Senate to see constitution final draft next week

By CHRIS BEDNARSKI
Senior Staff Reporter

A proposal for a new student government constitution is almost complete according to Brian Holt, Committee on Restructuring Chair, at the Student Senate meeting last night.

Holt said most of the work on the proposal is finished and a new constitution will be presented for discussion at the senate next week. "All the major work is accomplished," he said.

Holt told the senate that under the new constitution, the selection of the new Student Activities Board manager each year would be done through a nomination by the steering committee of the Student Activities Board. That committee would be composed of students, faculty, and 2 senators. The nominated candidate would then have to be approved by the senate and student body president.

Currently, the SAB manager is selected by the outgoing SAB steering committee and SAB controller with approval needed from the controller.

Holt explained the plan, saying the job of SAB manager is a unique job. "The people on the steering committee know best who should be on the SAB," he said.see SENATE, page 5

East-West prisoner exchange to have ended this morning

BERLIN - Soviet officials have agreed to release dissident Anatoly Shcharansky moments before three West Germans in the expected East-West prisoner exchange because the United States insisted he not be treated like an undercover agent, a newspaper said yesterday.

A U.S. official, meanwhile, confirmed a news briefing that Shcharansky would be part of the swap, expected to take place today on the Glienicke Bridge between West Berlin and Communist East Germany.

"He will be on the bridge. The exchange will be made and the cars will drive out," the official said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

He indicated Shcharansky would leave Berlin immediately from the U.S. military's Tempelhof airport and head for Israel.

A U.S. diplomatic source in Berlin, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press, "It will happen on the bridge before noon."

The Hamburg newspaper Bild said in an article written for today's edition, "An agreement has been reached to let Shcharansky will clearly be freed before the other prisoners."

The newspaper released the report in advance to other news media. It did not identify its sources, but the newspaper has had other exclusive reports from the Soviet Union that have turned out to be accurate. The Bild said the swap will begin at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EST) today.

"U.S. and Russian military vehicles will drive to the middle of the bridge from both sides - then the passengers will be handed over," Bild said. "The East bloc will let Soviet activist Shcharansky free first."

"The exchange was in real danger once again in the last few days. The Soviets insisted that Shcharansky would be swapped as an agent, like the others," Bild said. The Associated Press quoted an unidentified West German diplomatic source in Berlin, saying Shcharansky is a human rights activist, according to Bild. Shcharansky was convicted in 1978 on a charge of spying for the CIA and was sentenced to 15 years in prison and labor camp. The United States denies he was an agent.

Shcharansky, a mathematician and computer scientist, said his only crime was seeking to emigrate from the Soviet Union to Israel.

Landers: world filled with turmoil

By CHRIS SKORCZ

"The world today is ambivalent and conflicting," said syndicated columnist Am Landers, before a predominantly female audience at Notre Dame's Washington Hall last night.

Landers, whose column appears in over 1,000 newspapers worldwide and is read by 85 million people daily, was at Notre Dame to speak on what it means to be a columnist in a world she believes is increasingly wrought with social and personal turmoil, especially in this country, the moral fiber of which Landers maintains has weakened since World War II.

"Alcoholism has reached epidemic proportions. There is cocaine on college campuses and teenage suicide has become the second leading cause of death for children between the ages of 16 and 23. Does this mean that there is more stress out there? You bet!" Landers said.

"We rant and rave about pollution yet we allow television to dump garbage into our living rooms. The security director at the airport asks you about cuticle scissors yet they give you a steak knife on the plane. The poor want to be rich, the rich want to be happy."

Landers said she feels that America has contracted "spiritual leukemia," which she explained as a softening of our collective moral spinal columns. The primary cause of this particularly American malady is a pervasive attitude in which "people know the price of everything but the value of nothing," in a "money-oriented culture for which we are paying dearly."

"Responding to charges that she is merely an opinionated, outspooken lady, Landers defended herself by asserting that she taps "the best brains in the country for my column."

SMC candidates reveal platforms

By MARYLyn BENCHIK

The role of listening, understanding, and responding is not a passive one for student government officials, according to Jeanne Heller, unopposed candidate for student body president, last night at the Saint Mary's "Meet the Candidates Night."

"We have been issuing more stories this year to help us assess what the student body feels needs to be changed," Heller said. "Grape Night also helped us to receive a good student reaction," she added.

Heller and the candidates for vice presidents for academic affairs, Barry Burke, and vice president for student affairs, Sarah Cook, answered questions from a panel of Observer editors and reporters in anticipation of tomorrow's voting. Voting tomorrow will also include class elections.

Commenting on next year's plans, Heller said, "that of our long range goals for next year is to intensively evaluate the academic programs. It seems that not only of the different minor programs have the same requirements. It takes more (credit hours) to get some minors than it does others," Heller said.

Heller also said she would like to work on the student body's awareness level concerning what government does, such as reaching students through "Gripe Night.

Heller said that, in the future, she would like to get more people involved in the elections. This is the second year that the presidential student body ticket has run unopposed.

"We want students to be more involved in the student government meetings. We are going to try to make the meetings more inviting for people to come to," added Cook.

"I don't think that we have a tremendous apathy problem here," said Cook. "People want to get involved, but they don't always have the time. More students come during the year, and we create positions for them as they come."

According to Heller, relations that the Student Senate has with administration have been good, with the new College president being particularly friendly. Heller and the candidates are not sure what kind of president it is. "We are all very curious about who it will be and what kind of president it is," Heller said.

