U.S. lacks anti-terrorist strategy, study says

Associated Press

WASHINGTON: Despite reams of rhetoric and multi-million dollar budgets, the United States has no effective strategy to cope with the increasing threat of terrorism and guerrilla warfare, according to a Pentagon study.

The report says the U.S. effort to protect its interests around the world is hampered by bureaucratic infighting and the inability of U.S. leaders and agencies "to comprehend the nature of this type of conflict." The report was prepared over the past year by a joint team from the Army and Air Force. There are no plans to publicly release the document, although a copy was made available to the Associated Press.

While the authors were military, the report also looked at civilian agencies such as the State Department and the Central Intelligence Agency. The report said it was intended as a starting point with which the U.S. government could understand the problem and wasn't designed "to recommend those few relevant 'fixes' that would settle this bothersome problem once and for all. As such, the project is not a blueprint but a dialogue."

More and more, the study noted, U.S. interests around the world are being threatened by "low-intensity conflicts," a term used to include terrorism and guerrilla warfare of the type being waged in Central America, the Middle East and the Philippines.

"As a nation, we do not understand low-intensity conflict," the study concluded. "We respond without unity of effort, we execute our activities poorly, and we lack the ability to sustain operations."

America's vast and powerful military machine was built to fight a nuclear war or a large-scale conventional war, particularly in Western Europe, but was not structured to cope with the current situation, which the report notes is "neither war, nor peace."

A central feature of the Reagan administration's foreign policy has been to strike back at terrorists who hit U.S. citizens, such as with the bombing raid on Libya earlier this year. The administration is also supporting guerrilla groups around the world that are fighting Soviet-backed forces, particularly in Central America and Afghanistan.

But there is no overall policy, the report says, warning that "a comprehensive civil-military strategy must be developed to defend our interests threatened by a range of low-intensity conflicts around the globe."

This must be crafted in comprehensive terms, not focused on a single conflict or on a single de- partment. It must integrate all the national resources at our disposal, both military and non-military, lethal and non-lethal, "it said."

Many recent U.S. efforts have been undermined by failures, the study noted.

Soviets display dormant nuclear test range

The journalists and official es- corts left Moscow on Friday in a special Aeroflot Tu-134 jet to the city of Semipalatinsk in the northeastern corner of Kazakhstan, about 370 miles from the border with China.

A smaller plane ferried the group from Semipalatinsk to the garrison for the test site, an unnamed and uncharted town along the Irysh River. From there the visitors traveled by Mi-8 helicopter over salt lakes and herds of wildfowl to the foothills of the Ogatain range.

Rusted piles of abandoned ma- chinery and huge natural granite formations crumpled by the force of earlier nuclear blasts give the stopes the look of an open-pit mine.

Rusted rail tracks run to cor- rode iron doors closing off unused tunnels bored for tests. The moratorium was declared on the 40th anniversary of the Aug. 6, 1945 nuclear attack on Hiroshima, Japan by the United States toward the end of World War II.

Before the moratorium, all So- viet tests on the site were carried out in shafts bored horizontally into the granite, said Gen. Arkady D. Iyenko, commander of the test zone area.

A new tunnel was built for each test, with the length depending on the strength of the blast, Iyenko said.

He said that the Soviet Union has strictly observed the 1974 threshold treaty with the United States, which limits the two powers to underground explosions of no more than 150 kilotons. A kiloton equals the explosion of 1,000 tons of TNT.

The United States has declined to join the test ban, with government officials citing as one reason the need for continued testing to maintain the efficiency of existing weaponry.

Iyenko said he could not ac­ cept U.S. arguments that no fully reliable means yet existed for monitoring nuclear tests.

Since July, two American sci­ entific observers and a team from the Soviet Academy of Sciences have been operating three monitoring stations near Semipalatinsk.

Freshman struck by car

By MARK PENKOWSKI

A Grace Hall freshman was in fair condition at St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday night with bruises and a fractured jaw suf­ fered when he was struck by a car.

