BURNED BONE AMONG DEBRIS IN CHALLENGER WRECKAGE AREA

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. - A bone with blue fabric attached washed up on a beach, and medical technicians examined it to see if it belonged to one of the seven astronauts killed in Tuesday's explosion.

The bone was found near In-dialantic, 35 miles south of Cape Canaveral and taken to a hospital at Canaveral and then to a hospital at Atlantic, 35 miles south of Cape Canaveral to Daytona Beach.

Thousands of pounds of small pieces of debris found floating on the sea were aboard ships running search patterns over 8,000 square miles, northward from Cape Canaveral to Daytona Beach.

"If the 12 letter was in response to a letter from the council requesting clarification of the University's overnight parietal policy.

The policy, found in the student guide du LAC, states "Overnight parietal violations involve suspension or dismissal."

The policy and an overnight parietal case last semester prompted the council to request that the policy in du LAC be made more flexible and the minimum punishment lessened.

"Certainly, there are in many cases in which specific sanctions would ordinarily be imposed, but nothing is automatic," Hesburgh wrote. "To do so would defeat the whole purpose of hearings and the presentation of facts regarding the incident in question."

Although no automatic punishment exists, Judicial Council Coordinator Karen Ingwersen questioned whether suspension or dismissal for overnight parietal violations may be too severe a punishment to be imposed even ordinarily.

"I think there are two questions," Ingwersen said after the meeting. "One dealing with extenuating circumstances, which has been seen du LAC, page 6.

Burned bone among debris in Challenger wreckage area

SAILOR FOUNDED GUILTY IN SEA MURDER

Associated Press

NEWPORT, R.I. - A black Navy sailor was found guilty yesterday of premeditated murder in the fatal stabbing of a white lieutenant at sea, a verdict which could result in the Navy's first use of a premeditated murder charge, which is punishable by either a life sentence or death.

During the arguments, Garraway sat at the defense table staring toward the jury. He did not take the stand.

"I'm turning over his life into your hands," he said. "I'm asking you to end this madness ... with a verdict of not guilty."

The court-martial panel began deliberations late in the afternoon after hearing instructions on military law from Navy Judge John A. Skudder.

Garraway, 21, pleaded guilty to premeditated murder in the slaying while on waters off the Bermuda coast.

His plea virtually guaranteed he would be sentenced to life imprisonment. But the Navy sought a conviction on a premeditated murder charge, which if punishable by either a life sentence or death.

During the arguments, Garraway sat at the defense table staring toward the jury. He did not take the stand.

O'Toole said evidence presented during five days of testimony clearly shows Garraway schemed to kill the 35-year-old officer in retaliation for delaying a promotion.

"I think there are two questions," Ingwersen said after the meeting. "One dealing with extenuating circumstances, which has been seen du LAC, page 6.

One ship alone is bringing in 2,000 pounds of small pieces of debris found floating on the sea were aboard ships running search patterns over 8,000 square miles, northward from Cape Canaveral to Daytona Beach.

Garraway sat at the defense table staring toward the jury. He did not take the stand.

"I'm turning over his life into your hands," he said. "I'm asking you to end this madness ... with a verdict of not guilty."

The court-martial panel began deliberations late in the afternoon after hearing instructions on military law from Navy Judge John A. Skudder. Garraway, 21, pleaded guilty to premeditated murder in the slaying while on waters off the Bermuda coast.

His plea virtually guaranteed he would be sentenced to life imprisonment. But the Navy sought a conviction on a premeditated murder charge, which is punishable by either a life sentence or death.

During the arguments, Garraway sat at the defense table staring toward the jury. He did not take the stand.

O'Toole said evidence presented during five days of testimony clearly shows Garraway schemed to kill the 35-year-old officer in retaliation for delaying a promotion.

"I'm turning over his life into your hands," he said. "I'm asking you to end this madness ... with a verdict of not guilty."

The court-martial panel began deliberations late in the afternoon after hearing instructions on military law from Navy Judge John A. Skudder. Garraway, 21, pleaded guilty to premeditated murder in the slaying while on waters off the Bermuda coast.

His plea virtually guaranteed he would be sentenced to life imprisonment. But the Navy sought a conviction on a premeditated murder charge, which is punishable by either a life sentence or death.

During the arguments, Garraway sat at the defense table staring toward the jury. He did not take the stand.

O'Toole said evidence presented during five days of testimony clearly shows Garraway schemed to kill the 35-year-old officer in retaliation for delaying a promotion.

"I'm turning over his life into your hands," he said. "I'm asking you to end this madness ... with a verdict of not guilty."

The court-martial panel began deliberations late in the afternoon after hearing instructions on military law from Navy Judge John A. Skudder. Garraway, 21, pleaded guilty to premeditated murder in the slaying while on waters off the Bermuda coast.

His plea virtually guaranteed he would be sentenced to life imprisonment. But the Navy sought a conviction on a premeditated murder charge, which is punishable by either a life sentence or death.

During the arguments, Garraway sat at the defense table staring toward the jury. He did not take the stand.
It's time we admitted it. College students are thieves. O.K. Maybe it's not a strong statement. Not all college students are thieves. But most of us.

Think about it.

How many street and highway signs have you seen adorning dormroom walls? How many bar signs, milk crates and books does someone find their way into students' rooms?

You don't think anyone actually paid for all those, do you?

And the poor Huddle and Deli. With all the banana, dinner rolls and other tasty morsels taken from the dining halls, it's a wonder one either can stay in business.

But the dining halls have bigger things to worry about than stolen food.

According to Director of Food Services Bill Hickey, each year from $20,000 to $25,000 is spent to replace the dining halls' dinnerware.

Disasters accidentally broken make up the brunt of that cost. But not all of it.

"We know that every student in the place has a set of china for three or four," Hickey said, only half exagerating. "There's not much we can do about it ... I can't see going into dorms and beating students up.

Seems we'll just have to accept the fact of it.

"Believe it or not, trays come up, then it's all over," Hickey said. "Sudd trays come up, missing too. And shit, you can imagine how much silverware we lose.

Said to say, it's getting to be worse.

Five-hundred dozen new sets of china were purchased for the North Dining Hall at a cost of approximately $50,000, Hickey said.

Although that's $5,000 more than the cost of replac- ing the old china again, it was money well spent.

This china is truly impressive. The plates, bowls and saucers are lined with blue and gold stripes. And the coffee cups. They're emblazed with the Notre Dame insignia.

That's allright, as is the number of missing saucers. And the number of missing plates is worse.

According to Director of Food Services Bill Hickey, only maids find the china, Hickey said, explaining that maids find the china.

"That's allright," he said. "I don't exaggerate it but it's not the worse thing that could happen."

One thing does bother Hickey, however.

The Christ child figurine, stolen from a South Dining Hall nativity scene before last Christmas, was still missing as of last Friday, he said.

Of course it's possible there's a black market for baby Jesus figurines out there and the South Dining Hall's was just one of many stolen nationwide.

More than likely, however, it was stolen to make a point.

Now, if we wholeheartedly agree the Christ child figurine shouldn't be placed in the menor before Christmas day. But having the baby Jesus there a little early is better than not having one at all.

You students don't just steal from road departments and dining halls. We steal from each other.

"A big source of loss ..." Rakow said.

"It's a big source of loss ..." Rakow said. "Rakow said. Obviously, not all of those textbooks were stolen by students. But at least some of them were.

To combat the problem, Security is distributing "Campus Crimewatch" bookmarks warning students not to leave their books unattended, "even for five minutes.

"Your stolen books are resold immediately," the bookmark touts. "Don't hesitate to call bookstores, police and security."

Then there's the bookstore rerouting students each semester during the rush to buy books.

And don't forget the bookstore security guards, one of us preventing us from bringng in backpacks as we enter, the other checking us for stolen books as we leave.

Gosh, you'd think they didn't trust us.

Dens of thievery closely resemble dorm rooms of college students

Mark Pankowski
Assistant News Editor

\[\text{\textbf{Weather}}\]

Spring is here! Just kidding . . .

It will really be mostly cloudy Friday with a 30 percent chance of light rain, freezing rain or snow. High in the lower 30s. Southeast wind 5-10 mph. Cloudy Friday night with a 30 percent chance of rain. High in the lower 40s.

\[\text{\textbf{Weather}}\]

Dens of thievery closely resemble dorm rooms of college students

Mark Pankowski
Assistant News Editor

\[\text{\textbf{Weather}}\]

Spring is here! Just kidding . . .

It will really be mostly cloudy Friday with a 30 percent chance of light rain, freezing rain or snow. High in the lower 30s. Southeast wind 5-10 mph. Cloudy Friday night with a 30 percent chance of rain. High in the lower 40s.

\[\text{\textbf{Weather}}\]

Dens of thievery closely resemble dorm rooms of college students

Mark Pankowski
Assistant News Editor

\[\text{\textbf{Weather}}\]

Spring is here! Just kidding . . .

It will really be mostly cloudy Friday with a 30 percent chance of light rain, freezing rain or snow. High in the lower 30s. Southeast wind 5-10 mph. Cloudy Friday night with a 30 percent chance of rain. High in the lower 40s.
Sophomore Kevin Herbert, national salesman of last year's Multiple Sclerosis Rock-a-like contest, is serving as a national spokesman for the organization. Herbert has been promoting this year's college fundraising campaign by touring as "The Boss."

By ELLYN MASTAKO
Senior Staff Reporter

"But on Sunday, four bottles of Coke® cost only $1.00!"

Call DOMINO'S PIZZA® for Sunday's special—four 16-oz. bottles of Coke® for only $1.00 with any order.

Fresh, hot, great-tasting pizza from Domino's Pizza. Made to order and delivered in 30 minutes, guaranteed, or you get $3.00 off your order.

And on Sunday, get four servings of Coke® for only $1.00 with your order. Just ask for Sunday's special. Available all day this Sunday...only from Domino's Pizza.

'Boss' Herbert continues MS tour

By ELYNN MASTAKO
Senior Staff Reporter

While the real Bruce Springsteen has been touring the world, sophomore Kevin Herbert has become a national spokesman for MS and has been doing some touring of his own with his Bruce Rock-a-like act. Herbert appeared at the MS national training conference held during September in Miami, Fla.

One-hundred thirty-five schools are participating in the campaign this year, whereas only 14 participated last year. Herbert attributes this growth to the success of last year's campaign which Notre Dame won.

Representatives from all 135 schools appeared with Herbert on an opening shot for ABC's Good Morning America. On the final day of the conference, Herbert performed his rendition of "Born in the USA."

While in Miami, Herbert was given the key to the city in recognition of his efforts on behalf of the organization. Herbert has been promoting this year's college fundraising campaign by touring as "The Boss."

Herbert will jam again to "Born in the USA" in the Dean Smith Student Activities Center in Chapel Hill, N.C., this Saturday before a crowd of 22,450. His halftime performance at the Clemson-North Carolina game also will be viewed by a national television audience.

Then Herbert will tour the University of North Carolina, North Carolina State and Duke University to help the three schools kick off their MS drives.

"These schools saw me perform live in Miami, and have asked me to help generate enthusiasm at their schools," Herbert said. "In truth, I am very flattered because they have faith that I can help them raise money and motivate their students with my performance."

Later in February, he will fly to Los Angeles to perform at UCLA's MS kick-off. "When I won the national contest last April, I wasn't promised anything, but I did a few interviews, and things really took off," said Herbert.