According to Heller, another safety concern involves raising student awareness of safety measures and the facilities available to them.

Cook added that another long term goal is to provide more student

Western specialists on the Soviet Union have said Moscow hopes by releasing Shcharansky along with imprisoned spies to convey to the world its position that he is a spy, Bild quoted an unidentified West German official as saying. "Whether the Soviets stick to the plan (to free Shcharansky) first, only God knows."

U.S. sources, speaking on the condition they not be identified, have confirmed the West will trade five people.

Racism, Reagan views targeted by Gregory

We live in a racist society and it's the fault of both blacks and whites, said author Cornel West and camping rights activist Dick Gregory, speaking in front of a crowded Memorial Library auditorium last night.

"We've got a racist...vicious system," said the bespectacled author. "Some of you get recruited to come here and then you don't have a chance."

"Do you have any integrity at all?" Gregory asked the black athletes, telling them to "come on down here and tell us the truth."

Saint Mary's breaks barriers in sexuality education efforts

Theresa A. Guarino
Saint Mary's Executive Editor

Saint Mary's is behind the times in attitude and practice in many areas, they are correct. But the College is to be congratulated for its progressive attitude concerning sexuality. Unlike Notre Dame, the College has no sexuality code attempting to stifle students' sexual behavior. Education, not regulation, seems to be the word to describe Saint Mary's attitude. And that is a welcome breath of fresh air for either campus.

The Noon Book Review sponsored by Saint Mary's Center for Spirituality continues tomorrow with a discussion by Gail Mandell, professor of humanistic studies. Mandell will review Muriel Spark's "Memento Morti," a book examining society's attitudes towards illness and death in the aged. The discussion will be from 12:15 to 1 p.m. in LeMans Hall's Stapleton Lounge. The public is invited to attend. The Observer

Reagan calls for Philippine unity amidst election turmoil

By PEGGY PROSSER
Staff Reporter

President Reagan, preparing to depart for an extensive tour of Southeast Asia, yesterday called on both sides of the Philippines' presidential election to stop the violence and begin a dialogue aimed at unifying the country.

"The center for spirituality already has made a mark nationally," said a senior administration official, speaking privately. "It seems very logical at this point that Marcos is going to win. In my opinion, Marcos is going to get the majority.

"The official said the United States' main thrust of our policy is to pressure him out of the government, to pressure him out of office.

Reagan, asked about election irregularities, said the United States is "of the center, that it is for all women in the Catholic church, and its kind, she said.

Egan spoke last night at the joint meeting of the Student Center's advisory board and the new Center for Women's Concerns. Egan cited the                  mer's has long been a place buying, attempts at intimidation, burning, attacks on police stations, and the death of thousands of quas­ified voters in areas thought to be sympathetic to challenger Corazon Aquino in her race against President Ferdinand Marcos.

One member of the delegation, Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., told reporters that the delegation had received the following return from the Philippines, "I think there were very serious problems in this election and everyone is aware of that."

The delegation's co-chairmen, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., and Rep. James Marta, D-Pa., refused to discuss their findings immediately, telling reporters at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington that they would report on their findings when they meet with Reagan.

A senior administration official, laying out U.S. policy, said that the election "is not to have violence, but to have demonstrations and violence."

Reagan thanked President Marcos for stepping up its pressure on Libya once again, and called on world leaders to continue to support the United States in its efforts to pressure the Libyan government.

The notice specifies that removal of a drug from U.S. sale is covered under the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, which states that a drug may not be marketed in interstate commerce if there is reasonable evidence that the drug is unsafe for human use.

The United States, stepping up its pressure on Libya once again, has ordered two aircraft carriers back toward the Libyan coast for air and sea maneuvers, the Pentagon said yesterday.

The decision was disclosed three days after the Senate Subcommittee of Intelligence to conduct flight operations within an area that is overseen by air traffic controllers at Libyan capital of Tripoli.

The notice specifies that operations will be conducted by the Coral Seas and semicircle within the Tripoli flight information region from 7 p.m. EST today to 7 p.m. EST Friday.

The statement noted that, "The Libyans continued exercises off Libya's coast on the first day they have done so this year. These exercises are a manifestation of Libya's continuing efforts to maintain a viable, strong defense force.

"The United Nations, in consultation with the Libyan government, has approved the use of this area for air and sea maneuvers, the statement said.

"The last such exercise was conducted from Jan. 21-25. Unlike that exercise, the new American maneuvers will occur at the same time that Libyan sea and air forces are conducting an exercise of their own in the area. The two countries also will be operating off Libya's coast at a time when we intend to conduct maneuvers in the Mediterranean.

"The United States has no objection to the use of this area by the Libyan force, the statement said.

The official said the United States' main thrust of its policy is to pressure him out of office, to pressure him out of office.

"In my opinion, Marcos is going to get the majority," the official said.

"It seems very logical at this point that Marcos is going to win. In my opinion, Marcos is going to get the majority," the official said.

"The official said the United States' main thrust of its policy is to pressure him out of office, to pressure him out of office.

Chinese ‘Year of the Tiger’ roars in

By BUD LUEPKE

WASHINGTON - Nasa investigators believe Challenger's right booster rocket may have pivoted into the huge space shuttle fuel tank, crushing it and setting off the fireball that destroyed the ship and killed its crew.

