ND grad receives governor’s award

By JOHN HINES
Staff Reporter

A Notre Dame business graduate and author of research and writings in the area of economic growth and development seems an unlikely recipient of the Governor’s Arts Award.

But that’s what Thomas Bergin, dean of the Center for Continuing Education, received Tuesday in Indianapolis in recognition of his contributions to the arts in Indiana. Governor Robert Orr addressed and presented the award to Bergin and four others before members of the Indiana General Assembly in the State Capitol Rotunda.

“I share the pride of the award with the Notre Dame community and northern Indiana,” said Bergin.

Though not an artist himself, Bergin has been involved in the University’s art programs that benefit the arts. He founded the Indiana Arts Commission by obtaining a $20,000 block grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, and the approval of then-Governor Edgar Whitcomb in the late 60’s. More recently Bergin has instituted the Artists in the Schools program in which artists from the local community visit school children to share their work with the students.

“This award is first a recognition of the time, effort and energy devoted to the educating national system of northern Indiana, with the art. Second, it’s a prestigious acknowledgement of people’s concern for the arts, and that people in small towns and communities can be acquainted with the arts if only the legislature will approve the funds,” said Bergin.

Bergin spent six years as one of the top corporate attorneys at the giant law firm of Spoor & Kirk in Chicago.

ND grad receives governor’s award

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Amid extraordinary security precautions, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher cautioned Congress yesterday that the Soviet Union will attempt to divide the West during nuclear arms control talks and warned that “we should not expect too much too soon” from them.

Echoing a theme sounded by President Reagan, Mrs. Thatcher said, “It is in the security of the West’s strength and not their goodwill that has brought the Soviet Union to the negotiating table in Geneva.”

Mrs. Thatcher was the first British prime minister to address a joint meeting of the House and Senate since Winston Churchill did so on Jan. 17, 1952. After her speech, which was interrupted 24 times by applause, she went to the White House to confer with Reagan on arms control, America’s huge budget deficit and the soaring U.S. dollar.

The ornate House chamber was packed by members of the Senate and House, assembled in a joint meeting, and members of the Cabinet and diplomatic corps. British Foreign Secretary George Brown and House Speaker Thomas P. O’Neill Jr., D-Mass., were among theaphiles.-4

On the streets outside, an estimated 500 demonstrators shouted, “IRA, IRA all the way” and “Maggie, Maggie, Maggie must go.” Some carried signs reading, “Victory to IRA” and “IRA Freedom Fighters.”

Armed security police, posted 10 feet apart, flanked the streets around the Capitol.

Inside the building, Mrs. Thatcher said the British Republic Army as “the enemies of democracy and of freedom. She said she and Irish Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald were united in seeking a solution to the problems of Northern Ireland.

Urging Americans not to give financial aid to the IRA, she said the money “is used the buy the deaths of Irishmen, north and south of the border.”

Bearing her support of U.S. re­search on a “Star Wars” shield in space against nuclear weapons, the prime minister said “the United States must not fall behind the work being done abroad.”

Even so, a British official who accom­panied Mrs. Thatcher, speaking to reporters later, said he had been “mis­understood.”

While Reagan has held out the hope that Star Wars will prevent the abolition of all nuclear weapons, Mrs. Thatcher sounded a different theme, quoting President Reagan’s 1952 address to Congress: “Be careful above all things not to let go of the atomic weapon until you are sure, and more than sure, that other means of preserving the peace are in your hands.”

She added, “Thirty-three years on, those weapons are still keeping the peace.”

END

Following the resumption of U.S. Soviet arms control talks in Geneva on March 12, Mrs. Thatcher said, “They will be intricate, complex and demanding. And, we should not expect too much too soon.”

“We must recognize that we shall face in the 80’s, perhaps more than ever, the choice between constructive change or are they unconstitutional?”

University says investments do not support apartheid

The Observer

By JOHN HINES
Staff Reporter

Some of Notre Dame invest­ments are with corporations which have operations in South Africa, but if any of these companies violate a set of strict human rights principles, the University would divest.

In fact, it has happened once already, according to Father Theodore Hebesburg, University president.

“One corporation said they would not be bullied by the Su­lian Principles, so we divested them,” Hebesburg said.

The Sullivan Principles are gen­erally accepted as the guidelines for determining ethical investment in South Africa. President Reagan and many others have criticized the white ruled nation whose form of government, called apartheid, discriminates black citizens.

The principles, developed by Rev. Leon Sullivan, a Baptist mini­

The Observer

By JOHN HINES
Staff Reporter

Some of Notre Dame invest­ments are with corporations which have operations in South Africa, but if any of these companies violate a set of strict human rights principles, the University would divest.

In fact, it has happened once already, according to Father Theodore Hebesburg, University president.

“One corporation said they would not be bullied by the Su­lian Principles, so we divested them,” Hebesburg said.

The Sullivan Principles are gen­erally accepted as the guidelines for determining ethical investment in South Africa. President Reagan and many others have criticized the white ruled nation whose form of government, called apartheid, discriminates black citizens.

The principles, developed by Rev. Leon Sullivan, a Baptist mini­

April 21, 1985

Sportsmanlike conduct

This group of Notre Dame football players buddies around a young woman at last night’s roller skating party at U.S. Roller Rink. The event was sponsored by the Millenias Against N.S. Committee.

University says investments do not support apartheid

The Observer

By JOHN HINES
Staff Reporter

Some of Notre Dame invest­ments are with corporations which have operations in South Africa, but if any of these companies violate a set of strict human rights principles, the University would divest.

In fact, it has happened once already, according to Father Theodore Hebesburg, University president.

“One corporation said they would not be bullied by the Su­lian Principles, so we divested them,” Hebesburg said.

The Sullivan Principles are gen­erally accepted as the guidelines for determining ethical investment in South Africa. President Reagan and many others have criticized the white ruled nation whose form of government, called apartheid, discriminates black citizens.

The principles, developed by Rev. Leon Sullivan, a Baptist mini­

The Observer

By JOHN HINES
Staff Reporter

Some of Notre Dame invest­ments are with corporations which have operations in South Africa, but if any of these companies violate a set of strict human rights principles, the University would divest.

In fact, it has happened once already, according to Father Theodore Hebesburg, University president.

“One corporation said they would not be bullied by the Su­lian Principles, so we divested them,” Hebesburg said.

The Sullivan Principles are gen­erally accepted as the guidelines for determining ethical investment in South Africa. President Reagan and many others have criticized the white ruled nation whose form of government, called apartheid, discriminates black citizens.

The principles, developed by Rev. Leon Sullivan, a Baptist mini­

The Observer

By JOHN HINES
Staff Reporter

Some of Notre Dame invest­ments are with corporations which have operations in South Africa, but if any of these companies violate a set of strict human rights principles, the University would divest.

In fact, it has happened once already, according to Father Theodore Hebesburg, University president.

“One corporation said they would not be bullied by the Su­lian Principles, so we divested them,” Hebesburg said.

The Sullivan Principles are gen­erally accepted as the guidelines for determining ethical investment in South Africa. President Reagan and many others have criticized the white ruled nation whose form of government, called apartheid, discriminates black citizens.

The principles, developed by Rev. Leon Sullivan, a Baptist mini­

The Observer

By JOHN HINES
Staff Reporter

Some of Notre Dame invest­ments are with corporations which have operations in South Africa, but if any of these companies violate a set of strict human rights principles, the University would divest.

In fact, it has happened once already, according to Father Theodore Hebesburg, University president.

“One corporation said they would not be bullied by the Su­lian Principles, so we divested them,” Hebesburg said.

The Sullivan Principles are gen­erally accepted as the guidelines for determining ethical investment in South Africa. President Reagan and many others have criticized the white ruled nation whose form of government, called apartheid, discriminates black citizens.

The principles, developed by Rev. Leon Sullivan, a Baptist mini­
Student Government effective despite current campus opinion

After covering the student senate during the entire fall semester, I have come to the following conclusion: Notre Dame student government is capable of making an impact on student life at Notre Dame. Even so, the impact is directly related to the caliber and dedication of those serving as student representatives, as well as their ability to overcome administrative inertia.

