South Bend woman pleads guilty in Kevin Hurley accident charges

The woman charged with driving a car that struck and killed Kevin Hurley a year ago has plead guilty to the charges.

Hickey estimated that Saint Mary's is much more likely to become actively involved in her education and in her college community: to take leadership roles during her college years and afterward; to select and pursue a major in chemistry, economics, mathematics or physics, and to be an achiever in her field no matter what her major; to earn a doctorate and to go to medical school.

Hickey said the study at a women's college is much more likely to become actively involved in her education and in her college community: to take leadership roles during her college years and afterward; to select and pursue a major in chemistry, economics, mathematics or physics, and to be an achiever in her field no matter what her major; to earn a doctorate and to go to medical school.

Hickey emphasized that Saint Mary's has continued to grow and prosper, despite the problems private institutions faced in the latter part of the 1960s. The said that of the 268 independent women's colleges that thrived just 20 years ago, approximately 100 remain open today.

Hickey, who visited with the student at a local school, said local classes are possible in January. The date of Kevin's return was not announced at Notre Dame, according to the student's family.

Kevin Hurley's return to Notre Dame as a student are still very, much alike, according to Richard Hurley, Kevin's father. "This is what we are moving towards," he said.

Although Kevin was unable to begin studies at a local school this semester in preparation for returning to Notre Dame, Hurley said local classes are possible in January. The date of Kevin's return was not announced at Notre Dame, according to the student's family.

Kevin's cognitive rehabilitation and an operation that prepared Kevin's amputated leg for fitting with an artificial limb prevented his enrollment at a local school this semester, said Hurley.

The 12-hour operation, performed Aug. 1, involved the transplant of muscle tissue from Kevin's left to his stump, according to the leg that was amputated as a result of injuries sustained when Kevin was struck by a car last September as a freshman.

Five student residences burglarized since beginning of the school year

By TRIPP BALZT

Five burglaries of Notre Dame student residences located in the Northeast Neighborhood have occurred since the beginning of the school year, according to police reports.

Break-ins were reported at the following locations: 103 N. St. Louis on Aug. 14, 510 N. Hill on Aug. 22, 708 E. Corby on Aug. 26, 625 N. Howard Ave. on Aug. 26, and 702 N. St. Louis on Aug. 27.

The house at 702 N. St. Louis has been burglarized four times in the last six months, according to Sgt. John McCullom of the South Bend Police Department.

Although there has been no increase in the number of burglaries, the police said they felt there is a greater need for student awareness on dealing with off-campus crime. The police plan to meet with students to discuss ways to prevent becoming victimized, McCullom said.

The university distributes pamphlets and answer questions at a meeting to be held at the Northeast Neighborhood social center, 605 N. Howard Ave., on Aug. 27. McCullom said the best way to combat crime, "I pray that I will be able to do something to help those who are now in a situation if I can remember them."

Kevin Hurley said he will not do any art projects or movies while he is in jail but will continue to work on his book about his experiences with the accident and injuries he sustained.

"The eight-hour days are easy compared to the others," said Hurley. "Five burglaries of Notre Dame student residences located in the Northeast Neighborhood have occurred since the beginning of the school year, according to police reports."

Lebanon, not Libya may be linked to terrorism in Istanbul synagogue

Associated Press

ISTANBUL, Turkey Premier Turgut Ozal said yesterday that the two terrorists who killed 21 worshipers and wounded four at Istanbul's main synagogue may have been linked to Lebanon, not Libya.

Conflicting claims of responsibility were made on behalf of Palestinian, Shiite Moslem and Arab unity groups, but police said only that the attackers were Arabs.

After locking the synagogue's main door and firing on the Jewish congregation Saturday without submachine guns, the gunmen killed themselves with hand grenades.

Ozal told reporters Sunday, It seems this attack doesn't have anything to do with Libya but with Lebanon. He refused to elaborate.

Libya said Sunday that it harbored no hostility against Jews and said it disapproved of attacks on such innocent people.

The task of identifying gunmen and victims continued Sunday.