A space agency source, who declined to be identified, said such a scenario - first outlined yesterday in the industry magazine Aviation Week and Space Technology - is one also called the Spring Festival, begins on the first day of the lunar month which was Feb. 9. Min said planning for the holiday, which includes a huge feast, new clothes and fire works, begins a month ahead of time. Housewives line up in the department stores to buy the food, clothing, and gifts that they will need for the festival, she said. “People like to save money the whole year, but at this time of the year, you never save money,” Min said.

On New Year’s Eve, the family gathers together for a large meal and the chopping of dumplings. The chopping is supposed to keep away devils and can be heard throughout the apartment complex, Min said. Usually in bed by 11 p.m., the family on this night remains awake until early morning.

Min said New Years Day is spent visiting neighbors and sharing tea, cigarettes and snacks. Min described the day as “a time to forgive people.”

Min said this year is the Year of the Tiger. Those who are born in this year, which occurs every 12 years, are said to possess might, power, and vitality.

The talk was sponsored by the Foreign Study Program of Notre Dame.

Burke expressed plans to expand the role of the Academic Council. “Our job is to discuss academic issues that are important to the student body as a whole. Next year we plan to be more active,” commented Burke.

Heller added that she plans to encourage the good relations between Notre Dame’s and Saint Mary’s student governments. “Our liaison have been good this year,” she said. The liaison council meets about twice each semester, she said.

“I am very content with the way things are running within the structure. Having two vice presidents distributes the work, and it helps everyone work well with each other,” said Heller.

Junior Class President Jim Domagalski said he didn’t agree with the committee’s plan. “I don’t think it’s entirely accurate to say the SAB knows best,” said Domagalski.

Domagalski said he didn’t think the plan is representative enough. “There’s really no representative way this is chosen,” he said.

He suggested that the student body president select a candidate and then have the SAB steering committee approve the president’s choice. “Let the senators on the committee have veto power over the president’s choice,” he said. He said that giving the senators veto power over the president’s choice is how the United States government works.

Domagalski said the student body president should be responsible for the SAB manager. “The student body president should be ultimately responsible for the man at the top. There should be some form of accountability,” he said.

In an attempt by the senate to amend certain student government election rules, a plan to allow blank votes to be cast was defeated. A blank vote means that a student submits his or her ballot without making a choice.

Domagalski said he didn’t think blank votes should be allowed. “Casting a blank vote is not a common practice in an election for an office,” he said.

PALERMO, Sicily - The largest Mafia trial in Italian history opened yesterday with a steel cage and police escorts for the judges and 189 defendants accused against the 474 accused mobsters.

The government hopes the trial, which will charge that drug smuggling and multiple murder, will mark the turning point in its long fight against the mob.

Authorities said 115 of the defendants were at large, including most of the top-ranking bosses indicted after an 18-month investigation by five of Italy's top investigating magistrates.

The courtroom was built for the trial at a cost of $17 million. The defendants are held in 30 steel-barred cages guarded by armed police officers. Approximately 100 defendants were present for the trial's opening.

A report of the Corleone faction, Luciano Liggio, sat alone in Cage 86 and was the only defendant to make any move to show up for his hearing yesterday.

"Thank God the NCAA put that rule in a while ago," Mr. Landers said.

The new regulation "will help blacks break out of the prison system for the eighth time in her career, had some good news about college students in general."

"I have some good news about campuses today. Students are looking better. Students are thinking better. And students are selling better," she said.

Landers concluded her lecture by offering a bit of advice to all in attendance.

"If I could give just one bit of advice to everyone in the world, I could do it in just two words: be kind. All the world is indeed a stage and we must do our part to make it a better one."

CDs revolutionize the sound of music

P.A. CININO  Features writer

Over the last year, the compact disk has been steadily establishing itself as the newest and best format for music in America. The world encounters the incomparable sound quality attainable with CD, more and more people are turning money into compact disk players with the belief that they are investing in the future of the music industry. It is thought that the compact disk player is becoming a necessity in the home, and can be a complement to records and uster in a new and profitable age for the sunshine record companies. In any case, the CD has arrived.

The compact disk player is an interactive keyboard to all music. A laser pickup (instead of a needle) is used to "read" microscopic indentations on the surface of the compact disk. These tiny "pits" are etched into the disk, and can be read by a laser to decode information. The laser can read anywhere on the wondrous of modern electronics, turn into music. Make that great sounding music.

It is interesting to note that these "pits" are also versatile. This method of storing information is also used in the less-acknowledged videodisk. In the case of the videodisk, however, there are two simultaneously laser-read tracks (audio and visual) whereas the compact disk has only one. The real reason that more compact disk players have been showing up (including a proud group of ND students) is that the price has dropped drastically recently. Since 1984 the average cost of a CD player has been literally halved. In more material terms, this is a cut of close to $250. With price reductions of this type it is no wonder the market is packing up.

At this moment in time, a list of quality players reads like a Japanese phonograph. Mitsubishi, Sony, Technics (a division of Matsushita) all have their names in the market. American companies also have their own. RCA has been working with laser pickup machines RCA has been working with laserdisk machines. However, in this market as in the automobile industry, American companies cannot compete with the quality and affordability of Japanese machines.

Three of the models found in a short search of the campus included two models by Technics and one by Pioneer. All three of these models contains the usual array of "state of the art" functions available on quality CD players. The machines are made with the ability to access any imperfect coding found in the disk. This feature is an immediate eye-opener and can lead to further analysis. They can be programmed to play any sequence of songs (this includes the ability to play one song many times in succession), skip tracks, or forward parts of songs and can scan to desired positions anywhere on the disk. The Technics models are also equipped with counter-timers which can be used to show the time a song has been playing.

