Renovations continue on science compound at SMC this winter

By MARGIE KERSTEN
Assistant Saint Mary's News Editor

June 8 marked the date that Saint Mary's broke ground for the expansion and renovation of the College Science Hall, which houses the chemistry, physics, and biology departments.

Dorothy Feigl, dean of faculty and acting vice president of the College said the new building will improve the existing program in sciences.

"We will now have a facility that is designed to meet the needs of the current research activities of the faculty and students," Feigl said.

The 6.5 million dollar project, part of Saint Mary's 25th million fundraising campaign, EXCEL, is designed to provide more teaching, laboratory and research space.

Feigl, a former chairman of the chemistry and physics departments, said it was extremely important that science students see their instructors as scientists. The newly added research space will give students the chance to interact more with professors and will therefore be beneficial, she said.

"The time I first came here there was a fundamental need for more science space," she said.

When the new science building is finished, it will be almost double in size with the new building connected to the old structure.

"The worst part of the construction happened over the summer," Feigl said, "so students should not be too inconvenienced.

The architectural firm of Sovik, Mathre, Batterman, Quadrack and Schlink of Northfield, Minn., designed the new building and Casteel Construction Corp. of South Bend has started construction.

"Control is everything," she hopes to finish the outside of the new building before winter and then work on inside details during the winter months.

Next fall, all science classes will be held in the new building while the old building is renovated. The complex will be completed by the fall.

A new computer work area featuring terminals and micro-computers will be added for the use of students.

The stock room will be expanded for chemicals, while a new storage room has been added in the basement of the old building. To facilitate this conversion, concrete was poured on the dirt floor over the summer.

In addition to the storage space, the basement will also have live warm and cold-blooded animals.

"I think a major improvement in the facility will be the animal room for the biology department," Feigl said.

The basement of the new building will be finished but will not be equipped, Feigl noted. "We hope in the future to have more classrooms and to have a real student lounge in that space," she said.

New offices, a greenhouse facility and an electron microscopy laboratory for biology students will also be features in the new building and renovation.

Instrument rooms designed to accommodate the electronic equipment of the chemistry department will be added giving students "needed space for the high level equipment we have," Feigl said.

"The layout of the building as a whole still tries to keep the classrooms, laboratories and offices together so that there is a lot of interaction between students and professors," Feigl said.

Air conditioning will be installed throughout the entire building. "A lot of concern and effort went into the air handling system," Feigl said, noting that air quality is crucial in a science building because of the delicate equipment taken place.

Feigl said the old building will look very much the same on the inside, except for the rearrangement of labs and offices. The outside facade of the building will be modified to give a coherent look to the building," she said.

Play of the Day

Mike Napier, seemingly unaware of a potential back injury, caught a pass. Napier and his friends were typical of many students who took to the quads instead of classrooms and study lounges yesterday as the summer weather continued.

Riot police and protesters clash in violent anti-apartheid marches

Associated Press

CAPE TOWN, South Africa - More than 2,000 police and races tried to surround Pollsmoor Prison in a mass protest against apartheid yesterday, but police and soldiers broke up the procession and fought a series of running battles with protestors throughout the city.

Police said three blacks were shot to death in a riot in Cape Town's black township of Guguletu.

Witnesses reported that hundreds of blacks swarmed into the township's streets after police blocked their attempts to participate in the march on Pollsmoor Prison where black nationalist Nelson Mandela is serving a life term.

Air conditioning will be installed throughout the entire building. "A lot of concern and effort went into the air handling system," Feigl said, noting that air quality is crucial in a science building because of the delicate equipment taken place.

Feigl said the old building will look very much the same on the inside, except for the rearrangement of labs and offices. The outside facade of the building will be modified to give a coherent look to the building," she said.

There will be a fountain within each pole and inside structure and in the middle of the structure will be a 4-foot round, brown granite ball.

The fountain will be located on a paved area of the mall, directly across from Haggar Hall.

The total cost of the fountain was estimated between $400,000 and $500,000 by Marty Madigan, chief landscape architect ofコレ Associates, South Bend architectural firm working with Burgee on the project.

Susan Madigan, assistant professor of art, and history and design, described the fountain as "really beautiful, terrific and very powerful."

Madigan compared the structure to early Christian memorials for the dead. She said the granite ball in the middle of the structure liken the memorial to one in the courtyard of Old Saint Peter's Church in Rome. The ball symbolizes the Resurrection, Madigan explained.

"It was selected in some way to new trends in funerary memorials in its simplicity," she said.

She predicted the fountain will be "one of the premier structures on campus."

Fountain construction scheduled

By JANE KRAVICK
Assistant News Editor

There will be more sprinklers spraying water onto the Fieldhouse Mall when a new memorial fountain starts operation there this May.

The fountain will be a memorial to the Notre Dame alumni who died while serving in the armed forces since World War II. A Notre Dame graduate, John Burger, designed the memorial. He is also responsible for South Bend's Century Center.

