Classes of 1988 arrive on campuses

ND quality remains high

The bell signaling the end of summer has tolled as 1,790 freshmen arrive at Notre Dame to begin the fall semester.

With the arrival of the freshman class, the University has planned many events. Today freshmen will be welcomed with an introductory ceremony at the Athletic and Convocation Center sporting the ND colors. 5:30 p.m. Tomorrow also at the A.C.C., the class will be welcomed with a Mass at 11:00 a.m.

After a picnic lunch tomorrow afternoon, students will be treated to a performance by the Notre Dame Marching Band and Glee Club beginning at 8:30 a.m. That signals the end of summer has become the official start of the school year at Notre Dame.

While the number of incoming freshmen at Saint Mary's is the same as last year's enrollment of 472, the orientation program has expanded and, like its motto says, is "Taking new directions." According to Director of Admissions, Annette O'Donnell, the Committee on Resolutions and Monographs will be at work.

In addition to a few new orientation events, orientation week activities will be staggered throughout the week. Freshmen began on Monday with an orientation session. While it was designated as the first move-in day, the orientation committee had activities planned for the early arrivals.

During the first day, students arrived at their dorms in the North Quad beginning at 9:00 p.m. The "My guess is there are about 1,200 men and 500 women" in this year's freshman class, said Kevin Rooney, director of admissions. Because there are 9,000 on the campus, this small number is very significant.

While the opinions of the students are known, the opinions of the students who will be affected by the resolution are not. Though it is known that the students will be affected by the resolution, the opinions of the students who will be affected are not known.

"Most students who have confirmed their interests, say "Don't be so hard," assistant director of admissions. "But there is always that small segment that for various reasons just does not." There are many people who do not respond to the question about the alcohol policy. In addition, there are many students who do not respond to the question about their opinions on the alcohol policy.

Each year the University is given enrollment goals and the object is to make maximum use of the residential space on campus. "As it stands right now, we have an extra number of freshmen on campus available for women and men," said SMC, page 5.

Corby Tavern, a popular student bar located at 1026 Corby Ave., has been closed by the Internal Revenue Service for failure to pay nearly $13,000 in taxes. Corby was popularly closed Thursday after a "collection enforcement procedure," according to Deborah Moore, public affairs officer for the I.R.S. in Indianapolis. The owner of the bar, Harold Rowley Jr., was ordered to resign in execution-style bookkeeping. The bar and the rest of Rowley's holdings are being administered by the bar's accountant, according to his father, Harold Rowley Sr., in another unincorporated office. If employment taxes must be paid before the bar can re-open.

When Food Services Director William Hickey, Jr., took over the food service at an institution, much credit goes to Hickey, according to the May 9 issue of Restaurants and Institutions magazine. Now two years after Hickey came to campus, the Ivy Award — considered the most prestigious award in the food service industry — has been awarded to Notre Dame's Food Services. The magazine article details the reasons Notre Dame was chosen as the best food service at an institution. Much credit goes to Hickey, according to the magazine in which he sponsors the Ivy Award. "Hickey's style of speaking reflects his style of working: high energy, non-stop and hard-hitting," the magazine said. "He is a ton of fun, a sea of spaghetti or a mountain of mostaccioli. William J. Hickey, Jr., doesn't care as long as the food quality is tops (and) the presentation is creative." The Food Services most impressive project, according to the magazine, was the catered cocktail reception, a downtown dinner and a brunch, served for 10,000 at the 1984 Junior Parents Weekend.

The HPC presents its peak on the steps of Corby and Tyson said, "Alcohol exceptions." continued/rom page I

All Hall Semi-Formal parties per semester," the document states. Last May, Former Dean of Students James Roemer said that this might be a negotiable point in the future. But Tyson said, "We took this number from the recommendations of the alcohol committee. The issue became not so much what is reliable but what is reasonable." He added he didn't think the number would be changed although there was always the "possibility for exceptions."

