Senate comes to no decision regarding Observer finances

The Student Senate discussion on whether or not The Observer should release its financial statements resulted in another stalemate at last night's meeting.

"We're just kicking a dead horse," said Senator K.C. Colman.

"That being the point," Colman said, "it seems to me we could do a lot more things as a senate, as sophomores or junior class presidents, as student senators and hall presidents, than worry about 'The Observer.'"

Bill Healy, student body president, still defended the rights of the student government to the Observer's financial statements. "I think that the students, not the student body president solely, or any member of this senate, should have the right to see those books," he said.

"What we would like to do is convince her (Hamilton) of the logic behind it."

Comments were made concerning a packet distributed to senate members by Observer Editor-in-Chief Sarah Hamilton, containing correspondence between her and Student Body President Bill Healy concerning The Observer's editorial board and the Observer fee.

Included in the packet was a Sept. 9 letter addressed to Student Senate members, in which she discussed The Observer's advertising rates and its financial statement.

"Before student government and the Observer become further diverted from their original purposes and alienated from each other, I would like to clarify the newspaper's position on both of these issues," she wrote. "Although Bill (Healy) has since told me that by 'monitoring the expenditure' the group meant that it wanted to look over the statements and be able to ask questions, Webster's Dictionary still defines 'monitor, 'to watch, observe or keep an eye on.'"

"That being the case, I would like to clarify my statements for the record.

"The first committee, headed by Webster and myself, is not set up to monitor individual student groups, but to watch the general expenditures of all student government funds, which was used to allocate the original $34,000, also would be used for the approximately $10,000. "According to Webster's Dictionary, 'monitoring student affairs' could mean that a student body member on the senate came to no decision regarding Observer finances.

DISTRIBUTION OF ADDITIONAL $10,000 DISCUSSED BY SENATE

The Notre Dame Student Senate at last night's meeting discussed its role in the allocation of a recent $10,000 increase in its fiscal budget for 1985-86.

Because of an underestimation of enrolled students by the University, student government originally was not given the correct amount of money from student activity fees, said Senate member Karen Ingwerson.

The approximately $10,000 in additional funds represents the corrected balance of student activity fees, she said.

Senator Chris Abbood proposed the money be put into a student government fund which the senate would allocate for student groups in the year to class budgets, clubs or dorm events.

"The organizations would be responsible for requesting additional funds as needed," Abbood said.

Junior Class President Jim Domagalski said the classes need more money than the amount this system probably would provide.

"We need to make sure our students are not selfish toward student activity fees, but it's just reality. We get $34,000 a year to spend and we've got to spend it some time," he said.

"If the university would make more money available for public inspection, I don't want to look over the statements and be able to ask questions," he said.

"Although Bill (Healy) has since told me that by 'monitoring the expenditure' the group meant that it wanted to look over the statements and be able to ask questions, Webster's Dictionary still defines 'monitor, 'to watch, observe or check especially for a purpose... to keep track of, regulate or control,'" he said.

"There are executive coordinators who have budgets larger than the whole class's budget. There are regulations run by SAB (Student Activi­

Badin Hall President Judih Windhorst has several suggestions for how her hall could use the space left by the barbershop, hair stylist and travel bureau when they move from Badin Hall to the restored Southlawn, she said.

But whether anyone takes those suggestions remains in question.

"No one seems to know what's going on with the space that will be vacated," she said.

Windhorst wrote a letter last week to Father David Tyson, vice president for student affairs, requesting that Badin Hall receive all or part of the space to be vacated, she said.

Tyson replied in a letter that a decision has been made regarding the space, Windhorst said. Tyson added that he had forwarded her letter to the "appropriate University offices," she said.

Travel bureau manager MaryAnn Wachter said she had not been notified officially of any plans to relocate the Travel Bureau, although she has heard that it will be moving sometime this spring or summer.

Badin Hall could use the extra space, Windhorst said, even though it "has benefited from the convenience and student traffic," the services have provided.

"Food sales is probably the most urgent need," she said.

At the present time, the hall food sales are housed in one small room, she said. There is no separate space for inventory storage, which means inventory must be stored in the single room, Windhorst said, leaving inadequate space for food preparation.

The current facility is no sink which has led to selling only pre-packaged food because of sanitary regulations, she said.

"There are also not enough electrical outlets in the food sales area, and the current refrigerator has to be unplugged when they want to plug in another appliance," she said.

President Reagan signed a stopgap bill yesterday to pay for government spending for the next 45 days and called on Congress to promptly enact separate appropriation legislation that holds the line on outlays. The measure, which expires Nov. 14, generally holds total appropriations at a level below fiscal 1985, which expires today. It freezes defense spending at $292.6 billion, the same level as in 1985. Among other provisions, the measure prohibits the administration's Nicaragua guerrillas trying to topple the leftist Sandinista regime. Reagan, in a statement, urged Congress to enact regular appropriation bills "without delay" and within the spending limits prescribed by the House-Senate budget resolution. - AP