Last semester, Herbert was approached by Prarie Pictures of Harvard, Ill. to perform at a conference at Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla. They contracted a band to play Bruce Springsteen songs and Herbert did his lip-sync act in the foreground. The company made a video of his performance.

Although he has performed all over the country to receptive crowds, Herbert said, "I want to thank the students of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's for making all this possible. With each road gig, I realize more and more that there is no better way of making a living in the world."

"Performing has been a strain on my studies, but the faculty has been great in facilitating my schedule. This has been a great help to me in helping MS because I have been able to help them whenever they have asked," added Herbert.

Notre Dame will not be participating in the official MS Rock-a-like campaign this year, although the University will still hold fundraisers for the cause. Herbert was disappointed to hear of the decision. "I don't know why they are not participating this year," he said. "Now we can't defend either of our titles. Because of Notre Dame's involvement last year, the MS Rock-a-like contest has grown phenomenally."

Even after he must relinquish his title to the current winner, Herbert would like to help the multiple sclerosis cause in any capacity that he can in the years to come," said Herbert.

Former Dooley secretary remembers man and mission

By SEAN NEALON
News Staff

"The reward for service is the strength to serve."

Dr. Thomas Dooley lived by these words, according to Teresa Gallagher, who delivered an account of Dooley's life last night at the Center for Social Concerns.

The lecture, part of a series of events comprising Tom Dooley Awareness Week, was attended by over 40 students and faculty. Gallagher spoke of her experiences as secretary to Dooley, who treated thousands of refugees in Indochina during the '60s.

Dooley died of cancer at age 34 in 1961. Gallagher volunteered her secretarial skills to Dooley after reading his first book, "Deliver Us From Evil."

She went on to handle the book of his business and personal correspondence while still working as an insurance firm in New York City.

Gallagher also serves as the Chairman of the Board of Tom Dooley Heritage, Inc. The organisation is currently sponsoring the reopening of a health center in Ban Thoed Thao, a mountainous region in northern Thailand.

Gallagher said Dooley, who attended Notre Dame as an undergraduate, represents many of the ideals and values of the University. "This is most apparent in his tremendous self-sacrifice," although she noted that many students are unfamiliar with Dooley, his accomplishments, and the example he set for the world.

If Dooley were alive today Gallagher said she believes he would tell students that "we need works of peace, not just words of peace," words Dooley brought to life.

"Dooley practiced peace through medicine," added Gallagher.
The Army has been designed to navigate and attack enemy tanks. The helicopter has been ordered for all 68 APaches now in the inventory, the Pentagon said the Army grounds helicopters after inspection of blades.

Friday, January 31, 1986 - page 4

By BYRICE FETTERS

News Staff

In previous years, the Notre Dame speech team was a leader in their field, establishing the first national regulations. To counteract the seriousness of the play, it is laced with large doses of humor as the wife tries to grapple to find something left in her life to laugh about. Last semester, Jensen went on a sabbatical to New York where she Sial Mary's theatre Professor Julie Jensen is reaping the benefits of hard work and determination as she experiences national recognition for her writing and directing.

Recently, Jensen was awarded a $5,000 cash prize by CBS Television and the Foundation of Dramatists Guild for her play, "Stray Dogs." This play, which is due to open shortly at the Arena in Washington, D.C. involves a serious plot about a family in turmoil because of the father, an alcoholic. To counteract the seriousness of the play, it is laced with large doses of humor as the wife tries to grapple to find something left in her life to laugh about. Last semester, Jensen went on a sabbatical to New York where she

Speech team builds on tradition

By By Chris K. Murphy
News Staff

In previous years, the Notre Dame debate team was a leader in their field, establishing the first national regulations. To counteract the seriousness of the play, it is laced with large doses of humor as the wife tries to grapple to find something left in her life to laugh about. Last semester, Jensen went on a sabbatical to New York where she

"I debated in high school but when I came to Notre Dame, I did not know of any speech or debate teams. But, at the end of the first semester, I saw an ad in "The Observer" for speech team tryouts. So, I decided to give it a try," said O'Donnell.

Lisa Selter, a junior Math major, also recently learned about the team. "I heard about the team in an Oral Interpretation class during the first semester. Then, I saw the ad in "The Observer." I hadn't debated since high school but I had always liked it.

After two weeks of practice in early January, Clayton Hamlin, Pegge Kramer, Sandy Cerime, Dominique Alfaro, Selter and O'Donnell traveled to the University of Utah for their first collegiate competition. The team reached the semi-finals of the 69 team tournament. Selter fared the best, reaching the semi-finals with her interpretation of a part of Arthur Miller's "Creation of the World and Other Business." Poetry, dramatic and prose interpretation, and extemporaneous speaking, which comprise the competition, were the categories in which the students were judged. California, based largely on the speaker's interpretation and enthusiasm, according to Lisa Selter.

"Interpretating is so much more than reading," said Selter. "You can use gestures and different voices for different characters. But there is also a fine line between interpreting and acting, which is not allowed."

Sophomore P.L.S. major Clayton Hamlin said, "There is a certain obnoxiousness in debatting. Beside the immediate rewards such as trophies and ribbons, we feel self-rewarded. It is important to learn to get up in front of a large group of people and communicate clearly to each person."

Army grounds helicopters after inspection of blades

 Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Army has grounded its fleet of AH-64 Apache helicopters following the discovery of cracks in the main rotor blades of more than a dozen of the new attack helicopters, the Pentagon said yesterday.

The service has also decided to suspend the acceptance of any more Apache helicopters from the manufacturer, McDonnell Douglas Helicopter Co., pending the results of an investigation.

There were no accidents related to the main rotor blade, the service added.

Howard DeMere, reached by phone at his St. Louis, Mo. office, said the first instance of blade cracking was discovered on Jan. 15 on an AH-64 that had been set aside for testing. Examinations were immediately ordered for all 68 Apaches now in the inventory, leading to the discovery of 12 more cracked blades.

Army grounds helicopters after inspection of blades

 Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Army has grounded its fleet of AH-64 Apache helicopters following the discovery of cracks in the main rotor blades of more than a dozen of the new attack helicopters, the Pentagon said yesterday.

The service has also decided to suspend the acceptance of any more Apache helicopters from the manufacturer, McDonnell Douglas Helicopter Co., pending the results of an investigation.

There were no accidents related to the main rotor blade, the service added.

Howard DeMere, reached by phone at his St. Louis, Mo. office, said the first instance of blade cracking was discovered on Jan. 15 on an AH-64 that had been set aside for testing. Examinations were immediately ordered for all 68 Apaches now in the inventory, leading to the discovery of 12 more cracked blades.

Army grounds helicopters after inspection of blades

 Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Army has grounded its fleet of AH-64 Apache helicopters following the discovery of cracks in the main rotor blades of more than a dozen of the new attack helicopters, the Pentagon said yesterday.

The service has also decided to suspend the acceptance of any more Apache helicopters from the manufacturer, McDonnell Douglas Helicopter Co., pending the results of an investigation.

There were no accidents related to the main rotor blade, the service added.

Howard DeMere, reached by phone at his St. Louis, Mo. office, said the first instance of blade cracking was discovered on Jan. 15 on an AH-64 that had been set aside for testing. Examinations were immediately ordered for all 68 Apaches now in the inventory, leading to the discovery of 12 more cracked blades.

Army grounds helicopters after inspection of blades

 Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Army has grounded its fleet of AH-64 Apache helicopters following the discovery of cracks in the main rotor blades of more than a dozen of the new attack helicopters, the Pentagon said yesterday.

The service has also decided to suspend the acceptance of any more Apache helicopters from the manufacturer, McDonnell Douglas Helicopter Co., pending the results of an investigation.

There were no accidents related to the main rotor blade, the service added.

Howard DeMere, reached by phone at his St. Louis, Mo. office, said the first instance of blade cracking was discovered on Jan. 15 on an AH-64 that had been set aside for testing. Examinations were immediately ordered for all 68 Apaches now in the inventory, leading to the discovery of 12 more cracked blades.
Shooting spree kills three victims and causes injury to four persons

Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY - A trucking company employee went on a shooting rampage in a neighborhood, they killed three people and wounded four others, including a little girl and a man he locked in a car trunk, police said.

Curt Wayne Ellis then went to suburban Del City, called police from the house of a relative's friend and said he was tried of running, said Oklahoma City police Captain M.T. Berry. He surrendered to Del City police, who found him sitting on the porch at the white frame house.

The shootings occurred in less than an hour, and over the distance of about three miles on the eastern side of the city.

Ellis, 24, of Oklahoma City, was booked into the Oklahoma City Jail on two complaints of murder and one of assault with a deadly weapon, Berry said. He added that additional complaints would likely be filed.

Ellis later was taken to a hospital and returned to the jail, said Detective Ken Smith.

Police say they know of no motive, and have not determined a connection between the man and the victims except that four were co-workers at Consolidated Freightways.

"He went crazy," said Mark Schreiner, a co-worker. "He pointed the gun at me and told me to get back up and I did. He then turned around and pointed the gun at another worker and shot him."

In addition to McAuliffe, a 37-year-old Concorde, N.H., who was aboard the Space Shuttle Challenger, a dollar at a time.

Another crew member, Ellison Onizuka, was remembered in a scholarship fund created by the Bank of Hawaii and the Hawaii Newspaper Agency, who each contributed $1 to NASA to replace the shuttle.

---

Children wish to rebuild Challenger one dollar at a time

Associated Press

"Missy and John feel they're doing something worthwhile in memory of the crew," their mother, Karen McPhillips, said yesterday. She said her children were contributing their savings to a fund set up by NASA in Washington.

McPhillips said that some children, contributing to the fund helps them deal with the grief of the tragedy. One classmate of Missy's who was extremely upset by the accident contributed $3, "and she was real excited, they could see a change," she said.

"Maybe all these kids throughout the United States will feel better if they can contribute to this fund." It will take a lot of dollars. Richard P. MacLeod, executive director of the United States Space Foundation in Colorado Springs, Colo., said the ill-fated Challenger cost $1.6 billion, although a later shuttle, Atlantis, cost $1.2 billion.

"We've got seven (telephone) lines and they have been ringing constantly," said MacLeod, whose foundation has launched a fund-raising campaign for a new shuttle on Wednesday.

In Washington, American Security Bank is establishing a trust fund intended to be the "singular nationwide fund" for the children of the astronauts killed Tuesday.

"We have about 200 calls from individuals who want to contribute," including a songwriter who is offering royalties on one of his songs, said Roger Conner, public affairs director for the bank. He would not identify the songwriter.

Conner said some contributions already have arrived, "mostly in the $10 to $25 range," he said. He had not calculated how much he said the fact that any contributions had come in "rather amazing to me since we couldn't have knew before the accident and fund until late Tuesday or Wednesday morning."

He said the bank is paying all administrative costs for the fund.

In Granite City, Ill., have set up what they hope will be a national fund to honor Christa McAuliffe, the teacher from Concord, N.H., who was aboard the space shuttle. Granite City teachers had already collected pledges of about $2,000, said mathematics instructor Julie Manosevic.

The address of the NASA fund is: Space Shuttle Challenger Fund, Box 51-L, Colorado Springs, Colo., 80935.

In addition to the Navy ships, 13 helicopters, seven other ships and 13 helicopters were running search sweeps up and down the coast line. The new search area, expanded from the original 5,500 miles, extended 50 miles from shore in water 50 to 1,200 feet.

Both at the Florida launch site and in Houston where the ascent to space is directed, engineers reviewed computer tapes that recorded performance of the shuttle's systems every one one-thousandth of a second.