Perhaps the best feature is the impeccable sound quality attainable with compact disk and laser pickup.

"The disks are much better than records," commented Tim Signward, owner of a brand-new Technics SL-P104. "With care, CDs will last much longer and will retain clear sound quality."

Larry Fey, who owns a Pioneer PD5010 had much the same response. "There is no noise of any kind," he said. "The background is perfectly dead silence and the sound quality remains constant with age." There is no hiss at all in the background and the disks are never subject to any distortion of stereo sound or material terms, this is a cut of close to $250. With price reductions of this type it is no wonder the market is packing up.

In fact, the quality of stereo discordance is fantastic. CD does a much better job of stereo than records," said Mike Tatigian who owns a Technics SL-P104. "The different sounds are always sharp and clear."

The disks are made of a metallic substance (instead of the "pits" are indented) with a plastic coating around the outer edge. There is a hole in the middle which is also coated with plastic. The disks come in attractive and protective cases with instructions for storage and care included. The CD is a great new medium for the sale of musical recordings. The biggest drawback is the price. At an average of around $15 a disk, customers are unwilling to look for the future. With the arrival of more older music on disk, even discriminating buyers may find what they love on CD. Ultimately, however, if the compact disk is to revolutionize the music industry, the price must be reduced.

STEFANIE SIEGEL  Features writer

The new exhibit in the print room of the Snite Museum, Artists and Models: Portraits from the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES) I will remain on view at Notre Dame until March 9. Most of the works selected for this exhibit by Frank Gotting, curator of prints and drawings at the Smithsonian, have been specifically chosen to portray the artist's own feelings about friends, favorite models, personalities--and in self-portraits, the artist himself. Several of the portraits give psychological insight into the character of the artist or the unique relationship between the artist and the model. If the artist isn't particularly well-known, the writer on this model's significance in the life of the artist, which is conveniently placed next to each portrait is helpful in experiencing the show.

Some of the portraits, like Alfred Stieglitz's portrait of his painter friend Oscar Bluemner (1915) and Alice Neel's watercolor of her bohemian Greenwich Village companion Kenneth Doolittle (1931) demonstrate the emotional interplay between the artist and model and as well as giving a unique view of the model's personality. Others, such as Louis Eilshemius' portrait in chalk on paper of Robert Lindner, a fellow artist, is indicative of the artists temperament rather than the acquaintance. In this case there was a competition as to who could complete the others portrait in less time, and Eilshemius, whose inability to sustain friendships stemmed from this intense desire to be the best, won, and lost another friend. Portraits like these, that express such strong stories of the faults inherent in human nature, can be a moving experience.

Not all of the portraits are concerned with such intense feelings. For instance, Thomas Hart Benton's "The Artist at his easel" (1921) a semi-cubist watercolor, virtually obliterates any expression of interplay between artist and subject and even downplays his own involvement in favor of presenting the generalized theme and playing with form and color. The caricatures, especially those of such well-known figures as Jackson Pollock are rather enjoyable viewing without losing their expressiveness, inherent in the exaggerated features and incongruous settings.

Overall the exhibit is sometimes intensely emotional with various and sundry comic aspects in- termixed, but definitely worthwhile.

stalking the neighborhood and shooting people who are "evicting" their friends and neighbors?
How would you feel if you could not go see a movie only at a particular movie theater or if you weren't allowed to go to your favorite bar or drink at your favorite restaurant anymore? I don't know about you, but I would feel very, very strongly about this... a lot more so than about the continuation of these investments.

Unfortunately for us, the United States is supporting South Africa, a country where events like this and many even worse are occurring. Several hundred black families are currently being separated by the government; children are being educated in school yards and on the streets. These people live with their children in danger all the time not because they have committed some crime, but because their children actually support the government.

The black leaders in South Africa have been unsuccessful in divorcing the blacks. I don't know how you would feel if you were to go into your house or apartment to find innocent people being killed, tortured and disc riminated against.

The subject which I am discussing is a very controversial one in the United States as well as here at Notre Dame. The black leaders of South Africa have pleaded with President Ronald Reagan to divest from South Africa in order to stop supporting the white South Africans who are treating the blacks so disparagingly. One of our arguments against divesting is that the blacks will simply suffer more if we pull out of the country. The black leaders realize that for a short time this could be possible, but they also remind us that they have suffered for the past 300 years and are willing to suffer if it may bring about t rad ical changes.

I know there are other arguments against divesting from the white South African world, and they are all aid to protect the interests of the blacks, but I believe we refuse to pull out of South Africa because South Africa will "suffer." Of course our definition of "suffering" is much different from the black South African's definition of the word. We have our selfish reasons for staying there, but those reasons don't add up to much. People claim we don't have the right to intervene in the policies of South Africa, but do we have the right to sit back and watch innocent people be killed when there is something we can do about it? I don't believe so. I do believe that one day the black South Africans will rise and at least obtain equality, but this may take many more years and generations than necessary and will probably become increasingly more difficult as the years pass.

Now you ask, what can I do? I have no influence over Reagan nor over the white leaders in South Africa. Coming up in March (I believe the day will be the 4th) you as a Notre Dame or Saint Mary's student can do something. There will be a referendum concerning the black South Africans' definition of freedom.
You will be able to express your opinion about the continuation of these investments. The Board of Trustees will take into account the students' ideas about our South African investments. You may say that this will not affect you very much in the United States, but we are all part of one world in which the actions of one country can have influence on the rest of the world, which can have influence on the rest of the region in which we live, which can have influence on the rest of the world, which can have influence on the rest of the world which we are living in.

