Professor Rogers dead at 51

Special to The Observer
Stephen J. Rogers, a professor in the Notre Dame department of liberal studies, died Friday of an apparent heart attack at approximately noon in the emergency room of Memorial Hospital. He was 51.

He had been blind since early childhood and taught poetry and other classes at Notre Dame since 1961. He graduated from the University's liberal studies program in 1956.

He also held a doctorate in comparative literature from Harvard University and could read five languages.

In 1974, his book, "Classical Greece and the Poetry of Chioner, Shelley and Leopold," was published. Numerous other scholarly and philosophical works of his were also published throughout his career, most recently concentrating on what Rogers called "different ways of knowing."

Rogers helped to develop a course in the Notre Dame architecture department which taught students how to design buildings that are esthetically attractive and accessible to the blind.

"He was one of the most inspiring teachers at Notre Dame because of his excellence in the face of a significant handicap," said Walter Nicaragua, liberal studies chairman.

He was born Aug. 19, 1935, in Middletown, Mass. In 1960, he married Dana Adomaitis, who survives with two daughters, Andrea D. and Maria L., at home; three sons, Paul A. and John S., both at home, and Thomas J. of South Bend.

Also surviving is his sister, Mary Buckley of Middletown, and a brother, Paul E. of Wilmington, Mass.

Services for Rogers were held this morning at 10 at Sacred Heart Church. Burial will be in Riverview Cemetery. He was a member of the Holy Cross Catholic Church.

Natural gas explosion blasts town; 5 killed, 3 injured, 40 evacuated

Associated Press
BEAUMONT, Ky. - A natural gas line explosion killed five people, gorged a 20-foot-deep crater and flattened six buildings in a tiny community, igniting fires that were visible 20 miles away, authorities said yesterday.

Three people were seriously injured in the blast Saturday night that ripped up a section of Kentucky 60, devoured a mile square area, and forced the evacuation of about 40 people, according to authorities.

The dead included four members of the Notre Dame document.

ND/SMC professors voice opposition to aid for Nicaraguan rebels

By JOHN HINES
Copy Editor

Two hundred and sixty-five Notre Dame professors have signed a document supporting the U.S. Catholic bishops' opposition to any military aid to Nicaraguan rebels.

The statement, titled "The Catholic Church and Central America," was released early this month.

"The bishops' opposition is that of such great social integrity, it calls for an economic and political solution rather than military," said Father Robert Pelton director of the Notre Dame Institute for Clergy Education and a signator of the Notre Dame document.

Endorsing Social Integrity is the "core problem" in Central America according to the April 17 statement of the U.S. Catholic Bishops' Conference opposing aid to Nicaraguan rebels presented to the House of Representatives by Cardinal John O'Connor.

"They (countries in Central America) will blow up (up) because there's extraordinary, undevolopment from a material point of view and there are great class differences," continued Pelton.

The bishops have labelled the attempt overthrow of government, which we are not currently at war with and are maintaining diplomatic relations as "illegal and immoral."

The bishops also believe that it jeopardizes the political process in the region.

"It states treaty obligations and undermines the moral standing of the United States in the world community," noted the bishops' statement.

Essentially, the bishops oppose Nicaraguan military aid from any source and advocate a political solution as the only resolution to the conflict in the region. This is in opposition to the Reagan administration's admitted policy of covert operations to destabilize the present Sandinista government there. By supporting the bishops, the signators oppose the administration's policy.

"There's a basic message of saying there are other ways to bring about a peaceful solution in Central America," said Monsignor Joseph Gremillion director of the University's Institute for Pastoral and Social Ministry and signator of the document.

The solution is to "encourage the Contra's process and, second, to start cultural and economic ties," explained Peter Walther, professor of Economic Social studies and director of African studies.

The Contra talks are an attempt by Mexico, Panama, Columbia, and Venezuela to arrive at a peaceable solution to the problems facing all of Central America.

"Nicaragua has no other place to trade than with the United States. We are forcing them away," continued Walther.

If the bishops have correctly diagnosed that a military solution is not the solution to the problems of Latin and Central America," said Prof. Walther explaininig his support for the document.

Last Thursday the House defeated President Reagan's proposed $14 million nonmilitary aid package to the Nicaraguan rebels. "I think the people and Congress have recognized the duplicity of asking (for nonmilitary aid) to the Contras. It's a finesse paper along saying we will do it for humanitarian reasons," observed Gremillion.

New York City police commissioner announced a reshuffling of his top command hierarchy after allegations by four men that officers tortured them with electric stun guns. Commissioner Benjamin Ward described a “crisis in confidence” and added, “I will not tolerate brutal cops,” as he announced the removal of Assistant Chief William Fitzpatrick, the commander of police in Queens, where the torture allegedly occurred. The announcement came after a fourth man said he had been insulted, beaten and tortured at the 106th Precinct by two officers already accused of using stun guns on three drug suspects. Eighteen officers from the 106th Precinct have been transferred, four have been arrested and another suspended in connection with the torture complaints. - AP

Americans are split on President Reagan’s decision of whether or not he should have agreed to visit a German military cemetery. According to a Newsweek magazine poll released Saturday, 60% of those surveyed believe he should cancel the visit. In a nationwide telephone survey of 635 adults, 40 percent said Reagan was right in agreeing to visit the cemetery at Bitburg, where Nazi SS soldiers are among those buried, while 42 percent said he was wrong. Eighteen percent had no opinion. In light of the controversy that has surrounded the visit, 8 percent said Reagan should not visit the graveyard, and 56 percent said he should. Nine percent had no opinion. The poll, conducted by the Gallup Organization, had a margin of error of 4 percent. - AP

When shopping for credibility and high ethical standards, American adults will browse the newsstand right before they stop at the used-car dealer. It is quite a blow to members of the press to discover that mature American readers compare the fourth estate with only characters sporting smiles as suspiciously wide as the fencers on the jolpes they peddle.

