U.S. awaits return of detained sailors

Associated Press

NOME, Alaska - Diplomats and anxious relatives waited on land yester­day while a Coast Guard cutter sailed to the edge of Soviet waters to pick up five American seamen held in Siberia for the past week.

The five were detained when their 120-foot supply ship, the Fridge, apparently lost their way and sailed into Soviet waters near the Diomede islands in the Bering Strait and asked a Soviet naval vessel for directions. They had been held in a hotel at Ustlik in Siberia.

The 376-foot cutter Sherman, based at Alameda, Calif., was diverted from a routine fisheries patrol in the southern Bering Sea to therendezvous area, where the interna­tional date line slices between the Alaska Union and St. Lawrence Island.

The exchange had been set for about noon EDT yesterday, but it was postponed until later in the day, the Coast Guard said. The reason for the delay was unclear.

The weather in the rendezvous area was reported to be fair, with swells running to four feet, the Na­tional Weather Service reported.

The seamen are skipper Todd Thom, 25, engineer Jake Thomas, 41, first mate Mark Hat Intelligent and communications specialist Tony Miller. All live in Homer, Alaska.

Coast Guard spokesman Dan Dewell said from Juneau, that a Coast Guard C-130 carrying about 50 reporters and photographers was en route from Anchorage to Nome, where they would wait for the release.

Dewell said the five sailors and their ship could be taken either to Nome or Gambell on Alaska’s St. Lawrence Island. The C-130 would not land on the island unless there was life-threatening emergency, Dewell said, because of the condi­tion of the runway there.

The Fridge K. disappeared while returning to Nome after taking fuel and water to the Digicon Explorer, a scientific research ship working in the Chukchi Sea, said Assistant Carol, marine supervisor for Digicon Geophysical Corp. of Houston.

The Fridge K is owned by Kemp Palucci Sea Food of Duluth, Minn.

John Hughes, a seaman’s union spokesman, said the Americans apparently lost their way and sailed toward the Soviet ship to ask direct­ions.

College Board announces largest increase in SAT scores since 1963

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Women and future teachers were among the biggest gainers as average scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test rose for their largest rise in two decades last year, the College Board announced yesterday.

Average math SATs were up three points to 471 in 1984, while average scores on the verbal section of the exam rose a more modest one point from the previous year to 420.

The SAT exam is scored on a scale of 200 to 800, with 600 a perfect score. Nearly a million college-bound high school seniors take the SAT each year.

Verbal score averages were up in 32 states, fell in eight and were un­changed from 1982-83 in 10 states. Math scores rose in 37 states, declined in 11 and were unchanged in two, the board reported.

President Reagan hailed the in­crease as a political rally in Water­bury, Conn., but said, “It’s not enough. We’ve got to do better.”

“Significantly, the increase in this year’s math average can be attrib­uted largely to women, whose scores rose four points over 1983, while men's rose by two,” said Col­lege Board president George H. Hanford at a news conference. Women still trailed men, however, with males averaging 495 in math, compared with 449 by women.

Iowa led the nation with average math scores of 570 and verbal scores of 519 - but only 5 percent of that score high school graduates took the SAT exam last year. South Carolina, where 49 percent of high school graduates took the test, scored the lowest average - 419 on the math, and 354 on the verbal.

Particularly encouraging in this year’s results, said Hanford, was that students expressing an interest in majoring in education improved their math performance by two points to 425, and by four points to 368 in the verbal section. Many educators have voiced concern lately over the steady declining caliber of new teachers.

Hanford said the nationwide gains meant that “instruction in the schools has been improving and high school students are giving greater attention to academic study.”

But he added there’s a long way to go before schools made up the losses in test performance over the last 20 years.

The erosion in average SAT scores has been cited as proof that public education has deteriorated. Hanford insisted, however, that SAT scores do not paint a complete picture of the state of American education.

Scores on both math and verbal SATs represent a third of their high school class, but two-thirds of those who go directly to college.

Workshop conducted for food sales workers

Dorm food sales commissioners received instruction in health and safety procedures Tuesday night in a workshop given by Mike McCuslin of the Notre Dame Environmental Health and Safety Department.

Commissioners received and dis­cussed a set of sanitation rules to be observed by all food sales opera­tions. Registered areas included length of storage time for different foods, condition of storage areas and cooking equipment, personal hygiene of food sales workers, and garbage disposal.

McCrossin also said that there will be impromptu inspections throughout the year, probably at least one a semester.

state County Health Depart­ ment officials had asked his depart­ ment to hold the workshop, said McCuslin. The Office of Student Af­ fairs supported the idea, he added, and student senator Dan McMuller “was instrumental” in producing the workshop.

Food sales commissioners had mixed reactions to the workshop.

