklin scored four goals to help the Irish team to a 17-4 defeat of Midwest Lacrosse Association opponent Ohio State. The win gave Coach Rich O'Leary's squad an 8-3 record, best ever in Notre Dame's short history. Mike Sullivan's story at left.

Weekend split leaves playoff outlook dark

By ERIC SCHEUERMAN

Inconsistency ruled again last weekend over the Notre Dame baseball team. After an easy sweep of a doubleheader over Midwestern City Conference rival Butler on Saturday, the Irish came back with a shaky performance in singles games Sunday and yesterday, and ended up splitting the weekend series.

On Saturday, in a pair of games at Jake Kline Field, the Irish brought out the lumber like never before this season, crushing the Bulldogs by scores of 10-5 and 16-2. In the first contest, the Irish left behind a 17-4 outlook for the season.

Butler put a scare into the Irish by slowly chipping away at the lead, and finally went out in front 5-4 with two runs in the top of the sixth. The Irish then put the game out of reach by raking in six runs in the bottom of the inning. The Bulldogs could score no more, and the final score favored the Irish by a score of 10-5. Tapes picked up the win in his first fall since his injury, and moved his record to 2-3.

Mike Metelerk and Carl Vuono pounded out four hits against the Irish, but Mike Trucchi and Tom Shields lashed doubles to lead the 11-2 attack.

Notre Dame scored in the second game as well. Trucchi hit a 2-run blast in the first inning, and Adamo hit a 2-run blast in the second when Franklin got on.