Jak Veisid, an adviser to Chief Rabbi David Assed, told a news conference that police had identified all but three of the victims, including two rabbis who were conducting a Sabbath service.

Veisid said a single funeral service for the victims was tentatively set for Wednesday at the synagogue.

Officials said all the victims were men and most were elderly. The youngest was 33. All were Turkish except for one Italian and one Iranian.

We are feeling shock, sorrow and sadness after this situation, Veisid said. But we (Israelis) are a very, very secure community in Turkey. This act will not change anything in our situation.

Thirty-eight percent of Turkey's 46 million people are Moslems, with only 22,000 Jews.

More than 100 people gathered Sunday outside New Shalom Synagogue. Inside, dried pools of blood, scraps of human bone and charred skullcaps were on the floor.

Twisted metal lay on the lectern next to scorched velvet-covered chairs used by rabbis.

The clock struck 9:17 a.m., the time of the first explosion. The prayer service Saturday had been the synagogue's first since reopening after two months of repair following a fire.

Anonymous callers to news organizations in Cyprus, Lebanon and Ankara variously claimed responsibility on behalf of the Palestine Liberation Organization, the Islamic Resistance Movement, the International Fighting Front and the North Arab Unity Organization.

The Islamic Resistance is a code name used by the Shiite Moslem group Hezbollah, or Party of God, believed to be loyal to Iran. Another caller to a Western news agency in Beirut on Sunday denied that the Islamic Resistance was involved.

The three other groups were previously unknown.

Iran's Prime Minister Hussein Musavi was quoted Sunday by Tehran radio as saying the synagogue attack was unacceptable.

The radio said the Iranian government was monitoring the explosion in Nicosia, Cyprus.

sity of Notre Dame President Fa­

Prior to the inauguration, a procession from the Great Doors of LeMans to O'Laughlin Auditorium was led by Richard Pilger, professor of chemistry and physics, and marshal of the College. He carried with him the presidential medallion that was later presented to Hickey.

Pilger was followed by a majority of the college's senior class, attired in caps and gowns. Behind the seniors were members of the college's faculty and administration, holders of honorary degrees from the Col­

cially to experience. Heller also emphasized how successful, recognizing and honoring of Saint Mary's graduates are clear reflections of what students expect from the College. She explained to Hickey that the tradition of students putting faith into him will continue for future generations.

Hickey echoed her addresses by congratulating Hickey on his of­ icial inauguration day, and wishing him luck on the future of Saint Mary's under his leadership.

Hickey was also congratulated by George Gallo, Jr., Clash professor of history at Notre Dame, who told of meeting Hickey when he (Hickey) was a graduate student at the University. He praised Hickey's graduate thesis, and explained that it was then that Gallo recognized a future leader.

MAYOR Parent congratulated Hickey for his accomplishments and the college's contributions to the South Bend community.

American journalist charged with espionage

Associated Press

MOSCOW - American reporter Nicholas Daniloff was charged with espionage yesterday, state-run television said, a charge that under the Russian criminal code could carry the death penalty on conviction.

Daniloff was believed to be the first foreign journalist ever formally charged with spying here. Daniloff called the Moscow office of his magazine, U.S. News & World Report, and told reporter Jeff Trimble that he had been indicted in a legal proceeding at Moscow's Lefortovo Prison at 2 p.m. Trimble said.

He told his colleague he had been charged under Article 65 of the Russian Federation Criminal Code. This article states that those committing espionage shall be punished by deprivation of freedom for a term of seven to 15 years or by death.

Trimble quoted Daniloff as saying he did not know when a trial might take place, but that he was told the investigation of his case could take six months or even nine months if there were extraordinary circumstances.

"My case is moving into a more serious phase," Trimble quoted Daniloff as saying in the 20-minute call. The charge of espionage puts it on a par with another case we know about.

He was referring to Soviet U.S. employee Gennadiy Zakharov, who was arrested in New York on Aug. 23 on an espionage charge. Daniloff's wife, Ruth, has claimed her husband was framed in retaliation for Zakharov's arrest.

Daniloff, 52, was arrested Aug. 30, moments after a Soviet official had met with him in an office on the eleventh floor of the State Security Committee building at 7 p.m., in Moscow.

