Prosecutors offer ‘real world view’ to underaged student partygoers

By BUD LUEPPKE Copy Editor

Prosecutors offered students their own view of “the real world” in student partygoers’ latest confrontation with the law last week in Nieuwland Science Hall.

“I’m telling you about the real world,” said St. Joseph County Prosecuting Attorney Michael Barnes. “If you are under 21 and drinking, you are in violation of the law,” said Barnes.

He said that this law applies whether one is having a glass of wine with one’s parents, or drinking in a house-party or in one’s dorm room. “Notre Dame is not a sanctuary” from Indiana statutes, he said.

Barnes did not have encouraging words for underage drinkers. “If you’re a 19 or 20-year-old sitting with a beer in your hand, you’re a dead pigeon,” he said, and this means one will be cited for violating the law.

Citations may be followed up by one of three possible alternatives, said Barnes. Students may plead guilty, pay the fine and get the record erased.

They may plead not guilty, have a third option called pretrial diversion.

Barnes said pre-trial diversion is a contract between a violator and city government whereby the accused consents to a probation period of six months to a year, pays a fine of less than $50 and does 10 to 60 hours of community service. This completed, the conviction will be erased from the criminal record.

“By doing this, the student gets no record and we get service and we get the fine,” Barnes said.

Director of the Pretrial Diversion Program Linda Scopelitis, also present at the meeting, estimated that 55 to 40 Notre Dame students have opted for pre-trial diversion this year. She said those students who have already paid their fines are not eligible for the program. If they pay the ticket, they get the record erased, she said.

But students questioned the methods police used in issuing those citations. For instance, the breathalyzer... No, the alcolmeter, Barnes distinguished between the two. He said the breathalyzer indicates the level of intoxication and is used in traffic violations. He said the alcolmeter has not proven reliable in detecting levels of alcohol consumption but could be used to detect whether a person, such as a minor, has had any alcohol. Yes, students can refuse it, but police will probably arrest anyway, Barnes said.

Arguing with police will not help matters either, said Barnes. “If you argue (police) a speech on constitutional law, you only up the ante on going to the court,” said Barnes. “The more dialogue you have with police, the more you increase the probability for an arrest. That’s just the way the real world works,” he said.

Entering a house is determined to be criminal cause of a crime being committed, said Barnes. “Ultimately, it comes down to the police officer’s discretion,” Barnes said.

Barnes said dogs were used by police “as a precaution and as a signal of our presence.” Barnes, who is a 1973 graduate of the Notre Dame Law School, tried to give perspective to the student drinking menace. “Once I’ve been here, I’ve had this continuing problem with Notre Dame students and area residents,” he said. He said students should see themselves as members of the South Bend community. “I don’t think being a Notre Dame student carries any special privileges... nor do I."

Hesburgh: Learn from presence of foreign students

By MARK DICKINSON Senior Staff Reporter

University President Father Theodore Hesburgh told students about the importance of international students in our midst at the International Student Organization meeting last night.

Hesburgh said Notre Dame students can benefit from international students by learning new languages, new cultures, and by gaining a broader sense of the world. He also said international students can learn from students at Notre Dame.

Hesburgh addressed International students by saying “I hope you don’t just come here to abduct Americans somewhere... I hope you pass out to Americans some sense of your nation, your people, your culture, and your language.”

He went on to encourage Notre Dame students to go abroad on their own and to learn about their cultures. He also asked students to help support our international students by giving us a speech on foreign cultures.

He asked students to go abroad and to learn about their cultures. He also asked students to help support our international students by giving us a speech on foreign cultures.

Hesburgh thanked the ISO for their efforts and said he appreciated the hard work they put into this. He also thanked theISO for their hard work and thanked them for giving him a chance to show his support.

Hesburgh attributes the beginning of his views about international students to his junior year in college when he was sent by Notre Dame to Rome to earn doctorates in philosophy and theology. He found himself a minority and had to learn Italian, Latin, French, and later German.

After three years of study, Hesburgh had to leave Rome in 1940 because of the German blitzkrieg, but he said the years had a profound effect on his life. Hesburgh said “It came home to me that the world was much larger than Saranac, New York or South Bend, Indiana.”

Hesburgh estimates there are approximately 450 foreign students from 60 different countries at Notre Dame, but he says he would like to see this number doubled. He admits there aren’t more foreign students because of the great expense of coming to school in America.

Delivery of materials, not weather prolongs LaFortune renovations

By ERICH STRAUB News Staff

Despite delay in the delivery of materials, renovation of the Student Union started on schedule at completion in late October, said Don Dedrick, director of the physical plant. Originally scheduled to be completed before the beginning of the year, renovation of the Student Union was delayed because of bad weather and delays in the delivery of materials.

Dedrick said, however, that recent weather had been much more favorable.

