Beginning of the end for 1986 graduates

436 to end years at SMC

By MARGIE KERSTEN
Saint Mary’s Editor

The end is near for approximately 436 Saint Mary’s seniors as their undergraduate careers come to a close tomorrow at noon in the Court of LeMars Hall. The 1986 graduating class will participate in the College’s 139th commencement exercise, as will Democratic Congresswoman Barbara Kennelly, this year’s featured speaker.

Events today include the Nurses’ Pinning Ceremony in the Church of Loretta at 1, the Baccalaureate Mass in Angela Athletic Facility at 4 and tonight at 10, the Graduation Cocktails at the Century Center.

Kennelly, a graduate of Trinity College in Washington, D.C., said she can give the graduating seniors an interesting perspective because of her background as a woman’s college. Kennelly said Saint Mary’s is a highly-regarded institution. “I was quite delighted and honored to be asked to speak at Saint Mary’s commencement,” she said in a May 1 interview.

Kennelly added that she will try to address the graduates’ concerns and thoughts during her commencement address.

Kennelly, who has served as a congressional woman from Connecticut since 1982, will receive a Honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the College.

Other honorary degree recipients include Samuel Adler, a composer, conductor and educator, who will receive an honorary Doctor of Fine Arts degree and Georgie Anne Geyer, a syndicated columnist, author, and foreign correspondent, who will receive an Honorary Doctor of Laws degree and Teresa Donavan will receive the John W. Gardner Award for outstanding volunteer service beyond the Notre Dame University boundaries.

Also at the ceremony, two seniors in the College of Arts and Letters will be honored with special awards. In addition, the 1986 Laetare Medal will be given and the 1986 valetudinarian will speak to his classmates.

Malone is one of 11 persons to receive honorary degrees at the ceremony, the 141st in Notre Dame history.

Terna Donavan will receive the John W. Gardner Award for outstanding volunteer service beyond the Notre Dame University boundaries.

Dr. Thomas Carney and his wife, Mary Elizabeth, will receive the 1986 Laetare Medal. Carney is president of Metaech Corp. in Northbrook, Ill. and former chairman of Notre Dame’s Board of Trustees.

Bishop Joseph Czerny of Bratislava, Czecho­lovakia has been added to the original list of those receiving honorary degrees. He was a legal assistant to the honorary doctor of laws degree in absentia.

Korcs, a Roman Catholic priest, who is imprisoned in Czechoslovakia’s persecuted Catholic Church, is a symbol of spiritual resistance in Bratislava.

Other honorary degree recipients include Geoffrey Anscombe, a professor of philosophy at Cambridge University; Neil Amundson, Cullen Professor of Chemical Engineering at the University of Houston; Donald R. Keough, chairman of the Sorin Society, the University’s Executive News Editor; and Andrew McKenna, a 1951 Notre Dame graduate and Chicago Bears vice chairman.

The weather might obscure the graduates’ last view, but many of them will remember it like this nonetheless.

ND Trustees alter investment policy, elect new chairman

By JOE MURPHY
VOL. XX, NO. 140
FRIDAY, MAY 28, 1988

The Notre Dame Board of Trustees modified its stand on investments in companies doing business in South Africa at its May 9 meeting.

The Board also elected a new chairman, Donald Keough, president and chief operating officer of Coca-Cola Company. Keough succeeds Thomas Carney.

The Board added two conditions to its South African investment policy.

The Board authorized divestment from those companies doing business in South Africa that “are not influencing the dismantling of the system of apartheid,” or “in circumstances warranting that action because of further deterioration of conditions in South Africa.”

In addition, the Board directed its Executive Committee and its Investment Committee to review the South African policy at each meeting and report to the full Board. The trustees will meet again at their regular fall meeting Nov. 14.

The Board also mandated these committees “to continue to use every use of our influence with companies in which we have interests” to promote the performance of such companies.

Investments to support and promote dismantling the system of apartheid to monitor carefulness in the performance of such companies.” The University has investments of approximately $31.5 million in approximately 30 companies doing business in South Africa.

The change in the Board’s position comes after months of debate on the issue of divestment.

University President Father Theodore Hesburgh has stated publicly his opposition to divestment at this time. The Notre Dame undergraduate student body supported divestment in a March referendum and the Faculty Senate voted for divestment last month.