A commentator on the Soviet television news program Vremya confirmed that Daniloff was charged. But gave no details.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerashimov told CBS-TV's Face the Nation program on Sunday that a trial would be held soon but gave no date. Gerashimov spoke from Moscow via satellite before word came that Daniloff was charged.

In Los Angeles, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said President Reagan is reviewing all options. "We want Daniloff's release and we want it immediately," Speakes told reporters in a briefing at the White House.

"I think the president is deterred to see a successful resolution of the matter," said Speakes. "He regards it as serious... we're concerned.

Speakes added: "We will continue to review all options but we can do no to influence the execution."

Daniloff is innocent," Speakes told reporters earlier Sunday in Santa Barbara, Calif., where Reagan was vacationing. He reiterated that there will be no trade of any accused Soviet spy for Daniloff.

U.S. officials in Washington have said the Reagan administration proposed that Daniloff be freed in exchange for releasing Zakharov into the Soviet ambassador's custody pending his trial.

However, U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz on Friday ruled out an outright swap of Daniloff for Zakharov.

Mrs. Daniloff said of the charge, "I'm terribly disappointed, but I'm taking heart from President Reagan's letter. She was referring to a message Reagan sent last week to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev asking that her husband be freed.

As long as this is proceeding, it's putting Reagans and Gorbachev's personal relationship on the line. This is going to have to be resolved at a very high level," Mrs. Daniloff said.

In Washington, U.S. News & World Report Chairman Norcross Zuckerman said, I think it's an outrage that is going to have a substantial reaction in this country, and I suspect and believe there should be retaliatory measures if he is in fact put on trial.

Zuckerman, speaking on Face the Nation, called the charge a total framwrap and added, "Nick Daniloff is no more a spy than John Wayne, and he's no more involved in espionage than Gidget. This whole thing is ridiculous."

FBI agents meet Pan Am survivors

Associated Press
FRANKFURT, West Germany A special Pan Am jumbo jet landed in Frankfurt Sunday with 217 survivors of a hijacking in Karachi, Pakistan, which killed at least 15 Americans, including three Americans.

FBI agents investigating the daylong Friday hijacking were at the airport to meet and talk to the 44 Americans on board the plane, if they have evidence to present, said State Department spokesman Michael Bias.

The plane arrived at 7:10 p.m.

An Indian man was the first to come into the airport lounge, where soft drinks, coffee and cheesecake awaited survivors. It was a harrowing experience, said the man, who refused to identify himself. We had a horrible time.

After a brief stopover, the plane was to fly to London and New York. Pan Am officials said 72 passengers would leave the plane in Frankfurt, 18 in London and 127 would go on to New York.

Four hijackers, believed to be Pakistanis, seized a Pan Am jetliner with nearly 400 people aboard at Karachi airport early Friday and demanded to be flown to Cyprus, where they wanted to free jailed Pakistani terrorists.

The hijacking ended 17 hours later when the lights went out aboard the plane and the hijackers fired at the passengers. Pakistani security forces were in control of the plane half an hour after the shooting began.

The Justice Department on Saturday issued arrest warrants for the hijackers, changing them with murder, hostage taking, attempted air piracy and aircraft sabotage.

White House officials said the warrants were issued as a precautionary measure and emphasized that the Pakistani government is in charge of the case.

We want to learn as much as possible to prosecute if we can get our hands on these folks, said Austrian, referring to the FBI involvement.

He said Federal Bureau of Investigation agents also wanted to talk to passengers to learn how to prevent similar hijackings in the future.

Doctors use tuboplasty to aid infertile woman

CHICAGO - In what they say is a medical first, doctors have opened an infertile woman's blocked Fallopian tube without surgery by using the same balloon catheter technique used to clear clogged heart arteries.

If the new technique, called balloon tuboplasty, works, it could save some women from costly surgery to remove Fallopian tube blockages or the expense of legal fertility surgery.

Certification, said Edmund Conlin, a researcher at Mount Sinai Medical Center in Chicago.

