Father David Tyson, formerly executive assistant to the president of the University, has been named vice president for student affairs to replace Father John Van Wolferen, who resigned last spring.

Tyson's appointment was approved at the Board of Trustees May 4 meeting. Tyson said he was surprised by the board's decision. However, he added he has been involved in Student Affairs for a long time. In the past Tyson has served as a resident assistant in Palmer Hall and an assistant resident director in Dillon Hall. Presently, he is living in Dillon.

After assuming the vice presidency in early June, Tyson restructured the office. He said he did this by asking himself, "If I can't off the street and there was no structure, what kind of general areas do I see?" He determined there were seven such areas—residential and student services.

With these ideas in mind Tyson created the offices of the associate vice president for residence life and the assistant vice president for student services. In doing so he did away with the position of director of housing and revised the responsibilities of the assistant vice president for student affairs and the Dean of Students.

Tyson offered this explanation for his restructuring, "Nothing is normative, if we see a better way we might change it."

Once Tyson restructured the office he began looking for people to staff it. "I said, do I know any people that given these structures would be able to see Tyson, page 9

Final ND alcohol regulations prohibit student tailgaters

By DAN MCCULLOUGH

Editor's note: Sections of this article run in Saturday's freshmen orientation issue but have been reprinted here to inform the entire campus of the developments on this issue.

The new alcohol policy regulations ban students from organizing pre-game tailgaters. "No student, student organization, or residence hall may organize or sponsor 'tailgaters' on campus or on any adjacent fields or parking lots at any time for the purpose of serving alcoholic beverages," the policy states.

Vice President for Student Affairs Father David Tyson admitted student sentiment would probably be strongly against this new regulation. "That's going to be the big one," he said.

In the final report of the alcohol committee, tailgaters are not banned. "It would be almost impossible to eliminate alcohol at tailgaters on football weekends; therefore, these should be allowed," the report states.

But members of the University's board of Trustees who reviewed the report argued the inconsistency with the essence of the moderate use of alcohol. "This was an area the Board of Trustees was terribly concerned about," said John Goldrick, associate vice-president for residence life. "When they brought this in, it seemed to make a distinction between alcohol abuse and where it was done. And it seemed not to address the final issue of the responsible use of alcohol."

"It became a matter of legal liability as well as educational liability," he said.

Tyson agreed. "That's basically true. The trustees pointed out the inconsistencies within the report. Even students pointed out the inconsistencies of some of the recommendations of the report as compared to others. I could see that it was a blaring inconsistency," he said.

"The acceptance of tailgaters was clearly out of mind of what the committee meant by the spirit of the report," Student Body President Rob Bertiano acknowledged that tailgaters presented a peculiar problem for administrators. "The University is going by Indiana state law and legal liability. The tailgater issue is based solely on 100 percent liability," he said.

Parties are still outlawed in the current new regulations. "No alcohol may be served in private rooms at any social gatherings that for any reason extend beyond the privacy of the room in which they are held," the document states. "Moreover, any gatherings in private rooms, regardless of the presence of alcohol, that are not consistent with the good order of the residence hall are not allowed."

Recriss are being encouraged to use "good common sense and good discretion" in determining whether or not a social gathering is a 'party,'" said Goldrick.

Sister Jean Lentz, assistant vice president for student affairs, defended the type of social gathering that would be allowed as "the type of gathering you could expect to be reasonable in your own home."

She added, "This is really to help protect the rights of the kids."

Goldrick noted that the maintenance of good order will depend on common sense judgment on the part of the participants.

He added that contrary to what the first draft of the alcohol directives said, "No numeric values will be set."

Numeric values have been set on the number of all hall parties that will be allowed per semester. "Each hall may have a maximum of two (2) All Hall Semi-Formal parties per semester," the document states.

Last May, Former Dean of Students James Roemer said this might be one of the executive director's negotiable points. But Tyson said, "We took this number from the recommendations of the alcohol committee. The issue became not so much what is allowable but what is reasonable." He added he didn't see RULES, page 8

No suspect found in Rowley murder

By MARGARET FOSMOE

Nearly four weeks after the execution-style slaying of Corby tavern owner Harold Rowley Jr., the murder remains unsolved, according to Captain Charles Mahalik of the South Bend Police Detective Bureau.

"We are interviewing a lot of people who are, in one way or another, involved in the incident," Mahalik told The Observer.

Meanwhile, the popular student bar, located at 1026 Corby Ave., remains closed. The bar was set on and closed Thursday in a "collection enforcement procedure" by the Internal Revenue Service.

Back employment taxes totalling $12,028.15 are owed by C.T.L., Inc., which owns the bar, and must be paid before Corby's can reopen, said Deborah Moore, public affairs officer for the IRS in Indianapolis. The property seizure was not related to Rowley's death, according to Moore.

Thomas Forsgren, the IRS official who selected the property, would not indicate whether anyone has approached him about paying the taxes. If the taxes are not paid, the property may eventually be sold by the IRS, said Forsgren.

C.T.L. has been administered by Rowley's father, Harold Rowley, Sr., of Palos Heights, Ill., until the estate is settled, according to a spokesman in the office of attorney Henry Hoover. Hoover is an attorney for Rowley, Sr.

The spokesman would not say whether Rowley, Sr. planned to pay the back taxes so that Corby's could reopen. He did say the liabilities of C.T.L. "far exceed the assets."

"The estate could be insolvent and Corby's could be closed for good," the spokesman said. "Each see CORBYS, page 9

Corby's, a popular Five Corner bar, was set on and closed Thursday by the Internal Revenue Service. Nearly $13,000 in back employment taxes must be paid before the bar can reopen. Harold Rowley, Jr., the owner of the tavern, was murdered in an execution-style shooting Aug. 1.

Big Sister is watching you

Bob Vonderheide
Editor-in-Chief

Inside Tuesday

No matter where I go or what I do, I will always be a little brother to my big sister. If I climbed Mount Everest in shorts after swimming the Indian Ocean to get there, my big sister would arrive to warn me against talking with my mouth full when eating with the natives.