At that time, the Board also adopted provisions which require

The last concert of Notre Dame Band Director Robert O'Brien will be held tonight at 6:30 on the Administration Building main floor. It will be the last performance after leading the band, for 34 years, during which time he supervised more than 220 football halftime band performances and helped to entertain more than 14,000,000 people. He was instrumental in increasing the number of undergraduate students after the beginning of postgraduate study in a number of yearly performances and in tripling the size of the band. Now that he is retiring, O'Brien said he hopes to spend his additional time working on a complete accounting of the oldest marching band in the country. O'Brien said his successor has not been named yet but will be announced. — The Observer

Suspect in the April 27 robbery of a Notre Dame student's off-campus house was apprehended last week, using information supplied by the neighbor of the student. Steven D. Perkins, 21, 725 E. Wenger, was arrested and charged with felony burglary, said county officials. A neighbor of student Joe Donnelly read an article in the daily's student paper and said the description of the crime matched one that he had seen in the vicinity, said Donnelly. The neighbor took down the car's license plate number and later learned the driver's last name. He then gave the information to Donnelly who passed it along to police officials. Using this infor-ation, police arrested the suspect. — The Observer

A police raid of Mr. D.'s Canning Factory, 1516 N.
Ironwood Dr., early Sunday morning resulted in the issuance of 19 citations for violations of state liquor laws. Eighteen Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students were ticketed for being minors in a tavern. One Notre Dame student also received a citation for the possession of a false ID. — The Observer

The Charity Ball, held May 2, in its goal of $10,000, said Fr. Joseph Harrigan, co-director of the second annual Notre Dame/Saint Mary's event. The Ball, whose honorary chairman was Notre Dame Head Football Coach Lou Holtz, will send all proceeds to Catholic Relief Service for World Hunger. — The

All roads must converge

As an intern with Notre Dame Magazine this semester some of my most valuable learning experiences were the Wednesday morning staff meetings. I usually sat quietly in my place and ab-soked all of the talk of procurements, writers and deadlines and such, because I was the apprentice. One week, however, there was in attendance a young lady whom I worshipped by more than 20 years.

A shortage of babysitters had brought Laura to her father's office that morning. Although she should be applauded for her silence and good manners, Laura refused to stay put in her place. With no parental assistance she kicked the top off her arm and seated. Then Laura painlessly toppled forward, and on her hands and knees, she crawled toward the door.

Not a child psychologist, I don't know the capacity of a baby's mind. But if babies possess coherent thoughts, I'm certain that Wednesday morning Laura must have thought, "Wow! Look at me. All by myself! I am sitting. Now look, I can crawl. I can move myself from one point to another."

To realize personal talents, gifts and capabilities, to discover a new part of oneself, is a terrific and important thing. It is being alive.

As graduation looms, now is an appropriate time for such a first step and say, "Wow! Look at us.
See all the possibilities of life and that which we have to offer it.

Numerous curricula have led us down different academical paths, but all of these roads should converge into one academic goal. As I understand the purpose of an institution of higher education, it is much more than the communication of knowledge, it is the encouragement of curiosity. A university or college should give its students such a strong taste for education that a lifetime will sustain all the desire for further learning. Henry David Thoreau wrote that he went to the woods at Walden to uncover "the essential facts of life and if I could not learn what it had to teach, and not when I came to die, discover that I had not lived.

The most powerful theme that runs through our existence is by far love. It is the love of God, our parents, families and friends that has brought us to to this event of commencement. At times we have needed to be carried through failure and rejection, but in the end, those who love us always set us back on our feet and walk beside us. This living example of infantile love now has been coupled with those of our Christianuniversity and college. We have been taught to recognize mankind as our family and share our love with all. It is this love that sustains life and offers hope.

In his column in the Los Angeles Times last November Jack Smith wrote of two recent grandchildren: He pondered how two old men could be "so euphoric when children entering a world of stockpiling nuclear weapons and starving nations, of shrinking human rights and shrinking economies.
Two of these gentlemen, Smith concluded, "Maybe they know that there is just as much oxygen in the world to-today as there was when they were born, and as long as we can breathe there is hope."

Platform and action must be the culmination of curiosity and love. Through love we experience and the desire for learning with which we have been inspired, we have the capability to elevate our own lives, thoses around us and life itself. It takes is a conscious endeavor. If we do nothing less, we have waited out here and are neglecting the love inside of us. The character Sarkin in the novel "Going After Caccinto" summarizes this when she orates, "It is one thing to speculate what might be. It is quite another to act on behalf of our dreams, to treat them as objectives that are achievable and worth achieving. It is one thing to run from happiness, it is another to take action to realize those qualities of dignity and well-being that are the true standards of the human spirit."

Graduate student, wife commit double suicide

By MARK PANKOWSKI
News Editor

A Notre Dame foreign graduate student and his wife were found dead in their University Village apartment, the victims of a double suicide.

Solomon Aptekar, 29, and Irene Aptekar, 27, both from Bombay, India, died after ingesting liquid cyanide, Deputy County Coroner James McMerrit ruled. The time of death was placed sometime on or near Wednesday, May 7.

A note found in his apartment indicated the couple had been distraught because Solomon had failed his oral examination for his thesis, said Richard Conklin, University director of public relations and information. Solomon was a doctoral student in metallurgy.

and Lewis Branscomb, vice president and chief scientist of IBM Corporation.