Let's face it, fellow Arts and Letters majors, we're destined to make money next year. Forget the wrappings of our colleagues, who have bemooned our financial futures. And don't offer to sell your soul to some obscure law school. There is hope. Of course, we're going to have to work hard for our money - we made that decision four years ago when we decided P.A.D. and M.D. didn't sound well at the end of our names. I'll be a interesting and imaginative project, however, kind of like looking for a cool spot in O'Shaughnessy. For starters, we could form a club, buy several 30-foot offshore racing boats and establish a trade route between some "agriculturally oriented" South American country and southern Florida. We might even give a guest spot on "Miami Vice." Illegal activities aside, there are innumerable ways to generate payments for a BMW. Browsing through a hometown grocery store over the weekend, checking out The Star's latest contributions to journalism, I found a colorful tabloid which could change the life of every American student student. Before my eyes was a 32-page paper loaded with money-making suggestions. Editorialy, the publication contains articles offering advice on certain proven business ideas printing photos for friends and relatives, installing new houses, planning parties for fun and profit; and many others. It guarantees, pictured next to his new German cars, that he'll send his book. He promises, pictured next to his new German cars, that he'll send his book. It's simple, just read the articles and start counting your cash. The really good ideas are found in the ad area, which occupy most of the tabloid's territory. These ads, mostly poorly written and most promising huge profits with small investments, could be the answer to our collective problems. For example, one guy sells, in a full-page blurb, how he learned to make $8,000 in 2 days. Down and out, unable to clothe his family, he got an incredible idea which led to his miraculous income. It doesn't require selling, and our hero assures readers that the scheme is both moral and ethical. For $10, he'll send his book. He guarantees, pictured next to his new German cars, that his idea will generate the promised figure - or your money back. That's $14,600 per year, a sports fan. Another ad offers "instant personality," with tape courses in memory, "non-manipulative selling," speed learning," and vocabulary expansion. How about a $4 by 6 card containing 1,400 "sparking laugh-makers." It's probably not the way Johnny Carson got his start, but it's certainly a beginning. A tax service offers to print "folks without special education or experience," how to prepare tax statements. I could write book, all you Hayes-Healy types.

Vinyl repair, amazingly not offered through our arts department, is a sure way to make $5 an hour, according to another ad. After all, the ad reads, everybody has holes in their vinyl, why not cash in on vinyl repair manias? My favorite ad, which spells doom for doctors and their big wallets, proclaims that a 400-standout device can control most pain. No moreointments, aspirin or acetaminophen. Just send for a few of the units and sell them at an inflated price to desperate bedridden folks. You'll be doing mankind a huge favor. The classifieds is a bit more direct. "Obscene Profits" are possible, according to one source, by operating a "complete adult mail order program." Need $20,000 free, without obligation to repay! Write this California company, because "anyone's eligible." And who would guess that repairing windshields and plate glass could be a $60,000-a-year proposition? I've touched on only a few topics this wonderful publication, and already I can see that new BMW in the driveway of my gaudy new house. Anybody wanna buy a bridge?

Thanks to you... it works... for ALL OF US.

Room selection procedure heads Board of Governance discussions
By KIMBERLY TRENNER
Senior Staff Reporter

“We would prefer that people who want to live together, live together,” said Pat Rissmeyer, director of residence life and housing, at last night’s Saint Mary’s Board of Governance meeting.

Rissmeyer’s comments came during her speech addressing what she felt were problems with the current system of room selections.

“In the past students have met their roommates while waiting in line during room selection,” she said. “Often in big rooms people live together only because they want to live in a specific dorm,” she said.

The problems which she said students find they are unable to live together because they have conflicting personality traits.

Alternatively, methods of room selections currently are being discussed, she said. “One possible way of ensuring students of a specified room size would be to hold room picks for triples, quads and quints on separate nights, she said.

Such a system would prevent students from making the mistake of choosing “convenient” roommates and it would make the biggest rooms more available to students truly desiring them, Rissmeyer said.

While the Notre Dame’s men’s and women’s tennis team will have access to the facility, its primary use will be as a recreational tennis facility for faculty and students, especially during the inclement winter months, he said.

“People are planning to do an inspection soon, we are waiting until all lofts have been delivered,” said Rissmeyer. “Although we are taking some time away from the R.A.’s and hall directors,” she said. A change in the policy currently is being discussed, she said.

In other matters, the possible creation of a Jaycees chapter was discussed. This organization provides people between the ages of 18 and 36 with the opportunity to do service functions and charity work in the local community.

As a national organization, 20 members are needed to be a charter. Thus, Rissmeyer hopes for 200 dollars per year. One benefit of membership in the Jaycees is that upon graduation, students can maintain their involvement at their new locations. Both Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s students have been invited to join.

Also announced at the meeting was a show by Muriel Bach tomorrow night at the Monroe Hall Little Theatre. Bach will be depicting the lives of several women in her show, “Freed Never Said It Would Be Easy.” McCandless Hall residents will be sponsoring a reception in the foyer of the Little Theatre after Bach’s show.

Also discussed at the meeting was the “Shelter for the Homeless,” a program which, by adding on a wing to the building, would provide shelter for the homeless. Orientation for those who wish to help will be held at the Fatima Retreat Center on Oct. 13 or 14 from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Pilots of a deadly crash informed severe storm was "only a little rain"

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - In the minutes before Delta Flight 191 crashed while trying to land at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, a threating storm was clearly apparent and a pilot who just had landed noticed what he thought was a tornado.

But National Transportation Safety Board documents indicated yesterday the pilot of Flight 191 never was warned of the storm's severity. Less than 10 minutes before the crash he was told by air-traffic controllers that there was "only a little rain" north of the air-port.

Investigators have speculated that the storm, which killed 136 people, was caused by wind shear, a severe change of wind direction that literally forced the Lockheed L-1011 jet into the ground as it was about to land.

A transcript of exchanges in the cockpit just before the crash supplied additional power and the "whoop, whoop, push it up pull it up" warning of the ground proximity alarm in the background.