First, look at the current limitations with which every student body president must deal. Aside from the distribution of funds, any resolution which the senate passes must pass the Campus Life Council. Unfortunately, the council is composed not only of students, but also of faculty, rectors and administrators. While these people are not bad in and of themselves, they tend to be extremely conservative, voting down any legislation which, in their opinion, might loosen their grip on student life at Notre Dame. While this has happened a number of times, one example: wisely proved the point. LF Sihs Weekend, which the senate passed in an overwhelming majority, was vetoed by the CLC. Because of this weekend, the CLC had a number of problems, and the rector had considerable reservations and were understandably against it.

However, the committee which will present the proposal had done their homework. They had a full schedule of events planned to keep the kids from running around. This and the alcohol director made the possibility of 13-year-olds getting drunk a slam. A professor from the law school drew up a legal waiver which would have protected the University from any damages or accidents associated with each visitor. All in all, every contingency had been carefully thought out, except for one: the council could veto the plan. And so it did.

The success, if any proposal does make it through the CLC, has yet another bureaucratic swamp to pass. The last Lil' Sibs Weekend had a number of problems which, in their opinion, might loosen their grip on student affairs, has the power to automatically veto anything which the CLC passes. This setup is problematic because the man who has the final say (there have been times when Tyson has been quite helpful), but because the system gives him absolutely no accountability. There is no appeals board and no one superior to whom he must justify his position.

If the student government ever expects the student government can get things done. Although people are quick to point to the failures of student government, such as the recent election brouhaha, seldom can a student name anything positive which the senate has done. How quickly these critical people forget the lightheaded basketball courts, the paved parking lots, the student store, this year's highly successful freshmen orientation, the microphones in the dining halls, and the Adopt-A-Transfer program. Moreover, where are these students at the student senate meetings? Bertino has designated a time for non-student members to address any topic they wish, yet the seats are seldom filled. Well seldom bother to show up and make their views heard. Admittedly, attendance at Ombudsman's Gripe Nights continues to improve, but the senate is the body that has the power to divvy out the $250,000. Even with the obstacles of the administration and lack of student input, the current administration itself has been successful. Bertino and Vice President Cathy David point to the Smart Store and promises virtually all of which have been fulfilled. Also, their presentation before the board of trustees was a phenomenal success, especially with the new emphasis on equalizing women's admissions.

Not all has gone well, though. Notre Dame students did not appear too convinced with their "original" response to the alcohol policy. Moreover, questions about Bertino's and the other candidates' ability to govern the student body during the entire term. After covering the student senate during the entire term, I have come to the following conclusion: Notre Dame student government is capable of making an impact on student life at Notre Dame. Even so, the impact is directly related to the caliber and dedication of those serving as student representatives, as well as their ability to overcome administrative inertia.

Student Government effective despite current campus opinion

Mike Millen
Senior Staff Reporter

LOGAN CENTER
ND/SMC Council for the Retarded needs new volunteers this week for two major events:
SQUARE DANCE
Friday, 2/22, 7:30-10 pm
CARNIVAL REC
Saturday, 2/23, 9-11:30 am
- Volunteers needed to man booths and to help the kids play games
For more information call:
Tomsx2508
Kathyx3604
Gusx1196
at St. Mary's: Cathy or Anne 284-5030
ND students capture College Bowl

By PATI TRIPATHI

News Staff

The Notre Dame College Bowl team just returned victorious from a tournament at Purdue University where it defeated teams from 14 other midwestern universities.

The team, composed of Tom Mowle, Cara Peng, Jim Rocha, Steve Staresinic, and Steve Zepf, continued Notre Dame's winning tradition in College Bowl competition, according to Dr. Peter Lombardo, assistant director of the Center for Continuing Education and moderator of the team since 1979.

"We have won the national championship three times since 1976 and several times we have been second or third in the regionals," Lombardo noted.

College Bowl used to be held on radio programs in the 50's. After losing its appeal it was taken off the air in 1970, but regained its popularity in 1978.

Students at Notre Dame form their own teams and compete amongst each other in the intramural tournaments. During the competition the student who answers the toss-up questions receives points as well as another chance for the team to raise its score. The College Bowl Company supplies the questions.

"Wide ranging and competitive type of questions are needed because questions can come from all academic fields," Lombardo said.

"I like winning," said Zepf, the captain of the team. Rocha, who is to be valedictorian of the Class of 1985, added, "It's a chance to see how much random knowledge I have picked up."

"It's fun to play. Everyone involved in the tournament was very excited," commented freshman Peng. Mowle concurred, saying, "It's a challenge to see how quickly I can recall things."

While some members of the team prepared for the competition others did not. Staresinic felt that the College Bowl is like the SAT test because he can see how much knowledge he has picked up through the years. "Whenever I don't have anything to do I read. It ended up that I remembered what I read. That's what College Bowl is - remembering."

Players with diverse knowledge and strengths in different fields help the team to be victorious in the regional competition. Each student had different strengths which helped him or her to answer wide ranging questions. "Our best person in literature and music is an accounting major," commented Zepf, referring to Staresinic.

"It's a pretty good school so you will have people who are intelligent. People are well-read. We are blessed with a small group of people who happen to be good," Zepf added.

Staresinic commented that the victory shows that intelligent students attend Notre Dame. "That's why I'm most proud that we won."

All the players agreed that College Bowl had nothing to do with the trivia craze that is sweeping the nation. "College Bowl is older and more geared toward questions. Questions tend not to be trivial. They are more often based on subject material learned in class," said Rocha.

For the first time after several years there will not be a national competition this year. "I'm extremely disappointed. I was very confident we were going to win. It would have been great," said Peng.

"It would promote Notre Dame's image to host a national tournament especially since we have a good chance of winning," expressed Mowle.

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Farm-state senators said late yesterday they were near agreement on a liberalized credit aid package for financially distressed farmers, an issue which had prompted a day-long filibuster.

Senate Democrats who instigated the parliamentary delaying action said they had made progress in getting the Reagan administration to prom­ vide administrative action to free up more loan guarantee money for farmers facing trouble obtaining loans for spring planting.

"I think we're finding out our differences aren't really that great," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., who earlier in the day had denounced the filibuster as "blackmail."

Another meeting was scheduled for today.

At the same time, a House appropriations subcommittee began pushing on a fast track a bill making available an additional $1 billion in farm loan guarantees and providing money for more Farmers Home Administration personnel to process loan paperwork.

Chairman Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., called the measure "a holding action" needed to keep farmers from sliding into bank­ ruptcy. The full committee was to take up today and the House Agriculture Committee was to take up even stronger legislation as Democrats voted their newly found politi­ cal weapon.

Even while coming closer to agreement, Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, Agriculture Secretary John Block and other Republicans pointed a finger at farm bankers, saying they had drummed up political pressure to offer more credit relief because they did not want to accept losses on risky farm loans.

While Block, Dole and others said it now was up to bank­ state governments to come up with any additional credits help, the majority leader said a "package" was in the works that might offer some loosening of federal credit strings.

Applications available at the Student Activities Office
Due February 25, 1985

GET EXPERIENCE!!

The Student Activities Board is looking for...

1985-86 Committee Chairmen

Ideas & Issues
Cultural Arts
Campus Entertainment Services
Publicity
Calendar
Special Events
Musical Entertainment
Movies

The early bird...
Irish court takes 'secret IRA fund'

The Associated Press

DUBLIN, Ireland - The Irish High Court took possession today of what the government claims is a secret Irish Republican Army fund, worth $4.6 million extorted by kidnap and murder threats.

The Bank of Ireland, the country's largest bank, turned the money over to the High Court in compliance with an official order, said a government spokesman in Dublin, who spoke on condition he be not named.

Under an emergency law rushed through the Irish Parliament on Tuesday, the coalition government of Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald was empowered to order any bank to hand over money that was suspected of being controlled by the IRA or any other outlawed, subversive organization.

Under the new legislation, seized money will remain under High Court control for six months, during which time the account holders can claim it if they can prove it is lawful use. If they cannot, the money goes to the state.