“The basement area has been no problem. Our biggest problem has been delivery of material,” Dedrick cited the Huddle as an example. “The Huddle is essentially complete, but we’ve had to wait on delivery of kitchen equipment. It should be here by the end of this week, but it will be a good five or six weeks after that before we’re through.”

Completion of the ballroom, said Dedrick, had been delayed for similar reasons. “The inside of the ballroom has been ready for several months, but we’ve had to wait on delivery of stone for the slabs. It’s just been a struggle to get material delivered on time.”

Presently, most of the construction is taking place in the basement area, with the lounge, barbershop, florist, travel agency, and record store, already opened.

Dedrick stated that he hoped to have construction finished as soon as possible. “I appreciate everyone’s (the students) patience with the delays. I believe everyone will be pleased and enjoy it (LaFortune) when it’s complete.”

Dedrick added that much of the building has been completed already and turned over to the students for occupancy. “The second and third floors are essentially complete, and everyone has moved in as far as I know.”

College hoops is all hoopla

"College athletics are a farce." I was sort of shocked when I heard these words. This was spoken by, of all people, a TV cameraman covering one of Notre Dame’s men’s home basketball games last year.

He and I were sitting in the pressroom. The cameraman was taking a break from shooting highlights for the TV station. I was taking a break from my volunteer job as a statistician for the basketball team.

"All this is made possible by a bunch of teenagers running around playing a game," the cameraman said of the event that was taking place in the arena. The cheering, the crowds, the band, the excitement. All the hoopla. The entire event was meaningless, he said. It was all contrived.

This event seemed to me to be his livelihood. Because someone had controlled this event, he had a job. Yet he said he hated being there. It was all too shallow.

He would still have a job if there were no "big-time" college basketball, he said. There were plenty of real events involving real people out there that he would rather be covering. All he was here was film a few seconds of a fast break here, a glimpse of an ecstatic crowd there.

Every week, major crimes are committed, premature babies are saved by medical miracles, and happy families celebrate their good fortunes. These are real concerns and real celebrations, he said. This is real news; these things are important. But at all these events there were thousands of people around the corner from us in the arena looking in upon the depths of despair and then soaring to the heights of celebration all because a bunch of teenagers were playing a game. One wonders how the first varsity basketball coach at Notre Dame recruited his players. Perhaps he put up a sign in the dinging hall and then stood on a soapbox saying, "I know you all came to this fine school because you are bright and you want to get an education. But maybe five of you would like to have a little fun in your spare time."

Considering the number one priority in our players’ lives. If we hear that a player has failed a test, our first fear is that he may be struggling with his education. Our first fear is for his eligibility.

Traditionally, each Notre Dame basketball season starts out slowly as the Irish play lesser-known and local teams: easy teams. The players study hard in the fall - their second semester eligibility depends on it. Then, after finals are over, the players’ heads belong to the coach.

When the TV cameraman spoke of all this hoopla being for some teenagers playing a game, he didn’t say that they necessarily have any fun.

Students, alumni, and other fans place incredible pressure on the coaches to produce a winning team. And the coaches place incredible pressure on the players. With so many more games to run, situations to cover, and films to watch, there is little time for fun and games.

American, Frenchman kidnapped; Arabic statement labels them spies

BEIRUT, Lebanon - A group calling itself the Revolutionary Justice Organization claimed responsibility yesterday for the kidnapping of American accountant Joseph Cicippio. It also said it was holding a Frenchman whose abduction had not been reported previously.

The claim was made in a statement delivered to the independent Beirut newspaper An-Nahar shortly before dawn.

The handwritten Arabic statement, accompanied by pictures of the two men in captivity, claimed that Cicippio was a U.S. spy and that the Frenchman, identified as Marcel Coudry, worked for the French secret service counterterrorism department.

It accused the United States, France and Israel of "preparing for an aggression against our oppressed people under the pretext of terrorism," and said both men would be put on trial.

The statement, which was translated by the Associated Press, also accused the French government of reneging on unspecified pledges allegedly made in negotiations to resolve Coudry being in Lebanon.

Cicippio, 56, originally from Northport, N.Y., was kidnapped Sept. 12 by four gunmen on the campus of the American University of Beirut, where he was the acting comptroller.

The Revolutionary Justice Organization said it kidnapped Cicippio "in the interest of Christian east Beirut. It did not say when or give further details.

In Paris, a French Foreign Ministry official disclosed that a French citizen named Marcel Rhodari, who had been living in Beirut, disappeared in February.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said neither he nor the victim was related to the abduction claimed by the Islamic Jihad.

The French Embassy official in Beirut said he had no record of a Frenchman named Marcel Coudry being in Lebanon.

An Arab news editor, speaking on condition of anonymity, said an envelope containing the statement and photographs of Cicippio and Coudry in captivity was delivered to the newspaper's office in west Beirut.

Another group, the Arab Revolutionary Cells-Moukhtar Forces, claimed Sept. 14 that it had kidnapped Cicippio and American educator Frank Herbert Reed, 53, of Maiden, Mass., is director of the Lebanese International School. Like Cicippio, he is a convert to Islam and is married to an Arab woman.