This was followed by a sound similar to a landing and someone saying: "Oh..." and what the NTSB called a non-printable word. Almost immediately there was the sound of a second impact and silence.

The flight, from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was bound for Los Angeles with 161 passengers and crew on board. The weather was a little drizzle and thunderstorms near Dallas.

Other senate members expressed varying opinions on the request to open their books.

"I think that faculty has the right, but nothing will be changed because we'll have to work together and we'll have to work right," said Judith Windhorst, assistant professor of political science.

"If the students contribute that fee (the $6 Observer fee), then I think the books should be open so they can see what they're spending money on," said Healy. "The Observer doesn't have to open it.

"I really referred to a Sept. 18 letter from Hamilton to him explaining the advertising rate increase and comparing other colleges' rates to Notre Dame's.

"In her reply, she named, I think, five or six newspapers with advertising rates," Healy said. "Most of those don't collect student fees. There are two I believe, that don't collect student fees and those two would release their financial statements.

"The Observer is an independent newspaper, but they are financially dependent on the students for their funds. Therefore, I think they should have to reveal their books," said Judith Windhorst, a senate member.

She said she thinks The Observer would not lose its independence by opening its books to the public.

"Many newspapers, in fact, real newspapers, do release their books," said Healy.

"Off-Campus Senator Jim Hagan said he thought the 80-20 policy would be a "good option" for the class governments, because the class could apply to the senate for more money for their classships.

"How can that be damaging to the class officers? The money would be available by application to the classes. This would be a good option for them," he said.

Domagalski said he thought the decision to use the 80-20 system still could be changed.

"What we still don't know, at least in my mind and in (Senior Class President) John Spark's mind and (Sophomore Class President) Steve George's mind, is that the 80-20 thing is definite. Now I take Bill's word that Father (Tyson) said that, but I've also been told something else by someone else," Domagalski said.

"Proposals can be made left and right but nothing will be changed," said Healy, who said his discussion with Father Tyson confirmed his statement.

"I have to follow what he (Father Tyson) says," Healy said.

Further discussion was postponed until official written word is received from Neal and other officials in the administration.

In other business, Senator K.C. Calum proposed the formation of an attendance policy for the senate. "There is a definite problem with people showing up," he said.

"I would like to see an attendance policy just because in the long run, in the future, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," Calum said, explaining that he could foresee a later situation in which lack of attendance would directly influence issues.

He referred to Domagalski's leaving a meeting last year and said there was a need to formulate new policy.

"Abord questioned the need for an attendance policy. "I believe we shouldn't impose rules which question our integrity," he said.

Georgia protest ignites into major disturbance

Associated Press

ASHBURN, Ga. - Hundreds of blacks protesting the shooting death of a black woman who tried to escape from police began hurling rocks and bottles downtown last night, breaking store windows and injuring at least two pasing motorists, authorities said.

State troopers and agents from the Georgia Bureau of Investigation were called in from surrounding areas to help restore calm in the town of 4,500 people, said Turner County Sheriff Lamar Whidson.

The disturbance broke out after 6:30 p.m. when a crowd of about 350 to 600 people gathered at the Turner County Courthouse to demonstrate following the slaying earlier in the day of Robert Wright.

Wright, 22, was charged Sept. 2 in the armed robbery of a convenience store and was in court for a hearing to revoke his probation on a previous burglary conviction. He fled from a second floor courtroom, down the back stairs into an alley, Whidson said.

When Wright refused an officer's order to halt, the officer opened fire, shooting him in the back, Whidson said. Wright died on route to a Tifton hospital.

Tax hike takes effect for booze, perfume

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Americans will find liquor and perfume more expensive and a scheduled tax cut on cigarettes likely to be scrapped when the government's 1986 fiscal year begins today.

And pressure begins on states to adopt new laws to collect child support payments from absent parents.

The cigarette tax had been scheduled to drop from 16 cents a pack to 8 cents. Congress now appears likely to approve a bill to keep it at the 16-cent rate - meaning $5 billion in extra revenue over the next three years - and may also add taxes to snuff and chewing tobacco.

The 8-cent levy may be in effect for a short time because it appeared unlikely the House and Senate could agree by midnight yesterday on details of a bill extending the full tax.

Once a bill is approved, it almost certainly would be retroactive to Oct. 1.

The states have their cigarette taxes, too, and 17 of them have enacted increases that take effect if the federal levy drops. Of the 17, seven have taxes that would roll back the state tax increase if Congress reinstates the full 16-cent federal tax.

While the Senate Finance Committee has voted to impose a federal tax on snuff and chewing tobacco, there is no certainty that measure will become law.

That leaves the tax hike on distilled spirits as the change that probably will affect the most people. It is projected to add $1.3 billion to the treasury over the next three years.

In recent weeks, many liquor dealers took out advertisements urging their customers to stock up ahead of the tax boost.

Stocking up helps both the consumer who gets his spirits at a lower price, and the dealer, who is saved the trouble of taking inventory and paying a special one-time tax on his stock in hand under the law.

The tax hike affects distilled spirits such as liquor, brandy and cordials, but not wine and beer.

Because the increase is $2 a gallon, which sounds simple, but isn't.

Federal taxes are collected on the so-called proof gallon, which is a gallon of spirits at 100 proof.

For example, a liter bottle of 86 proof bourbon will have a tax increase of 45 cents, a 1-75 liter bottle of 90 proof vodka of 83 cents and a 1.5 liter bottle of schnapps, at 80 proof, would cost 21 cents more.

