By JOHN NEBLO
Senior Staff Reporter

Democratic Presidential Candidate Walter Mondale blasted President Reagan for his "failure to uphold the law" in a Law Day address to the students and faculty of Notre Dame Law School yesterday in Washington D.C. Mondale declared he would make Reagan's lack of respect for the law "a fundamental issue of the campaign."

Mondale charged that the Reagan Administration seemed to "stagger from injustice to injustice" with regard to civil rights, women's rights, and environmental protection. Among his criticisms, Mondale claimed that Reagan had "trashed" the Civil Rights Commission, supported racial discrimination in education, "assaulted" the legal services program, and failed to enforce EPA laws. "This Administration thinks expertise means shooting them," Mondale said.

Mondale next attacked the "long line of officials in the Reagan Administration involved in controversies. He contends that Reagan has not set high standards of behavior for himself or his administrators, citing as examples former Secretary of the Interior James Watt, former EPA Director Ann Gorsuch, and Attorney General nominee Edwin Meese.

In an obvious reference to the controversy surrounding Mondale, Mondale said, "my Attorney General will be held to the highest standards."

For his part, Walter Mondale ran well ahead of his national convention delegates and\n
Hart, 21,622, 32 percent

Mondale began the day with Morning votes just after polls closed at 8 p.m. EDT. They showed:

Mondale 5, 34 percent

The District of Columbia reported

Sizable protest

Mrs. Robert Smith, wife of one of the dining hall managers firearms last November, speaks to senior Kenny Zalud in front of North Dining Hall during lunch yesterday.

By KEITH HARRISON, Jr.
Senior Staff Reporter

Student government has asked all students to sign and return a letter opposing to the use of University al-coho policy and directives by 4 p.m.

today, according to Bryan Dedrick, alcohol concerns commissioner for student government.

"It's important that we get this done quickly," said Dedrick. Student government representatives will take the letters to the Campus Life Council meeting today at 4 p.m. in Flanner Hall's party room.

The letter, written by Dedrick, was distributed to members at last night's Hall President's Meeting.

"We're going to try to get the directives changed, and we need a show of student support," said Dedrick.

The letter states "several obvious revisions must be made concerning the restrictions and limitations of the alcohol policy and directives. These revisions must be adopted to concur with the mutual goal of a realistic and healthy social environment."

The letter concludes "it is important that student input be understood on issues affecting all of our lives."

"This letter is very, very important," said Student Body Vice President Cathy David. David also said the Campus Life Council meeting is open to the entire student body.

Faculty Course Evaluation forms were also discussed at the HPC meeting. "They sound like a great idea to me, but I understand that the student response so far has been weak," said Keenan Vice President Mike Prados.

"If they don't get a certain per-

see HPC, page 3

Redbud campers study art, nature

Co-ordinator of the workshop, Bill Sandusky, was quick to point out that the program is open to everyone. "There are no prerequisites," he stated. "And there is a limit of 10 people to a class so we are able to give a lot of individual attention."

He emphasized that the program is open to every major. "It is surprising how creative some of the non-art majors are," he said.

Redbud will take place from March 21-June 2. Courses offered this summer are drawing and painting, printmaking, pottery and sculpture, and field biology.

Numerous guest lectures and films will accompany the courses.

The total cost, including room, board, and transportation is $444. "I would encourage anyone to take advantage of it," Sandusky said. "It is an unusual opportunity ideally timed at low cost."

Students requested to return letters

Mondale blasts Reagan's lack of respect for law in ND talk

Associated Press

The Rev. Jesse Jackson won the District of Columbia primary yesterday, the first election victory of his Democratic presidential candidacy. Walter Mondale led in Tennessee in his bid to stop Gary Hart's

The Observer/CAM/ Greg Bell

Mondale blasts Reagans lack of respect for law in ND talk

D.C. primary's Jackson's first win

By ANNE GALLAGHER
News Staff

Summer camp isn't just for kids.
A group of approximately 20 people from the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community will spend two weeks discovering art, nature and science at the Redbud summer program, in Buchanan, Mich., early this summer.

For more than ten years, Saint Mary's College Art Department has offered these workshops at the Redbud camp which allows an student opportunity to broaden their understanding of the concept of nature in an area of art or biology. The workshops run seven hours a day, six days a week, and at the completion of the two week period the student will have earned three credit hours.