Conlon and Drs. Jan Fehring and Norbert Glueck used the technique six months ago to reopen a woman's blocked tube.

The 36-year-old woman's tuba remains open, but she has not become pregnant. Her other tube was normal.

With tuboplasty, a wire guide is inserted into the Fallopian tube to perforate the tube. Then, a balloons tipped catheter is inserted and the balloon is inflated to compress the scar tissue and open the tube.

Conlin, who will report on tuboplasty later this month at the annual meeting of the American Fertility Society in Toronto, said the outpatient treatment takes about 15 minutes and could cost less than $1,000.

Dr. W. Paul Dworski, director of the infertility section at Pennsylvania State University Hospital in Chicago, called the procedure a novel approach that has the potential of saving some women from undergoing major surgery.

Harvard feels pressure
Associated Press
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. - Pressure from government, business, and special interest groups is threatening Harvard University's independence, the school's president said Saturday, near the end of a 350th anniversary celebration.

We are not corporations, not instruments of national security, not militant bodies anxious to force our vision of social justice on the world, Derek Bok told a crowd the president estimated at 17,000 in Harvard Yard. Anti-apartheid groups, including one that forced the cancellation of an anniversary dinner Friday, have damaged Harvard almost $10 million they said was invested in firms doing business in South Africa.

There was no demonstration during Bok's speech, although a faculty member at the rear of the audience held a placard reading "fear's free."

An estimated 17,000 people attended the convocation, the last of three held at historic Harvard Yard as part of the observance at the nation's oldest institution of higher learning. Most were alumni.

The flag at Harvard Business School flew at half-staff to mark the death of a faculty member's husband in the attempted hijacking of a jetliner at Karachi, Pakistan.

Farzana Sattar, the widow of Syed Naseer Ahmad, joined the business school faculty in August as an assistant professor; said Harvard spokesman Peter Costa.

Reagan urges young people to 'say no' to drug use
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. - President Reagan urged young Americans Saturday to say no to drugs and said those who do will be a hero in his book.

The president used his 90-minute radio address to appear for his own people.

I'm going to ask you a favor: say no to drugs, and tell your friends to say no, too.

But he added that he wasn't asking for much more than that, and he suggested that he was likely to be read as a reference book.

He gave no details of what the handbook would contain, but said, Just as surely as it will require the diligence of parents, teachers and principals, beating drugs in our schools will require the involvement of neighbors, community groups, law enforcement officials, businesses, and synagogues.

But most importantly, he added, beating drugs will require the courage and conviction of our young people themselves.

Speaking from his mountain top ranch, Reagan said that over the summer Weeve witnessed a growing national awareness of the war, and that there is no way people can be stopped from being stopped.

He said there was no better time than now, and no better place than our schools for people to get involved in doing something about drug use.

Addressing young people, Reagan said, I know that sometimes it takes all the courage you can muster to just say no, to go against what you know is right, rather than with the pack.

Pope claims recent terrorist attacks have altered hopes for world peace

Associated Press

COURMAEUR, Italy - From an Alpine peak beside Mount Blanc, Pope John Paul II said Sunday that the bloody terrorist attacks on the jetliner in Pakistan and the synagogue in Turkey had turned hopes for peace into anguish.

"It is necessary, without delay, to do everything possible to put an end to the incessant atrocity of hatred and terrorism," the pontiff said during his noon blessing from the 7,687-foot-high rocky peak of Mount Chefle.

From his pulpit facing the nearby cloud-covered snowy peak of Mount Blanc, Europe's highest mountain at 15,711 feet, John Paul said he was praying for the souls of the more than three dozen people killed in the two terrorist episodes. He called the attacks insane.

He spoke of his intense sadness and offered his strongest condemnation of Friday's hijacking of a Pan Am jumbo jet in Karachi and Saturday's attack on a synagogue in Istanbul.

The pope said the terrorists took the blood of innocent victims, blood of traveling brothers, blood of brothers gathered in a place of prayer.

In the face of these horrendous and almost unbelievable events, the yearning for peace turns into anguish, the pope said during his blessing, broadcast live on Italian television and transmitted worldwide by satellite.