"And when this happens, when we allow freedom to ring - when we let it ring from every village and every hamlet, from every state and every city, we will speed up that day when all God's children, black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics, will be able to join hands and sing the words of the old Negro spiritual, 'Free at last, free at last, Thank God Almighty, we're free at last.' "

to continue their favorite style of play this season - pounding it inside to get the points or the foul. The Irish rank behind only Michigan and Syracuse in terms of rebounding, in rebounds. They should be able to keep this statistic up against the smaller Rams.

One thing the Irish must guard against is a letdown. Feelings ran high after Saturday's win, but the Irish must keep their mind on the game at hand. This may be harder than it seems with Duke lying in wait on Sunday.

IREISH ITEMS - Through Saturday's game, David Rivers continues to lead the team in rebounds averaging 1.6 a 1/2 average. Ken Barlow maintained his .903 free throw percentage with a 60-77 performance at byram. Barlow also leads the team in rebounding with a 5.2 average.

Strategy plays a part in East's All-Star win

Associated Press

DALLAS - Strategy usually plays a small part of All-Star games in any sport. Coaches tend to let the players display their talent the best way they can.

But Sunday's NBA All-Star clash at Dallas proved to be an exception as East Conference Coach Karl Malone found a winning combination with one center, three forwards and dessert guard Lou Thomas.

With center Malone Malone of Philadelphia, forwards Larry Bird and Kevin McHale, forward Buck Williams of New Jersey and Thomas on the floor together with less than four minutes left, the East triumphed.

"We tried to get a mismatch wherever we could," Jones said. "We let them blend inside and find the open man. When we were down with three minutes to go, I thought it was over. But we got great efforts from Malone and Buck, and I liked the effort by Mr. Thomas, too."

The one-guard East outscored West 16-4 in the stretch to win the 36th NBA all-star game 159-142.

Thomas, who won his second All-Star Most Valuable Player award, had 10 assists and scored 12 of his 33 points in the fourth quarter, including four free throws during an 8-0 spurt that put the East in front to stay.

In addition to Thomas, the other four East players on the floor at the end were the team's biggest contributors.

Malone scored seven of his 16 points in the final period and added 13 rebounds. Bird had 23 points and seven steals, Williams 13 points and seven rebounds and McHale eight points and 10 rebounds.

"It's a big win," said Malone. "I was a little surprised to be used as much as I was," said Williams, who played 20 minutes. "I was especially surprised to be there late in the game."

The close game was a fitting climax to a momentous weekend that saw 5-7 Spud Webb of the Atlanta Hawks, the smallest player in the NBA, win Saturday's slam-dunk championship with three perfect scores in the final round. That came after Bird won the first round with an breathtakingly difficult shot from the free-throw line.

"This was one of the all-star games ever," said West guard Ervinn "Magic" Johnson. "The Los Angeles Lakers, who dazzled a sellout crowd of 23,095 with 18 assists, many of them on blind passes.

Becker and Graf win in Lipton International

Associated Press

BOCA RATON, Fla. - West German Boris Becker and Steffi Graf weren't sharp last night, but they were good enough to win their opening-round matches in the $8 million dollar Lipton International Players Championships tennis tournament.

Becker, the 18-year-old reigning Wimbledon champion and seeded fourth in this Grand Slam-sized tourney, won a hard-fought battle with Tom Nijssen of the Netherlands 6-3, 7-6.

"Obviously, I've dropped a lot of games since last year," Becker said. "I wish I could be in the finals every week, but lately I haven't been playing very well."

Davis argued with the umpire over several call errors, but he refused to take anything away from Poppy's victory.

"He played very well," said Davis, who was seeded 16th here. "He doesn't have a big game, but he makes you play every point."

The full afternoon of tennis on 11 courts at Boca West featured only a few mild upsets, but the fans were thrilled that one of them was by the tournament's pro, Tim Gullikson.

Gullikson edged defeat twice, once by winless Hein Gnuhntardt of West Germany 7-6, 7-6.

Downhower keeps his eye on three Big-10 quarterbacks

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS - Indianapolis Colts coach Bob Downhower says he has his eye on three Big Ten Conference quarterbacks for the April 29 draft.

The three are Jim Everett of Purdue, Chuck Long of Iowa and Jack Trudeau of Illinois, Downhower said yesterday.

The coach said he may not use the Colts' first-round choice, which is No. 6 overall, on any of the three, but added that he will give serious consideration to each of them prior to the draft.

"Both Everett and Long are tall, have good arms, are accurate and mobile," Downhower said. "They've put in good years in their last season, are bright and have a lot of ability."

Trudeau, who is recovering from knee surgery after being injured in a postseason game, had trouble at first but finished strong last season.

"At the moment, I don't see his knee creating any problems," Downhower said.

The coach said three or four veteran quarterbacks were also being considered before the draft, including Dallas' Gary Hogeboom. But, Downhower added, "I don't know if bringing in a veteran quarterback is the ultimate answer."

Volleyball Club faces three rivals at home this week

Deep in the confines of the ACC there exists a dark secret which only a few have witnessed. Those who have seen the awesome spectacles of sets, smashes and kills. They have watched tall, powerful warriors destroy the likes of Wolverines and Razorbacks.