The fountain will consist of a black granite pool with eight columns made of Indiana limestone, 20 feet high and 9 feet square, topped with four horizontal 10-foot limestone pieces.

The fountain will be one of the prettiest structures on campus. Adjunct Assistant Professor of Art, Art History and Design Brian Madigan compared the structure to funerary memorials used by the Greeks and prehistoric Europeans.

In Brief

Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger said Tuesday he was scouting production of a new air-defense gun on which the Army has sunk $1.8 billion, because it doesn't work much better than the weapons the service has now. Before Weinberger's decision, the Army had planned to spend another $3 billion on the weapon, a twin-cannon gun unit mounted atop a tank chassis and known formally as the Division Air Defense Gun or Davd.

"The independent operational tests demonstrated that the system's performance does not effectively meet the growing (Soviet) military threat," Weinberger said. "The tests demonstrated also that while there have been some improvements that can be made to the Davd, these are not significant compared to the capability of current air defense weapons and therefore, not worth the additional cost," Weinberger said. "So we will not invest any more funds in this system."AP

The United States experienced its first significant decline in poverty in nearly a decade last year, as the improving economy helped 1.6 million Americans climb above the poverty level, the government said Tuesday. "There was a very significant increase in income and decrease in poverty in 1984," said Gordon Green, Jr., who is in charge of socioeconomic data for the Census Bureau. "Economic recovery and (the reduced level of) inflation are important factors in the continuing decline of poverty," he said. Green said the country's poverty rate declined nearly one percentage point to 14.4 percent, or 33.7 million people living below the poverty line. The poverty rate in 1983 was 15.3 percent, or 35.5 million people. The poverty threshold for an urban family of four was $10,609 last year, up from $10,178 a year earlier. The rate is slightly lower for rural families.AP

Security guards and long lines: it's book-buying time again

Mary Healy

When a student is caught shoplifting, security investigates the case, and the student is turned over to John Goldrick, associate vice president for residence life.

When you go to the Hammes Bookstore to buy your textbooks for the semester, prepare for a major expedition. First, after trying the usual entrance door and finding it locked and marked "Security," you walk around to the side entrance. You deposit your bookbag among a massive heap and enter the door as a store employee watches to make sure you are not carrying anything big enough to hold a shoplifted pencil.

Following the prescribed traffic pattern through the sports wear department, you come to a desk where a long wait may (or may not) get you check approved. You approach the stairs to the books department, where a woman stops you if you haven't had your check approved. Upstairs, as you gather your books you stare at the price marked on the front page of each in shock and disbelief.

Once the stack has reached your chin, you squeeze past masses of people into the checkout line. If you are coordinated enough to get in the right line the first time (checks, cash or charge) you may have to wait only 20 minutes or so before your purchases are finally rung up.

But wait! At the top of the stairs a security guard must check your receipt against your purchases to make sure they match. Another security guard watches your descent from the bottom of the stairs, and the third sees you off at the outer entrance.

Finally, having made the full circle, you dip up your books, placing them on the counter. As you watch, the clerks offer the same color and shape and hope your calculator and the $40 book you already one are still there. You have just completed one of eight such expeditions every student at Notre Dame makes.

If this involved security system seems a bit excessive, Bookstore Manager Brother Conan Moran insists it is necessary. "It's like taking a tour through a maximum-security prison," he said. And the visible precautions aren't all. The bookstore employs plainclothes security personnel "who look like students," Moran said, and is equipped with an alarm system at night.

Moran also has changed the bookstore for more than 40 years, maintained that the high incidence of shoplifting in past years has declined since security was introduced. Several dorms are still conducting their own searches.

But none of these will work in those all-too-common situations when your professor announces that this semester he is using the 7th Edition of Understanding Calculus instead of last year's 6th Edition.

Jet engine safety checks ordered

Associated Press

LONDON - The Civil Aviation Autho­ rity on Tuesday ordered urgent checks of jet engines on two of the four engines that apparently caused last week's Manchester Airport crash in which 44 people died.

It said the order was issued fol­ lowing the discovery of “extensive cracking” in the combustion cham­ bers of six Boeing 737 engines.

The order resulted in the ground­ ing of several British commercial aircraft, but it could not be im­ mediately determined how many.

It said a preliminary investiga­tion of last Thursday's crash of a British Airways Boeing 737 at Manchester while taking off “indicates that combus­ tion chamber deterioration could have caused overheating of the combustion chamber out­ putting leading to its failure.”

The authority said some planes that had flown more than 12,000 hours on modified Pratt and Whit­ ney engines would have to be grounded until their engines could be stripped down or X-rayed.

It gave an estimate on the poten­ tial for disruption in air travel.

Soviet official attends
Samantha's funeral

Associated Press

Augusta, Maine - A Soviet diplo­ mat and actor Robert Wagner were among 1,000 people to pay final respects yesterday to Samantha Smith, the young peace activist whose smile “touched the barriers between nations and warmed the hearts of the coldest diplomats.”