Reagan optimistic over peace talks

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Reagan expressed optimism yesterday about overcoming obstacles to the opening of Arab-Israeli peace talks this year, while Jordan's King Hussein stressed that negotiations must take place at an international conference attended by the Soviet Union.

Reagan and Hussein met for nearly an hour in their second round of talks this year. The meeting came against the backdrop of Reagan's announcement Friday of a controversial, $1.5 billion weapons package for Jordan.

The United States and Israel have objected to holding peace talks at an international conference because that would give the Soviet Union a role in shaping the future of the Middle East. Israel does not have diplomatic relations with Moscow, and the Soviets have provided arms to Syria and other Arab countries hostile to Israel.

A senior administration official said Reagan and Hussein focused their talks "very intensively" on the organization and structure of an international conference.

"I think headway has been made. This is not the moment, this is not the place to get into the details of that headway," said the official, briefing reporters under rules granting him anonymity.

Reagan and Hussein both have talked about holding negotiations under "appropriate auspices" but have differed on what that should be.

"We're not excluding anything," said a White House official, speaking privately. "We are exploring what appropriate international auspices might contain. We don't want to get involved in something where Israel makes a spectator." The White House had made joint statements outside the White House diplomatic entrance before the king left in his limo time for his Middle East conference.

Expressing hopes for talks before the end of the year, the president said, "There are complex and sensitive issues which must be resolved before actual negotiations can begin, but I believe these issues can be resolved."

Soviets abducted in Beirut

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Gunmen dragged three Soviet diplomats and an embassy doctor out of their official cars, fired bullets at their feet, pushed them into a white embassy physician Nikolai Versky.

Radio reports said the Soviets were seized from two embassy cars that later were found abandoned near Beirut airport. Witnesses said one of the cars was intercepted by several gunmen.

The report two Soviets out, the foreigners said, fired handguns at their feet, pushed them into a white Mercedes and drove off. The other two Soviets were seized from a second car, police said.

An embassy spokesman confirmed the kidnappings but declined to give details.

They were the first Soviets known to be kidnapped in Beirut since gunmen started seizing foreigners in January 1984. Thirty-five foreigners have been abducted since then and 14 other foreigners are still missing.

The Observer should be forced to open its books

My name is Reginald Daniel and I am the station manager of the AM student radio station, WVN. Now that things have sort of settled down, I felt this was a perfect opportunity to say a belated welcome back to campus and sort of let you know what has been going on with the student station. I’d like to discuss the letter, but first I thought I should state my position on the issue of raising The Observer’s financial statements made public.

Reginald Daniel

guest column

For those of you who have been sleeping in a coffin, the reason I and the other members of the student media and student government want those statements made public stems from the recent increase in advertising fees. The Observer has instituted, as well as the feeling that as long as The Observer gets 80 of my money without question, it ought to at least have the decency to tell me how the money is being spent.

Think about it: there are approximately 9,500 students at this University who pay tuition, and included in that bill there is one line that says "Observer Fee," or something to that effect. We have no say in not paying it, we pay it whether we want to or not and it all goes straight to The Observer, no questions asked.

Well, I think it is high time we asked. There is no way you can tell me that with revenue from an estimated $75,000 in student fees, close to $25,000 in advertising fees from student businesses, government, revenue from outside businesses advertising in The Observer and outside subscriptions, that The Observer had an actual profit rate as high as it did.

The Observer gets approximately $82,000 from student fees alone. Add in the fact that the only profit reported $11,000 in profit The Observer made, and one does not have to be an accountant to see the figure that there is probably something wrong somewhere, or that perhaps The Observer is hiding something.

Of course, all of that is mostly logical deduction based on the information we have, and I could be totally wrong in that belief. The only real way to tell is to see The Observer’s financial statements. The Observer has refused. The Observer believes that by giving the students the statements and justifying the increases in ad rates, control of the paper would be lost. In effect, The Observer believes we would take it over.

Well, I personally have no interest in running The Observer either financially or editorially. After all, I have enough problems with WIIF. The Observer has been, and will always continue to be, an independent newspaper.

Or maybe I’ll try something new this weekend, like having some fun. Yeah, that’s fun. After all, Dad always did say to have fun and make friends in college. Or was dear old Dad just pulling my leg?

Let’s not play games here. Sure there are things that go on Notre Dame. But there are also things to do in Russia, and I know I would rather not live there. I too get tired of people saying that our social life is over. I’ve had a great time this year and so can others with a little drive, some creativity and a good tap on the head.

And if worse comes to worst, I too always can consider doing some other "fun" things like watching our clothes mold or playing piatch. But hey, you better give me a chance to watch the Brady Bunch. Indeed, when last I saw, Bobby and Cindy were lost in the Grand Canyon and I simply must know what happens.

Alcohol policy never in students' best interest

Dear Editor:

The 25-D. J. Doyle wrote an enlightening letter that opened my eyes to the stupidity of my ways. Imagine, all this time I have succumbed myself (most likely due to peer pressure) into believing the alcohol policy restricted my actions and cramped my social life. Dear God... what a foolishly youth I have been.

Doonesbury

Or maybe I’ll try something new this weekend, like having some fun. Yeah, that’s fun. After all, Dad always did say to have fun and make friends in college. Or was dear old Dad just pulling my leg?

Let’s not play games here. Sure there are things that go on Notre Dame. But there are also things to do in Russia, and I know I would rather not live there. I too get tired of people saying that our social life is over. I’ve had a great time this year and so can others with a little drive, some creativity and a good tap on the head.