Witnesses said Craig Gundersen, 18, was hit by a car as he crossed South Bend Avenue near Corby Boulevard about 12:35 a.m.

Director of Notre Dame Security Rex Rakow confirmed that the driver of the car, a Notre Dame student, was arrested on charges of leaving the scene of an accident without a driver's license.

Tom Rask, a Grace Hall freshman who witnessed the accident, said Gundersen was about halfway across the street when "the car came out of nowhere and hit him."

Rask said Gundersen was knocked upward by the car's front grill, and then was struck again by the top of its windshield.

Soviet High Rector Father Gerald Lardner said Gundersen suffered fractures of his upper and lower jaw in the accident.

Lardner said doctors wired Gundersen's mouth shut for surgery on Saturday, and Gun­ dersen will have to eat through a straw for the next six weeks.

Lardner said doctors did not know when Gundersen would be released. "They just want to see if everything is going along OK," he explained.

Rask, a friend of Gundersen who explained to him at the time of the accident, said he visited Gun­ dersen at the hospital Saturday night.

"He's doing OK. He said he was very sore," Rask said. "He doesn't remember the accident at all."

Rask added that Gundersen was disappointed that he couldn't watch Notre Dame's game against his brother and three friends visiting from Wisconsin. All of them were with him at the time of the accident, Rask said.

The highest ranking Com­ munist official to defect to the West is coming to Notre Dame.

Romsalid Spasowski will dis­ cuss his sudden defection and his life in Poland at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Washington Hall.

Spasowski, former deputy foreign minister and a two- time ambassador to the United States, requested asylum in the United States after Peru granted him im­ posed martial law in December of 1983.

"Our goal at the beginning of the year was to get really good prominent speakers," said Steve Georgi of the Ideas Ini­ tiative Commission of the Stud­ ent Activities Board. "In the past, they hadn't been very impressive. This (Spasowski) is very worldly and has met with very high places out there. This is very up-to-date on what's going on in Poland now."

We will speak about his rise in the Communist Party, said Georgi. In his au­ tobiography, "A Liberation of One." We received a good review from the agent. (Spasowski) tells a dramatic story and is very interactive. He is very responsive to ques­ tions," Georgi said.

Tickets for Spasowski's lec­ tion will be available at the door and in the Cellar of Lafortune for $1.
Non-varsity Domer Runs

too much in the fast-lane

The Non-Varsity Athletics Domer Runs are not what they used to be. An epidemic of over-competitiveness has reached another "just-for-the-fun-of-it" sporting event.

Non-Varsity Athletics sponsors a three- and a six-mile run each semester. The Domer Runs are in the fall, followed by the Irish Spring Six in the spring. A small entry fee is required to cover the cost of the T-shirt that each finisher receives.

The number of entries has averaged around 200, consisting of students, graduate students, faculty and staff. Sunday's turnout was good, but it certainly was a different crowd.

A major change this year was the introduction of dorm competition. For the same fee, at least four runners could sign up together, representing their dorm. Unfortunately, over 100 dorms registered, but only four dorms actually ran.

One of the great features of the earlier runs was the spectrum of ability that came out on a Sunday morning. The latest edition was moved to Sunday, after the football game. Former high school track stars, occasional joggers, women, men, students and non-students showed up in every condition from being a model of superior fitness to being hung-over. The "real" runners could go and win the handful of trophies, while the rest of us worked on personal records, ran with friends, or simply stayed conscious long enough to cross the finish line.

I am a great runner. I just started running the summer before my freshman year, after overcoming a phobia of muscle cramps. (If you've never run it's too late to worry. They go away in a few weeks.)

What attracted me to my first Domer Run was the challenge. Having never run six miles before, I didn't know if I could. This motivated me to train harder, and I ran what turned out to be my best time ever. Each run after that I did worse, but I kept coming back. I enjoyed the crowd as well as pushing my body to the limit.