Campus T-shirt shop opening within a week

By JENNIFER MILLER

New Staff

The new student managed T-shirt shop should be opening in LaFortune Student Center within a week. It will be located at the former location of the campus press in LaFortune.

Student Senator Tom Aboud explained, "the shop will sell more than just silk-screened T-shirts There will be a wide assortment of clothing from retailers such as Jansport as well." Aboud went on to say, "the shop is currently located on the campus, so students will have the opportu­nity to make purchases without having to find transportation to one of the malls. The convience is one of the best things about the shop.

In addition to the convience, Aboud feels that the prices will be "lower than competitive" and hopes that the shop will maintain these kinds of prices in future years.

The shop will be managed by stu­dents as the Irish Gardens is and the students will be folded back into the student activity board.

Salad bars are more than a lot of fancy dressing

Inside Thursday

The salad bar is a very trendy item to include on menus of fast food restaurants these days. Everyone, from Burger King to Wendy's to Ponderosa is jumping on the lettuce and coleslaw bandwagon.
But who do those places think they're fooling? Notre Dame Food Services and SAGA Foodservice have traded salad bars a staple of college culinary pleasure for many years now. In fact, the salad bar could probably be called the most popular item on the menu at almost every school. That is, it is popular with those who have never worked the salad bar at either school. Take it from a veteran salad bar worker: once you've handled, filled, curried and replaced that stuff, you don't want to even look at it during non-working hours.

Nobel winners predict extinction of mankind

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Nineteen Nobel Prize winners and the leaders of about 100 of the country's environmental and arms control organizations joined yesterday in a warning that mankind faces extinction either through a nuclear or an environmental catastrophe "unless humanity changes its ways."

At the start of a five-day conference on "The Fate of the Earth," they made public a policy statement declaring that an exploding population and the nuclear arms race are both threats to the future.

"What nuclear war could do in 50 or 150 minutes an expelling population assaulting the Earth's life support systems could do in 50 to 150 years," says the statement, signed by winners of Nobels in physics, medicine, chemistry and economics and 175 leaders of environmental and peace groups.

Shaped at meetings in Washington, San Francisco and New York and in exchanges through the mails over the last two months, the statement lays out a common course of action to influence national policy.

Stanford University biologist Paul Ehrlich, an expert on population, called the conference "the most important meeting that ever been held on Earth."

The signers report the session would not endorse a candidate in the presidential race but that he personally would back any opponent to Ronald Reagan. He termed Reagan's policies toward the environment and the nuclear arms race are "both threats to the future."

Ehrlich said: "I am a registered Republican but I cannot imagine a Democratic candidate I would not prefer over Ronald Reagan simply because Reagan pushes the wrong way on every issue that I'm interested in and seems to be totally disconnected from what's going on in the world. Ronald Reagan's policies toward the environment could show us down the drain sometime in the next 50 to 150 years."

The administration has responded to such criticism by maintaining that its strengthening of the U.S. military will lessen chances of hostilities, and it has blamed Soviet intransigence for the breakdown of arms control talks. It has defended its environmental record as being as good as that of previous administrations.

"Nuclear scientists have given us reason to rethink all our old thoughts," David Brower, founder of Friends of the Earth and one of the country's best known conservationists, said the news conference.

"Six minutes from now, based on the failure of a Soviet computer, the end of the earth as we know it could be under way. It's a different ballgame and the rules need to be looked at again."

The policy statement, which is expected to be released by the conference, says even a limited nuclear war would result in a fraction of existing atomic weapons "could produce enough smoke and soot to block out nearly all of the Northern Hemisphere's sunlight, plunging the planet for many months into a dark, lethal "nuclear winter" that could end human life.

Correction

Because of an editing error, a story in yesterday's Observer incorrectly stated the probable contents of an upcoming memo from the Student Affairs office.

The memo will reportedly state that when alcohol is served at a hall-sponsored off-campus event, the business or group that operates the facility must sign a release agreeing to serve alcohol only to those over 21.

Also, a statement from PW President Peggy Hess was incorrectly reprinted. Hess said it would be ridiculous to also hold the halls responsible for serving alcohol only to those over 21.

Economy shows signs of speedy slowdown

Associated Press
WASHINGTON - Americans' personal income rose 0.5 percent in August, the smallest gain in three months while new housing construction plunged 12.8 percent, the government said yesterday, as the economy gave further signs of a rapid slowdown.

The new reports sent many economists scurrying to revise their predictions for economic growth for the rest of 1984, but the Reagan administration said it was sticking by earlier forecasts.

The Commerce Department said Americans' personal income rose 0.5 percent in August, the smallest gain since May.

The report showed that Americans were also not as eager to spend their earnings. Personal consumption spending rose by only 0.1 percent, matching the meager increase of July. Early in the year, spending grew as much as 1.8 percent in a single month.

