Alum offers hope for leader meeting
By SCOTT BEARBY

Hall presidents received a sampling of the upcoming student leadership conference during an alumnus speech at the Hall Presidents' Council last night.

Bill McLean, Underhills director from 1972-76, is one of 30 alumni invited to help leaders and administrators define the role student leaders should be taking while at Notre Dame. According to McLean, he is one of the many alumni who "give a damn, not about the football team, or about what is going on in the classroom," but about the people here now.

What McLean advocates as an educator at St. Lawrence High School in Chicago, is a partnership between the teacher and the student. The administration must act "with a heart", for the student in shaping their lives, he said.

Although there is nothing wrong with what we offer the administration and what they offer us, there is something more that can be done," said McLean. He is not advocating an overthrow of the administration, but rather an attempt to make it better.

He added that realistically he didn't know if improvement is possible, but the attempt must be made.

Leadership meetings will be held throughout the day Saturday. According to McLean, the focus will be the HPC concerning the inquiry into rectors' fees which some rectors are charging students.

He and leadership conference organizers Duane Lawrence and Bruce Lohman believe alumni can help leaders realize what can be done through the exchange of ideas.

McLean likened the role of the alum this weekend to that of a parish priest in telling the administration "you've got to listen to what that kid of yours has to say.

Undergrads no longer check diners

In an effort to cut back on unruly students entering and exiting the dining halls, undergraduate student checkers have been replaced by graduate students and help from outside the University.

This new policy, according to Bill Hickey, director of University Food Services, became necessary because of "many, many incidents" which occurred over the past year.

A review of checkers' performances revealed the many difficulties undergraduates are having in dealing with their peers, Hickey said.

He cited severe control problems inside the dining halls, undergraduate student checkers and leaders as potential student leaders. The leadership conference will end Sunday with a speech from University President Father Theodore Hesburgh, who will give his views on the role of a student leader.

In other news, Radio Journal President Duane Lawrence gave an update to the HPC concerning the inquiry into rectors' fees for lost keys and Drex cards. The HPC members, according to Duane Lawrence, bestow the fees which some rectors are charging students.

And Sheehan met with Evelyn Reinholt, director of student residence, who, according to Sheehan, Windhorst, said she read the $5 fee for lost Drex cards as a key to the University's services.

He added that realistically he didn't know if improvement is possible, but the attempt must be made.

"Dillon decision" to affect student life for years to come

Some residents of Dillon Hall had a tailgate in the parking lot outside Michigan Stadium a couple of weeks ago and sang the famous Dillon fight song while the "Big Red" Bag Bopper in the breeze above the party.

Administrators heard of the event and took disciplinary action against the entire dorm. Residents have been forced to forget about one of their two hall dances this semester and are required to participate in a community service project.

Apparently, the University officials who imposed this punishment did not interpret the party as a hall-sponsored event, even though no hall funds were used to finance the festivities nor was the party advertised as a Dillon Hall event.

This is an important decision the University has tried to avoid for years. It is more than just an issue of some guys being punished for singing a dirty song and drinking beer. More than just an SYR has been forfeited. This cannot and must not be tolerated.

This decision has not been made with a great amount of grace. By not responding to inquiries for the rationalization behind the decision, the University has denied students the compassion that accompanied the 1983 incident. They have replaced understanding with a dangerous precedent of closed-mindedness. Their failure to explain their decision threatens the spirit of communication that is essential to the mutual respect and understanding between students and administrators.

They seem to feel they don't have to explain themselves. Maybe they don't. Student leaders have failed to respond to this challenge. The days when student leaders questioned the validity of such decisions have apparently ended. Instead, the student body is confronted with an attitude of complacency and blind acceptance - the unconditional surrender of the rights of the student in decisions that will have reverberations for years to come.

Something must be done.

The Student Senate should put this on their agenda. The Judicial Council should go through do Lac and see if the administrator's decision is in the spirit of that document. And the Healy administration should adopt an attitude of confrontation, rather than appeasement, on this issue.

Dillon Hall should challenge the forfeiture of their SYR. The hall should perform the community service, but only if accompanied by a statement that says the service is being done voluntarily and not as an act of punishment.

This is an important decision the University has tried to avoid for years. It is more than just an issue of some guys being punished for singing a dirty song and drinking beer. More than just an SYR has been forfeited. This cannot and must not be tolerated.