In the latest credibility study commissioned by the American Society of Newspaper Editors only 27 percent of the nation’s newspapers met all the requirement. Eighteen percent regarded newspaper reporters as possessing such standards. Advertising executives and used-car salesmen were the only professionals to rate below the press.

In general, newspaper readers took quite a beating at the hands of this survey. Although the printed news made a strong showing in several categories, such as complicated news stories and local news, television news was the preferred medium and was rated more positively reliable.

The most basic problem that reporters and editors must face is to re-establish newspapers’ most basic purpose, “What is news?” Once the press re-evaluates the nature of the medium, it must conversion to the public happens.

Post-Civil War journalist, John Bogart, defined news, “When a dog bites a man, that is news; when a man bites a dog, that is sport. More generally, Charles Dana of the old New York Sun restated its definition as “anything that makes people talk.” One of William Randolph Hearst’s editors, Arthur McFawn, was more demanding. He required that upon reading a news article people say, “ Gee what?”

James Kilpatrick, a 40-year veteran in the field, and currently a syndicated columnist, offers a more realistic interpretation, “News is what I say it is.” Yes, it is arrogant, but that is the way it is, said Kilpatrick.

Everyday newspaper editors determine what is news by what stories they assign, how they edit their articles, how they design their pages. In the same respect, reporters develop the news by deciding whom to interview, how to write their leads, how to phrase their stories.

Subjectivity is an inherent element in the newspaper business, even though journalists may wave the banner of objectivity. The simple observation that reporters develop the news by deciding whom to interview, how to write their leads, how to phrase their stories is an inherent element in the newspaper business, even though journalists may wave the banner of objectivity.

The United Religious Community of St. Joseph County has to have the press, the press must return to the practices of fair and accurate coverage. Truth is the standard model that print journalists are selling. Although a newspaper should not tell people what to think, in its news pages, it cannot help but tell them what to think about. This is part of the nature of the medium.

Newspapers can gain the public’s respect only through better communication. The press must work to disseminate the news more accurately and fairly, and must communicate itself to the public as honestly as it can, regardless of the ignorance that is not innate in the medium.

If this is done, the public may notice that the newspaper does not work, but it has experienced and is resident in the press’s solid body and reliable engine.

Groundwater monitoring of toxic landfills suspect

Associated Press
WASHINGTON, D.C. Federally licensed landfills show extensive failure to comply with groundwater monitoring requirements, the chairman of a House oversight subcommittee said yesterday, citing some data he said was shocking.

Eighteen of 59 landfills that have received waste from cleanup of abandoned toxic sites had been ordered to undertake extensive groundwater monitoring after indications of contamination, said a report by the House Energy and Commerce Committee's oversight subcommittee staff.

The report was released in advance of a hearing today on the Environmental Protection Agency's handling of groundwater problems at landfills.

"Clearly, some of the data are shocking, especially when viewed from the perspective that the regulations called for compliance 4 years ago," Rep. John Diebold, D-Mich., chairman of both the committee and the subcommittee, wrote to panel members.

EPA officials said in a briefing for reporters that they would review the report for Diebold's efforts to strengthen enforcement and improve monitoring at 1,246 landfills, impoundment areas, lagoons and land treatment facilities required to undertake groundwater monitoring.

Landfills without contamination are listed as having adequate monitoring wells if they have four in groundwater, one upstream and three downstream, sampling four contaminants. Statistical tests on the sample results indicate whether an expensive full-scale assessment must be performed.

The subcommittee report found that of all facilities, 559 had some indication of groundwater contamination, either by statistical tests, by confirmed sampling, or by the undertaking of full-scale monitoring.

Honorary degrees to be conferred

The announcement of 10 persons to receive honorary degrees at Notre Dame's 140th Commencement May 19 reveals the event will have an international flavor.

Joining El Salvador's president, Jose Napoleon Duarte, a 1958 Notre Dame alumus previously announced as Commencement speaker, will be Italian Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti, the Secretary of the Chinese Academy of Science, Gu Yi Jian, also a graduate of the University, and Father Byers Naude, general secretary of the South African Council of Churches.