Officials said the tapes might be the most crucial piece of evidence in the investigation. They could reveal whether the fireball was caused by something that went wrong with the space shuttle's huge external fuel tank or whether the fuel lay with one of the two solids that are transported inside.

In addition to McAuliffe, a 37-year-old Concorde, N.H., teacher selected as NASA's first common citizen to take a space trip, those killed were Francis E. Scovel, 46, the commander; Michael J. Smith, 40, the pilot; Judith A. Resnik, 36; Ronald E. McNair, 31; Ellison S. Onizuka, 39, and Gregory B. Jarvis, 41.
University research now dependent on Star Wars program progress

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Thanks to President Reagan's "Star Wars" program, universities are as dependent on the Pentagon as a restaurant is on downtown foot traffic, authorities said.

Caspar W. Weinberger said the Pentagon's annual change-of-command of the Battalson of Midshipmen of the United States has grown far more important since the Strategic Defense Initiative was known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative, or SDI.

The Star Wars program calls for the development of lasers and other exotic weapons that could be placed in space as well as on the ground to automatically shut down Soviet nuclear missiles. The Pentagon's fiscal 1988 budget includes $2.75 billion for research. The administration has stated that it wants to spend $20 billion on the program by 1990.

In retirement

Lieutenant James S. Cave was among several officers retired in the annual change-of-command of the Battalion of Midshipmen of the United States. Cave served as commander of the DD Company of the unit. The new Battalion Commander is Midshipman Captain John Athabasht.

Springfield, Mass. - M. Kile said.

He would not identify the type of explosives used and would not say where the bomb was set to go off.

The McDonald's is located in a commercial area on the city's east side.

Maneuvers to continue off Libya

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The United States completed its carrier flight operations off the Libyan coast last night as scheduled, but the warships of the 6th Fleet will remain in the central Mediterranean region for some time, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said yesterday.

U.S. intelligence sources, meanwhile, said it now appears that a few Soviet SA-5 long-range missiles have been made operational near the Libyan town of Sirte. A second launch site for the missiles is still being prepared near the town of Baniyas, the sources said.

The aircraft carriers Coral Sea and Saratoga have been conducting flight operations for one week off the Libyan coast in what is known as the Tripoli Flight Information Region. That is the area within which commercial airline traffic flying across the Mediterranean is under the control of the flight center at the Tripoli airport.

Administration sources have described the maneuvers as a "show of resolve" in the face of threats by Libyan leader Colonel Muammar Khadafi to continue his support for Palestinians. The United States has accused Libya of supporting a Palestinian faction believed responsible for the Dec. 27 attacks on the aircraft in Rome and Vienna.

The president's communiqué gave no reason for the action.

Six people have been killed and at least 50 injured since the protests began on Sunday in the historic city of 60,000 people, the nation's second-largest.

Three people were trapped to death Wednesday when a mob sacked a CARE warehouse and three died when security forces fired on demonstrators Monday. Witnesses said demonstrators toppled a statue of the late President-for-Life Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier in downtown Cap Haitien yesterday as the crowd cheered.

A Cap Haitien resident said in a telephone call that two independent broadcasters, Radio Citadelle and Radio Cap Haitien, were off the air yesterday because of equipment damaged during the disturbances.

Chronicler of the late President-for-Life Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, ordered the international airport at Cap Haitien closed until further notice yesterday after anti-government demonstrations ousted the exiled government.

The sources spoke on condition of anonymity and details were kept secret.

When she went to Goldrick, he informed her she must make a proposal to the Campus Life Council, which met later in February. When she went to Goldrick, he informed her she must make a proposal to the Campus Life Council, which met later in February. When she went to Goldrick, she was off the air.

In retirement

Lieutenant James S. Cave was among several officers retired in the annual change-of-command of the Battalion of Midshipmen of the United States. Cave served as commander of the DD Company of the unit. The new Battalion Commander is Midshipman Captain John Athabasht.

When she went to Goldrick, she was off the air.

In retirement

Lieutenant James S. Cave was among several officers retired in the annual change-of-command of the Battalion of Midshipmen of the United States. Cave served as commander of the DD Company of the unit. The new Battalion Commander is Midshipman Captain John Athabasht.

When she went to Goldrick, she was off the air.

In retirement

Lieutenant James S. Cave was among several officers retired in the annual change-of-command of the Battalion of Midshipmen of the United States. Cave served as commander of the DD Company of the unit. The new Battalion Commander is Midshipman Captain John Athabasht.

When she went to Goldrick, she was off the air.

In retirement

Lieutenant James S. Cave was among several officers retired in the annual change-of-command of the Battalion of Midshipmen of the United States. Cave served as commander of the DD Company of the unit. The new Battalion Commander is Midshipman Captain John Athabasht.

When she went to Goldrick, she was off the air.

In retirement

Lieutenant James S. Cave was among several officers retired in the annual change-of-command of the Battalion of Midshipmen of the United States. Cave served as commander of the DD Company of the unit. The new Battalion Commander is Midshipman Captain John Athabasht.

When she went to Goldrick, she was off the air.

In retirement

Lieutenant James S. Cave was among several officers retired in the annual change-of-command of the Battalion of Midshipmen of the United States. Cave served as commander of the DD Company of the unit. The new Battalion Commander is Midshipman Captain John Athabasht.

When she went to Goldrick, she was off the air.

In retirement

Lieutenant James S. Cave was among several officers retired in the annual change-of-command of the Battalion of Midshipmen of the United States. Cave served as commander of the DD Company of the unit. The new Battalion Commander is Midshipman Captain John Athabasht.

When she went to Goldrick, she was off the air.
Tom Dooley’s last letter to Father Hesburgh

Dear Father Hesburgh,

They’ve got me down flat on the bed with a stomach bug and hot water bottles. It took the last three instruments to do it however, so I spent a good amount of time being up a bit so that, with a long reach, I can get to my typewriter... my mind... my brain.

Two things prompt this note to you, sir. The first is that whenever my cancer acts up... and it is certainly “acting up” now, I turn toward to a bit of wisdom that I think of my hospital’s patron saint. The other is a personal feeling of grace. Is enough? But you know what? There is a pretty definite that the cancer has spread to the lumbar vertebrae, accounting for all of the back problems over the last several months. Nothing human or earthly can touch me. A wider storm of peace gathers in my heart. What seems unspeakable, I can possess. What seems unfathomable, I fashion. What is unutterable, I can communicate. What do you need to do anything on earth if they cannot with God?

I realize the external symbols that surround one when he prays are not important. The same holds true for an image of Christ in Haiphong with a tortured priest... the magazine of the Sacred Heart Bernini altar... they are essentially the same. Both are simply symbols, nothing more. This is my wish to be honest and open in my correspondence.

But just now... and just so many times, how I long for the Grotto. Away from Tom, Dooley just prays. But at the Grotto, especially now when there must be snow on the ground, and the misty fog of a broken, square, round, stone fountain is dripping, I could go to the Grotto now, then I think I could commune. I could be full of faith and poetry and loveliness and know more beauty, tenderness and compassion. This is very sentimental I know. It doesn’t mean to ramble like this is any better than the Grotto from where do the other, from the Grotto from where do the refugees’ apparent motivations for leaving one’s homeland mean? For them, for the masses of refugees there. For all of the people who have been in my mind... for all of the people... for all of the people...

The same reason I write to you just now is that whenever I feel in front of the Grotto, I feel that I am in a Chinese division of the Saints of Charity (I think). Though my doctors British the hospital is as Chinese as Shaker’s Fine Shop. Extremely orderly, corporal, nurse and nun know nothing about the Grotto and a hospital bed are just as pleasing to God as more youthful prayers from a Grotto on the lid of a night.

But like telling a mother in labor, “It’s okay, millions have endured the labor pains and conceived a child.” “It’s standing... but doesn’t lessen the pain. According to Tom Dooley, prayer may help. There is good as from the Grotto don’t lessen the prayers, bearing passion to be there.

I don’t mean to ramble like this is any better than the Grotto from where do the other, from the Grotto from where do the refugees’ apparent motivations for leaving one’s homeland mean? For them, for the masses of refugees there. For all of the people who have been in my mind... for all of the people... for all of the people...

The same reason I write to you just now is that whenever I feel in front of the Grotto, I feel that I am in a Chinese division of the Saints of Charity (I think). Though my doctors British the hospital is as Chinese as Shaker’s Fine Shop. Extremely orderly, corporal, nurse and nun know nothing about the Grotto and a hospital bed are just as pleasing to God as more youthful prayers from a Grotto on the lid of a night.

The editor of The Observer has asked me to respond to several topics related to Thomas Dooley and my own experiences in Southeast Asia. It is my wish to be wise and open in sharing these reflections with the Notre Dame community.

Michael Bowler

Dooley award recipient learned valuable lessons

Dooley’s writings about his work in Southeast Asia served as a catalyst for creating an understanding of the peoples and cultures of Southeast Asia as well as in the type of humanitarian service with which he was involved. At Notre Dame his influence often came to me in a message that I would receive the next day, or in the form of a story that I would hear about someone else who I could not help but be moved by. I was introduced to Southeast Asia as a young man, and now I work to understand the region and to share my experiences with others. This is the importance of the Dooley award recipient’s role, and the lesson that I have learned from his work.

The refugees with whom I worked taught me the value in not judging people. I now realize that these were special, chosen people, much as were the Jews in Europe who were persecuted by the Nazis. Thank God that I do not pass judgment on them prematurely and hence deprive myself of learning from them what pain, suffering, faith, freedom and the agony of leaving one’s homeland meant! For me there was also a strong evolution of the belief that refugees, regardless of their motivations, deserve compassion, respect and the granting of asylum, much as had not imit-
Students do have rights in the ND judicial process

When people talk of students' rights, they often laugh. In fact, it is the common perception of students here that there is no such thing as "students' rights" at the University of Notre Dame. Yet, students here do indeed have some rights, at least in the judicial process. Unfortunately, few students ever become aware of these rights until it is too late.

Karen Ingwersen

Students first become extremely concerned with their rights when they receive a letter or a call from the Office of Residence Life indicating that they are to meet with an associate Vice President for Residence Life John Goldrick or Director of Residence Life Ann Firth. Suddenly, a frantic search of one's room commences. Wherever did that copy of du Lac go? There, hidden in the corner, under last year's calculus text and that month's laundry is that copy. Now, where does it talk about the disciplinary process? No, no, I'm not interested in the history of the school! What? Stop rushing around. Take a deep breath. Then contact your hall judicial board chairperson. Yes, I mean that terrible person who just last week fixed your best friend for playing his stereo too loudly. That same terrible person is also your best quick reference for some help with the University judicial process. If you have some question he cannot answer, he knows who to contact for more information.

But, you say, your hall's chairperson is out of town. She is one of those accounting types who is interviewing, all expenses paid, in some sunny climate this week. Panic, right? No, just slow down. Try calling the judicial coordinator over at the student government offices. Ok, if all else fails, you could try to call me at home, although I tend not to be there.

But what good will talking to each or any of these people do? Hopefully, we can impress on you the seriousness of the situation in which you now find yourself. Not taking this situation seriously is the first mistake most people make. For example, were you aware that the maximum penalty for most University offenses is suspension or expulsion? Obviously these are penalties of enormous magnitude to the average college student. You are also entitled to have an undergraduate represent you in all phases of the judicial process. Often it is nice just to have someone who sees everything from a slightly different angle and possibly more objectively than you. If nothing else, any one of the people I suggested can tell you just what to expect at each step along the way.