Mr. Bob Smith, wife of one of the dining hall managers firearms last November, speaks to senior Kenny Zalud in front of North Dining Hall during lunch yesterday.

Redbud campers study art, nature

With 80 national convention delegates combined, marked the end of a three-week campaign tour. They formed the leading edge of a wave of contents to select 71 delegates over the next week and to test Hart's vow of a comeback.

Mondale and Hart effectively

concealed Washington, D.C., and the major of 15 delegates to Jackson, and chose to make Tennessee and its 65 delegates their base ground.

President Reagan was the only candidate on the Republican ballot in both primaries. The District of Columbia reported morning votes just after polls closed at 8 a.m. EDT. They showed:

Jackson, 15,548, 23 percent.

Thus, Mondale led for 11.

After a startling string of victories early in the year, Hart has not won a primary since Connecticut on March 27. Mondale defeated him in Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania in late winter to re-establish himself as the clear front-runner for the nomination.

"This Administration mired in controversy." Mondale said.

He contends that Reagan has not set high standards of behavior for himself or his administrators, citing as examples former Secretary of the Interior James Watt, former EPA Director Ann Gorsuch, and Attorney General nominee Edwin Meese.

Mondale stressed the need for all countries to obey international law. He indicated Reagan's refusal to recognize any decision by the World Court concerning Central America might jeopardize American "moral authority," Mondale said.

By ANNE GALLAGHER
News Staff

Summer camp isn't just for kids.
A group of approximately 20 people from the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community will spend two weeks discovering art, nature and science at the Redbud summer program, in Buchanan, Mich., early this summer.

For more than ten years, Saint Mary's College Art Department has offered these workshops at the Redbud camp which allows an student opportunity to broaden their understanding of the concept of nature in an area of art or biology. The workshops run seven hours a day, six days a week, and at the completion of the two week period the student will have earned three credit hours.

Mr. Bob Smith, wife of one of the dining hall managers firearms last November, speaks to senior Kenny Zalud in front of North Dining Hall during lunch yesterday.

Redbud campers study art, nature

With 80 national convention delegates combined, marked the end of a three-week campaign tour. They formed the leading edge of a wave of contents to select 71 delegates over the next week and to test Hart's vow of a comeback.

Mondale and Hart effectively

concealed Washington, D.C., and the major of 15 delegates to Jackson, and chose to make Tennessee and its 65 delegates their base ground.

President Reagan was the only candidate on the Republican ballot in both primaries. The District of Columbia reported morning votes just after polls closed at 8 a.m. EDT. They showed:

Jackson, 15,548, 23 percent.

Thus, Mondale led for 11.

After a startling string of victories early in the year, Hart has not won a primary since Connecticut on March 27. Mondale defeated him in Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania in late winter to re-establish himself as the clear front-runner for the nomination.

"This Administration mired in controversy." Mondale said.

He contends that Reagan has not set high standards of behavior for himself or his administrators, citing as examples former Secretary of the Interior James Watt, former EPA Director Ann Gorsuch, and Attorney General nominee Edwin Meese.

National media could tarnish Dome if it reveals skeletons

Mike Sullivan
Sports Editor

There is no better view of the University of Notre Dame than the one afforded Mary. Our Mother Perched atop one of the seven wonders of the college world. Mary must be starting to feel uncomfortable about what is happening to her school's reputation. Down below her, Notre Dame students are rushing into the Administration Building, holding up bottles of beer, chanting anti-administration and beer slogans, hanging banners around campus, and participating in huge protests rallies that decry the university's unfairness and backward policies.

Student protests and rallies are not part of the Notre Dame that is known around the country. After all, isn't Father Hesburgh's Notre Dame a model for all other universities to imitate? Notre Dame, people are told, is different. It brings in quality students, educates them, and after four years, releases them into the world to lend a strong, moral character to society.

It seems the ideal education. But then, why are the students acting like people crying for their beer? One might expect that from students of some state school, not the model private university. Could it be that Notre Dame isn't all it's cracked up to be?

Granted that it was the students, not the administration, who looked bad in most of the press coverage, but the Tuchables are expected to appear last Friday's protest. "We, the students, are Notre Dame. What we do is Notre Dame." What the students look bad, so does the University.