There surely is something in the natural order of things that requires the passage of such knowledge from big sister to kid brother. On my first days in high school, my mother did not fear because my big sister was there to help. In the morning, I would check my plain-gray tuxedo with my fashion coordinator (who happened to be in the bedroom next door) to make sure I had not committed some fashion faux pas — such as in stripes shirt with striped pants — that would send the average ninth-grade male home at lunch to change.

Mothers are good at buying your first suit and designing your first tie. They know how to handle your first résumé and how to write your first letter. They are there to help you. They are women, but they do not put on the shrill, nagging voice of your mother. The actress has the right voice and the right delivery. I like the big sister voice. It does not startle me. It is comforting.

It seems if anyone is doing the watching these days, both Big Brother and Big Sister will share the job. My big sister still calls me and asks about the little things in life. But more and more these days I am getting used to the idea that she herself will someday help handle the bigger things in the world.

Canada busy preparing for Pope's visit in September

Associated Press
TORONTO — With trinkets on sale giant crosses erected and shrubbery cleared for tent cities near the Arctic Circle, Canadians from coast to coast and far into the north are prepping for Pope John Paul II's exhuastive tour of this huge country taking him by train to Trois Rivieres and Montreal, both in Quebec province, then backtracking to the eastern tip of North America — where he will bless a fleet of fishing boats in the nearby community of Flaxrock.

The pope continues to Moncton, New Brunswick, and Halifax, Nova Scotia, then on to Toronto, Canada's biggest city, where all 85-foot high crosses erected at a military airport being turned into a site where John Paul can celebrate Mass for more than a million people. After an excursion to Midland, Ontario, to visit the shrine of missionaries killed by Indians, the pope flies to Winnipeg, Edmonton and Van- couver before ending in Ottawa.

From Edmonton, two side trips are planned. One day is set aside for private relaxation nearby in the Canadian Rockies. In addition, the pope will fly to Fort Simpson, an In- dian village in the Northwest Ter- ritories, where he will take part in ceremonies designed to highlight native conceptions of spirituality and will meet with leaders of Canada's major Indian and Eskimo-organizations.

Since many of the pope's stops are within driving distance of major U.S. population centers, many Americans are expected to swell the crowds.

Special to The Observer

When Food Service Director William Hickey, Jr., told dining hall workers in 1982 that "you're here to serve the students as customers," they were at first "bewildered," ac- cording to the May 9 issue of Restaurants and Institutions maga- zine.

Now two years after Hickey came to campus, the Ivy Award — consid- ered the most prestigious award given in the food service industry — is to come to Notre Dame. The magazine article details the reasons Notre Dame was chosen the best food ser- vice as an institution.

Much credit goes to Hickey, ac- cording to the magazine which also sponsors the award. "Hickey's style of speaking reflects his style of work. High-energy, non-stop and hard- hitting," the article said. "It is a ton of toff, a sea of spaghetti or a mountain of monte cristo? William Hickey, Jr., doesn't care as long as the food quality is tops (and the presentation is creative)."

The Ivy Award was presented to Notre Dame in January, but the feature story on ND's Food Services did not appear in the magazine until May.

"I am really proud of it and so is my staff," Hickey said. "The profes- sion has recognized that good things are happening at Notre Dame."

The Food Services' most impres- sive project, according to the maga- zine, was the catered cocktail reception, a sit-down dinner and a brunch, served for 4,000 at the 1984 Junior Parents Weekend. One course featured flaming baked Alaska for dessert.

"When I came here two years ago, the students perception of food ser- vice was absolutely horrendous," the magazine quotes Hickey as saying. "So, first of all, we had to develop credibility with our cus- tomers... Secondly, we had to im- prove the productivity and the pride of the people who worked in good service. And third, we had to build up the quality of food."

Last spring, Hickey suffered a heart attack, and stepped down as director of food service for a few weeks. He lost weight during recuperation and has returned this fall as director.

"I'm an Irish Catholic who was born in Yonkers," Hickey told the magazine. "And my parents talked about Notre Dame when I was a kid. I always wanted to be here. It sounds corny — but it's very true."

Formerly, Hickey was director of food services at both the University of Illinois-Chicago and Princeton University. "We think our institution is just as good as the Ivy League's," Hickey told The Observer last Janu- ary. "We go through a lot of extra effort. That's the difference."

This Thursday for lunch, Notre Dame Food Services is sponsoring "A Taste of Notre Dame," where more than 80 food vendors will dis- play food products on Stepan Center Field. A picnic dinner will be held Friday afternoon on Stepan Center Field.

The Ivy Award is just one of the recognition Hickey has received. Most recently, he was given the Ivy Award for his work in the Food Services. The award recognizes excellence in food service and is awarded annually to the best food service in the country.

Hickey's award is a testament to the hard work and dedication of the Food Services team, and it is a well-deserved recognition for their efforts. The Food Services team is committed to providing the best possible service and ensuring that the students have a great experience.

Canada busy preparing for Pope's visit in September

This week, the world will be watching as Pope John Paul II arrives in Canada for a historic visit. The Canadian government has been working tirelessly to prepare for the pope's visit, and there is a sense of excitement and anticipation throughout the country.

The pope is scheduled to visit Toronto, Montreal, and Ottawa, among other cities, and will meet with Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and other political leaders. The visit is expected to be a major event, with millions of people expected to tune in to watch it on television.

In addition to the religious significance of the visit, there is also a sense of national pride and unity. Canadians from all walks of life have come together to welcome the pope and celebrate this historic event.

The Government of Canada has been working closely with the Vatican to ensure that the visit runs smoothly, and there is a sense of confidence and excitement among the Canadian public.

People are excited to see the pope, and many have been planning special events and activities to mark his visit. The Canadian government has also been working to ensure that the visit is safe and secure, with strict security measures in place.

It is a historic moment for Canada and one that will be remembered for years to come. The visit of Pope John Paul II is a testament to the enduring spirit of the Catholic Church and the values it represents.

As the pope arrives in Canada, the country is united in a sense of excitement and pride. This is a moment that will bring people together, and it is a moment that will be remembered for years to come.