And if worse comes to worst, I too always can consider doing some other "fun" things like watching our clothes mold or playing piatch. But hey, you better give me a chance to watch the Brady Bunch. Indeed, when last I saw, Bobby and Cindy were lost in the Grand Canyon and I simply must know what happens.

Alcohol policy never in students' best interest

Dear Editor:

It seems to me that it would be impossible to attend all of those fun Notre Dame events on a given weekend. On Doyle, I’m with you this weekend. We’ll bop around to those "lectures" having letter that opened my eyes to the stupidity that says our social life is over. I’ve had a great time this year and so can others with a little drive, some creativity and a good tap on the head.

Nothing ever funny about war memorials

Dear Editor:

Today as I was walking past the site for the new war memorial fountain, I overheard a few rural ROTC students discussing comments in reference to the memorial. They said, "This is going to be the biggest laugh we’ve ever had," and "I’m going to laugh when they are putting up a flaming torches lighting the way to winter." Quote of the day

“October’s poplars are flaming torches lighting the way to winter.”

Novel A. Bair
"Copper’s Weekly"
Paisley rears its amoeba-shaped head again

Mary Jacoby

R eember paisley, that wild and groovy clothing material so popular in the ’60s? Well, it’s back. Personally, I don’t like it because it reminds me of the time my little sister had impetigo. All those festering, festering sores running wild on her body. Yuk!

But like it or not, paisley is definitely back as afad. Just look around. Everyone’s wearing those shirts with the intricate amoeba patterns on them. Features on paisley have appeared in magazines ranging from Seventeen to GQ. Why the current fascination with the stuff?

“Uh, I don’t know,” Saint Mary’s junior Karen Cook said. “It’s just really cool.”

Junior Dave Schendler was more specific: “Paisley is progressive. It reminds me of hairy caterpillars.”

Don’t stop reading. Because now this article is going to get really academic as I attempt to answer one of the most urgent questions facing Yuppies civilization: “What made Paisley a fad?”

First, we must keep in mind that paisley is making its second appearance on the fashion pages.

During the psychedelic movement of the 60s, paisley was also very fashionable attire, except the people who wore paisley back then—all the ones who stuck fad journals. All that long, stringy hair, weird chains of beads, and leather sandals. Those people simply did not do paisley justice.

Now, think heavens, the paisley pattern has been updated for the ’80s success-oriented society. Its wild curves have been scaled down and printed in tasteful colors on button-down shirts. Really, ’80s paisley was just too outlandish. It ran all over the place in the most obnoxious orange, purple, and green colors. But today’s paisley can be worn anywhere with ease—from an afternoon boardroom meeting with the boss to a night out on the town. It’s that versatile.

The paisley really began rolling about three years ago when R.E.M. released their highly acclaimed first album, Murmur. If you look closely on the back cover you’ll see that bassist Mike Mills is wearing a paisley shirt. It is even possible that he scarf around Michael Stipe’s neck is also paisley styled.

It seems that various members of R.E.M. began wearing paisley in concert and since the music press was having trouble describing their sound—which isn’t exactly rock, pop, folk, or the bland “new” music—the term “paisley underground” was coined to cover all relatively unknown bands with similar directions.

Prince has a song on his most recent album called “Paisley Park.” “Man in Motion” by John Parr, the theme song from the movie “St. Elmo’s Fire,” has a line which says something to the effect of “underneath the paisley skies.” It’s even possible to buy paisley underwear. I’ve seen it.

Sorry to break everyone’s heart, but all the really cool people recognized the merits of paisley a long time ago and have consequently moved on to another fad so as to stay ahead of the pack. Now the rest of the world (i.e. the pack) is inundated with paisley.

The re-emergence of paisley is proof that fashions run in cycles. By my calculations, that means in about 15 years, R.E.M.’s yeasty little face will be plastered once again on every available piece of mercandine in American stores. So don’t throw out your E.P. pajamas. Like paisley, they also might be the rage again sometime in the future.

Bach displays versatility in one-woman show

Special to The Observer

W ithin the space of 60 minutes, actress-co-author Muriel Bach delves into the lives of a slew of famous women, and emerges with an amusing and touching presentation of their struggles in her one-woman show, “Freud Never Said It Was Easy,” which comes to Saint Mary’s for an 8 p.m. performance tomorrow in Moreau Hall Little Theatre.

Bach recreates scenes from the lives of different women who all attempted to fulfill psychological theories of Sigmund Freud’s prescription for a healthy human being: love and work.

Some could. Some couldn’t. “Freud Never Said It Was Easy” gives the audience an opportunity to share moments in the lives of Agatha Christie, the world’s biggest-selling writer of detective stories; Clara Schumann, brilliant concert pianist and wife to composer Robert Schumann; Colette, writer of sensitive, sensual novels and the only French woman ever to receive a state funeral; Emma Goldman, union organizer, notorious for her love affairs; Lillian Gilbreth, first renowned efficiency expert (and mother of 12 children); and Golda Meir, Israel’s prime minister.

Those who choose to spend an hour with Muriel Bach will come to know these women, and themselves, better.

Today, while so many actresses bemoan the dearth of “good” parts, Bach remains satisfied with what the theatre has offered her. For the past 25 years, she has researched, written, staged and portrayed the lives of noteworthy women in the context of one-woman theatre.