Although protests of an alcoholfree policy will not erase completely the "Notre Dame attitude," the grottoes and the extensive coverage of them is just a sign that the mystique quickly is fasting away.

There have been little hints over the past year that the Golden Dome was beginning to become a little tarnished. The accusations about University investments in South Africa and in companies producing nuclear weapons have been number of suits brought against Notre Dame by fired workers. It is obvious that people are beginning to question exactly how moral Notre Dame really is.

Now many of the students seem to have stopped worrying about their school's reputation. Inviting the national media to write unflattering things about their school and future alma mater is another sign that the University's口径 and purpose is being questioned. In fact, it is the strongest sign yet.

Fortunately for the Notre Dame leaders, the questions with solid evidence that Notre Dame has some skeletons in its closet. It might not be long before these enemies find their person. There have been more and more rumblings coming from the University students. There are rumors that workers and a Radiation Lab employee have already come forth with their factory, but their accusations have not been especially newsworthy, at least to the national media.

However, the rumblings that are starting to get louder than the rest are coming from the athletic department — that part of the University that was prouder than in Sports Illustrated. There have been hints inside the department that somebody is beginning to feel an urge to "sell all." If a person does come forth with a reliable evidence of wrongdoing, Notre Dame could find itself facing an attack far worse than any it has faced to date.

Whether or not that person or persons comes forth with this story, the University's administration should be well-advised to make sure that it has nothing to hide. It has been able to weather the small attacks of its students and a few of its employees, but if the media gets some solid evidence of wrongdoing, Mary's Dome might not be so golden anymore.

The views expressed in the Inside column are the views of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of the editorial board or staff.

The Observer

Wednesday, April 2, 1984 — page 2

Tired of horsing around every night?

The Observer

Production Department is rounding up the best possible workers for our layout staff next semester.

No experience is necessary, but a sense of humor will take you far. Learn valuable layout skills and have fun too. Hard to believe?

Stop by the LaFortune office this week for an application and more info.

Mike Sullivan
Sports Editor

The 1984 Dome is Here!!!

Undergraduates can pick up their book on the Stepan Courts Mon. April 30 - Thurs. May 3, from 12:00-5:00 p.m. Must present ID to get your yearbook!!!

Attention All Those Interested in CAMPUS-WIDE FREESHOM FRESHMAN ORIENTATION

Mandatory Meeting
Wednesday, May 2 at 7:00pm
In LaFortune Little Theatre
Questions? Joanna Madsen 7978
Two ND students win scholarships

By JOHN GORLA
Staff Reporter

Two Notre Dame students recently have received prestigious scholarships in the fields of public service and law.

Thomas McCaffrey, a sophomore from Modesto, Calif., is the recipient of the Harry S. Truman Memorial Scholarship. Mark Ruehlmann, a senior from Cincinnati, Ohio, was awarded the Patrick Wilson Memorial Scholarship, by Vanderbilt Law School in Nashville, Tenn.

McCaffrey was pleasantly surprised when notified of his award. He said, "I thought that I just did all right."

The Truman scholarship, established by an act of Congress in 1976 to honor our 35th President, is regarded by educators to be one of the highest awards that a college student can receive. Father Robert Anzinger, Assistant Dean in the College of Arts and Letters, said the scholarship "is a continuing educational scholarship program designed to provide opportunities for outstanding students to prepare for careers in public service."

Ruehlmann attributes his success to his involvement in high school and college activities and a strong emphasis on academics. Ruehlmann noted, however, "I thought that I only had a recent chance to make it to the finals because the other students in my class were very strong."

Currently a Government and ALFA major, McCaffrey was active in President Reagan's California campaign in the 1980 election. He also took part in the White House's Spring Last minute and has had positions in student government and the Freshman and Sophomore Advisory Councils.

McCaffrey plans to use his scholarship to attend policy school graduate school where he hopes to study tax policy and to do intern work for the government.

As general manager of the Senior Bar and former Senior class President, Ruehlmann has gained the experience needed to succeed in the business world. Ruehlmann plans to study at Vanderbilt Law School after receiving his B.A. in accounting at this year's graduation ceremony. Upon graduating from Vanderbilt, Ruehlmann plans to become a business lawyer.