Beer consumption may be linked to pitchers

Associated Press

TORONTO — A drinker consumes more than twice as much beer if it comes in a pitcher than in a glass or bottle, and banning pitchers in bars could make a dent in the drunken driving problem, a researcher said Monday.

E. Scott Geller, a psychology professor at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in Blacksburg, studied drinking in bars last spring.

He said his study also found that on average, bar patrons drank 35 ounces of beer in three bars last spring.

Researchers and advocates have long argued that the practice of serving alcohol in pitchers is linked to drunkenness and drunken driving, but few studies have verified their claims.

Geller's study, published in the journal Alcoholism: Clinical and Experimental Research, is the first large-scale study to measure the effect of pitchers on drinking behavior.

The study involved 1,200 patrons at three bars in Blacksburg over a four-month period.

Geller found that patrons who drank from pitchers consumed an average of 35 ounces of beer, compared to 15 ounces for those who drank from glasses.

He said the difference was significant and could have implications for public health policy.

"The biggest finding is that pitchers lead to a lot more drinking," Geller said.

"It's not just that people drink more, but that they drink faster," he added.

The study also found that the amount of beer consumed was greatest on weekends, when pitchers were more commonly used.

"It's a sign that there's a real role for pitchers in drinking behavior," Geller said.

The study was funded by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, a division of the National Institutes of Health.

"I think this study is going to be a real game-changer," said Dr. James E. Heidt, director of the institute.

Heidt said the findings could lead to changes in laws and regulations regarding the use of pitchers in bars.

Geller said he hopes his study will help spur research into the relationship between pitchers and drinking behavior.

"We don't have a lot of information on this topic," he said.

"But I think this study is going to be a real step forward."

Rules

think the number would be changed although there was always the "possibility for exceptions.

The first draft of the alcohol directives also stated, "Liquor will not be allowed anywhere on campus except in licensed bars, although there was always the number will be changed."

But the new regulations do ban liquor. Said Goldrick, "Alcohol is alcohol is alcohol. The distinction has not been made in these regulations.

Tyson explained, "I think it was the previous Student Affairs people who made it beer and wine only."

The primary reason for the change in policy is if the University says that consumption in moderation is allowed then we allow the consumption of alcohol. I don't want to have policies that are meaningless, or not enforced."

Bertino noted this was an issue that was decided in accordance with the views of the Campus Life Council. "Many of the rules were altered on the CLC gave input. The CLC was very effective in many areas," he said.

But the CLC couldn't save the bars.

"The policy in student's rooms has been eliminated with the implementation of the new policy. "Any structure which has by its appearance the function of serving alcohol is prohibited. Examples of such structures are chairs, stools, or other alcohol-related advertisements. Common sense must prevail in that a bar is readily identifiable in our culture," says the policy.

Goldrick commented, "I trust our hall staff enough to sit down with students and discuss whether a structure is a bar or not." He added, "The decision of the rector will be final in all cases."

Also gone the way of the dino was drinking games. "Any type of drinking games, e.g. 'quarters' or the use of any instrument of alcohol abuse, e.g. 'beer bong' is a violation of the principle of responsible drinking and is strictly prohibited."

Goldrick assured that Student Affairs had no intention of raiding dorm rooms at the sound of tinkling quarters, but noted that drinking games "can be very dangerous biologically."

"Alcohol transported on campus must now be in closed containers and in suitable packaging, e.g. a bag or box," Tyson explained. "The intention of this policy is that it is inappropirate and against the policy to transport open liquor on the campus. But the container it comes in is alright."

The penalty for having a keg of beer in a dorm room has been raised from $100 to $150 by the new policy.

Tyson said this is more to deter keg parties than anything else. "It's the sort of thing that a $10 parking ticket is more of a deterrent than a $5 parking ticket," he elaborated.

"The alcohol policy is a reality in all of our lives. We can fight about it for six months or we can go forward and 'look at ways of socializing without alcohol,'" said Tyson.

He added he sees the Student Affairs office as playing the role of facilitators and encouragers. "I don't want to have policies that are meaningless, or not enforced."

Bertino commented, "I think we would be more or less compromising on both sides — and we both had to bend a lot. Right now we've got to make the best of what we've got."

Teacher to fly space mission
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan announced today he has directed NASA to begin a search for a school teacher to be the first citizen passenger to journey into space aboard the space shuttle.

In a speech prepared for a meeting of teachers and administrators from outstanding secondary schools across the country, Reagan settled a question that has made the rounds among space buffs for years: who will be the first outsider in space?

Shuttle flights presently are restricted to astronauts, mission specialists and payload specialists, all with specific tasks to perform on board the spacecraft.

Ferraro wealth defended in South

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Geraldine Ferraro and her husband may be wealthier than Archie Bunker would have guessed but one Democratic official says that's no cause for comment from Vice President George Bush, who was "born with a silver spoon so far back in his mouth you couldn't get it out with a crowbar."

While Alabama Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley was reaching for new rhetorical heights in introducing the New York congresswoman, Ms. Ferraro received an enthusiastic reception in Alabama, even when she ran right into the dangers of "running mate."

In Montgomery, Ala., Democratic vice presidential nominee Ferraro pressed Walter F. Mondale's case and her own. But amid the glare of the television lights, her note cards were a little hard to read.

"When Fritz and I were moving along and he had chosen me as his mate, some people ... running mate ..."

She stopped as the crowd chuckled.

Then The New York congresswoman picked up where she left off, talking about Democratic chances in the South.

"Some of the so-called experts said, 'will she campaign in the South?' "Well" ..."

Just then came a loud squawk from one of the exotic caged birds in the hotel lobby.

Anderson will endorse Mondale

The Observer/Margaret Fosmoe

WASHINGTON — John B. Anderson, who ran for president as an independent in 1980, has decided to publicly endorse Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale, according to sources.

The sources said negotiations are under way with Anderson, under which a third political party he organized would formally nominate Mondale and provide him with about $7.5 million in public funds.

Anderson attracted more than 7 percent of the vote in the general election four years ago in an independent running against Ronald Reagan and former President Jimmy Carter.

His performance qualified him for public financing of a 1980 race if he met the qualifications for organizing a third political party.