The pope then walked carefully along a narrow, rocky path to pray at the statue of Mary the Queen of Peace.

The pope's blessing on Mount Chefle was the feature of his 24-hour visit to the Valle D'Aosta, a French- and Italian-speaking region at the foot of Mount Blanc.

Earlier that day, he flew by helicopter to the Brenva Glacier on Mount Blanc's southern face, at an altitude of about 11,000 feet.

Wearing a white ski jacket over his cape, a cap with ear flaps and white snow boots, the pope stroked alone on the glacier for about 20 minutes.

The pope, an avid skier and mountaineer, was only 23 years old when he first climbed Mount Blanc 200 years ago and said his feat should serve as an example of perseverance today.

The pope also appealed for European unity.

"From the height of this alpine surrounding, which allows the eyes to look at the territories of three different nations (Switzerland, France and Italy), I renew my appeal to Europe to overcome anachronistic tensions and preconceived notions and rediscover the reasons of her unity and the values which made her history great through the course of the centuries," he said.

Switching from Italian to French, the pope said, Near the summit of Europe, where the frontiers join in a grandiose landscape, I repeat my wishes to the men and women of the continent: that they keep the enterprises spirit of their ancestors.

Use of vulgar language commonplace in society

The opening act for a concert I attended this summer cancelled at the last minute and was replaced by a local supposedly successful comedian. During his forty-minute stint, I found about three and a half of his jokes amusing. The other 90 minutes were filled with vulgarity and obscenities.

Mary Berger

footnotes from France

It appeared to me the man did not think any of his jokes would fickle the audience. I think the excuse he used was that language is easier and obscene descriptive adjectives for emphasis. Instead, I heard many of the people around me complaining about his choice of words.

Why is it that the vulgar and obscene words that once brought a bar of soap to one's mouth have become a part of so many people's everyday language? I personally find the extensive use of vulgarity, obscenities and other abusive language factious, not at all mature and unnecessary. When one observes some boys and girls, maybe ages 10 to 11, and their conversation is filled with abusive language, it makes one wonder what kind of job we are doing as role models and what kind of world this is we are all growing up in.

“Illusions”
An interesting year:

Jaspers was a participant in Notre Dame's foreign-study programs in China, Cairo, Egypt, and Jerusalem. Israel had some meticulously planned excursions to spectacular sites, including the Great Pyramid of Giza, and the palace of the Egyptian Pharaohs. Jaspers also attended several language classes, which included the study of Chinese and Japanese. He also visited the Chinese University in Cairo, after spending the summer studying Chinese in the foreign experts institute. The students lived in a nearby hotel. Because of an air line mix-up, Jaspers was sent up for a beginning Chinese class, which he took on a whim, and it was the beginning of a personal journey.

Because of his Arts/Engineering double major, Jaspers will be studying for five years. One of the main things that Jaspers really wanted was to go abroad because possible. Jaspers eagerly volunteered for the program. Five years in the same place can get a bit monotonous and taking a year off right in the middle somewhere else can keep things interesting and keep the monotony down. Jaspers said, 'How did his parents react to his out-of-the-ordinary idea?' "What do you say to someone else like Egypt sounds a bit strange to someone else?" Jaspers said, 'I was more than happy to planning the trip."

The Chinese food was authentic, according to Jaspers, but he also found that there were some misadventures, due to the unstable political situation in the Middle East. He said that it was really beneficial to experience the local culture and to continue to support his idea. A native of LaPorte, Indiana, Jaspers said he found that he could get an idea of what the rest of the world was like by going somewhere to find a different experience, and if you're going overseas, you might as well try for the most different experience you can.' Jaspers said.

Jaspers attended several orientation meetings on the history of China, Chinese culture and the political system in China. It was a rather extensive informational program she said. He also noted that it was at this time that he met the other 10 students taking part in the program. Jaspers left Indiana on June 7, 1985, and traveled by train to California, where he met the group at the San Francisco airport. The group flew from San Francisco to Tokyo, Japan, where they spent the night in a nearby hotel. Because of an airline mix-up, Jaspers was sent alone to another hotel and was left on his own to check into the hotel and order meals. Though he did not speak Japanese.