The full list of honorary degree candidates includes:

- Jose Napoleon Duarte, president of the Republic of El Salvador, doctor of engineering. A civil engineering graduate who founded El Salvador's Christian Democratic Party, Duarte first ran for president in 1972, and in May 1984 became the first civilian elected president of his nation in a half century.
- Giulio Andreotti, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Italy, doctor of laws. A former socialist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, she and her husband, Robert Reich, now live in Canton, Maine.
- Douglas A. Fraser, past president of the United Auto Workers, doctor of laws. A union member since his teens, Fraser became the sixth president of the nation's second largest union in 1977. In 1980 Fraser joined the Chrysler Board of Directors as a representative of its workers, a post he held until one year after his retirement from presidency of the union in 1983.
- Gu Yi Jian, general secretary of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, doctor of science. Born in Beijing in 1922. Gu received his primary education in China and was awarded his bachelor's degree from the National University of China. Before going back to graduate work at Notre Dame, receiving his M.S. in chemistry in 1950. During the peak of the communist movement, Gu has been a visiting Frank Freieman professor at Notre Dame.
- Donald R. Kenough, president and chief operating officer of the Coca-Cola Company, doctor of laws. An employee of the company since 1950, Kenough held a number of key marketing positions before being named a senior vice president of the Company in 1980 and assumed his current position in 1981. He has been a Notre Dame trustee since 1978.
- Gianni Agnelli, representative from Kentucky, doctor of laws. A 1950 graduate of Notre Dame, Mar nied to the first woman to receive her law degree from the University of Louisville Law School in 1950. He is a lawyer in private practice, and was elected to the Kentucky state senate in 1967 and to the U.S. House of Representatives from the state's Third District in 1970.
- Father Bevers Naude, general secretary of the South African Council of Churches, doctor of laws. At one time a favored candidate for moderator of the Dutch Reformed Church, he denounced the government's racial policies and was arrested, his ecumenical Christian Institute of Southern Africa was outlawed in 1977.
- Sister Marie Augusta Neal, professor of sociology at Emmanuel College, Boston. A member of the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur, Neal's main research has been a study of the changing role of the religious congregations of Catholic women in the United States.

24 rats, 2 squirrel monkeys readied for weeklong space shuttle mission

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. - While the seven-man human crew was returning to Earth on April 19, 24 rats and two squirrel monkeys named "316 needs" and "316-80" were loaded aboard the space shuttle Challenger, ready for a start today on a seven-day mission.

The launch is set for room EDT.

"All systems are go," said Jesse Moore, director of the shuttle program. "We are showing the shipment that will be going up.

The weather looked good for lift off, the second this month, and NASA looks forward to the shortest interval between flights in the space shuttle program. Discovery landed April 19 after a seven-day mission.

The previous "turnaround" record was 44 days.

The crew is comprised of commander Robert Overmyer, pilot Fred Gregory, physicians William Thornton and Norman Thagard, physicists Don Lind and Taylor Wang, and chemist engineer Van den Berg, born in Nicola, the Netherlands, and Wang, born in Shanghai, who are naturalized United States citizens.

In the shuttle's cargo bay is a 12, ton, barrel-shaped laboratory, 23 feet long and 15 feet in diameter, where three scientists will conduct the clock experiments in materials processing, fluid mechanics, life sciences, atmospheric physics and astronomy.

Canadians protest war

Associated Press

OTTAWA, Canada. - Thousands of Canadians staged anti-war protests Saturday and in the federal capital of Ottawa last night. Five people were arrested as they tried to erect tents to spend the night on Parliament Hill.

In Vancouver, British Columbia, protest organizers said 80,000 people attended a demonstration against the United States asking Canada to participate in research for President Reagan's proposed Strategic Defense Initiative, known as the "Star Wars" plan.

"You're involved, and you're not giving up on the peace and disarmament issue," Vancouver Mayor Mike Harcourt told the crowd: "We're not giving up, and we're going to be around long after Star Wars comes and goes."

In Ottawa, three men and two women were arrested by the police when they tried to set up tents on Parliament Hill, which has been declared off-limits to overnight protesters.

The arrests followed a march of 200 people earlier in the day to express support for demonstrators whose two-year-old "peace camp" was dismantled Monday.

If victim had had a gun, he'd have killed mugger

There is a parking garage below Grant Park in downtown Chicago, and two weeks ago Andy LeLand had the opportunity to walk through it at 11:30 p.m.

In the daytime, when the garage is packed and cars in search of a spot are hooning randomly, you cannot hear the footsteps of the commuters. But at night, the cars are gone.

Bob Vonderheide
model based control
and the sound of the petals crunching beneath your shoe give you away as you tiptoe through the cement cave.

This is mugger's country, and two weeks ago Andy LeLand was snatched.

He wasn't much older than Andy — probably younger — but other than that he had nothing in common. He was wearing a stained, yellow shirt with no sleeves, Andy had on a blue Blazer and gray slacks.

In his right hand, the man held a black pipe which he caught in his left as it was cuffed through the air. He looked tough, but startled when he spoke. "Your wallet, man, your wallet."

Crime had won another battle on the streets of America, and Andy LeLand stood there helpless. He would find no help from the police, and even if he did, he would find no help from the courts. Judges are too busy crossing their T's and dotting their I's, and they ignore the men who wear some of the dirty uniform.

As Harper's editor William Tucker wrote, "society can be burning down around them — murderers can be committed right in the back of the courtroom — and they will be entirely oblivious."