Several others had the same attitude about the run. As runners pass each other on the grueling two-mile stretch of the golf course, I received several encouraging words. "Keep it up... don't give up yet... and you're doing great" mean a lot when your legs are spaghetti.

I ran a slow pace in the other races. I never had to worry about humiliation. Everyone supported everyone else all the way to the end. The runners that brought up the rear got the biggest applause at the finish line, sweetening their personal victory. I told Chris, who I suckered into entering without a goal, to run the same pace as my friend Terry Sweeney, Randy Quaid and Danltra Vance. - Associated Press

62 people killed in Beirut clashes

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon- Christian militia hardliners crushed a cometback attempt by an ousted, progovernement Syrian commander Sunday in 24 hours of street battles in Christian east Beirut, which police said killed 62 people and wounded 198.

Fighting began at dawn Sunday when about 600 supporters of Elf Hobeika, former commander of the Lebanese Forces Christian militia, stormed across the Green Line dividing east Beirut from the Moslem western sector.

"The last pocket of resistance was mopped up at dawnbreak, when 12 infiltrators from Elf Hobeika's supporters surrendered," said a communiqué issued by the Lebanese Forces, the nation's largest Christian military.

Police confirmed that loyalties of Lebanese Forces Commander
Samir Geagea defeated the pro-Hobeika attackers.

There was no word on the whereabouts of Hobeika, who was ousted from the command of the Lebanese Forces by Geagea's hardliners Jan. 15 for signing a Syrian-sponsored peace pact with Moslem militia leaders. President Amin Ghneid, himself a Maronite Catholic, was among the Christians who felt the accord's power-sharing provisions conceded too, much to the Moslems.

One report Sunday, not considered, said Hobeika was in Chitoua, the Bekaa Valley town which houses the command headquarters of 25,000 Syrian troops stationed in Lebanon under a 1976 peacekeeping mandate from the Arab League.

The collapse of Hobeika's thrust consolidated Geagea's position as the strongest of Lebanon's 1.8 million Christians.

Pro-Geagea militiamen in armored personnel carriers and jeeps mounted with 106mm recoilless rifles on Sunday patrolled all four residential districts where street fighting raged day Saturday.

Hundreds of residents trapped in basements and bomb shelters by the fighting cautiously ventured out to take stock of losses, which police estimated at about $10 million.

New tax code mixes reviewed

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- There were glory predictions Sunday that the new tax code awaiting President Reagan's signature will be an economic disaster, but supporters of the sweeping package dismissed such talk as sour grapes from special interests.

"As the special interests have been used to rely on their special preferences and deductions and so forth, they've moved to this argument that this is going to mean the end of Western civilization as we know it," Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said on ABC: "Let me tell you something, it is not."

But a day after the Senate, by a 74-23 margin, gave final congressional approval to the broadest overhaul of the federal tax code in a generation, politicians and economists still argued over the impact of the changes on the nation's economy.

Concerns for the economy have been raised because the bill would repeal the investment tax credit, a major job-creating incentive for the past two decades, and shift $120 billion in taxes from individuals to corporations over the next five years.

The bill also would slash individual and corporate rates: In 1988 the top individual rate would drop to 28 percent, the 46 percent maximum corporate rate would fall to 34 percent. Several deductions and exclusions would be reduced or eliminated.

Individual tax rates will be cut by an average of 6.1 percent by 1988 when most provisions will be in effect. But 20.4 million couples and individuals will pay more. Their lower rates will not make up for the loss of deductions.

MINNEAPOLIS- People who need counseling can turn to an increasing number of telephone therapists who offer their clients the convenience and privacy of not having to leave their home or office.

Psychologist Marilyn F. Mason operates Tele-Psych Inc. in Minneapolis and says many of her clients are executives too busy to visit her in person or concerned about being seen entering a psychologist's office.

Some psychologists, however, are not sure that such services are in the client's best interest.

"We have some concerns about doing therapy in this way," said David H. Mills, ethic director of the Washington-based American Psychological Association.