Reading a statement by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, Vladimir Kulagin, first secretary for cultural affairs at the Soviet Embassy in Wash­ ington, recalled Samantha's two­ week tour of the Soviet Union in July 1985, describing her as a “brilliant heat of sunshine.”

Kennebec County is one of 10 in the state where Soviet travel is restricted, but State Department of­ ficials gave Kulagin quick clearance to travel to the memorial service for Samantha and her father, Arthur, who were among eight people killed in a plane crash Sunday.

Kulagin said he hoped the 15­ year-old girl, who took the trip to the country with her parents at the ex­ pense of the Soviet government, would prove to be “a symbol of the future in Soviet American relations.”

He said he hoped the super­ powers would continue the dialogue she started and “reach over our borders with good will, friendship and love.”

Samantha was invited on the trip by the late Yuri Andropov, then the Soviet leader, to whom she had writ­ ten about her fears of war.

Wagner, who was filming a tele­ vision series with Samantha, accompanied her mother, Jane, and other relatives to the front pew at Saint Mary's Roman Catholic Church yesterday.

At the altar, a large wreath of red and white carnations adorned with a pair of doves read, “Embassy of the U.S.S.R. Washington, D.C.”

Other floral arrangements were sent by Wagner, who was filming the new ABC series “Line Street” with Samantha's actress Jill St. John.

Among those also present were 15 students from a Massachus­setts school for the severely handicapped and terminally ill. They delivered a light blue United Nations flag that was draped behind red geraniums at the front of the church.

The 70-minute ecumenical service for Samantha and her father also featured prayers, readings, hymns and testimonials from friends and Gov. Joseph Brennan.

William Preble, a faculty adviser at the Maranacook Community School in Readfield, next to the Smiths' hometown of Manchester, said he had quit his job teaching English at the University of Maine at Augusta to oversee her budding acting career, were killed with six other people when their plane crashed and exploded while trying to land in Auburn. The Smiths' bodies are being cremated.

Losers outside the church pipped the service to the more than 100 people unable to fit inside the church.

In Moscow, meanwhile, Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev sent a telegram of condolence to Samantha's mother Tuesday and the Soviet deputy chairman of the American schoolgirl who toured the Soviet Union as a guest of his presi­ dence.

Kommamoskaya Pravda, the youth league newspaper, called Samantha, 13, a "small person with a bold heart." It devoted more space to the story than it usually does to the death of a high-ranking Soviet of­ ficial.

The national evening television news, which reported Samantha's death on Monday with a film clip of her trip, showed more films Tuesday and ended with a still photograph of the smiling schoolgirl.

"Samantha Smith will not be coming to us again," a commentator said. "The young envoy of peace, they called her in the United States. And in the Soviet Union, she left behind thousands and thousands of friends. They will always remember Samantha Smith, and her smile."
Kohl dismisses intelligence chief in latest West German spy scandal

Associated Press

BONN, West Germany - Chancellor Helmut Kohl dismissed his intelligence chief in the spreading scandal over the defection of a top counterespionage official.

Four alleged East German spies were arrested in Britain and Switzerland last October.

Tiedge defected to the communist East last Friday, and at least three or four suspects have fled.

Several of Tiedge's colleagues had recommended he be dismissed on grounds that his heavy drinking and mounting debts made him a security risk, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. They said Hellenbroich rejected the recommendations.

Hellenbroich insisted yesterday that he had legitimate reasons for the way he handled the Tiedge case. "Unfortunately I cannot disclose the reasons that determined my actions," he said. "This, for me, is a very bitter, painful experience."

Hellenbroich is the first official to lose his job in the scandal, which is the latest in many espionage cases since Germany was divided on ideological lines at the end of World War II.

He has been in charge of the agency for less than a month and formerly ran the counterespionage service, where Tiedge was the East German section chief.

The defection has raised concerns that Western agents operating in East Germany might be exposed and that NATO intelligence operations might have been compromised.

Both Britain and Switzerland announced yesterday that they had arrested alleged East German spies.

West German sources said they were convinced that at least one of the pairs arrested in Switzerland were tied to the Bonn spy case.

The Swiss state prosecutor's office in Bern said it arrested a German couple who lived in Lucerne on suspicion of having been long-term undercover agents for East Germany.

A Bonn security official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the two suspects were linked to a secretary in the office of Richard von Weizsaecker, president of West Germany. The secretary was arrested on spy charges.

In London, Scotland Yard said an East German couple were charged with espionage.

The Bonn spy scandal has badly strained Kohl's coalition government.

CIA actions in Nicaragua investigated

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Three Nicaraguan rebel leaders said Tuesday that CIA officers have brokered two agreements this year on how rival groups should divide privately raised military supplies.

The leaders, acting in Managua, said the main coalition of Indians fighting Nicaragua's leftist government, said the agreements, brokered in Honduras, were struck with the larger Nicaragua Democratic Force, or FDN, in February, and again in June.

The CIA's reported role in the deals came after Congress banned the agency from "supporting, directly or indirectly, military or paramilitary groups in Nicaragua." Congress passed the ban, known as the Boland amendment, in October.