In 1983, Judge Morris Lasker freed 615 accused felons because he said New York's jails were overcrowded. But at the same time, Lasker would not open 675 new cells on Riker's Island because he said they were not safe. Within 24 hours of the release, a Harlem woman was raped by a man with a nine-page criminal record.

In Manhattan Criminal Court, the average death penalty case lasts two weeks. Young muggers are released on their own recognizance with the warning: "Do not commit any further crimes." There are 300,000 outstanding fugitive warrants in New York City alone.

In America's major cities, there is little, if any, justice. Once a defense lawyer freed two Hasidic Jews accused of a near-fatal beating when he convinced the jury that all Hasidic Jews look alike.

A con man in Albany once raised money from New York pedestrians who he said would be used to bribe the State Legislature. He was arrested for attempted robbery, but a defense lawyer convinced the jury that the man never intended to use the money, the con man wanted only to steal it. Thus, the lawyer argued, the man should be tried for grand larceny. The jury bought the argument, but shortly afterwards, the larceny charges were dismissed as double jeopardy.

Crime is out of control, and unlike middle-class Andy LeLand, the most susceptible are the millions of hard working poor people.

These people realize that America's thugs are not just children who should be allowed to grow out of it. They are hardened, hardened enough to snatch you as you go past a garbage can.

In his daytime, when the garage was gone, Andy LeLand, a parking service, wrote, "I only wanted to take biology, so it is a feat to admit to learning something."

I remember how much more I learned from actually getting my hands dirty and working.

Heidi Cerneka
in the driver's seat with the pig, then from all my years of looking at slides and movies of the anatomy. I wondered, too, how much my lab partner learned, considering she refused to do anything but watch the dissection.

As our pig dissection began, I was amazed by my lab partner. Every week, unfortunately, she crossed the room and retrieved our pig in its box, and the paraffin-lined box in its box, and the paraffin-lined box in its box. Upon returning, she claimed the privilege of boring my sleeves to remove the pig from its plastic bag and pin it open in the paraffin.

Our job for one day being the circulatory system, I prepared to examine the heart. At this time, my partner donned her plastic gloves to insure no contact with the "disgusting" animal and her nasty formaldehyde pig juice.

Barb was all the help I needed as long as it was necessary to do the task. She seemed to prance; she would read the book, tell stories she had heard about circulation and contribute all her usual factual but disconnected knowledge. As I molded the heart to the right and left to locate major arteries and veins, I patiently explained the system to my partner.

Finally exasperated, I demanded that Barb touch the pig, informing her that I would go no further until she did. So, her gloved finger delicately touched the pig's skin, drawing back as if it was a hot iron. Through my examination and dissection, I came to know, understand and appreciate the circulatory and structural system of our pig. Granted, I did not get to see the heart pump, but I still left lab understanding more about biology and about my own physical system.

Unfortunately I recognize the same pattern in our society's treatment of the underprivileged and handicapped. We lounge in front of our colored televisions and fireplaces in our cozy homes, and when Goodwill calls, we leave a bag of unloved, discarded clothing on our front porch. Then we pat ourselves on the back for our generosity. Or maybe we even donate money to the needy.

All this helps, yet, but how can we even feel the need and disillusionment, when all we ever do is don our gloves and stand back, avoiding contact?

How easy it is to be bold and make contact when we know our one step back will return us to our own secure comfort and will eventually wipe away our revulsion. We all know so much about the gripe and how to help them; we go to church; we read the papers; we are good people. As long as "I do not have to touch or feel the anxiety of the underprivileged, I'll get generosity." The funny thing is, we can go through life never dissecting a pig, never reaching out to others and still live, but we will certainly miss a lot of under standing.

"Like the pig, and us, the spoils are made of flesh, bones and hearts. Think how much easier our lives would be to understand if only we would look inside ourselves and others made just like us. It's easy to be repulsed and to step back from something we have never experienced in fear of the unknown, but it is harder to step forward and face the challenge of a new experience.

Oh, by the way, my apologies for dragging my long and rather long introduction, but at least I did not use real names. And actually I have to thank her for providing the inspiration for this column.

Heidi Cerneka is a sophomore religious studies and English writing major at Saint Mary's and is a regular Viewpoint columnist.

Dear Editor:

Our rector, Father Steve Gibson, has been asked to relinquish his position as Carroll Hall. He does not want to leave, and we do not want him to leave us.

At a recent hall council meeting, Father Steve told us, "You are the most important people in my life." He cares for us and would fight for us. We are his family, and now, we are fighting for him.

Father Steve's goal for Carroll Hall was to make it more than a place to live in: his goal was to make our dorm a "home" for the 100 young men who live here. That goal has been realized. Our dorm is more than a building to live in. We are family.

It is inconceivable that the University can rationalize the firing of Father Steve Gibson with any justification other than as head football coach.

Kevin Conley
Carroll Hall

Dear Editor:

It is not necessary to regulate student life when the administration is truly concerned about the welfare of the student. The administration has been motivated more by the desire for recognition in the University than the care of the students. It is our belief that this University can be proud of thanks to Father Steve Gibson. He is an example of all of us in loving, caring men. We are proud of him and cannot understand why he "does not fit the mold" of what a rector is supposed to be. What is the proper mold?

