The new Saint Mary's loft policy gives students two options: a company-built kit, or a blueprint guide for student-built lofts, said Ann McCarthy, chairwoman of the Saint Mary's Loft Committee.

Few college stations broadcast as WVFI-AM still does

The following is the final part of a three-part series on WQXI-AM, the student-run radio station serving Notre Dame and Saint Mary's.

By ELIZABETH CORNWELL
News Staff

While WVFI-AM may broadcast over electrical outlets, this method is anything but current. The Notre Dame student-run radio station differs in a number of ways from many college stations. Few college stations are altering their carrier current operation such as the one at WVFI-AM. And Georgia Tech's WROX, which is still using the system, is considering updating their station, said David Rhode, station manager at WROX. WROX, like Notre Dame's

When college stations receive their FCC licenses, often their audiences expand outside the campus.

Northwestern's WNRU, which has one of the largest number of listeners for a college station, has almost no student listeners, said Mike Nistock, music director at WURU. The station is popular in the nearby Chicago suburbs and in the city itself, he said.

Boston College's WBEC estimates only ten to twenty percent of its listeners are students, said Kevin Connelly, station manager at WBEC. When a station has a change in audience content, it is forced to tailor its programming format to suit the new audience. Yale's WBBC has an extremely varied format, said Andy Brown, station manager at WBUC. Their offerings include gospel singing, new wave music, disco, reggae and blue grass.

The schools which have switched to the FM band have found that costs have increased. Because most stations work with a limited budget, they have had to find new ways to meet the new expenses. Yale's WYBC became one of the country's few college commercial stations, said Brown. Their sales department has accounts with both local and national corporations. They need far fewer commercials than the regular profit-making stations to cover their operating costs because they are not making a profit, he said.

The carrier current status of Notre Dame's WVFI-AM allows the station to operate on a cheaper basis than other college stations because it uses older and less expensive equipment. But because WVFI-AM is only broadcast throughout the dorms, it enables the station to continue concentrating on the student listeners.

It's about time for tax change

Ever since he came to office, President Reagan has been receiving intense pressure from all sides to hurry and do something about the $1.75 billion federal deficit that is threatening to ruin our economy. But in the midst of all the complaining and dire predictions something has come up that is, if anything, even more fundamental and desperately needed than a workable scheme to slash the deficit: the tax reform plan.

For decades, the nation has become increasingly outraged and disillusioned at a tax system that burdens the lower and middle classes while businesses get away with paying pennies on their dollars. Such wealthy giants as General Electric, Boeing, and Dow Chemical have managed to keep in recent years to avoid taxes altogether. Underground dealings allow businesses to escape from billions in taxes, while billions more are spent by companies on expert loophoFinder's to fill out their complex and carefully-engineered tax forms each year. In fact, the innumerable credits, deductions, exclusions and loopholes cost the federal treasury some $27 billion this year alone.

However, if Congress allows this national disgrace to continue, and if such a drastic change will wreak havoc with the tax reform plan. It was published last Wednesday and will be presented to Congress by next year. The plan inarguably represents a greatly simplified, as well as a fairer, system of taxation.

Among the proposed reforms are the following:

- The 16 existing tax brackets would be consolidated into three, with a 15 percent rate for those earning $2,800-$19,300, a 25 percent rate for those earning $19,301-$50,000, and a 35 percent rate for those earning more than $50,000. Those earning less than $2,800 would pay no tax at all.
- Fewer low-income people would be taxed, because the standard deduction would be raised from $1,000 to $2,000 per person.
- The two largest corporate tax breaks - the investment tax credit and the accelerated depreciation schedules from the 1981 tax law, which together save business some $48 billion a year - would be eliminated.
- Fringe benefits from employers, including health insurance premiums, will now be counted as taxable income.
- Interest on mortgage payments will remain deductible, as will medical expenses and casualty losses, if they exceed a certain percentage of the taxpayer's income.
- There will be no more deductions for state and local taxes.
- The corporate tax rate will be lowered to a single rate of 35 percent from the current top rate of 46 percent.
- Taxpayers without investment income would be able to deduct other interest payments only up to a ceiling of $5,000 per family.

As a result of all this, it is estimated that 80 percent of all individual taxpayers will pay the same as or less than they currently pay (average of 8 percent less), while corporations will make up for this revenue loss by corporations already have their lobbyists scrambling around Congress arguing against the reform. They contend, among other things, that it is a tax hike in disguise, that the budget deficit will have to take priority over a major revamping of the tax system, and that such a drastic change would wreak havoc with state and local tax systems.

But none of these arguments is especially convincing. The simple fact is, business will have to pay more tax, and individuals pay less. It's about time.

Reagan picks waste cleanup chief to fill the top position at the EPA

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan yesterday chose Lee M. Thomas, who supervised toxic waste cleanups as a chief deputy to Environmental Protection Agency administrator William D. Ruckelshaus, as the new head of the agency.

Ruckelshaus, meanwhile, said that he reported dismay over Reagan administration environmental policies "didn't have anything to do" with his decision. Thomas, 40, has been serving as assistant administrator of the agency in charge of the "superfund" toxic waste cleanup program. His nomination is subject to Senate confirmation.

Thomas joined the EPA in 1983 after a two-year stint as associate director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. In that job, he managed all disaster relief efforts at FEMA and was chairman of the president's commission on toxic waste problems at Times Beach, Mo.

Since July 1983, Thomas has been serving as assistant administrator for the EPA for solid waste and emergency response programs, which served as acting deputy administrator of EPA for six months in 1983.

Malloy sees nothing morally wrong in heart operations

By JANE BAILEY News Staff

The publicity of the "Baby Fac" baboon's heart implant and now the permanent artificial heart given to William Schroeder have brought forth many questions.

Our Dane Associate Professor Fa­ ther Edward Malloy sees nothing morally wrong with either type of operation under certain circumstances.