Press reports in Dublin estimated the sum in the IRA account at between 1 and 10 million Irish pounds, the equivalent of $490,000 and $4.9 million.

But, according to the government spokesman, "There's no other money involved that we're aware of."

The mainly Roman Catholic IRA is fighting to drive the British from predominantly Protestant Northern Ireland. It wants to unite the British-ruled province with overwhelmingly Catholic south after overthrowing the Dublin political establishment.

Martin Galvin, director of the U.S.-based Irish Northern Aid Committee, confirmed, which supports the IRA, toed an Irish Radio interview from New York that any money on the account came from his organization.

'Cabinet' letter receives response

The Associated Press

FORT WAYNE, Ind. - Cabinet salesman Dan Frederick says he never expected a response from his letter to the Fort Wayne Board of Education auditorium, which was offering "expertise and vast experience in cabinet remodeling."

But Reagan wrote Frederick thanking him for "brightening a drab, rainy day in Washington."

Frederick is a salesman for a Mid­State cabinet remodeling firm with offices in Fort Wayne and Elkhart. He wrote the president Jan. 21 offering expert advice on Reagan's White House "cabinet proj­ect."

"I understand you are in the process of a major cabinet remodel­ing project," Frederick wrote, refer­ring to recent White House cabinet reshuffling.

"Being a young and aggressive company, we offer our expertise and vast experience in cabinet remodel­ing, whenever and wherever possible."

"The letter concluded "I feel we could successfully work together at our attitude seem to run parallel; i.e., refacing doesn't replace.""

To Frederick's surprise, he received a reply two weeks later on White House stationary with Reagan's signature across the bottom.

"Thank you for brightening a drab, rainy day in Washington," the letter began.

"I'm sorry I have just completed the cabinet redo here," the letter said. "Otherwise I would have invited myself to your services."

"I'm trying to think of some way I could apply an appropriate title to Congress that would make that body a fit object for your remodeling."

Pangborn works for new computer

By GERARD GOLDSER
News Staff

Nearly 50 Pangborn residents want to buy a new computer, which they say costs so much that they are donating the money they earned during Junior Parents' Weekend toward its purchase.

The fund-raising drive, under the direction of Assistant Rector Father Wilfred Borden, Hall President Tom Ryan, and resident Frank Lipo, resulted from a decision to buy a new computer after missing the one the dorm has is used extensively.

Although 79 Pangborn residents had volunteered to work Junior Par­ents' Weekend, only approximately 50 were able to uphold their com­mitment for various reasons. These 50 students donated all of the money which they received from working Junior Parents' Weekend to the drive.

Although the final amount of money will not be determined until Friday, Pangborn hopes to purchase another Apple Computer (in addi­tion to the one which it already has) and possibly even a terminal to the Prime Computer of the College of Engineering.

Lipo, who was also one of the Pangborn workers at Junior Parents' Weekend, said "The students did it because they wanted to be a part of a project which would help the dorm as a whole." The idea of initiating a drive to raise money for a computer arose from the successful attempt of Borden and other Pangborn residents to raise money for a hall computer last year. Lipo hopes these fund-raising efforts for hall additions will become a tradition in Pangborn in which all residents will feel a part.

Q: WHICH OF THE FOLLOWING IS GUARANTEED TO CHANGE YOUR WAY OF THINKING?
A: ANY OF THE ABOVE

1. Studying at King's College in London
2. Studying at Royal Holloway College in London
3. Studying at The British Studies Centre in Canterbury

Friday, February 21, 1985 — page 4

She's got the beat

Jazz musician Terri Lynne Carrington performed last night at the Center for Continuing Education auditorium. Carrington ap­peared with members of the N.D. Jazz Ensemble in the concert, which was sponsored by the Black Cultural Arts Festival.
Hope for future seen in Notre Dame report card

Every ten years many universities go through an accreditation process and, recently, it was Notre Dame's turn. Last year, from Feb. 19 through Feb. 22, an evaluation team, composed of faculty and administrators from other schools in the Midwest, visited the campus and looked at all facets of the University. The team interviewed administrators, faculty and students. The final result, a type of report card, produced from this process by the visiting team, would be a very complimentary one.

Mark Boennighausen

Mark Boennighausen is a senior government major and a regular Viewpoint columnist.

Role of papal authority shows Christ's teachings

Many people these days question the Church hierarchy's teachings on doctrinal and moral issues such as papal infallibility and birth control. I would like to offer a view of the hierarchy's teaching regarding these issues.

First of all, on the issue of papal infallibility, the Church has taught from the beginning that the doctrine of papal infallibility originates in the Gospel, specifically in these words of Christ addressed to Peter: "And whatever you shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever you shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven" (Matthew 16:19-20). The Church interprets this passage to mean that a certain truth, transmitted from the Church's teaching on birth control

Third, to those who wonder why women were excluded from the priesthood, the Holy Father offered a cogent explanation to the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on October 7, 1979. "Mary is the woman who is honored as Queen of Apostles, without herself being inserted into the hierarchal constitution of the Church, and yet this woman made all hierarchy possible because she gave to the world the Shepherd-Bishop of the whole human race." This was the Mary of the Gospels, who is not mentioned as being as the Last Supper, comes back again at the foot of the cross, in order to consummate her contribution to salvation history. By her courageous act she prefigures and anticipates the courage of all women throughout the ages who concur in bringing forth Christ in every generation.

If Christ wanted to ordain women to the priesthood, surely he would have ordained his most perfect creature, who cooperated so closely in the redemption of man that she is called the "Co-Redemptrix" of the whole human race.

Finally, the Holy Father does not eschew intellectual inquiry into Church doctrine; rather, he encourages the study of Church doctrine because the Holy Spirit safeguards the Church from false doctrine. The Holy Father strongly encourages the studying of Church doctrine and the reasoning behind each teaching, but he also showed in his address to a group of students on March 25, 1979, in Rome: "If you do not become personally aware of and do not have an adequate understanding of what must be believed and of the reasons for this faith, at a certain moment everything may inevitably collapse and be swept away, in spite of the good will of parents and educators."

The role of papal authority in the lives of Catholics is to point out unmistakably the true teachings of Christ. Since this authority comes from Christ, no one has the right to question it. As Catholics, however, we do have the duty to study the doctrines of our faith in order to reach a better understanding of them.

Mark Gibson is a sophomore economics and CAPP major at Notre Dame.

Mark Boennighausen's gravity is a myth

the North American Association of Colleges and Schools is interesting due to its unique objective perspective.

Overall, the report is very complimentary. It found much that is good at Notre Dame and reports: "Thus, there is a certain excitement at Notre Dame at this time. It is the excitement of being an institution which not only makes promises about excellence but secondly, inspires the will and the resources, particularly financial resources, to enable the realization of these promises." Furthermore, students can be assured that their $10,000 a year is being well spent, as the report praises the "competent and conservative financial management" present at Notre Dame.

Despite the generally positive tone, the report did highlight some problems present at the University. For example, one problem mentioned was the greater emphasis that Notre Dame has placed on the need for research. The relatively new priority creates a great deal of pressure for unrestrained junior faculty and often effects the time a faculty member can devote to teaching and, more specifically, to students.

Indeed, a common statement I have heard from many junior faculty members is that, at Notre Dame, it is either "publish or perish." Additionally, some senior faculty members have expressed a concern that Notre Dame might lose its reputation as a "teaching university" in its effort to increase its quantity of research. Whether, in fact, teaching will take a backseat to research is open to speculation.

Of greater specific interest to students is the report's observations on student life. The undefinable "Notre Dame experience" was the comment the evaluation team heard most when they interviewed student leaders. They were further impressed by the sense of community apparent on campus. In the report, the use of alcoholic beverages received an entire section, and there was even a comment examined on the fact that the then existing alcohol committee seemed to be handling the issue with a great deal of sensitivity. It went on to conclude that the solutions to be handed down by the committee would win "reasonably wide acceptance." And, with hindsight, it seems the evaluation team was not far off the mark.