"Our ethics code says psychotherapy is done in the context of a personal visit."

The association has no rules governing telephone psychologists, who have been cropping up across the country in increasing numbers, Mills said. But guidelines will probably be adopted by the end of January, he said.

The names used by telephone psychologists, such as Shrink Link in New York and Dial-a-Shrink in Los Angeles, are troubling, Mills said.

"But he added: "we are more interested in what they are doing the things they are calling themselves."

Mason, who opened a traditional practice in January and added telephone service in May, changes $20 for the first 10 minutes, $11 for an additional 10 minutes, payable through major credit cards. For an hour chat, her fee is $75. $5 more than she charges for an office visit.

Unlike Mills, Jacqueline Bouthoynus, a UCLA psychology professor and founder of the Association for Media Psychology, a sub-group of the American Psychological Association, said she isn't bothered by telephone psychology.

She equates it with radio psychology, which she said the public percieves as educational rather than therapeutic.

"Back in the '70s, there was a concern on the part of a lot of mental health professionals that this kind of advice giving might be deleterious to listeners and or callers," Bouthoynus said.

Then in 1981, the American Psychological Association lifted its ban on radio psychology.

"One would think in five years, since the ethics code was changed, that the possibility of damage would have surfaced," Bouthoynus said. "The assumption is if the phenomenon is not helpful it is at least innocuous." Insurance companies cast a wary eye on telephone counseling.

Richard C. Imbert, president of American Professional Agency Inc., a major writer of mental health malpractice insurance, said he would cancel the policy of any psychologist he learned was doing telephone psychology work.

Mason maintains that telephone counseling differs little from the work of traditional psychologists.

But she is quick to point out the limitations of working by phone, and her flyers say she makes referrals when necessary.

"I make sure the patient isn't offering therapy by telephone. You can't give therapy in two or three minutes that's not credible," she said.

WRIGHT CITY, Mo.- Scores of officers hunting a former mental patient accused of three murders visited a vacant trailer home Sunday, the seventh day of the search, authorities said.

The officers, hunting with bloodhounds and a helicopter, found no trace of Michael W. Jackson as of 9 p.m., said Hail Helterhoff, agent in charge of the FBI's St. Louis office.

Officials made a door open on the trailer home, but they weren't certain if it there had been a break-in, he said. Evidence collected from the trailer was being sent to Jefferson City for analysis, Helterhoff said.

Officers blocked off the area, and some residents were kept away from their homes while the search for the armed fugitive was being conducted.

The bearded Jackson, 41, has been at large since Sept. 22, when authorities say he began his three-state spree of murder, abductions and theft. Fears about him shuttered the calm of this eastern Missouri community of about 1,200 people, and residents began arming themselves and locking doors.

Earlier Sunday, vultures were seen circling over a wooded area near where Jackson was last seen, and about 50 officers combed the area. Nothing was found.

"We have several reports of buzzards circling," said Highway Patrol Sgt. Jim Lee. "Their choice of prey I guess you could say would be decaying animal remains. They are known to sort of zero in on (dead) possum, animals, humans, whomes."

Lee said about 50 vultures were circling a section of woods "just west of where he was last seen."

Officers began their search at dawn Sunday in the southwest city limits and an area further south, said patrol Sgt. Ron Wedemeyer.

"I think a lot of people are starting to wonder," If Jackson isn't dead, Lee said. "You ask them (officers searching on foot) their opinion, and it's about 50-50."

Lt. Roy Foss of the Highway Patrol said about half of the approximately 100 officers who had been searching for Jackson were given the day off Sunday. He said the search would continue until Jackson was found or there's evidence he was not in the area.

"It's getting more difficult each day," Foss said.

Bloodhounds were used in Saturday's search until heavy rain washed away the scent. A phone belonging to Jackson was flown to Indianapolis, where he lived, to give the dogs the scent.

