Odds against contra aid in House, O'Neill says

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said yesterday he thinks the Republicans face long odds in their gamble to win an up-or-down vote soon on President Reagan's program of aid to Nicaraguan rebels.

O'Neill told reporters that "in my judgment, the president had his best chance on Wednesday," when consideration of the issue was halted abruptly by a GOP tactic aimed at divorcing the vote from an unrelated spending bill that President Reagan wants to veto.

Told of O'Neill's prediction that the GOP would have problems in getting the contra aid issue considered as a separate measure, House Republican leader Robert Michel, R.Ill., said, "I don't think we'll have difficulty. We're going to come down hard on our own people.

Michel said his goal is "a free-standing bill" limited solely to the question of giving military and other assistance to the Contra counterrevolutionaries.

Both leaders agreed that the political fight has delayed for at least a month any new vote on Reagan's plan to send $110 million to U.S.-backed guerrillas fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

To win their gamble, the Republicans will need the support of some Democrats, who hold a three-seat majority in the House, with one seat vacated.

On Wednesday, the Republican minority pulled its surprise tactic by voting for an amendment that would have ended Reagan's program of assistance to the Contras - an amendment that had been widely expected to lose.

Terrorists strike back: 3 kidnapped Britons murdered in Lebanon

Terror struck back against the United States and its friends on three continents yesterday in an explosion报复

American aid, the White House said.

"We are preparing for an increase in terrorism," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said in Washington.

But he said the U.S. leadership believes its bombing of Libyan cities Tuesday will "in the long run, reduce the risk to Americans" from terror attacks.

In Lebanon, retaliation for the U.S. raid was swift and bloody.

The bodies of the kidnap victims - identified as writer Alec Collett, 64, and teachers Leigh Douglas, 34, and Philip Padfield, 40, all raising pledges from sponsors in his dorm and will soon begin to accept deck sponsorships from all over campus.

Senior to help poor by biking 3,300 miles

By JIM MOHAN

Notre Dame senior Tim McLellan will spend this summer pedaling across America in an effort to end world hunger and poverty.

McLellan will be participating in Bike Aid '86, a 3,300 mile bike ride to raise funds for self-help projects in underdeveloped areas of the world.

On June 16, McLellan will depart from San Francisco on his way to an early August finish at the United Nations in New York, raising over $5,000 along the way.

"I decided to participate because I have an interest in the issue of world hunger, and I have time this summer before I begin work in the Peace Corps," said McLellan, who recently has been training for his first long-distance bike ride. He has been

African nations too dependent on foreign aid, relief worker says

BY CHRIS BEDNARSKI

Although people are no longer starving in many parts of Africa, there are still numerous problems that face the millions of Africans living in refugee camps, according to African relief worker Diana DeTreville.

A problem has arisen, however, because the African nations have become too dependent on foreign aid, she said.

"They have become passive recipients of your aid," she said. "Agriculture is still incredibly neglected. The average African country only puts five percent of their monoie into agricultural research and productive activities."

Relief agencies that provide millions of dollars in aid to Africa pose another problem, DeTreville said.

"Donor aid is short term, three to five years," she said. "You cannot change things in three to five years." It takes approximately ten years for permanent change to come, she said.

DeTreville also said that relief agencies are uncoordinated among themselves, "with political goals in mind."

"Dinosaurs focus on the latest trendy products," she said. "They cited an example in Sudan where powdered milk was given to refugees who didn't know how to use it."

"Many relief workers are untrained. That's serious," she said. "We need to make donor agencies more accountable."

Additionally, some African governments have mishandled these situations, DeTreville said.

"Governments have spent enormous amounts on wasteful prestige projects," she said. "Heavy handed government policies have always been very unhelpful. Government cooperatives - meaningly set up to help the small holder, but in fact totally isolate indigenous marketing and production infrastructures."

Because of this, and a colonial period that encouraged plantation-style agriculture, she said the land has become depleted. She showed slides of Bari haren land that she said had once been forest. The forest, she said, was vitally important in providing firewood and wood for building farms.

She also said that small farmers, who account for 80 percent of Africa's food production, are being neglected.

DeTreville also cited a population problem as plaguing Africa. "That (population growth) in itself creates an economic problem of all the free land on earth," she said.

DeTreville said the future doesn't look promising for many African nations.