The last problem found by the team that deserves mention is how the University is governed. The evaluation team felt that the faculty was almost entirely left out of the decision-making process with regard to the hiring and retaining of academic personnel. Moreover, it felt the entire mechanism of governing was over centralized around the president. The University. Anyone who has had any personal dealings with the administration can well understand this observation.

The report added that the current process many only be seen as legitimate due to the "impossible respect that exists for the president." In the end, the current way of running the University may cease to function smoothly once Healy leaves. That is, if he ever leaves.

The report card for Notre Dame, thus, is full of optimism for the future but, as mentioned, some marks point to problems area. The next report card, in ten years, will be the one that determines if Notre Dame has fulfilled the potential indicated by this one.

Mark Boennighausen is a senior government major and a regular Viewpoint columnist.
American medical students and American business interests, in fact, this memorable moment of history could well prove to be the crucial step in contemporary policies in preventing the "domino theory" of Communist takeover from occurring all over Central America and the world.

One can just imagine what effect a Marxist-run, Soviet-funded, bellicose country would have upon American trade and security. A large portion of American trade and travel, including the Panama Canal and Caribbean Sea. With Soviet technology, Grenada Marxism could develop all forms of American trade, severely crippling our industries and costing American lives and fortunes in the process. With money and resources, Grenadian Marxists could easily have become another link in the Soviet chain of influence.

From a moral standpoint, then, the United States could not have allowed a Communist takeover in Grenada and subjected its neighboring countries to the same fate.

As a world leader and protector of civil rights and social justice, the United Nations was certainly justified in supporting the security of the Caribbean region. As President Carter noted in his proposed Central American policy, to which we should all accord, "security assistance is a shield for the American people, a guarantee of their safety, and a symbol of our commitment to the cause of freedom and justice in America and the world."

Pat Flood

Irish brawl

Dear Editor:

Following recent controversy against Student Government, I have attempted to make contact with Pat Flood by telephone and by letter. It is my opinion the article was somewhat of an overkill. Reading last year's Observer, I knew the students and resident assistants would end up being the scapegoats this year. Well, nobody said life was easy.

I think it is good to have disagreements and arguments in the community. From what I understand, we received medical attention. Although he was turned off, he did not expect to be treated this way.

Pat Flood is a junior government major. Does anyone remember what he said?

Very suddenly, people have not only taken an interest in Student Government, which Beretz defends, but also in the groups which Beretz defames. It is my opinion that the interpretation of our opinions should be for the public to decide and not theiras - should I try to be rational and point out his stupidity in simple, logical language, or should I resort to the cutting, sarcastic and classless manner too poorly suited for such an expression?

Beretz is for attempting to defame a well known student. How Beretz is able to pose to condemn the way Beretz so viciously attacks Griffin is beyond me. Beretz would not know how to do the job he is doing.

Emotions are running high and tempers are turning off. I know students are upset, but as a member of Student Government, should I feel I should I be allowed to express my thoughts openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

Second, Saint Mary's College student government has attempted to defame a number of dorm Judicial Board Chairmen. Because I am a member of the Griffin's intelligence and Christianity, Beretz is for attempting to defame a well known student. How Beretz is able to pose to condemn the way Beretz so viciously attacks Griffin is beyond me. Beretz would not know how to do the job he is doing.

Emotions are running high and tempers are turning off. I know students are upset, but as a member of Student Government, should I feel I should I be allowed to express my thoughts openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

First of all, in regard to our "almost too friendly relationship" with the administration, we feel very fortunate to be given the opportunity to express our opinions openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

Second, Saint Mary's College student government has attempted to defame a number of dorm Judicial Board Chairmen. Because I am a member of the Griffin's intelligence and Christianity, Beretz is for attempting to defame a well known student. How Beretz is able to pose to condemn the way Beretz so viciously attacks Griffin is beyond me. Beretz would not know how to do the job he is doing.

Emotions are running high and tempers are turning off. I know students are upset, but as a member of Student Government, should I feel I should I be allowed to express my thoughts openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

First of all, in regard to our "almost too friendly relationship" with the administration, we feel very fortunate to be given the opportunity to express our opinions openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

Second, Saint Mary's College student government has attempted to defame a number of dorm Judicial Board Chairmen. Because I am a member of the Griffin's intelligence and Christianity, Beretz is for attempting to defame a well known student. How Beretz is able to pose to condemn the way Beretz so viciously attacks Griffin is beyond me. Beretz would not know how to do the job he is doing.

Emotions are running high and tempers are turning off. I know students are upset, but as a member of Student Government, should I feel I should I be allowed to express my thoughts openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

First of all, in regard to our "almost too friendly relationship" with the administration, we feel very fortunate to be given the opportunity to express our opinions openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

Second, Saint Mary's College student government has attempted to defame a number of dorm Judicial Board Chairmen. Because I am a member of the Griffin's intelligence and Christianity, Beretz is for attempting to defame a well known student. How Beretz is able to pose to condemn the way Beretz so viciously attacks Griffin is beyond me. Beretz would not know how to do the job he is doing.

Emotions are running high and tempers are turning off. I know students are upset, but as a member of Student Government, should I feel I should I be allowed to express my thoughts openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

First of all, in regard to our "almost too friendly relationship" with the administration, we feel very fortunate to be given the opportunity to express our opinions openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

Second, Saint Mary's College student government has attempted to defame a number of dorm Judicial Board Chairmen. Because I am a member of the Griffin's intelligence and Christianity, Beretz is for attempting to defame a well known student. How Beretz is able to pose to condemn the way Beretz so viciously attacks Griffin is beyond me. Beretz would not know how to do the job he is doing.

Emotions are running high and tempers are turning off. I know students are upset, but as a member of Student Government, should I feel I should I be allowed to express my thoughts openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.

First of all, in regard to our "almost too friendly relationship" with the administration, we feel very fortunate to be given the opportunity to express our opinions openly to the administration and have them listen sincerely to the issues and suggestions. It is a very open and respectful relationship, and we are proud to be included as we are in decisions and issues which affect our lives.
What was it like when...?

Dad went to school at Notre Dame?

Shelli Canfield

features staff writer

A ny student whose father graduated from Notre Dame could recite from memory countless stories about how Dad studied under the Dome. Many of the tales have grown tall with the years. The third floor window he climbed up to by shimmying up the spouting, just may have been a first floor window. The fact he got in his dorm after lights out was still in itself a major accomplishment.

So what was the University really like 30 years ago? No endless party then, either, for Notre Dame students. We are talking about men who, after a Saturday night out, tried their damnest not to stumble off the bus, walking a straight line under the Dome. Many of the tales were all held in LeMans Hall, it being the only classroom building on campus until the Science Hall was built in 1955, and MORRIS and O'Laughlin Auditorium in 1956.

Students attended class dressed in their required uniforms, consisting of a charcoal wool suit, and dark shoes in the winter, and pastel shoes in the winter, and pastel (or one piece dresses in the spring and fall. Those today who cringe at putting nylons for a twice a semester SYR, should know hose was always required then.

Uniforms were discarded at dinner time, when everyone was expected to "dress for dinner." Dinner was an event in itself in those days. The current main lobby of LeMann Hall served as the cafeteria, with kitchens in what is now the housing and career counseling offices. Students had assigned places at the table, which rotated each month. Seniors enjoyed the privilege of eating with a member of an unusually large staff.

The experience of living at Saint Mary's is in itself one of the most unforgettable and constructive factors in the student's college years. The Saint Mary's girl is a member of an unusually large cosmopolitan group, not too large for general acquaintance, large enough to offer opportunity for the finest and most stimulating friendships of her life. In regard to her social program... campus diversions are practically unlimited... The Bulletin, 1955-56.

The "campus diversions" enjoyed by a Saint Mary's student in the '50s may seem archaic, boring or amusing today. But in retrospect, students then probably complained a lot less about having something to do on the weekends than students in 1989.

Social life definitely has undergone some changes since then. But as History Professor Dr. Charles Poinsatte put it, "students were a fun-loving, and certainly not dull group." Poinsatte is one of a few Saint Mary's professors who have been here since the '50s, and remembers the College then. Classes at that time were all held in LeMann Hall, it being the only classroom building on campus until the Science Hall was built in 1955, and MORRIS and O'Laughlin Auditorium in 1956.