`I have no problem with inter­ stitial transplants provided there is a good cause for the operation," said Malloy. Schroeder stressed that animals should not be used by ex­ perimenters.

"But when the choice is between the well-being of a human being and the existence of an animal, most people would agree with me to per­ form the surgery," said Malloy.

The problems with the Baby Fac operation are the poor health of the infant, the use of tech­ niques which were still somewhat experimental and the use of an anti­ rejection drug associated with kidney damage, he said.

The idea of a mechanical heart transplant also poses no ethical problems for Malloy because it is no different than a kidney transplant or a prosthetic limb.

"People see the heart as a symbol. It is not a source of identity; it is a pump, despite all the Valentine's Day cards. People identify the per­ son with the heart instead of with the heart," said Malloy.

While the implanta­tion of a foreign heart anatomy or mechanical organs poses no moral problem in theory, many conflicts arise when the opera­ tion is to be performed. A major drawback is the prohibitive cost.

"As far as I have seen, there is great demand for these procedures the cost will be high," said Malloy. However, he added that the transplants become practical routes to long-term relief, the cost will come down.

Another consideration is that the patient's fully informed consent is necessary. Yet he or she may often be ignorant or unfairly influenced. Malloy also fears that procedures which are still experimental will be performed prematurely.

"There is a strong propensity for doctors to make a name in the medi­ cal field by being the first to use a new technique," said Malloy.

Heart patient's progress 'amazing'

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — William Schroeder's doctor today said the "Baby Fac" baboon's heart is "screaming" and "beating strongly" on its own "like a clock." The baboon was implanted by a team of doctors led by Dr. Robert Jarvik, one of the pioneers in artificial heart surgery.

Doctors said they plan a test today to relieve a breathing tube that had been kept in place to protect the heart from infection.

The heart transplant was performed in May 1982 at a Seattle hospital.

New urban reforms come to China

Associated Press

PEKING - Leader Deng Xiaoping calls it "socialism with Chinese characteristics," but for the world's most populous communist country, it's like another revolution.

"In the past we used to eat from the same iron rice bowl, but that's been smashed and replaced with porcelain," said Peiting factory worker Zhang Yuying, 18, describing how Deng's invocation to work hard and get rich has eclipsed the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung's egalitarianism.

From now on, under reforms adopted Oct. 20 by the Communist Party Central Committee, the nation's 1 million urban businesses will compete in the marketplace even more than in the past five years.

The urban reforms come five years after Deng began dismantling rural communes and permitting farmers to contract their own plots of land to make money, a transformation that has enabled some peasants to acquire cars and telephones.

City dwellers, crammed in tiny apartments and living on fixed wages, watched while millions of peasants built multi-story brick villas thanks to a 130-percent increase in income since 1978.

Deng seeks to raise living standards in a dash toward a modernized, consumer society, streamlining past leftist opposition which may ostracize him and hasten his successors.

Moscow has signaled its disapproval of the departure from Soviet-type central planning. The official Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda contended that China's reforms would undermine Communist ideology and lead to unemployment and inflation as in the capitalist world.

But the 80-year-old Deng is in a hurry to show China can absorb "some capitalism."

That belief got him purged from high office in 1966 and 1976, but he emerged in 1978 as the overall leader of what now is a nation of 1 billion people.

Deng wants to quadruple national output by the end of the century and raise annual per capita income to the equivalent of $800, from $160 last year.

His blueprint is a far cry from Western-style capitalism: the state still runs most major industries and controls the land.

But within this framework, getters from the chicken farmer to the factory manager can prosper.

China has attracted $4 billion in foreign investment, most of it in the past five years. Cheap labor and a potentially vast domestic market lure investors into brav ing a quagmire of legal, financial and bureaucratic hurdles.

"To survive the new competition, we need advanced technology and advanced management," said Zhu Taolin, director of the Peking People's Machinery Plant. Reforms at the factory include a bonus system, floating wages, management's right to hire and fire and a two-year contract for factory boss Zhu instead of a job for life.

A key change is that Chinese businesses will now pay taxes and keep profits to reinvest or use for employees instead of handing over all proceeds to the state.

more to the changing interests of the students and would generate interest in the coffee house, Wurth said.

The idea, conceived by a committee headed by Wurth, was presented to the University Board of Trustees earlier this month. The matter was then given for consideration to Father David Tyson, vice president for student affairs.

Availability of space may be one obstacle in the way of opening the coffee house. The renovation of the LaFortune Student Center is designed to make it a social hub, and a coffee shop in the center might be a good addition, according to Tyson.

The Band Building is also being considered as a possible site.

"The administration is looking into relocating the band, and this will be a determining factor in opening something like a coffee house," said Tyson. "I think there is more space around for this sort of thing than we think. We must make the most of the social space that is now available by using it for more than one purpose."

Money is also a factor. When it is decided how University funds will be distributed, the question of the feasibility of a campus coffee house will become more clear, said Tyson.

The cost of putting a coffee house in the Band Building is also unknown. "We have not had the cost estimates," said Tyson. "The structure of the building looks good, but the interior would have to be re-done, and this might cost quite a bit."

Until these issues are settled, the question of a campus coffee house remains unanswered.

"Right now we have ideas and we're ready to go," said Wurth. "We're just waiting for the word."

Jury investigating death of baby; parents belong to religious sect

Associated Press

WARSAW, Ind. - A Kosciusko grand jury will reconvene in two weeks to investigate the death of another 15-year-old infant whose parents are members of the Faith Assembly, Prosecutor Michael Miner said yesterday.

The investigation will be the grand jury's second into Faith Assembly-related deaths in the last two months.

The first investigation into the death of a 15-year-old rural Warsaw girl resulted in indictments last month against Faith Assembly leader Dr. Hobart E. Freeman and the girl's parents, James and Jane Menne.