Vanderbilt Law School is widely recognized as one of the top law schools in the nation. The scholarship is awarded on a merit basis. Applicants must be accepted as students in the Vanderbilt Law School. The scholars so selected must be in all respects, superior students, and show outstanding leadership potential.

Applications for the Truman scholarship must also show outstanding potential for leadership in the area of public service. Candidates for this scholarship make their initial applications to the institution in question they presently attend and are selected by the institution to represent their school before the final review board.

McCaffrey advised those who seek scholarships in public service related fields to "get some positive experience in government and demonstrate strong leadership potential."

Copyright © 2023, The Observer
ND ROTC protects the weak and unarmad

The following is the second part of a two-parag.raph question on the role of the Rotc Officer Training Corps program at Notre Dame.

This task involves analyzing the role of Notre Dame's ROTC program and its impact on the weak and unarmad.

Michael Baxter

Guest column

complicated task. I have suggested that in the future the question take up as their special care and concern the defense of the innocent.

In this same spirit, Gen. Douglas MacArthur once wrote that "the soldier, be he friend or foe, cannot be educated with his sword in his hand and a heart unbroken. It is very essential in his being.

Similarly, the American Catholic bishops urge military personnel to examine policies and procedures in the light of the principle of non-combatant immunity. A violation of this immunity is considered to be a breach of the responsibility of any officer, but it is essentially a special obligation to Catholic officers, since they are members of the body of Christ and between the Lord and a believer.

There is a crucial difference between a code of ethics and a system of laws by which the military is governed and a code of ethics that is passed on to military personnel to guide them in their conduct.

The Catholic soldier’s moral duty to defend the innocent can never be checked by his obligations to the state, but it is taken as a given that Catholic officers will be sympathetic to the innocent.

Jagerstatter was a Catholic Austrian peasant who was executed in 1943 for refusing to serve in the Nazi army.

This makes his case a special one. It is the responsibility of the Catholic Church to consider what would be the best course of action in such a situation.

This task would involve having to sacrifice some of the principles on which the Church is built.

The new policy is so discouraging to me that I cannot see how it can help the students of Notre Dame.

The Observer

P.O. Box Q, Notre Dame, IN 46556

(219) 239-5303

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary’s College. It does not necessarily reflect the opinions of the administration of any institution.

The viewpoint expressed in the views of its authors. Column space is available to all members of the community and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is encouraged.

Editorial Board

Editor-in-Chief - Bob Vonderheide
Managing Editor - Mark Worschel
Executive Editor - Margaret Foose
News Editor - Sarah Hamilton
Features Editor - Dan Napolitano
Saint Mary’s Editor - Anne Maniscalco
Sports Editor - Marit Sullivan
Viewpoint Editor - Dave Grofe
Photo Editor - Pete Laches

Department Managers

Business Manager - Dave Taiteil
Controller - Margarite Hagen
Circulation Manager - Jeff O’Neill
Systems Manager - Kevin Williams

Founded November 3, 1966

Teaching about Catholicism or teaching about God

The Notre Dame Theology Department has recently changed its University requirements for graduation, and I feel this reflects an unfortunate change in philosophy.

The new guidelines require each student to take a full year of an introduction to Catholicism, this replaces the old policy of one semester in an introductory course in Catholic teaching and one in a class of the student’s choice.

The new policy is so discouraging to me because, inherent in it is the belief that Catholicism is somewhat better than other religions and, therefore, Catholic doctrine should be taught as an exclusive subject.

I understand that this is a Catholic institution and therefore, can accept the single approach of Catholic introduction required, but this new policy will discourage students from learning about other religious ideas.

Most students have only the time or desire to take the two-semester theology requirement. These requirements should be revised to allow students to study as great an understanding of God as possible, it should not be used to promote as great an understanding of Catholicism as possible. Catholicism and all other religions are made to help lead the individual to God, and His Kingdom are greater and wider than the Roman Catholic Church.

Therefore, it is myopic to denigrate other religions simply because their tenets conflict with Catholic views.