Look for different combinations of “green yellow red” at the intersection of Angela and Notre Dame avenues, since the traffic light there will soon be under the advisance of a new cycle.

Ray Dalgleish, of the South Bend Traffic Control, said, “With the new cycle, the light on Angela Avenue will be green all the time except for when pedestrians wish to cross. The pedestrian must learn to use the marked routes and press control buttons to make the light red.”

Pedestrians will only be able to cross southwest, southeast, and northwest, he said, and they will be given 24 seconds to cross the intersection.

Dalgleish said he hopes the light will be operational by Oct. 19. The new system is intended to save motorists time and conserve the energy that automobiles waste while waiting for a green light, he said.

Notre Dame security, campus police, and local businesses, he said, will be notified of the new cycle.

Witnesses said the fire destroyed approximately 100 shacks, leaving about 18,000 of the estimated 50,000 camp residents homeless under the government provided tents.

Police said they found the bodies of two blacks who were burned to death near New Brighton, a black area outside Port Elizabeth, 600 miles south of Johannesburg.

Police said they shot two blacks to death and two in a crowd hurling gasoline bombs near Cape Town, a black area 400 miles south of Johannesburg, a government worker with a shotgun killed a black man among a crowd attacking a government vehicle, police said. No details were available.

To speak out in favor of violence is an offense in South Africa, where five million whites dominate and deny the vote to 24 million blacks through apartheid, South Africa’s institutionalized segregation.

Tutu spoke at a news conference after returning from Britain, where he met Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and leaders of the opposition.

The following clubs sponsor the University’s program for you.

The President’s Program sponsors the students volunteer their energy and time, until 2000.

The University’s program is a way for juniors and seniors who have had the necessary prerequisite courses to spend a week working for a firm in the field of their choice.

For categorical reasons, it is best if the students participate in the program in their particular area, said McIlwain. Otherwise, problems with housing may arise.

Mcllwain wrote to the Notre Dame Alumni clubs across the United States soliciting interest in the program. They responded by informing him of the types of volunteers they could use.

The following clubs sponsor the program in their areas:

- Miami, N.Y.: All fields considered
- Aeronautical Engineering, Law, and Physics
- Port Orange, Fla.: Accounting, Banking, and Finance
- Los Angeles: Communications, Engineering, Medicine, Law, Real Estate, Banking, and Architecture
- Orange County, Calif.: All fields considered
- Tampa Bay Fla.: All fields considered

The rest, say police, were killed by the army, or joined in trying to put down the riots 11 months ago.

Tutu was discussing his “attitude” towards violence and apartheid when he was asked if the South African blacks have died in unrest that even the church would advocate armed revolution against apartheid.

By unofficial count, more than 1,000 blacks have died in unrest that began Sept. 3, 1984. Police say approximately 750 died in violence among blacks, usually mobs attacking blacks viewed as collaborators with the whites.

Homes where the group has lived in the past were littered with animal excrement and garbage, and dogs were tied to posts. MOVE members displayed guns and used bulldozers to harass neighbors and police.

In the last seven years, the city’s attempts to act against MOVE ended in two shootout between police and the group.

Tutu said the solution to the problem of police violence is a way for students to spend a week working for a firm in the field of their choice.

Rolling Stone's overturned by Spin

They say a rolling stone gathers no moss, don't they? Well, I don't think "they" have seen an issue of Rolling Stone—the magazine, that is—lately.

How boring it is to the fans who want to see a five-page fashion spread featuring Anthony Michael Hall! Gee, the last time I checked, he hadn't released an album or single yet! Oh, I get it—there's nothing whatsoever to do with music, so it's supposed to be cool to put him in the magazine. Silly me!

Anyway, there has been an alternative to Rolling Stone recently, and that's a new magazine called Spin. Now it's not God's gift to music journalism or anything, but it attempts to be different, at least.

Different! With people like Madonna, Pat Benatar, and Keith Richards on the cover? OK, it does have you into buying it by featuring big name rock stars on its cover. But inside each issue is something very different than the cover story would indicate.

Persisting through an issue, for the uninitiated, can be a traumatic experience as stories on bands like the Replacements, Screamin' Seniors, and Guadalcanal Diary appear in every issue. The "underground" section, on the other hand, features bands with names that can be printed in this newspaper.