The Faith Assembly is a religious sect that teaches its members to shun medical care and rely solely on faith healing. Miner said the grand jury will reconvene at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 17 to review data collected by police in the death of 55-day-old Joseph Irwin. The baby, the son of Faith Assembly members Jeffrey and Barbara Irwin, was pronounced dead at 10:45 p.m. Oct. 21 at Kosciusko Community Hospital by Coroner Gary Eastlund.

A Muncie pathologist who conducted an autopsy last Thursday told authorities the baby died of treatable pneumonia. Eastlund said the secondary cause of death was malnutrition and dehydration.

The pathologist conducted additional tissue culture tests and contacted the coroner yesterday to report her findings.

"The pathologist determined the pneumonia was caused by strep-tococcus," Miner said.

Miner said that he decided to reconvene the jury after the pathologist determined the death had been preventable.

The pathologist told local authorities the Irwin baby had been ill from five to seven days prior to death. Eastlund said the mother told him her child had the sniffles and had lost its appetite.

When the baby stopped breathing at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 21, the mother said she used aerobic-pulmonary resuscitation. After the baby died, she told police, she took her baby to the hospital because she could not locate the coroner.

"I asked her at point-blank if she had a physician. She said Jesus," Eastlund said last week.

The infant was born Oct. 11 at the Irwin residence in Warsaw. The Irwins have three sons, ages 7 and under.

On Oct. 17 the jury returned indictments against Freeman and the Menne. Freeman appeared in Kosciusko Superior Court the following day on charges of aiding and inducing each of these counts: reck-less homicide, criminal recklessness and neglect of a dependent.

Feds to intentionally crash airliner in order to test experimental fuel

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Federal officials will crash an unmanned jetliner into the Mojave Desert tomorrow, hoping to prove a new fuel additive can prevent downed planes from crashing into flames. But the airline industry fears the government is rushing plans to require domestic carriers to use the additive.

The intentional crash of the Boeing 720 jet, delayed for months by technical problems, now is scheduled for 8 a.m. PST at Edwards Air Force Base, said Nancy Lovato, spokeswoman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

NASA test pilot Fitz Fulton, sitting in a ground cockpit, will fly the plane by remote control to an altitude of about 2,000 feet, make a broad circle, then crash the jet in a 170-nmph bellylop on a gravel-covered runway.

The plane will carry 73 dummies and numerous cameras and recording instruments.

It will hit large blades designed to tear off its wings and rupture the fuel tanks, then crash through airport-type light standards which could ignite the fuel.

The crash is intended by NASA and the Federal Aviation Administration to test a variety of new safety features, including seat belts, fire-resistant windows and seat cushions and advanced flight data and cockpit voice recorders.

But the primary purpose is to test the new fuel additive, called anti-misting ketone or AMK. The additive is designed to make jet fuel become mushy like gelatin during a crash rather than spray into a mist.

Fueling a fireball is responsible for about 40 percent of the fatalities in "survivable" crashes - those in which passengers survive the crash impact.
Bolivians on strike, military on alert

Associated Press

LA PAZ, Bolivia - Students blocked city streets and government workers marched in the capital yesterday, the second day of a nationwide general strike. The armed forces remained on alert and peasants threatened to cut into food supplies by tying up major roads.

The strike, called by the Bolivian Workers Central Organization to demand wage increases and such measures as price controls to curb the 1,500 percent annual inflation rate, appeared to have strong support from Bolivia's 2.5 million workers.

All but essential services were halted. Industries were idle, as were the tin mines that bring in the bulk of Bolivia's hard currency earnings. Most government offices, schools, factories, banks and some stores were closed. Public transportation in La Paz was reduced.

Police surveillance was stepped up, but authorities did not move against the demonstrators. The Peasants Federation threatened to blockade key roads in support of the strike as early as today, preventing food from reaching the cities.

What is the purpose of skin-deep beauty?

Recently I had the opportunity to spend some time with a beautiful young lady. Her beauty only became evident when I was able to see past her lipstick and make-up which had originally distracted me enough to look at her face. I have never understood the rationale for women to adorn themselves with all kinds of supposedly beauty-enhancing clothes, make-up, jewelry and the like. Indeed, I nearly always find them unattractive. The males court the females. In human society, the female is multi-colored and outwardly attractive even if that need for attractiveness should go as the expense of some inherent beauty. And by the same token, what sense does it make for companies to sell their 1985 models of whether cars or fashions, in the Fall of 1984 other than to have their customers enjoy an image of having acquired not only the latest but actually the future of attractiveness?

The purpose of these columns, as you know, is not to answer questions, it is merely to raise them. For me, at any rate, attractiveness for its own sake does not make sense. It is not reasonable to seek after it. Perhaps the question is not even to be asked. To me, the “Women/Men of Notre Dame Calendars?” Let me answer it this way. A lady, apparently thinking of herself as beautiful (in the sense of attractive) once approached Bernard Shaw at a party and said during the course of the conversation (which Shaw thought a rather dull one) “Wouldn’t it be nice for us to marry, Mr. Shaw? Just think of the children we would have. Would you have your impressive brain and my fine looks?” To which Shaw, who was not considered handsome, is reputed to have answered: “And what if the children turn out to be the other way ‘round’?”

LaFortune record store should be patronized

Dear Editor:

Before Thanksgiving break, I was talking to the lady who operated the student record store, and she informed me that she would no longer be operating it after break. She said it was going to close because business was slow and because she had gotten another job. This depressed me because that left the bookstore as the only place within walking distance where I could buy records.

As a freshman, I rarely get to the malls, and so I am stuck with the bookstore. I have listened to some dedicated students attempting to produce an interesting format of modern music. That is, if you can hear anything through the static of its beginning. This is not the fault of the student workers at the station, however. They do their best to broadcast first-rate programming. Notre Dame students should take advantage of this service because next time, maybe someone will not be around to re-open it.