Now everyone can discover this dark secret as the men's Volleyball Club will attempt to destroy three foes in the ACC pit this week. Tomorrow night the Irish will face Calhoun College at 7:30, followed by Purdue Friday at 7:30, and Wisconsin Saturday at 1 p.m.

Notre Dame has the distinction of being the only volleyball club in the NCAA competing as a varsity team. This has helped the team schedule meets against some of the strongest teams in the nation.

For example, the Irish traveled to Columbus, Ohio this past weekend to participate in the Ohio State Tournament. The team played very well, making it to the semifinals, along with three teams ranked in the top 10 in the country.

In the first match on Saturday, Notre Dame faced the University of Arkansas. After dropping two of the first three games, the Irish rallied to win, 15-12, 15-7, 15-11, 15-7.

"Overall we played pretty well, but our passing broke down and we made way too many service errors," said Head Coach Bill Anderson. "We have a habit of dropping down to our opponents level, but we eventually snap out of it.

Mark Trautman gave his usual fine performance as he registered 29 kills in 72 attempts. Jeff Westrich and Mike O'Grady also played well for Notre Dame.

The team was immediately pressed into action after the Arkansas match as it met East Stroudsburg State (Pa.) Ranked 1-4th in the nation, East Stroudsburg rolled over a weary Irish squad, 15-4, 15-8, 15-9.

CHICAGO: The Chicago Bulls won't know until later this week exactly when ailing Michael Jordan will return to the lineup after a 1 1/2-month layoff, a Bulls spokesman said yesterday.

Jordan, who broke a bone in his left foot in Chicago's third game of the season, was seeing a doctor in Eugene, Ore., yesterday and would be consulting with another specialist today in Cleveland before reporting back to the Bulls' physician, Dr. John Hefferson, said Tann Hallen, a spokesman for the National Basketball Association club.

"Then we'll compare notes and make a decision," said Hallen.

Jordan had said he was hopeful he could play Friday against the Indiana Pacers or Sunday when the Dallas Mavericks play in Chicago.

But Bulls General Manager Jerry Krause said all three doctors would have to say Jordan's foot is ready.

"If one of those doctors says it's not ready, then he won't play," Krause said in Dallas.

Jordan, the NBA's Rookie of the Year last season, said reporters he was certain the Bulls would make the playoffs if he comes back healthy and plays at the same intensity.

"I know what I can do," he said. "I won't let this team miss the playoffs."

The Bulls, sorely missing Jordan's many talents, are suffering with a 17-34 record, but trail the Cleveland Cavaliers by only two games in the race for the NBA East's final playoff berth.

Chicago has 31 games remaining, including tomorrow night's "Niners game at Philadelphia.

Jordan said he felt as good as practice last week that his left calf was getting stronger.

"Everything felt normal at practice," he said.

Again in the second game the Irish ran up a lead only to drop the game 15-11. Finally Ohio State took control of the final game, winning 15-7.

"It's the best I've seen our team play," said Anderson. "We played together and to our potential. It was a tribute to the players that the Ohio State coach kept his top players in the entire match.

On Saturday the Gymnastics Club's women's team traveled to Valparaiso, Ind., for a dual meet against the Crusaders. The Irish performed well, but came up short against a strong Valparaiso varsity unit.

Cheryl Leslow finished fourth in the all-around for Notre Dame, she took third in both the vault and the beam, and she placed fifth in the floor exercise. Michelle Brossard was the next gymnast to place for the Irish, taking sixth overall. She finished fourth in the uneven bars and sixth in both the beam and the vault.

The Ski Team wrapped up its regular season schedule with a meet at Caberfae this past weekend. John O'Donovan skied well for the men, finishing second in the slalom and third in the giant slalom, and Chris Simonet took seventh in the slalom.

Both the St. Mary's and the Notre Dame women's teams raced only three skiers each, so this meet was not significant in the regional qualifying. Maureen Connaughton took third in the slalom and eighth in the giant slalom for St. Mary's. The Irish were led by Laurie Shee, who took seventh in the slalom and fourth in the giant slalom, and Jane Heisel, who placed ninth in the slalom.

As of yesterday, both the men's and women's teams of Notre Dame had qualified for the regional meet which will be held this weekend at Iron Mountain in the upper peninsula of Michigan. The St. Mary's team had not yet received official word.

And finally, the Squash Club has collected several impressive performances through the first half of its season. William Mapother won the "D" division singles at a tournament in St. Louis, and he also advanced to the semifinals of a tournament in Chicago. In Indianapolis, Sanjay Dand finished second in the "D" division singles and Chattaway Parkhaal advanced to the quarterfinals in the "A" division singles.

As a team the Squash Club beat Michigan and lost to Purdue. The team still has a dual meet against Miami (Ohio) and a triangular meet against Purdue and Illinois upcoming. Finally, the team will return to Indianapolis to attempt to qualify for the national tournament.
Men’s interhall league heats up: Two squads remain undefeated

By DAVE MCGAREL
Sports Writer

As the end of the regular season draws to a close, only two teams remain undefeated in the men’s interhall league: Flanner II, a member of the Big Sky division, and Morrissy of the ACC division both sport unblemished records. Previously undefeated Sorin (Big Ten leader) however, fell from the ranks of the undefeated with an upset loss to Dillon II.

Flanner II clinched its division by edging past Grace by a 62-60 margin. Flanner built a lead and then saw it disappear as Gillen lived hectic life as new coach forFlanner II.