It is both irrational and egotistical to believe that the Catholic religion is adequate to explain God. How can any finite human viewpoint explain the infinite? It cannot. Only by studying and understanding all religions can systems of more complete vision of God be attained. We all need help from each other in understanding everything in this world, religion is no different. Why can’t everyone — Catholics, Jews and Buddhists — work together to help each other understand the one God? No religion is better than any other, none can give a complete vision of God — only a synthesis of the truth in each can result in the best human understanding of God.

Because of this, Notre Dame’s Theology Department is doing its students no favor. If students are to be educated, they must be exposed to a wider range of religious views.

My faith in minor matters, such as the role and status of Mary, the saints, or the Pope has been transformed, and I think our theology department is doing it for a better help that they have given me in this transformation.

Along with this growth in understanding, has come a new faith in non-Catholic teachings and a wider perspective on the Catholic doctrine. This does not necessarily precludes an openness to God’s work in non-Catholic religions. Other religions can also give the believer a reasonable, consistent understanding of the Lord. If one finds God in strict Catholicism, that is excellent, but our theology department should not try to force this upon those of us who have tried but cannot be satisfied with it.

The theology department was faced with the problem of teaching about Catholicism about God. Unfortunately, they forgot that Catholicism is only one means of understanding the infinite, and they chose to limit their students’ view of God. Let us hope that they have the wisdom to correct their mistake.

I have a vision that one day people representing all possible religious viewpoints will gather as equals to talk. They will not argue and try to show each other why they are right and others are wrong in ignorance.

Rather, they will look for similarities and a synthesis of the truth from each view. This will lead to the best possible understanding of God. Why can’t it occur at Notre Dame?

James Rickert

Guest column

James Rickert is a senior from Howard Hall and is enrolled in the College of Arts and Let-ers.

Showcase

Movies

Expect only horror from a horror movie

by Paul Cinino

features staff writer

I never used to get to horror movies. And if I did not come for my girlfriend, I would never have known how much fun I was missing. So, when she suggested we see “Friday the 13th: The Final Chapter” I immediately agreed. Now, I have never seen any of the three previous theatrical extravaganzas so I felt this would be the perfect movie for me to both enjoy and critique at the same time. It was absolutely correct.

Everyone loves a good horror movie now and then. And if you go to see just one scary film this year, “Friday the 13th: The Final Chapter” is the movie you should choose. For those of you who are unfamiliar with the “Friday the 13th” series, here is a quick overall synopsis: a possessed and deformed killer named Jason terrorizes children and adults alike at a hideaway named Camp Crystal Lake. Many people attempt, and fail, to kill him. However, at the end of part III, Jason is finally beaten and presumed dead.

Many people attempt, and fail, to kill him. However, at the end of part III, Jason is finally beaten and presumed dead. This would be the perfect movie for any horror lovers or fans of the “Friday the 13th” series, well worth the price of admission. The last 30 minutes in particular contain the most exciting and suspenseful scenes I have seen in a long, long time. You may want to bring a friend or two along (preferably of the opposite gender) because the movie is better enjoyed by groups. Oh, and make sure to get to the late show on a Friday or Saturday night because the film is greatly enhanced by the audience’s reaction.

One final word on “Friday the 13th: The Final Chapter.” As the title suggests, it is the final installment in the story. But don’t see this as a letdown. The ending contains a twist which will undoubtedly leave you asking the famous question: “Is the party really over?”

Letters from an Italian grandmother

by Paul Aiello

features columnist

This past week I received another letter from my Italian grandmother. As always, the top left hand corner of the envelope contained the familiar return address: “Nana, 1711 East 2nd Street, Brooklyn, New York.” While the letter was addressed as such, I personally don’t plan to die in any of the situations portrayed. With both the character and realism and effect, most horror movie-goers will accept the latter. Irony also plays an important part in the film. This movie is a must for any horror lovers or fans of the “Friday the 13th” series, well worth the price of admission. The last 30 minutes in particular contain the most exciting and suspenseful scenes I have seen in a long, long time. You may want to bring a friend or two along (preferably of the opposite gender) because the movie is better enjoyed by groups. Oh, and make sure to get to the late show on a Friday or Saturday night because the film is greatly enhanced by the audience’s reaction.

One final word on “Friday the 13th: The Final Chapter.” As the title suggests, it is the final installment in the story. But don’t see this as a letdown. The ending contains a twist which will undoubtedly leave you asking the famous question: “Is the party really over?”