The first draft of the alcohol directives also stated, "Liquor will not be allowed anywhere on campus except in licensed bars. Beer and wine only are permitted in the residence halls."

But the new regulations do not ban liquor. Said Goldrick, "Alcohol is alcohol. The distinction has not been made in these regulations."

Tyson explained, "I think it was the previous Student Affairs people who made it beer and wine only. The primary reason for the change in policy is if the University says that consumption in moderation is allowed then we allow the consumption of alcohol. I don't want to have policies that are meaningless, or not enforced."

Bars in student's rooms have become nothing more than a memory for Notre Dame students with the implementation of the new policy. "Any type of drinking games, e.g. 'quarters' or the use of any instrument of alcohol abuse, e.g. 'beer bongs' is a violation of the principle of responsible drinking and is strictly prohibited," the new policy states.

Goldrick assured that Student Affairs bars had no intention of raising dorm rooms at the sound of tinkling quarters, but noted that drinking games "can be very dangerous biologically."

James Roemer tells The Observer that liability is a major concern of the University on campus alcohol. "We are exposing ourselves to certain lawsuits," he asks. "I think the University will eventually decide that we can't do that anymore."

March 8, 1984 — "Assured closest to the alcohol committee tells The Observer enforcement of a 21-year-old drinking age on campus will be the recommendation of the committee's final report. Beauchamp comments, "Unlike the report is done and made public, I don't have anything to say."

April 14, 1984 — The HPC presents O'Meara with a petition which opposes changing the alcohol policy. The petition is signed by 2,500 students. Mike Carlin, HPC Chairman and member of the alcohol committee, says, "We might as well go down kicking."

April 16, 1984 — The committee releases its final report on the responsibility of alcohol. The report recommends the elimination of parties in private dorm rooms and prohibits underage students from attending parties in hall social space. "Student cooperation is key," Beauchamp says. "Otherwise it is very likely that the campus will go dry. Those aren't my words, those are Father Hennessy's." He adds there is, "nobody" to whom students can appeal the policy.

April 17, 1984 — Roemercarlessca draft of the directives to be used to implement the new policy. Measures identical to past party policies whether alcohol is present or not. As with limiting the number of people who can be present in private rooms, hard liquor and bars are also outlawed.

Later that night, more than 1,500 students participate in spontaneous rally protesting the policy. The rally reaches its peak on the steps of Coty Hall. Roemer attempts to address the gathering but is drowned out by the noise and retreats to his office.

April 18, 1984 — Nearly 2,000 student protesters meet in front of the administration building to rally against the new alcohol policy. After listening to speakers such as Student Body President Rob Berntin and HPC Chairman Chris Taubach, the mob storms up the stairs and through the doors of the Administration Building. The students end up in the rotunda, cheering and tossing toilet paper and empty beer cans down from the balconies. Roemer attempts to address the gathering but is drowned out by the noise and retreats to his office.

Nationwide, newspapers and television networks pick up on the protests.

April 27, 1984 — After a week of student protests and disagreements between student government and the administration, another rally is planned. The administration building proves to be a more low-key affair as student leaders were not concerned about social life on campus and the administration violations of students' rights.

May 14, 1984 — Students leave the campus for the summer not knowing what the alcohol regulations will be upon their return in the fall.

a certain number of men," says Rooney. Despite the limited space, the number of incoming freshmen has remained fairly constant over the past few years. "It's almost the same as last year's, which was 1793," stated Rooney. "The last increase is when we increased the number of women," said Bishop. "The growth has been 1650 and when Pasquerilla East and West were built it increased to 1790."

Even though Notre Dame has increased its freshman enrollment, Bishop says the quality of the students continue to improve. "This year was the best applicant pool we ever had," he said. "There were 7,600 applicants to choose from this year, but the noteworthy factor is that the quality of the class is the highest. A more difficult freshman application form is one of the reasons for this. The application has become a more intellectual piece for them to go through," said Bishop. "Some applicants who would have been marginal simply looked at it and decided that this too much."