A telephone caller Sept. 9 had claimed Islamic Jihad was responsible for Reed's abduction. The pro-Iranian group holds at least three other French and three French hostages.

But Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War, issued a statement two days later, disclaiming Reed's kidnapping and saying that it issues claims only in written statements accompanied by a photo of a hostage.

United Nations' Prime Minister Urges End to Terrorism

In his speech, Chirac said countries have "not always shown the necessary lucidity toward this scourge (terrorism) which some would like to think is the sole means of expression of the oppressed."

"The olde methods it uses, the slaughter of innocent people committed in free societies, the ongoing blackmail over the lives of hostages rule out our confusing, even in some small way, those actions with genuine resistance," Chirac said.

He condemned states "willing to use their power to terrorist organizations' activities or that do not hesitate to use them to their own advantage and even actually encourage them."

French Prime Minister urges end to terrorism

Prime Minister Jacques Chirac of France urged the United Nations yesterday to stamp out international terrorism, which has cost his country nine lives in the past two weeks.

Chirac told the 41st General Assembly that terrorism is the most urgent challenge to the world and requires concrete countermeasures, including joint action to improve security in the air and on the sea.

"The tragic events in Istanbul, Karachi and Paris prove once again that terrorism has become the systematic weapon of a war that knows no borders or seldom has a face," Chirac told delegates.

Nine people have been killed and more than 160 injured in five bombings in Paris since Sept. 8.

Terrorists stormed a synagogue in Istanbul, Turkey, on Sept. 6, killing 21 worshipers. Two gunmen also were killed. Twenty people were killed after hijackers opened fire inside a Pan Am jetliner in Karachi, Pakistan, on Sept. 5.

Chirac reminded delegates that among terrorism's victims are the French, American and British hostages held in Lebanon. Word of another French kidnap victim in Lebanon came yesterday, when a group called Revolutionary Justice claimed it had abducted a man the group called a French secret service agent.

Chirac, who entered the U.S. building behind a phalanx of American security agents, said terrorism "would take us back to ages we thought were long gone. If we allow it a free hand to corrupt democracies and destroy the basic rules of international life,"

"The French prime minister addressed the third day of the assembly's so-called "general debate," which features a parade of government leaders from among the 159 U.N. member states.

Other speakers Wednesday included Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid and Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xuequan.

In his speech, Chirac said countries have "not always shown the necessary lucidity toward this scourge (terrorism) which some would like to think is the sole means of expression of the oppressed."

"The old methods it uses, the slaughter of innocent people committed in free societies, the ongoing blackmail over the lives of hostages rule out our confusing, even in some small way, those actions with genuine resistance," Chirac said.

Panel defines eligibility for new AIDS treatment

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - A panel of experts yesterday finalized criteria on who will be eligible for an expanded trial of the first promising drug treatment for AIDS, but said the information would not be made public until government regulators review it.

Government health officials, academic researchers and representatives of the pharmaceutical company which makes the drug in the National Institutes of Health for several days before finalizing test criteria.

Kathy Bartlett, a spokeswoman for Burroughs Wellcome Co., developer of the drug, said the research proposal would be submitted tomorrow to the Food and Drug Administration.

"According to the FDA, the review process will be completed early in the next few weeks," Bartlett said.

Meanwhile, Otis R. Bowen, secretary of health and human services, told restaurant owners that they should allow employees with AIDS to keep working in their kitchens.

A Burroughs worker with AIDS should only be taken off the job if he said. If there is "evidence of other infection or illness for which any food service worker should also be restricted," Bowen told the National Restaurant Association. "All the epidemiologic and laboratory evidence we have indicates that blood-borne and sexually transmitted infections like AIDS are not transmitted during the preparation or serving of food or beverages."

"No instances of this happening with AIDS have been documented," he added.

After the FDA review of the new Burroughs Wellcome drug, the company's spokeswoman said, criteria for the expanded Investigational New Drug trial will be made public to doctors and those interested in taking part through the toll-free telephone hotline set up to answer questions about azidothymidine, or AZT.

The hotline number is 1-800-843-9568, and it operates every day between 8 a.m. and midnight (EDT).

House defeats bill for local revenue sharing

WASHINGTON - House leaders yesterday night moved to kill the General Revenue Sharing program without a vote, quietly deleting the $3.6 billion for local governments from an omnibus spending bill scheduled for full House action today.

The House Rules Committee, by voice vote and without debate, sent to the House floor a last-minute substitute for the pending $567 billion measure, deleting only the revenue sharing money.

The action required an abrupt turnaround by Rep. Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, who had kept alive revenue sharing in the massive spending package despite Reagan administration and Congress' own voted intention to terminate the program in the fiscal 1987 budget.

Whitten had persuaded his committee to cut other programs across-the-board to pay for revenue sharing.