By DAVE MCGAREL
Sports Writer

Gillen was an assistant coach at Xavier University this 11-year-old tournament twice, followed at 4-under 284.

Stephanie Farwig carded a 73 and boosted her career earnings to $200,000 at the Bunt Tree Country Club course.

The triumph in the rain-delayed event, worth $50,000, was Sheehan's first this year.

Sheehan, who led the entire way and became the first player to win this 11-year-old tournament twice, finished with a 72-hole total of 9-19-under-par 279 on the 6,124-yard Hurl Tree Country Club course.

Breaded and onion, a former college teammate of Sheehan at San Jose State, shot 69 and 72, respectively, to win with four days of under-par 282.

Stephanie Farwig carded a 73 and finished four strokes off Sheehan's pace at 15-under-par 282.

The winner's round - her second straight 71 after scores of 66 and 69 in the first two rounds - included four birdies and three bogeys.

Ironically, Gillen stresses the need for a family atmosphere on the team.

“Sometimes the motto for a head coach is ‘Sometimes, they forget their own families. When we don’t have a child, it wasn’t too bad. But now that we do, I feel Peter is watching everyone else’s child grow up and missing his own.”

Gillen said he’s working so hard to find a way to make the Stingrays’ season and finish the regular season on 6-1. Dillon II upset its quest for an undefeated season and finished the regular season on 6-1.
Women’s tennis team jumps to 3-0 following weekend tournament

By TRISH SULLIVAN
Sport Writer

The Notre Dame women's tennis team set a few goals before the start of the 1986 spring season. Some of the obvious goals were to improve upon their 18-3 season and to gain a berth in the NCAA tournament. After this weekend's past performance, it seems that the Irish are on their way.

The squad traveled to Springfield, Mo., where they took on Southwest Missouri State, Oklahoma and Kansas State. According to Head Coach Michele Gitelman, it was probably the toughest season opener she could have scheduled.

"I knew that this was a tough way to open the season, but I felt the girls would be ready," said Gitelman, the 1985 North Star Conference coach of the year. "All through practice the week before the intensity level was high, while we had scheduled practice.

The Irish certainly kept that intensity going as they handily defeated each opponent. The team took on the Sooners first, taking them by a 5-3 margin. Next came the Bears of Southwest Missouri, who fell to the Irish, 5-4. The final contest was against the Wildcats of Kansas State, whom the Irish downed by a 5-1 margin.

"As a whole, the team performance was outstanding," added Gitelman. "The girls came together as a team and rallied when we needed them. We weren't quite at our peak yet, but we will be soon. I assure you of that.

The highlights of the weekend came from the sparkling play of senior Mary Colligan (Fort Wayne, Ind.) and the doubles team of senior Susie Panter (Paris Village, Kan.) and Michelle Daas (Sunnyside, Wash.). More than once over the weekend, these girls were called upon to fight back after being down in the final sets. Colligan pulled together in singles action to provide key victories that meant the difference for the team, while Panter and Daas led a doubles crew that only lost one match in two days.

"There were a few mental lapses out there," commented Panter.

St. Mary's fencers improve to 9-7

The Saint Mary's fencing team (9-7) continued to show its strength Saturday when it went 3-0, for its fourth tournament of the season, the Saint Mary's-Western Reserve Invitational. In their first, the Irish are 2-0-0.

The opening match was one of the slowest starts of the season. A loss of 14-2 was handed to the Belles by a strong Northwestern team.

The opening match was one of the slowest starts of the season. A loss of 14-2 was handed to the Belles by a strong Northwestern team.

"There seems to be mental lapses occurring that cause the losses," said Weeks. "These lapses are technical ones and will hopefully receive greater concentration before the next meet.

Weeks was very pleased with the overall showings. Individual records for the day showed Mary Beth Proost with a 3-11 mark, while Anne Raney finished with nine wins and six losses. Becca Barnett added an 8-5 score and Shannon Maughan broke even with a 6-6 showing.

The most encouraging records of the day were those of freshman Colleen Martin (3-4) and Lisa Lavelle (10-7) since both were their first varsity competition. Both agreed the experience helped.

"I did better than I expected to since I am only a novice," said Martin. "I know I gained valuable experience fencing against such competitive teams.

Lavelle agreed that the competition was the toughest she too has faced.

"Being able to travel with the team and competing against tough varsity players gave me a chance to see where I stand," Lavelle stated.

"Lisa also fenced well. It is good to know the novices are able to hold their own as well as they did," said weeks.

"Lena won three matches and did a great job.

"There is a lot of pressure being a newcomer and competing against the top players," added Weeks.

"If individual conferences are worked on, we should fence competitively."

Cardinals name Gene Stallings to take over head coaching spot

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS - Gene Stallings, a disciplinarian and progeny of coaching legends Paul "Bear" Bryant and Tom Landry, was named yesterday to succeed Jim Hanifan as coach of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I'm sorry Coach Bryant couldn't be here," Stallings said at a news confer­ence where he was introduced by team owner William V. Bidwill. "I know somewhere he's smiling.

The appointment of Stallings, an assistant to Landry with the Dallas Cowboys and a former head coach at Texas A&M, ended Bidwill's ar­duous search for a coach. Hanifan and his assistants were fired just 15 minutes after the Cardinals lost the final game of the 1985 NFL season to the Washington Redskins Dec. 21.