Debaters becoming champs at getting the point across

by Frank Lipo

features staff writer

THE Notre Dame Speech and Debate Council recently completed its season. Although it isn’t as large as clubs on other campuses that receive much publicity, it provides an excellent forum for interested students. The debate program, under the direction of John Doran, director of public speaking, has coached the speeches and debate council for the past six years. The interest is there if you can tap it up. Usually about 20 students come in with it is certain degree of involvement. He said one main problem right now is that Notre Dame does not have a speech department. Many of the competing schools have their speech classes as training for competition. Some communication and theatre arts majors are still some training problems.

Despite these limitations, said Doran, juniors John Monberg and Paul Konynne had a fine season. They finished fifth in the region in debate. Alan Taggart, also a junior, became the Student Body Notre Dame to participate in the nationals for the first time. They went on to place 15th in the nation.

The council has two branches - debate, and impromptu speaking. The debate branch is a traditional debate team, where participants are organized into ten different sub-teams including prose, poetry, rhetorical analysis, dramatic interpretation and impromptu speaking. The season begins the first week in October and culminates in the nationals in April, in which Notre Dame competes against other schools in the Mid-West.

For a debate team to reach the nationals, it must place fourth or better in their region. To reach the nationals in one of the nine sub-events, a person must either finish in the top three at three different meets throughout the year or be one of the top three in the region. Notre Dame was in a region containing schools from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan. This year’s national champions, Bradley University, did well in the region.

Taggart placed second in the region, he traveled to Kansas State University April 15-16, with the intent of helping our school. There were 93 other students in the impromptu speaking category, providing a high level of competition. Taggart said, “For me, there is no better feeling in the world. Many are on speech scholarships. Some schools take speech as serious as their sports. This is their only chance for national prestige.”

Taggart was selected on their response to a series of topics. Each debate team in the competition was given a topic card with a quote on it. They had seven minutes to prepare and give a speech. Taggart responded to such topics as “Great men are not isolated from the problems; they are merely the summits of range” and “If we are to love our country, our country must be loved.” He was edged out of the final round by one rating point. Taggart said, “I had a really good time. I was worried that I wouldn’t be secondarily competitive because I didn’t have the experience of some of the others, I didn’t practice as much myself, I look forward to doing better next year.”

Doran is leaving Notre Dame at the end of this semester. He is “95 percent certain” the new director of forensics will be Bill Wain, who is now teaching in the London program. Wain was an associate national champion at Dante College while he worked on his doctorate in philosophy. He is another large debate at Toledo University. Doran said Wain is a good debate man who would give support to individual events. He has broad interests in all aspects of collegiate debate. Doran said, “The program will be in good hands.”
The Daily Crossword

ACROSS
1. Peash
2. Cabbage
dish
3. Section of the earth
4. Fox or dog
Loop
10. Kind of eight 14. Flying pigeon
17. Hawaii
19. Money man
21. Snow Field
22. — and order
23. Listened to
25. This layer of the earth
27. — State
(W. Va.)
30. Tightheads
34. Mornings
35. Spot
37. Sign of pleasure
38. H. H. Murer
40. Rye fungus
41. Golf wish
42. Underworld
43. Abominable
Snowmen
45. Leather jacket
46. False
dog
48. Chimney
49. Las Vegas
employee
51. Creature
53. Strip of wood on a barrel
56. Showdown accumulation
57. Type of bean
59. — out
(made do)

TUESDAY'S SOLUTION

Across
1. Peash
2. Cabbage
dish
3. Section of the earth
4. Fox or dog
Loop
10. Kind of eight
14. Flying pigeon
17. Hawaii
19. Money man
21. Snow Field
22. — and order
23. Listened to
25. This layer of the earth
27. — State
(W. Va.)
30. Tightheads
34. Mornings
35. Spot
37. Sign of pleasure
38. H. H. Murer
40. Rye fungus
41. Golf wish
42. Underworld
43. Abominable
Snowmen
45. Leather jacket
46. False
dog
48. Chimney
49. Las Vegas
employee
51. Creature
53. Strip of wood on a barrel
56. Showdown accumulation
57. Type of bean
59. — out
(made do)