Two congressional panels next month plan to examine whether the Reagan administration complied with the ban, particularly following reports that the White House's National Security Council helped the rebels raise money and offered military advice.

Rep. George Brown Jr., D-Calif., a member of the House Intelligence Committee, said the panel was aware of "continuing contacts" between the CIA and the rebels, but lacked any specific knowledge about the contents of those discussions.

French pledge to investigate attack

Associated Press

PARIS - Prime Minister Laurent Fabius ordered an investigation of the French secret service Tuesday, but rejected a claim to the contrary.

"The position is not to contradict an official report that cleared the agency in the bombing of a New Zealand restaurant," Fabius said.

"I have no reason to contradict an official report," he said. "It doesn't mean that there have never been mistakes."

"There is no French version of the Nicaraguan story," Fabius said of charges that French secret police turned over arms to Nicaraguan rebels.

"Whoever was here is not an official statement," he added.

Fabius also issued an apology for the French report "transparent" and demanded an explanation for what he called "somewhat modified" by Fabius comments.

The French prime minister also defended the French navy and diplomatic personnel who have been accused of helping rebels in Nicaragua.

Fabius ordered an investigation of the bombing of the Lafortune restaurant in Auckland, New Zealand, while preparing to sail for Mururoa Atoll. He said the guilty "whoever they may be," must answer for the crime.

Prime Minister David Lange of New Zealand, who earlier had called for a French investigation, appeared yesterday to tone down his demand for an apology, appeared yesterday to tone down his demand for an apology.

"What we have here is not an apology in any specific sense but a very handsome statement," he said yesterday in Wellington.

Fabius also repeated his denial that French intelligence agents helped rebels in Nicaragua since Germany was divided on ideological lines at the end of World War II.

"We are not an intelligence service from "supporting, directly or indirectly, military or paramilitary groups in Nicaragua," the French government said.

"There is no French version of the Nicaraguan story," Fabius said.

"We answer to the French government and to the French people," he added.

French intelligence service Chief Hercube Hellenbroich acknowledged yesterday with West German television that he had been dismissed. Official announcement was not expected until today.

"The decision has been taken," a civil servent, I have to accept it," Hellenbroich, 48, said in the interview.

Government sources said Chancellor Helmut Kohl decided to fire Hellenbroich because he had protected Hans-Joachim Tiedge, who had been the counterespionage section chief dealing with East German spies.

Marines train women for combat

Associated Press
WASHINGTON - The Marines, who have advertised themselves as "A Few Good Men," have decided their few good women should be able to fight, too.

The so-called "dark rule" for America's women in uniform remains in place. But, in a change in training policy, female Marine recruits this fall will be subjected to much the same marksmanship and combat instruction that their male colleagues receive.

Because women can be assigned to support units that might unexpectedly come under fire and since there is always a danger of terrorist attacks, "they must be trained in defensive techniques and operations in the event of unforeseen hostile activity," said Marine Corps Commandant Paul Kelley in an order outlining the new policy.

He stressed the changes do not relax the ban on women serving in combat units.

For the first time, all female Marine recruits must qualify in using the M-16 rifle as well as learn fighting positions, "cover, concealment and camouflage" and how to handle hand grenades, mines and booby traps. Nuclear, biological and chemical defenses also will be covered, along with using deadly force as part of guard duties.

"Women shall not be assigned to any unit that would likely become engaged in direct combat," Kelley said.

The final two phases will be completed by May 18, 1986. Contractors have not yet been chosen for these phases, although bids on the second phase should be taken "within a week or two," said Dedrick.

According to Dedrick and Kleva, "the finished product will be a typical Memorial Day affair," said Kleva.

Kleva discussed the idea with "Berge who fostered the conceptual idea for the fountain. He is an architect's dream of Father Hesburgh," said Kleva.

Hesburgh discussed the idea with "Berge who fostered the conceptual idea for the fountain. He is an architect's dream of Father Hesburgh," said Kleva.

The construction for this first phase will be done by Harry H. Verkerk, Contractor Inc.

Army ROTC: Be All You Can Be.
Welcome back. Hope you all had a great summer and are “raring to go” for a new and exciting year.

I had a good summer. Did some fishing in upper Wisconsin and Michigan. Caught my largest walleye in forty years. Also covered my share of international meetings in July: one in Geneva, Switzerland, on world hunger, with emphasis on long range solutions in Africa; another in Vienna on the nuclear threat to humanity. The reason for this one was “Can we prevent World War III?” We met with the Israeli ambassador, discussed finding creative ways of doing it. All the Iron Curtain country representatives were there, too.

Fr. Theodore Hesburgh

guest column

Between the meetings, my Executive Assistant, Father Bill Beauchamp, and I went down to the Danube on a Bulgarian ship from Vienna to Sofia, Bulgaria, visiting Budapest, Hungary and Belgrade, Yugoslavia, en route. What are those cities like? Like all other Soviet cities I have visited, grey like Moscow and Prague. I kept remembering, how lucky I have been to have been here, rather than there. But they have their hopes too, and we share the hope for peace in our times.