But, being a fan of this type of music, I can say that almost every "unknown" band that Spin has featured has made at least some dent in the underground scene, either through records or live appearances. For instance, the Replacements, who were featured in the premier issue of Spin released an album last year called Let's Go, which sold more than 50,000 copies on an independent label. They've since been signed to Sire Records. Another pet group of Spin, the Beatle Boys, opened for Madonna on her recent tour. Guadalcanal Diary's most recent album, Walking in the Shadow of the Big Man, did so well that Elektra Records signed them and re-released the album on their label. These groups have a following.

All this is well and good, but do people really like the magazine? Junior Todd Taylor and Bob Manning replied with a definite "no." They had never seen Spin before, but agreed to read an issue. Taylor said, "Why would someone want to read a magazine with a guy wearing a skull ring on the cover?"

"It's a poor imitation of Rolling Stone," Manning added. "But I did think the Rockstars and Models' article was good. It ought to be a yearly magazine instead of a monthly." Was there anything Taylor liked about it? "I liked the 'Bums 'N' Vice' album ad," he said.

However, not everyone is this negative toward the magazine. "I think it's hilarious. The articles are a bit bizarre. They're not the type you'd find in any ordinary magazine—but that's what makes it interesting," said freshman Barbara Sachar, who had never seen Spin before either. "It's true to old rock 'n' Roll. There are plenty of quotes from great rockers like Pete Townsend and Ted Nugent in it."

Her roommates, freshmen Colleen McGillis and Gigi Junkins, both agreed that Spin was pretty good. "It was fun to read, but was a little too goofy. We had some pictures and good ideas for articles," said McGillis. Junkins called Spin "good bathroom reading." Sachar summed it all up when she said, "It's pretty vulgar—but I like it!"

One Notre Dame student, junior Brian Peters, had a different opinion on Spin. Peters has been a regular reader of the magazine and is a fan of underground music. "It covers the scene that's happening now," he said. "It's up to the moment, and no other magazine does that."

As for Spin's bad points, Peters said, "They should dedicate more space to the independent scene, because that's where the future of rock is now. I don't like Spin having to copout with having mainstream acts on the cover. They also review only records they really love or really hate, like Morley Crue. They should cover more."

In each issue, there is enough material on mainstream groups to satisfy almost every taste. One plus of Spin magazine is that it strives to cover all musical styles, thus satisfying a big cross-section of fans. Another unique aspect of Spin is that it has less musicians write articles for the magazine. David Lee Roth wrote a feature on cruising, and how to do it. Black Flag's Henry Rollins has written two articles; one having to do with 7-11 stores. Sound wave cost punk producer Geza X wrote a three-page story on how to make and distribute your own record.

Stylistically, Spin tries to be hip and funny. The publisher, Bob Guccione Jr., son of Penthouse publisher Bob Sr., is rocky about Spin and he certainly lets it show. His introductory section "Topspin" sounds like a Sainty Davis Jr. appearance on "The Tonight Show" with all the superfluous praise about Spin writers, photographers, and everyone else on the staff. Including himself. When Spin first came out, Gucci­onne bragged that it was a refresh­ment change in the music magazine industry. Maybe so, but the quality seems to be declining with each issue. My basic for saying this is that the time I spend reading each issue has fallen to about 15 minutes, as opposed to the hour I spent on the first issue.

Spin is good in the respect that it features about 100 percent music. No articles by Thomas Wolfe which run forever, no articles on dead junior high school cheerleaders. Opinions on Spin are still decidedly mixed. Many people can't stand it. But many people love it. And many more, like me, find some parts of it great and some parts terrible. There is, however, much room for improvement, and lots of potential.

I still wonder if Guccione will succeed as his father has done. Probably not to such an extent, although there is a market for different and risky music journalism. Spin has withstood its first six issues without collapsing. I think it will be around for a while. At least we'll know it's in trouble when it begins to feature nude pictures of Madonna.

A nition Donors: Are you sick and tired of all those mundane clones you've been hearing about for ages? Do you long to devise from your friends in the activities you pursue?

When was the last time you performed in precision drills in competition? Or voted local military academies to inspect the troops? Or really practiced drill and ceremonies? Not recently? Perhaps never?

Then you obviously haven't discovered the advantages of one of Notre Dame's more obscure organizations: the Irish Marauder Drill Team, led by Contract Commander Colleen Clynes.