Down
6. Western
7. Battle Grey
8. Fatanka
9. Happening
10. Tiny bit
11. Once more
13. Busy fare
14. Tall
15. Act the usher
16. Comedy
17. Loads
18. Journal
19. Mamma
20. Customs
22. Oooh
24. Magazine
25. Tae, op.
theat.
31. Harem
32. Plants of a region
33. Sp. mister
34. — you kill
35. Sea
36. — and order
37. You nearly
38. Year
39. Harem
41. Most small
42. Release
43. Dispatch
50. Riff
52. Resoee of old movies
53. Baseball team
54. Eyes of Cleopatra
55. 11 use a atletto
56. Sun
57. Loop bed?
58. Portal
59. Magazine
worker
60. License logo of Minn.
61. — about (approxi-ately)
63. Use a etiquette
64. Plants of a region
65. Sea
66. — and order
67. You nearly
68. Year
69. Harem
70. Most small
71. Release
72. Dispatch
73. Harem

©1984 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.
All Rights Reserved 3/2/84

TONIGHT AND TOMORROW NIGHT:

SUMMER OF '42
7:00 9:00 - 4:10:00
ENGINEERING AUDITORIUM  $1.00
Sports

Wednesday, April 2, 1984 — page 8

An 'Items' salute: the first 'Chickies'

Chuck Freeby

Sports Writer

Ireland Items

Hello again, everybody!

After months of waiting and months of column this year, it has all come down to this — the final "Ireland" items of the year (I can already see the wave of apathy ripping across the campus). After seeing hundreds of you sitting in the stands this past month, I can only imagine the excitement throughout the year, it seems a fitting time to pass out some awards. Some of these can be a little controversial, but that's all part of the fun.

1. Allen Pinetti — Everyone in the stadium knows he's going to carry the ball 25 times a game, but he still manages to gain over 1,200 yards an season. His 217 yards rushing on the frozen turf of Beaver Stadium against Penn State was just an incredible display of ability.

2. Tom Shipp — Almost every year at Notre Dame, the Gonzalez prep standout lived up to the records that preceded his arrival at Notre Dame. He averaged nearly 20 points a game, and, more importantly, he was the key player for the young Irish eagars.

While both athletes are worthy of this column's equivalent to an MVP, the nod goes to Slaby based on the fact that he was more crucial to the basketball team than Pinetti was to the football squad.

Best Action Shot of 1983-84:

1. Tim Kempton in "Taking the Charge" — Crown folks, it's realistic! Do you honestly expect me to believe that some lightweight guard driving down the lane can knock this big redhead down? It's like running a Volkswagen into a sequoia.

2. Gerry Farley in "The Eternal Optimist" — No matter how the Irish looked, coach Faust always seemed to say something to the effect of "We're this close to being a good team." Unfortunately, some weeks this "this close" had to include a record that was Chapter National Park.

3. Doug Phillips in "Richard III" — First, I can only state the obvious and say "Good luck on finals, have a great summer, and goodbye again, everybody." The nominees for movie are as follows:

   1. Tim Kempton in "Taking the Charge" — Crown folks, it's realistic! Do you honestly expect me to believe that some lightweight guard driving down the lane can knock this big redhead down? It's like running a Volkswagen into a sequoia.

   2. Gerry Farley in "The Eternal Optimist" — No matter how the Irish looked, coach Faust always seemed to say something to the effect of "We're this close to being a good team." Unfortunately, some weeks this "this close" had to include a record that was Chapter National Park.

   3. Doug Phillips in "Richard III" — First, I can only state the obvious and say "Good luck on finals, have a great summer, and goodbye again, everybody.

The Most Unheralded Freshman Performances of the Year

Sure, everyone heard of Donald Kuyal and Hiuawata Francisco du Pont and others who are more and more getting to be known as Chapter National Park, but everyone missed one of the biggest Irish performances in some time.

1. Joanne Biafore, women's tennis — Another freshman who has handled the pressure of being a number one player.

2. John Biafore, men's tennis — Also a freshman who has handled the pressure of being a number one player.

3. The Irish Hockey Team in "Someone Forgot to Tell Us We Went Cub" — Someone explain to me how a "club" team outruns most varsity sports and kills most varsity opponents. Everybody from the top down seems to think this team is invincible.