The Notre Dame group was greeted at the Beijing airport by officials from the Tianjin Foreign Language Institute and were housed in the foreign experts institute. Jaspers was also granted necessary financial aid to make the trip.

The trip to the mountain of Tai Shan, which he described as a beautiful mountain in the Shan Dong province, has had about 7,000 steps carved into it and built upon it's side over the last two and a half millennia. Beautiful scenes written in aesthetics appealing paintings are carved into rock faces and stone posts. Various temples, tea houses and restaurants have been built over the course of the many centuries that Tai Shan has been a tourist attraction. The group actually raced to the top of the mountain, and the trip took a total of six hours. "It was a very close finish, and we were dead two days later," Jaspers said.

Another experience Jaspers related was their roles as extras in a full-length Chinese feature film. The group dressed up in 1920's style clothes and sat behind the main characters in a boxing scene. Their pay for the three hours they worked would be considered plenty by Chinese standards, but was equivalent to five dollars in U.S. currency.

Jaspers left China via the Siberian Railway, traveled through Mongolia, Siberia, Asiatic Russia and Moscow, where they were allowed to tour Red Square, Lenin's Tomb and the Kremlin. He then went through Poland, East Germany, West Germany and eventually the Netherlands, where he visited his brothers, whom he had not seen in seven years.

After spending 17 days visiting with his family, he traveled by airplane to Cairo, Egypt. The first thing he noticed upon his arrival was that Egypt was not the final world. He circled examples of soldiers on the airfield as the plane landed, and army machinery on the airport grounds. The students lived in a hotel, approximately 40 minutes from the American University in Cairo. They shared a common living room, bathroom and kitchen within an apartment suite. They were also treated to daily maid service, including having their beds made.

Jaspers described the city of Cairo, saying it's sort of in a desert, the Nile River Valley, and so there's the excitement in the east and west. Beyond which lies the desert, and the city lies in the valley. It's a situation somewhat similar to Los Angeles, in that the wind seems to blow in. And Cairo has a lot of cars, so it tends to be a bit smoggy. In general, it's good to get away for a year, and now it's good to be back home."

Jaspers said, 'Spent his Christmas in Jerusalem and Bethlehem, and in early February traveled to Tunisia, Israel. The students participating in the Jerusalem program stayed at the Notre Dame Ecumenical Institute center, under University President Father Theodore Roszback, who was asked by Pope Paul VI to create an ecumenical institute for the university. Together many described, 'As a spiritualentina,' he said. The grounds are beautiful, the faculty was excellent, and the staff were warm and friendly."

His visit to the Dome of the Rock was a particularly memorable trip. "It was a beautiful shrine on the site of the old Jewish temple before it was destroyed by the Romans, an absolutely beautiful monument," he said.

Describing the spiritual aspect of Jerusalem, Jaspers said it is the third holiest city in Islam, and the third holiest city in Christianity and the holiest city in Judaism.

Jaspers returned to the United States this past May. 'Yes, I would go back, I think I can appreciate what we have here at Notre Dame, and what I have here in Indiana a lot better because of what I've seen elsewhere, and also I've gotten to see a good deal of the world and how the rest of humanity lives. It was good to get away for a year, and now it's good to be back.'
Awesome Oklahoma blasts UCLA

Associated Press

Most coaches try to stay humble after a major victory, but after his football team crushed fourth-ranked UCLA 38-3 Saturday, Oklahoma's Barry Switzer couldn't restrain himself.

"Our defense played well enough to have a shutout," Switzer said of his victorious national champions and No. 1-ranked team. We were fortunate enough to stop their running game and play five defensive backs most of the time."

While the Sooners' offense amassed 470 yards, 470 on the ground, their defense, led by Brian Bosworth, restricted the Bruins to 38 yards rushing and 121 passing.

Elsewhere among ranked teams, No. 3 Miami blanked No. 13 Florida 23-15, No. 5 Alabama demolished Vanderbilt 45-13 and No. 10 Brigham Young ripped Utah State 52-0.