Student Body President encourages feedback

Beginnings, births, starts, sources, first parts of a place or a thing, an early stage, initiation, setting into motion. Are you with me. Saint Mary's? Think back - no, no, not to Adam and Eve, just the month of August. You've already survived a lot of beginnings and first for the 1986-87 year: classes, football season, dining hall food, the library baseline, University Park Mall, alumni, the sweet smell of ethanol, a fight with your roommate (just a quarrel, not a parting). Fall, a part, raid and plenty of party raids.

Jeanne Heller
Guest column

There are more beginnings. Think back to elections last February. Remember the three aspiring politicians who came knocking on your door at 11:30 p.m. to introduce themselves. That was us-Jeanne Heller, Sarah Cook, and Scotty Burke. Remember what we said to you? "We want to represent you and to work for you. We'd appreciate your support." Remember what you did? You elected us! So here we are, not exactly sitting around, but getting out into the Saint Mary's College community, networking with departments and administration to improve life on campus, FOR YOU! We represent you. If you're not happy, we're not happy. Sort of what I mean is, if we know you're not happy, then we're not happy. Admittedly, I can read minds. I can't know hard to believe. But it's true. However, Sarah and I haven't quite mastered this trick yet, so we all need your feedback - your comments, concerns, questions, criticisms, and ultimately your response.

"Good enough", you're thinking, "but how do I do that?!" On girls Tell me what you think. I'm pretty approachable, I answer to Jeanne, Jeanne, Jeanne Marie, Babydoll. I'm fully capable of being various names which can't be printed here. I'm easy to find! Know where the Haggard College Center is? There's a third floor - yes, the Student Government offices are up there. It's not just a ploy to get you running stairs. And inside the office ... the office! Mine's the first one - either be a quibble, wasn't a panty at all, a fight with your roommate (just a quarrel, not a parting).

If you don't want to see our faces, leave a note on the door, or call the office. 284-5373 to gripe, or we can set up a time to do that lunch thing. Guaranteed - we're always available for lunch. If you have questions about who's who (SPLA, VPSA, and VPAACR), or what's that (like Board of Governance, Programming Board, and Student Academic Council), we want to not only tell you, but also show you! Want to see what goes on at a meeting? I'll tell you this much - we have fun, we have food, and we get things done.

And did you check out that Science Building!!! This is an exciting year for you. To take ad­ vantage of the opportunities before you, and if you signed up for a group at Ac­ tivities Night, how about following through? If you have an option, tell me, not your roommate! And don't forget about lunch - I'm in the book.

Information in letter requires clarification

Dear Editor,

The Observer's account (91) of Vice President for Student Affairs Father David Tyson's July 7 letter to three members of Days and Lesbians at Notre Dame/Saint Mary's College may provide the faculty's only information concerning the matter, as well as its only opportunity for direct comment. The topics raised merit general and specific attention. GLNDMSC requested the use of University owned facilities for a political meeting and the opportunity to advertise in University owned media. University facilities can ordinarily be used to acquire, modify, and express opinions without any impli­ cation that they represent official policy. General and specific rules for use of those opinions or warrants their conformity to orthodoxy would be an important form of criticism and would assure that those opinions would not be elevated to a position that they are elevated to. Hello boys and girls. Today we're going to talk about Jams. Can you say Jams? I thought you could.

What do you wear Jams, boys and girls? Because they're pretty. Yes, they are pretty indeed. Because everyone likes them? Yes, that's true too. And maybe if you wear them everyone else will like you too. But do you know Jams, Kino? Also boys and girls? Ah, I thought not. Well gather round quick like little bunnies, and I'll tell you a story.

Many many moons ago in an ancient tribe lived a surfer man named Kino. Kino was a fine man. Not only was he the smartest and strongest and most handsome of all the men in the tribe, but he would have to go far, boys and girls, to find a surfer better than he. All the men in the tribe admired him. All the women had fallen in love with him.

But Kino had eyes for only one girl. Her name was only Koli. And she was the loveliest woman of the tribe. Kino adored Kino his love fast asleep on the floor.