Also receiving honorary degrees are Eleanor Burbidge, director of the Center for Astrophysics and Space Science at the University of California, San Diego; Henry Knot Sr., chairman of the board of the Arvalid Corporation in Baltimore; and Dr. James Muller, 1963 Notre Dame graduate, cardiologist at Harvard Medical School and co-founder of the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, the organization which was awarded the 1985 Nobel Peace Prize.

Also among the honorary degree recipients are John Phelan Jr., president of the New York Stock Exchange since 1980; Sir George Porter, Fullian Professor of Chemistry and president of the Royal Society of Great Britain; and Patricia Wald, circuit judge on the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

The Observer May I, Kennelly said she would rather not address the abortion issue over the phone because of its complexity.

Bauer has sent letters to Hickey and members of the Board of Regents, expressing his disapproval over Kennelly's selection. The letter asked that Saint Mary's either withdraw its invitation or announce publicly and during Kennelly's introduction that the nomination holds no honor if it is denied by her pro-choice stance.

Protestors will not enter College grounds because it is private property, but they plan to picket the entrance to the College, said Virginia Black, a member of the board of directors of St. Joseph, County Right to Life.

Hickey said that Kennelly was researched and approved by the Board of Regents who are "pleased with her choice."

SMC speaker to draw protesters

By THERESE GUARINO

Picketers and protesters have planned to be among the many visitors to Saint Mary's campus during this commencement weekend.

A demonstration on graduation day tomorrow has been scheduled by local anti-abortion groups to protest the presence of commencement speaker Barbara Kennelly, a Democratic congresswoman from Connecticut.

Opponents claim that Kennelly's voting records in the House of Representatives indicate a pro-choice stance on abortion.

Organizations including St. Joseph County Right to Life, Democrats for Life and several area Protestant churches will take part in the demonstration, which College President William Hickey said were to come from Bombay to attend the services, Burrell said.

Burial services for the deceased couple were held yesterday at Temple Beth-El in South Bend. Burial followed in RosedHill Cemetery.

Solomon's mother and brother were to come from Bombay to attend the services, Burrell said.

1986 valedictorians: hard work was the key

By ELLYN MASTAKO
Senior Staff Reporter

A lot of hard work.

That's what Notre Dame valedictorian Daniel Thompson and Saint Mary's co-valedictorians Mary Kathryn Leary and Karen Draths consider the key to their academic success.

Thompson, who achieved a perfect 4.0 grade point average, said his high marks were the result of a lot of hard work but "nothing excessive, no overload."

"You can get good grades without pulling all-nighters," said Thompson, a theology and philosophy major from Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

Leary, whose 3.96 GPA equaled that of Draths, also attributed her grades to a lot of hard work.

"It didn't come easy, but I got a lot of support from my teachers and my classmates," said Leary, a native of Creve Coeur, Missouri, and a business major with an accounting concentration.

Draths, a chemistry major from Morton Grove, Illinois, also said she considers her grades to be the product of a lot of hard work. She added, however, "I'm certainly not in the library any more than my measure of intelligence. It's really just how good you are in school."

Thompson, who plans to attend divinity school at the University of Chicago, said that added, however, "counting concentration.

Leary said she recently tallied the highest score in the College's history on her business comprehensives.

All Saint Mary's students are required to pass departmental comprehensives in order to graduate.

Draths, who plans to attend graduate school at Stanford University, intends to pursue a doctorate and eventually enter either industrial research or the teaching profession.

She has also been active in the chemistry club at Saint Mary's and served in student government during her freshman and sophomore years.

Draths and Leary are coordinating their speeches. They said they will address the whole idea of commencement and its meaning for the entire college as well as the senior class.

Notre Dame and Saint Mary's both choose their valedictorians based on cumulative grade point averages.

Mary's co-valedictorians Mary's and Saint Mary's students are awarded their diplomas at a surprise.

At Notre Dame, the topic of his commencement day speech is to be a surprise. "The element of surprise gives it more of a dramatic impact," said Thompson.

Leary, who has been involved with the Toastmasters and accounting clubs, said upon graduating, she will join the Kimberly-Clark Corporation in Connecticut as a financial assistant.

Visiting South African priest Father Basil van Rensburg criticized University President Father Theodore Hesburgh and the newly-elected Board of Trustees chairman for the board's vote not to divest business in South Africa at its May 9 meeting.

Referring to the board's condition that it would divest if there is "further deterioration in conditions in South Africa," van Rensburg said that Hesburgh is "unable to tell us what constitutes a deteriorating factor."

"Is he unable to say whether the death of one black man would be sufficient or if it must be 10 black men," said van Rensburg, speaking in an interview earlier this week.

Van Rensburg, who ended his 29-day fast May 7, contended that newly-elected chairman Donald Keough is also unable to say what constitutes a deteriorating factor. "It's time now for Mr. Keough to come out and explain this to the blacks of South Africa."

Van Rensburg said that Hesburgh does not advocate divestment because "he is in the back pockets of corporate power. They say to him, 'No more endowments if you move in the divestment path.' "That frightened him."