Later in August, there was a General Conference of the International Federation of Catholic Students in Santo Domingo. The Notre Dame contingent included Provost Tim O’Meares and Dean Bill McAlister, with me, Student Body President Bill Healy and I without. Bill did well with his Spanish acquired during this summer.

So much for dreamy summer days and some two-weeks books read, and three papers written. Easier to read than write. Now we start again. It’s my 54th year in this office with just two left to go, thank God. The years do not get easier, but they are all exciting to anticipate. Each year has its own surprises, its own successes and failures, its own new challenges. I guess we would all be bored if they were not so.

I still get a feeling of great anticipation during these opening days when everyone is greeting everyone else, checking on the summer happenings, laying plans for the weeks ahead, helping questioning freshmen and women, sitting up the new courses, wondering about the town and the opening time, buying books (ouch), acquiring new and used furniture, trying to get everything into the room, including your self and roommates with all that stuff.

When I were teaching high school or college sociology today I would assign my students to interview the people standing in the lines for Lotto numbers. The newspaper interviews people, about what they will do with the money they win, furnish rich evidence of the shortfalls in people’s lives which make them long for a windfall.

Most of them dream of travel, of cruising the world, of going to places with magic names. Many have a heavy sense of their debts and desires and fantasies, if not of their authentic needs.

If there were dreams to sell and the crier rang the bell, “what would you buy?” Then a Victorian poem, “Dream Peddler.” For the millions who miss the lottery prizes it won’t be a total loss. They will have mined their dreams and made wonderful plans for buying new cars and homes and clothes and furniture with them, about what they will do with the money they win, furnish rich evidence of the shortfalls in people’s lives which make them long for a windfall. You may even find your life partner here, many do, but there are years ahead or think of that. I guarantee you that with a little effort and give on your part, you will make a growing group of lifelong friends. You will also, with effort and grace grow, here, maybe more than you imagine, not just in body, but in spirit, character, moral conviction and hopefully in wisdom, too.

Max Lerner

the Max Lerner column

For the state it is a revenue sharing stand-by, for sociologists and psychologists the occasion for cluck-chucking in sorrow over what our society has come to, and over the destructive god that our parents have taken to worship. But for the people as a whole it is a little more than a sociologist’s trap. It is a collective experience of a surging - if some­thing is certain: you will be a lot better off.

But more want most of everything: service, pacity, dining out, vacations. This is what they see on their TV screens, in “The Rich and the Famous,” and the success stories of film and rock stars that the popular press presents. The more fortunes made by venture capital. Even the high-culture PBS screen has embraced its viewers with successful reruns of “Brideshead Revisited,” where you live in an ancestral home with many servants and want to be free of them. Some want to help their parents and share with their children. Some are having a hell of a time — if not their jobs forever, which is a commentary on the work ethic today. The more bitter dream of triumphing over a hard and bountiful world and dwelling on that at home: “Living well is the best revenge.”

One thing is certain: you will be a lot better off from four years now or a lot worse. One can’t have this big a grace and blow it without losing all around. My prayer for each of you is that you grow in wisdom, age and grace, and that after graduation your parents will write whomever is president then, as so many have done each year ordering that graduate, saying: “We sent you a young boy or a girl, you sent back a man, or a woman, with high ideals, deep conviction, clear goals, great competence to begin life on his, or her, own. Share our pride and hope.”

For those who are coming back for their second, third, or fourth year - or transferring in - may I only say in welcome, keep up the good work. The years pass all too quickly so make the most of them. A new year is also a great chance, a chance to begin again, to do better, to grow more, to learn, to be a better person, to pray, to be at peace, despite all the hustle and bustle and excitement.

Final thanks to Joe Murphy, Viewpoint Editor of The Observer, (I am half Murphy, too, Joe!) for asking me to do this article and for giving me a chance to reminisce and to thank God for this place and all of you who give so much life and love and substance and spirit.

Monster and midget outshine "The Bride"

The Bride

Playing at University Park Cinema

Rinaldo (David Rappaport) and his friend Viktor (Clancy Brown).

Make a perfect combination. Rinaldo's worldliness and Viktor's benevolent naïveté allows the two to survive, and eventually prosper, in the job Rinaldo lands for them with awidow in Budapest.

Meanwhile, back at the castle, beautiful Eva is becoming an independent woman through the tutelage of Dr. Frankenstein. Unfortunately, these scenes are only useful to play the far more interesting tale of Viktor and Rinaldo.

Frankenstein. Despite this being a real and perhaps the most human characters in the story. Viktor, by the end of the movie, no longer is the gnu monster encountered by Eva in the early scenes. The situation created in the first half of the movie creates a situation in which anticipation of Viktor and Eva's reunion should rise dramatically. Interestingly, character stories progress separately until, in an awkwardly rough transition, they are thrown together again. The effect on the viewer is boredom. Halfway through the movie there is nothing left to anticipate. If there is a climax, it is not obvious. The story just goes as far as it is intended to go, leaving no questions for the future, and no future for Frankenstein.