"If anything we will see downtowners," she said.

South African police focus on children, U.S. group says

Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG - A U.S. human rights group charged yesterday that South Africa's security forces have detained, tortured and killed thousands of black children, singling them out as "special targets" in a campaign to curb protests against apartheid.

"A generation of children is growing up in South Africa knowing nothing but the violence of the white-minority regime," said a report issued by the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights, based in New York.

Police headquarters in Pretoria issued a statement rejecting the charges and saying, "The security forces do not tolerate or condone any abuses or illegal actions against the civilian population."

The report, entitled "The War Against Children, South Africa's Youngest Victims," said one 11-year-old was held for 57 days in a cell with adult criminals and a 14-year-old boy was tortured with electric shocks.

It detailed dozens of other alleged incidents of police and army brutality against children and charged they were part of a "rethless campaign to crush all opposition."

Cyanide-laced drink kills teenager on TV as unknowing friends watch

Associated Press

AMHERST, Mass. - A 17-year-old boy drank cyanide-laced Kool-Aid on live, closed-circuit television and died on the floor of the Hampshire College studio while his brother and friends laughed and urged him to quit drinking, said someone said yesterday.

When Andrew Hermann refused to quit his "act" on the comedy show, students carried him to a hall. Security guards later found he was dead.

"Everyone thought it was a joke. No one ever expected he had actually done it," said Philip Jackson, a student producer of the student broadcast.

"We've had some rather extreme things on the show. One time a group of Arabs came on and hijacked it. Everyone just thought he was fooling." Hermann's older brother, Stephen, a Hampshire student who served as coordinator of the program, said, "I thought, like everyone else, that it was just an act."

Hermann described his younger brother as a very intelligent youth who was bored with high school and had "other problems." He said Andrew had planned to attend Hampshire College next year and had been accepted.

Lt. David Jankowski said police were notified of the death by Hampshire County Medical Examiner Donald Abel after the teenager was pronounced dead on arrival at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton shortly after 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Tests were conducted Thursday by a pathologist to determine the cause of death. Jankowski said, but "cyanide-laced Kool-Aid is suspected, and we feel at this time the youth mixed and drank the Kool-Aid knowing it was lethal."

Police refused to comment on the suicide reports by Jackson and other students involved in the production, which was broadcast live to dormitories at the 1,200 student liberal arts college.

"All I know is that he died shortly after a TV show in which he took part," said college spokesman Russell Powell. He said college officials were declining comment on the incident on the advice of counsel.

He said college administration had not made a decision on canceling the student show, "Voice of the Top Two." Students said administrators had tried to take it off the air last year after receiving complaints that it was racist and sexist.

"I saw him drinking this stuff," said student M. Timothy Halle, 23, of Newton, who watched the program in his dormitory room. "I was wondering what he was drinking. I had no idea, but I didn't think anything of it. It's the most bizarre show."

Libya attack reduces travel to Europe, agents claim
Associated Press

NEW YORK - American travel agents are reporting increasing cancellations to Europe following the bombing raid on Libya, and a European official said yesterday that tourism had been expected to drop by as much as 30 percent even before the raid occurred.

"This is an absolute shame, a tragedy, that one man that President Reagan has called 'the Mad Dog of the Middle East' is restricting the freedom of Americans to travel," said Donald McSullivan, chairman of the North American Committee of the European Travel Commission. McSullivan, whose group represents 23 European national tourist offices, said travel to Europe in 1985 was up about 16 percent over 1984, but that rough estimates indicated a decline of 20 percent to 30 percent could occur this year.

The group's estimates were made before the bombing raid. McSullivan said it was too soon to predict what additional effect the raid might have on European tourism, already hurting because of recent terrorist acts in that part of the world. Northern European countries were not expected to suffer as much as countries closer to the Mediterranean, he said.

Even with the cancellations, large numbers of Americans are still expected to go to Europe, some travel officials said.

"The perception on the part of people is that terrorism is rampant. But 6% million Americans go to Europe every year and 10 get killed. The chances of getting murdered in the U.S. are much greater," said Conrad Blomberg, president of the Rocky Mountain chapter of the American Society of Travel Agents.