The visiting South African priest said that Keough does not support divestment because he is president and chief operating officer of Coca-Cola Co., a business which van Rensburg said reaps huge profits from the sale of its products in South Africa.

Van Rensburg said he was not allowed to address the board, but only the board's investment committee. No dialogue was permitted, however.

The 55-year-old priest said he ended his protest before the board met because the fast was "Christian-initiated" and was "never meant to be a pressure instrument."

Van Rensburg, who stands almost 5 feet 9 inches and weighs 210 pounds before his fast, said he lost 36 pounds during his protest but feels "beautiful," adding that the fast actually improved his health.

Despite the board's vote against divestment, Van Rensburg said his fast was still worth it.

Liquor store files suit against ND student

By MARK PANKOWSKI

Newshour Bureau

A South Bend liquor store has filed suit in Circuit Court seeking damages against an 18-year-old Notre Dame student who allegedly bought alcohol using false identification.

Bullseye Discount Liquor, 713 Lincoln Way West, is suing Patrick McKeever of Alumni Hall for buying alcohol using false identification card to buy alcoholic beverages from Bullseye on Feb. 8, said Fedder.

Excise officers apprehended McKeever outside the establishment, Fedder said. As a result, the liquor store was fined between $300 and $400 and now "has a blemish on its record for Mr. Keough," said Fedder.

The state liquor law violation also forced Bullseye to absorb the cost of attorney's fees and long-distance telephone calls, he said.

"It's an incredible amount of time and distance that people have to spend on this lawsuit, which seeks $1,000 in compensatory damages and $2,500 in punitive damages, he said. The punitive damages are being sought for reasons of deterrence, said Fedder. "It's about time people know that there are consequences for this type of actions. My clients cannot afford them."

Fedder said he knew of no previous cases in Indiana in which a liquor store sued a minor for using false identification to purchase alcoholic beverages.

Letters to a Lonely God

Joseph is an aspiring theology major who likes to ask impossible questions. "What would you do," he asks me, "if you had a positive proof that there is no God?" One of the things that play into the game of Faith Critic by his rules, treating his wild hypotheses as though they were defensible. It is hard to prove anything, pro or con, about the existence of God.

"Nothing would change," I answered, "except that I would have to try harder." Joseph has no idea how often a priest flies blind. He was very taken with himself out of disappointment, if God disappeared from my radar screen.

He said, "Wouldn't you like to prove that there is no God?

"Love wouldn't change. Responsibility wouldn't come easily. "So are I'm only curious to know how you'd feel if you found out no God:"

"Maybe as a relative atheism, I'd pray less," I admitted. "If you pretended the way to keep hope on its toes, I'd pray twice as much."

I was starting to hear the defensive in this dumb confession. I said, "Joseph, you're arguing as though believing were a form of gambling in which you're afraid of backing the wrong horse."

"You'd laugh Frank."

"I'm a very good Catholic, he reminded me. "I go to Mass every Sunday. I'm only curious to know how you'd feel if you found out that religion is a hoax, and you'd be waiting your time."

"It's a gamble," I said. "I'm gambling on a sure thing. If I would have lost, there would be no God."

"What would there be to hope for in a godless world?"

"Germs drifting on the wind are also invisible but I have no fear, love and the other emotions. The visible world is controlled by things that the eye can see."

Another sister is on the way.

That's why all of us would need to petition, tattling, blood and guts?'

They're your friends. They're your friends that you can totally depend on - you can tell them anything, the worst things you couldn't tell anyone but family."

The McCarthy's are definitely the traditional right-knit Irish Catholic family, and they say that Frank has made them even more so. "We were having four friends, but the social scene is even closer-knit now," said Frank.

Kathleen grinned and commented on her siblings. "They're friends that you can totally depend on - you can tell them anything, the worst things you couldn't tell anyone but family."

The McCarthy's stick together through their own family jokes. Mike told, "Girls come up to me and Frank - You're not wise - and I say, 'We're not brothers. That really throws a wrench into it.'"

Speaking of sticking together - the last BP formal was ruled by the McCarthy's. "No one has ever come between Frank and Mike," added Kathleen. "All four were there plus Mary set up the entire first floor with her friends. They'd had a blast," grinned Mary.

Basically, it works out really well, guaranteed social moral, and it's only the Sons of Holy that don't know the more they could want. "These guys say that their friends are the ones they can't lose," added Kathleen. "They have people looking out for me at every party."
Separate Ways

What a bell of freedom rings within our soul. Exams are over, graduation is near, summer is here. It is a time to celebrate. An end to these golden days at St. Mary's and Notre Dame finds us going our separate ways. The last few days together now seem so much harder than the first. It is a time to remember all that we shared, but also a time to say goodbye. So much lies ahead... with laughter and sadness we go our ways...