So now what? First, remember that you are innocent until proven guilty. Second, all aspects of your case are confidential, including any contact with judicial board people or myself. Third, remember that you are not required to make a written statement. If you do (and you will be asked to) be aware that this statement will be used later. Be careful how you present your statement. It is very easy to write one thing and mean another.

OK, the disciplinary officer gave his decision and you just do not agree. Is it time to panic or give up yet? NO! You have five calendar days in which to appeal any aspect of the decision to the Judicial Review Board. "Judicial WHAT?" you say. This is a pool of very competent, intelligent people from the faculty and administration. By now if you have not contacted me or one of my assistants, you should. This is our special area of expertise.

Finally, the Review Board has rendered its decision. At this point either you or the disciplinary officer can appeal the decision within seven calendar days to Father Hershberger's office. The Office of Residence Life prepares a summary of the prior hearings and forwards it to Father Hershberger. Father Hershberger's decision is final.

Sec, students do have some rights within the judicial process. Granted, the decision will ultimately be made by a member of the "administration." Indeed, this is the major weakness of our judicial system. Yet, since our system has this weakness we are fortunate that Father Hershberger is that final link in our process at the present. He considers carefully all of the information with which he is presented, including his decision's long-term effect on the student involved. Under a lesser man this process weakness would have a much more profound effect on the fairness of such a circular judicial process.

So next time someone is wondering about students' rights, don't laugh. Tell them who to call. Knowing your rights is your responsibility.

Karen Ingwersen is a senior accounting major and the judicial coordinator at Notre Dame.

Photos by Drew Sandler

The Observer

P.O. Box 62, Notre Dame, IN 46556 (219) 239-5303

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame du Lac and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and objectively as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of a majority of the Editorial Board. Comments and questions are welcomed. This newspaper is available to all members of the community and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is encouraged.

Editor-in-Chief ............................ John Klingenstuber
Managing Editor ......................... Sarah E. Hamilton
Assistant Editor ......................... Mark B. Johnson
Sports Editor ............................. Joe Murphy
Sports Copy Editor ................. Peter C. Lachman
Copy Editor ............................. Philip H. Wolf

Editorial Board

Operations Board

Business Manager ................. David Stephanich
Controller ................................... John A. Mountin
Advertising Manager ............ Jim Hagan
Advertising Coordinator .......... William J. Houghton
Art Director .......................... Anna M. Culigan
Sports Editor ............................. Mark B. Johnson
Photography Editor .................... John A. Mountin

Editorial Policy

Founded November 3, 1966

Quote of the day

"He (Rick Majerus) lost about 20 pounds. That's like a deck chair blowing off the Queen Mary."

Al McGuire
CBS Halftime
Jan. 19, 1986
Miami left in dark as Irish roar to thunderous victory

This is the 16th episode in The Observer's serial publication of the Notre Dame football program. The weekly episode, Coach Kelly's abbreviated speech, is devoted to Miami's second play, the head referee raising his arms straight overhead. The game was played on October 5th, 1985, in South Bend, Indiana.

The Miami University Band in the United States has earned the reputation as the most famous collegiate band in the country. The band, led by the Miami University Band Director, consists of over 300 members and performs at all home football games. The band is known for its elaborate and colorful uniforms, and its performances are a highlight of every game.

The Miami University Band is known for its creativity and showmanship, and it consistently receives high praise from fans and critics alike. The band is well organized and well trained, and its performances are always a highlight of the game.

The Miami University Band is also known for its dedication to the community, and it has performed at numerous local events and fundraisers. The band is an integral part of the Miami University community, and it is a source of pride for the university.

On the field, the Notre Dame defense was able to limit Miami to just 14 points, the lowest total of the season for the Irish. The defense recorded five sacks and held Miami to 269 total yards of offense.

Offensively, Notre Dame was able to put up 434 total yards of offense, with quarterback Rock and running back Collins leading the way. Rock completed 24 of 39 passes for 336 yards and two touchdowns, while Collins rushed for 82 yards and a touchdown.

The Irish were able to coast to victory, with the game out of reach by halftime. The team will now turn their attention to preparing for next week's game against the University of the South, where they hope to continue their winning streak.

The win was a testament to the team's hard work and dedication, and it was a great way to end the first month of the season. The Irish are looking forward to the rest of the season and hope to continue their success.
The Year On It

If you’re tired of the usual drab or of being boxed in by a limited imagination, why not try something new? The Woodlawn Arts Center offers a variety of classes and workshops to help you explore your creative side.

The NVA cross-country ski clinic has been rescheduled for two more times, both on Sunday. The first is at 10 a.m. and the second is at 2 p.m. New registrants are welcome: Call NVA at 239-6100 for information.

The NWA Men’s and Women’s Indoor soccer tournaments will be held by the NVA. Rosters must include a minimum of eight players and should be turned in by Friday. For more information call the NWA.

The NWA Men’s Track Club will hold its first indoor meet of the season tomorrow at 3 p.m. at the ACC. Anyone interested in attending or times the races is welcome. For more information call Mary Beth at 277-8183.

The NWA Men’s and Women’s Indoor soccer tournaments will be held by the NVA. Rosters must include a minimum of eight players and should be turned in by Friday. For more information call the NWA.

Weight Training will be offered by the NWA to the first 75 people free of charge on Tuesday at 6:15 p.m. The NWA Men’s and Women’s weight team has the first 75 people free of charge on Tuesday at 6:15 p.m. The NWA Men’s and Women’s weight team will hold its first indoor meet of the season tomorrow at 3 p.m. at the ACC. Anyone interested in attending or times the races is welcome. For more information call Mary Beth at 277-8183.

The NWA Men’s Track Club will hold its first indoor meet of the season tomorrow at 3 p.m. at the ACC. Anyone interested in attending or times the races is welcome. For more information call Mary Beth at 277-8183.

The NWA Men’s Track Club will hold its first indoor meet of the season tomorrow at 3 p.m. at the ACC. Anyone interested in attending or times the races is welcome. For more information call Mary Beth at 277-8183.
The NVA Century Club will give you a free t-shirt just for working out. Pick any activity and fill out a pledge card at the NVA office in the ACC. When you reach your self-proclaimed goal you can redeem your log book for the free shirt. For more information call NVA - The Observer.

Hydorobics, aerobics in the water, will begin Monday at 6:45 p.m. in the Rolfs Aquatic Center. Classes will be held every Monday and Wednesday. For more information call NVA - The Observer.

The ND Rugby Club will hold an organizational meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the LaFortune Center. Anyone interested is welcome to attend, and no experience is necessary. For more information call Phil Sheridan at 288-4761. - The Observer for 28 total points. The play of these four individuals should prove crucial in the outcomes of both games.

An interhall track meet will be held by the NVA on Wednesday, Feb. 19. For more information call NVA - The Observer.

The USA Hockey Briefs continued from page 16

It is interesting to note that the Irish are 6-2-1 at home but are struggling to a record of 2-11 on the road. But the Irish are undefeated against Lake Forest and hoping to stay that way. With an improved defense and a strong offensive effort, the team has a good shot of doing so.

The Observer
ND track team shooting to repeat as MCC titlists tomorrow at ACC

By JOHN COYLE
Sports Writer

If the recent history of the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Championships is any indication, it should be a successful afternoon for the Notre Dame track team this Saturday. The Irish have won the title every year since their inception into the conference in 1963. Current head coach Joe Piane is confident that his track team can extend the streak to four in a row.

“We should do very well based on (our success) the first three years,” said Piane. “We have dominated the meet in the past so we should win again this year.”

The Irish have, indeed, dominated their competition in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Championships. Last year, out of a possible 495 points, Notre Dame garnered 242.5 to easily win the championship.

DeCicco continued from page 16

DeCicco took control of the Irish fencing program in 1962, replacing a successful Walter M. Langford, who chalked up a 155-55-15 record in 15 years. Although he went 7-8 in his rookie season as coach, DeCicco filled Langford’s shoes well with a 1963 squad that went 1-4-2 and was just the first in a long list of winning teams.

In his 24 years of coaching he has had 21 consecutive winning seasons, six undefeated seasons, two successive NCAA championships teams and was named coach of the year three times. But he still feels there is more to accomplish.

“I have been here a long time,” says DeCicco, with a smile. “But I haven’t quite seen it all yet. There are some more little goals that I can see for this programs and the potential that our fencers have.”

Fencers continued from page 16

The American epee fencer who should fill in any gaps

“With the return of seniors, junior (all American) Charles Higgins, and freshmen like Derek Holohan, it should all even out. It’s really just a matter of exchanging applauses for orders.”

In the foil competition, senior Mike Van der Velden, Higgins, and Holohan should provide the Wayne State team with just about all that it can handle, while in the saber the Irish will go with the experienced trio of seniors Tony Coady, John Edwards, and Don Johnson. DeCicco sees this phase of the competition as instrumental to an Irish victory.

“I’m hoping that our three seniors men can take all of the matches against their number three men,” said DeCicco.

In epee, seniors Mike Castigan and Christian Sherpe will anchor a deep Irish attack that also features the talents of juniors John Haugh and Tim Vugman.

“Any one of our fencers has a bad day, but we can count on the next one to make it up against a team as talented as Wayne State,” said DeCicco. “When you have nine good fencers, nine good fencers, you look for a soft spot. This match might go down to the last touch. Wayne State is coming in on Sunday loaded for bear, and the match will definitely be a chance at some revenge for them.

“With our track team going to the ACC this year, we’ll be following our own championships,” said DeCicco. “We’ve had two have the day, they hope, they can beat Wayne State. If they beat Wayne State and beat them handily, they should go undefeated for the rest of the season.

If the men come out on top after Saturday’s meet, things won’t be quite so simple. The Irish still face some tough competition from the remainder of their schedule, and Ohio State and Illinois are the major concerns after Saturday’s meet. Still, DeCicco maintains his faith in his Irish team.

“I think we can beat the national powers like Penn State, Penn, Columbia, and Illinois, and we’ll be ready for the nationals.”

Sunday’s competition is scheduled as follows: Tri-State, 9 a.m.; Eastern Michigan, 10:30; Michigan-Dearborn, 12:00; Detroit, 1:30; Wayne State, 4:00.
The Observer

Friday, January 31, 1986 - page 13

Irish swimmers back at home, set for meet today

BY BOB KEMPER
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame swimming teams return to the Rolfs Aquatic Center today for their first home meets since Dec. 8. The women host Oral Roberts at 4 p.m. while the Irish take on both Oral Roberts and St. Bonaventure at 7 p.m.

For the men, the meet provides an opportunity to gain respect from St. Bonaventure, which has the worst beating of the 1984-85 season, 81-35. St. Bonaventure possesses a 7-3 record this year with its three losses coming at the hands of national swimming powers Tennessee, Pittsburgh, and Florida State. Notre Dame and St. Bonaventure have had one common opponent this year, Cleveland State. St. Bonaventure prevailed, 66-64, while Notre Dame lost 71 to 41.

"They are an exceptionally fast team in the relay events and in the sprint freestyle events," said Irish Coach Tim Welsh. "If you were to map the two teams out comparatively, St. Bonaventure has an advantage in the sprint-oriented events whereas we have an advantage in the distance-oriented events. However, collegiate swimming is directed towards sprint freestyle.