All SMC freshmen in dorm rooms

By ANNE MONASTYRSKI
Saint Mary's Editor

No freshman at Saint Mary's will have to remember her first college days as ones spent in Holy Cross Hall parlor or the basement of McCandless this year.

All freshmen will have a dorm room and all other students will have recreation areas this semester because 30 more upperclassmen moved off campus than last year, according to Director of Residence Life, Pat Ris­smeyer. Thirty students attended a workshop on how to move off-campus last semester and 25 moved off, said Rissmeyer. No major dorm renovations were made during the summer despite the $1.3 million earmarked to install new showers in Holy Cross and install new elevators in LeMans Hall. The renovations are still planned but Rissmeyer said she was "disappointed" the changes were not begun.

A quad in the basement of Holy Cross was divided into two triples. This year the resident advisors are warning students that all furniture in the dorm rooms must stay in the rooms. Housing contracts always stated that rule, Rissmeyer said, but this year residence life is making "more of an effort to uphold it."

Two new hall directors have joined the staff of residence life: Susan Glore is the new director of LeMans Hall and Nan Loy is director of McCandless Hall. No lofts will be allowed in the dorms as of yet, as a result of recommendations made by an engineer, Rissmeyer said. Rissmeyer began investigating the possibility of building lofts in Regina singles in order to create more space. But the design included resting part of the loft on the window ledge, which, according to the engineer was unsafe. Rissmeyer was "really disappointed" because she had the plans ready to go. "We've (Residence Life) done what we can," and will pursue the issue no more, but she said that Student Government plans to continue exploring other possibilities, and she "won't veto" a feasible alternative. Lofts in other dorms and another plan for lofts in Regina are still possibilities, according to Rissmeyer.

Admissions breaks the age barrier

Not all Notre Dame freshmen are 17-19 years old, coming to college after four years of high school. This year's freshman class includes a 13-year-old from California and a 31-year-old businessman from New York.

Narciso "N.J." Jaramillo of Rialto, California, chose to attend Notre Dame over such schools as Stanford, Cal Tech and Rice because he felt it had a "good environment" when he visited the campus last March. Another factor in his decision was the financial aid the University offered him.

During the summer of 1983, Jaramillo attended a summer program at Arizona State University. On the recommendation of the program's director, he began taking advanced courses so he would be able to attend college after three years of high school.

Jaramillo's counselor at Aquinas High School in San Bernardino, a Notre Dame graduate, encouraged his application to college, telling Don Bishop, a counselor in the Admissions Office, "He is a mature person with a mind that deserves to be in college."

Bishop said Notre Dame "wouldn't always admit someone at his age, even with his academic credentials." Jaramillo was admitted on the basis of three days of interviews last spring, his activities in school, and his application essay, which Bishop termed "one of the best from any applicant."

Bishop added, "He wouldn't have been admitted if we felt he would've had traumatic problems" adjusting to college life.

Father Matthew Miceli, rector of Jaramillo's dormitory, Cavanaugh Hall, said, "I think he'll fit in well. He's very capable and seems very mature for his age. He's certainly not bashful - he's very open and friendly."

Jaramillo himself is resigned to receiving a lot of attention during the first couple of weeks before being "treated as a normal human being." He plans to major in Math or Electrical Engineering.

Christopher Gates operated his family's department store in Corona, California, for 50 years before passing it on to his brother and moving away. His daughter Lasell Jaramillo, 17, is his only child.

Bishop said Notre Dame "wouldn't always admit someone at his age, even with his academic credentials." Jaramillo was admitted on the basis of three days of interviews last spring, his activities in school, and his application essay, which Bishop termed "one of the best from any applicant."

Bishop added, "He wouldn't have been admitted if we felt he would've had traumatic problems" adjusting to college life.