Several cruise lines have abandoned or reduced their Mediterranean schedules and are concentrating instead on the Caribbean and the Pacific Northwest. Americans are expected to flock to Florida for Disney World and to Vancouver, British Columbia, for Expo '86, and cruise operators say their bookings in those areas are high.

Costa Cruises, which presently has three ships in the Mediterranean, said its Mediterranean cruises generally include about 30 percent Americans, but only about 10 percent of the passengers are expected to be Americans this summer.

Fear of international terrorism has rumbled all the way to Kalispell, Mont., where school trustees were considering canceling local high school trips to Germany and Mexico this summer.

"The ODN is a national network concerned with establishing a partnership between American college affiliates and self-help projects in developing countries," according to Sophia Twarog, director of the Notre Dame ODN chapter. McLeillan said he was looking forward to his ride and encouraged other cyclists to sign up for the event before May 15, the application deadline for ODN's Bike Aid '86.

Letters to a Lonely God

A list of heartbreak goes on behind the facade that people bring on themselves—cause they shirk or gamble or live unwisely. Of some is plagued by the interior demons which leave us ashamed. You need a catalogue of woes from me to see what I’m talking about. There are troubles that come with the territory as a price for being alive, and the world doesn’t spare anyone from being wounded by life sooner or later. To be spared all crosses is like that something that is less than human. I’m not interested in loading down a student-instructor, with gloom and doom about the hardships of existence. But perhaps it’s part of the Easter message to point out that when the Lord of Life came back from the tomb, they knew Him by His scars. God introduced Himself to us through His Son suffering on the Cross. Reveal Himself, I identified with our suffering. The God who will judge us has lived through pain. He could have gone easier on Himself, but to show that He loves us, He spared Himself nothing. The Unmoved Mover has a score to settle with mankind that He had written out of our acquaintance as the Man of Sorrows.

For the next half hour, various spectators assembled in the stands, including “Wild Bill” Fallon and Father Cockrell. Finally, Father Patrick Romano, the president of Notre Dame, approached the microphone.

“It’s been a long time since this little American school with the French name and the Irish nickname has had a football team whose record matched this University’s commitment to excellence. But now you young men have made us proud, winning eight games in a row and conducting yourselves with as much grace in victory as you had shown in defeat. We wish you success on Saturday and promise you to know that we will be proud of you, whether you win or whether you lose. And I hope you are part of the Notre Dame family!”

Then, Father Romano himself led the students in singing the alma mater, “Notre Dame, Our Mother.”

College students shouldn’t cry?

The poet Hughes has many a bittersweet line of youth seen from old age.

One of the difficulties of being a Notre Dame student—or a student anywhere—is that so much conforming to the image is required. Students feel that they are told: “You’re lucky to be here on this wonderful campus. These are the best years of your life. Be grateful, and don’t rock the boat. Donors love their school days, because that’s Notre Dame Tradition.” Rocking the boat has nothing to do with overthrowing the tradition.

To avoid rocking the boat, you keep the main in place that hides the suffering. Happiness during the college years seems to be a requirement of life at an expensive school you should be proud to attend. To conform to the image that goes with being liberally educated in America, you hide the truth that you’re carrying quite a few crosses. You know the law has been passed saying college students shouldn’t cry.

All of us have stories with sadness in them. When I was in college, my father died just before Christmas of my freshman year. My mother’s health broke down as a result of his death. My sister’s husband left her, leaving her with two children to raise, one of them an infant. My brother was incapacitated for life from a serious accident as an assistant. As a freshman, I saw all my family un­ about hardships that got worse as the years went by, and I was too proud to tell anyone how tough things were at home. I mention it now as part of the story I never talked about because it seemed like nobody’s business. I know from experience what it’s like to be a secret sufferer. Such worrying leaves you wounded for life; often a cross that is shared is only half as heavy.

A number of students have stories of their own. Everyone is entitled to be a secret sufferer, keeping personal and family problems private, if he wishes. But it’s a mistake for any of us to believe that all the others we meet are so carefree that they could not understand or be sympathetic to the domestic tragedies that visit nearly every home. We are ex­ tended with families that include members whom we may need to protect as the victims of hard luck.

Last night in the Library Auditorium, Cavanaugh Hall Productions presented "Arsenic and Old Lace." What has made this particular presentation special is that all proceeds from the play go to the Andy Sowder Scholarship Fund.