"The second indicator of meet results," continued Welsh, "is to see who owns the diving boards. St. Bonaventure has a cleaner and more experienced in the diving events.

Despite Coach Welsh's concern regarding St. Bonaventure's advantage, Welsh did not have as much to say, meanwhile, about the men's other opponent, Oral Roberts, although this is not because he doesn't expect them to be competitive. It is simply because he doesn't know what to expect from their Midwestern Conference rivals.

"This is the first-ever dual meet swimming between Notre Dame and Oral Roberts. We have no common opponents. At the conference meet last year, our men placed higher than the men from Oral Roberts, but a dual meet team and a championship team are quite different."

Although it appears that Notre Dame is involved in a skirmish with Oral Roberts and St. Bonaventure, the content will actually be scored as three simultaneous dual meets. It will be very difficult for a spectator to interpret all three meets if any of them are close," admitted Welsh.

As for the women's meet, the Irish coach is also in the dark about the outcome of the meet. Oral Roberts joined the North Star Conference this year, so the two teams have not previously competed. The Notre Dame women have won the conference championship meet the past two years so today's dual meet will provide valuable preparation for this year's championship meet.

One member of the women's team to watch in particular is soprano diver Andrea Bonny. She has set the Notre Dame women's records in both the one-meter and three-meter diving events. In addition, she has qualified for the NCAA Division I zone diving championship.

Welsh attributes the team's success in the pool partly to the current intrasquad competition, and good team morale. "The team works together very closely," he noted. "It is a very congenial group of people. The people have a good time swimming and working together. It is a real pleasure to coach this team."

Aside from tomorrow's action, the Irish swimmers have several other home meets in the next two weeks. The men host Bradley on Feb. 6 and Ferris State on Feb. 8, while the women take on Illinois-Chicago and Valparaiso on Feb. 7 before meeting St. Mary's at the Rockne Memorial on Feb. 12. These are the last home dates of the year for both the men and the women.

4.5 million dollar Rolfs natatorium already paying off for ND students

BY JOHN WALTERS
Sports Writer

Don't tell Ronald Reagan or the U.S. Senate, but Notre Dame has expanded its territorial waters. In fact, they've been more than doubled in size.

It's the Rolfs Aquatic Center, the 4 million dollar state-of-the-art swimming complex located in the ACC, and it is drawing rave reviews from varsity swimmers and water hoistkeepers alike.

The facility began operation this past fall, and it boosts a 50-meter Olympic-sized pool with two movable bulkheads, allowing the pool to be sectioned off for different uses at the same time. Thus, the diversity of activities separate from the swimming area, and recreational swimmers no longer need to fear kamikaze divers scoring a hit, as could happen at the Rock.

Prior to this year, Notre Dame students satisfied their amphibious urges at the Rockne Pool, but that pool has been a coming fixture longer than Father Hesburgh, opened in 1938. With only two lanes, Rockne Pool often was over-crowded, and students found themselves in greater need of patience than a decent flutter kick.

"It's an exceptionally fast team in the relay events and in the sprint freestyle events," said Irish Coach Tim Welsh. "If you were to map the two teams out comparatively, St. Bonaventure has an advantage in the sprint-oriented events whereas we have an advantage in the distance-oriented events. However, collegiate swimming is directed towards sprint freestyle.

"The second indicator of meet results," continued Welsh, "is to see who owns the diving boards. St. Bonaventure has a cleaner and more experienced in the diving events.

Despite Coach Welsh's concern regarding St. Bonaventure's advantage, Welsh did not have as much to say, meanwhile, about the men's other opponent, Oral Roberts, although this is not because he doesn't expect them to be competitive. It is simply because he doesn't know what to expect from their Midwestern Conference rivals.

"This is the first-ever dual meet swimming between Notre Dame and Oral Roberts. We have no common opponents. At the conference meet last year, our men placed higher than the men from Oral Roberts, but a dual meet team and a championship team are quite different."

Although it appears that Notre Dame is involved in a skirmish with Oral Roberts and St. Bonaventure, the content will actually be scored as three simultaneous dual meets. It will be very difficult for a spectator to interpret all three meets if any of them are close," admitted Welsh.

As for the women's meet, the Irish coach is also in the dark about the outcome of the meet. Oral Roberts joined the North Star Conference this year, so the two teams have not previously competed. The Notre Dame women have won the conference championship meet the past two years so today's dual meet will provide valuable preparation for this year's championship meet.

One member of the women's team to watch in particular is soprano diver Andrea Bonny. She has set the Notre Dame women's records in both the one-meter and three-meter diving events. In addition, she has qualified for the NCAA Division I zone diving championship.

Welsh attributes the team's success in the pool partly to the current intrasquad competition, and good team morale. "The team works together very closely," he noted. "It is a very congenial group of people. The people have a good time swimming and working together. It is a real pleasure to coach this team."

Aside from tomorrow's action, the Irish swimmers have several other home meets in the next two weeks. The men host Bradley on Feb. 6 and Ferris State on Feb. 8, while the women take on Illinois-Chicago and Valparaiso on Feb. 7 before meeting St. Mary's at the Rockne Memorial on Feb. 12. These are the last home dates of the year for both the men and the women.

Want to Make a Difference on the Notre Dame Campus?

Applications available for next year's

• General Business Manager
• Controller Manager

Student Activities Board

Gain practical business experience while improving social life!

Live at DEAN'S
The Pat Giblin Band
FEB. 2 10pm - ?

DEAN'S
15 minutes from campus
(across from Pizza Hut)
Notre Dame's own Good-Time Rock 'N Roll Band

Want to Make a Difference on the Notre Dame Campus?

Applications available for next year's

• General Business Manager
• Controller Manager

Student Activities Board

Gain practical business experience while improving social life!
SMC swimmers fall to Kalamazoo

By ANDREA LAFRENIERE
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's swim team traveled to Kalamazoo, Mich., on Wednesday, where it lost to Kalamazoo College by a score of 66-46.

The Belles, now 1-2 on the season, showed a good deal of improvement according to Coach Nancy Jo Kuzmitz.

"Most of the swimmers dropped their times from the last meet," Kuzmitz said. "We are definitely getting better, but we do have a little way to go yet before Nationals."

Freshman Bridget Murphy highlighted the meet for the Belles with her diving performance, totaling 133.55 points.

"Bridge took first place in the six optional dives," Kuzmitz said. "She finished second in the five required dives, too, so we were pretty thrilled about that."

Other first place finishes for the Belles were Joyce Murtagh, a senior, who swam the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 2:08.10, and Meghan Rafferty, a sophomore, who won the 100-yard backstroke with a time of 22.55.

The Belles were successful in the relay events, as well, according to Kuzmitz, who was pleased with the second place finishes.

"I think we did well in the relays," Kuzmitz said. "They were really close, and we only lost by a touch."

Rafferty, Murtagh, and juniors Mary Fisher and Patty Jackness made up the 200-yard freestyle relay team, while Rafferty, Jackness, freshman Tamra Reeves and junior Margaret Mannion swam the 200-yard medley relay.

Senior Anne Cushing captured second place in two events. Cushing finished the 1000-yard freestyle with a time of 12:20.73 and placed the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 5:59.68.

The remaining second-place finishers for the Belles were Reeves, who swam the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 1:11.49, and Mannion, who finished the 200-yard backstroke with a time of 2:52.90.

Murtagh placed second in two events. Cushing finished the 12:20.73 and placed the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 1:00.40.

Irish set for Evansville in NSC weekend clash

By LARRY BURKE
Assistant Sports Editor

The Notre Dame women's basketball team will be looking to extend its 16-game North Star Conference winning streak Sunday afternoon when it goes on the road to take on the Purple Aces of Evansville.

The 11-6 Irish also will be trying to win their fourth straight game and their second straight on the road. Wednesday night Notre Dame went to Indianapolis and beat Butler handily, 91-40, in the Hinkle Field House to raise its season conference mark to a perfect 4-0.

"Wednesday night we got a pretty good all-around performance," said Irish head coach Mary DiStaso.

"We got balanced scoring from (senior forward) Trena Keys, (sophomore center) Sandy Botham, and (sophomore guard) Lynn Ebben. We also got good outside production from (sophomore guard) Mary Gavin. Overall I'd say that the Butler game was a good confidence-builder."

"We'll be playing our second game on the road Sunday, and coming away with another win will be a big goal on our minds. We know we'll have to play a very good game if we want to come away with a win."

Evansville stands at 3-10 and 1-1 in the conference. Today the Aces will face the Lady Titans of Detroit in another North Star matchup.

Players to watch for Evansville are junior guard Gretchen Eisenhauer, sophomore center Karla Hughes, 5-9 sophomore guard Barb Opdurt, and 5-7 senior guard Barb Dykstra. Center-forward Kathy Sloan, a 6-0 senior, was averaging 6.8 points per game, before going down with a stress fracture in the Aces' fifth game.

Eisenhauer, at 5-11, leads the team in scoring with an average of 16.7 points per game, followed by the 5-11 Hughes at 10.1 points per game. Dykstra adds an additional 9.9 points per game, and Opdurt chips in with an average of 8.6 points per game. Hughes and Dykstra are the Lady Aces' top rebounders, averaging close to five per contest.

"Evansville is always very, very tough at home," says DiStaso.

"They're capable of beating any team when they get them down there. It will be a typical North Star Conference game. The team that hits the boards, plays defense and plays solid offense will win."

Notre Dame has never lost to Evansville, and holds a 4-0 record in the all-time series between the two teams.

IRISH ITEMS - Keys needs just 35 points to become Notre Dame's all-time leading scorer. Irish take on a pair of North Star rivals in the ACC later next week. Dayton on Friday and Xavier on Saturday, before hitting the road again.
By DENNIS CORRIGAN

The Notre Dame basketball team will look to keep its perfect 10-0 home record intact when it enters the ACC at the ACC, Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. at the ACC. This will be the first game of the season between the Irish and the Warriors under the four-team Great Independent round-robin series.

Coached by Rick Majerus, Marquette comes into tomorrow's game with a record of 12-6. But anyone who saw its 66-64 loss to North Carolina knows that the Warriors have the potential to pull off an upset against the Irish, including Head Coach Digger Phelps.

"Obviously Marquette is coming in knowing that they really want to win the game, that they have to win the game," said Phelps. "It's one of those situations where if they beat Notre Dame, it gives them instant credibility as far as we're ranked and they're not ranked.

"In my opinion, they've played very, very well. To me, they're one of the top 50 or 55 teams in the nation. Given the strength of their schedule and the strength of their personnel, they're a very talented basketball team. Coming in here after a loss (to Virginia Commonwealth on Monday), I'm sure they're going to play very, very well because they know it's one of the round-robin games."

Because it is one of the round-robin games, tomorrow's contest has an added importance by virtue of the fact that it is a head-to-head meeting between two of the top independent teams in the country, a fact underscored when Phelps refused to comment on Monday afternoon about Notre Dame's game with Maryland.

"Marquette's our priority," Phelps commented. "That's the NCAA bid right there. That's the independents."

The Warriors are led by 6-6 forward David Boone. The junior is averaging 14.8 points and 10.2 rebounds per game. Joining him on the forward line is 6-6 senior Kerry Trotter, who is scoring 14.5 ppg and pulling down 6.1 rebounds a night.

The man in the middle for Marquette is 6-9 senior Walter Downey, who while only averaging 6.4 points and 3.7 rebounds a game, leads the team with 41 blocked shots and a strong offensive effort by the first two lines coupled with few turnovers, a successful weekend campaign.