Earlier this year, Anderson announced he would not run again for president this year, but would go ahead with pulling together the National Unity Party, composed largely of supporters from the 1980 race.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said Anderson has been negotiating directly with Mondale on the endorsement.

In addition, they said there have been discussions between Mondale's staff and former Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, who ran as Anderson's vice presidential nominee in 1980.

Lucey was described by sources as a principal figure in the efforts to encourage Anderson to formally endorse Mondale.

Ms. Ferraro quipped: "one of the non-believers."

During the Alabama rally, Ms. Ferraro's congressional district in Queens — which includes the mythical home of Archie and Edith Bunker from the television series "All in the Family" — was mentioned.

Bush, son of a prominent and wealthy Connecticut clan, referred to that series about a working-class family after Ms. Ferraro revealed she and her husband have a net worth of several million dollars.

That was too much for Baxley, who is obviously aiming to succeed George Wallace in colorful rhetoric — not to mention in the Alabama governor's mansion in 1986.

"The nominee of the other party said, 'Well, that shows that they are not really an Edith and Archie household.' " Baxley said in introducing Ms. Ferraro in Montgomery.

See you at Stepan Mall
Welcome to Notre Dame. See the beautiful, distinctive buildings. These are old buildings. They were designed and built by people who didn't have the skills allowed by today's modern technology. See the other, generic buildings. These are new buildings. Aren't they pretty? See the building with the big gold helmet. This is the Dome. You never know what's happening under the Dome, but it is usually very important. Big Bad Rules come out from under the Dome, and sometimes people get fired from their jobs. The Dome is a very scary place.

See the tall building with the picture on the front of it. This is the Memorial Library. Who is in it? Nobody. You are. There are lots and lots of books in this building. If you are smart you will be spending lots and lots of time here in the next few years. Maybe, even if you are not smart you will. South Bend surprises. Are there lots and lots of books here? Many of you will. By the way, you will always remember it. The food service has won awards for its creative ideas. Did you ever taste a creative idea? Many years there has been talk of renovating LaFortune and adding conveniences such as a barber shop, a patio terrace for outdoor dining, and so on in order to make it just as good as other student centers. Once again many of these changes were slated to take place this summer. LaFortune has changed, all right! They had it painted. Now isn't that funny?

See the cute little squirrels playing on the grass. Play, play, play. Aren't they adorable? See them chase each other around the trees. Chase, chase, chase. Don't you just want to pick them up and cuddle them? No, you want to pick them up and strangulate them. Why? Because they get to play on the grass and you don't. You won't put up the grass squirrels will only leave their droppings on it. See the cement sitting in the middle of the parking lot. This is where the Notre Dame football team plays. Famous men like Knute Rockne and George Gipp once played here. See the parking lot, where student tailgaters used to take place once upon a time. But not anymore. This is one of those Big Bad Rules that came out from under the Dome. So only those older and more mature can get tickets, and act like children while students must act all grown up and not drink. Are you confused yet?

See the foreign men out working on the grass. Work, work, work. Aren't they friendly? In the winter they will try to kill you. They will jump into funny trucks with big food trays on the front and toss down the sidewalks without a care in the world. Then it will be okay to walk on the grass because it will be all covered with snow. During the year these men will keep you on your toes by cutting the grass outside your window at eight in the morning. But it is all fun. Remember, they work for the University.

See all the upperclassmen in line in the main hall. They are waiting in line for a very long time. See all the upperclassmen in line at course departments on campus. They will wait here even longer. You will have to do this too next year. You will not enjoy it. Especially when you have been waiting in line for longer than it takes to watch "The A-Team" and just as long as you_red. The doorway the secretary locked the door because it is time for lunch.

See Father Theodore Hesburgh walking around the campus. You don't see Father Hesburgh walking around the campus. Remember, there Father Hesburgh is never here. Father Hesburgh is the president of the University, which means he is a very busy human being. Unlike other human beings, Father Hesburgh does not work at his place of employment. You should count the number of times you see Father Hesburgh in person in the next four years, and compare that to the number of times Father Hesburgh major will be surprised. You see the sun shining over the campus all day long. Shine, shine, shine. Don't become too chummy with Mr. Sun, though, because he is going to go away soon and he will not come back for a long time. Mr. Sun is not stupid. He knows that Father Hesburgh does not work at his place of employment.

Takes blame for violations

Gators’ Pell resigns under pressure

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — The University of Florida accepted the resignation of head football coach Charlie Pell yesterday, ending his 20-year tenure. In the wake of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's investigation into the program's compliance with recruiting and academic rules, Pell agreed to resign.

"The action is in the best interests of the University of Florida, football and the South Florida community," said UF President Don Ceasar. "The university and the football program are facing unprecedented challenges, and it is in the best interests of all parties to focus on these issues."

Pell's resignation comes after the university launched an investigation into the program's practices, which revealed violations related to academic and recruiting standards. Despite Pell's denials and attempts to mitigate the damage, the university's board of trustees voted to support the resignation.

Pell will receive a base salary of $500,000, plus bonuses of $500,000, for the remainder of his contract, and he will pay the university $2 million in severance payments.

Ronald Reagan tackled the religious issue at an extended breakfast on the last day of the convention. He was making partisan hay simply by raising the matter here. And he predictably left it in a muddle. Reagan contrasted America with France, which in 1789 "erected a government that was intended to be purely secular," as if that were some heretical innovation.

It was an innovation, all right, but it was ours. We dail in 1789, when the Constitution was ratified. Many of those who debated the ratification, state by state, objected to the lack of any reference to God in the Declaration of Independence President Reagan referred to. The president offers us the tired examples of things meant to disprove that our early founders wanted to "get rid of religion" (as if that were ever an issue). There were military chaplains, though Madison opposed this, and Washington did not want any appointed at the federal level.

Washington, for that matter, never once used the name of Jesus. The passage about the uses of religious belief that Reagan quotes in the Farewell Address put that belief on a par, for utility, with maintaining the nation's economic credit. Washington actually toned down the reference to religion penned for him on that occasion by Alexander Hamilton. This does not mean that these men were opposed to religion, though that is the way the president interprets the actions of their descendants today. It does mean that early Americans were quite serious about creating a secular state, without being opposed to a religious one.