Notre Dame needs a viable radio station

Have you ever tuned on WVFI-AM and listened for a while? If you have, you have listened to some dedicated students attempting to produce an interesting format of modern music. That is, if you can hear anything through the static of the current-carrier transmission. Or if you can pick up the station at all in your dorm.

Low listener ratings caused by bad reception have plagued the station since its beginning. This is not the fault of the student workers at the station, however. They do their best to broadcast first-rate programming. Little students to outlive. Finally, a campus radio station with a large student audience can contribute to an improvement in the overall social life of the campus. After all, listening to the radio is a regular part of student life. And students to outlive. The Notre Dame administration does not have a commitment to give its community a decent student radio station. It is unwilling to allocate the funds and to hire the people necessary for operating a station capable of serving the interests of the community.

When it was announced last semester that the student-run radio station would apply for an FM license and acquire the necessary equipment and staff to produce first-rate programming, the campus waited in anticipation. But these ambitious plans never materialized. Instead, the call letters were changed and plans were made to transmit in AM-stereo which can be picked up only on specially converted receivers, according to Kurt Hultheilis, the new station manager at WVFI-AM.

What happened? Why did the University’s supposed commitment dissolve into a superficial change in call letters? The University’s vacillation on this important issue reflects poorly on the administration’s attitude toward student concerns— an attitude which many students believe to be condescending and uncaring.

Money should be spent on the equipment and personnel needed to make WVFI a viable radio station, one in which the Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s community can take pride.

Every day thousands of students enter the Memorial Library. As they walk past the offices located off the main concourse, many probably give no more than a thought to the one labeled Department of Rare Books and Special Collections. Yet this contains some of the most interesting and valuable collections of this university.

The actual value of the collections is not known, says David Sparks, the man in charge of the department. There needs to be a new appraisal done in order to determine this since values are constantly changing. Additionally, the size of the department continues to grow with the acquisition of material. This acquisition is in the form of gifts since the department has no budget.

The rare book collection is large and growing larger because there are many books which qualify as rare. There are many factors which, combined, determine the rare status of each piece. These factors are: category, date, geographic provenance, subject matter, and language. Because there are so many factors involved, there is no standard by which to judge which book in the collection is the rarest.

A book does not have to be first off the printing press to be considered rare. However, there is a leaf of the Gutenberg Bible in the collection. There are also beautifully illuminated Medieval manuscripts and Renaissance works, some of which are rewriting of ancient texts. There are works older than those as well as modern typed and holographed material.

The rare book collection is the major element of the department, but not the only one as there are 16 collections total. Of these 16, only four are catalogued. These are: the rare book collection, the Dante collection of Father Zahm, the Green collection on botany, and the Notre Dame collection. The other materials are accessible through the use of finding lists.

An alumnus, John Bennett Shaw, has given a collection of many editions of Catholic authors. Chief among these is the exhaustive collection of work by Gilbert Keith Chesterton. Exhaustive means that he collected every edition and every variation of each.
Dramatist tikkles the sensibilities

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Theatre is currently working on "The Dramatist," a Restoration comedy written by Frederick Reynolds. Originally written by Reynolds, the play was adapted from Notre Dame and Saint Mary's are working on the production, enduring the winter when thousands of our county homes are homeless, and millions are dying of starvation overseas. My worst sin is wanting to be my own worst enemy.

In this story, love is crowned and Lady Wantit is unbound by an incredible series of obstacles. Neville is hopelessly in love with Lady Wantit (Jane Anne Redford), a pretty young woman of truth and beauty. Lord Scratch (Ave Green), a bumbling idiot from the country, is in love with Lady Wantit. And, to behold, we get the Dramatist - Vapid (John Sheehy), a "dramatic mania" who encourages every ridiculous difficulty in order to get material for his plays. The "Dramatistic" promises to tax your sensibilities and delight your wit. The production is directed by Saint Mary's Professor Julie Jensen. This Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Theatre production is entered in the American College Theatre Festival, a national competition for college and university student theatre, and will be judged by a panel of theatre professionals during its run. Performances are scheduled for Nov. 30, Dec. 1, 6, and 8 at 8:00 p.m. in O'Laughlin Auditorium. Tickets are available by calling the O'Laughlin Auditorium Box Office at 284-4626.

SAINT MARY'S AQUATIC CLUB set to hold swim-a-thon

Tomorrow while most of the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's campus is sleeping, the Saint Mary's Aquatic Club will be trying to pad its coffers for the upcoming season by hosting the 500-m swim-a-thon in the pool in Regina Hall. The club members have set a goal of swimming continuous 10 miles in order to make it into the record books. Flynn estimates it will take the swimmers eight hours to reach their goal of 25 miles.

guard Greg Jacobs at the other backcourt slot. Jacobs and Lightning altogether are producing about 25 points a game for the Red Flash.

"I'm really impressed with the quickness of their guards in Jacobs and Lightning," the Irish assistant said. "They are good one-on-one players. Kevin has taught them well in how to play the fundamentals of the backcourt."

St. Francis' five warters bring some impressive credentials into the game, but they lack size and the team as a whole lacks depth. Conway is their big man and is only 6-7, while Sharkey isn't a giant for a power forward at 6-6. Porter knows this lack of size will enter into the outcome of the game.

"We're small and they have a big front line," said Porter, "so that may cause problems."

St. Francis has little in the way of bench scoring, with its starters providing 13 of the 162 Red Flash points this year.

"All of our players need to have a good game," the ex-NBA star said. "We're not a deep backcourt; we rely on seven players. (For us to win) all seven players need to have an excellent game." The Irish will try to capitalize on St. Francis' lack of depth and size.

"We have to take advantage of our depth and our ability to get the ball inside," said Bedrow. "They're not a big team. We have a bright advantage, and we'll try and exploit that. But we can't let our key players in Hamilton, Jacobs and Sharkey get started."