For the year McNeill has led the Irish in scoring with 18 points and 22 assists for a total of 54 points. Also outscoring Smith is senior guard Howard Trotter, who is scoring 13.8 ppg.

One of the off-season worries has been the injury to 6-4 senior Benny Moore (10.4 ppg), who averages 8.2 points and 4.4 rebounds in his back-up role.

Another key reserve for Marquette is 6-10 center Tom Cuda, who averages 8.2 points and 4.4 rebounds in his back-up role.

"Marquette is a good team," Phelps noted. "With their size they can do a lot of things."

The man in the middle for Marquette is 6-9 senior Walter Downey, who while only averaging 6.4 points and 3.7 rebounds a game, leads the team with 41 blocked shots and a strong offensive effort by the first two lines coupled with few turnovers, a successful weekend campaign.

For the year McNeill has led the Irish in scoring with 18 points and 22 assists for a total of 54 points. Also outscoring Smith is senior guard Howard Trotter, who is scoring 13.8 ppg.

One of the off-season worries has been the injury to 6-4 senior Benny Moore (10.4 ppg), who averages 8.2 points and 4.4 rebounds in his back-up role.

"Marquette is a good team," Phelps noted. "With their size they can do a lot of things."

The man in the middle for Marquette is 6-9 senior Walter Downey, who while only averaging 6.4 points and 3.7 rebounds a game, leads the team with 41 blocked shots and a strong offensive effort by the first two lines coupled with few turnovers, a successful weekend campaign.

For the year McNeill has led the Irish in scoring with 18 points and 22 assists for a total of 54 points. Also outscoring Smith is senior guard Howard Trotter, who is scoring 13.8 ppg.

One of the off-season worries has been the injury to 6-4 senior Benny Moore (10.4 ppg), who averages 8.2 points and 4.4 rebounds in his back-up role.

"Marquette is a good team," Phelps noted. "With their size they can do a lot of things."

The man in the middle for Marquette is 6-9 senior Walter Downey, who while only averaging 6.4 points and 3.7 rebounds a game, leads the team with 41 blocked shots and a strong offensive effort by the first two lines coupled with few turnovers, a successful weekend campaign.

For the year McNeill has led the Irish in scoring with 18 points and 22 assists for a total of 54 points. Also outscoring Smith is senior guard Howard Trotter, who is scoring 13.8 ppg.

One of the off-season worries has been the injury to 6-4 senior Benny Moore (10.4 ppg), who averages 8.2 points and 4.4 rebounds in his back-up role.

"Marquette is a good team," Phelps noted. "With their size they can do a lot of things."

The man in the middle for Marquette is 6-9 senior Walter Downey, who while only averaging 6.4 points and 3.7 rebounds a game, leads the team with 41 blocked shots and a strong offensive effort by the first two lines coupled with few turnovers, a successful weekend campaign.
The snow is here. As whiteness quickly covers up the landscape, the true character of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students is being uncovered, and ski areas in the Michiana region are helping to define that character.

People on the campuses generally respond to snow in one of two ways. There are the winter sport enthusiasts, who are thanking God gleefully for the bounteous whiteness, and then there are those who crawl back into the bed, praying that the snow is only a bad dream which will be all over when they wake up.

If you fit into the latter category, I have news for you; the snow isn't going to go away, at least not by tomorrow. It might be better just to give up now and join those who already have discovered that frolicking in the snow is one of life's finer pleasures.

One of the best ways to enjoy snow is by skiing on it. True, the flatlands of Indiana will never be the Rockies, but there are several ski areas within reach of South Bend which are perfect for curing a mild case of skiing withdrawal or for learning how to ski.

Ski World (formerly Royal Valley) is the area closest to South Bend. Located just 12 miles away in Buchanan, Michigan, it is perfect for a full day or afternoon of skiing. According to junior Todd Harding, Ski World is a good place for beginning skiers because the slopes tend to be easier. He says that beginning skiers can advance gradually to intermediate slopes. Beginning skiers also can take advantage of Ski World's $7 ticket, good on rope tows only.

"Ski World is neat because it's set in a valley and you ski around trees," Harding says, describing the lodge as having "more atmosphere" than other places.

For more advanced skiers, Harding recommends Bittersweet. He says, "Bittersweet has longer runs and there's a little more variety." Bittersweet also has reduced night rates for college students on weekends.

Swiss Valley is another ski area within an hour of South Bend. According to David Immonen, a member of the Notre Dame ski team, "The facilities at Bittersweet are good. They have three chair lifts and lots of snow."

If you're interested in a weekend ski trip, Caberfae, in northern Michigan, is one option. Caberfae offers a large number of runs serviced by 15 lifts. If you are renting skis, however, Caberfae is slightly more expensive than other areas. An area that O'Donovan recommends over Caberfae is Cannonsberg, 10 minutes north of see SKI, page 2
Black Cultural Arts Festival celebrates black expression

MARY JACOBY
assistant features editor

A festival in February? But February, with its bleak winter days and stagnant routine of work and study, is the perfect time for the brightness of a festival. And because February is also the designated national black awareness month, it has become the permanent calendar home for Notre Dame's annual celebration of the black cultural arts, the Black Cultural Arts Festival.

"Umoja: A Spectrum of Unity" is this year's theme. Umoja is an African word meaning unity, and with this image Esther Ivory, BCAF chairman, said she hopes to convey a sense of the need for more black and white interaction on campus.

"We're very excited about this year's festival, because it is a chance to promote black culture and arts to the student body, most of whom probably are not very familiar with it," Ivory said. "Because it's called the Black Cultural Arts Festival, a lot of the white students think it's not for them. But don't let the 'black' run you off. It's just a celebration for the whole black history month." Traditionally, the first event of the festival, which Ivory said has been taking place at Notre Dame for "around 17 years," was a gospel choir concert, speakers, and fashion and talent shows.

The festival officially began Feb. 2 with a performance of Notre Dame's Voices of Faith Gospel Ensemble in Washington Hall.

"Song is a very unifying part of the black race and culture. Historically, during slavery times it was the only accepted way of protest or celebration. Music also is related very strongly to religion," Ivory explained.

In an effort to expose the campus to more unfamiliar aspects of black life and culture, Ivory said she deliberately chose lesser-known speakers in hopes that students may learn things they did not know previously. "Our important function on campus is to introduce prominent black individuals who Notre Dame wouldn't usually invite to speak," Ivory said. There are two speakers set for this year's festival, Dick Gregory, a combination comedian and social activist, and Brenda Werner, a media consultant.

Dick Gregory began his diverse career in 1960 when he became the first black comic to work in the top white night clubs in St. Louis. As his fame as a comedian spread, Gregory became interested in the growing social movement, and, inspired by Gandhi, began fasting to protest social injustice and other causes such as the Vietnam War. As a comedian, Gregory weighed at times over 500 pounds. But his fasting technique in the '60s and a new awareness of the importance of health helped transform his figure to his present leanness. His interest in diet and nutrition has led to his becoming an expert in the field, and Gregory also has written a best-selling book on the subject titled "Cooking With Mother Nature." Gregory can also claim the roles of actor, philosopher, political analyst and lecturer, making him "an ideal choice" for the BCAF.

"Dick Gregory is a serious speaker, but he's also funny," Ivory said.

Ski continued from page 1

Grand Rapids, Mich. Cannonsberg is a "hot new area," says O'Donovan. "Cabeer is not that much better than Cannonsberg, and Cannonsberg is older," he adds. Perhaps the best ski area in the Midwest is Boyne Mountain. Both Harding and O'Donovan comment that Boyne has the largest variety of slopes catering to a wide range of skills.

Mary Josephine Pluizd...
Only genuine sci-fi lovers will enjoy 'Enemy Mine'

P.A. CIMINO

The phenomenal success of "Star Wars" and its sequels proved without a shadow of a doubt that science fiction films can be very profitable. Film-makers have been eager to find sci-fi vehicles of equal or better quality which will draw a profitable audience. As such, the public regularly is inundated with new science fiction films proclaiming to be better than any of their predecessors and which actually are no more than intelligence-insulting garbage. With this in mind, I ardently pop-corned down to view Twentieth Century Fox's newest attempt at world-wide success in the form of "Enemy Mine.

Starring Dennis Quaid ("Breaking Away," "the Right Stuff") and Louis Gossett, Jr., who won an Oscar for his performance as the tough-as-nails drill instructor, Sgt. Foley, in "An Officer and A Gentleman." "Enemy Mine" boasts a strong cast with the potential to make film history. Director Wolfgang Peter­son is also well known as a previous Oscar nominee for the film "Das Dass." Now, if these ingredients were the only ones needed to cook up a great feature-length film, "Enemy Mine" would be one of the chief specials.

Unfortunately, the plot and story are also somewhat important, and although the screenplay is based on a prize-winning novella, it contains some flaws which cannot be ignored.

The movie opens in outer space (some distant star system, 100 years in the future) with a dogfight between a squadron of cavalry and their long-time foes, the Draconians, from the planet Draco, of course. After one of his fellow pilots is killed by a Drac, Davidge (Quaid) is so overcome with grief that he forsooks his own ship to get revenge.

In trying to destroy the enemy craft, he follows the Drac into the atmosphere of Fyrine IV, an uncharted planet over which they just happen to be flying. He succeeds in hitting the opposing fighter. However, the Drac ejects and Davidge and his co-pilot are forced to make a crash landing. As if things were not bad enough, the co-pilot is mortally wounded in the crashing crash, and the ship is destroyed. Stranded on a potentially hostile planet with seemingly no resources left to live for except revenge.

Davidge goes in search of his adversary. When the two finally meet, they found a relationship which begins with a life and death struggle and develops out of necessity and similarity.

From a purely critical point of view, the movie has some merits worth mentioning. Dennis Quaid does a good job with a very difficult character. Davidge is as invariable, inconsistent sort who gets himself into trouble repeatedly by refusing to plan for every possibility.

Although Quaid often overplays his charac­ter's emotion, his performance is likable for both his loyalty and his humor. Quaid seems next to home whenever Davidge's humorous abilities, and in this respect he is convincingly. Unfortunately Davidge is put into positions which often are not in harmony with his own believability. Louis Gossett, Jr., plays Jeriba Shigan, a Drac from the planet Shigan, a reptilian creature complete with a vestigial tail. His speech is unadulterated with gargish sounds reminiscent of Popeye at the bottom of the sea. When the audience finally gets to look at Shigan's inhuman form, he becomes both likable and convincingly. Gossett is able to create an alien character to which a purely human viewer can relate. Needless to say, his performance is both salient and commendable as he fights a chopp­py script, makeup which makes expression all but impossible, and garbled speech.

The only other pluses go to the makeup work, which is well executed. The general visual effects, which were produced at Industrial Light and Magic, the company responsible for the effects in the three "Star Wars" films and both "Indiana Jones" adventures.

Aside from the already mentioned faulty script and character development, note on the minus side must be made of the poor lighting (much of the film's action occurs in mystical and the inferior landscape). The production of "Enemy Mine" included 10 days shooting in the Canary Islands with the bulk of filming done in Canada, to get Davidge and the casts, and the sets look extremely fake and ineffective. As a final killing blow, the production and editing are just as choppy as the script. By film's end I was definitely wondering whether the last quarter of the movie was cut to satisfy some time requirement, and needless to say, the ending left me a little unsatisfied.