The government said construction of new homes in August plummeted to an annual rate of 1.54 million units, the lowest level since December 1982 when the country was beginning to pull out of the long recession.

The housing decline was led by a precipitous decline in construction starts posted their predicted that other rates including new reports confirmed a marked optimism.

But Allen Sinai, chief economist of Shearson Lehman American Express, said the personal income and spending figures showed a "surprisingly decided slowdown in the growth of the economy."

He predicted third quarter growth at a 3 to 3.5 percent rate.

Other economists predicted the expansion would slip even lower to perhaps 2 percent in the third quarter.

Earlier yesterday, the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta decided to let a 24-hour reprieve it had granted Henry expire at 7 a.m. today, said deputy court clerk Brenda Hauck.

"It means he can be executed lawfully anytime after 7 a.m. and before noon" when the warrant expires, said Assistant Attorney General George Geogheff.

Henry, 34, is under his second death warrant for the March 23, 1974, murder of 81-year-old black civil rights leader Zellie Riley.

Henry, a former prison construction crew foreman, waited yesterday in an isolation cell near the death chamber for word on his appeal.

"He said he's ready to walk away," Bradford said from the state prison. "One way you walk back to death row; the other way you walk to the death chamber."

At a prison news conference Tuesday, Henry said he was innocent in Riley's murder but apologized to the civil rights leader's family.

"Most of all I would like them to know — and this is not an admission of anything, that I'm sorry for their grief — I know that's not a whole lot but it's from my heart."

Civil rights leaders, including the Rev. Jesse Jackson, have urged Gov. Bob Graham to spare Henry. Coretta Scott King, the wife of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., wrote Graham Tuesday that "questions of racial motivation pervade this case."

The governor said he has not changed his mind about Henry's case.

STARKES, Fla. The U.S. Supreme Court yesterday cleared the way for James Henry to die in Florida's electric chair this morning for the slaying of a civil rights leader.

San Diego mayor indicted for conspiracy and perjury
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO - San Diego Mayor Roger Hedgecock was indicted by a county grand jury yesterday on one count of conspiracy and 14 counts of perjury, ending a two-month investigation of Hedgecock's personal and campaign finances.

Also indicted by the grand jury were James Baker, right, and Deputy Chief of Staff Richard Darmon, left, who were scoured yesterday when police received word of a gunman along his motorcade's route. A man was arrested but had nothing but a camera. Story is below.

The grand jury investigation into Hedgecock's finances was suspended until after the June 5 primary, in which the mayor failed to win a majority of the votes cast and was forced into a November runoff against fellow Republican Dick Carlson.

The mayor was considering allegations that the campaign money charged hands illegally through the political consulting firm of Tom Shepard & Associates, which was working to elect Hedgecock.

That transaction was alleged to have occurred prior to Hedgecock's victory in a 1983 special election called to fill the mayor's post after Pete Wilson left to become a U.S. senator.

Hedgecock is a former county supervisor who has never lost an election.

The indictment filed in May by Miller has been put on hold until the state Fair Political Practices Commission decides whether it will file a similar action.

Hedgecock has alleged that Miller's investigation, the report in an effort to damage him politically.

The mayor said in a recent interview that "nothing really criminally wrong has happened. There have been some late filings of forms, matters that were clerical in nature... but that's all that (investigators) are going to find."

WASHINGTON - A Justice Department task force calling family violence the "darkest side of American life," yesterday urged the criminal justice system to "intervene vigorously" to protect its victims.

"Child abuse, spouse abuse, and the abuse of the elderly, incest and child molestation are not matters of personal belief or how to deal with children or keep order in the house," the report said. "They are crimes, they are prohibited."

Attorney General William French Smith, who established the task force, promised to implement the recommendations of the nine-member panel and to coordinate that effort with the Health and Human Services Department.

The task force chairman, Detroit Police Chief William Hart, noted that "a victim of family violence is no less a victim than one set upon by strangers."

"The legal response to family violence must be guided primarily by the nature of the abusive act, not the relationship between victim and abuser," he said in a written statement accompanying the report, written by the panel of law enforcement officials, psychologists and family experts.

Specifically, the report recommended six duties:

- People charged with violent family crimes must be treated just as if there was no relationship between the victim and the alleged attacker.

- When no arrest is warranted, the investigating officer should file a report on an incident.

- Prosecutors cease requiring alleged victims to sign a formal complaint against a close relative to initiate prosecution.

- Victimized children be handled with greater sensitivity by prosecutors and judges.

- The panel proposed widening the testimony of children so that they don't have to confront their alleged attacker in a courtroom.

- Judges rule violent abusers who inflict serious injury.