She was just a bit, she stood up, wiped the tears from her face, and resolved to do the deed. She continued living the greatest day of her life. Kino adored Kino... but Koli was a terrible singer. She sang so badly that it was beyond bear. Frantically, he ran to Kino and told her what had happened.

She agreed willingly to make him a new one. But after he had gone home from her, she loomed against the cave wall and began to cry. What was she going to do? She didn't know what to do. She would just have to try. Oh, she thought to herself, he would be angry with her. And so she continued to cry. But after a bit, she stood up, wiped the back of her hand across her eyes and resolved to do the deed all over again. Drawing a deep breath, Koli stepped into his surfing rag, ran a hand through his hair and stepped out into the sunlight to join the other surfer men. A hue fell over the crowd... all eyes were riveted on him. There was an agonizing moment of silence and then the crowd went wild. Throng of people gathered around him admiring the Jams. Compliments for Koli's sewing expertise and design flowed over him. Men looked on with admiration and silently vowed to have their mates learn how to sew that style of surfing rag.

Through the crowd, Kino caught a glimpse of Koli. She looked completely exhausted except for a light burning deep in her eyes, speaking of her love for him. And he realized all at once what she had gone through. He understood the motivations behind her actions more completely than he ever thought possible. And at that moment he had never loved her more.

There are many stories about Jams... but as I said there are many stories and they have no place here. The story I have just told is the story of how Jams came to be. Wasn't that nice? Well boys and girls it's time to go. Tomorrow we'll have something new to talk about and won't that be fun. Be good now.
Broncos beat Pats to highlight NFL action

Associated Press

Broncos 27, Patriots 20

Sammy Winder and Gerald Wilhite scored second-half touchdown passes and the Denver defense smothered New England in that half, halting the unbeaten Broncos past the Patriots. Trail by 13 at halftime, the Broncos scored four of their five possessions in the second half.

John Eway - who ended a dreadful first half with a 43-yard field goal - scored six of 18 passes for 48 yards with one interception - return to host Tom Brady in the opening session of the second half. He completed passes of 17 yards to Steve Watson and 32 yards to receiver Leon Hall, would find tight end Clarence Kay for a 1-yard scoring toss.

Bears 44, Bengals 7

Sore-shouldered quarterback Jim McMahon passed 42 of 55 passes to inspire a sluggish Chicago offense to its most productive performance of the season. The 4-0 Bears routed the 2-2 Broncos in a style reminiscent of their 1985 Super Bowl season, using McMahon's leadership to cash in on five Interceptions by their hard-hitting linebackers and defensive secondary. Chicago built a 21-0 first-quarter lead that was never in jeopardy. McMahon, making his first start since separating his shouder three weeks ago, dove 1 yard for the Bears' first score, threaded a 23-yard pass to running back Walter Payton, then launched a perfect 53-yard scoring bomb to wide receiver Willie Gault to complete the big first-quarter scoring binge against Cincinnati in five years.

Steelers 22, Oilers 16

Pittsburgh's Rick Wood returned a punt 41 yards in the second quarter, the longest in the season, for a 19-3 lead. Wood's return gave the Steelers a 27-yard scoring run that gave the Steelers 1.3-.3. the 17-yard play to pass from center to wide receiver Willie Gault to complete the scoring. The Steelers return an interception, the second-half score of seven runs, for the year, for a 13-2 lead. The Oilers scored on a three-game losing streak.

Mealone won 11 yards on a boot- leg prior to Abercrombie's scoring run that gave Pittsburgh its first win of the year, snapping a three-game losing streak. The decision left both teams 3-2 in the series.

For the quarter ending at 1:04, Mike McMahon kicked his third field goal of the game, a 20-yarder, to give the Steelers a 16-13 lead with 2:23 seconds left in regulation play. The Oilers' last hope, a field goal attempt, was blocked by oven- dozlas with 45 seconds left, sending the game into overtime.