The Irish Marauders are a "platoon" that marches in competitions across the country, performing precision drills against other universities. According to First Sergeant Joe Schweninger, "These drills involve marching with different movements that involve weapon maneuvers," he added.

Last year the team competed at Tulane University, Purdue, the University of Illinois, and others. It also makes road trips throughout the year to Leman Military Academy in Indiana and other similar institutions to present exhibitions and to inspect the cadets.

"Last in the afternoon we eat with the cadets and explain what ROTC is all about," Schweninger explains.

Schweninger feels that membership in the Irish Marauders provides insight into army life. "When we graduate, we are going to be army officers, so it's good to know how to lead men and execute commands with confidence. We really get to learn D & C drill and ceremonies."

Although the team has not placed highly in competition in recent years, they prefer to emphasize the learning aspect rather than the actual competition.

ND/SMC clubs

Schweninger sums up this belief. "It's a great way to meet other people. ROTC is a part of the team that is most definitely the sense of camaraderie that you share with others. It's a great learning experience."

Membership in the Marauders is open to any army ROTC cadet, excluding seniors. Practice is held twice a week from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m., at Stepan on Mondays and at the ACC on Tuesdays.

Notre Dame fails to help eliminate apartheid

Each day more are arrested, buried from their homes, and killed. South Africa has certainly become one of civilized man's greatest moral atonies. As this horrifying drama unfolds daily, outside of the people themselves what they can do to eradicate such injustice. Representative Stephen J. We cannot, in this case, as in the cases of other arrogant corporations, profit at all cost. We must recognize the implications of such a policy and act responsibly in the role of our relationship toward corporations in South Africa.

Critics claim, however, that the corporate sector, by adhering to rudimentary principles of morality (which Notre Dame, at least, is acting the apartheid regime but is actually helping the blacks. The argument that divestment of American economic interests from South Africa will hurt the blacks, by creating greater unemployment and decreasing their standard of living is misleading. Joyce has served ND well in past 33 years

Dear Editor:

This is in response to Jeff Griffin's assertions regarding Father Joyce and his future hiring practices. Obviously, this student knows very little about the man and his many contributions to this university.

Joyce has headed the faculty board in control of athletics for 33 years. Notre Dame has amassed one of the most successful records in intercollegiate athletics, and a large percentage of those athletes graduate and obtain good jobs. Joyce also oversees the fiduciary matters of Notre Dame. He has held this responsibility during troubled times, especially during the Great Depression. It is clear that Joyce possesses a patronizing attitude toward the student athletes. Joyce has been described as "skyskirted. Regarding his capabilities in handball and tennis, the student athletes are forced to hire personnel for important university positions. Joyce's record is readily available and speaks for itself. What is often left silent, and smothered under suchlabels as Griffin's, is the man he is.

Joyce is one of the most caring and Christian individuals that I have ever met. Making such comments about a human being who is so totally and sincerely committed to this school, and especially to the study of theology, is a deterrent to me to study in that faculty. He truly cares about the members of the Notre Dame community, and I believe that he is a scapegoat because a coach did not live up to the expectations of the fans.

Griffin, if you are going to judge this man's capacities in fulfilling his many responsibilities based upon four or five football seasons, then I think the only aspect of this issue is that attributable to high school to your mentality.

Rozum stereotyped all Saint Mary's women

Dear Editor:

In response to Jean Rozum's editorial comment concerning the "interesting" conversation between a Notre Dame and Saint Mary's woman, we propose that the problem lies not within the minds of Saint Mary's students, but in the hands of those who take such casual comments and apply them to existing stereotypes.

Perhaps Rozum's "creative" dialogue is factual as she emphasizes, but this husband seeking woman who she depicts is only one of many who have been found at any college campus across the country. It is disturbing to think that this conversation is made into such a major issue simply because the woman happens to be from Saint Mary's.

Saint Mary's women do not need to be told where the "women" of our college lies from a mere freshman who has been in the Saint Mary's-Notre Dame community for a few months, and is in no way qualified to talk to a few upperclasswomen from both institutions, she would discover that most students of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's have no interest in the disinvestment question, everyone should inform themselves on the basic pros and cons. In addition to trying to increase awareness, members of the Anti-Apartheid Network are raising the question of whether the University should withdraw its stock in companies that operate in South Africa or take some form of action to demonstrate that apartheid is incompatible with the Christian values it seeks to propagate. Similar self-questioning has been going on in schools around the country.