St. Francis can put points on the board, but it is having a difficult time keeping the other team from doing the same. The Red Flash are giving up 99 points a game this year, and Porter feels this must change for his team to have any chance of winning tomorrow.

"Offensively we can score. Our problem is we need a good game defensively," Porter said. "We've been giving up over 90 points a game. We haven't been playing bad defense, but we've been giving teams second and third shots, and we can't do that against Notre Dame."

St. Francis shouldn't pose any difficulty for the Irish, but if the Red Flash play tough defense and get a good game out of their starters, the scoreboard may reflect a closer game than most fans expect.

Full-court press bothers Wildcats

By PHIL WOLF
Assistant Sports Editor

While the Notre Dame basketball team's offense entertained the crowd last night at the ACC, it actually may have been the defense that started the ball rolling.

Full-court pressure and a hustling man-to-man defense took the Wildcats out of their offensive game, according to Northwestern head coach Rich Falk.

"I thought (Notre Dame's) defensive philosophy early was effective," Falk said. "They did a great job with their full-court pressure and trying to keep the ball away from our ace ball-handler. (Shawn) Watts. They disrupted our offense."

Falk said he had expected the Irish to use full-court pressure against his team, but the Wildcats couldn't handle the pressure when it came.

"We expected full-court pressure," Falk said, "and we worked on it all week. Basically, we play the same way at practices; we change up defenses, use full-court, three-quarter court and half-court traps, and it (the Notre Dame press) should not have bothered us as much as it did."

The press did bother the Wildcats, though, forcing them to make several turnovers. The Irish were able to capitalize on those mistakes and turn them into points on the scoreboard.

Notre Dame started the game with the full-court press, and after staying close for the first six minutes, the Irish jumped out to a seven point lead at 11-12 and never looked back.

The press they used was a 5-1 full-court zone with Scott Hicks, Ken Baron, and Allen Davis across the front, Donald Royal behind them and Tim Kempton back to prevent the long pass. After the game, Baron explained how it works.

"We try to encourage the pass in bounds and then go over with the wingman to try to trap the man in the corner with the ball," Baron said. "Then we try to intercept the pass back. If the pass goes over, then I run the opposite way and trap (on the other wing). That's what we're looking for a reversal and then a secondary trap."

Meanwhile, the rest of the Irish rotation to cover the nearest man when the trap is set in the opponent's backcourt. Only the large pass over other rotations, and the last man back has time to cut it off of necessity.

Last night, Kempton was the last man back in the defense, although he often plays in the middle of the front line. Barlow's position last night, Kempton explained the role of the deep man.

"The man just is left in the back more as a protection so we when we rotate, they can't get an easy layup," he said.

The Irish were able to keep Northwestern from getting any points off the transition game, and the Wildcats had problems setting up their offense. Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps said those problems would have been expected when a team gets tired.

"What pressure does," Phelps said, "is you force people to extend their defense and wear them down that way as well as force them to throw long passes. If you don't get the ball you don't get the seal, then you look for the missed shot. We think those were the things we did.

Indeed, the Irish were able to find a number of missed shots, and they grabbed several of them off the boards to initiate their own transition game. Then it was Rivers and the Notre Dame offense off to the races.

Hockey has been around Notre Dame for 17 years. The program got its start as a varsity sport in the 1968-69 season and immediately encountered problems that continued until last season when it was denoted to club status. The '71-'84 season has marked the first time in the history of the.familiar WCHA, CCHA or even CSCHL affiliations — the Irish are now operating as an Independent.

In the early years, notably the '70-'71 season, Notre Dame was a member of the prestigious Western Collegiate Hockey Association. The membership brought consistency to the program and the chances of making a name for Notre Dame hockey seemed just down the road.

But in order to reach the Denver, Colorado College and Minnesota, and the emergence of respect for the program, the Irish withdrew from the WCHA and joined the Central Collegiate Hockey Association for the 1981-82 season. It contained the.

likes of Bowling Green, Michigan State, Michigan Tech and other schools which had been working to set foundations for solid programs.

After two years in the CCHA, Notre Dame again decided that it was time to become a problem. This time the money for scholarships and other expenses along with what appeared to be dwindling student interest made the operation very prohibitive. As a result, the sport was dropped to club level. The team then competed in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association which was a league of the more competitive teams in the league. It eventually went on to win the U.S. National Club Ice Hockey Championship last year.

Looking back to hockey's inception and its early play in the WCHA, Lefy Smith, the only coach Irish hockey has ever known, recalls his aspirations for the Notre Dame program. "I really had high hopes that at one time we would be able to go out and compete with the best in the league," he said. "We played some excellent hockey schools like Minnesota and Wisconsin, yet we were never the doormat of the league. But in the same year, the Irish knocked off Bowling Green in the first round of the CCHA playoffs, but lost to Michigan State, 4-1, in the championship game and finished with a 25-15-2 mark. Notre Dame also came close to an NCAA bid, but was awarded to Bowling Green."

"Winning the NCAA bid was the largest crowd at the time to watch a college hockey game, as well as having a national audience on ESPN, gave us nice exposure," said Smith. "But after the word was out, we were unable to attract the kind of Tec that marked as the fate of the program was a constant topic of speculation throughout much of the early part of the campaign. When the final verdict was called, Smith, "especially after the season was so bad, the whole thing became kind of a rallying point for the team," said Smith. "Many let down by the University, but they still valued their scholarship independent has also stirred a positive change of feelings by the students towards the athletes."

"Many let down by the University, but they still valued their scholarship independent has also stirred a positive change of feelings by the students towards the athletes."

"The support of the student body really has been most pleasing and quite appreciated. We hope that it will continue. Everyone is patient, we think they will be able to see some excellent hockey here at Notre Dame."

"If enough recruiting problems, the following CCHA season was marked by. turmoil as the program's demise and subsequent reduction to club status, Smith and his players have been working harder than ever to name a new Notre Dame hockey. Making hockey a varsity sport again has had a most noticeable positive effect on all involved.