Camera, not gun, aimed at Reagan

HAMILTON TOWNSHIP, N.J. - Police arrested a man along President Reagan's motorcade route yesterday after they received reports of a gunman on the Atlantic City Expressway but all they found on the man was a camera.

"It was not a gun. The guy had a camera and apparently he has been charged with a local violation," Secret Service spokesman Mike Tarra said.

John Williamson, 28, of Hamilton Township, has been charged with interfering with a governmental function, allowing police, hindering apprehension and possessing an open alcoholic beverage container in a motor vehicle, according to Lt. Frank Lentz.

Lentz said Williamson was standing on the expressway, which is off limits to pedestrians, waiting to photograph Reagan when the motorcade passed. A motorist noticed Williamson and reported to a state trooper that he saw someone walking on the highway and thought he had a gun.

Hamilton police descended on the area and chased Williamson, who fled into a nearby wooded area.

Reagan's motorcade was traveling from Hammonton, where the president addressed a rally, to the Atlantic City Airport.

Help is here for major problems

by Joe Kapitan

I've noticed that many students, not just freshmen, have a hard time deciding what they want to major in. In the interest of helping these students, I compiled a few observations on various areas of study. In this column, I will take a look at some of the liberal arts majors. Freshman engineering dropouts should pay close attention.

Philosophy is a very interesting but very intellectual major. To become a philosophy major, you should like to read a lot and take hallucinogens. There are two reasons for this. First of all, most philosophy texts are based on the work of others. You have to get a knack for writing in a clear and boring language. Second, philosophy majors spend much of their time proving things that are not right. They get a kick out of doing this, but it is very stressful mentally. If you decide they need a break, they simply prove that they are not necessarily right. Philosophy majors are certainly a good excuse for blowing off classes and spending the rest of the day at the dunes.

After philosophy majors have proved their theories, a number of things do not exist, they graduate and enter the real world. Here, they make a career out of denying that certain problems exist. The philosophy majors become politicians.

Politics is another interesting subject. The textbooks are much easier to read than the philosophy texts. In fact, they have lots of nice color pictures and diagrams. Also, psych majors get to participate in experiments. Most of these, of course, have been held in the Radiation Building, are fun. Another benefit of the course is that you get to find out what's wrong with your friends. Philosophy majors can't do this, since they have already proven their friends don't do it. If you become really good at diagnosing other people's illnesses, you can look forward to a career as a professional psychologist and make lots of money in places like California. Of course, there's always the danger that you will find out what's wrong with your own mental health, which leaves you with two options: moving to the West Coast, or going to work for the government.

No one really knows what sociology majors know, what sociology is. This is not their fault. Sociology is based on the assumption that no one understands anyone else. If you can come up with some really bizarre theories, you will go far in sociology. If they are both bizarre and unintelligible, you might get to write a textbook on the subject. People who can't speak English also do well in sociology.

If you are not interested in any of the above subjects, and still want to watch cartoons, the American Studies program is looking for a few good sociology majors. If you would just rather sleep, try the Program of Liberal Liberalism. The word "morning" is not in the PLS vocabulary. Actually, I think that PLS stands for "People Living in the Land of Sleep." I'm not sure, but I think they have the right idea.

I was August like any other at Notre Dame, filled with the heat and the hubbub of the new school year. I had a knack for writing, for surfing with my own mental health, which leaves you with two options: moving to the West Coast, or going to work for the government.

A dormer has tea at the White House

by Barbara Stevens features staff writer

Last Friday, while most Notre Dame students went to classes and ate lunch in the dining hall, Javier Olivas, senior government major, had tea with President Ronald Reagan in the rose garden at the White House.

As part of a week-long celebration of Hispanic Heritage Week, the White House and the National Hispanic Chamber of Commerce recognized, at a national level, Hispanic students who excelled academically. They selected thirty students and six educators to come to Washington to be honored by the President for their achievements and to be designated "phenomena" for other Hispanics. A committee selected students who had shown outstanding achievement in leadership, community service, and academics.

Javier, the single Notre Dame student to receive this honor, hails from San Antonio, Texas, where he attended his freshman year of college at St. Mary's University before transferring to Notre Dame. "I think I was chosen, first of all, because I go to Notre Dame which is known for its competitiveness," said Javier "and second, because of my involvement in politics," Javier gained national attention last summer when he was chosen from 5,000 applicants to serve as one of five assistant chief pages at the Republican National Convention in Dallas, Texas. Cable News Network and several Dallas news stations interviewed Javier focusing more on him than the other pages because Javier was a Hispanic serving in a position usually held by a white male. "We have to show the world that we have a chance," said President Reagan.