Disinvestment is an important issue because it presents a rare opportunity for us to achieve our goals in one fell swoop. The disinvestment movement is the vehicle for this campaign, and those who are involved in the disinvestment question should everyone inform themselves on the basics of this issue.

The Observer should be more careful with ads

Dear Editor:

I am writing to inform you of my disgust with an advertisement which appeared in the October 19 issue of The Observer. The ad, which was apparently sponsored by Fidelity Magazine. I am disgusted with the advertisement and with The Observer's decision to print it because it is sensational propaganda unfitting for a newspaper as high a calibre as The Observer. Statements used in the ad such as "finds it happens to the babies after they age through the great meat and end up at Notre Dame" and "the research is going on right now in the shadow of the Golden Dome" are, simply put, cheap shots at Catholic emotions.

My contacts tell me that the advertisement was intended to sell magazines and not to reform modern Catholic education at Notre Dame or elsewhere, however, this point is basically moot. The comments that his advertisement is blatant propaganda.

Whether the individual who wrote the "fine and proud" women of Saint Mary's knows that you may not have noticed, but if you are a senior, you will have met many "fine and proud" Saint Mary's students, you have no evidence to the effect that Notre Dame is contributing to the unethical fetal experimentation standpoint, either. Even if he or she did possess such evidence, this advertisement would still be blatantly propagandistic.

My complaint lies mainly with The Observer. Although this article performs the first Amendment or the people's right to information in this instance, it is a campaign ad which would have too much self-importance to respect such garbage, no matter what the advertisement's revenue might be.

Women's Soccer Club wants 500 record, varsity status

With fall break two weeks away, the Notre Dame Women's Soccer Club hopes to even out its fall outdoor record with its final matches against Marquette University and Wheaton College.

In this past weekend's match, the Irish beat Nazareth College, 2-0. The two goals were by junior Kerry Harriskamp and freshman Susan Haling.

In discussing this season, Karen Moritz said that this year's team has been relying heavily on the freshmen players and that the freshmen bring new enthusiasm and competition to the team.

"The amount of time a player gets is based on the participation in practice," says Moritz. "Once someone joins, they are on the team and playing time is based on their attendance to practice."

The team hopes that by reaching the 500 mark, it can achieve varsity status.

"The enthusiasm for soccer is there," says Moritz. "And hopefully if we have a decent year, the administration will look into moving us up to varsity."

"In reviewing this year, I would say that this year hasn't been that rewarding, because we just haven't played to our potential," says Moritz. "We have a lot of good individual players but we just couldn't gel together as a team. On the other hand, though, this year has been more fun because we have a lot more dedicated players and this causes a lot of competition, which makes every player better."

The Irish came away with second place, beating Northwestern and Wisconsin by identical scores of 11-10, but losing to Ohio State in the final. It was Notre Dame's second loss to Ohio State in two years. In the Loyola Tournament earlier this week, the Irish lost to the Buckeyes and eighth-ranked Loyola, while defeating Northwestern.

"By getting second in the Wisconsin Tournament, our future for the regional tournament looks real good for next spring," says junior Steve Goerner.

Michigan ranked third in AP Top Twenty Poll

Associated Press

Michigan’s Wolverines continue to claw their way toward the top of The Associated Press college football poll. Only Iowa and Oklahoma remain in their way.

When the season began, Michigan wasn’t even ranked. Two polls into the season, the Wolverines still were out of range of the Top Twenty. Then they broke into the rankings at No. 19. Then they rose to 12th. Then to seventh.

And now they’re third with seven first-place votes and 1,037 points. Victories over Notre Dame (20-12), South Carolina (34-3), Maryland (20-0) and Wisconsin (34-6) will do that. Next up: Michigan State.

Iowa, despite having to scramble in the last minute to beat Michigan State 35-31 last Saturday, remained atop the poll, a berth it achieved last week for the first time in 24 years. The Hawkeyes received 34 of 59 first-place votes and 1,137 points.

Oklahoma, receiving 14 first-place votes and 1,106 points from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, stayed in second place for the fifth week running after bowing out Kansas State 41-6.

No teams dropped out of the Top Ten.