In spite of its numerous shortcomings, true sci-fi lovers may actually like this film. In any event, "Enemy Mine" is just another movie to play on the video wall of those with cash to spare, and it could never compare to "Star Wars." Save your money and buy a book.

The Scoop

- The South Bend Symphony Orchestra will present the final concert of its premier season at the O'Laughlin Auditorium at Saint Mary's. Kenneth Kiesler, music director and conductor, will lead the orchestra through a program featuring Concertmaster and violinist Laura Kluger. The concert will feature Mozart's "Violin Concerto No. 5" and "Symphony No. 39" as well as Aaron Copland's "Appalachian Spring." Suite from the ballet "Rodeo" and Maurice Ravel's "Pavane for a Dead Empress." Immediately preceding the show, Kiesler will conduct his annual pre-concert series. Concert Comments. These discussions provide insight into the behind-the-scenes opera­tions of the orchestra and its music. Admission to the 4 p.m. show is $5 for adults and $1.50 for students.

- The Heartlands America Tour featuring the Interlochen Arts Academy Orchestra will perform Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Joseph's High School. Composed of 97 high school students from 28 states and seven foreign countries, the orchestra has earned national acclaim with concerts at Carnegie Hall, Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., and Chicago's Orchestra Hall.

- The department of communications and theater presents "Pauline at the Beach" tonight at the Annenberg Auditorium. Directed by Bronwyn Eric Rohner, this film features the romantic entanglements of an eccentric group of vacationers. The vibrant cinematography of Oscar-winning Nestor Almendros enhances this comedy of confusion that delivers touching insight into the ever-conflicting works of the mind and the heart. Tickets to the 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. shows are $1.50.

- "Artists and Models: Portraits from the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden," a collection of 35 watercolors, prints, drawings and photographs open on Sunday in the Print, Drawing and Photography Gallery at the Saint Louis Art Museum featuring nationally and internationally acclaimed artists. Admission to the 7 and 9 p.m. shows is $1.50.

- The Student Activities Board hosts "Rambo: First Blood Part Two" tonight and tomorrow night in the Engineering Auditorium. Sylvester Stallone stars as Rambo, the indestructible one-man army bent on revenge in this sequel to "First Blood." Recruited by former command­ing officer (Richard Crenna), Rambo returns to the jungles of Vietnam to track down American POWs still missing in action. Admission to the 7:30 and 9 p.m. shows is $1.50.

- The Celebrants for confessions in Sacred Heart Church this weekend will be: Father Daniel Jenky on Saturday (Saturday night only) and Father Oliver Williams on a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Saturday and Sunday 1 to 4 p.m., and Thursday evenings 4 to 9 p.m. Admission is free.

- The Eliot Civic Theater presents "Harvey," a family comedy, at the Saint Louis Opera House tonight and tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. Admission is $4.50.

Mass

The celebrants for Mass at Sacred Heart Church this weekend will be: Father Daniel Jenky at 5 p.m. (Saturday night only)

Father Oliver Williams at 9 a.m.

Father Daniel Jenky at 10:30 a.m. and 12:15 p.m.

The schedule for confessions in Sacred Heart Church is:

Saturday through Sunday at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Monday through Thursday at 7 p.m.

Sunday only 4 to 5 p.m. in the Crypt.

Veppers will be held Sundays at 1:15 p.m. in the Lady Chapel.

The rosary is said daily at 6:45 p.m. at the Grotto.
Subtle style makes tavern relaxing change of pace

KEITH HARRISON JR.
and LARRY BURKE features writers

I f you're tired of fighting for breathing room and yelling over the din at the local student watering hole, then Albert's Tavern might be your kind of place.

The Bar Beat
Albert's Tavern

Less than a 10-minute drive from campus, Albert's has no cover charge, no flashing disco lights and no hordes of screaming drunks. It's just a good place to go for a low-key evening of food, drink and conversation.

Although Albert's has never been a hot spot for Notre Dame or Saint Mary's students, it traditionally has had a loyal following away from the usual dives and dance clubs. Fridays and Saturdays are the big nights for students, while locals make up most of the crowd during the remainder of the week.

The decor at Albert's is rustic and simple. There are few decorations on the paneled walls, aside from several items of Notre Dame memorabilia, and soft lighting aids to the relaxing atmosphere. There are plenty of tables and booths in the main barroom and in the attached dining room to comfortably accommodate large groups.

Albert's offers a full selection of beer, wine and cocktails, and the prices are fairly inexpensive. Carryouts are available.

The dinner menu is surprisingly diverse. Most of the platters are seafood items, including lobster, catfish and frog legs. The house specialty is Hungarian goulash, although hamburgers and fries are available for the fast-food crowd.

Prices for the platters are in the $17 to $21 range. Most sandwiches cost less than $5.

As far as entertainment goes, Albert's is no Studio 54. Bands do not play there, and there is no dance floor. A pool table, a color television and a jukebox featuring some decent country tunes and the usual pop schlock are the only Albert's offers.

But what Albert's lacks in high-tech excitement, it makes up for in hospitality. The waitresses are quick with a smile, and Albert himself is often behind the bar, offering his opinions on world and national affairs to all who will listen.

Albert's is open Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 a.m. Dinner platters are available until 11 p.m., while sandwiches and other snacks are served until 12:30 a.m.

To get to Albert's, go south on U.S. 31 to Lalonde. Turn right and continue for a block and a half, then bear right onto Lincoln Way West. Albert's is located on the right, at 501 Lincoln Way West. Parking is available in the vacant lot next door.

Realistic tale of hockey life carries 'Youngblood' to success

MARK NEMEC features writer

Over the Christmas break, I had the chance to catch a sneak peek of Rob Lowe's new movie "Youngblood" at an advance screening.

The Proof is in the Taste!
Open Mon-Sat 11 am
Sun 4 pm
Pizza-Sandwiches-Salads
Beer & Wine
277-2020
Located in Roundabout (Next to Rendalla)

During the trip, Kelly tries to warn Dean that some Canadian players play tough and dirty. However, Dean doesn't pay much attention to his brother's words, thinking he can outskate anyone on the ice. This is where the problems start. Although Dean is an excellent and stylish player, he has never learned how to fight. And playing in this semi-pro league is like playing in a league without rules, as Dean finds out in the first and only tryout.

He comes into some heavy words with a guy named Racki (Ed Lauter) and, albeit illegally,

English Dept. Presents
Marion Brando & Vivian Leigh in
Tennessee Williams' A Streetcar Named Desire
Sunday, Feb. 2
Engineering Auditorium
7 pm & 9:20 pm
$1 donation

comes your group, hall, or class at Mr. D's.
Call for arrangements, 233-7747
1516 N. Ironwood
Open Sunday 3:00 pm - 12:30 am.

Chinese, Vietnamese & American Food

Oriental Express
Carry Out
Dining Room
272-6702
6329 University Commons
Just West of University Park Mall on State Road 23, Next to Kroger with dining room coupon only

Dine & Win

Godfather's Pizza
5239 U.S. 31 North
Delivered only to South Bend residents.
With this coupon receive a
Large Pizza for Medium Pizza Price
Medium Pizza for Small Pizza Price
(Delivery Orders Only)
After 5 pm on Fri.-Sat. Only
(Limited Delivery Area)
277-5880
Offer expires Feb. 8

The Bar Beat Albert's Tavern

Less than a 10-minute drive from campus, Albert's has no cover charge, no flashing disco lights and no hordes of screaming drunks. It's just a good place to go for a low-key evening of food, drink and conversation.

Although Albert's has never been a hot spot for Notre Dame or Saint Mary's students, it traditionally has had a loyal following away from the usual dives and dance clubs. Fridays and Saturdays are the big nights for students, while locals make up most of the crowd during the remainder of the week.

The decor at Albert's is rustic and simple. There are few decorations on the paneled walls, aside from several items of Notre Dame memorabilia, and soft lighting aids to the relaxing atmosphere. There are plenty of tables and booths in the main barroom and in the attached dining room to comfortably accommodate large groups.

Albert's offers a full selection of beer, wine and cocktails, and the prices are fairly inexpensive. Carryouts are available.

The dinner menu is surprisingly diverse. Most of the platters are seafood items, including lobster, catfish and frog legs. The house specialty is Hungarian goulash, although hamburgers and fries are available for the fast-food crowd.

Prices for the platters are in the $17 to $21 range. Most sandwiches cost less than $5.

As far as entertainment goes, Albert's is no Studio 54. Bands do not play there, and there is no dance floor. A pool table, a color television and a jukebox featuring some decent country tunes and the usual pop schlock are the only Albert's offers.

But what Albert's lacks in high-tech excitement, it makes up for in hospitality. The waitresses are quick with a smile, and Albert himself is often behind the bar, offering his opinions on world and national affairs to all who will listen.

Albert's is open Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 a.m. Dinner platters are available until 11 p.m., while sandwiches and other snacks are served until 12:30 a.m.

To get to Albert's, go south on U.S. 31 to Lalonde. Turn right and continue for a block and a half, then bear right onto Lincoln Way West. Albert's is located on the right, at 501 Lincoln Way West. Parking is available in the vacant lot next door.

Rob Lowe plays Dean Youngblood, a 17-year-old farmer's son who has an extraordinary talent for hockey. In an effort to pursue this talent, he tells his father that he wants to leave the farm and try out for the Mustangs, a semi-pro team across the border in Canada.

The Mustangs have one spot open for the rest of the season and need someone to fill it. Dean already has stars in his eyes as he sees himself moving through the ranks and playing pro someday. Kelly, Dean's brother, has already tried to grab this dream but failed. However, he backs Dean all the way, and, after some persuasive words with their father, drives Dean across the border to the risk.

During the trip, Kelly tries to warn Dean that some Canadian players play tough and dirty. However, Dean doesn't pay much attention to his brother's words, thinking he can outskate anyone on the ice. This is where the problems start. Although Dean is an excellent and stylish player, he has never learned how to fight. And playing in this semi-pro league is like playing in a league without rules, as Dean finds out in the first and only tryout.

He comes into some heavy words with a guy named Racki (Ed Lauter) and, albeit illegally,

English Dept. Presents
Marion Brando & Vivian Leigh in
Tennessee Williams' A Streetcar Named Desire
Sunday, Feb. 2
Engineering Auditorium
7 pm & 9:20 pm
$1 donation

gets his head spun around. Dean, however, is chosen over Racki and the others for the one open spot on the team. (There would not be much of a movie if the wasn't chosen, would there?)

Dean then meets Derek Sutton (Patrick Swayze) and the rest of the team in a unique initiation. He also runs into the coach's daughter (Cynthia Gibb) and, you guessed it - they fall for each other. A whole new set of problems arise because the coach (Craig T. Nelson) does not take a liking to players dating his daughter.

The major disappointment in this movie is the love interest. The concept of dating the daughter of the man in charge is quite old and quite predictable. The relationship between her and Dean is never given any true substance, except lust, and really isn't needed.

The rest of the movie, however, is pure entertainment. There is at least 20 solid minutes of excellently-dimed hockey action. Director Peter Markle has done a superb job with regular and slow-motion photography. All the skating scenes were done by the actors themselves which also makes the film seem more realistic. Markle also knows when to take the camera off the ice. He presents the lives of these athletes athletically, capturing their desire to be the best.