The so-called conservatives are normally adamanat on separating the "government" from the rest of life, especially business. You would think their minds could stretch this distinction to cover the case supplied by the Constitution. But I guess that is the real explanation of the problem. For most of the people here, religion is something like the flag, to be waved on all occasions, by as many people as possible, as an instrument of intimidation and division ("We were waving the flag when others were burning it").

But those people truly do believe in the separation of state from religion. You find that out the minute the government tries to regulate any business activity. Hands off our religion, their actions say. Their real church is the Market.

A new party sun and moon?

There is one illusion the conventions have dispelled, that the two are Tweedledum and Tweedledee. True, they both employ a dreadful similar rhetoric, that of being a party of the future, not the past, of the people, not the interest groups, of opportunities, and growth, not stagnation and closure.

But behind rhetoric there is a Great Divide between them. As the tumult of the conventions dies and the captains and kings depart the true campaign battle lines emerge.

Some questions are in order. How much of a Great Divide is there in fact, not just among the delegates but the people? What is the true nature of the differences, in the personalities and character of the party leaders, in priorities, symbols, ideas, philosophies, psychologies, theologies, world views?

My own answer is that the Divide is greater than most observers thought a year ago. It has been in the making since 1964 when Barry Goldwater, "extremist" and all, made his clumsy and premature sortie into deep conservative; the year also when Ronald Reagan made "the Speech" which catapulted him into his career as "citizen-politician.

I add a second proposition, that the changes have not necessarily been contained within the two Parties, which have become fractious vessels at best under the impact of the information revolutions. There are far more conservatives and independents among Democrats than San Francisco showed.

Let's call this the "conservative ingredient" of the long-range trend. That was exactly why most of Reagan's carefully planned acceptance speech at Dallas was deliberately low key until the last 15 minutes or so, with all the faithful waiting patiently for their prophet to burst into flame, like the Burning Bush. He did of course finally, to the delight of the responsive delegates.

But while the bulk of his speech was conservative it was aimed at the conservative in the business and interest groups, the business and interest groups, often mixed with moderate and liberal elements, is what has been happening in the last 20 years. Along with technological change it accounts for Richard Nixon's "silent majority," and Jerry Falwell's "ATAL majority," and for the transformation of the Democratic South and Southwest into a functionally voting Republican Sunbelt.

All the Republican factions want to lure the potential non-Republican Reagan supporters into the Party. But they split roughly along two major lines.

One is to "broaden the base" and get the more moderate independents into the Party. Given his anti-abortion and anti-ERA and school prayer stands, these voters are likely to find Reagan too conservative and too much a prisoner of the New Right.

The other strategy is to deepen the conservative image of the Party by giving it a God-fearing, career-country dimension that will attract the voters who regard such symbols, the fundamentalists, the nationalist, those seeking a strong and confident "leaders," those oriented toward business and technology, and especially the young, just out of school, starting their lives, looking for careers in an upward-mobile, expanding, "opportunity economy."

Reagan could of course be spoiled by success, take too high risks of arousing the fears always there just below the surface, fears of war and national oligarchs, the breaking of the wall of separation between church and state. He could lose.

Right now the odds are against his losing. Not because of the polls, which are always volatile, but because of the long and slow erosion of the Leftward toward the Right. In Samuel Lubell's phrase, cropping up again, the voters may be bringing a "new sun and new moon" into inter-party politics.

Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, C.S.C.—1957 Notre Dame graduate, Rev. Joyce was named executive vice president of the University in 1952, three years after his ordination. As chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics, he has always maintained, "First things come first, and the first thing for us academics. I tell every squad of athletes that when the student returns to campus each fall," he told the Notre Dame Review. "We watch as Notre Dame has one of the nation's most successful records in intercollegiate athletics, while at the same time maintaining one of the highest graduation rates among its athletes.

Gene Corrigan—Since succeeding the legendary Pepper Rodgers as athletic director in 1981, Corrigan has made his presence felt, both at Notre Dame and on the national level. In addition to being a member of the Athletic Board of Control, Corrigan has most recently been instrumental in the dealings of the College Football Association (CFA) with both the NCAA and the television networks. Corrigan was a driving force in the organization and planning of Notre Dame's first ever athletic endowment fund, designed to increase opportunities for Notre Dame students at all levels of competition. He is also credited with the introduction of two new varsity sports—lacrosse and women's swimming—in his first full year as athletic director. Before coming to Notre Dame, Corrigan served for nine years as director of athletic programs at the University of Virginia.

Brian Boulac—A former Notre Dame tight end, this 1962 graduate was named assistant athletic director last year following 15 seasons on the Irish football coaching staff. During that time, Boulac was recruited from the University of Pennsylvania as well as an administrative assistant to Dan Devine for two years, in addition to coaching the offensive and defensive lines, receivers and special teams. Currently, Boulac's job is to offer direct assistance to athletic director Gene Corrigan in a wide variety of areas.

Col. John Stephens—This is Jack Stephens' 17th year as director of special projects at Notre Dame. He assumed the role after spending seven years as associate athletic director and another eight as an assistant director. Despite his past success, he has already made an impact, playing a major role in the formation of the Atlantic Coast Conference—a conference in which several women's sports now compete.

Roger Valdiserri—Valdiserri is entering his second year as associate athletic director at Notre Dame. During that time, Boulac was named assistant athletic director in 1983, received his master's degree in physical education from Penn State and his master's and Ph.D. in Educational Administration from Notre Dame. He has previously been NCA's assistant director for 11 years.

Rozier says he will be staying with Maulers

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The agent for Mike Rozier, the Ohio State running back, said Monday that negotiations are still going on with the Houston Oilers of the National Football League despite the running back's statement that he would remain with the United States Football League's Pittsburgh Maulers.

"We have had significant movement from Ladd (Herzeg) and his representative," Art Wilkinson said, referring to the Oilers general manager. "We have moved at a stage where contracts are being made and will be signed; they will turn into a document in a matter of hours. We hope we'll know something tomorrow.