Hickey chosen president

William Hickey, former vice president and dean of faculty at Saint Mary's and two-time acting president of the College, was chosen as ninth president Feb. 28. Hickey was selected president after a year-long search following the resignation of John Duggan.

Switek/Montanaro win

The ticket of Mike Switek and Don Montanaro upset the highly-favored ticket of Jim Domagalski and Laurie Bink for Notre Dame student body president and vice president in a run-off election March 6. Switek and Montanaro, using crayons as a campaign tool, received 2,112 votes or 51.7% of the votes cast. The margin of victory was 142 votes.

Divestment disputed

Should Notre Dame and Saint Mary's divest from corporations doing business in South Africa? This question prompted much interest from students facutly and administrators. An October rally, Board of Trustees and Board of Regents meetings, faculty resolutions, student referendums and the fast of a South African priest characterized the campus reaction to the divestment issue.

Student Senate attacked by student leaders

In October five student leaders called for the Student Senate to disband, complaining the senate had ceased to be the legitimate voice of the student body. The senate, however, survived HPC criticism and two student referendums as three attempted student government restructurings failed.

Healy recall fails

A group of students collected approximately 600 signatures on a petition in its first day in an attempt to recall former Student Body President Bill Healy and Vice President Duane Lawrence. The group, numbering approximately 50 students, circulated the petition titled, "A Real Beginning" but abandoned their attempt after meeting with Healy.

Paretials punishments spark much debate

The severity of punishments levied on Notre Dame students who violate participal sparkled campus debate, as the HPC, Judicial Council and various students attempted to lessen the penalties. The dispute was prompted by a paretials case made public. The Campus Life Council debated a change in the Lus but took no action.

Hurley injured in accident

Notre Dame freshman Kevin Hurley was seriously injured when a hit-and-run driver struck him on U.S. 31-33 near Saint Mary's and Notre Dame in the early morning of Sept. 7. After an extended hospital stay, Hurley visited Notre Dame for an Tosal weekend.

Dillon Hall punished

Dillon Hall forfeited one of its SYR's and was required to perform a community service project in October as the result of a "private tailgater" in Ann Arbor, Mich. on Sept. 14. Several complaints about the tailgater, which included the hall's fight song and bright red flag, were made to the admnistration.

Fire damages Grotto

A fire swept through Notre Dame's Our Lady of Lourdes Grotto during the early morning hours of Sept. 23. The fire, ignited when the candles in the Grotto overheated, caused substantial damage to the campus landmark. The Grotto was later restored after several days of work.

Observer books

On Sept. 18, a group of 12 student leaders requested to see The Observer's 1984-85 financial statements. Their request was prompted by The Observer's increase in advertising rates. The Observer declined to honor the request, saying it was accountable to students through the University's Budget Unit Control system.
Faust announces resignation

Suddenly, what everyone had expected for so long came to pass. At his weekly press conference on November 26, the bemused and embittered Lou Holtz announced his resignation. The news caught the campus and the rest of the country by surprise. But instead of relief, the emotion of the day was sadness. Faust's "Dream come true" had come to a disappointing end.

Out with the old... In with the new

Just as suddenly as Faust's resignation, Lou Holtz was named as his successor the next day. In fact, the process of naming Holtz as the 25th Irish football coach began within hours of Faust's announcement. By midnight on the 26th, Holtz and Notre Dame Athletic Director Gene Corrigan had worked out the deal, and by early the following morning, Holtz accepted the job of trying to reverse the Notre Dame football program to national prominence.

UALR women whip Notre Dame

By playing an almost perfect game, the Trojans of Arkansas-Little Rock knocked Notre Dame out of the NCAA tournament in the first round with a 90-83 upset victory. Little Rock shot 79 percent in the second half and 62 percent for the game to send the Irish home early and dash the hopes of an NCAA title for four Irish seniors.

Irish upset Syracuse

Syracuse, the third best team in the nation, was defeated by a score of 126-73. This was the second-worst loss in their history. The victory before 12,738 fans was sandwiched between tough losses to then top-ranked North Carolina and number-one Duke.

Fencers win NCAA titles

The men's fencing team captured Notre Dame's first national championship since 1978. The Irish fencers also brought home the crowns. The Irish gained revenge by handing the Irish a 58-7 defeat. Two weeks after the second straight Irish victories.

Relay team sets mark

Notre Dame's two-mile relay team of John McNiel, Robert Nobles, Jeff Van Wie and Jim Tyler set a Notre Dame record with a time of 7:21.11, earning each of them All-America status at the NCAA indoor track championships. The time was one of the sixth best in NCAA history but was good only for third place in the race as the Irish finished behind Arkansas and Georgetown.

Irish gain revenge, sort of

The last loss of the football season was on everyone's mind when the Irish basketball team visited the Hurricanes of Miami. Notre Dame gained a small measure of revenge with its 126-73 thrashing of the Hurricanes, the second-worst loss in their history.
Family promise passes from parent to child

As the foundation of who you are and what you believe, the family promise plays a vital role in the development of the person you will become. The promise is to be there for the journey, to support and encourage you through the highs and lows, and to help shape the person you will be.