There may or may not be a future for all of the actors, but Sting would best be advised to stick to singing. " Roxane" for the rest of his career. His portrayal of Charles is colorless and shallow. Beals, however, succeeds in making the transition from in- nocent, childlike girl to the multi- faceted, independent woman Eva is at the conclusion of the movie.

The hands-down, unanimous decision on the recipient of the coveted "Best Credit Award" goes to "Wig Creations, the wig suppliers.

The movie's theme is fresh and creative, but the dual plot execution makes the movie fall on its face. A couple of big names and some interesting plot twists cannot rescue the poor writing behind this movie.

Teen Wolf "a turkey of a movie"

John Mennell and Phil Wolf

Movie review

Teen Wolf

Playing at the 100 Center

Basketball teams often get into hairy positions, but rarely do they turn out as well as they do in the movie "Teen Wolf." The movie starts Michael Fox, of TV's "Family Ties," as a high school student with the inherited ability to turn into a werewolf at will. Rather than hunting chicken and babies in the dark of the night, Fox's hairy alter ego teases apartment opponents on the basketball court.

Atlantic Releasing Company made a smart move in delaying the release of "Teen Wolf." It was scheduled for a spring release, but the delay allowed Atlantic to cash in on Fox's second movie. The film's box office receipts made the movie a success.

The movie attempts to take the age-old theme of an average kid with growing pains and give it a new twist. However, neither the plot nor the intended humor are strong enough to make the movie a big success.

Some unpredictable and humor adds to the initial excitement, however. Teen Wolf tends to set it toward the end of the movie, which is as predictable as the sides. Speaking of sides, a few creative inventions do add to the lackluster humor of the movie. "Urban surfing," the sport of catching waves down the street on the top of a van wearing a Hawaiian shirt, provides the only enjoyable excuse to listen to a soundtrack that should have been kept in a sound booth in Hollywood.

"Roxanne" in this scene is a welcome relief from resident nobody "surfin' ska" which we hope will be toned down. The music is a major problem, and the cast: catering by Tastebuds.

Douglas Brayfield's monotonous vocals.

Another good aspect of the movie is its deviation from the average werewolf blood and guts fare. You can go to the movie with a squeamish friend without the fear of seeing body parts floating randomly across the screen.

On the down side, the rest of the cast is filled out by poor actors who are not even memorable charac- ters. The movie has one obvious error, relating to the surfing motif. The setting appears to be Middle America, possibly Nebraska, as Cashmere paraphernalia appears throughout the movie. However, when Teen Wolf and his friend do their urban surfing, palm trees fill the background. Experience has shown that palm trees are usually found by the ocean. Why surf on the roof of a van when you are near the ocean?

For those who like to stay until the curtain drops, this movie's "Best Credit Award" goes to Douglas Grayfield, who was the star of "Best Credit Award" goes to WNDU-TV's "Teen Wolf," he is effective in the role of the girl next door. She does a nice job at singing. "Roxane" for the rest of his career. His portrayal of Charles is colorless and shallow. Beals, however, succeeds in making the transition from innocence to manhood. Their faces are thrown together again. The effect on the viewer is boredom. Halfway through the movie there is nothing left to anticipate. If there is a climax, it is not obvious. The story just goes as far as it is intended to go, leaving no questions for the future, and no future for Frankenstein.

Florida QB was manager last season
Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — The name Pepe Lescano isn't familiar to most Florida Gator football fans, but the players know him well. He's their third-string quarterback as the man who picked up their dirty socks and jerseys last season.

Originally recruited as a player by Butler University, Lescano was signed by the Gators last year. He was given a room in the athletes' dormitory and was able to eat from the training table.

"This is a year as a walk-on quarterback. He all gets in a hard time from the first team defense and a slave­ chive that he'll ever guide the team throughout a game this season. His name isn't even listed in the Florida football medium.

"Sure, he's longshot, but I've seen 'em come in before," said Coach Galen Hall, who said with his scholarship reduced because of last year's 8-4 record. -The Observer
Baseball races become tighter

White Sox 5, Rangers 1

CHICAGO — Gene Nelson combined with a five-hitter and an отличный хит, and Bryan Little hit a thirteen-run homer as the Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers 5-1 last night.

Nelson, 8-8, gave up four hits, struck out four and walked six in his five-and-a-third innings. June 17th he worked. He got one-and-a-third innings of help from John Agoston, who gave up one hit, and Bob James pitched two one-hit innings to finish up.

Little's home run, in the fifth inning, was only his second of the year and came with the White Sox nursing a one-run lead, 2-1.

In the third inning, Rudy Law scored the go-ahead run for Chicago on an error by pitcher Dave Stewart. O-S Stewart had completed a double play at short and, thinking there were three out, tossed the ball to the mound as Law dashed home for a 2-1 White Sox lead.

Royals 8, Brewers 2

MILWAUKEE — Darrell Medly hit three-run home run, and Steve Balboni added a two-run shot to power the Kansas City Royals to an 8-2 vic­tory over the Milwaukee Brewers last night.