However, House Speaker Thomas F. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., other House leaders and committee chairman said they opposed extending the program at the cost of others. The federal government, which has been running deficits in excess of $200 billion, can no longer afford to continue passing along money to municipalities, they said. Under pressure from House leaders, Whitten submitted the substitute plan yesterday. "He had no choice," said an aide, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

The rules committee then sent the substitute bill to the floor instead of the original, and banned any floor amendments to add the money back in.

Pot, coke use revealed in survey of doctors

Associated Press

BOSTON - Nearly 40 percent of doctors under age 40 admitted in a survey that they used mari­juana or cocaine to get high with friends, and a quarter of doctors of all ages said they recently treated themselves with mind-­altering drugs.

Overall, more than half the physicians on the survey said they had used drugs at least once for self-treatment, to get high or to help them stay awake.

Only 1 percent of the doctors surveyed said their drug use had ever caused them to give poor care or to abuse patients.

Most physicians use these drugs only occasionally, if at all. But the researchers say medical students and young doctors are more experienced with drugs than are older physicians. And they predict that the proportion of drug-taking doctors will grow as medical students set up practice and take their habits with them.

Barneys said there is no official policy to crack down on Notre Dame parties but that Mayor Par­son's press conference on stu­dent parties last spring was a response to two parties that were "particularly bad."

Barneys said many problems also existed through the non-­Notre Dame parties. Scopellit said the Notre Dame students on-­pre-trial diversion represents a small fraction of the 800 pres­ence on the program.

In an accompanying editorial, Dr. David C. Lewis of Brown Uni­versity recommended more em­phasis on the dangers of drug abuse in medical school. He noted that the study found that the students surveyed had received more formal education about drug problems than had practicing doctors.

"They concluded that the drug use they found "should not be cause for great alarm," be­cause it simply reflects growing drug use throughout American life.

"When psychoactive drug use becomes a fact and is approved by the broad spectrum of society, just about all groups get involved," said Dr. William E. McAl prepaid, the study's director. "That includes physicians and pharmacists as well, the people who are usually the keepers of the drugs."

McAl,piff, a researcher at the Harvard School of Public Health, published his findings in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine. His study was based on a random survey of 500 prac­ticing physicians and 504 medi­cal students in Massachusetts conducted in November 1984.

Claiiborne pleads for tax evasion acquittal

WASHINGTON - Abandoning a five-day trial, federal Judge Harry E. Claiiborne yesterday approved a verdict to acquit him of any tax evasion.

The trial followed a unanimous House impeachement vote earlier this year. The committee of 12 senators hearing evidence will later hand the case to the full Senate for a verdict on whether Claiiborne can keep his lifetime job on the federal bench.

In addition to urging a favorable decision, some officials hope that the tax trial can be completed in time to rescue his own battered life, the 69-year-old Claiiborne maintained that the independence of the federal judiciary would suffer if Claiiborne could be "literally chained from the bench for any reason."

Launching into his theme that he was framed by vengeful federal prosecutors, the judge said, "The biggest danger I can see to the federal courts is if ever there be created a hostile relation­ship between the federal judiciary and the executive branch of government."

65 mph limit OK’d for portions of interstates

WASHINGTON - The Senate yesterday approved a $52.3 billion highway bill that would increase the maximum speed limit to 65 mph on rural portions of interstate roads, but a House chairman immediately responded with a threat to kill the proposal.

"I don't know whether we will go to conference as long as this is in the bill," declared Rep. Jim Howard, D-J.U., chairman of the House Public Works and Trans­portation Committee.

"I don't know how anybody could vote for legislation that could result in so many deaths."

The maximum speed limit on interstate highways is 55 mph.

The provision to permit state legislatures to raise the speed limit from the current level of 55 mph to 65 mph on portions of the Interstate system outside the nation's cities was approved Tuesday night by the Senate.

The lawmakers yesterday approved the bill itself, which would also bar construction of bill­boards along federal highways.

Americans’ labels of Communism are unfounded

One of the things that strikes me most about public opinion in the United States is the fervent anti-communist mood. Frankly, I’m quite shocked at the level of hatred, oversimplification, misinformation and identification when I consider the discussion about communism or the Soviet Union.

Peter Palesch

guest column

Be assured, “Communists” are human beings, just as we are. Surprised? (Kevin J. Smart in The Observer Viewpoint of Sept. 7) you probably are.

What bothers me most in these anti-communist tirades is the often implicit assumption that “we in the West” are the victors. Kevin described the United States and its allies as the moral superiors. We are the good guys, the others the bad guys. And thus we can justify everything we do in the name of anti-communism for example the overthrow of truly elected governments in the cases of Chile and Grenada. The support for so-called “freedom fighters” who specialize in terrorist tactics and falsification when it comes to the war in Central America. What it boils down to is the simple policy of a superpower that does not allow for independent nations in its self-declared security zone. Alone the possibility that such a nation could formulate policies which might be harmful to U.S. interests i whatever these are or whoever defines these is conceived as a threat that has to be eliminated. Is that so different from what the Soviets are doing?