If a rector is supposed to be a model, he is an occasional disciplinarian, a respected leader in the dorm community, a good friend and a preacher of God's word through words and good example. Father Steve should not be asked to leave. He is the kind of man we need at this point in the University's history. Let Father Steve stay.

Paul Amstrong

Dear Editor:

In the summer of 1984, I received a card informing me that my two first choices of residence halls were filled, and that I was informing me of my two first choices of dorms. It is also my belief that those who most influence a rector? The student. We love our rector - we live across the lake with him 24 hours a day.

I am not suggesting that students should judge their rectors. I do agree, however, that it is the student who knows the rector best in the context that is most important to the student in his role as a student. The real question is why Father Steve was removed.

I believe that the administration has made this decision in the interest of all of us. If I were to give a clear explanation of my view, I would simply say that the administration is making a mistake. Steve Gibson has been an incredible witness to the character, his message, and the university. The administration is making a mistake in removing Father Steve from this position.

need we say more?
This momentous day dawned quickly, however, with Tina Turner and her unequivocal rendition of "What's Love Got to Do With It?," and all but vanished during Cyndi Lauper's "Girls Just Want to Have Fun." Madonna and Prince were well received by the crowd, who had grown tired of seeing people rip their clothes or stroll about the stage. From a distance, both danced and lip-synced well enough to be taken for the real thing. In this context, looks counted as much as presence, and no one could win or lose both.

The contest was getting long, and the audience restless, as they patiently watched still another Billy Idol rip his shirt and pound his fist in the air. One student remarked, "Is this over yet?"

But then, the last contestant appeared on stage, needing no introduction, and everyone was on their feet. Clapping, waving American flags, and dancing joyously, the crowd knew who was number one - Notre Dame's own Bruce Springsteen. Kevin Vanity's "Navy Girl" and the Rolling Stones' "Shattered" could not compete with Springsteen's "Born in the U.S.A."

Herbert was presented with a trophy and rose by Nina Blackwood, one of the f1s on MTV, he then thanked his fans, and claimed the victory, checking his victory.

"The campus was behind me 110 percent, and I couldn't have done it without their support. Notre Dame is the best school on God's green earth!"

Tommy Shaw is not Bruce Springsteen. Tommy Shaw is not Madonna. Tommy Shaw is not Cyndi Lauper. Tommy Shaw is not "Tommy Shaw, lead guitarist for Styx." Tommy Shaw is Tommy Shaw, lead singer of the Tommy Shaw Band.

Saturday night at the ACC, the MTV "Millions for MS" contest awarded its highest contributors, Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, with the promised free concert. After the presentation of a huge trophy to the winning schools and the Rock Alike contest, the concert began with harrowing smoke:

The first song, "Come and Explain," showed that Shaw has more to offer than such dance songs as "Girls with Guns." The second song, "Styx's" "Blue Collar Man," pleased the crowd in part because of its familiarity.

The audience was only as a Notre Dame/Saint Mary's crowd could be. They were enthusiastic. They began doing a number of cheering routines early on in the show, their fan culminated in "the wave."

The excitement was lost on Shaw's next song, "Free to Love You." The song itself was excellent, but its lack of familiarity prompted some disenchantment. "If You Could Only See Me Now," a new song to be released on Shaw's next album, brought the concert's interest back. The song, a ballad, contained a typical Shaw punch:

"Kiss Me Hello," unfortunately, sent some people home. This song wasn't bad, but instead was plagued by the lack of audience recognition.

Those who left missed out, as the concert went from that of an "up and coming" performer to one of a first rate artist. Another new song, "This Is Not A Test," was well received by the audience, and many began to dance in front of the stage.

Following "The Nature of The Beast, "Shaw continued with the perennial favorite "Too Much Time on My Hands." His last song was the track from his album, "Girls With Guns."

The hand left briefly, then returned for an encore. Lead guitarist for Notre Dame jerseys, they continued with another new song, "Jealousy." Shaw has high hopes for this song's popularity, and with good reason, as "Jealousy" quick, crisp, and cutting. Shaw finished the concert with the traditional favorite "Renegade." From Styx's Pieces of Eight.

Notre Dame was the last stop on Shaw's tour, which is promoting his next album, due out in September. As for Shaw, he said that it was unlikely he would continue with the group. The traditional "artistic differences" seems to be underlying the unofficial breakup. He mentioned some die-hard Styx fans seek James Young, guitarist and vocalist for Styx, at the concert, but this was not substantiated.

As it is, Tommy Shaw seems quite capable of holding his own with or without his old group. His band was terrific. Rich Cannata, on the saxophone, was a real crowd pleaser. Michael Blair, Steve Holly, and Brian Stanley all turned in solid performances. Most importantly, Tommy Shaw defied the skeptics, and played exceptionally well. His new songs, fast paced and sharp, show great promise.

Indeed, Notre Dame didn't get one of today's "top five" touring groups; however, they did get to see the proverbial "crystal ball" at one of tomorrow's top stars.

As for Notre Dame and the MS fund raising drive - Shaw said after the concert. "Notre Dame kicks a-!"

Jefferson will mean for the tailback position in the fall. "With a healthy Posker and a healthy Jefferson," says Faust, "we'll be very strong in the tailback slot."