The fund was started in memory of former Cavanaugh producer Andy Sowder, who died of spinal meningitis in 1979. Hopefully, a large turnout of generous theatergoers will be present in the auditorium over the top this weekend.

As a result, the play revolves around Mortimer Brewster, and his effort to fight the forces of entropy which attack his world. Mortimer is a drama critic unhappy with his job who loves to slash the awful plays he sees. His aunts, Abby and Mary, who are fond of poisoning the elderly men who come seeking lodging. They buries the late gentlemen, or "Yellow-fever matters are further complicated when a series of murders start to occur.

The Scoop

• The Elementary School presents "Arts and Old Lace." Mike Knots, as Officer O'Hara, was exceptional as the dim-witted would-be playwright. Although prospective corpse Bob Kelly was only on stage a few minutes, he also made the most of it. Hopefully, the three who were killed will last actors will have larger roles in future productions.

The same hope cannot be expressed with Tom Mowle and Steve Deneke. As Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Spinal, their acting was not up to par. Their movements were stiff, and they didn't have the character development to make their roles believable. Hopefully, the last two actors will have larger roles in future productions.

Road to Stepan

It's a fever that hits campus every spring, and on a campus swollen with traditions, this is one of the best. Respect is measured as much by the accuracy of a jumpshot as by the open lewdness of the team name. It's a sloppy sport to be sure. The inside game often resembles the open hostility of a Middle Eastern picnic, yet under it all, the common denominator is fun.
Sex and exploitation: are they always concomitants of pornography, the answer is yes. According to these people, the portrayal of graphic sex in films is linked with the subjugation, subordination, brutalization, and manipulation of both women and men.

Edward Augustine Toro Howitz guest column

Furthermore, some people believe that exploitation in pornographic films does not end with the production and release of the film itself. They argue that the explicit sexual acts themselves are an end in themselves, and that the damage done by these images is not just limited to the performers involved, but extends to all viewers who come into contact with them.

Many of pornography's opponents do not make this argument. They view the footage as an end in itself. Furthermore, some believe that these images perpetuate violence, and that they are in fact a cause of violence.

Censorship is never an easy solution to a complex problem. Our society's apparent need to be violent and sexist is the inherent problem, not the symptom of this need. This is the issue we must address. Inquiry and discussion are essential to a fuller understanding of the marketing of exploitation.

European societies, and particularly those in Western Europe, have long been criticized for their tolerance of pornographic material. Many people believe that pornographic material encourages violence and aggression, and that it is responsible for the rise in violent crime in Europe.

Dear Editor:

Yes, the United States is a nation that allows the production and distribution of pornographic material. But this does not mean that we should not try to limit its effects. Pornography is a problem, and we should do everything in our power to limit its influence.

Miscellaneous expenses student at ND

Dear Editor:

When I came to Notre Dame, I expected to pay a reasonable sum for my tuition and expenses. But when I received my bill, I was shocked at the amount. I did not realize that there were so many hidden costs.

O'Donovan didn't always know golf was his forte

By ORLANDO RUBIANO
Sportswriter

When you think of Notre Dame teams today, you immediately associate Allen Pinkett with football, and David Rivers with basketball. However, when you think of golf, if you do at all, a bug question mark is all that probably registers. Well, it is time that this mystery man is revealed to one and all. His name is John O'Donovan.

While he may not be a household name in the sports circles of Notre Dame, O'Donovan has done for the golf team what Pinkett and Rivers have done for their teams. He is the inspirational leader that every player on his team looks to, especially when meet time rolls around. The team will be as the Kepler Invitational in Columbus, Ohio, this weekend.

While most people discover those activities they enjoy as youngsters, O'Donovan was not envisioning spending hours every day on the links when he was young.

"My Dad played a lot at the Grand Rapids C.C., but I didn't take the game seriously until high school," he says. Suprisingly, O'Donovan says his father didn't push him to play golf. But it seems safe to say that had he had a different background and accomplishments, in and out of golf, leaves one with an unmistakable impression.

O'Donovan graduated from Forest Hills Central High in Ada, Mich. He was recruited by Michigan State, but leaned towards Notre Dame.

"I came here because of the outstanding academic environment at Notre Dame," he says. He is currently president of the ski team, and has been captain for the last two years. He is in his second season as golf captain. He has many individual honors to his credit, including Midwestern Collegiate Conference all-star for the past two years, team MVP as a junior, winner of 85 Notre Dame Open with a 74 score, and winner of the 85 Spartan Fall Invitational.