Father Matthew Miceli, rector of Jaramillo's dormitory, Cavanaugh Hall, said, "I think he'll fit in well. He's very capable and seems very mature for his age. He's certainly not bashful - he's very open and friendly."

Jaramillo himself is resigned to receiving a lot of attention during the first couple of weeks before being "treated as a normal human being." He plans to major in Math or Electrical Engineering.

Christopher Gates operated his family's department store in Corona, California, for 50 years before passing it on to his brother and moving away. His daughter Lasell Jaramillo, 17, is his only child.

After four years of high school, this 17-year-old businessman from New York, Narciso "N.J." Jaramillo of Rialto, California, chose to attend Notre Dame over such schools as Stanford, Cal Tech and Rice because he felt it had a "good environment" when he visited the campus last March. Another factor in his decision was the financial aid the University offered him.

During the summer of 1983, Jaramillo attended a summer program at Arizona State University. On the recommendation of the program's director, he began taking advanced courses so he would be able to attend college after three years of high school.

Jaramillo's counselor at Aquinas High School in San Bernardino, a Notre Dame graduate, encouraged his application to college, telling Don Bishop, a counselor in the Admissions Office, "He is a mature person with a mind that deserves to be in college."

Building the future

Welcome to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, where the echoes of severance and the streaks of yesterday are not.

Welcome, indeed, to a place that has changed quite a bit since you checked the "Yes" box on your confirmation form.

The changes may be found in the institutional policy summaries, which have been replaced every summer by the Outlook. As you see the sections of rules, fines and justifications, try to imagine a campus where most of these things were perempted—or at least tolerated. Sound kind of boxy? That was the old Notre Dame.

The new Notre Dame begins today.

As incoming freshmen, your challenge is to play a major role in the shaping of a new collegiate atmosphere, one that is supposed to be less dependent on alcohol and drugs.

Upperclassmen can help. The policies have affected them most. Sure, some returning students have cried about being "snooped on" by campus and others will criticize the rules to try to preserve a lifestyle that has served them well. But many students will be in the same boat as you, undergoing and looking for diversions on the weekend.

If you do make it a goal to enter a place, you'll be in for a disappointment. Alcohol policy, toilet policy, Notre Dame and Saint Mary's are residential campuses, most of all. They are not just dormitories. They are part of the boundaries of the 465-acre load.

The organized Student Activities Board, boosted by the funding increase, is planning to provide a broader selection of events, including more concerts and festivals. A shake-up in the Office of Student Affairs can only be seen as an attempt to move on, something akin to stomaching bad medicine. It's not that easy.

Of Notre Dame will never be the same. Disobedience will no longer recover some of past you, the freshness, the must have established what Notre Dame and Saint Mary's will be like in the future. The creativity is out there, and now is the time to start working. Good luck—and again, welcome.

— The Observer

You are each others' best hope at Notre Dame

Three years ago I underwent the same orientation procedures you are now beginning. I was confident that I was at one of the great universities in the nation, a place where people work together to learn more about the world in which they live.

Notre Dame, I felt, would be a place where I, as a responsible individual, could mature. In short, as a freshman Notre Dame seemed a great university.

As my years at Notre Dame have passed, I guess that to follow a disappointing realization that Notre Dame is a institution with its strengths and weaknesses. The confidence and enthusiasm felt as a Notre Dame freshman have been replaced by a sad sobriety. The Notre Dame mystique is merely a facade which hides academic inadequacies, a stagnant administration and a lack of commitment.

The academic inadequacies are many. Faculty, in some areas, excel. Unfortunately, the quality of the faculty suffers from the lack of commitment to the administration to recruit great teachers.

Further, many faculty members resent the administration's condescending attitude as to how faculty members should allocate their time.

The facilities are inadequate. The engineering and science labs, which as an engineer I know firsthand, are in need of some improvement. The Memorial Library, despite its grand appearance, does not have the proper research resources available.

Most significantly, Notre Dame lacks a social atmosphere. The new alcohol policy is a stunning example of an administration which breaks the existing social structure without offering any alternatives. What students are supposed to do for recreation is anybody's guess.