One other area where Faust would like to be strong is the quarterback backfield. While starter Steve Beuerlein sat out the entire spring nursing his shoulder, Notre Dame's two freshmen signal callers just the chance to show their stuff. Terry Andrysiak (three completions - six attempts, 30 yards) showed considerable promise directing his Blue into the end zone, while Tom Byrne (five completions - 13 attempts, 101 yards) did a good job despite facing constant pressure from the Blue defense.

Both were hampered, however, in that the offense was not too injury-depleted to hold back the aggressive defense but still behind in the passing attack as well. The Irish coaches emphasized running formations for the benefit of the defense through much of the spring. Although the final decisions as to who will be Beuerlein's backup will not be made until the summer sessions, Faust was satisfied with both his young leaders. "We were very pleased with the play of Andrysiak and Byrne," noted Faust. "We knew the pass protection wouldn't be that good with all those top linemen out. But they played well. You like to see your quarterback backfield. The quarterbacks that have problems are the ones that can't get out when they're Bushed."

At the fullback spot, another position of interest for the Irish coaches, both senior Tom Monahan and freshman Frank Stanfors played well. Monahan of the Blue was especially effective on short-yardage runs as he scored touchdowns from two yards out and one yard out on the way to 31 yards on 12 carries. Converted safety Jon Bobb made his only carry of the day count by scoring the final Blue touchdown from a yard out. Linebacker Darrell Gordon of the Blue recovered a fumbled pitch (one of four White Bumbles lost) at the White two-yard line.

A pleasant surprise to Faust throughout the spring was the play of the kicking game. Although the smtp-squads formed the defense and the rush against the kicker would mean at least that much for the Irish, the kicking game was a pleasant surprise. Pat Chura, the 5-6 junior placekicker for the Blue, was good on both of his extra point attempts and on a 39-yard field goal try. Walk-on Ted Gradel, however, kicked the final extra point.

Hal Von Wyte of the White proved three times for a 38-yard average, and Dan Sernaven averaged 43 yards for the Blue.

"The kickers did a good job," said Faust. "We didn't have a good rush on the punter because we didn't have enough guys on the right teams. But I was very pleased."

"If we stay healthy, we can be a senior-junior combination a year from now," says Faust. "We could be two-deep at every position."

Spring activities, hope and, on Friday, the Irish's season-ending scrimmage will begin. The first week of pre-season camp will begin for Notre Dame's football team.

IRISH ITEMS - The winners of the annual Heran Award for outstanding spring drills were: Tim Scannell (offensive lineman), Reggie Ward (receiver), Jeffrey (offensive back), Wally Klime (defensive lineman), Paul Han, (outside linebacker), Robert Banks (outside linebacker), Mark Antonietti (Most improved offensive player), John Daniels (Most improved defensive player), Ray Carter (coacher's award, and Mike Sembler (Most improved).......

Ohio Wesleyan bullies past Irish, 16-4, with relentless goal pressure

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team was able to pull off a surprise last year and take the Midwest Lacrosse Association championship from perennial powers Denison and Ohio Wesleyan, but there will be no repeat performance this year. The Bishops of Ohio Wesleyan made sure of that on Saturday by thrashing the Irish, 16-4, in front of a large crowd at Carrier Field.

Although Notre Dame did finish the weekend with an easy 18-9 rout of Wittenberg yesterday, its loss to Wesleyan is still fresh in the minds of the Irish team. The Bishops proved why they are currently ranked No. 3 in the nation among Division III schools by controlling the loose ball nearly the entire game. The Notre Dame goal was under almost constant pressure for the final 49 minutes of the game as Wesleyan turned a tight 0-0 halftime score into a lopsided 9-2 lead at the end of the third quarter.

"We just let them have the ball on our offensive half of the field, which I think," said Irish coach Rick O'Leary. "Ball control was the key. Every time we played defense, we couldn't get the ball in our end most of the time."

Probably the most talented team in the Midwest, Wesleyan was able to wear down the Notre Dame defense by making few mistakes on offense and taking advantage of numerous errors by the Irish in the box, which looked just 19 shots in the game and turned the ball over many times on bad passes.

"I was really disappointed with the way our offense played," said O'Leary. "Our defense was on the field so much that they were exhaused. They really shouldn't have had more than 12 or 15 goals, but our defensemen were too tired to stop them by the end of the game."

Hard work on the part of the Irish did keep them in the game for most of the first half. The Bishops had threatened to blow the game open early by jumping ahead, 3-0, with goals by Steve Herrman, Bob Reich and Bob Alvin. Betcher and Alvin's goals both came with a Notre Dame player in the penalty box, and were the first of the Bishops five extra-man goals.

Bishop's goalkeeper Joe Franklin was able to get his team on the scoreboard, though, by scoring from the crease on a pass from Bob Trocki. Trocki himself had an opportunity to cut further into the Wesleyan lead before the end of the first quarter, but he missed an open shot and Notre Dame had to settle for a 3-1 first-quarter deficit.

Trocchi's assist was significant in Bunch made 21-46 from the field. Roussace's Noble Sarages hit 16-14.

Collins dished off nine assists and made two steals for the Bunch, and Sewor helped Roussace's with five assists.