Wilkinson said he hoped to "arrive at a team decision" and management "to keep everyone happy." In an interview published in Saturday's Pittsburgh Press, Rozier said, "I'm not worried about playing for the Oilers. I'm going to be playing for ABC, not in the USFL."

Rozier said he no longer needs ankle surgery, planned for the USFL off season. Herzeg has said he would like to sign Rozier no later than today.

Rozier signed a three-year, $1.2 million contract with the USFL's last winter but had a disappointing rookie season, playing with an injured ankle and an ineffective offensive line.

Wilkinson said last week his client was disappointed with himself and wanted to leave the USFL. The agent indicated he was skeptical about the future of the USFL, beginning with its recent consolidation and the eliminiation of the Miami franchise.

Kosar dominates
Miami shocks top-ranked Auburn

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Bernie Kosar passed for 329 yards and two first-half touchdowns and freshman Greg Cox kicked a pair of field goals, including the game-winning 25-yarder with 6:08 remaining, as defending national champion Miami stunned No. 1-ranked Auburn 20-18 last night in the second annual Kick-Off Classic.

The victory in the first college football game of the season made a winner of Jimmy Johnson in his debut as Miami's head coach and stoked the Hurricanes' winning streak to 12 games, longest in the nation.

Although Miami won the 1983 national championship by edging No. 1-ranked Nebraska 14-3 in the Orange Bowl, the Hurricanes were only No. 10 in the 1984 preseason Associated Press poll and were three-point underdogs against Auburn, which felt it should have won the national crown in 1983 but settled for a third-place finish.

Miami carried out its latest stunner on Kosar's scoring passes of 17 and eight yards to Stanley Shakespeare in the first 20 minutes, fourth-quarter field goals of 45 and 25 yards by Cox and a rebuttal but fierce defense that held Bo Jackson, Auburn's All-American halfback, to 96 yards on 20 carries.

Meanwhile, Miami got 140 yards on 21 rushes from sophomore Alonzo Highsmith and stymied Auburn's last threat in a see-saw fourth quarter when defensive end Julio Cortes recovered a fumbled pitchout by the losers' Bret Pal.

White Sox once again losers, this time to hot K.C. Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Pat Sheridan and Darryl Moodley slugged doubles in a wild seventh inning last night that carried the Kansas City Royals 7-4 over the skidding Chicago White Sox.

The score was tied at 1-1 in the seventh when first baseman Greg Walker bobbled Buddy Balkcum's grounder. Balkcum was walked on Willie Wilson's single, then both scored on Sheridan's double.

Moodley hit an RBI double for a 4-1 Kansas City lead and LaMarr Hoyt, 10-15, was replaced by Dan Spillner after walking Jorge Orta.

spelled Beertlein, was 6-0 of 14 for 42 yards with Troy Wilson picking off one of his passes, and may be hard pressed to keep his backup spot. Besides Byrne, freshman Terry Andruska went three-for-four for 27 yards, but had one toss picked off by walk on Mike Visovatti. Duke St. Pierre and Pat Pesavento each completed his only attempt.

Jackson contributed three receptions for 100 yards, and Chris Smith had 53 yards in four carries. Walk on Bill Young turned in a gutsy performance, carrying the ball on ten occasions.

The kicking game, which was a concern for the Irish after losing two-year placekicker Mike Johnson and four-year punter Blair Keith, pleased Faust, as Carney and Pat Chura each connected on three field goal attempts. There were no punts in this scrimmage, but Mike Viraco, last season's backup, has a firm hold on the starting job because of his consistent performances in full camp.

The coaches still anticipate improvement in all aspects of play, because quality of play began to decrease toward the end of the scrimmage. "I think the kids came out feeling a little sore from scrimmage," defensive coordinator Andy Christoff commented. "At the end of fall camp you get to a point where you get tired of hitting each other and you get excited about hitting somebody else."

We have to be aggressive and dedicate our play towards aggressiveness from here on.

One thing is certain the team Faust saw scrimmage on Saturday will have to improve before it meets the fired-up Boilermakers September 8.

Faust's freshmen progressing well in learning experience

By THERON ROBERTS
Sports Writer

For 17 Notre Dame freshmen, the summer vacation ended more than two weeks ago when they checked into their dorm rooms in the Golden Dome. Since then, the freshmen football players have been learning the ways of Coach Gerry Faust and his assistants.

The practice fields behind the Golden Dome have been awash in activity. The freshmen have been doing their best to impress the coaching staff, who seem quite at home in the fullback throng.

One of the most impressive freshmen on the practice field thus far has been Frank Starns. Starns, a running back from Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, has been playing on the reserve team thus far has been Frank Starns. Starns, a running back from Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, has been playing on the reserve team. He has been doing a lot of hitting, and it's all work where you're out on the field.

The up-and-coming freshmen have been Starns and Tony Hill, who seem to be doing an exceptional job. They are two of the top 100 incoming freshmen by both Football News and The Sporting News.

Starns, at 6-4, 225 pounds, totaled nearly 2,400 yards rushing and scoring 30 touchdowns last season at his junior position in high school, and in addition to his hitting at the line position.

The last two weeks have been busy for the freshmen, who seem to be doing a lot of learning, but I'm keeping an eye on them as a unit.

Terry Andryszak, 6-1, 175-pound quarterback from Allen Park, Mich., also has been "progressing well," according to Faust, and he has been adding a defensive line at the fullback position. Andryszak is one of four freshman quarterbacks on the Irish roster, and he also was named to The Sporting News list of the top 100 high school prospects.

Andryszak completed 95 of 113 passes for 1,859 yards as a senior (an average of just under 20 yards per completion), and had only three interceptions while throwing for 21 touchdowns — all of which was enough for him to be rated the top quarterback in the state of Michigan last year.

Also vying for recognition at quarterback are Tim Brown, a multi-purpose player in high school, playing quarterback, wingback and free safety, in addition to wide receiver.

Brown also may be able to assist the Irish in punt and kickoff returns. Of his 25 career touchdowns, eight of them were scored on runs and six put-kicks.