Students attended class dressed in their required uniforms, consisting of a charcoal wool suit, and dark shoes in the winter, and pastel shoes in the winter, and pastel (or one piece dresses in the spring and fall. Those today who cringe at putting nylons for a twice a semester SYR, should know hose was always required then.

Uniforms were discarded at dinner time, when everyone was expected to "dress for dinner." Dinner was an event in itself in those days. The current main lobby of LeMann Hall served as the cafeteria, with kitchens in what is now the housing and career counseling offices. Students had assigned places at the table, which rotated each month. Seniors enjoyed the privilege of eating with a member of an unusually large staff.

The experience of living at Saint Mary's is in itself one of the most unforgettable and constructive factors in the student's college years. The Saint Mary's girl is a member of an unusually large cosmopolitan group, not too large for general acquaintance, large enough to offer opportunity for the finest and most stimulating friendships of her life. In regard to her social program... campus diversions are practically unlimited... The Bulletin, 1955-56.

The "campus diversions" enjoyed by a Saint Mary's student in the '50s may seem archaic, boring or amusing today. But in retrospect, students then probably complained a lot less about having something to do on the weekends than students in 1989.

Social life definitely has undergone some changes since then. But as History Professor Dr. Charles Poinsatte put it, "students were a fun-loving, and certainly not dull group." Poinsatte is one of a few Saint Mary's professors who have been here since the '50s, and remembers the College then. Classes at that time were all held in LeMann Hall, it being the only classroom building on campus until the Science Hall was built in 1955, and MORRIS and O'Laughlin Auditorium in 1956.

Students attended class dressed in their required uniforms, consisting of a charcoal wool suit, and dark shoes in the winter, and pastel shoes in the winter, and pastel (or one piece dresses in the spring and fall. Those today who cringe at putting nylons for a twice a semester SYR, should know hose was always required then.

Uniforms were discarded at dinner time, when everyone was expected to "dress for dinner." Dinner was an event in itself in those days. The current main lobby of LeMann Hall served as the cafeteria, with kitchens in what is now the housing and career counseling offices. Students had assigned places at the table, which rotated each month. Seniors enjoyed the privilege of eating with a member of an unusually large staff.
Some things change, some don’t continued from page 7

three days a week (a rule designed to encourage daily Mass attendance), there was also required class on Saturday morning. Yes, Saturday. The classes ran in a Tuesday/Thursday/Saturday sequence. In a sense, freshmen were required to take at least one 8:30 a.m. class. Of course, class attendance was mandatory. Take many of the classes the students were allowed three cuts for a three-credit course — with the exception of the fortunate few who made the Dean’s List, who were allowed unlimited cuts. New students were not allowed to take courses right before vacation, but in the 60s that was simply not allowed.

Did students really cut loose on weekends, after being subjected to the rules of the Catholic West Point? Well, in the 60s even cutting loose had its restrictions — strictly enforced. Manuals on student discipline and maps of forbidden zones clearly marked. Until you were 21, you could not get around your roommates’ curfews. At midnight, seniors were allowed to come in through the window. If you were caught, you were "campaused" (grounded) as punishment. You were campasured one week for every five minutes you were late, for up to 30 minutes, after which more severe action was taken. Getting around lights-out, of course; meant the exodus into the men’s room to play poker, or some handy individual would wire the Dean sign to light his room as black cloths were draped over the windows. Just as rules prevailed in the 1950s, so did the Notre Dame idea of fun. Dating? There were occasional mixers at Saint Mary’s, including the annual Saint Mary’s Winter Carnival with its ice skating parties, skis, and dancing to the mellow tunes of Ralph Flanagan and Tommy Dorsey via one small phonograph. But otherwise there was relatively little interaction with the College, unless your roommate had a sister who went there and you would get together and go for coffee or something. Instead, students generally tended to put off dating until they went home and went out with familiar faces.

Fun, at Notre Dame, was generally equated with intramural sports, drinking against the rules, card playing (especially bridge and hearts), free weekends in Chippewa and where ever else your friends and roommates might call home. Fort Lauderdale was popular for seniors, it was fairly unlimited (depending on the number of complaints). The curfew was at 1 a.m., exceptions were made for formats until 2 or so. The only time camping was allowed on campus, and drinking off campus was only permitted if you were 21. Until you were 21, you were not permitted to spend a weekend away from campus without special permission and a note from your parents. Freshmen were limited to one or two away weekends a month. Care to entertain a young lady in your room? Not only did the door have to be open six inches, but there were set hours for that. Want to hit the racquet court of South Bend? The chance top the house cars were not allowed on campus (no exceptions), unless you lived off campus.

Meal hours were 12 to 1 for dinner and 6 to 6 for supper. Surprisingly, there was no dress code until 1975, when students were required to wear a coat and tie to the evening meal. It was typical of a Notre Dame man to get around this rule — as well as many of the others — as quickly as possible. More than one student visited the Salvation Army to purchase a catchy coat and tie and wear every single day for two years straight. After all, with few women around, who was there to impress?

As far as clothing went, anything went. Many a student went glibly and made heroic attempts at growing sturdy beards. As for meals, well, some things never change. There were complaints about lack of variety and quality of the food. The remedy was either to go to The Huddle for a hamburger or take a bus downtown for pizza. The penalties for breaking a rule were quite severe. Being caught with alcohol, for example, merited automatic suspension for up to a semester, and the second offense brought the possibility of expulsion. If you were caught drunk, you could be thrown out. Nicholas Healy, who graduated in 1960, recalls his roommate freshman year in Cavanaugh, who was caught housing it up in the basement of the hall. The rector reported him, and he was suspended after one semester.

Students also tried to get around the rules by signing in and out at morning checks. If you happened to be a little late for midnight curfew, your roommate could also sign you in as you vainly tried to crawl in through the window. If you were caught, you were "campaused" (grounded) as punishment. You were campused one week for every five minutes you were late, for up to 30 minutes, after which more severe action was taken. Getting around lights-out, of course; meant the exodus into the men’s room to play poker, or some handy individual would wire the Dean sign to light his room as black cloths were draped over the windows. Just as rules prevailed in the 1950s, so did the Notre Dame idea of fun. Dating? There were occasional mixers at Saint Mary’s, including the annual Saint Mary’s Winter Carnival with its ice skating parties, skis, and dancing to the mellow tunes of Ralph Flanagan and Tommy Dorsey via one small phonograph. But otherwise there was relatively little interaction with the College, unless your roommate had a sister who went there and you would get together and go for coffee or something. Instead, students generally tended to put off dating until they went home and went out with familiar faces.

Fun, at Notre Dame, was generally equated with intramural sports, drinking against the rules, card playing (especially bridge and hearts), free weekends in Chippewa and where ever else your friends and roommates might call home. Fort Lauderdale was popular for seniors, it was fairly unlimited (depending on the number of complaints). The curfew was at 1 a.m., exceptions were made for formats until 2 or so. The only time camping was allowed on campus, and drinking off campus was only permitted if you were 21. Until you were 21, you were not permitted to spend a weekend away from campus without special permission and a note from your parents. Freshmen were limited to one or two away weekends a month. Care to entertain a young lady in your room? Not only did the door have to be open six inches, but there were set hours for that. Want to hit the racquet court of South Bend? The chance top the house cars were not allowed on campus (no exceptions), unless you lived off campus.

Meal hours were 12 to 1 for dinner and 6 to 6 for supper. Surprisingly, there was no dress code until 1975, when students were required to wear a coat and tie to the evening meal. It was typical of a Notre Dame man to get around this rule — as well as many of the others — as quickly as possible. More than one student visited the Salvation Army to purchase a catchy coat and tie and wear every single day for two years straight. After all, with few women around, who was there to impress?