Joseph Murphy
David Stephenich

Family as a promise kept

The promise is a commitment to help you reach your potential as a person, a Catholic, and a citizen. To give to you not only what they were given from their parents, but more.

In a world in which so many promises are broken, this one has been kept. In a world where hope, belief, for you and the next generation, you and your parents, you have guided them with the same amount of love and concern with which they guided you. Give them the attention and devotion they gave you. As the ink dries on your degree, think of Robert Louis Stevenson's words: "Lord, our God, we will come, we will stand assembled. We thank Thee for this place in which we dwell; for the love that unites us; for the peace accorded us this day, for the hope we expect the morrow."

After reflecting upon these words, Richard Evans was moved to write: "The family is the foundation of society, the family is the broken bond is broken... If you go from here to your future and the Notre Dame community. To the students, for it is your own, it is fun-

A good example of this was when students were called to voice their opinion over the lack of minority issues. Consequently, senior Capt. Dave Fleck formed the first Apartheid Network chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. This minority issue also prompted a wave of letters and columns in The Observer and was the spark for more than a few heated conversations.

Apartheid Network, which sponsored lectures, debates, protests and weekly meetings on the steps of the Administration Building. Apartheid Network, the South African protest movement, is a high profile around here.

everything. But the fact that students would try to vote a student government leader out of office, or that students would try to stop the board of regents from making a decision, is an indication of the student body's awareness of the need for an active role in the university's political life. Additionally, the apathy of the great majority of students, and the apathy of the student government, makes the problem on campus all the more crucial.

Senior year is over now and we are the new kids on the block. Wherever the block may be. Behind us is our last football game and finite courses. The future looks like a whole range of possibilities and new experiences await us whether we are going to graduate school, working as an engineer, or joining the Big Eight.

Between packing our rooms away and trips to the Dunes, my future roommate and I have been to Chicago a few times recently. In December we went to see "The Replacements" at the already loathing the traffic is heavy and parking is almost impossible to find. We think we have found an apartment.

Big city, new jobs, future, here we come. Just like as freshmen four years ago, a whole range of experiences and education is ahead, looming frighteningly and excitingly real.

Notre Dame has left its legacy on us, however. While we leave with the skills and knowledge to apply to new jobs or further education, there is more to be thankful for. Our education hasn't all come from books and classrooms. That type of education certainly isn't the only reason to come to a university like ours. Universities are only as good as the people who make them up, not the books they use. What we call the Notre Dame family are all these special people.

Beyond professors and administrators are the people who are really responsible for our education. Our parents and siblings. They provided the love, encouragement and coffee that helped us keep us going when times were tough, and the fun when they weren't. Parents are in a special class by themselves who seem to be incapable of sacrificing anything, especially when they aren't appreciated as much as they should be, and the students are grateful and probably are their education and career fulfillment too. They love us and are proud of us.

Good friends share in our joy also. They are the ones who stick by us and committed to us over the last four years. And they are the ones we will want to stay in touch with in the years to come.

Abbie Hoffman noted this when he was on campus this year. He discovered that the "apathy of the students is graduating with a B.B.A. in accountancy."

Hurler offers thanks for Irish Clover award

Dear Friends:

I'm sorry it took so long, but thank you very much for the "Irish Clover" award. It just puzzled me, as I'm sure there were many other eligible people.

It's exciting to be the recipient of the same award as Gerry Faust. He might not have a successful coach for Notre Dame football, but he did it up right, and he did it well. This award means a lot to me. Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Kevin Herbr Notre Dame freshman

Bookstore XV tourney adds to rich tradition

Dear Editor:

Despite the best attempts of South Bend weather to stop it, Bookstore Basketball XV is history. For my part I washed it end with mixed emotions. When I took the job of tournament commissioner, I was told altertoately, that it was "the best job on campus" and "ten weeks of constant hell." Now that the dust has settled, I am ready to admit that I loved it.

Bookstore is a huge operation and I had a lot of people working with me who helped to ensure that the near chaos never quite got out of control. These people put in a lot of long hours. They need our recognition, but without them Bookstore XV couldn't have been the success that it was.

First and foremost, my assistant commis­sioners, Carol Cavalieri, Gina Herbers, Dan McFarland, and Chris Brown, who put in long hours on and off the courts and made my job much simpler. Matt Laven, Donna Wycoff, and Wendy Worthen saw to it that the work was handled on time and to the best of their abilities. They and the other workers made my job much easier.

The biggest problem then was getting the word out to students. There were a lot of things we did such as putting in long hours on and off the courts and making sure the game was well attended.

In the end, the tourney was a huge success. Because of the efforts of the students, the tourney was a huge success. It was the best job on campus and ten weeks of constant hell.