In sketches titled “Of All the Nerve,” “Freud Never Said It Was Easy,” and “Madam, Your Influence Isshowing,” Bach also highlights the lives of Eleanor Roosevelt, Theda Bara, Gertrude Stein, Maria Montessori, Eleanor of Aquitaine, Helen Keller, as well as the mothers of the Wright Brothers, John Wilkes Booth, Thomas Edison, Florence Nightingale, Arthur Compton and Mohandas Gandhi. Each separate program depicts the lives of six women who share a common bond.

When researching the people she portrays, Bach looks for a certain moment in their lives in which a significant change occurred. “I spend a year researching and writing each program and in evitably that my own life is immeasurably enriched by coping with the crises of other people,” she said.

Being a writer and performer is not all she does. In addition to doing the research, writing and performing, Bach designs the costumes and lighting sets, which she carries with for all engagements. “In this company the cast and crew are the same size .. five live shows,” she says, “but we grow with each challenge.”

Tickets are $1.00 for Saint Mary’s students and faculty, and $3.00 for the general public. They are available at the St. Mary’s Tickets Office, call 284-4626. There will be a reception following the performance.

KANSAS CITY - Jim Sundberg's home run in the seventh inning last night broke a 1-1 tie and helped B reet to his 12th victory and Kansas City to a 3-1 triumph over the Angels to tie the American League West.

New York's four-hitter, 2-0, turned the Angels into a 3-1 loser for the second time in a row.

The Yankees' lead-off man, Don Gullett, struck out 11 in support of Blyleven, who pitched a one-hitter as the Minnesota Twins beat the White Sox 7-1 last night.

The Mets pulled within three games of the Cardinals after a 1-0 victory over Chicago Cubs pitcher Steve Buechele, who won his sixth straight game and pulled within five games of American League East leading Toronto, which was idle.

The Blue Jays' magic number for clinching the division remains at three games.

Twins 7, White Sox 1

MINNEAPOLIS - Bert Blyleven pitched a five-hitter and Mike Hatcher, who had given up the go-ahead run in the third inning on Chicago catcher Carlton Fisk's error as the Minnesota Twins beat the White Sox 7-1 last night.

Kirk Puckett went 4-for-4 and Dave Engle added a three-run homer in support of Blyleven, who struck out seven and completed his major-league high 23st game.

With the score tied 1-1 in the third, Hatcher's smash off Britten, 18-11, eluded two Chicago out-fielders for a triple. Shorstop Ozrie Guillén took the relay and threw home in a hurry and Blyleven came in to get an inside-the-park, home run. Hatcher led the ball attempting to make the tag.

The Twins made it 3-1 in the fifth on Nicky Hatcher's sacrifice before the sixth, Engle hit his seventh home run and Steve Lombardozzi hit a sacrifice fly.

Puckett's first-inning double and Lombardozzi's single gave Minnesota 1-0 lead. Chicago tied the game in the third on Greg Walker's RBI single.

Giants 4, Reds 3

SAN FRANCISCO - Don Gullett's two-out single in the ninth inning victory over the Cincinnati Reds moved the big Red to closer elimination in the National League West race.

The Reds, who managed only three hits, remained 1/2 games behind the Giants, who lost to San Diego last night. A win would have assured the Dodgers of at least one tie for the division title.

The Reds got singles by Greg Nokès, Joe Uribe and Gladding in the ninth inning, but the Reds Power, 7-6, the victory went to Scott Garret, 9-4.

Herzog juggling pitching rotation for big-game series with Mets

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS - The New York Mets hadn't even arrived in St. Louis for a potential clinching series, and Cardinal Manager Whitey Herzog was already up to his tricks.

After giving the franchise's 20-game winner Dwight Gooden good news to the series after Gooden made some rotation changes of his own, hoping to at least prevent the Mets from getting a big hit for a win, Herzog said, "They said they were going to switch Gooden to Wednesday." said Herzog, whose Cardinals have a three-game lead in the National League East, "We're going to make this up to move up (Tudor)."

Herzog said his teammates were ready to move up.

"If it was Davey Johnson and I needed a sweep, I'd almost have to do that," Herzog said. "Not that (Ron) Darling and (Rick) Aguilera are not capable of pitching shutouts.

But he has to sweep and he wants Gooden matched up with (Tudor)."

Darling, 16-5, will open for the Mets tonight against Tudor, who has won 19 of his last 20 decisions.

The Mets pulled within three games of the Cardinals on Sunday when Gary Carter hit a two-run homer in the 10th inning to boost New York to a 9-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates while St. Louis was losing to Montreal, 2-1.

"We had to have this win," said Mets third baseman Howard Johnson after he hit a ninth-inning home run to tie the Pirates and set up Carter's heroics.

"All we could hope for going into this was for Louis to be in for a chance to catch them," he said. "Now we have that chance."

Davey Johnson said he was just happy to go into the series with a chance to tie the Cardinals.

"It's in our hands, and that's all I can ask for," said the New York manager. "Now if we can sweep, we can control our destiny. I like to be able to control our destiny."

A New York sweep would leave the two clubs tied going into the final weekend. With the Cardinals magic number at four, they would clinch the NL east title by winning twice against the Mets.

St. Louis second baseman Tom Herr said his teammates were ready for the Mets after dropping two of three games to the Expos, who have beaten the Cardinals 12 times in 18 games this season.

"We knew if we came in here and won there was nothing the Mets could do," Herr said. "But by losing two we left the door open for them a bit."

The Cardinals play their remaining six games at the friendly confines of Busch Stadium, where they are 51.24 in 1985.

The Mets have the three games in St. Louis before returning to Shea Stadium for a three-game series against the Expos.

First year coach by finishing fourth in a field of 32 doubles tandems.