The Fun Bunch led at halftime, 11-8. The biggest lead of the game was five, when Tracy put in a fastbreak layup to end the game.

The Fun Bunch made it to the final game of Bookstore XIV by beating Jimmy G. and the Spots, 21-16, in Friday's quarterfinals and WBBG C-Team, 21-13, on Saturday. On Saturday, Roussace's beat WBC's Warriors, 21-13, on Friday and Dangling Manhood, 21-17, on Saturday.

In the Bookstore XIV All-Star Game yesterday before the final, the South Quad beat the North Quad, 21-19. Ken Schuermann led the South with 9 of 15, and Marty Roddy hit 9 of 17 for the North.'It was the only real scoring opportunity of the day for the school year scoring leader. For the rest of the game, the Bishops kept him blanketed while his younger, less-tempered teammates had problems with the Wesleyan defensemen.

Despite the knowledge that though the Irish were able to play the Bishop's tough for a good part of the second quarter, after Wesleyan increased its lead to 4-1, Joe Garlitz won the ensuing faceoff and passed to John McClachan on a break. McClachan scored to cut the lead to two once again.

After Alvin scored his second goal of the game to put the Bishops back up by three, defender Justin Gray grabbed a pass just across mid-field, ran uncontested down the field, and scored to cut the lead to 4-3 with 0:25 remaining in the half.

That was as close as Notre Dame got, though, as the Wesleyan pressure began to show its effect on the Irish defense and freshman goalie Matt McQuillan. The Bishops scored four unanswered goals in the last six minutes of the half — most of them the result of poor play by a tired defense.

The 15 minutes of rest during halftime were destroyed by the Notre Dame defense, determined to cut the lead that was not long before the Wesleyan attack began again. Joe Franklin was able to bring the Irish back into a game with just 1:44 elapsed in the third quarter, but he remained one of the weak Notre Dame offense disappeared for the rest of the game. The Bishops, using most of their first-string players until the end of the game, quickly answered Franklin's goal with one of their own, and added six more to round out the scoring.

Despite the loss, O'Leary was not completely upset.

"I thiinking how good Denison and Ohio Wesleyan are," he said, "it's no small feat to finish third in the conference."

"Winning last year may have been a big surprise in our development, but this year we played well enough that we could stay this year. We're going to need some good recruits."

While the Irish may still be hindered by the big powers, though, Wittenberg, yesterday's opponent is even further behind. O'Leary cleared the bench against the Tigers, who trailed by four at the end of the first quarter, by 10 at the half, and by 15 at the end of three quarters.

Hart led the Irish attack with three goals and two assists in the home game, while fellow seniors Trocio (two goals, one assist), Kevin Rooney (one assist), and Shay (one goal) also figured in on the scoring. Senior goalkeeper Rob Tappin stopped five Wittenberg shots.

IRISH IDEAS — The Irish will close out their season with a pair of road games this week. On Wednesdays, the team will travel to Columbus to take on Ohio State. The season finale will be this Saturday at Michigan State.

Saint Mary's wins four in weekend invitational

By KELLY PORTOLESE and ANNE KARNATZ
Sports Writers

The Saint Mary's softball team earned a sparkling 19-6 record after weekend victories over Butler (3-2, 4-3) on Friday, and Marquette (14-9) and the Notre Dame Club (10-3) on Saturday at the Notre Dame Invitational.

Marquette, who also lost to Notre Dame 10-9 in the first game of the tourney, scored four quick runs against the Belles in the top of the first inning, on three hits, a walk, and a two Saint Mary's errors. The Belles Sought back, however, to score two runs in the first, five in the second and four in the third.

After three complete innings, the for-mer one-two-three, the Belles held a slim two-run lead of 10-9, when freshman Betty Mihalik relieved winning pitcher Elaine Suess. Mihalik allowed one run in the inning.

Junior Cathy Logsdon, who earned her first start with Mihalik, took over on the mound in the fifth and exhibited great control, holding her opponents scoreless in the first three innings.

Saint Mary's then added three t runs in the bottom of the sixth to insure the 14-9 win.

Seniors Katy Boldt and Tracy
Bowman, who rapped two singles apiece, led the Belles offensively. Shortstop Trish Nolan added a single, a triple, and two RBI's.

Overall, Saint Mary's capitalized on some key hits by Krit Panteleis and Mary Lynn Mulcahy to pick up a run in the second inning and another in the sixth as McGinnis reached the bottom of the fourth inning, when Teresa McGinnis reached first after being hit by a pitch from Mary phoning, a graduate of South
Bend's Adams High School. Nolan then fired one up the middle, bringing McGinnis home, and tying it up, 1-1. Nolan then stole third and was knocked in by a Logsdon single.

Butler was able to get one run back in the top of the fifth inning, making it a tie game. But the McGinnis-Nolan connection proved successful once again in the sixth as McGinnis reached first on a walk, and Nolan hammered a triple to deep center field, making the final score 3-2.

The Belles also topped Butler in the second game, 4-3. Saint Mary's relayed on some key hits from Krit Panteleis and Mary Lynn Mulcahy
to pick up a run in the second inning and two in the fifth.