Farley still has undefeated record in women's interhall flag football

By KEVIN HERBERT
Sportswriter

The lean, green Farley flag football team was driven to the principle of defense on the turf of Carrier Field Sunday evening, but like so many games before, Farley was able to come out on the winning end of a 20-8 score over Pasquerilla West. Farley, now 5-0, scored first, aided by a long jaunt down to the three-yard line. The extra point attempt failed and with eight minutes remaining Farley led, 6-0.

PW, however, did not waste any time in its comeback. With two minutes left, PW's lightning running back, Nancy Evans, scorted 45 yards down to the two-yard score area. PW's point after attempt failed and the half ended in a tie.

Farley regained the lead on the first play of the second half when its quarterback, Marilu Almeida, threw a perfect 60-yard touchdown pass. Farley then ran the option for two points and led, 8-0. Evans, once again busted loose in the open field, however, rambling 73 yards on a fourth-and-three play, to make it 14-12. The two-point conversion was good and the score was tied again at 14.

Farley took the lead for keeps with two more scores, the first coming on a 49-yard remaning when Almeida tossed a 20-yard touchdown pass. The extra point was no good, however, and PW took possession with four minutes left trailing by only six.

In the final minute, with no timeouts remaining, PW completed a 55-yard pass down to the Farley three. Before they could run another play, however, the time expired, and Farley had a hard-fought 20-14 victory.

Farley, 6-0-0, hosted the game while PW, 3-2-0, played on Cartier Field.

Soccer team looks for 1st home win today as Marquette comes to town

By PHIL WOLF
Assistant Sports Editor

The Notre Dame soccer team will be looking to advance to first place today when the Irish play host to the Marquette Warriors at 3 p.m. on Alumni Field.

The Irish, 3-7-3 after a win and a tie at the Wright State Tournament in Dayton, Ohio, last weekend, have a 0-3-2 record in home games. The Warriors are 3-0-2 overall.

Notre Dame has been playing well recently, according to Head Coach Dennis Grace, so the team's record may be deceiving. But last weekend's win over the University of Evansville is the Irish team that finished the year at 12-6-2. Marquette took the Irish, 4-1, in a homecoming match in Milwaukee.

The Warriors have a lot of strength returning this season, too, since their top three scorers from 1984 still are playing.

The team is led this season by Jose Iturbi, a senior co-captain from San Sebastian, Spain. Iturbi has 11 goals and seven assists so far. The other co-captain for the Warriors is senior James Taut, who recorded two goals and one assist against the Irish last year.

Other scoring leaders for Marquette are sophomore Todd Fetch (eight goals, three assists) and junior Tom Cominsky (six goals, three assists). Topping the scoring chart for Notre Dame is freshman Tom Gerarde, who has three goals and four assists. Freshman Donnelly also has added three goals and three assists, and senior co-captain Dave Miles has also been credited with two goals and three assists.

Today's game will be the last home contest for Notre Dame until Oct. 30.

The Irish have played in several close contests this season against some tough competition, and they have gone into overtime six times. Grace said he has been encouraged by the play of his team in those close battles.

"The improvement is very noticeable in our team," Grace said. "But still our record doesn't reflect the quality of our play. We've played very well but haven't won. In a sense, it has been very frustrating to see us play so well and not win, but coming off the last two losses and the toughness of our schedule, I'm still very optimistic about this team." The Irish appeared to be on the way to two victories last weekend at Wright State. However, Evans (Ohio) got a goal late in the game on Sunday and eventually found the Irish, who had beaten Wright State on Saturday.

Shannon Shuster scored for the Irish, who could not overcome the Belles' improved defense.

Belles defeat Goshen after loss to St. Francis

By JILL SARDBENOFF
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's volleyball team recovered from a loss to St. Francis earlier in the night and went on to defeat Goshen in two straight games last night.

The Belles had dropped their first match of the night in two straight games to St. Francis, in the three-way competition held at the Angelathletic Facility. In the first game of the Goshen match, Colleen Mergens and Tammy Sudik each had six serves and one ace. Mergens also had 21 assists. Mary Reedy, however, was close behind with four minutes left trailing by only six.

In the second game the Belles were up, 10-6. The Irish scored all their runs in the first four innings. Tom Henke, the Jays' starting pitcher, gave up a 3-2-1 25-inning, 9, 1985- page 12