It is interesting to note that in this context the label “Communist” suddenly takes on a new meaning. Everyone who does not agree with and acts against this status quo easily becomes a Communist just in the same way as in the Soviet Union everyone who fights against the almighty state apparatus may be labeled an imperialist agent (with all its consequences). And again, because being a communist is a bad we do not have to be concerned with human rights or democracy while fighting this communism.

Is that our moral superiority? Isn’t the killing of children in Afghanistan as morally wrong as the killing of children in Nicaragua – even if they were “real communists” children? Obviously President Reagan and many in Congress think differently, or probably they don’t care. Another area of supposed proof of Soviet aggression is the arms race. While all we hear about the United States is its need for security, the Soviets are portrayed only as potential aggressors. But don’t they have security needs too? After all they experienced painfully what it means to be invaded and they still haven’t forgotten this. What should they think of the rapid expansion of the U.S. military force in the light of President Reagan’s repeated remarks that the Soviet Union is evil and thus has to be ceased? Shouldn’t they feel threatened by the U.S. quest for being “number one” and answer with increased military spending?

Please, don’t misunderstand me, I don’t want to justify any Soviet action like the invasion of Afghanistan nor am I interested in showing how bad “we” in the West really are. But before we raise the claim to be the good guys, we’d better clean up our own house and realize that both, the United States and the Soviet Union are superpowers playing superpower geopolitics. Therefore patriotic self-righteousness is totally out of place.

SYR is defended as high point of semester

Dear Editor:

At the Michigan game two weeks ago I heard 50,078 fans chanting “Lou, Lou.” Naturally I assumed they were cheering for our new football coach. Ah, but I was mistaken, according to a recent interview, the “Lou, Lou” call was actually for Notre’s anti-alcohol crusader Lou Sarabando.

After reading Fun Boy Lou’s article I found myself in complete agreement. Lou is right. What Notre Dame – nationally known as the Mecca of College social life – needs is more administration involvement in our private lives. The University’s crackdown on fun should not be the result of a self-righteous crusade, but the response to a student’s plea for help. The first question I want to ask Mr. Sarabando is whether he has ever been to an SYR. Those two nights a semester on which he said we act like “Class A jerks” and have the “Dominator mentality” are some of the best nights at Notre Dame.

Cluchey's 531st Performance In 'Krapp's Last Tape' Masterful

Laura Lindner features writer

Rick Cluchey's 531st performance of Samuel Beckett's "Krapp's Last Tape" was a masterful conviction. The audience at Washington Hall, both students and adults, was spiritually and emotionally moved despite a technical breakdown in the sound system.

The intricate spatial arrangement of the stage combined with the mechanical and lyrical details of Cluchey's performance made Beckett's distillated vision of the human condition highly evocative.

On stage

Krapp's Last Tape

Cluchey, appearing in tattered old clothes, was the focal point on a darkened stage advertising a celebration of Beckett, the quintessential writer of the 20th century. Krapp is a mechanism of facial expressions, whose signs and resonating grunts as he enters his dimly lit den composed merely of a worktable, chair and hanging lamp. The audience was in a state of total immersion in Cluchey's detailed use of non-verbal communication.

Cluchey engaged in a series of repetitive, physical and tactical movements and gestures, including a mugged facial expression when confused or concentrating, contrasted with a stark dimensional, almost exaggerated, opening of the eyes when thinking or remembering. All of this pervaded Krapp's systematic eating of banana slices, giving his character an essence of triviality and emptiness.

Performing this comic, but yet depressing, scene with an old, preoccupied man with nothing better to engage his mind, Cluchey brings out the essential props, a reel-to-reel tape recorder and a series of boxes. At this point Krapp is in the activity that consumes his waking hours. He looked up at a particular tape in a book that indexed each spool. His 39th birthday, "box 3, spool 5." It was at this point Krapp utters his first audible word, revealing in the word "spool" and cataloging the topics of the tape. When Cluchey began to play the tape, the sound system unfortunately failed to produce causing a break in the performance.

Despite technical difficulties, a great show continued flawlessly. In the play Krapp is a 69-year-old man confronting his 39th birthday. While listening to the tape, the audience learns that the man at 39 is not the same man as he was 10 years ago because he has given up all vision of his "Opus Magnum." He wants to turn to the time when he was happy with a woman and despite following 883 such women in the play. It is evident Krapp is a frustrated alcoholic. In his final tape at age 69, he can only laugh sarcastically at the tone of his voice, his facets of a deprived human condition.

During his third visit to Notre Dame, Cluchey is masterfully teaching his audience a play of a failed human being, written and directed by Beckett. Although this version which Cluchey brings to Notre Dame has differences from the published text, Beckett, the foremost playwright of the absurdist theatre, has succeeded in compressing his message by stripping the essentials, making "Krapp's Last Tape" a true poetic and mechanical expression of aging. Cluchey is a man who is incarcerated by his failed past, emphasized by his physical swag of alcohol and mugged facial expressions, trapped in the shadows of a meaningless life and Rick Cluchey's masterful performance of this Beckett character will long be remembered as theatrical genius.