"Everyone's attitude has been exceptional," said Smith. "The players work very hard, they like playing and have a lot of respect as a contender in the ranks of major-college hockey."

Devotion, determination pay off for Reilly
Senior says he matured as a person during four years at ND

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

Going away to college is a major step towards maturity for most young people. Making the adjustment to living on one's own as well as trying to meet the pressures and demands required for the new academic setting can quickly make or break many people.

Adding to this the challenge of competing as a varsity athlete can make the situation even more complex. Senior Tim Reilly has learned through his experience as a member of the Notre Dame hockey team that through devotion and determination the potential surrounded problems can be conquered.

As a veteran member of the team, Reilly has found that with time the possible to become a better person both in the classroom and in the realm of athletics. But he insists that college life as a student and an athlete can often be quite frustrating.

"I've grown up a lot as a person, as a hockey player and as a student since freshman year," says the 5-10, 180-pounder from Melrose, Mass. "Notre Dame is not an easy place to get used to the first year, especially as an athlete. Things were really tough all around for me that first year. But since then things have slowly begun to click."

"Much of the maturity I feel I've gained, I owe to Notre Dame and the kind of challenging role it's allowed me to play in. It's been a long time, though, my parents have provided a lot of support for me. I also think my finance, Renee Meravey, has helped settle me down a lot too. Both her and my parents told me that I needed to smarten up a little and start taking things more seriously."

"I just naturally like to be somewhat of a joker. Being loose is important, especially in hockey. You can't play a good game if you're too uptight. But just the same, I had to learn to be careful and to maintain certain limits so as not to be too unserious and foolish."

Being named the captain on this year's team certainly seems indicative of the fact that Reilly has matured quite well. "Tim leads by his work ethic and his talent," says Irish head coach Lelly Smith. "He is a quiet 'follow-me' type leader. His sense of humor is important in keeping people loose, and that is important."

"Reilly, himself, is very grateful for his chance to be a team leader. "I make it play better, he says, "I have to stay on my toes when I know people are expecting things of me. Hopefully the guys will see me doing my job and it will pick them up. Especially on this year's team with so many freshmen, leadership has been important. I'm just trying my best to be a positive influence in any way that I can."

In just nine games so far this season, Reilly has demonstrated his leadership on the ice, as he has scored five goals and added 13 assists. Last season he contributed 12 goals and 25 assists in 20 games, and should certainly equal if not better that mark this season.

"Tim has really improved as a player. In the beginning of his career here, he was pretty much a defensive-style player," says Smith. "But now he has developed both his offensive and defensive talents and is scoring at a much better rate than in any of the previous years."

Things have not gone quite as well this season as Reilly and his teammates would like, but he is optimistic that things will improve. "I don't know what we have to do, he says with a smile. "We're playing well, but not well enough to win. I think that sometimes we play too much to the style dictated by the opposition rather than our own. We just sit back and by the time the third period comes around and we begin to realize what's happening, it's too late."

"Christmas has always seemed to be our turning point, so hopefully we'll be able to do well in the remaining three games and then go out East over the holidays and make a good showing. Then I think things will really start to roll in the right direction."

Looking past the hockey season, Reilly's life is headed in still another direction. He and Meravey are married soon after graduation in May, and Reilly hopes to use his Notre Dame education to work as he begins to concentrate on family matters. "We haven't set a date, but I know it will be soon after graduation," he says. "I'm hoping to find a job either in marketing or management. Hockey has been very good to me, but my education is most important. Hockey has just enabled me to get the kind of education that Notre Dame offers. I couldn't have afforded it otherwise, so I don't know where I'd be now. I'm very grateful to Notre Dame and all the opportunities it has presented me."

Women's basketball team goes on road for two

By LARRY BURKE

Still in search of its first victory of the season, the Notre Dame women's basketball team embarks on a two-game road trip that includes games at Eastern Michigan tonight and at Michigan on Sunday.

Although it is still early in the season, the .0-2 Irish already find themselves in a situation where they badly need a victory. With a difficult schedule ahead, Notre Dame needs to get on the winning track immediately if it is to have a successful season in 1984-85.

The Irish have a chance to get that first victory tonight when they take on the Hurons of Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti, but winning will be no easy task. The Hurons figure to be a much improved team from last year's 13-14 squad which finished sixth in the Mid-American Conference. With eight returning letter-winners, Coach Kathy Hart's team has plenty of proven scoring potential. Hart's starting lineup features three returnees who averaged better than 10 points a game last season.

At the forward spots, the Hurons start 5-11 senior Robbi Morel (12.4 points and 5 rebounds per game last year) and 5-10 junior Felicia Hines (10.5 points and 9.8 rebounds) at center. Eastern Michigan has 6-1 sophomore Sharon Rose. The Hurons also have a pair of talented freshmen forwards in 5-10 Laura Nelson and 5-10 Katie Nucci.

In the backcourt, Hart will start a pair of proven veterans in 5-8 junior Sharon Brown (the team's leading scorer last season with 22.8 points a game average) and 5-7 senior Carla Campbell (6.7 points per game last year). Freshman Tani Woodson, who stands just 5-3, figures to be the first guard of the bench.

 Tonight's game is the season opener for the Hurons, but that causes some concern for Irish head coach Mary Dinistalo.

"We're well aware that this is their home opener," says Dinistalo. "One thing we learned against Purdue is to beware of a team in their opening game - and that's especially true for a home opener. The other thing we learned is that you can't determine a team's potency by its height."

"We've been working a lot on rebounding and ball-handling in practice this week," says Dinistalo. "Rebounding isn't a technical thing. It basically comes down to who gets the best position and who gets to the ball first. Those are things that require concentration."

Notre Dame's starting lineup for tonight's game will remain unchanged from the Purdue game. That lineup features junior Trena Keys and freshman Sandy Bobas at the forward spots, senior Carrie Bassett at center, and senior Ruth Kaiser and junior Denise Basford at the guards.