As far as clothing went, anything went. Many a student went glibly and made heroic attempts at Everything in its own time, place

continued from page 7

expected to contribute to the dinner conversation. And that did not include complaining about the food, rumored to be quite good during that time. "We sat down to a served meal three times a day," said Sister Miriam Patrick Cooney, president of the Department of English. The students in the '50s Cooney was vice president for development. The difference in students is "Lunch sister Miriam Club, remembers teaching five food, rumored to be quite good classes on Western Civilization with Poinsatte tended to bring in more outside visor for the International Relations history majors out of that class.

Saint Mary's students of the '50s lived in either Holy Cross, the Freshman dorm, or LeMans. The library was housed in what is now the Queen's Court section of LeMans. Student room did not feature all the comforts of home popular today. There were no refrigerators, and one phone on each floor. Students were permitted a tin to keep cookies in however.

Since LeMans was basically the College at this time, all administrative offices were housed there. What is now the Registrar's office was the Office of the Dean of Students. Students had to sign out there, and never left campus with out doing so. A parental letter was needed for permission to leave overnight.

The current area of the business and financial aid offices was one big room- the Louis IV Ballroom, a combination convocation and dance ball, featuring "velvet cur tains and chandeliers," according to Cooney. Dances were extravagant formal affairs then, and there were more of them. But each had one Big Dance for the year, a weekend long event, which ended Sunday night and a Communion breakfast on Sunday, according to the 1956 Blue Mantle.

The Freshman formal featured a band and "freshmen entertained their dates during intermission in the East parlors." Sophomore Cotillion included a grand march into the ballroom and a Cotillion Queen. Juniors had their prom and Seniors had Senior Ball.

In addition, there was the Charity

Ball at Christmas, which attempted to raise money for needy South Bend families. Dances did not include any outside activity during the '50s. With no parlarets at all, Notre Dame men never got a glimpse of a Saint Mary's dorm room, and room parties were obviously impossible. Host parties would have gotten you expelled. But dances featured different activities than the standard SYR of today. Parties of a different sort were held in the Clubhouse then. Notre Dame men came over, sat around the fire roasting marshmallows and drinking coke. Suits and dresses were required, and the night was spent playing charades or ping pong.

Then there was the famous Sunday afternoon Tea Dance, held each week in LeMans. "Guys swarmed over here on Sundays," recalled Cooney. "They had to have tickets to get in, and once they were here, they held the piano and sang popular campus songs." Without parlarets and the co exchange system, how else did Saint Mary's women socialize, one asks? Well, many romances began while ND and SMC students entered and taught CCD classes together, said Cooney. The two student governments have always worked together and shared many clubs, like the ever popular Square Dancing Club. And clubs like Notre Dame's Philosophy Club and Saint Mary's Thomist Club worked to gether. The Columbine Club was a drama organization that put on play tournaments each year, like 1954's French farces. One organization, the St. Martin de Porres Scholarship, featured the slogan "a penny a day for Martin," in the hopes of provid ing a one-year scholarship at Saint Mary's for a southern black student. Other social events of the year included the junior Home Party, to introduce freshmen to the ND freshmen, the junior Christmas dinner, a semiformal in the dining room, where juniors sang carols and candles, and the Faculty-Senior Dessert in St. Mary's and St. Patrick's.

Students who have alumnae parents that aren't too sympathetic about the recent alcohol policy favor really can't be blamed. During the '50s alcohol was not allowed on either campus. At Saint Mary's, students signed an agreement upon arriving, pledging not to indulge during the school year. And if you were unlucky enough to be caught with alcohol, you were automatically sent home for two weeks, no matter if you were from South Bend, Los Angeles or New York.

During the week, lectures were popular diversions from study. Most students attended two lectures a week, and a concert every two weeks. Bridge was another extremely popular pastime, said Teresa Marcy, a 1959 graduate, and assistant to the vice president now.

"You could only smoke in certain places," she said. "The rectangle smokestacks in LeMans basement would be filled with girls smoking and playing bridge between classes.

Marcy is from South Bend, and only lived on campus her sophomore more year. But she was "involved in everything," as SMC orchestra, singing at Mass, and student council.

"You must think of a different lifestyle, not only here but anywhere," said Cooney. "If it's foreign to the times we ridicule it, but everything has to be put into the context of how times were then."
Off-Campus still tops Krause

By KEVIN HERBERT

In interhall hockey action Tuesday, Corrigan division leaders Alumni and Pangborn battled to a 3-3 tie while in Krank division, Monday, Off Campus maintained its one-point lead with a 3-2 win over Keenan. And, Grace kept pace with a 4-1 win over Cavanaugh/Howard.

In the one Krause division game played tonight, the Krause division leadership was at stake Tuesday evening when the two teams squared off against one another. Alumni and Pangborn came into the game with identical records of 3-0; they left the A.H.C. still locked with new records of 3-0-1.

Pangborn jumped out of the gate quickly two minutes into the game when defensive leader Tony Majerus, assisted by Brian Grenander, scored. Pangborn, and Keenan, kept pace with a 4-1 win over Cavanaugh/Howard.

In one Krause division game played tonight, the Krause division leadership was at stake Tuesday evening when the two teams squared off against one another. Alumni and Pangborn came into the game with identical records of 3-0; they left the A.H.C. still locked with new records of 3-0-1.

A Krause division tied the game quickly two minutes into the game when defensive leader Tony Majerus, assisted by Brian Grenander, scored. Pangborn, and Keenan, kept pace with a 4-1 win over Cavanaugh/Howard.

In the one Krause division game played tonight, the Krause division leadership was at stake Tuesday evening when the two teams squared off against one another. Alumni and Pangborn came into the game with identical records of 3-0; they left the A.H.C. still locked with new records of 3-0-1.

In one Krause division game played tonight, the Krause division leadership was at stake Tuesday evening when the two teams squared off against one another. Alumni and Pangborn came into the game with identical records of 3-0; they left the A.H.C. still locked with new records of 3-0-1.

In one Krause division game played tonight, the Krause division leadership was at stake Tuesday evening when the two teams squared off against one another. Alumni and Pangborn came into the game with identical records of 3-0; they left the A.H.C. still locked with new records of 3-0-1.

In one Krause division game played tonight, the Krause division leadership was at stake Tuesday evening when the two teams squared off against one another. Alumni and Pangborn came into the game with identical records of 3-0; they left the A.H.C. still locked with new records of 3-0-1.

In one Krause division game played tonight, the Krause division leadership was at stake Tuesday evening when the two teams squared off against one another. Alumni and Pangborn came into the game with identical records of 3-0; they left the A.H.C. still locked with new records of 3-0-1.
The Army Nursing Corps is accepting applications for the following positions:

- News Editor
- Features Editor
- Sports Editor
- Viewpoint Editor
- Advertising Manager
- Production Manager

Questions about these positions should be directed to Sarah Hamilton at The Observer, Personal statements and resumes are due Wednesday, Feb. 27 at 5 p.m.

The Observer
3rd Floor, LaFortune Student Center
Notre Dame, IN 46556

By MARTY BURNS
Sports Writer

Increased playing time was a timely gift for ND freshman Brommeland

By MARIE BURNS
Sports Writer

Mary DiStanislao's squad was not expected to win 74-53, with 12 points on six-of-eight shooting, and five boards. Continuing her assault on North Star Conference opponents, she scored five points in ten minutes against Dayton, and then, finally, a career-high 20 points in 22 minutes of play in the Irish blowout of Xavier last week.

Coach DiStanislao was to say the least, satisfied. "She came off the bench and really gave us a boost with her ability to score," the Irish coach says. "She was willing to do the work, she has came a long way, and she gains more confidence as she goes along." Brommeland, who prepped at Naples High School in Naples, Fla., is an extraordinarily versatile player, since at 6-3 she can play the strong inside game, or step out and utilize her deft shooting touch from the outside. This flexibility makes her an ideal player off the bench to score,

"Her best asset is her strength inside," says DiStanislao. "Plus she has a very good touch around the basket, and an exceptional shooting touch from outside, which most people her size do not have.

"But," DiStanislao adds, "she has to learn how to play more aggressively and to use some strength on defense." Brommeland agrees with her coach's assessments. "My weakness is aggressiveness, especially in rebounding. Everyone on the team agrees that the inside game is so aggressive. I just have to get used to going after the ball.