Saint Mary's will travel across town this afternoon to challenge
Bethel College at 3 p.m.
Irish end 20-win season streak via weekend split
by taking three of four from Butler

BY CHUCK FREEMY
Sports Writer

When the season began, one of the first questions asked of Notre Dame men's tennis coach Tom Fallon was whether his team could have its seventh consecutive 20-win spring.

Unfortunately, that question was answered in negative this weekend, as the Irish netters split four matches against any chance of reaching the coveted plateau.

The weekend at the Courtney Tennis Center started badly, as Notre Dame dropped its sixth dual match in its last seven tries with a 6-3 loss to Northern Illinois on Friday. The Irish looked like they might come back strong, knocking off Bowling Green, 7-2, and Ohio University, 6-4, on Saturday. However, the hopes were dashed on Sunday afternoon, when Michigan State edged the Irish by a 5-4 count.

Fallon was obviously disappointed with losing a chance at 20 wins in the spring, but certainly has not allowed that to put a damper on the season. "We haven't got to shoot for as many as we can get," noted the veteran Irish coach.

However, that lead was wiped out in the fifth inning when the Irish scored two runs on a single by Junior Dave Clark, a walk and a triple by Rich Dorame, who then scored on a groundout by the leadoff hitter.

In the second part of yesterday's doubleheader, Notre Dame trailed much of the distance but led when it counted, in the final tally.

Butler scored once in the second and tied the third, but lead the Irish, 2-1, heading into the bottom of the third. Notre Dame, however, was able to add four runs to that inning to take a 5-2 lead.

That lead was lengthened in the fourth to 6-2 when yet another run was posted for the Irish.

In the fifth, however, Butler once again rallied with three big runs to take the lead, 6-5.

The see-saw battle continued when, in the sixth, Notre Dame battled back to tie the game at six.

The game was sent into the ninth tied at seven. In the bottom of that inning, Mike Traudau led off with a triple, then senior Dave Clark then delivered the game-winning RBI when he drove in Traudau for the 8-7 Irish victory.

Offensively for Notre Dame, Jack Moran, Mike Traudau, Dave Clark, Rich Vanhoutrout and Mike Dor­

A perfect example of that statement is yesterday's loss to Michigan State. The Irish dropped a trio of three-set decisions in singles play, but they were still tied, 3-3, entering doubles play. Ober and Gierz wanted little as the Irish took top, 4-3, with a 6-4, 6-4 win over Fernandez/Belmar and Joe O'Brien. However, the Spartans answered with a win in the third doubles spot as Ross Smith and Curtis Wright downed Joe Nelligan and Paul Daggs, 6-4, 7-8.

That left it up to the No. 1 duo of Mike Gibbons and Dan Walsh, who played well, but not well enough. After losing the first set to MSU's Paul Mesanos and Craig Solodinski, 6-3, the Irish pair was staying close in the second set. Despite the fact they were serving to tie the set, Gibbons and Walsh just couldn't get the key points, losing the set, 7-5.

And so, 2014-15 season over. The Irish have had a problem doing what they want to do. And Walsh just couldn't get the key points, losing the set, 7-5.

Unfortunately, after those two bright spots, the picture was dimmed with sporadic play, especially in the doubles competition.

"We knew at the beginning of the year we would have a problem at doubles, and it has been that way," stated Fallon. "We've just been up and off. We don't have the depth to experiment a lot and we're young, so we just have to stick with the people we have in there. We come so close, but we just couldn't get it together at times."

Tennis -- that's all there is to it. The Irish entertain the Blondes of Kalamazoo College at 6:00 p.m. "Don't be fooled by Kalamazoo," warns Fallon. "They are usually tough, and they beat Michigan State, 5-4, so we'll have our hands full.

Gallos's squad earns playoff berth by taking three from four from Butler

BY KEVIN HERBERT
Sports Writer

Larry Gallo's Fighting Irish baseball squad had a very productive two-weekend stretch, going three out of four from the Butler Bulldogs and more importantly, clinching a spot in the Midwestern City Conference playoffs.

The weekend did not start off well, however. In the first game of the four game series, the Irish were defeated by the Bulldogs by the score of 6-2.

Butler, however, was the hurler for Notre Dame. He pitched a very good game for the Irish hurler, the offense could not provide the necessary artillery for the win.

The second game was a best-of-three that once again, was in the Irish favor, and Gallo's squad took an early lead, 2-0, with a brilliant pitching performance from Senior Mike McKeon.

In the third game, Notre Dame combined great pitching with a better than average offense to post a 9-4 victory.

Unfortunately for Notre Dame, Jack Moran, Mike Traudau, Dave Clark, Rich Vanhoutrout and Mike Dor­

By taking three of four from Butler, the Irish are in position to take the lead in the MCC with a win in their season finale.

Fun Bunch gets its revenge, conquers Rousseau's

By MARTY BURNS

The members of Revenge of the Fun Bunch -- the blue team -- were jubilant when they named their entry for Bookstore Basketball XIV. The Fun Bunch gained revenge for its semi-finals loss to Rousseau's front line in Bookstore XIII by taking this year's championship, 21-16, from Rousseau's Noble Savages.

Noble Savages' final, they proved it when they named the four team captains. This format has a notch.