Royals right-hander Mark Gubicza, 10-7, allowed six walks while striking out nine in eight innings, and Dan Quisenberry finished up.

Losing pitcher Pete Vuckovich, 6-10, worked five innings, allowing seven hits while striking out two and walking four.

The Brewers grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Lonnie Smith doubled a one-out homer into the left-field stands.

The Royals extended their lead to 4-0 in the fifth, as Medly's homer and added one more on White's con­troversial lineout in the fifth. With two out, White hit a line drive that Brewers right fielder Carlos Ponce来不及 jump on top of the fence. However, second baseman Rich Garcia ruled the ball a home run on a fair hit.

The home run was White's 18th of the season, a career high.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 5

MINNEAPOLIS — Tom Brunansky's bases-loaded single over a drawn-in infield in the 10th inning gave the Minnesota Twins a 6-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays yesterday.

Brunansky, who hadn't driven in a run since Aug. 16, had only one hit in his previous 18 at-bats and his average had fallen to .241. Kent Hrbek led off the 10th with a single off Tom Hensley, 5-1.

One out later, Randy Bush singled Hrbek to third and Mark Salas drew an unintentional pass to load the bases for Brunansky. Jim Ancker relieved Hensley and Brunansky delivered a line drive to right center for a sacrifice fly.

The hit made up for pitcher Pete Fil-on the mound as Law dashed home for a 2-1 White Sox lead.

Reds 7, Cardinals 6

CINCINNATI — Pete Rose drew a bases-loaded walk off reliever Ricky Horton to force in the winning run in the 12th inning last night as the Cleveland Indians beat the Boston Red Sox 7-4 last night for their seventh victory in eight games.

Cleveland left-hander Jamie Easterly, 3-0, got the victory, allowing seven hits and two runs in six-and-two-third innings to start his first relief appearance this year.

He left with two outs and the bases loaded in the seventh. Reliever Dave Radcliff got Wade Boggs to foul out to left and the threat was over.

Rose started the winning rally when he dropped the ball on a 3-1 pitch. It was the sixth game-winning RBI this season for Rose, who collected two hits in the Cardinals' 7-4 win.

The loss snapped a seven-game winning streak for St. Louis. Leader of the National League East by two and-a-half games over New York.

Losing pitcher Jeff Laffit, 2-2, surren­dered singles to Dave Concepcion and Dave Van Gorder to load the bases. However, second baseman Rich Garcia ruled the ball a home run on a fair hit.

Judge drops sports bribery charges against Tulane player Williams

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — A state judge threw out all of the sports bribery charges against John "Hot Rod" Williams yesterday, saying that prosecutors forfeited their chance at a new trial by using dirty tricks in the first one.

The first one ended in a mistrial on Aug. 15 after two days of testimony. The mistrial was deliberatively provoked by prosecutors who knew their case was going badly and wanted to make a fresh start with a new jury. District Judge Alvin Oser said in his ruling yesterday.

The prosecutors withheld tape recordings and photographs that would help to acquit Williams, and to try him again on the same charges after such prosecutorial misconduct would amount to double jeopardy, Oser ruled.

The former Tulane University and U.S. Basketball League star is now, apparently, free to sign with the Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association.

Another problem encountered last year was the distribution of tickets was that some applications were printed with incorrect class years for the students holding them. When these students attempted to register, the computer circuit is in error to obtain a letter of class verification from his dean. This letter is to be brought to the ticket window when tickets are issued.

The changes should make ticket distribution go faster this year, but students have been right around the number of tickets purchased by students has been right around 9,200. Most people are expected to remain about the same. reacts to the toll road.

"I don't think there's any chance of that happening," the ticket manager said. "We've researched it somewhat on this subject, so we've covered on that end.

"There's nothing worse than being short in this business," he admits. "You just can't be, especially with the students here. It's a traditional thing here that as many students want to make tickets can get one. I've gone to every length possible to assure that that happens."

For some reason, there is a shortage of tickets available to students next week, Bobinski should find many people willing to direct him to the toll road.

Chris Evert Lloyd, shown here after winning her sixth U.S. Open singles title last year, got one step closer to number seven yesterday in New York as she crushed Australia's Janette Park 6-1, 6-3. The top-seeded Evert Lloyd may have surfed yesterday's first round action, but two other seeds did not. The 10th-seeded Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina fell to Barbara Pieter 6-4, 6-2, while No. 5 Karen Kneepkens of Belgium against Gary Krantz posing with a mound of cocaine.

Johnson's statement contained statements that differed from what he told the grand jury that indicted Williams and the trial jury. Oser said. Producing it too late to help defense lawyers prepare for cross examination was a violation of Williams' right to a fair trial, he said.

Point guard David Dominique is the only other accused Tulane player. No trial date has been set.