Last year I would like to offer my personal thanks to the students of the South Bend area. I was proud of the way the tourney turned out and I am proud of the way the students handled themselves.

Kovaleski named capt. of '86 Irish

By MARTY STRASEN
Assistant Sports Editor

Mike Kovaleski, a senior inside linebacker, has been elected captain of the 1986 Notre Dame football team. The vote, conducted at the close of spring drills, was made by his teammates.

Unlike past years, the Irish will have only one captain.

Mike Kovaleski

"That's the way Coach Holtz decided to do it, and everyone on the team respects that," said Kovaleski. "It's his decision and if he wants only one captain, then that's how many there's going to be. I'm just glad to be the one.

"It's just a great honor for me to be selected, especially since there's only one captain this year. That makes it an awesome responsibility.

"I'm really looking forward to next year," continued Kovaleski. "Being captain is going to put some extra weight on my shoulders, but it's not anything that I can't handle. If it was, I wouldn't have accepted the position."

The 6-2, 218-pound native of New Castle, Ind., has started in 29 games during his career, including the 1983 Liberty Bowl and the 1984 Aloha Bowl. Kovaleski finished second on the team in tackles last year with 95 after leading the team with 108 his sophomore season and third with 62 in his freshman campaign. As with the rest of the returning seniors, Holtz is looking forward to good things from Kovaleski.

"I've said that for us to have any success this fall, our seniors are going to have to play the best fall of their careers," said Holtz. "As captain, Mike will play an instrumental role in making that happen. He has earned the respect of his teammates because of his contributions the last three years, and I know he has earned the respect of everyone connected with the program because of his dedication and enthusiasm and the fact that he has played hurt on numerous occasions."

White to Miami

Former Notre Dame Assistant Sports Information Director Eddie White has been named Publicity Director for the Miami Dolphins.

White served four years as Notre Dame's assistant SID.

White will assume his duties with the Dolphins immediately. No announcement has been made on his successor at Notre Dame.

Asst. A.D.
Petro goes to Virginia

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

After eight years as an Irish coach and one year as one of Notre Dame's assistant athletic directors, Sharon Petro will be trading in her office for a classroom and the Golden Dome for the Rotunda of the University of Virginia. Petro will study for her doctorate in sports psychology at the Charlottesville, Va., school.

"I'm terribly excited," said Petro of her move. "It's a chance to do something different. It's something I've been interested in doing for a long time."

Sharon Petro

Petro joined the Notre Dame coaching staff in 1977 as head coach of the women's basketball team. She finished with a three-year career record of 49-20, including an Indiana AAUWA state title.

Petro was also coach of the women's tennis team for seven years. Her career record stands at 49-49, including two NCAA Division II third-place finishes in 1981 and 1984 and second-place finish last year for which she was named the Division II coach of the year. In addition, Petro's tennis squads won two North Star Conference championships and three Indiana state titles.

This year, Petro joined Athletic Director Gene Corrigan's staff, where she served as a liaison with the North Star Conference and worked with Notre Dame's women's sports.

"I hate to see her leave, she's a heck of a gal," said Corrigan. "But this is something she's wanted to do. I'd like to hire another woman to replace her. I've had a few of the athletes visit me, and they said they appreciated having her there. If I can find someone who's had the same playing, coaching, and administrative experience, then I'll hire her," he added.

Petro is a graduate of Wayne State and holds a masters in health and physical education from Eastern Michigan and a masters in science in administration from Notre Dame. With the degree she is now seeking, Petro is anticipating work in a new area.

"I want to get back to working with athletes as well as the administration," says Petro. "I'd like to work as an academic advisor like Mike DeCico does here. I'd like to work with coaches and players, help with emotional problems - more than just teach forehands and free throws."

"It will be a little scary, though, going back to school after 20 years."

Nobles, still have a shot at qualifying for the NCAA's when they run at the IC4A's and at the Central Collegiate Championships.

"I need a good race (1:48.10) to qualify," said McNelis. "I feel I'm capable of making it."
Led by seniors, women’s tennis won 3rd-straight NSC title

The Notre Dame women’s tennis team began the year with little optimism. First-year coach Michele Dasso was inheriting a team that finished second in the Division II NCAA tournament last year, losing the top two players on the roster. That hole, leaving only six names on the 1985-86 roster, would have to be replaced by walk-ons. The spring schedule would also be beefed up a bit with the team making the transition to Division I status. Despite those looming obstacles, the Irish proved tough and came away with a combined 12-6 winning percentage and captured the North Star Conference crown for the third year in a row.

Frosh key men’s year

Going into a season with four freshmen is quite a risky proposition. But Notre Dame tennis coach Tom Fallon made it safe a bit this year and it resulted in a 23-9 record. The Irish finished the season with victories over Butler, 8-1, and Eastern Michigan, 7-2. Once again, Fallon’s freshmen led the victory parade as Brian Kalfas, filling in for the injured Dan Walsh at the number-one singles spot and Tim Carr won twice to go with one win apiece for Dave Reiter and Tony Cahill.