During the past three years, I have seen a gradual, politicized student administration time the releases of its decisions affecting campus life so as to deny students and faculty members input.

Fortunately, Notre Dame's student body more than balances any of the University's weaknesses. During orientation, speaker after speaker will tell you that you are among the best students in the nation. Believe them. The credentials you bring here rival those of students at America's finest institutions. Notre Dame graduates great people because it begins with great people.

You are each others' best hope for learning and growing. Whether your memories of this place are fond ones will depend on the help you give each other. Expect to be overprotected by an administration which will consistently treat you as children, but always realize the truth about your abilities and intelligence. Expect no new social alternatives from the administration, but seek each other out for friendship. Remember, you are each others' best hope.

Maybe someday Notre Dame will be the great University I dreamed it was as a freshman. Maybe someday I will be as proud of the University as I am of my fellow students. For me, Notre Dame is a promise.

— Dave Grote

Speaking out of turn

Working at the Observer, I have been thinking about the new alcohol policy. I do not think it is a good one. I think that the policy is in conflict with the values of the University, and I think that it is a mistake to allow the policy to be implemented at Notre Dame.

The policy is based on the assumption that alcohol is the cause of all problems on campus. However, I believe that alcohol is not the cause of all problems on campus. I believe that there are other factors that contribute to the problems on campus.

I think that the policy is also unfair to the students who are not drinking alcohol. I believe that the policy is based on the assumption that all students who are drinking alcohol are part of the problem. However, I believe that there are many students who are not drinking alcohol and who are not part of the problem.

I think that the policy is also not effective. I believe that the policy is not going to prevent the problems on campus. I believe that the policy is going to have the opposite effect of what it is intended to have.

I think that the policy is also not fair to the administrators. I believe that the policy is going to put a lot of pressure on the administrators to enforce the policy.

I think that the policy is also not fair to the students who are not drinking alcohol. I believe that the policy is going to put a lot of pressure on the students who are not drinking alcohol.

I believe that the policy is in conflict with the values of the University. I believe that the policy is a mistake to allow the policy to be implemented at Notre Dame.

IS THIS ANY TIME TO THINK ABOUT ARMY ROTC?

It's the perfect time. You're a freshman, right? And you want to make college a real learning experience? Well, ROTC can add a valuable dimension to your college education. A dimension of leadership and management training. And that'll make your degree worth more.

ROTC offers scholarship and financial opportunities, too. Plus, the opportunity to graduate with a commission and begin your future as an officer.

Mike DeCicco — Better known as coach of the highly successful Notre Dame fencing team, DeCicco doubles as academic advisor for all Notre Dame athletes. Responsibility for the University's high graduation rate among its athletes lies mainly with DeCicco, whose task is to advise the more than 500 athletes at Notre Dame. A 1949 graduate of Notre Dame, DeCicco taught for a number of years in the University's mechanical engineering department before giving it up to concentrate full-time on his job as academic advisor. His fencing teams have brought home a number of award-winning publications. Ten have been judged "Best in the Nation" by College Sports Information Directors of America panels, including two of the last three football guides. Previous to coming to Notre Dame, the South Bend native had been an assistant athletic director at Missouri for one year.

Eddie White — A three-year veteran of the Notre Dame sports information department, White serves as assistant director following six years in the sports information office at tiny Wilkes College in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. White's duties at Notre Dame center around the publication of brochures and programs for all sports. He is presently single.

John Heisler — Now in his third year as associate director of sports information at Notre Dame after four years as assistant director, the 29-year-old Heisler has had a major role in the editing of a number of award-winning publications. Ten have been judged "Best in the Nation" by College Sports Information Directors of America, and his sports publications, many honored as the best in the nation.

