Reagan will meet with Soviet leader for arms accord

Associated Press
WASHINGTON - President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev ending the diplomatic tug-of-war provoked by Moscow's arrest of an American journalist, agreed Tuesday to meet in Iceland in 10 days to resume the search for an arms control accord.

The surprise summit was arranged as part of a deal that brought the release Monday of accused Moscow correspondent Nicholas Daniloff and the expulsion of Daniloff and the expulsion of the one-on-one talks in Reykjavik, the secretary said, "will give special push" to the various talks already going on at lower levels.

Shultz said the hurry-up meeting scheduled in less than two weeks in the capital of the tiny NATO island nation was proposed by Gorbachev in a letter delivered to Reagan on Sept. 19, which also contained the Soviet Union's latest bargaining position on proposed nuclear weapons reductions.

The two sides had been carrying on arms control discussions at various levels while trying separately to settle the case of Daniloff, whose arrest on what Reagan insisted were "trumped up" spy charges cast a pall over U.S.-Soviet relations and dimmed prospects for a summit this year.

Reagan insisted it would not provoke Daniloff for Zakharov, who he said was caught red-handed trying to buy U.S. defense secrets for his government.
In Brief

Despite threats of violence, not a stone was cast at a recent showing of the controversial film, "The Thin Man." At the University of Nebraska Civil Liberties Student Union, school officials cancelled last spring's scheduled showing, but a successful Nebraska Civil Liberties Union suit against the school over-turned the order. Film opponents held all-night prayer vigils outside the student union. -The Observer

When 21st century inhabitants open a lime capsule planted in Columbus, Ohio, they may be puzzled by its contents, as well as the choice of container. Three central Ohio sculptors buried the more than 1200-lb. capsule in the lawn, which was sold for $150. The installation after stuffing it with such things as Garbage Pail Kids gum, a tin trash can with lids and bottom with slogans like "Happy's Comet is Coming." The time capsule is to be opened in 2092 to mark the 600th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' voyage to America. The project is being supported by the artists Stephen Cammeto, Charles Einhorn and Candy Watkins. Susan Bidwell and her husband, Annette Jung, unveiled it to an audience of 450 at the diocesan hall on Sept. 28, 2092 and noted on it that it is to be used for groceries. -Associated Press

If Prince Charles and Princess Diana turn down your dinner invitation, you can still get the next best thing, their humor. The Daily Mirror reported Tuesday that the royal couple's butler, Harold Brown, is available to officiate at private functions for just $45. Susan Hamilton, a London society caterer who acts as Brown's agent, said Brown usually handles functions for "discreet city people and private households." Buckingham Palace said Brown was not available for interviews, but the Daily Mirror said "the butler" is also indigible from this scene as a result of Mr. Hechler's omnipresent dietetic food. Because he was fighting a weight problem, Mr. Hechler kept most of the minor and major fad diets of the past decade in business for about two weeks longer than he should have been. Whenever there was a new powder, pill or formula on the market that promised to take off enough weight in five days to enable one to eat a ten-thousand calorie meal at a nice restaurant the next day, Mr. Hechler was sure to have it in his office. Over the five years that I worked with him, I saw more garlic sticks and powdered chocolate drink mixes pass through that office than I have seen loaves of stale bread in the dining hall.

Mr. Hechler also enjoyed travelling a great deal. There were many times that I believed his sole purpose for working so much was the couple of weeks that he would spend in New York on a cruise ship each year. Mr. Hechler saw a lot of plays, drove a nice car and treated himself rather well. Not a bad way to live, I think. He was sure to have it in his office. Over the five years that I worked with him, I saw more garlic sticks and powdered chocolate drink mixes pass through that office than I have seen loaves of stale bread in the dining hall.

When I heard that Mr. Hechler died a couple weeks ago, I honestly did not know how to react. He was not a particularly old man; in fact he was quite young - younger than my father. He had never been ill and always had a vitality about him, a spark of fun that so many people lack in their lives. I did not get very upset since I had not seen him in almost two years, but I did feel a little empty that day.

I guess it's hard to explain the relationship I had with Mr. Hechler. He had been my teacher and advisor for five years, but I thought of him as more than that. He taught me how to write news, sports and feature stories. He taught me the power of a good editorial and the necessity of good journalism. He also taught me that when you take responsibility for something, you have to follow through with it; there were many nights when I stayed up very late just to make sure that our paper got out.