"It could be that competitive because of the simple fact that Michelle is hurt," said Gelblum. "I'm sure we would have been a lot more competitive for that problem and just went out and did our best job as the second doubles team."

Pameller summed up the weekend best at a learning experience that will prove to be more valuable than the mere competition or results of the tournament.

"We have been playing some of the weaker teams and then we just got blown away in among the top-ranked teams," said the Irish captain. "It really shows who has the experience. We have to get used to this kind of high level of play if we want to improve."

Eason, a 6'4, 194-pound

“Always liked Notre Dame,” says

Eason. “I used to watch their basketball and that was my first interest in this sport. Basketball is always been my favorite sport, and I liked watching Notre Dame - Notre Dame was my team.

In high school, I set it (attending Notre Dame as a goal), because my dad wanted me to go to a Catholic school and Notre Dame is the best Catholic school in the Midwest.

Originally, however, Eason's high school team was not expected to track until his junior year when his father first allowed him to play track.

As a basketball player, he earned two all-conference and one all-squad during his senior year. In Notre Dame's bookstore Basketball Tournament last year, he enjoyed success with "Mr. Coffey and the Non-Dairy Creamers" which made it to the final 16 before losing to the eventual tournament champions.

As a track star, he holds three records at his high school in the decathlon, high hurdles and triple jump. As a senior, he accumulated a total of 6,275 points, which ranks him as seventh on the all-time list in the state of Washington.

“In the spring, I never planned to play football here because I didn’t play football until my junior year in high school,” explains Eason. “When my junior year came around, however, football seemed to be going pretty well for me and I just decided to put it all into that.”

Last year, Eason spent the season on the prep team for Notre Dame.

Eason’s second season is expected to prove that he is able to develop his skills as a defensive end.

“Last year, we were on the prep team and that was really tough. I ran routes against the starting defense, and it’s really nothing but a new system. I just had to prove from that, I came into the spring, and I was really looking to prove myself because I had a good spring, and I talked to Coach Faust after the season. He told me that they travel six receivers and that I was among the top six.

Eason’s increased playing time this year has come as a result of his hard work and desire to play. According to Irish offensive coordinator Mike Stock.

As a receiver, Eason idoles Notre Dame wide.outs in his ability to set up the defenses and in his patience. He believes that his own strengths lie in his ability as a receiver overall.

Most of the players are working on executing good heart, and I also consider myself to have good heart," says Eason. “I think that I can go up for a ball in a crowd pretty well. I hope to contribute in any way that I can to help the team win.”

For the Irish in 1989, Eason is looking forward to a strong team efficiency from their young group of receivers. Despite their early losses, the sophomores feel that the Irish will redeem and look towards a successful stretch drive.

“I have the goal of the game is to win and be successful,” comments Eason. “All of our guys have worked hard, and if we come together as a team, things will come out right and we should win.”

Drahota, Szaiko impress Laverie; Belles play well in SMC invitational

By KELLY PORTOLESE

Saint Mary’s Sports Editor

The Saint Mary’s tennis team played host to seven NCAA Division schools this weekend in its annual invitational tournament at South Bend's Leeper Park. The scores of the six NCAA Division schools were not available, but no team scores were compiled. Junior Kim Drahota and freshman Charlene Szaiko were the bright spots for the Belles, placing third and fifth, respectively, in their respective flights.

“I was really happy with Drahota and Szaiko's singles play this weekend," said Head Coach Debbie Laverie. "It (the tournament) didn't show that we need improvement on our doubles though, since we didn't win a doubles match."

“It was a great experience to play these NCAA Division schools. This type of competition will help us later on.”

NCAA Division 1 schools present were Bowling Green, Toledo, Marquette, Iowa State and Northern Illinois. DePaul and Xavier are NCAA Division 111, while Saint Mary's was the lone NCAA school participating. Saint Mary's top five singles players and first three doubles teams each played in four matches over the weekend.

Saint Mary's No. 1 singles player, Ann Dambiro, finished eighth for the day, losing in the finals of the consolation round to Bowling Green's Debbie Smith, 6-4, 6-1. Seed No. 2 for the Bellles was freshman Shaun Boyd who also finished eighth, losing to Marquette's No. 2 singles player in her final match, 7-5, 6-2. Drahota finished third in her flight while compiling overall a 3-1 weekend mark. She had three wins on the season and an overall record of 6-0, 6-1, 6-2, 6-0.

Playing No. 1 singles for the Bellles was Heather Trefiowicz, who played fifth overall in her flight with a 2-2 weekend record. Northern Illinois' Ellis handed Trefiowicz a 6-0, 6-2 defeat in her final match. Sophomore Sheila Campbell was win-ness in four attempts, losing to Bowling Green's fifth-seeded player in her final match.

Szaiko finished fifth in her flight winning three of her four matches.

She defeated Jay of DePauw 6-2, 6-4 in her final match.

The Bellles No. 1 doubles team of Dambiro and Bridget Hayden lost to Northern Illinois' first seeded doubles team, 6-2, 6-2, while Xavier's No. 2 combination of Kappes and Smith downed the Bellles team of Szaiko and Boyd in three sets, 6-4, 6-6, 6-3. Freshman No. 3 doubles pair of Campbell and Drahota were defeated by DePauw's Greer and Hays, 6-3, 6-1.

The Bellles, who own a 2-5 record, will have one and a half weekends to prepare for the weekend's Irish Invitational. Saint Mary's is scheduled to play leaving and Marquette and Laverie is looking forward to the weekend matches.