On Lo-ball, or just like going for an occasional dip in the swimming pool, there is an athletic facility for you. The quads are available in the spring and fall for university tends to use of the lawns), while, during the cold weather months, you can retreat to the double-domed ACC, located east of the Stadium, contains more area than the Houston Astrodome. The South Dome houses the basketball arena used by both men's and women's varsity teams. The North Dome is used for the hockey, tennis, track teams, among others. Within the structure are handball, racquetball, squash, basketball, tennis and volleyball courts that are usually open to the public. The facilities are for most of the courts. The advantage to this structure is the capability of being divided into three sections. For instance, this would allow volleyball, gymnastics, basketball, which can be turned into an ice rink in the winter, are outfitted with lights that allow students to play basketball late into the night. Within Stepans Center are basketball and volleyball courts, open for recreational and league play. Many of the Intramural sports are conducted in this area of the campus. Rollo Nezatorium (under construction) — Construction is well underway on the Olympic-size pool that will be located on the east end of the Athletic and Convocation Center. The pool, when completed, will have the capability of being divided into three sections. For instance, this would allow swimming to an end, recreational swimming in the middle, and water polo in the other end. There will be three one-meter diving boards and two three-meter boards, as well as an observation deck.

Angela Athletic Facility — Located north of the Saint Mary's Library, Angela includes basketball and volleyball courts, as well as some fitness equipment. There are also tennis courts and basketball courts outside the building. Information about use of the AAF can be found by calling 284-5549.

For 17 Notre Dame freshmen, the summer vacation ended more than two weeks ago when they checked into their temporary residence at Flanier Hall. Since then, the freshmen football players have been undergoing the ways of Coach Gerry Faust and his assistants.

The practice fields behind the ACC are now all too familiar to them. From the day of arrival, the freshmen were making many meetings and two-a-day practices to keep the newest members of the Irish football team busy. For the first weeks under the Golden Dome, the learning process for them will occur on the football field, as well as in the classroom.

Faust and the other coaches are pleased with what they see in their fourth consecutive "harvest" of high school football talent for Notre Dame. Although much of the work at first was purely instructional, the Irish mentor noted the progress of the freshmen. "We're trying to wean away any of the freshmen," Faust said. "In fact, some of them have shown that they will be able to contribute in a class well at the program — both on and off the field." One of the freshmen that has made an impact on the team is the freshman on the practice list. Thus far has been Frank Stams, a running back from Coralcay Falls, Ohio. Stams seems quite at home in the fall back position and has been running and playing with the second offensive unit.

Stams was a running back from Coralcay Falls, Ohio. Stams seems quite at home in the fall back position and has been running and playing with the second offensive unit. Faust says Stams is "looking pretty good," which is what many people anticipated after Stams was named to many high school all-star teams. Stams is seen as one of the top 100 incoming freshmen by both The Sporting News and Football News.

Brick, a 6-foot, 215-pound defensive tackle from Bloomington, Indiana, has been contributing to the defensive unit. He too has been seen as one of the up-and-coming freshmen by both The Sporting News and Football News.

The freshmen and the upperclassmen are now coming down to senior Dan Duff, who is coming off academic suspension. Prior to his suspension, he had scored on runbacks of punts or kicks. Stams, at 6-foot, 227 pounds, totaled 1,400 yards rushing and 12 touchdowns with his senior year in high school, in addition to being a standout at the linebacker position.

"They've been two weeks and they're petitsize," says Stams. "We've been doing a lot of blocking, and it's also work when you're out on the field. The upperclassmen have been pretty good to us freshmen. We are doing a lot of learning, but I'm taking it step by step at home." Terry Andrysiak, a 6-1, 175-pound quarterback from Allen Park, Mich., also has been "progressing well," according to Faust, and has seen his progress with many of the medals that were awarded, Notre Dame basketball tournament.

The 1984 season is the second for Stams as one of the top 100 freshmen prospects. Stams is listed in the top 100 freshmen prospects. Stams' film was shown at the national level. In the state of Michigan last year, Stams was named to the prep All-American team.