Maureen Anne Teresa Kelly sported the infamous "May the Lord be with you." Katie Davis also gave some suggestions to encourage the alluring nun vocation. Instead of calling it celibacy they suggested calling it masculinity. They also suggested changing Convent to Condo.

When they started ranking the qualities to look for in a great Catholic institution, the show became depressing. Number one was a nationally ranked basketball or football team. Kelly and Davis also commented that Notre Dame is no longer Saint Louis Or Holtz, is it?

Number two, a good matefemale ratio. Number three, bars no further than 20 feet a part. At least they ranked Notre Dame number one as far as Catholic college for sports. We have that going for us.

The question remains will we ever get to heaven? I think so. see you there.

Growing Up Catholic’ Not So Bad

Katie Sullivan features writer

Growing up catholic doesn't necessarily sound exciting. But it was humorous when Maureen Anne Teresa Kelly and Richard Glen Michael Davis, the two authors of the New York Times bestseller "Growing Up Catholic," turned our Catholic lives into a three-ring circus during their hour of comedy at O’Laughlin Auditorium last night. It was interesting watching a group of so-called Holy Molies waiting to hear their faith get kicked around. But then again, haven't we always wanted to laugh at our absurd Catholic upbringings?

It was one religious crack after another when the opening line was "May the Lord be with you." Kelly sported the Infamous girls uniform of 100 percent polyester with an understated plaid, peter-pan collar and snazzy pearl snap. Davis, in his conservative blue blazer, casually described his apparel as "the Vatican fall wear, for that matter spring, summer and winter wear too."

The non-pain last and forth dialogue between Kelly and Davis had the entire crowd envisioning the absurdities of their early parochial school days. For instance, a Nun’s favorite word: "NO!"

Remember practicing for your First Communion with pickles or slices of quarters? The days when you would go home and play “Mass with the neighborhood kids? Or how about going to confession and forgetting the "Bless me Father for I have sinned..."?

Amidst all the knockings of Catholic quirks sat the only Nuns favor expression: "Bless me Father for I am sick..."

The question remains will we ever get to heaven? I think so. see you there.

ND-Purdue series trivia contest

Special to The Observer

Notre Dame and Purdue have met 57 times in one of the oldest intra-state rivalry in college football. To recognize this long and prestigious series, University Food Services is sponsoring a Notre Dame-Purdue trivia quiz as part of its Monday Morning Quarterback Breakfast to be held Sept. 29.

To enter, simply answer the questions below and turn them in no later than lunchtime Saturday to the checker stands. Contestants may enter as many times as they wish and all entries must have the contestant's name, address and phone number. Winners will be announced at the breakfast. In case of a tie, a drawing will determine the winner.

First prize is a $25 gift certificate from Competition Sports Shop, and a pullover shirt from the ACC Pro shop, and third prize is a $10 gift certificate from Fanfare Sports Shops.

Door prizes will be awarded at the breakfast.

1. What trophy is presented to the winner of the Notre Dame-Purdue game?
2. When was the last time Purdue played at Notre Dame Stadium?
3. When was the last time Notre Dame went into the Purdue contest ranked No. 17?
4. When was the last time both Purdue and Notre Dame ended the season in the Top 20?
5. What was Aron Parchegian's record against Purdue? Dan DeVine's? Gerry Faust's?
6. In a losing effort against Purdue in 1967, phone home run became famous. Gerry Hanstoffler attempted a single-game record 82 passes. How many passes did he complete?
7. The longest fumble return against Notre Dame was by a Pontiac, Texas. Terry Hanstoffler attempted a single-game record 82 passes. How many yards did he complete?
8. Which Purdue coach had the most victories over Notre Dame?
9. Which quarterback-receiver combination had the longest scoring pass in the series' history?
10. When was the first game between Notre Dame and Purdue played?
11. Which Purdue coach had the most victories over Notre Dame?
12. Name the player, the year and the yardage of the longest kickoff return for a touchdown in the series?
13. How many games have ended in a tie?
14. Who was the first quarter-back in the history of Notre Dame football to defeat the Irish three times in his career?
15. On September 25, 1971, at Rose-Acre Stadium, Notre Dame scored on a blocked punt with less than two minutes remaining in the game. The Irish won, 8-7, on a two-point conversion. Describe the extra-point play.
The Dolphin defense “high schoolish”

Associated Press
MIAMI - The adjective “high schoolish” was thrown out by a coach and a player in describing the once proud Miami Dolphins defense.

Another member of that shell-shocked corps was kinder, comparing the way he and his cohorts are paying to his earlier stint with a first-year professional expansion team.