Fallon says the freshmen were the key to this season’s success. "Our freshmen really came through for us this year," he says. "That was one question mark going into the season, but they would be very good.

Now that the Irish have defeated this season produced an 18-6 ledger in all the girls, and I hope they know how much they will benefit from this experience.

Michele Dasso (Sunnyside, Wash.) to compete in the American Conference teams, so we’re really made this progress.

The Irish will not have anyone competing in the NCAA Championships, but their win to Rochester, N.Y., to compete in the Eastern Collegiates May 24.

While the season was quite a success, Fallon says he expects even more progress next year.

"We should be a lot better," he says. "We have nearly everybody coming back.

That should make a lot of opponents quite uncomfortable.

Senior Service Mass

All students to whom service has been a part of their life at Notre Dame are invited to a graduation day mass in front of the Center for Social Concerns on Sunday, May 18, at 10:30 am.
Remember . . .

For many members of the Class of '86, Notre Dame sports have not quite lived up to the expectations they held at the beginning of their freshman year. We were told how good the football and basketball programs were, even though the two teams were coming off 5-6 and 10-17 seasons, respectively. We were told how Notre Dame always won. We were told how exciting things would be.

Jeff Blumb
Sports Editor 1985-86

The success we desired may not have come to pass, but one thing which can never be taken away are the many memories which will remain etched in our minds. Although those memories may not be of trips to the Sugar Bowl or to the Final Four, they are good memories nonetheless.

FRESHMAN YEAR:
Remember . . . the joy of beating Purdue (52-6), USC (27-6) and Boston College (19-18 in the Liberty Bowl), while losing heartbreakers to Miami (21-16), Penn State (34-30) and Air Force (21-22).

Remember . . . Tom Sluby's critical three-point play with 18 seconds left, which sent the Irish to a 32-27 upset of No. 5 Maryland. The senior would continue to lead the youthful Irish all the way to the NIT finals against Michgian, where the Cinderella story came to an end.

JUNIOR YEAR:
Remember . . . the 3-4 start which included the loss to Purdue at the Hoosier Dome, after which the Irish rebounded to win their final four regular season games and a trip to the Aloha Bowl.

Remember . . . all the great basketball games, including the narrow loss to North Carolina in the NCAA tournament. There was the early-season upset of Indiana, the win over UCLA at Pauley, the victories over Washington, Marquette and Dayton in the final week, and, of course, the NCAA tournament.

SENIOR YEAR:

Remember . . . the rollercoaster ride of the football season. After the Irish lost three of their first four games, all eyes were on Gerry Faust as he coached in the final year of a five-year contract. But Notre Dame answered with four straight victories. Three straight losses to conclude the season, including a 58-7 drubbing by Miami, would end any chance of a post-season bowl or renewal of Faust's contract.

Remember . . . the disappointing end to the brilliant careers of four Irish seniors, when tiny Arkansas-Little Rock upset the Irish, and Duke, both of which were ranked No. 1 at the time Notre Dame played them.

IN GENERAL:

Remember . . . Gerry Faust's grace under fire.

Remember . . . Allen Pinkster's class as all the attention was on Faust, while he was breaking numerous records, including the all-time rushing record.

Remember . . . the thrilling moves of David Rivers. How could they be forgotten?

Remember . . . all your other fond memories which there weren't space for here.

Track looks to IC4A's, Nationals

By PETE GEGEN
Sports Writer

Though the semester is over, the members of the Irish track squad are still looking ahead to the climax of their season.

Four big races still await the team. Next weekend six runners will travel to Villanova for the IC4A Championships. The Irish qualified Tony Raganas and Phil Gilmore in the 100-meter dash, Robert Nobles and John McNelis in the 800-meter run, Gary Le Kander in the triple jump and Van Pearcy in the 400-meter run. Jeff Van Wie also qualified in the 88-meter hurdles, but a foot injury will keep him out of the race.

The team will then travel to Evanston, Ill., on May 30 for the Central Collegiate Conference Championships. At least one runner's season will continue into the month of June. Jim Tyler has qualified for both the NCAA Championships and the TAC National Championships in the 1500-meter run. If Tyler places in the top six at the NCAAs, he would end up a two-time All-American. He achieved this honor in the indoor season as a member of the two-mile relay team.

Tyler knows that he can run better than his 3:42.16 qualifying time at the National Invitational. "I hit the 1200 meter mark at 3:00, but I wanted to hit it at 2:57," he said. "I had to kick a lot harder at the end. I'm still working towards reaching my peak. I haven't hit it yet."

Tyler will face stiff competition at the NCAAs. One runner he will focus on is Terry Brahan of Indiana, who edged him by half a second in a race earlier this season. The TAC Championships will feature the best runners in the nation, both collegiate and club. In this race Tyler hopes to make the finals, which would give him a shot at joining a club team after he graduates.