Raiders 17, Chargers 13

Marc Wilson threw two touchdown passes in span of 4:11 seconds to spark the Los Angeles Raiders to their first win of the season, a come-from- behind victory over San Diego. Wilson scored both touchdown passes in overtime to set up Walter Abercrombie's 3-yard touchdown pass to give the Raiders their victory over Houston. Steeler quarterback Malone won 11 yards on a bootleg prior to Abercrombie's scoring run that gave Pittsburgh its first win of the year, snapping a three-game losing streak.

The Notre Dame soccer team captured first place at the Wright State tournament this weekend. The Irish defeated Miami (Ohio), 4-0, and beat the host Raiders, 3-2. Randy Morris was named the tourney's offensive MVP, and John Ognon earned defensive MVP honors. More details will appear in tomorrow's Observer - The Observer.

Pre-season reports of the Notre Dame baseball team suggested that the Irish might not have the pitching to be consistently strong, if yesterday’s doubleheader against Valparaiso is any indication, the Irish might have much stronger pitching this spring than anyone expected.

The Irish took a pair of seven-inning games, 5-0 and 7-4, from the Crusaders at Duke Field. A pair of freshman pitchers, Brian Piotrowicz and Mike Coffey, shut out Valparaiso in their first starts of the fall. The doubleheader sweep raised Notre Dame’s fall record to 3-1.

In the first game, Piotrowicz hurled a one-hitter, with an infield single by third baseman Tim Polt in the second inning being the only offense the Crusaders could muster.

“He pitched very well,” said Irish head coach Larry Gallo. “He stayed ahead in the count. I’m looking at him as a starter next spring.”

“We didn’t play defense really well, but Piotrowicz came back and really bore down.”

Despite the four Irish errors in the game, Piotrowicz praised the team’s fielding.

“They allowed me to pitch and really supported me,” said Piotrowicz. “Even when we made a error, they came back and made a good play later.”

“Our line’s awesome,” said Johnson. “There’s not much wrong you can do behind these guys.”

Holtz, who was not sure how the Irish would do against the young Purdue defense, was very happy with the results. It was sincere when I said this was the best defense that I had seen at Purdue," he said. "I didn’t know if we would have the ability to run the football.

"But we felt that we are going to be a consistent football team, we will have to run the football, and I don’t think it could have come out better (than this game)."

"We use the NCAA matches as learning experiences," she said.

The Irish did eliminate the "Purdue likes to put the ball up 50 times a game and you have that in mind when you play them," said Notre Dame captain and inside linebacker Mike Kovaleski. "We just needed to take their mistakes and take ad vantage of them. Throwing that often, you know you're going to get your share of sacks (the Irish got two) and incompletions.

"It's great winning the first one, it really is. But just to beat Purdue like we did today, in my senior year, that didn't a lot for us because they're a good football team. This game should really give us some confidence and momentum."

I'm happy for our football players and I'm very proud," said Holtz. "but then I felt that way going into this game. I said that if we could eliminate some mistakes we could be very competitive."

The Irish did eliminate the mistakes that haunts them in the first two losses of the season against Michigan and Michigan State, and a big victory was the result.

Burtrett, meanwhile, was concerned about eliminating some of his attire.

"It sure was hot out there today," he said, and then was asked about the bright yellow sweater he was wearing. "I don't know but I'm not gonna wear this 506 again. I'm 1-2 and I'm going back to different attire, it may be a damn trenched coat so I can put it over my head."

An important measure of the quality of a cross-country team is the time-gap between the first and fifth finishers on the team. The Irish time-gap from 1985 was 3:07, and this year's 1:37 gap is proof of great improve ment. Coach Ryan has set a goal of a time gap of one minute for this year's team. Behind the 1-2 finishers of team members Gina Procaccio (17:57.8) and Vicky Huber (17:50.7), Villanova won the team title with the low score of 50 points. Boston College finished second with 58 points. Both are ranked among the top sixteen teams nationally. St. Thomas, rated number one natio

Holtz gets first win as ND romps, 41-9

By MARTY STRASSEN
Assistant Sports Editor

Moments after Notre Dame's 41-9 thrashing of Purdue Saturday afternoon, the echoes of the famous "Victory March" echoed through the Notre Dame Stadium corridors.