The 1985 Cardinals posted a dis­appointing 5-11 record after being picked by some experts to win the NFC East. Critics contended that, although Hanifan was well­ liked by his players, he did not impose the discipline necessary to win and make the playoffs.

Stallings agreed with descriptions of himself as tough, but added that he also can be compassionate.

"There's something about liking your players," Stallings said. "I've got a job to do and that is to make Mr. Bidwill glad that he hired me."

Bidwill said he was glad the hunt was over.

"It's been a long search and I've talked to a lot of fine football coaches and fine men," Bidwill said in introducing Stallings. "But you have to stop and make a judgment. And I think I've picked the best man for the job.

"It is no year-old Stallings, a native of Paris, Texas, became the Car­dinals' ninth head coach since the franchise moved here from Chicago in 1960. Bidwill confirmed that he had talked to Stallings a four-year constant, but he declined to disclose financial terms.

17-22 freshman Roy Bemiss added the third unanswered goal with an assist from sophomore Mike McNell to cut Army's lead to 6-5. The clock soon became Notre Dame's primary opponent and in the final moments Coach Smith was forced to pull the goalie for added scoring ability. This enabled the Cadets to chalk up an easy goal for the 7-5 goal than Notre Dame, as indicated of victory.

Army clearly had more shots on than Notre Dame, as indicated this season.

Army led 2-1 at the end of the first period and went ahead 3-1 in the second on Wilson's first goal of the period and again on an opponent's mistakes. Our passing game. Without sharp passing, it is impossible to capitalize on an opponent's mistakes. Our passing has led to somewhat of a scoring slump and has consequently spelled defeat. But with so many freshmen and sophomores on the ice you can't really expect perfect passing."

"The last time we played them we had a full roster and the exception of Bob Chapman and Badalski."

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. - Bill Elliott picked up yesterday where he left off last year, running off to the pole position for the Daytona 500 with a fast lap of 205.039 mph. His Ford Thunderbird will share the front row with the Chevrolet Monte Carlo of Geoff Bodine, who was just behind at 204.545, a separation of the clock of just .11 of a second.

Elliott, who won both the pole and the race a year ago to begin an incredible season in which he dominated the superspeedways with 11 poles and 11 victories, just missed his own track qualifying record of 205.114.

"I'm very surprised," drawled the red-haired driver from Dawsonville, Ga. "All the testing that everybody did over the winter, I thought we'd be behind."

A stock car record 24 drivers qualified Monday at over 200 mph, breaking the single season mark of 16 and the race record of 18, both set in time trials last May for the Winston 500.

But the speeds were not as high as had been forecast before the first round of qualifying was postponed by rain on Saturday.

Marlin, son of former racer Coo Coo Marlin, was the biggest surprise among the 54 drivers who made at least one of the two allowable qualifying laps Monday.

Marlin, the 1985 Rookie of the Year who is driving this year for veteran car owner Ron Elliott, was the third fastest qualifier at 204.555.

His showing was good enough to relegate Dale Earnhardt, last year's winner, out of the top row to an 18th place start on a three-time Winston Cup Champion, to fourth at 204.151.

Only the top two qualifiers Monday, day locked in starting spots in Sunday's $8.5 million race.

Time trials will continue Tuesday and Wednesday in an effort to help determine starting positions in Thursday's twin 125-mile qualifying races. Those races will determine starting positions three through 30 for Sunday's race.

and while those final statistics came out rather favorably for the Irish, they didn't start out all that smoothly.

"We had to go at them and we didn't," explained Head Coach Mary DiTirambo about the early going. "We were getting in some foul trouble, and right now we can't afford to get into foul trouble with our forwards," she said, referring to sopomore Kathy Brommeldan's and freshman Heidi Buneck's recent bows with the foul.

The Irish looked tentative at the outset, as passes bounced off the hands of Irish players leading to turnovers. UIC hustled early on offense, and their tight zone defense, centered around 6'0" Donna Clark, held the Irish inside game in check. It was the offensive awakening of the all-Americans, linked with DiTirambo's switch halfway through the first half to a tight zone defense, that gave the Irish a seven-point lead behind a transition game, which seemed out of sync in the first half. Finally the Irish got the edge they were looking for all night to put away the Flames.

"They stop us. We're running a lot, and when we saw that they weren't getting back we started to put our hands in their passing lanes," commented Keys. "They (Clark) can't move that well, so...

Irish sophomore center Brett Morrison (55) lays the ball up against Xavier Sunday in Notre Dame's 104-57 win. The Irish were huge victories again last night, pounding Illinois-Chicago by a 67-42 score. Terry Lynch details the game at left.

"It was just proud as hell," said DeCicco. (He, Kovacs) proved to me that we could do that. He could do his own. He could conceivably be in the top five in the country.

"He is a good football," added DeCicco. "He is as good as anyone of the starters."

On the women's side, the situation wasn't much different. First-year Head Coach Yves Aurier saw the 16-0 Irish demolish Case Western Reserve, 19-1; Northwestern, 13-5; Purdue, 15-1; Ohio State, 11-5, and Lawrence, 16-0.

Sophomore Molly Sullivan was 11-0 this weekend, and her overall record is an impressive 33-3.

DeCicco acknowledges that the women are on the verge of national prominence.

"Our women's team is fencing magnificently this year," commented DeCicco. "There are four, maybe five teams, that are contenders to go to the NCAA's (from the Midwest Region) and our women have already beaten all of them.

"They should be the odds-on favorites to represent the Midwest in the NCAA's.