The Spartan Tournament, played at Michigan State, was O'Donovan's most satisfying golf memory of his college career. "Not only did we win the tournament, but from a personal standpoint I was honored that I was named medalist for the tournament," he says. "Without a doubt, I would have to say that was a moment that I will always remember."

Though many sports competitors dream about being pros, John does not seem to be caught in the fantasy syndrome. "Sure, I would like to play golf professionally," he says. "But you have to be realistic and understand that you have got to be outstanding in order to make it. Look at Ben Hogan for instance, he symbolized the work ethic of the sport and his hard work paid off for him, Ben Hogan is golf."

Irish coach Noel O'Sullivan calls O'Donovan a fine individual who is respected by his peers. "John is a tremendous guy," says O'Sullivan. "I'm glad I've had the opportunity to coach him, and see him grow into a super young man. Not only is he an excellent leader on the golf course, but also an excellent person off the course. That is what makes John O'Donovan such a great all-around individual."
Men's tennis team ups mark to 19-8 in tuneup meets for MCC tourney

By RICK RIETBROCK

Mother Nature could have had better timing in the eyes of the Notre Dame men's tennis team. It had to battle less-than-ideal conditions as well as its opponents in a busy string of action that saw the Irish play five matches in as many days in preparation for the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Championships this weekend.

This will be the last season Notre Dame will compete in the conference as a result of an athletic department decision to pull out of the league. Irish head coach Tom Fallon said he believes his team has the chance to go out in style.

"This is our last chance to win the title, and we're looking to do it," Fallon says. "Our toughest match should come from Oral Roberts and I think Evansville will be a good squad.

"Either Oral Roberts will be the top seed or it will be us, since we beat them in a close 5-4 match earlier this season. This past string was a good setup for us heading into the tournament."

Overall, the Irish went 3-2 against the opposition, but only 2-3 against the elements, as three matches were forced indoors.

In the first match, Notre Dame defeated Indiana State 7-2 in a mismatch. Fallon pointed out that the Irish were just "much too strong" for the Sycamores. But the doubles were the most important as they came as early as 8-0.

The honeymoon was over, as far as the weather was concerned, as soon as the weekend was over. Against Michigan, only two singles matches were played and it was just as well because the Irish were threatened by an "overpowering" Michigan team. 5-0 as the action was moved into the ACC.

Western State was the next visitor to the miserable playing conditions and the Irish handed the Wildcats a 5-1 defeat, as three singles matches had to be scratched.

Marquette provided the opposition Wednesday, although not as much, and it was just as well because the Irish were threatened by an "overpowering" Marquette team. 5-0 as the action was moved into the ACC.

Minneapolis was the last visitor to the miserable playing conditions and the Irish handed the Wildcats a 5-1 defeat, as three singles matches had to be scratched.

Marquette provided the opposition Wednesday, although not as much, and it was just as well because the Irish were threatened by an "overpowering" Marquette team. 5-0 as the action was moved into the ACC.

Northwestern was the next visitor to the miserable playing conditions and the Irish handed the Wildcats a 9-0 victory. The Irish now stand at 19-8 on the season and have some things to achieve after the successful homestand, according to their coach.

"The weather was against us, but we really played well," he said. "I think it would be a real accomplishment to get 20 wins with four freshmen in our lineup."

Those freshmen have some impressive numbers going into this weekend's tournament. Vanz and Dan Reiter are 11-3, Tony Caball is 14-4, Heather comes in at 13-7, and Dave Reiter has a 13-10 mark.

Fallon appreciates the work of his freshmen, but he has special praise for his number-one singles player, Dan Walsh.

"Dan does a fantastic job considering he faces the top gun from the other team every time he goes out there," Fallon points out. "He has played very hard and very well all year. It makes it much easier for the rest of the guys by getting the other team's top guys out of the way."

Fallon and the young squad will be looking for another tough perfor­mance by Walsh against this weekend's opponents, which may or may not include the weather.
Women's Bookstore Tournament starts today

Key matchups of We Weren't Cheerleaders in High School versus 5-3 And Under, Negligence against Stupid Human Tricks, and 4 Geeks and a Feminist versus The Almosts promise to make today's opening round of women's bookstore basketball interesting if not completely competitive.