President Reagan met with him at the White House. "It was thrilling to walk across the White House lawn," remarked Javier."People stood down on the sidewalk, on the outside of the fence looking in, and I was on the inside - in the place where history and news are made."

The President spent about forty-five minutes with the honorees in the rose garden, recognizing them and presenting them with pins. "I sat five feet away from the President of the United States," said Javier. "We drank White House lemonade and tea together."

Although he's only been in college for two years, Javier plans to graduate this spring, having picked up the remaining credits in summer school. He is currently studying computer science, a major chosen by the President's office. "He made me a better student," Javier says. "I wanted to attend a quality institution with a national reputation and excellence which would better my skills. I also wanted to become politically involved.""I'm proud of Notre Dame," said Javier. "People look at us through different eyes when they find out I go here. First, they're impressed because of Notre Dame's competitiveness. Second, they ask me, 'How's the football team?' "

Javier lives off-campus in his own apartment, which is "not too bad," he quipped. "I like the comaraderie of dorm life," he said, but he prefers living on his own. He does spend a great deal of time in 2-West Keenan. "Those guys are largely responsible for making my transfer here so good." When he revisits Notre Dame as an alum, he won't be able to claim any dorm as his home. "I can't point to a dorm, say I lived there, but I can point to Keenan and say I hung around in that dorm."

Being personally congratulated by the President was a most memorable experience. "It was a great honor and very thrilling to meet the President," said Javier. He paused. "I have a feeling we'll meet again some day."

or passionately denounced by one politician or another. However, one thing stood out as a political theme over the last several weeks. Religious issues have probably assumed greater importance and complexity in this presidential race than in any other campaign years. Reagan and Mondale have exploited religion's emotional impact to promote their political platforms. As an "Ecumenical Prayer Breakfast" several weeks ago, President Reagan remarked that religion and politics are "intol...
The students deserve decent parking spots

Dear Editor:
I am writing this letter to bring your attention to some of the new parking regulations that have been implemented on campus. For years I am seeing off campus students being pushed out of the Declo lot, because our parking is concerned. For the last two years we are being forced to park near the Student Center and the Student Dining Facility. In the prime parking spots were always taken on campus students who have more pressing care. I can appreciate the administration's concern for our health and I am sure Richard Simmons would approve of a new on campus parking spot in the middle of the winter. But now I think things are about to go off course. For this semester, the Lords that be have decided that because of a new building facility (I am not quite sure which), the first four parking lots will be reserved for the faculty. The existing faculty parking lot is right next to this new lot and from what I could see over the years, it was never full. By my estimate’s, it's a 2 minute walk from the old lot to the new building. We may be being too harsh, but I don't think that the extra walk is going to hurt the faculty too much. I do not see the need for a new faculty lot for sure, but I do see the need for some parking spots to increase the size of the faculty - they have just reduced. For the traffic, the regulation committee has failed to appreciate one salient fact, viz., that the Madison parking lot involves students from the Engineering, Arts & Letters, Management, Law and the Physical Sciences schools. If we try to sell parking spaces to students from the engineering school, Arts and Letters, Management and Law schools, we will have some empty spaces from them. Now we are being told that we cannot have half of it because some faculty members are being relocated. This defies all logic. I would appreciate it if you could see some figures from the traffic regulations committee. Specifically, I would like to see the number of faculty members in the Declo building, the number of parking spaces assigned to them by some new regulations, and the number of visitors parking in the student lot.

As an engineering major, I would be immensely interested in seeing some statistical measures of the number of parking spaces assigned to the building of interest, of the faculty as compared to the students; but since nobody has volunteered this information, I am asking for the moon. I do not beguile the fact that the faculty gets free parking and doesn’t pay fines for the first five violations. But I do not see why I have to walk 10 minutes from the parking lot just so that some professor can reach his class in time.

The Democratic Party is the party of hope

Dear Editor,
Chris Julka and Michael Quinlan are two perfect examples of the narrow minded, con­servative attitude that pervades campus. Their self righteous rhetoric should infuriate Catholics and Americans. The understanding of the American political process. America is a two party system whereby the people need to study all the issues and views of both parties and their respective candidates. I am a catholic, but I also am a liberal Democrat because of my religious beliefs. Julka and Quinlan take abor­tions, gun control and support to even demonize what Liberalism stands for. Let us not forget the bishops' statement on capital punishment, which clearly calls for a nuclear freeze. Walter Mondale is a supporter of the nuclear freeze bill. Thus we should simply accept Quinlan’s reasoning of one issue voting, we should be Catholics, really behind Fritz Mondale, for it is Mondale who is the chancellor of the Catholic church on this issue. Abortion is indeed terrible, but likewise the destruction of all God's creation is mutually reprehensible. There are other issues in which Cuomo and the Democratic party expose true Christian beliefs. Programs for the needy, like Food Stamps and aid to families with dependent children, have been slashed substantially un­der Reagan. And which party in 1948, led by the fiery Hubert Humphrey, dedi­cated itself to the pursuit of Civil Rights and an opportunity for all, despite the Democratic Party of course. The Democratic party has consistently supported the Church, and trained those who would have been tomorrow's displaced workers. So while the federal party may be number one on the abortion issue let us also look where the con­servatives fail to promise, our basic ideals as well. We have but two choices, so to make the choice is one issue is wrong. For me the choice is clear in the past and in the future, the Democratic party will continue to be the party of hope, compassion, and true Catholic beliefs.