Oklahoma's sophomore quarterback, Jamelle Holieway, who completed one of six passes for nine yards but was intercepted twice, rushed for 83 yards on 10 carries and scored the Sooners' first touchdown, leading six other teammates, who individually rushed for more yards than the Bruins' team.

Belles nip Oberlin, 1-0, to even weekend mark

The Sallitt Mary's soccer team beat the Oberlin College's women's soccer club 1-0 Saturday at Angela Field to even its weekend slate after suffering a 5-2 loss Friday to Marquette at Milwaukee.

The Belles, whose record now stands at 1-2, played an aggressive game against Oberlin's strong defense, particularly in the second half when the team scored its winning goal.

Colleen Neece, a freshman, scored the winning point late in the second half with an assist by Mellic Meacham, also a freshman. Belles head coach. John Akers was very pleased with Saturday's outcome.

"We played a good passing game with several opportunities for scores," he said. "I was afraid that the players might be tired after the eight-hour trip to Marquette the day before, but we played stronger in the second half than the first."

Saint Mary's did not fare as well Friday in its game against Marquette.

placed tap in to win the serve. A serving violation on Indiana was followed by a spectacular Kathy Baker-to-Merchant-to-Jill Suglich save and score. Two Indiana mistakes gave the Irish a 15-1 lead, and after an exchange of side-outs, Baker hit the game-winner. Lambert said she was thrilled with the team's opening-match performance. "I am just delighted and proud of the way they played," he said. "To do this well against a top-half Big Ten team is a real hoop."

North Dakota's performance against Purdue, however, was not something of which to be proud. The Irish were thumped in three straight games and lacked the edge they possessed the night before.

The first game began with the Irish trailing ahead 5-2 behind strong play from Mary Kay Walter before Purdue answered command. Freshman Kathy Cuminham kept the Irish close, but they finally lost 1-15.

The second game was a series of communication breakdowns, missed serves, and misplaced shots. Those factors finally added up to a sound 6-15 Notre Dame loss.

Cunningham was strong, once again, in the third game, but Purdue was too much to overcome. The Irish made numerous diving digs, only to miss the point-winning shot. That missing link paved the way to a 7-15 Notre Dame loss.

Lambert said his squad's lack of preparedness was the most disappointing aspect of the loss. "We had a golden opportunity to show everyone some of our capabilities and we just were not ready to play," he observed. "We must stay in tune with the business at hand and keep our minds on the floor. We just did not play well at all."

Irish players Cunningham and Maureen Shea were selected to the All-Tournament Team by the coaches. Others selected were Indiana's Karin Rodell, Sharon Strayer of Kent State, and Linda Reichl and Debbie McDonald of Purdue.

Next on the schedule for the Irish is this weekend's Rice Tournament, held in Houston, Texas.
Bears, Skins take wins as NFL begins season

Associated Press

The Chicago Bears, winners in the last Super Bowl and losers in the first one of an instant replay official in NFL history, started defense of their championship with a 41-31 victory over the Cleveland Browns yesterday.

The game was in its third phase when a fumble by Al Gross was credited with a touchdown pass from Schmeider in the first quarter and Bryant's 15-yard touchdown run in the third quarter gave the Bears a 34-14 lead.

Oilers 31, Packers 3

Warren Moon sparked Houston's victory over Green Bay, throwing two touchdown passes and running for another.

Rams 16, Cardinals 10

Eric Dickerson ran for 155 yards and two touchdowns on a career-high 38 carries, leading Los Angeles over St. Louis, running Gene Stallings' debut as Cardinals coach.

In later games, it was Atlanta 31, New Orleans 10; Detroit 13, Minnesota 10; Houston 31, Green Bay 10; Los Angeles Rams 16, St. Louis 10; Washington 41, Philadelphia 14; and San Francisco 31, Tampa Bay 7.

Chicago Bears quarterback Jim McMahon, shown here throwing over Buffalo Bills players (left) Garner (59) and Eugene Merce (54) in last weekend's exhibition game, once again led his defending Super Bowl Champion team to victory, this time with a 41-31 win over the Cleveland Browns yesterday. to come through because we are hurting at the tackle position. In addition to being thrust into an unfamiliar role, Rehder had the additional task of having to improve his over-all strength during the summer.