It wasn't the marching band, it was a frenzied student section, and it wasn't a group of visiting alumni. The sounds came from a locker room - more specifically, from the mouths of the players who had just won their first games of the 1986 season, and of Lou Holtz's career as head coach of the Irish.

"It's good to win and I'm happy for the players," Holtz said. "I didn't think that we'd get it eventually. Notre Dame is a very, very special place."

Purdue head coach Leon Burtinett, however, is one man who is glad to be a little farther south in the state of Indiana right now. Burtinett's Boilermakers were beaten in the trenches all day long, picking up only 54 rushing yards to Notre Dame's 276, and watching as almost every error was turned into points on the Irish half of the scoreboard.

"It's just fun for me," said Johnson. attempting to describe his feelings on the afternoon. "But the play everyone wanted to know about was the 13-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter. On that play he looped over one defender, broke out of the grasp of another, and carried a third defender into the end zone."

"I know there was a big hole there," said Johnson. "The line just blew everyone out."

But, as quarterback Steve Beuerlein points out, Johnson's extra effort got him to the end zone.

"He took on two guys and had to get the most of it after the initial four or five yards," said Beuerlein. "He just carried that guy with him all the way to the end zone."

"That kid's got a hell of a future."

With that touchdown, Johnson took over the team lead in touchdown scoring with three. His other score came on a 2-yard blast over the left tackle in the second quarter.

"He's the type of guy that makes good things happen," said Head Coach Lou Holtz. Johnson finished the day with eight carries for 36 yards. He also recorded four tackles on the special teams, a role which has seen TAILBACK, page 9

Anthony Johnson just gets into the end zone on one of his two touchdowns in Saturday's game against Purdue. Marty Strassen details the game in his story at right, and Pete Gegen features Johnson below.

Friday on the Burke Memorial Golf Course, a battered and wet men's cross-country team turned in a fifth-place performance in the 7th annual National Catholic Invitational.

Notre Dame, with a point total of 146, finished behind St. Thomas Loyola, Villanova, and Marquette. Notre Dame's top finisher was freshman Mike O'Connor who came in fourth out of 173 runners with a time of 24:40. Junior co-captain Rich Mulvey expressed disappointment at the team's performance.

"We just got beat," he said. "We wanted to do a lot better. I really can't make excuses." The threat of lightning in the area postponed the meet's start by a half hour. The extra time before the meet allowed the course to further softens with the rain.

The combination of the large field and wet course made for a difficult meet. Many runners took spills as others pushed and jack-eyed for positions on the slick grass and mud. The Irish had problems adjusting to the combination. Contributing to the Notre Dame's poor performance was its inability to remain together as a team, especially at the start of the race.

"We lost contact at the beginning," Mulvey explained. "Our next meet (Notre Dame Invitational) will be just as big. We just have to get used to running together."

"There were breaks breaking out," Mulvey continued. "They pushed Mike (Rogan), he fell, and we had to jump over him. We have to make a concerted effort to stay together at the beginning."

Before the race, Head Coach Joe Pane explained that to win the race, Notre Dame would need to place five runners in the top twenty-five. The Irish did not attempt anything close to that goal. The top five finishers came in the 4, 16, 47, 44, and 45 positions.

The top 50 runners finished within about two minutes of each other in the closely-packed race. Notre Dame's young squad ran respectable times in the five-mile run. Sophomore Dan Garrett turned in a 25:25 mark. Junior Steve Lunney finished at 26 even: freshmen Tom O'Rourke and Mike Rogan ran 26:12 and 26:14 marks, respectively.

Co-captain Rich Mulvey had a disappointing race. He came in 54th overall with a 26:25 time, but he's remaining optimistic for the future of the team and himself.

"I still have confidence," he said. "We're a hard-working team. We can bounce back."