"It's coming though," she adds, "Now I'm getting more experience and I'm learning to adjust to the flows of the game.

And as Kathy Brommeland gets in the groove, so do the Irish, who find themselves 14-8 on the season and 7-1 in the conference. For the young Brommeland it was a very merry Christmas, and so far, it has been a happy new year.
Zamboni driver an important part of ND hockey

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

When the Notre Dame hockey team takes the ice for a game it becomes the Zamboni drivers' turn to shine. The fans' cheers are directed at the players, coach, and to a lesser extent, the managers and trainer. All are visible parts of what constitute Notre Dame hockey.

Few people, however, will stop and consider the job of the three men who keep the rink ice-cold. After all, once the Zamboni rolls by, the surface is one, cold, ice-covered sheet of frozen water.

Starting in early September, the three men work together on the day shift to keep the ice in prime condition. They are Jerry Samuels, Larry Lembo, and Jerry McCormick.

On the shuffle and excitement of the game, the job of the Zamboni driver is often taken for granted. Holding the record for the ACC for ice rink set-up and maintenance as well as keeping the arena clean and presentable are Notre Dame's own Ice Men: Harry Onax, Larry Grant, and Kevin Clark.

The Zamboni driver is making his entrance. The Zamboni is the last special guest to make his appearance in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference tournament to get an NCAA bid.

The ice men play a key role in maintaining the ice and the equipment," says head coach Lefty Smith. "You really have to know what you're doing and have to concentrate when you're doing it. All three, Harry, Larry and Kevin, do a fine job for us."

"We can't emphasize the importance of concentration enough," says Onax, who, one time last season, had tennis balls lobbed at him while on the ice. "That incident was not very good, but in general, the student participation is great. Just wish we could acknowledge it more without fear of causing a disaster on the ice."

"You must learn to block out the crowd," says Clark. "But I do like hearing the students cheering or yelling. It gives you a feeling of recognition and appreciation. I really like the job."

"I like not only working with the equipment, but with the students and all the people who use the rink," says Grant. "There's a special atmosphere that the kids bring from the littlest up to the varsity athletes, and it's neat to develop relationships with all of them."

The Zamboni driver may be a mysterious person to many, but the job is an important one for the smooth functioning of an ice rink. And Notre Dame's Harry Onax, Larry Grant and Kevin Clark are three such Ice Men who know their jobs well.

Rams
continued from page 16

a zone to try to force them out of there range," he said. "We always lose time off the clock with the defense."

IRISH ITEMS Field goals accounted for only 12-of-Notre Dame's 75.2 second-half points. The Irish (15-7) flew home this morning to prepare for Saturday's game against BYU. The Rams (17-9) need to win the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference tournament to get an NCAA bid.

Notre Dame 65, Fordham 54
Notre Dame (65)
M F A FT A R F P
Barlow 21 5 5 5 1 3 8 17
Royal 30 1 1 2 6 4 7
Kamper 35 3 3 5 7 10 3
Hicks 25 3 5 1 1 6
Leone 16 4 4 4 6 2
Duff 17 0 0 0 0 0 0
Hicks 25 3 5 1 1 6
Barlow 35 5 5 5 5 5 26
Hicks 25 3 3 3 3 3 7
Price 5 1 1 1 1 1 2
Benson 17 0 0 0 0 0 0
Jones 20 0 0 0 0 0 0
Gibson 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
Pepper 1 1 1 1 1 1 1
Smith 4 0 0 0 0 0 0
Fordham (54)
CLE Field goals Free throw assists rebounds turnovers - 4 Turnovers - 14 Assists - 8
McCormick 6 1 2 3 3 7 8 22
Sands 20 7 3 4 4 11 24
Parker 19 5 5 5 13 9 2 32
Williams 34 1 1 2 2 2 3 16
Hicks 25 3 3 3 3 3 7
Mclnch 24 0 0 0 0 0 0
Nelson 11 4 4 4 4 4 2 12
Jones 15 3 3 3 3 3 11 27
Brown 5 0 0 0 0 0 0
Dickens 1 0 0 0 0 0 0
Fordham (54)
CLE Field goals Free throw assists rebounds turnovers - 4 Turnovers - 14 Assists - 8
McCormick 6 1 2 3 3 7 8 22
Sands 20 7 3 4 4 11 24
Parker 19 5 5 5 13 9 2 32
Williams 34 1 1 2 2 2 3 16
Hicks 25 3 3 3 3 3 7
Mclnch 24 0 0 0 0 0 0
Nelson 11 4 4 4 4 4 2 12
Jones 15 3 3 3 3 3 11 27
Brown 5 0 0 0 0 0 0
Dickens 1 0 0 0 0 0 0
Fordham (54)
CLE Field goals Free throw assists rebounds turnovers - 4 Turnovers - 14 Assists - 8
Gymnastics club not anxious to make jump to varsity level

By TOM YOON
Sports Writer

With many club sports wanting varsity status, the gymnastics club, with Tim Sennett as president, wants to remain at club level.

"Being at club level allows beginners an opportunity to learn gymnastics," explains Sennett; "but at the same time, with the improved facilities, we can still compete with other mid-western varsity teams. We have over 60 members and this is our largest club ever. With the new equipment, which was bought by us and Non-Varsity Athletics, and Sandy Van slagel as our coach, it will be only a matter of time before we become a force in the Midwest."

In this past weekend's meet in the Angelo Athletic Center at Saint Mary's, the women's gymnastics team went up against Purdue and came out victorious. Leading the way for the women's team this season are Junior Cheryl Sydow and seniors Dena Heisler and Megan Zaling.

When commenting on the women's team, Tim replied, "The women's team is very strong," notes Sennett. "They will probably win their last two meets."

The men's team, on the other hand, placed second behind St. Cloud, Michigan and ahead of Purdue. The men's team is led by sophomore Matt Sennett, junior Mike Downing, senior Mike Dorenbusch, and freshman Paul Nowak, an all-around performer and a future team leader.

"This year is a rebuilding year because we lost two men to the London program," Rich John and Jim Kaiser, who will both return next year, notes Sennett. "However, our program has been hampered by injuries. Matt has had a shoulder and ankle injury and I have a broken leg. This probably would have been my best year because I'm in the best shape I have ever been in. But even though I'm injured, I still help coach the other athletes."

Since we are only a club, our main concern is academics, and because of that reason, it is very difficult.

With many club sports wanting varsity status, the gymnastics team, with Tim Sennett as president, wants to remain at club level. But, with the new equipment, which was bought, the club will be able to have more home meets, which are held at Angelo Athletic Center in Saint Mary's. Their remaining meets are against Eastern Michigan, Miami (Ohio), and School Craft, Michigan.

"We should defeat School Craft and Miami (Ohio), but Eastern Michigan has a strong varsity team and we hope that it will only be a matter of time before we can compete at their level. Most likely that time is next year."

BOXING CLUB: With the Bengal Bouts quickly approaching (March 3, 5, and 8), the Notre Dame boxing club is winding down its training season that began at the start of the semester.

"The quality of the boxers is very high," says Boxing Club President Mike Lati, "and I expect many evenly-matched bouts and more actions because we are in a better shape."

This is the 55th anniversary of the Bouts, and all the money they raise will go to the Bangladeshi missions. Their motto is "The strong fight so the weak can be protected." The Bouts, held in Stepan Center, always attract large crowds.

MEN'S VOLLEYBALL: The men's volleyball team is having its first home meet at the ACC Pit this Friday at 7 p.m. The Irish will face Ball State and the University of Michigan. There is no admission fee so a big crowd is expected.

The Knights of the Castle
Men's Hair Styling at its finest... minutes from campus!

$0.00 HAIRCUTS
Haircut, shampoo, & blowdry $8.50

FRIDAYS 3-12 pm
SATURDAYS 9-12 pm

Across from Martin's

The Observer
Thursday, February 21, 1985 — page 13
Saint Mary’s swim team leader
Byrne fared better than expected

By KATHLEEN NICHOLSON
Sports Writer

When Ellen Byrne came to Saint Mary’s College her freshman year, she had no intentions of continuing her swimming career. After many years and many yards at the Wauhtchick Aquatic Club, the Gwynedd Valley, Pa., native felt it was time to hang up her goggles when she finished high school.