Having senior Pete Robich 6-7, 262 and senior Tom Riley 6-6, 250 will hurt this summer and we are not finding out about it until the day they reported set us back at tackle, said Holtz. "We were really concerned about center, but he has really taken charge at that position. You're got to be strong down the middle to be a good football team."

Lanza, a 6-3, 255-pounder, has appeared in every game over the past two seasons. "In the back-up positions, which concerns you, we have basically three freshmen on the second team and a fourth that hasn't played," said Holtz. "Junior Tim Hanzus (6-4, 256) is at center and he had a back operation and has never played at Notre Dame. "Our two guards would be freshmen Dean Brown (6-4, 247) and Jeff Pearson (6-4, 242). At right tackle there would be another freshman, Tim Grunhardt (6-4, 240)."

Irish

...Just once a minute into the second half, Sternberg put in a header off a outpatient free kick. But the Irish fell asleep, and Minnesota's Jim Runbust scored off a rebound to end Notre Dame's shutout streak of 1790/2.

...Rongback Paul (bow) finished the scoring on a run down the left side.

As the game wound down, however, Irish captain Steve Lounry bashed the inside parts of both halves, as he was knocked head over heals while contesting a ball. Lounry played an excellent game, winning many free balls and playing solid defense. Augustine was the only other casualty in this weekend's action. He took a keeper's knee to the chest as he went for a free ball in the goal area in the Purdue game. He was held out of the Minnesota game, but he should be ready for the match against Indiana on Friday.

Soccer team turns on heat, takes two wins over weekend

PETE GEGEM
Sports Writer

Just how good is the Notre Dame soccer team? Those who witnessed this weekend’s sweep of Purdue and Minnesota may have found the answer in some beautiful play on the part of the Irish.

The Notre Dame offense exploded for 10 goals in the two matches, beating the Boilermakers, 6-0, and the Golden Gophers, 4-1. And the defense kept the ball out of the net until the second half of the Minnesota game.

But for Dennis Grace, the head coach of the Irish, the victories were not nearly as kind. Grace was mostly upset that his team heads the Hoosier Classic had both of the Notre Dame soccer team’s weekend wins in his story at left.

Purdue blocks Irish hope for home-tourney title

By RICK RIETBROCK

The story of the Second Annual Indiana Classic had a promising beginning for the Notre Dame volleyball team, but the ending was not nearly as kind. The Irish claimed second place in the first round after defeating Indiana on Friday, before falling to Purdue in the championship match Saturday.

Notre Dame plowed through Indiana, which eventually finished third, in three straight games to earn a spot in the championship. Irish head coach Arl Lambert said he was especially pleased for his two seniors, Karen Sapp and Molly Merchant, who had not enjoyed much previous success against Big Ten teams.

"This is really special for my two seniors," he said. "They have been humiliated by these teams so many times. It is nice to turn the tables on them.

In the first game, Notre Dame jumped out of the blocks quickly to assume a 1-0 lead. Kathy Morin led the charge with a pair of aces and a dink to the center of the Indiana defense. The Hoosiers then put on a charge to pull to within three, 11-8, before Notre Dame sophomore Kerrie Renner put down a spike to take a 2-0 advantage.

In recent years, the Irish have boosted their boards on the line without regard to the speed needed to expand the running game. This year, Notre Dame will still have good size, but should be quicker off of the line. The starting unit has been completely rebuilt with only fifth-year senior Shawn Helfert (6-5, 265), returning at right guard. Helfert played in all 11 games last fall, starting in 10.

Helfert did not have a great spring because of a shoulder injury, said Head Coach Lou Holtz, but he did have a fine fall.

Senior Tim Scannell last year and providing some experience. "I could have seen him go with someone other than Mike Szymanski this year," said Holtz.

Tim Rehder (6-7, 243), who started every game in 1985 at right end, has won starting honors at left tackle. "Even though he is very inexperienced there and it is tough to adjust, noted Holtz, "he has got