The Dolphins have given up 111 points and 444.7 yards per game in their first three games. In 1973, by contrast, the Dolphins gave up only 250 points the entire season.

With a 50-28 loss to San Diego and a 51-45 overtime loss to the New York Jets. Miami is the first team to give up 50 points in more than one game in a season since the 1967 Denver Broncos. The Dolphins now have 13 games to establish a league record of 35-point debacles.

The 1-2 start from San Diego and a mental error and let a guy go down the field on you, you feel stupid. That’s high schoolish.”

Judson said. “When you do all that you can, you’re going to get beat sometimes. But when you make a mental error and let a guy go down the field on you, you feel stupid. That’s high schoolish.”

He said the Dolphins need to concentrate on the positive, and look at films of past games when they have played well.

Veteran safety Lyle Blackwood also is preaching the power of positive thinking. But he admits it’s hard to be positive after giving up 1,061 yards in two games.

The only situation similar to this for me was at Seattle when it was an expansion team,” said Blackwood, a 14-year veteran playing with his fourth NFL team.

Young tennis squad heads for tournament

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

After an Improved performance at its own Irish Invitational Tournament last weekend, the underclassmen-dominated women’s tennis team faces perhaps its toughest competition of the fall this weekend in the Midwest Intercollegiates at Evanston, Ill.

The tournament, which starts today, is an individual-flight competition of 64 singles players and 32 doubles teams. Even though team points will not be recorded, the Irish will run up against players from some of the top schools in the country — including defending champion and host school Northwestern, currently ranked seventh in the nation.

“It’s a tough field. There will be teams from the Top 20 and some from the Top 10,” said Head Coach Michelle Gelfman. “It’s not a team competition. It centers on individuals, so there’s not as much pressure on the individual to score points for the team. They’ll be playing more relaxed than they usually do.”

Competing with players from high-caliber teams like Northwestern in the fall season will bring some needed playing experience to an extremely young team.

Four freshmen, second-seeded Stephanie Totsch, third-seeded Alice Lohrer, sixth-seeded Resa Kelly, and eighth-seeded Patty O’Byrne, will be among the eight students playing in the tournament. Two more, fifth-seeded Natalie Illig and seventh-seeded Julie Sullivan, are sophomores.

Junior Michelle Dasso is the top-seeded singles player, and fourth-seeded Tammy Schmidt is the lone senior on the team.

“We’re really in the process of rebuilding and revamping the team. I think we’ll come up with a record that will be very respectable by the end of the spring season,” said Gelfman. “(The freshmen) have the opportunity to be outstanding tennis players as their four years go by.”

The Irish can look at last weekend’s Irish Invitational as one big step of improvement. After disappointing losses in dual matches to Illinois and Miami of Ohio the previous week, Notre Dame rebounded with a solid showing in its own tournament, which, like the Midwest Intercollegiates, is an individual-flight tournament. Although team scores were not recorded, the Irish would have placed second or third among the five schools which participated.

“I was very impressed with the way we played. We really capitalized on our doubles play a lot more than we did in the past, and it seemed to pay off,” said Gelfman.

Notre Dame’s doubles teams are Dasso and Totsch, Lohrer and Illig, Schmidt and Kelly, and Sullivan and O’Byrne.

Even though the Irish face a difficult fall schedule, Gelfman said her major concern is the team’s spring season.

“The fall season is an adjusting season for us. Even though we play a lot of matches the fall, the heaviest part of the schedule is in the spring,” said Gelfman.

Freeman now starting in new offensive role

By MIKE SZYMANSKI
Senior Sports Writer

Most people react change initiatially, but eventually find that the things turn out for the better.
That is exactly the story of Notre Dame left guard Tom Freeman.
Freeman, a 6-4, 265-pound sophomore, came to Notre Dame as a defensive lineman his freshman year, but did not see varsity action. Jerry Faust then had a suggestion.

"At the end of freshman year," said Freeman, "I was at linebacker when Coach Faust first asked me to move to the offensive line. I liked defense through, and at the time I thought I had a better chance to play
there." "When we returned after summer, Faust told me that I would have to beat out Byron Spurrell and Tom Rehder to play on defense, and after the first week of practice, he decided that I was needed on the offensive line.

"He told me that I would never make it if I continued to rebel." Not being the type that makes trouble, Freeman accepted his new duties, and he has not looked back since.

"I changed my goals," said Freeman, "now I really enjoy the position. It takes great concentration since you have to think about every move. It takes more control than defensive play, and the precise nature of the position is a challenge for me."

Generally speaking, defensive linemen are mean, slightly nailed, intimidating players on the field, but Freeman does not see them in that light. "They don't scare me, because you can't stop us as Michigan learned." SMU noseguard Jerry Ball, Outland Trophy and Lombard Award candidate, is regarded by Freeman as the best player he will face.

Freeman brings added quickness to the run-blocking game as his main attribute. "For me, the biggest thing I need to improve is technique," said Freeman.
Fortunately, Notre Dame offensive line coach Tony Yelovich is a stickler for technique.