I sensed the malam’s fear as he opened the gate. It was like a warm stench in the air — so thick you could cut it with a knife. Drug testing may be standard for postseason play

Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. — Drug testing will become mandatory at all NCAA championship events and postseason football games if adopted, they'll be inducted next fall (1996)," Toner, athletic director at the University of Connecticut, said in a telephone interview.

Similarly legislation was considered at the NCAA's 1985 convention in January but was sent back to committee. Toner said. At that point, Toner, the outgoing president, was appointed to clarify a special committee whose job was to formulate and refine a nationwide drug testing policy for the NCAA.

Toner, 61, said the first attempt to pass drug testing "failed because membership was not satisfied with the legislation.

"So we're bringing it back again. We've clarified many of the questions. We've satisfied that these recommendations are legally sound and justifiable in the moral sense of the word," he said.

The other members of the special drug policy committee are George Baxevanis, head basketball coach; Jackie Sherrill, Texas A&M football coach, Roy Kramer, Vanderbilt athletic director; Dr. William Bradford, pathologist at the Duke University School of Medicine, and Ian Charles, a sociologist at Yale University who served as drug testing officer for the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Toner said, "It would follow pretty closely the procedure that was established by the USOC. All of the procedures we would subject to testing.

Toner said that the testing would be used in conjunction with drug education programs that are being implemented at colleges nationwide.

You waited in line to enroll. You waited in line to register your car. You waited in line to change a class. You waited in line to buy books. You waited in line to eat spaghetti in the dining hall last night. But you wouldn't have to wait in line for football tickets.

At least, that is the goal of Notre Dame Ticket Manager Mike Bobinski.

"Football tickets are important," Bobinski admits, "but you shouldn't have to spend that much time just picking up your ticket. That seems like a ridiculous thing.

Bobinski has initiated a new system for the distribution of student tickets this fall, which he says should speed up the process considerably. The system is similar to that which has been used for the distribution of basketball tickets in the past few years.

Applications should arrive in students' mailboxes by tomorrow, and each person who desires to purchase a season ticket will bring the application to Gate 3 of the ACC next week along with his remittance. Previously, applications were mailed in the spring, and students were required to send in their remittance during the summer.

Tickets will be issued between 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. next Monday through Thursday. Seniors will receive their tickets on Monday; juniors will get theirs on Tuesday; sophomores and grad students on Wednesday and freshmen on Thursday.

The problem with the old system, according to Bobinski, was that the ticket office workers had to search through a file manually to find each student's application as he stepped up to the window. The time required for this process now will be eliminated, so lines should be shorter this fall.

"The basic reason behind (the change) was to make the ticket process a less time-consuming experience for everybody," Bobinski said. "From our perspective, it's a heckuva lot faster. Rather than have those awful lines and waiting for hours upon hours, we're hoping this will speed things up.

According to Notre Dame Ticket Manager Mike Bobinski, next week's lines for students to get their tickets are going to be a heckuva lot faster. Phil Wolf details the situation at right.

ND football replays cease to exist

For the first time in 15 years, delayed replays of Notre Dame football games will not air on television. The loss of both the hour-long highlight and full-game packages is a result of the increased air time Notre Dame football rights to TCS Broadcasting last year.

Sponsors have been spread over into these telecasts occurring during prime time.

"From the ratings, the networks and advertisers see no need for delayed replays with two live games on each station in one day. Spor­ spon­ sor­ ses have been spread over into these games," said Valdiserri.

Notre Dame fans should not be concerned since eight games were televised live last season, and there is a good chance that at least the same number will appear this season.

Halloran set to replace Flutie tonight for BC

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Shawn Halloran hopes he won't have to throw the type of last-second "Hail Mary" pass that catapulted Doug Flutie into national prominence. But he also warns that Boston College may not be entirely out of miracles.

Flutie, major college football's all-time pass yardage and total offense king, will be on hand, although he conceded.

"I'm not worried about quarterback," Bicknell said. "We don't have Doug Flutie, that's for sure. It's the most natural thing in the world for a kid to graduate and this is a whole new year.

Halloran is trying his best to keep from thinking about pressure. After all, every other Heisman Trophy winner also had to be replaced.

"I think the key is to not put pressure on myself," Halloran said. "I am not Doug Flutie and I'm not going to be able to do the things Doug Flutie did. I'm my own quarterback and I'm confident that we're going to be able to win football games the way I play and I don't have to do any spectacular things. If I can handle everything that's going on around me, then we'll do just fine.

Halloran said Flutie has been a couple of practices "and he's given me hints here and there on how to throw certain balls and what to look for.

"I'm not worried about quarterback," Bicknell said. "He's a capable passer who describes his modus operandi as "very similar to Dan Marino's type of offense and Bernie Kosar," although he quickly adds that "I'm just giving you a similarity. I'm not putting myself into their category.

Actually, he hasn't played enough to put himself in any category.

"It was difficult to sit on the bench," he conceded. "But I knew my role. They told me when they recruited me that the average time for a quarterback's playing is a couple of years, and I have this year and I have my fifth year, if everything goes well. Everything they told me when they recruited me has happened so I don't regret anything that I've done.