Now, with two national competitions and All-America status added to her credits, the Saint Mary’s senior is glad she decided to stay and take part in the sport she had grown up with.

"I really didn’t expect to swim at Saint Mary’s," says Byrne. "but when I got here a few of the girls talked me into going out for the team. I’m from a swimming family and have been involved with the sport since age eight. I think I would have missed a great opportunity to represent Saint Mary’s in the water one last time as she plunges into the Indiana University natatorium for her final national competition this year."

In her four years here, Byrne has been an asset to Saint Mary’s through her participation and promotion of athletics.

"My first semester was exciting because the team didn’t expect to do well and we surprised ourselves," Byrne says.

This year we hope to have a stronger finish than we did last year. I’d really like to see the team place in the Top Ten."

Since Byrne’s freshman year there have been many changes in the Saint Mary’s swim program. She has seen three different coaches and a program that has strengthened and expanded. She anticipates that swimming will grow at Saint Mary’s in future years with the team’s success in the water one last time as she plunges into the Indiana University natatorium for her final national competition.

"In future years, I think we will be able to send the Saint Mary’s star below."

Byrne fared better than expected

Byrne helped to coordinate, represent varsity and non-varsity athletes, and functions for the purpose of gaining increased recognition and participation in athletics at Saint Mary’s.

"Participation in athletics here at Saint Mary’s has been a positive experience," says Byrne. "I’ve met a lot of great people and I’ve gained a sense of discipline and responsibility, especially this year being captain of the swimmers."

In her four years here, Byrne has been an asset to Saint Mary’s through her participation and promotion of athletics. She is considered one of the best swimmers Saint Mary’s has ever had.

Ellen Byrne, senior captain of the Saint Mary’s swimming team, has had a successful career for the Belles. Byrne has been named an All-America swimmer, and has had the honor of swimming in the National Meet. Kathleen Nicholson profiles the Saint Mary’s star below.

Even Straight A's Can’t Help if You Flunk Tuition.

Today, the toughest thing about going to college is finding the money to pay for it. But Army ROTC can help—two ways!

First, you can apply for an Army ROTC scholarship. It covers tuition, books, and supplies, and pays you up to $1,000 each school year it’s in effect.

But even if you’re not a scholarship recipient, Army ROTC can still help with financial assistance—up to $1,000 a year for your last two years in the program.

For more information, contact your Professor of Military Science, ARMY ROTC, or call LTC Skinner (812) 239-6264.
Rivers’ 22 pace Irish in 65-54 win over Fordham

ND controls tempo, converts timely free throws to beat Rams in Garden

By DAVE DZIEDZIC
Observer/Special Writer

NEW YORK - Notre Dame’s quest for an NCAA tournament bid is still going strong after last night’s 65-54 victory over Fordham. This was a tough and important win for us,” said Irish coach Digger Phelps. “With three of our last five games at home, we have an excellent shot at 20 wins and an NCAA bid. The Irish dictated the tempo most of the game and took advantage of their free-throw opportunities before 10,829 at Madison Square Garden. “We had to keep the tempo going,” said Phelps. “We wanted to jump out early and force the action.” The Irish did indeed jump in front, using a balanced scoring attack to take a 35-21 halftime lead. Employing a tough man-to-man defense, Notre Dame kept pressure on Fordham. The Rams suffered two first-half field goal droughts (4:51 and 3:03) in which they looked tentative and uncomfortable. “They weren’t playing our game offensively in the first half,” said Fordham coach Tom Penders, whose team shot just 28 percent in the first half. “Notre Dame’s defense was the reason. They’re the best defensive club we’ve played.” Especially impressive was the defense of Irish sophomore guard Scott Hicks. Hicks covered senior guard Tony McIntosh, Fordham’s leading scorer, like a glove. McIntosh, averaging more than 19 points a game, could manage only six first-half points and 16 for the game. “Hicks was really happy with our first 12 minutes of the game,” said Irish forward Ken Barlow, who had 17 points and classmate Tim Kempton added 10. Hicks and sophomore Donald Royal had seven each. Junior Jim Dolan, with two points, was the only Irish non-starter to score. Even though the Irish had the game under control most of the way, the Rams stayed close by applying tough defensive pressure in the second half. Fordham cut the Irish lead to four with 9:28 remaining, but that’s as small as the lead shrunk. The Irish made nine of 14 free throws from that point to keep the Rams at bay. “I’m proud of the way the team kept its composure in the second half,” Phelps said. “We followed our game plan and it paid off.” As they have all season, the Irish continued their solid free-throw shooting, hitting 74 percent (25 of 34) for the game. The Rams shot 75 percent from the line, but went to the line only 18 times. Penders expressed some displeasure with the officiating. “It was a very physical game,” he said. “I thought some calls went the wrong way. Their free throws kept us out of our flow once we had gotten closer. But Notre Dame is a very good basketball team. Our kids played well but didn’t deserve to win tonight.” This game guards - McIntosh, Jerry Hobbie and reserve George Jones - fouled out of the game. Phelps changed defenses in the second half, switching to a hustling zone. “We switched to see RAMS, page 12

Keys scores 28 as ND women beat Loyola, 84-59

Irish tighten grip on NSC top spot by dominating Ramblers in 2nd half

By MIKE SULLIVAN

The Notre Dame women’s basketball team gave the rest of the North Star Conference a very strong message when it destroyed Loyola of Chicago, 84-59, in the ACC last night. To win the conference championship, you are going to have to beat Notre Dame first. The Irish left no doubt that they are the team to beat in the North Star when they blew open a tight one-point game in the second half with one of the nation’s best defenses and with a 23-point explosion by forward Trena Keys. The win strengthened Notre Dame’s hold on the top spot in the conference. The Irish improved the Irish NSC record to 7-1 (14-8 overall). Dayton, which lost to Notre Dame earlier, stands second at 6-2; while the third place Lady Ramblers fall to 6-5 (15-9 overall). It was a 14-0 spurt during a four-minute span in the second half that put the Irish in control. From the 15:11 to 11:05 mark, Notre Dame stretched its lead from 8:35 to 52-35 and Loyola could never recover. The Irish never were closer than 11 before the Notre Dame bench came on to stretch the lead into the 20s. “I was really happy with our first 12 minutes and our last 20,” said Irish coach Mary Beth Scherur. “We played very good defense and Trena did a good job on offense. Also, reserve point guard Mary Givens didn’t turn the ball over so we could run our offense. In fact, I think (the nation’s assist leader) Faith Maymon may have met her match.” Givens and her teammates were able to stop Loyola’s offense which had been averaging just under 73 points a game by containing Maymon, who had been averaging an amazing 11.6 assists per contest. The 5-2 senior who runs the Ramblers offense was held to five assists - only one in the second half - by an Irish defense that held the visitors to 59 percent shooting. With Loyola having its shooting problems and Notre Dame dominating the boards (44-28 rebounding edge), the Ramblers gradually gave out. “We knew the key to winning the game was to beat them on the boards,” said Dallamastas. “We couldn’t let them get any second shots, something I think we did very well.” Forward Mary Beth Scherur and center Sandy Botham did most of the work under the boards, combining for 25 rebounds, almost as much as the entire Loyola team. A member of those rebounds turned into Notre Dame bench doubles at both Scherur and Botham picked up 17 points. However, as usual, the star of the offense was Keys. The Junior finished with 28 points (10 of 14 from the field, 6 of 12 from the line). Ten of those points came early in the second half when the Irish stretched their 27-26 halftime lead to double digits. She was one of four Notre Dame players to score in double figures - Laura Dougherty joined her; Scherur and Botham by scoring 11. With Keys playing a major role, Notre Dame was able to overcome nine first-half turnovers that allowed Loyola to stay close, despite the fact that the visitors did not even score a point for the first five-and-a-half minutes of the game. The Irish were able to go ahead 8-0 during