"If you are going to be good," said Yelovich, "you have to have the fundamentals." Yelovich carries a wooden stick at practice, often inserting it in the space between linemen in order to measure line splits. "Freeman has a great attitude, good work habits, and a tremendous effort.
Like all of our linemen, he is still in a learning process, gaining experience fast."

The Irish offensive line appeared to be a question mark before the season began because of the lack of experience.
But Notre Dame rolled up 192 yards rushing and 455 yards total offense, against a highly-touted Michigan defense, and 341 yards total offense against Michigan State.

"People forgot that last year, the second team offense moved the ball and scored against Notre Dame. It is easier to then make it if I continued to rebel.
"Not being the type that makes trouble, Freeman accepted his new role, and at the time I thought
I had a better chance to play
there."

Part of the reason for Notre Dame's offensive success is the incredible schemes of Lou Holtz and Com party. "It was very, very intimidating at the beginning when they threw the whole offense at us in three days," said Freeman, "but it became a matter of practicing over and over again."

"We used to have a quick and a strong side, where the strong side would switch according to the tight end. Now, only the tight end switches, this you get to know the person your Megan the block, and from there it moves.

"Our biggest asset is our enthusiasm as a unit, we have to work in order to win, people do give up just because we are Notre Dame. It is easy for people to get discouraged, but it has not happened. People along the way the losses have helped us to work harder than we would have if we were undefeated."

"Coach Holtz told us that the difference between us being 2-0 and ranked fourth in the country is two plays."

two months off of that. I'm so anxious to play but I have to be calm and realize it will all come one day.”

For now, Jefferson will have to be content with running through block drills and working with the prep team to give the Irish defense a look at their upcoming opponents. Although there is not much real contact involved - Jefferson’s knees still lack some of the required strength for that - it is has been encouraging nevertheless.

“It feels great to get back in and run the plays, for there was always that thought lingering in my mind that I wouldn’t make it back,” said Jefferson. “I have another year of eligibility now and I have thought about coming back constantly. A lot will depend on how I do this year.”

What about the fumble against Michigan? “I don’t see it in my dreams, I don’t really even remember it,” he said. “I guess when something traumatic happens, like they say, you forget about it. I’ve never even seen it on tape yet. But after I get back in the game, then someday I’m going to want to see it and I will.”

That is, if the determined Jefferson isn’t too busy watching the highlight films of his inspiring comeback.

EXTRA POINTS - Notre Dame will play before a national television audience for the fourth straight week on Oct. 4 when it travels to Birmingham, Ala. for a game with the third-ranked Crimson Tide. ABC-TV picked up the option on the game and scheduled it for 2:30 p.m.

ND soccer team ups record to 7-2 after 10-0 shutout of Blue Devils

By BOB KEMPER  Sports Writer

The Notre Dame soccer team upped its record to 7-2-1 yesterday with a 10-0 thrashing of DePaul at Alumni Field.

Jared Juslin, who has dominated the game throughout, and utilized great team play, DePaul, which fell to 2-1-4, trails in the series between the two schools, 5-0.

Junior midfielder Joe Sternberg led the scoring barrage by recording a hat trick of his collegiate career. He added two assists to go along with his three goals. Senior goalkeepers Hugh Breslin registered the shutout. He was credited with only four saves. Two were on a last-cap attempt, open-field stops on breakaways.

Coach Dennis Grace was quite pleased with the team's effort. "We are pretty much injury-free now, and since the setback at Michigan State the guys have been pretty hungry," commented Grace. "It was a great performance. I wish everyone could have played today."

For unknown reasons, the DePaul head coach decided not to save the seven-man substitution limit. The Irish controlled the ball so effectively, it contained at most entirely to Notre Dame's perimeter. Perhaps the Irish had 35 shots on goal compared to four for the Blue Demons was glaring testimony to Notre Dame's dominance. In addition, the Irish had the benefit of 14 corner kicks.

Freshman midfielder Rolfe Behrje began the scoring onslaught at 15:20 of the first half with an assist by sophomore midfielder Randy Morris. Sternberg quickly responded with two goals at 21:20 and 26:29 assisted by state blocked one point and watched as Notre Dame missed another field goal and sent a quick-kick spotting 15 yards to set up a cross.

These miscues proved to Holtz just how important it was to get his special teams ready. And the fact that Notre Dame head coach Art Lambert is not certain whether the Boilermakers' effort was due more to a good relationship among the Purdue rushers or a bad one between the Punt kicker and his teammates, he said. "I can't think of anyone who really had a good night tonight."

The stepniness showed at the very beginning of the match. The Irish fell behind early, 3-7, because of poor timing on attacks and several missed serves. Then Kathy Cunningham brought the Irish back with a series of kills and wins that put the Notre Dame out 10-9.

The Irish went on to post a 15-10 victory.

The Irish finally came away with a 9-3 lead.