Mr. Hechler was important to me; he molded me. I guess the best way to describe how I felt when I heard of Mr. Hechler's death is to compare it to how one might feel if a great football coach or teacher passed away and who was also a friend and to whom one felt a great debt. There is not a lot of pain. Just a great deal of emptiness.

That is the way it is with many people we meet in life. We appreciate them for who they are and what they do, and then we move on. There is so much that I owe to Mr. Hechler, so much that he has done for me. But now that I know he is gone, I can only be thankful that I knew him as a teacher and considered him a friend. For me, the memory that I have of Mr. Hechler will always be carried in my thoughts and in my actions. Each inch of newspaper that I produce will carry his stamp. Mr. Hechler was the students at Holy Cross School who will have to learn journalism and produce a newspaper without his supervision. It is by them that he should and surely will be missed.

Devoted journalism teacher instilled values in students

My high school journalism teacher died the other day. I know that may not mean much to many people here, but it meant a great deal to me.

Mr. Hechler, as I always have called him and will continue to do so out of respect (journalists are rarely supposed to call anyone, anything, in a story or column), taught me a great deal. In the five years I was involved with my school newspaper at Holy Cross School in New Orleans, He taught me about journalism and also about hard work. (Usually died with us together).

To say that Mr. Hechler worked too much would be an understatement; he held at least four jobs at various times that I can remember and always seemed to excel at each of them. He was a good PR man and a particularly talented journalist. Everyone agreed that he could easily have left our high school for more vantar pastures, however he chose to stay.

Mr. Hechler was a person who sincerely cared about the people and students with whom he worked.

I can still vividly picture Mr. Hechler sitting behind his office desk ruminating at his moustache while talking on the telephone. As he was conversing with the person on the other end of the line, he was also trying to spur off orders to the harried hoard of journalism students crowded around his desk awaiting some task to perform just so that they would be able to legally roam the halls. He was also indigible from this scene as a result of Mr. Hechler's omnipresent dietetic food. Because he was fighting a weight problem, Mr. Hechler kept most of the minor and major fad diets of the past decade in business for about two weeks longer than he should have been. Whenever there was a new powder, pill or formula on the market that promised to take off enough weight in five days to enable one to eat a ten-thousand calorie meal at a nice restaurant the next day, Mr. Hechler was sure to have it in his office. Over the five years that I worked with him, I saw more garlic sticks and powdered chocolate drink mixes pass through that office than I have seen loaves of stale bread in the dining hall.

Mr. Hechler also enjoyed travelling a great deal. There were many times that I believed his sole purpose for working so much was the couple of weeks that he would spend in New York on a cruise ship each year. Mr. Hechler saw a lot of plays, drove a nice car and treated himself rather well. Not a bad way to live, I think. He was sure to have it in his office. Over the five years that I worked with him, I saw more garlic sticks and powdered chocolate drink mixes pass through that office than I have seen loaves of stale bread in the dining hall.

When I heard that Mr. Hechler died a couple weeks ago, I honestly did not know how to react. He was not a particularly old man; in fact he was quite young - younger than my father. He had never been ill and always had a vitality about him, a spark of fun that so many people lack in their lives. I did not get very upset since I had not seen him in almost two years, but I did feel a little empty that day.

I guess it's hard to explain the relationship I had with Mr. Hechler. He had been my teacher and advisor for five years, but I thought of him as more than that. He taught me how to write news, sports and feature stories. He taught me the power of a good editorial and the necessity of good journalism. He also taught me that when you take responsibility for something, you have to follow through with it; there were many nights when I stayed up very late just to make sure that our paper got out.

Mr. Hechler was important to me; he molded me much of me.

I guess the best way to describe how I felt when I heard of Mr. Hechler's death is to compare it to how one might feel if a great football coach or teacher passed away and who was also a friend and to whom one felt a great debt. There is not a lot of pain. Just a great deal of emptiness.

That is the way it is with many people we meet in life. We appreciate them for who they are and what they do, and then we move on. There is so much that I owe to Mr. Hechler, so much that he has done for me. But now that I know he is gone, I can only be thankful that I knew him as a teacher and considered him a friend. For me, the memory that I have of Mr. Hechler will always be carried in my thoughts and in my actions. Each inch of newspaper that I produce will carry his stamp. Mr. Hechler was the students at Holy Cross School who will have to learn journalism and produce a newspaper without his supervision. It is by them that he should and surely will be missed.

advice for five years, but I thought of him as more than that. He taught me how to write news, sports and feature stories. He taught me the power of a good editorial and the necessity of good journalism. He also taught me that when you take responsibility for something, you have to follow through with it; there were many nights when I stayed up very late just to make sure that our paper got out.