Much like Eastern Michigan, the Wolverines of Michigan are looking for improvement in '84. After posting a dismal 4-22 record last year, rookie coach Bud Van De Wege has a veteran team that has looked impressive thus far. Michigan (1-1) opened with a convincing 78-55 thrashing of Western Michigan last Saturday night, dominating the boards by a 45-22 margin. The Wolverines shot an impressive 61 percent from the field in that game.

Wednesday night, the Wolverines fell victims of a Western Michigan comeback as they suffered their first defeat of the season.

Michigan stars 6-0 junior Wendy Kratzlitch (21 points per game last year) and 6-0 freshman Loren Feldman is at the forward slots. The center is 5-11 sophomore Linda and 5-9 freshman Kelly Benjemini.

"Michigan is an interesting team," says the Irish coach. "They're basically juniors and freshmen. Michigan's talent is another story. Northern Michigan didn't provide much competition for them. Against Western Michigan Wednesday night I think you saw some of the inconsistencies of youth showing because Michigan dashed out to an early lead but Western Michigan ultimately came back to win the game.

"Michigan will give us a tough game because they have such good talent. We have to control their offense, we have to control the boards, and we have to control the tempo of the game."

Dinistalo is well aware of the areas where her team needs to show improvement. If they are to gain their first win of the season tonight, the Irish have to play with more confidence and poise.

"Our team has to play to its capabilities, and they have to play for our fans," says Dinistalo. "They have to take care of the ball - turnovers and rebounding have been the story in our first two games. Those are the things we've got to improve on to get that first win under our belt."

Notre Dame's next home game is Wednesday, December 5 against Western Michigan. On Saturday, December 8, the Irish take on the Hoyas of Georgetown in the ACC.
Wrestlers win two; travel to Indiana State Open

The Notre Dame wrestling team traveled to Flint, Mich., Friday and defeated both Siena Heights and Olivet in a double dual meet. The Irish easily defeated both of their opponents, 37-3 and 29-6, respectively.

Leading the way for Notre Dame was John Krug, who won by fall at 113 pounds. Krug pinned his opponent at the 1:56 mark. Also winning for the Irish were Matt Adams and John Schramm at 125 pounds and 167 pounds, respectively. Danny Hicks broke the Wildcat streak himself over time.

Notre Dame continued to dominate the visitors at bay from that point on. The Wildcats presented a little more trouble, and the Irish ended the half with a 12-5 lead at the 12:13 mark, it seemed the Irish ning, turning layups in the lane. There was an alley-oop pass from Rivers to Barlow for a slam, something many Irish fans had not seen for a while.

Rivers demonstrated his ever-present ability to find the open man, and as told twice nine assists, as well as one of his spectacular, to go with his 15 points. Hicks led the Irish with 17 points, and had two assists, as fast-break layups assisted by Rivers. And when the Irish had to revert to their backcourt game, Rivers stepped up to the other offensive players to Notre Dame Relays. The 24-member team looks to improve even more this year Notre Dame basketball is capable of having a running team, and begin their regular season of six dual meets. Last year the women finished the season with an respectable 4-3 record, the only other Irish wrestler to win his 1984-85 season against five other meet, despite having won fewer matches than Olivet.

"We didn't wrestle up to our potential," said Irish head coach Fran McCann. "Especially against Olivet, we had more trouble than expected itself over time. It's a lot different from last year because Dave can do so much with the basketball," explained Barlow, who often is a recipient of Rivers' surprise offerings. "You just have to be ready, knowing that he's on the court running. You have to just have your eye open looking for the ball coming down on the break. It's up to the other offensive players to catch it."

From the looks of things last night, the Irish appear to be on their way to Butler, Valparaiso, Xavier and the Indiana State Open Tournament where they will face six other teams. McCann hopes that early tournaments such as this will help prepare the young team for later in the year. "We'll get to wrestle a lot of matches," said McCann. "That will be good experience, especially for the younger kids."

Despite the stiff competition awaiting the Irish, McCann is ex- pecting to fare well when the Irish head south. "We don't want to get embarrassed. We want to go down there and win to show that we've got a good team. We want people to recognize Notre Dame.

In order to make the strong showing McCann hopes for, he will need strong leadership from seniors John Arthur Murphy and juniors Robert LaBarbara and Krug. The majority of the squad is made up of underclassmen, who, although having much talent, need the experience the Indiana State Open will provide. McCann obviously has confidence in his team, and if the young squad performs up to its potential he will have plenty to be happy about.

This afternoon the Saint Mary's wrestling team will kick off the 1984-85 season against five other teams in the first annual women's Notre Dame Relays. The 24-member squad will travel across Route 31 to Terre Haute, Ind., to take part in the Indiana State Open Tournament where they will face six other teams. McCann hopes that early tournaments such as this will help prepare the young team for later in the year. "We'll get to wrestle a lot of matches," said McCann. The Belles have been training since October in anticipation of this season's competition and will connue to train over the Christmas holidays. Flynn and his team will be travelling to San Juan, Puerto Rico on January 4 for a ten-day training session.

"The facilities are excellent in Puerto Rico and the weather has always been optimum for outdoor training," says Flynn, who has travelled to San Juan with the Irish swimmers for the past four years.

FREE CONCERT "OPEN TO ALL"
Irish down Wildcats, 79-61; ready for Red Flash

By ERIC SCHEUERMANN

The show finally has come to town.

In front of 10,000 anxious fans at the ACC last night, the excitement that was anticipated from this year's Notre Dame basketball team made its first appearance as the Irish downed the Wildcats of Northwestern, 79-61.

The excitement came in the form of lithe freshman guard David Rivers, who led the Irish to a convincing win in what was an unusually fast-paced game for Irish fans.

There was a great deal of running for Irish fans to feast on, as Notre Dame made it clear from the outset what kind of team it will be this year.