Sixty teams start the single-elimination tournament at 4 p.m. on the Stepan and Saint Mary's courts. Four more teams have been granted first-round byes. Double Decker bookstore competitors, interhall starts today.

Other non-seeded teams who should do well have on their rosters a large sprinkling of former bookstore competitors, interhall basketball veterans and varsity athletes. Double Decker bookstore competitors, interhall starts today.

The Fighting Chicken Patties consist of this year's interhall championship team from Lewis. The backcourt combination of Ellen Mouch and Katie Cavanaugh hopes to lead the Patties past a psyched-up Have No Pride, Suffer No Embarrassment team.

Sunday afternoon the second round will begin at 1 p.m. on Saint Mary's courts and courts 11 at Lyons.

MacLellan's 2nd goal lifts Rangers past Caps in OT

LANDOVER, Md. - Brian MacLellan scored his second goal of the night, on a breakaway at 1:16 of overtime, to give the New York Rangers a 4-3 victory last night over the Washington Capitals in the opening game of their best-of-seven Patrick Division finals in the NHL playoffs.

The Rangers, who overcame a 3-1 deficit, were wireless in their last 21 overtime games - playoff and regular season - as the Capitals had played 25 extra-period games without a loss since last losing in the playoffs on April 13, 1984.

The Rangers, who upset division champion Philadelphia in the first round, sent the game into overtime on a goal by Mark Osborne and Mike Ridley.

Osborne ignited the comeback with a shorthanded goal at 17:33 of the second period. Ridley, a rookie, scored on a backhanded shot during a scramble in front of goaltender Pete Peeters at 9:37 of the third period. It was Ridley's fourth goal of the playoffs.

Game 2 will be played in the Capital Centre Saturday night.

Win over W. Michigan boosts women to 13-3
By TRISH SULLIVAN

The Notre Dame women's tennis team entered its season mark 13-3 with a win over Western Michigan on Tuesday at Kalamazoo, Mich. The Irish came out on top 5-4 with the doubles teams once again coming through in tight situations.
"I knew it was going to be tight either way," said first-year coach Michele Gelfman. "They had the homecourt advantage and we were playing on only three indoor courts, which meant we spent a lot of time waiting for a court to be free."
"It could have broken our moment, but T was very proud of how our girls stayed in there. Especially the doubles teams of (Michelle) Danis and (Mary) O'Brien. We were down 4-3 with their match yet to be played. And despite the fact that they had to stand around and wait, the played outstandingly."
Notre Dame picked up victories in the third, fourth and sixth singles. Sophomore Danis, playing in the number-three doubles, outlasted her opponent 4-6, 6-1, 6-1 to take her to 10-3 on the season. Meanwhile, number-four singles player, senior O'Brien, defeated her opponent 6-1, 6-0, 6-1 to win 21-8. Andy D. was the key to victory. "It was a real contest, but I was very proud of the way the girls stayed in there. Especially the doubles teams of (Michelle) Danis and (Mary) O'Brien. We were down 4-3 with their match yet to be played. And despite the fact that they had to stand around and wait, the played outstandingly."

"Rather than sitting around waiting for the play to come to me, I get in there and mess things up."
But Banks has also been pleased with the overall effort during the spring. "The line's come a long way in the past few weeks," he said. "If we can whip people up on, we'll be able to beat Sink The Men's Shysters, shoot 21-of-40 as a team to beat Sink The Pink, 21-5. Andy D. had 12 of 20 and Hey Baby, Wanna Get Trashed? Heated tempers and shoving to send the game into overtime at 21-8, is a successful effort to gain the publicity they feel they deserve."
Gay Herbert shot 7-of-8 from the field, while teammates Steve O'Grady and Brian Steber added four points apiece. On the wins, Tim Baker was the dominating man. Under the board, pulling down 10 rebounds. Tim Schmicheler did utilize crisp passing and a devastating fast break to beat biggest Moldus on Campus 21-8, is a successful effort to gain the publicity they feel they deserve."
"It's nice to win," said Ann Bianco, one of the many alarm­ed observers at the game. "It was like a football game. But they (Wanna Get Trashed) definitely had more talent and quickness. Plus, they had good audience participation."