“We lost to Marquette earlier in the season,” said the first-year coach. “But we have improved since then and that match will be a good gauge to determine how much we have improved.”

Purdue defeats St. Mary's in soccer

By CHRIS FORTIN

Sports Writer

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. - The Saint Mary's women's soccer team went on the road this weekend to battle Purdue, and the Belles returned home with a 1-0 loss. Their only goal was scored in the second half by junior Gloria Reiser.

“The score is not a good reflection of how we're competing with these teams," said Coach John Akers. "The team has a young but talented defense. Freshman Anne Pechous has a lot of potential as a defensive player."

Intensity level increases in Interhall as teams finish 2nd week of games

By FRANK HUEMMER

The intensity level of interhall football increased as the second week of competition concluded. Many of the opening day jitters were worked out as teams displayed great improvement in their style of play, but overall the tough defensive play prevailed.

Both upset winners from last week, Keenan and Holy Cross, were defeated, as Morrissey and Alumni showed that they are teams to be reckoned with. Also, Grace and Borth continued to impress with their play, while Zahm opened up its season on a winning note. Heading into the third week of action, there are already many important games as teams begin to aim for playoff spots.

Some big games took place over the weekend. In the Parseghian Division, Morrissey (2-0) showed they are for real with a hard fought 6-0 victory over Keenan (1-1). John Mondo threw a pass to Dave Lamensdorf for the game's only score as both defenses played inspired football. Also, Grace remained in the un-beaten ranks with a 7-0 win over Off-Campus (0-2). The game's only touchdown came as John Mihalovich connected on a 70-yard pass play to team captain Ed Borzemski, on Grace's first possession.

"We improved a lot and were able to move the ball up and down the field well," said Borzemski. "Hopefully, we'll have it ready again for next week."

Meanwhile, Hamer and Dillon played to a 6-6 stand-off as both teams slipped to (0-1-1). Flanner scored his touchdown on a 10-yard scamper by Tim Arnold while Dillon tailed on a pass from Pat Marget to Paul Dery.

"I think our offense will have to get it together this week," said D-D-C co-captain Paul Kolanski. "Our backs will really be against the wall."

In the Holy Division, parity seems to be the word to describe Alumni (2-0), Zahm (1-0), Holy Cross (1-0), Keenan (0-1) and Cavanaugh (0-2) as all will be battling it out to see who will be the eventual winner. "There seems to be a good deal of parity within our division," said Zahm captain Mike Chnistel. "On any given day any team in the division can be beaten. I'm looking for a close division race which will go down to the wire."

The following day the Irish played in the first weekend of the Midwest Intercollegiate Championships. John Coyle had details below.

Irish lose Tim Brown

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame football team will be without the services of linebacker Tim Brown for this Saturday's game at Air Force, team physicians announced yesterday.

Brown, who suffered a severely sprained ankle against Purdue last Saturday, will not be able to return to Notre Dame for at least three weeks, according to team doctors.

The sophomore wide receiver injured his ankle late in the third quarter in last Saturday's game in West Lafayette, Ind., and left the field on crutches. He finished the day with three receptions for 30 yards.

A native of Dallas, Texas, Brown ranks as Notre Dame's leading receiver with seven catches for 150 yards through the first two weekends of action.

The Irish will be counting on junior Alton Miller, along with sophomores Reggie Ward and Tony Eason and senior Pat Cusack, to pick up the slack in Brown's absence.

Miller has been troubled by injuries through the early part of the season and did not catch his first pass until last week, while Ward is in his first second-leading receiver with seven catches for 101 yards this season.

Field hockey team loses two games by narrow margins; record now 4-4

By KENT WELDON

The Notre Dame field hockey team played two tough games and dropped both of them this past weekend in West Lafayette, Ind. The Irish were pitted against two Big Ten rivals in Ohio State and Purdue, losing 2-0 to each and 1-0 to the Boiliers.

Irish head coach Jill Lindfeldt knew right from the start that the Irish were facing two strong teams. This was evidenced when they watched Ohio State hold Purdue, ranked 16th in the nation, to a 0-0 tie.

Because of this close match, Lindfeldt was not disappointed with her team's two losses which bring Notre Dame to an even 4-4 mark. But the Irish coach will acknowledge her team's need for improvement.

"We need a lot of work defensively," said Lindfeldt. "And offensively we need to work on controling the ball more."

"In Notre Dame's first game, against Ohio State, Lindfeldt felt that senior Mary Rose Rodgers had a solid outing for the Irish. "Ohio State was a quick and physical team," Lindfeldt said. "They just outplayed us."

The following day the Irish played Purdue and once again wound up on the losing end. One accomplishment that pleased Lindfeldt is that the Irish held such a highly-skilled team with excellent ball control to a 1-0 score. "(Irish goalie) Patt Gallagher turned in a spectacular game against Purdue," said Lindfeldt.

In the two weekend games Gallagher pumped up an impressive 25 saves against two offensively strong teams, and added these outings to an already long list of commendably brilliant performances.

Lindfeldt said that her team was not down after the two losses, particularly with the knowledge that Purdue is a nationally-ranked team. "In fact, the coach felt that the squad should be encouraged that they played the Boilermakers to such a close match."

Once again, the Irish will be on the road for another tough game against Michigan State today. It is another Big Ten school that offers scholarships and the fact that the Irish are playing on the Spartans' home field is another disadvantage.

"We have talent enough to win," said Lindens. "And the game could go either way."

The Irish will be attempting to average a loss to Michigan State early last season.