Evans Farley displays a narrow opinion

Dear Editor,
I do not wish to belabor the point, but I feel that such an opinion is being reflected in the views for he expresses in the letter ed­itor, "the party of hope", in Tuesday’s Observer.

Farley, the specific political issues over which he argues with Michael and Varga interest me very little. Yes, I am one of those apathetic Americans who rarely vote. Like so many people, I feel oppressed by a world of politics which seems far removed from my personal interests. So the budget is not balanced and the Pentagon spends a few hundred dollars on a hammer: as you and Varga have demonstrated, these issues can be twisted to the favor of either party.

What concerns me is your unyielding con­servative outlook and an alliance with the Republi­can party something on a better American is hard for me to understand. We are a nation which prides itself on a freedom of expression and opinion that extends to all members of our society. Does anyone else see this viewpoint as a problem?

And I will drive to Canada in the event of a "nuclear freeze" and stay there, just to get away from gas which I buy. This is a free society, is it not?

How will you define yourself, Phillips?

Dear Editor:
In response to Robert Phillips' statements regarding the meaning of murder, I would like to suggest the following.

Let us imagine, for a moment, the adoption of your scenario, Mr. Phillips. Let us further imagine that you and I went to a party, you personally, to perform the amputations that Phillips suggests. Let us further imagine having done your duty for a time, and upon finding yourself surrounded by a mountain of disembodied arms and disembodied eyes, how will you define yourself?

In that event, I wouldn't call you "innocent."

The A's had tied the game in the bottom of the eighth when Kenko surrended a two-out, two-run single to Carney Lansford.

Pirates 11, Cubs 6

CHICAGO - Tony Perul hit a grand slam home to highlight Pittsburgh's six-run fifth inning, and Johnny Re, knocked in the winning run for the second day in a row as the last-place Pirates routed the Chicago Cubs 11-6 yesterday.

It was the National League East-leading Cub's third loss in a row and second straight to Pittsburgh. The Cubs magic number, however, was reduced to three last night with New York's 3-5 loss to Philadelphia. Chicago leads the division by eight games. Larry McWilliams, 11-10, pitched five innings for the victory, giving up six runs, while Jimmy Wynn pitched the last four innings allowing two hits. Stodd, 10-6, gave up four runs in 1-1 innings of relief to take the loss.

The Pirates scored a run in the first off Chicago starter Rick Sutcliffe. Jason Thompson went 4-for-5 to key the offense against five Mets pitchers. Stone is 34-20-41 against New York this season.

Darwin suffered his loss on 20 decisions.

Red Sox 10, Blue Jays 4

TORONTO - Dwight Evans drove in six runs with two homers and Mike Foster added a three-run shot to power the Boston Red Sox to a 10-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays last night.

In the three-game series, in which the Blue Jays have jumped five games in the American League East-leading Chicago Cubs to three, Chicago lost to Pittsburgh 11-6 yesterday. The Blue Jays scored a run in the first off Chicago starter Rick Sutcliffe. Jason Thompson went 4-for-5 to key the offense against five Mets pitchers. Stone is 34-20-41 against New York this season.

Darwin suffered his loss on 20 decisions.

The Cubs tied the game 3-5 in bottom of the third when Gary Matz led off with a triple and Don Wilson followed with a solo shot. Pittsburgh took the lead again in the fourth, when Jim Morrison doubled and scored on Doug DeCinces' sacrifice fly.

Marvel Wynn opened the top of the fifth with a triple and scored on Lacy, who lofted the score to 5-2. The Cubs took a 6-5 lead with three runs in the bottom of the frame.

Stoebl started the Pirates' big fifth with a walk and a single by Wynn's two-out triple. After lacy doubled and scored on Wynn, Marvell Wynn was intentionally walked, loading the bases, then Peruig hit his grand slam.

Payton to face Harris on Sunday

Payton to face Harris on Sunday

Since retiring at age 29, set the NFL standard of 12,312 career rushing yards in just nine seasons with the Cleveland Browns. Payton, 30, entered the season trailing that mark by 687 yards and Harris, 34, a 12-year veteran, by only 325.