Reggie Ward may be part of the reason why Faust is saying that this year's squad is the fastest he has had in years. The 5-11, 175-pound receiver boasts times of 4.45 seconds in the 40-yard dash and 9.8 seconds in the 100-yard dash.

Adding Ward's speed to the receiving corps may allow Notre Dame to experiment with deeper patterns than in the past. Ward hails from Long Beach Poly High School, the same school that produced two fine pro receivers — Tony Hill and Gene Washington.

One of the points of emphasis for the 1984 season will be the secondary, and Brandy Wells represents the freshmen class well at that position. Wells was named to the first team on the USA Today prep all-star squad in the defensive backfield, and has been playing on the second team in the free safety position.

Wells, a 6-0, 188-pounder from Montclair, N.J., is also quick. He won the New Jersey state championship in the 100-meter dash and was on the nationally-ranked indoor mile relay team that claimed the blue ribbons at the 1984 Vitalis Olympic Invitational.

Faust is anticipating getting his fourth season underway in a happy with what he has seen so far. "The kids are picking up things pretty nicely and working hard," he said.

The freshmen and the upperclassmen will soon have a chance to show what they have learned in "class" by performing well on the football field.
Two campuses provide many athletic facilities

Whether you enjoy playing football, basketball, tennis, golf or racquetball, or just like going for an occasional dip in the swimming pool, there is an athletic facility for you. The quads are available in the spring and fall for various activities (although the University tends to frown upon too much use of the lawns), while, during the cold weather months, you can retreat indoors. Here is a list of the facilities available to students on both campuses.

Athletic and Convocation Center — The double-domed ACC, located east of the Stadium, contains more area than the Houston Astrodome. The South Dome houses the basketball arena used by both men's and women's varsity teams. The North Dome is used by the hockey, tennis, and track teams among others. Within the structure are handball, racquetball, squash, basketball, tennis and volleyball courts that are usually open to the public. Reservations are required for most of the courts. One may also take advantage of the ice rink, boxing room and running track. For those interested in Notre Dame sports history, many Notre Dame awards are displayed outside the athletic department offices.

Burke Memorial Golf Course — On the west end of campus is the 18-hole, 6,560-yard University golf course. The course is open until late fall and reopens in early spring. Green fees are $2.50 for students, faculty and staff. Alumni can golf for $3. The course is a par 71 and does not require that the golfer have great skill.

Rockne Memorial Building — Located at the west end of the south quad, "The Rock" is the center for the physical education program. The brick structure contains basketball courts, handball racquetball courts, a weight room, a light appuratus room, a swimming pool and the golf pro shop. Use of the Rockne Memorial is free to all students and faculty members upon presentation of a University identification card. Closing time is 11 p.m. daily.

Stepan Center — Stepn Center and its adjoining fields and outdoor basketball courts are located in the northeast corner of the campus. Outside the domed center, one can play basketball, football, soccer, rugby and softball. Basketball courts, which can be transformed into an ice rink in the winter, are outfitted with lights that allow students to play basketball after sundown. Within Stepan Center are basketball and volleyball courts open for recreational and league play. Many intramural sports are conducted in this area of the campus.

Rolfs Natatorium (under construction) — Construction is well underway on the Olympic-size pool that will be located on the east end of the Athletic and Convocation Center. The pool, when completed, will have the capability of being divided into three sections. For instance, this would allow diving at one end, recreational swimming in the middle, and water polo at the other end. There will be three one-meter diving boards and two three-meter boards, as well as an observation deck.

Angela Athletic Facility — Located north of the Saint Mary's library, Angela includes basketball and volleyball courts, as well as some fitness equipment. There are also tennis courts and basketball courts outside the building. Information about use of the AAP can be obtained by calling 284-5549.

Auburn ranked No. 1 in AP preseason poll

By HERSHEY NISSENSON
Associated Press

The Auburn Tigers, who felt they should have won the 1983 national championship but had to settle for third place, have been picked to dethrone the Miami Hurricanes as the kings of college football in 1984.

In the preseason Associated Press poll, Auburn received 30 of 60 first-place votes and 1,057 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters, easily outdistancing runner-up Nebraska.

The Cornhuskers, who also finished second in the final 1983 rankings after dropping a 31-30 thriller to Miami in the Orange Bowl, were followed by Pitt, Clemson, UCLA, Texas, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Alabama and Miami.

Nebraska received five first-place votes and 922 points. Pitt, No. 18 last year, received two first-place ballots and 890 points. Clemson, 11th a year ago, was second to Auburn in first-place votes with 11, but the Tigers' total of 817 points was only good for fourth place.

UCLA, riding the crest of a 45-9 rout of Illinois in the Rose Bowl, is fifth with five first-place ballots and 816 points after finishing 17th last season.

The Hurricanes, who opened the 1984 season last night against Auburn in the second annual Kickoff Classic, are bidding to become the first team to win consecutive national championships. The last was Alabama in 1977-78.

The No. 1 ranking was a bit-sweeter aftermath to the 1983 season for Auburn Coach Pat Dye.

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't feel good because that's where you want to be," Dye said in East Rutherford, N.J., where his team was preparing for the game with Miami. "But why did they pick us No. 1 this year and not last year? We haven't won a game yet. It (No. 1) puts you in a difficult situation against everybody everywhere.

"Miami will be coming in here and we'll be the second straight No. 1 team they'll play (Miami won the 1983 national championship by nipping then-No. 1 Nebraska 3-2 in the Orange Bowl) and then we have to go down and play Texas. Everyone will be licking their chops to get at us," Dye said.

"Being No. 1 doesn't change anything. We'll just try and get ready to play one game at a time. If we're good enough, we'll be there. If we're not, we'll try to work a little harder.

"I'll tell you flat out I'd rather be No. 1 in January than in August without any reservations. But I'd rather be No. 1 now than not be. That's what you work for," Dye said.

Texas, which finished fifth last year, is sixth starting out this time with 734 points. Ohio State, No. 9 in 1983, is seventh with 661 points.

Neither Texas nor Ohio State received a No. 1 vote, but Notre Dame, Alabama and Miami each got one.