"I know it's hard for some people to believe, but I've always been a zone-press coach who loves to run and shoot," said Irish head coach Digger Phelps, "but you've got to have the players who can do that. I think that group out (on the court) does it very, very well.

One would have to agree with Phelps after witnessing last night's performance. The Irish pressured the Wildcats early and often, forcing them into poor shot selection, which resulted in an exceptionally low shooting percentage of .350.

"All the things we worked on in preparation for this game totally fell apart in the first half," said Wildcat mentor Rich Fulk. "Give a lot of credit to Notre Dame for it. With their defensive philosophy early, the press, the full-court pressure, they totally disrupted our offense."

On the offensive end, Notre Dame certainly did run and shoot. With Donald Royal, Kevin Barlow, and Tim Kempton leading the way inside, Notre Dame dominated the boards, allowing Rivers, running-mate Scott Hicks, and others to present quite an entertaining classic on the values of the fast break.

There were behind-the-back passes for easy buckets and twist-

Kevin Porter and St. Francis come to ACC

By JOE BRUNETTI

Kevin Porter will bring his 0-2 St. Francis basketball team into the ACC tomorrow at 1 p.m. to try and notch its first win of the 1984 season. For Digger Phelps, Irish it will be another game against a pesky, hard-working team.

"St. Francis is a tough blue collar team," says Notre Dame assistant coach Gary Brokaw. "They are similar to Manhattan in that they work hard, and are going to just like their coach Kevin Porter did in the NBA (as a member of the Washington Bullets)."

The Red Flash dropped their first to game to Ohio University, 94-84, and their second game to Pitt, 104-84, but St. Francis won't necessarily be an easy win for Notre Dame. Porter returns all five starters from last year's squad, including senior Jeff Hamilton, who averaged close to 18 points a game a year ago. It is the play of his senior starters which will keep the Irish coach stuff worried the most.

"Jeff Hamilton is a great player. He got 24 points against Pitt," said Brent Chapman. "He's got a 25-foot jump shot, a physical player and an intelligent player who can read defenses."

Porter feels the same way about his 6-4 small forward. "We're looking for a lot of scoring out of Jeff Hamilton.

Senior power forward Joe Sharkey will play alongside Hamilton on the front line, while center Jim Conway is questionable because of a sprained ankle suffered in the game with Ohio U. Sharkey should be a key factor for the Red Flash, as he brings a 17-point average into the game.

"Sharkey is a tough veteran and a senior," adds Porter. "He is a physical player inside and he has a 2-foot jump shot range.

Porter will start senior Napoleon Lightening at the off guard position. The Irish are desperate to even the score with their guests.

Alabama-Huntsville invades ACC for two games

By ED DOMANSKY

Alabama-Huntsville, the only team to sweep the Chargers last season, will be at the ACC tonight and Saturday to take on the Irish. Both games will begin at 7:30 p.m. and students are admitted free of charge with ID.

With a 13-0 Central States Collegiate Hockey League mark on the line last year, Notre Dame arrived in Huntsville hoping to capture the league title. But before crowds of 5,950 and 6,550, the Chargers grabbed 6-5 and 6-4 decisions to take the crown.

This season things are slightly different. Aside from the obvious fact that the Irish will have Alabama on their home ice for this rematch, the two teams are no longer competing for the same league championship. The Chargers are still in the CSCHL, but Notre Dame is now a varsity independent. Nevertheless, after last year's two tough and scrum encounters, the two teams are not the best of friends. And the Irish would desperately love to even the score with their guests from the South.

"Last year we had two close games and we didn't get along too well," said co-captain Brent Chapman. "We'd certainly like to beat them, but we'll have to play our best to do it. It would go a good kind of student support that we had (earlier this year) for Pense night.

Notre Dame comes into the series with a 5-6 mark. The Irish ended a six-game losing string with last Saturday's 7-6 win over Air Force, and are hopeful that they have rectified the small problems that had plagued them during the losing spree.

Alabama, on the other hand, enters the weekend's action with a 5-5 record. The Chargers split their season-opening series with Iowa State at Ames. They then lost two 4-3 decisions to Miami (Ohio). Both Penn State and Marquette have since tasted double defeats at the hands of the Chargers.

Irish hockey team has a score to settle with the Chargers, expects tough weekend series

Sophomore right wing Dave Wallenstein currently leads the Alabama scorers with nine goals and 12 assists. Brian Kelly, a senior center who led Alabama in the 1983-84 season with 35 goals and 37 assists, is also back to provide support this season.

"Huntsville is a quick, aggressive and well-balanced team," said Irish head coach Lefty Smith. "They have been built their program from the several years, and they take their hockey very seriously. They will certainly be very tough."

In the last five games, Notre Dame has surrendered 59 goals while scoring just 20. The four goal per game average over that stretch would be good enough to win in most cases. Notre Dame has had problems, though, because of inconsistent defensive play.

"At first it was a matter of not being able to come out of our zone," said Smith. "Now we're not handling the rush. The defensemen have been a bit hesitant about forcing the play out near the red line. Overall we're just not playing the body both while forechecking and back-checking. We can't just make a swing at the puck; we have to take it on the arm.

"We have been scoring well enough, but without defense it doesn't do much good. I would also like to see more scoring from our other lines. We've been coming too much on the first line of Chapman, (Tim) Reilly and (Tom) Mooney."

Twenty-five of the team's 52 goals this season have come from the Chapman-Reilly-Mooney combination.

In order to try to beef up the scoring attack, Smith has made some changes in the other three Irish lines. Mike Nortin will now move back up to center from defense, where he has played for the last five games. He will skate between Steve Whitmire and Dave Waldbiblig on the second line.

Mark Anquillare will now center right wing Jeff Badaliach and Pat Foley on the left side of the third unit. Anquillare moved in from center to wing to fill the spot left open by Brian Kelly.