And don't worry, ladies. Even if you don't like hockey, you might find this movie interesting because Lowe presents some interesting views of himself. All in all, "Youngblood" is a fast-action, well-photographed movie that is quite entertaining.
Irish face four tough games in only eight days

Marquette
February 1
3 p.m.
ACC

Maryland
February 3
7:30 p.m.
ACC

Dayton
February 5
7:30 p.m.
UD Arena

Syracuse
February 8
4 p.m.
Carrier Dome

Keeping the fun in sports

By MIKE PREVITE
Observer Special Writer

Some people would say the fun has gone out of professional sports. "For former Notre Dame basketball star Bill Hanzlik, the fun is sports.

Hanzlik enjoys what he does as a member of the NBA's Denver Nuggets. In his eyes, basketball in the Denver area, and following one ball remains a game "I Spirit" spot for a local television station's "Share the Spirit" Christmas campaign.

"That's what it's really all about," Hanzlik says. "I like the people I've met here and I think it's a two-fold thing: we help them, but they help us, too, by making us feel good inside."

You might say that family is Hanzlik's number-one hobby. He and wife Maribeth, like him a Notre Dame grad, recently became parents again with the birth of their second daughter. In fact, family life may help Hanzlik make a career decision in the near future.

"Financially, I'd like to play about two more years," he says. "After that, I'd like to assess the whole picture: how much I'm away from my family. I'm with a good, contending team."

Right now Hanzlik is carrying the highest scoring average (12 points per game through 43 games) in his six-year career and he is the most versatile cog in Coach Doug Moe's array of no-names that became last year's Midwest Division champions.

Denver is a tough team, one that easily could pass for a group of railroad men or coal miners. And because of his consistently scrappy style of play, Hanzlik fits in perfectly with the personality of the Nuggets.

Hanzlik did not get his start in the NBA with Denver, however. Seattle made him its top draft choice in 1980, hoping he would be the perfect backcourt mate to the high-scoring Gus Williams. But a weird turn of events in the summer of 1982 made Hanzlik the Nuggets' gain and the SuperSonics' loss.

"The original trade was David Thompson to Seattle for Wally Walker and a number-one pick," Hanzlik recalls. "But when Walker balked at the deal I was one of three players Denver could choose from to complete the trade. The Nuggets picked me, and when I told (then-Seattle) Coach Lenny Wilkins about it as he was coming back from a China vacation, he almost passed out."

"I probably the biggest thing he does for a team, though," Phelps continues, "is the chemistry he adds to get the most out of everyone else. He did it here for us in '84, when we were so successful. He just does so many things on and off the court to help you."

The career move just may have been the best thing that could have happened to Hanzlik. Although he does not have the moves of the Lakers' Magic Johnson or the shooting touch of teammate Alex English, what he does have cannot be measured by simply looking at a stat sheet.

Desire.

Guts.

That never-say-die attitude has allowed the 6-7 Hanzlik to find a niche in the NBA, earning the respect of his teammates and opponents in the process.

"Hanzlik will always have a place in the NBA," says Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps. "He can guard a guard, or he can move up and guard a forward. He has a great sense of floor balance, and he handles the ball well for a guy his size.

"A lot of what he's done in the NBA has been on hustle, and lately on confidence as he's realized what he can do.

On defense, Hanzlik often is asked to guard the other team's scoring forward, be it Mark Aguirre, Adrian Dantley or (gasp) Ralph Sampson, all 7-4 of him. These are players who expect to score their 30 points every game.

But the former Irish co-captain refuses to concede. He is like the goat who won't leave your
Are Dame

Sponsors: DEPT., ND ALUMNI ASSOCIATION, CORNER CLUB AND THE OBSERVER

End's sporting events:

Track (12:30 pm)
Basketball (1:00 pm)
Basketball (7:30 pm)
Irish have tough month in store

Chuck Freeby
Irish items

Hello again everybody!

We have made it through January. We have seen winter rear its ugly head. We have seen Herb rear his ugly head. We have seen a chair honest month, and it is making it through February won't be any easier, though.

We have survived all this to make it to February - no small accomplishment in itself.

February usually is nothing to arouse any excitement. It is the shortest month, and it is also the most boring month. January had all the major college bowls, the pro football playoffs, the Super Bowl and several matchups between top-ten basketball teams. Highlights of February are the Pro Bowl, World Cup Bobsleding, the U.S. Open tennis championship and the Kentucky Derby. This February is different, however, at least as far as the Notre Dame basketball team is concerned. February is a critical month for Digger Phelps and company. Gone are the days of St. Joseph's and Valpo. Wax goodbye to Butler and Hofstra. The past two months have virtually gone, and all that is left is a powerful schedule, which may serve as an indicator of how far this team can go in the NCAA tournament in March.

Read the list of teams that start the month, and it looks like the beginning of the NCAA field of 64. Fine comes Marquette, followed by Maryland, Dayton or Syracuse. Duke appears on the 16th, followed by DePaul on the 25th. The appearance of Fordham, Manhattan and Miami are merely respites between the wars.

And wars they shall be. Forget about the finesse of a Carolina or "Bambi." February 1986 is going to be a month in store for the Irish.

The physical play will add a little extra to the test ahead of the Irish, who play four major opponents in eight days. That's tough on any college team, but it is especially tough on the Irish schedule is going to have nothing but pushing and shoving underneath the basket. If Carolina thought Sunday's game was physical, wait until they watch tomorrow's game with Marquette. It will make "Rocky IV" look like "Bambi."

Of course, it puts a tremendous burden on the players. First of all, they must make up a lot of time. Second is the fact that each game is an opportunity to make things fun. And last but not least, DePaul on the 25th. The appearance of Fordham, Manhattan and Miami are merely respites between the wars.

Of course, it puts a tremendous burden on the players. First, they must regroup physically after each contest, which asks you to play two of the all top teams in the country in the span of 48 hours. This kind of scheduling may sound hallucinogenic, but it could pay off come tournament time.

While much of Notre Dame's success will rest with the players, some emphasis should be given to the coaching staff as well. Digger knows what it takes to prepare a team for such a schedule, thanks to his experience of 13 post-season tournaments. Still, preparing strategy for four or five games in eight days will put a lot of pressure on Phelps and his staff. The first floor of the ACC may not be the most pleasant place to be this week, especially if your name is Jim Baron, Gary Brokaw or Matt Kilcullen, Digger's assistant coaches.

These are the things Notre Dame must do, though, if it is truly bent on making "Destination Dallas." It will be a lot better for the team to go through this grueling experience now and maybe lose a couple of games than to have it happen in March, when losing is an unforgivable sin.

Four games in eight days make for the beginnings of a "Frightening February." On the other hand, it could set the groundwork for a "Marvelous March."

Pick of the Week. You may see all the sports you want to see in February this weekend at the ACC, as Notre Dame has lined up a veritable sports festival.

Get out the short sleeves and tank tops today for an afternoon at the pool, as the men and women's swim teams dive into action against Oral Roberts and St. Bonaventure at the beautiful Rolfs Aquatic Center at 4.

While you can't spend the night, you'll want to come out early Saturday morning to get a seat for the Midwestern Collegiate Conference track meet on the revamped track of the ACC fieldhouse. Notre Dame's spirit to its fourth consecutive league title begins at noon.

The weekend ends with Notre Dame's only home fencing match of the year, as the Irish host five teams, including defending national champion Wayne State. Be on guard when the sabers begin to rattle at 9 a.m. in the fieldhouse.

Admission for all events is free.

Hanzlik in his days as Irish co-captain

Newest Irish assistant

BY ERIC SCHEUERMANN
Assistant sports editor

When former assistant basketball coach Pete Gillen left Notre Dame to become the head coach at Xavier University last August, Irish head coach Digger Phelps knew just what he wanted to round out his three-person staff of assistants.

"Matt Kilcullen was the first choice for the third assistant job," says Phelps. "He's been helping to come up at summer camps here at Notre Dame this summer, and I know he'd do a good job."

Kilcullen left his assistant coaching position at Siena College to join the Irish coaching staff, as an opportunity he says he jumped at.

"I still remember the morning I got the job," says Kilcullen. "I had been promoted, as they say, to associate head coach at Siena early in the summer, and early in August I was offered the assistant coach's job at Rutgers. But this was an opportunity I couldn't pass up. I've wanted to come to Notre Dame for a long time."

Although only 31 years of age, Kilcullen came to Notre Dame with a very impressive list of basketball credentials. A native of the Bronx, N.Y., Kilcullen played his college basketball at Herbert H. Lehman College in the Bronx, graduating in 1976 with an undergraduate degree in physical education.

While there, his team won two city university championships, and Kilcullen captained the team as an senior and earned the team MVP award.

Within three years, he was named assistant coach at Delaware Valley College in Doylestown, Pa., and after one year there he became head coach at Castlerock State College in Castlerock, Va., a Division III school.

Given the responsibility of revitalizing a program that had won only 23 games in the six previous years, Kilcullen was able to lead his team to a cumulative 28-47 record in his three seasons as assistant. His final NCAA appearance was the school record for wins in his '84-'85 season while finishing third in the league and fifth in the ACC.

From there, Kilcullen journeyed to Siena in Loudonville, N.Y., where the Indians finished 49-36 in his three seasons as assistant. And, in August, the offer he hoped would come along finally did.

"For the past 10 straight summers, I've been coming here to work at camps," says Kilcullen. "And I saw, like most people do when they come out here, that it is a special place. There are a lot of people all over the world that would like to come to Notre Dame to go to school here or to work here."

"It's something I've always wanted to do, and I'd let Coach Phelps know that I would love to be considered for a spot here if anything ever opened up."

Hanzlik continued from Extra page 1

front porch on a summer night - always tenacious, always intense. Opposing teams are rarely able to find a kind word for him.

One word might best describe Hanzlik's style of play: unsellable.

"If I like to make things happen for the team," Hanzlik says. "A turnstile, a steal, whatever it takes. It's an ND philosophy, I guess."

"Team things make it more fun. Maybe one can be happy if you score a point, but if the team doesn't do well, it's drudgery." Even with all the success he's enjoyed, Hanzlik still holds a special fondness for his alma mater and keeps in touch with former Notre Dame teammates John Paxson, Bill Laimbeer, Kelly Tripucka and Orlando Woolridge (all in the NBA) through ND grad Ed O'Rourke, a retired Chicago lawyer. "He's the guy who ties this whole thing together and tells me how each other is doing," Hanzlik says of O'Rourke.

In a league where prima donnas and drug rehabilitation cases are often publicized, Hanzlik stands as a refreshing breeze of someone who is down to earth.

"When you go through all the material things in life, you find that only two things matter - your family and your health," Hanzlik says.

Believable?

You bet.

(Mike Prisctic is a 1980 MBA grad, who wrote sports for The Observer in 1979 and '80.)

Matt Kilcullen

Kilcullen fills the part-time position of Phelps' staff (the NCAA only allows two full-time assistants), with the major distinction being that he is not allowed to go on the road to recruit.

I've been involved in the academics a lot," says Kilcullen, "like making sonality and the ability to become an excellent head coach." He says Phelps. "We are very fortunate to have him here as an assistant. He'll be an asset to any program during his time here."

"I made the decisions when I was a head coach at Castlerock State," says Kilcullen, "but here [at Notre Dame] I make suggestions. Sometimes they go through and sometimes they don't. That's part of being an assistant. But I'm given a lot of responsibility here in different areas, and having been a head coach certainly helps out here."

"The scope of this job is much wider than that of any I've held before, with the huge crowds and national television. It's a little different, one that involves more responsibilities."

"Matt has the knowledge, the personality and the ability to become an excellent head coach," says Phelps. "He's the guy who ties this whole thing together and tells me how each other is doing."