Harris held out for more money while missing all of training camp, subsequently lost his job in Pittsburgh, and ended up in Seattle. Playing sparingly for a passing team, he has churned out 350 yards in two games in a Seahawks uniform.

When the Bears visit Seattle on Sunday, Payton will face Harris for just the third time, this time just 54 yards behind the man he chased in his mind's eye all during the off-season.

All the attention resulting from his success is proving a bit much - even for the always sought-after Payton. His disposition earned him the nickname "Sweetness," but his pursuit of the records, coupled with the Bears' 5-0 start - their best in years - has the media nipping at his heels.

When I'm here (at training camp), I'm secluded from most of the hype. And if I can make it to my car before the reporters get to me, I get home and don't come out," he said.

Payton has churned out 350 yards on the ground in three starts and has caught 11 passes for 54 more yards. He already has taken Brown's top spot in the all-time combined yardage category with 13,556.

Tigers must stay sharp after winning division

Associated Press

DETROIT - Reality set in quickly for the Detroit Tigers after they clinched the American League East title.

The Tigers clubhouse was joyous Tuesday night immediately after relief ace Willie Hernandez had blown a third strike past Milwaukee catcher Jim Sundberg to preserve a 3-0 victory over the Brewers. Corks were popping and champagne was flowing in the rivers.

Over in a corner, however, relief pitcher Doug Bair - one of the few Detroit players with any postseason experience - tried to make some sense of the situation.

"This is the easy part," said Bair, who was with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1982 when they won the National League East and captured the World Series against Milwaukee. "It's a long haul, but this is the easy part."

The point certainly wasn't lost on Manager Sparky Anderson, either. He still has vivid memories of guiding the 1975 Cincinnati Reds to a 99-65 season in the NL, west, only to be upended by the New York Mets three games to two, in the playoffs.

"You've got to win your first three (in the playoffs), so you're going to shoot everything you've got," Anderson said before the division crown was officially settled.

There is no added factor that the Tigers ran away from the rest of the AL east, jumping off to a 35-5 start and never allowing anyone closer than three-and-a-half games.

In the AL west - also known as the AL worst and the Mild West - a four-team battle has been raging for weeks.

"It doesn't matter to me what you did in the regular season," Anderson said. "The playoffs and the World Series are a whole different deal. They don't always determine the best team, either."

Anderson is qualified to say that, since his 1979 Reds also were 102-60 and swept Pittsburgh in the playoffs but lost the World Series to Baltimore in five games.

"Now that the title has been clinched, Anderson will rest his regulars, a few at a time, for one or two days. He has a bench full of prospects, called up early this month, for his use.

But Al Kaline, the Hall of Fame outfielder who played on Detroit's 1968 World Series championship team and on the 1972 AL east winners, must stay sharp and can you do that by playing."

Zoeller forced to withdraw

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. - U.S. Open title contender Tom Zoeller, suffering from severe back spasms, was forced to withdraw from the field yesterday before beginning defense of his title in the Pan-American Las Vegas Invitational Golf Tournament.

The richest event on the PGA tour, offering $1,122,500 in total prizes and $162,000 to the winner, began a five-day, 90-hole run yesterday morning.

Zoeller, who had twisted and contorted by the spasms, underwent medical tests on his back this morning and was listed as being "out for 10 days to 2 weeks." If he is not fatigued early this week, he may not return to the tour as early as next month.

"I feel fine now and I'm sure that I will be ready to go Monday," said Zoeller, who has had back spasms before. "But I'm not going to risk it." Zoeller, who was the U.S. Open runner-up in 1979, has not won a PGA event in three years.

5,17-15,15-4, in their home opener. In the first game, Saint Mary's easily disposed of the Pilots. Freshman setter Anne Williard and sophomore hitter Patty Williams turned in excellent performances.

The second game of the match proved to be very exciting for the large, enthusiastic crowd that turned out at the Angela Athletics Facility. Finding themselves on the losing end of 5-1, 7-2, and 14-9 scores during the game the Belles never lost their composure and held off three Bethel game points before winning, 17-15. Freshman Kara Tekulve and sophomore Ann Brown led the comeback with excellent serving, and senior co-captain Molly Baker contributed solid defense along with some key passes and hits. Assistant Athletic Director Tim Dillon noticed something different about this team. He said that unlike Saint Mary's teams of the past that when losing, prepared themselves for defeat, the 1984 team kept pushing, and as a result, pulled out the victory.

The third game was almost anticlimactic as the Belles posted another victory, sweeping through the contest record at 3-5. Gorabalski was pleased with the win, citing Williams and freshman Mary Carlyle-Selden for their fine play. Although it is a young season, injuries have already kept several players out of action. Not Parkinson's disease

Ali's condition said to be under control

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Former world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali was given rest and medication yesterday after doctors who said he was suffering from "Parkinsonism," or minor symptoms of Parkinson's disease.