Notre Dame, which didn't make the Top Twenty last year, is top with 693 points. Alabama, No. 5 last season, is ninth with 632 points and Miami rounded out the Top Ten with 602 points.

The preseason Second Ten consists of Penn State, Iowa, Arizona State, Michigan, Southern Methodist, Oklahoma, Florida, Washington, Boston College and Florida State, with Arizona State receiving two first-place votes and Iowa and Michigan one each. The final 1983 Second Ten was Clemson, SMU, Air Force, Iowa, Alabama, West Virginia, UCLA, Pitt, Boston College and East Carolina.

The AP poll originated in 1936 but there was no preseason poll until 1950. Only six teams have finished No. 1 after being ranked there in the preseason poll — Tennessee in 1951, Michigan State in 1952, Oklahoma in 1956, 1974 and 1975 and Alabama in 1978 — but one has maintained the No. 1 ranking every week from a preseason through a post-bowl poll.

Petrovic, Buchanan absent from Phelps' 1984-85 squad

By JEFF BLUMB
Assistant Sports Editor

While U.S. athletes may have left the Olympics earlier this month with many of the medals given out, Notre Dame basketball coach Digger Phelps went away from Los Angeles without the one prize he was looking to bring back to South Bend.

Yugoslavian star Drazen Petrovic announced during the Games that he does not plan to honor the letter of intent signed last November to play basketball for the Irish—at least not this year. Instead, the 6-4 Petrovic, who led his Yugoslavian squad to a bronze medal at the Olympics, will suit up for Cibona, division champions in his native land and a team which will be playing in the European club championships from November to April.

In addition, Phelps also discovered over the summer that guard Joe Buchanan would be transferring to another school. The Irish coach, in Los Angeles to do analysis for ABC-TV's coverage of men's basketball, did not have much to say on the Petrovic situation.

"The kid was under a lot of pressure to stay home," commented Phelps. "He may be here next year, but we just don't know."

Petrovic, some Irish basketball fans may recall, committed to Notre Dame last November 16 following his Yugoslavian National team's 75-73 loss at the hands of the Irish in the ACC. In that game, the curly-haired Petrovic led all scorers with 24 points on 10-15 shooting.

Nineteen years old at that time, Petrovic had first caught the eye of Phelps one year earlier when his same Yugoslavian National team visited the ACC and he registered an impressive shooting performance en route to 15 points. Since that game almost two years ago, Phelps had openly coveted the Yugoslavian star.

And in Yugoslavia, that is exactly what Petrovic is—a star. He is presently regarded as one of the best young players in all of Europe. In fact, one European writer even went so far as to describe Petrovic as a better version of former NBA and LSU star Pete Maravich.

"Between now and (the time after the Olympics), hopefully he shows up," said the Irish coach at the time. "His plans now are to be here next year as a freshman. If he comes to the United States to play college basketball he's coming to play at Notre Dame." Since November, Phelps had gone to considerable lengths to ensure the safe arrival of Petrovic here last weekend, including a two-week visit last April to his Petrovic's home in Yugoslavia, all of which may be for naught. Whether he will ever don a Notre Dame basketball uniform is up in the air for now.

What it comes down to is that Petrovic has signed a letter of intent; his father would like him to get the education which Notre Dame could provide; he himself would like to one day play in the NBA, and he has also signed to play for Cibona this year. It's anyone's guest as to where he will be playing next year—at Notre Dame, in Europe, or somewhere else.

One player Phelps won't have on his team either this year or next, though, is the 6-2 Buchanan, who has decided to transfer to another school after two injury-filled seasons under Phelps. In addition, Phelps was excited at the prospect of having his first foreign-born player, yet remained cautious about Petrovic's chances of ever making it to South Bend.

Saturday’s scrimmage uninspired; Beuerlein impresses at quarterback

By THERON ROBERTS
Sports Writer

With two weeks remaining until the season begins, the Notre Dame football team capped a week of twice-a-day practices with an uninspired spring game.

The intense practice schedule left many of the players feeling weary, and a lack of aggressiveness and some misplays was what resulted.

The offense once again was working for a week, going double sessions last week, and after overproducing a 10-minute run ning period. "Their legs are tired, and that's why we're running -- to get them in top shape."

In its last scrimmage in the past, the first unit did not compete against each other, so that the coaches could compare the players in different positions.

The offense opened the scoring from Saturday's scrimmage, which also may have been the reason for some mistakes by inexperienced players. Allen Pinkett, Mark Bavaro, and Todd Potts were among the notables who did not play due to slight injuries. All of them are expected to be practicing this week.

Steve Beuerlein was one of the five individual stars of the scrimmage, completing nine of eleven passes for 218 yards. Beuerlein wasted no time getting started, capping a 25-yard drive with a 21-yard scoring strike to tight end Ricky Gray. Allen Pinkett, Beuerlein's replacement at tailback, contributed runs of 12 and 21 yards on routes to the touchdown. Jefferson provided a good look to the defense, including the day with 14 rushes for 78 yards and caught two passes for 48 yards, but he, to leave it at that, knocked himself out on a block for running back Chris Smith.

Beuerlein also engineered a second drive of 65 yards, leading the pass to Jefferson for a 41-yard gain and topping it off with a nine-yard touchdown pass to Matt Jackson. The mistakes began to mount now as well as the defense, with the offensive unit suffering the wrath of offensive coordinator Andy Petruccio's wisdom which, despite good football actions for procedure penalties and fumbles.

Running back Byron Abraham gained 61 yards on 18 carries, but fumbled the ball twice, and entered some of the troubles ote offense unit. Three experiences, fumbled, were improved upon this week. Saik and Potts were cut by the two-year wide half-scrim arenas. "We're trying to look at what we need to improve," Faust said. "We've got to improve our aggressive defense and cut down on the number of mistakes on offense."

There were some eye-raising statistics, though, as freshmen Tony Rice (four of 53 yards) led for the most receptions with Alvin Miller (four catches for 57 yards). Also, freshman quarterback John McCabe impressed at quarterback.

The stepping stone offense shut down the offensive team three straight times, aided by poor coverage and too much over-confidence by the offense. The second unit was not the only offense unit to be criticized.