4. Digger Phillips in "Richard III" — First, I can only state the obvious and say "Good luck on finals, have a great summer, and goodbye again, everybody."

Sports

In first round

Greg Bell drafted by Buffalo

Associated Press

1. Greg Bell of Notre Dame, a backfield hampered by injuries the last two seasons, the distinction of being the only running back selected in the first round of yesterday's National Football League draft.

As a sophomore Bell averaged 5.6 yards per carry for the Irish, gaining 572 yards on 92 carries, including a 165 in one game against Michigan State. Bell, from Columbus, Ohio, also averaged 26.5 yards per carry on kickoff returns — the best mark by a member of the Irish in 13 years. But, from then on the 6-foot, 210-pound tailback had his playing time limited by injuries.

Bell, Coach Ken Stumphow acknowledged Bell's injury-prone past, but said the Bills had Bell rated as "the top running back" in the draft.

"He's got good size, he's got excellent speed, he has maneuverability, (and) he catches the ball well," said Stephenen, "So he has the potential to be the all-around type back that you look for."

A broken leg limited Bell to only 22 minutes of playing time the past two seasons, giving him career marks of only 701 yards and six touchdowns — hardly the type of figures usually associated with a first round running back.

Stephenson said he thought Bell's fractured leg suffered in 1982 can mended.

"Our doctors felt we could bring him in right after the draft, put him in a cast, and there is a device that will complete the healing process in his bone," said Stephenson. "It's an electronic current-type treatment, and in six-to-seven weeks he should have complete healing of the bone."

Notre Dame coach Gerry Faust was noticeably pleased by Bell's selection so early in the draft.

"I'm really happy because of his (Bell's) frustrating career," Faust said. "It's a real tribute to his athletic ability. He is an excellent athlete; he can run and catch the ball well. It's a shame we didn't get a chance to use him more."

In the sixth round, defensive back Chris Brown of Notre Dame was chosen by Pittsburgh, and teammate defensive back Stacey Torano was chosen by the Los Angeles Raiders.

Net Maiive, a 6-4, 275-pound offensive guard from Notre Dame, was selected by the Dallas Cowboys in the ninth round. Maiive will be playing alongside Dallas lineman Phil Podlaer, another former Irish player.

Portions of this story were written by Phil Wolf, Observer sports writer.

In first round

Greg Bell drafted by Buffalo

"Sassic played well once she got her head screwed on straight," said Petro. "Sometimes when you get mad, you just don't think." "My match was difficult because of the wind," explained Panther. "But Saint Mary's is a rival and it's always nice to beat them." Because last weekend's matches against the University of Ohio and the University of Toledo were canceled because of rain, yesterday's match helped the Irish prepare for National competion, which will begin early next week in Athens, Ohio.

"I won't be excited until we get to the 4th," said Irish head coach Sharon Petro. "This is an early date and we're not sure we'll get to do between now and then."

The wind in yesterday's competition made play more difficult. It helped the Irish improve their concentration, which will mean that the Irish will win the meet at National.

Sassic: Panther at number one singles won an extremely close match in the Irish, 7-6, 6-2 against Debbie Lawrence. A disagreeable rain storm in scoring caused the players to crum to the first point in the garage, intensifying the match.

Notre Dame women's tennis team soundly defeats Saint Mary's, 9-0

By J. URIE SIEGEB

Sports Writer

Not even the high winds could dampen the enthusiasm on the courts. Tennis Center yesterday as the Notre Dame men's tennis team closed out its season with a 9-0 victory over Saint Mary's College.

The Irish will face their 25-3 season record to compete for the national title in the NCAA Division II National Championship. Tournament early next week in Athens, Ohio.

"I don't expect us until we get to the 4th," said Irish head coach Sharon Petro. "This is an early date and we're not sure we'll get to do between now and then."

The wind in yesterday's competition made play more difficult. It helped the Irish improve their concentration, which will mean that the Irish will win the meet at National.

Sassic: Panther at number one singles won an extremely close match in the Irish, 7-6, 6-2 against Debbie Lawrence. A disagreeable rain storm in scoring caused the players to crum to the first point in the garage, intensifying the match.