Ali, 42, apparently did not have Parkinson's disease, a degenerative brain disease, "per se," and experts believed his condition could be controlled by medicine, one of his doctors, Martin Ecker, said.

"He's not in any danger. It's not a fatal disease," said Ecker, medical director of Ali's boxing management company. "You don't die from what he has and I feel very optimistic that what he has can be controlled by medication."

Ecker, a diagnostic radiologist who was consulting on Ali's case, said doctors at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center were testing drugs on Ali "to see if it helps him and how much it helps him."

Ali, complaining of slowed mo- tion and slurred speech, underwent five days of tests at the hospital this month before leaving Sept. 11 for a trip to Europe. He returned Tuesday for more tests and treatment.

Because his condition apparently was not worsening and he lacked clastic symptoms, doctors ruled out both Parkinson's disease and "the punch-drunk syndrome," caused by repeated blows to the head, Ecker said.

Ali is the only fighter to have won the heavyweight boxing championship three times in a 21-year career from 1960 to his retirement in 1981. His title was stripped away in 1967 when he refused to be drafted into the Army, he won it back from George Foreman and later lost and won it against Leon Spinks.

Ali's speech has been slurred, at times unintelligible, for about two years. "I'm in good shape," he told fans at Kennedy International Air- port on Tuesday night. "I'm a little tired, but I'm in good shape."

An interview in Germany quoted Ali as saying, "I always feel tired but don't feel pain at all ... I don't know exactly what it is."

must be able to play offense to a certain extent.
"Soccer's no longer a game of backs, midfielders and forwards," he says. "You have to be the total soccer player. You can't just be a wingback or sweeper; you have to possess the offensive skills so that you can go in the last third of the field and put the ball in the net."

Fullbacks with good offensive skills are particularly valuable on a team coached by Grace, who believes that all 11 players must apply themselves to defense when the opposition has the ball and to offense when the Irish gain possession.

"It's a bit of a change from the phi-Rich Hunter had," Driano explains.

fairly close is going to play a lot better.
"If I can get the best of each player, get them up for these games, keep the intensity up during practice, eventually the wins will come.
"I want to coax the best out of everybody," Driano continues, "because the potential is there. We have very good players, some of the best-skilled players Notre Dame has ever had, and all it takes is conference that we can do it and a lot of commitment." This weekend, the Irish will be playing two games, including a match at top-ranked Indiana on Sunday, which may be Notre Dame's toughest game of the season.

"We're usually pretty good about going up the field instead of Jetting into the offensive third of the field. I enjoy going up on the attack.

The Saint Mary's volleyball team raised its record to 2-3 with a convincing victory over Grace College last Saturday. "The Bells dominated their fine play on the road by winning in three games: 15-10, 15-10, 15-6." The Belles lost to Aurora College, 15-8, 15-8, Millikin College, 15-8, 15-8, and a tough Elmhurst team (current NCAA Division III champions), 15-8, 15-7. Wins over Northwestern Missouri, 5-15, 15-7, 16-14, and Central State University, 15-12, 15-9, gave the Belles the confidence they needed to head into the season. Second-year coach Brian Giroux felt that the opposing coaches were impressed with the Belles, and also noted that the other teams were glad that they played Saint Mary's this early in the season, rather than having to face them later in the year. On Tuesday night, the Belles defeated visiting Elmhurst College, 15-3, 15-10. Field general Driano directs ND soccer team

It is about an hour before game time and the Notre Dame soccer team huddles quietly in the locker room in preparation for its battle with the Michigan State at Spartan Stadium at Michigan State University. The players are listening intently to the words of the coach of the team, providing the Irish with the usual set of instructions. Sudden grace explains the importance of the game and the need to play up to that point. When Grace finishes his speech, he turns the floor over to the team's captain, Ron Driano. Driano, a senior from Miami, stands up to face his teammates. He is an unassuming speaker, but he knows what the team needs to hear.

"It is very important that they must have confidence in their ability and that they should not succumb to the pressure of the game," Driano said. "It is important to be able to handle one-on-one situations. He says that he feels that his team is ready to take the tempo of the game, so it is important that he play the best defense possible.

"I am very happy playing at the back of the defense, and it is important that I play the best defense possible." Driano explains that every player must have confidence in their ability and that they should not succumb to the pressure of the game. When Driano gives the signal, the Irish take the field. He is the vocal captain on the squad, while forward Rich Hendricken is the silent leader on the front line. "Coach Grace said we were responsible for each other," Driano said. "I think that's pretty true. Rich is kind of silent at times, but I think he's pretty good at it too."