Mr. Hechler was important to me; he molded me much of me.

I guess the best way to describe how I felt when I heard of Mr. Hechler's death is to compare it to how one might feel if a great football coach or teacher passed away and who was also a friend and to whom one felt a great debt. There is not a lot of pain. Just a great deal of emptiness.

That is the way it is with many people we meet in life. We appreciate them for who they are and what they do, and then we move on. There is so much that I owe to Mr. Hechler, so much that he has done for me. But now that I know he is gone, I can only be thankful that I knew him as a teacher and considered him a friend. For me, the memory that I have of Mr. Hechler will always be carried in my thoughts and in my actions. Each inch of newspaper that I produce will carry his stamp. Mr. Hechler was the students at Holy Cross School who will have to learn journalism and produce a newspaper without his supervision. It is by them that he should and surely will be missed.

The Observer
Shultz tell senators not to override Reagan's apartheid sanctions veto

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George Shultz told Republican senators Tuesday that a vote to override President Reagan's veto of South African sanctions would undercut Reagan's ability to negotiate with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The White House, fighting to save the administration's policy of moving slowly on attempts to punish the white-minority government for its policy of apartheid, also announced Reagan is naming career diplomat Edward Perkins, 50, to be the first black American ambassador to Pretoria.

Perkins has been serving as U.S. ambassador to Liberia. He would succeed Ambassador Herman Nickel in Pretoria when confirmed by the Senate.

Shultz's appeal for votes to sustain Reagan's veto of tough legislative sanctions against P.W. Botha's government, and the Perkins appointment, seemed to have been coupled with Reagan's offer Monday to issue new but limited sanctions against South Africa by executive order. It all was part of a campaign by the administration to win the votes needed to sustain the veto in the Senate and stave off an embarrassing foreign policy defeat on Capitol Hill.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., convened the meeting with Shultz in his Capitol Hill office in the afternoon of the overwhelming 313-83 House vote Monday to override the Reagan veto.

"The president should obviously make every effort to sustain the veto," Dole told reporters. "The president is not going to give up on this early." "I asked my colleagues to hold their fire and give the president an opportunity to visit with them," Dole said. "I believe the veto ought to be sustained."

But in responding to questions, Dole said the battle remains an uphill one. "It may lose," Dole said of Reagan.

Dole said Shultz told the group of nine to 10 Republican lawmakers it "wouldn't be of any help to the president when he sits down with Mr. Gorbachev to have been clobbered by the Congress on a foreign policy issue."

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, one of the participants in the meeting, said Shultz made a "very strong pitch that the president's veto ought to be sustained" and clearly linked the override vote with the Reagan-Gorbachev meeting.

But the senator said he didn't think the argument has much weight because the United States has relations with 172 nations, and "our policy toward South Africa should not be a driving force" in talks with the Soviet Union.

"I don't think he found too sympathetic an ear from the nine to 10 of us who were present," Grassley said.

When asked if Shultz had changed any votes, Grassley replied, "No."

Reagan said he would impose new sanctions against South African companies as a result of the summit while Danlloff was fined in Moscow, Shultz said. But it will take much more to get the West to put part of a campaign by the administration to win the votes needed to sustain the veto in the Senate and stave off an embarrassing foreign policy defeat on Capitol Hill.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., convened the meeting with Shultz in his Capitol Hill office in the afternoon of the overwhelming 313-83 House vote Monday to override the Reagan veto.

"The president should obviously make every effort to sustain the veto," Dole told reporters. "The president is not going to give up on this early." "I asked my colleagues to hold their fire and give the president an opportunity to visit with them," Dole said. "I believe the veto ought to be sustained."

But in responding to questions, Dole said the battle remains an uphill one. "It may lose," Dole said of Reagan.

Dole said Shultz told the group of nine to 10 Republican lawmakers it "wouldn't be of any help to the president when he sits down with Mr. Gorbachev to have been clobbered by the Congress on a foreign policy issue."

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, one of the participants in the meeting, said Shultz made a "very strong pitch that the president's veto ought to be sustained" and clearly linked the override vote with the Reagan-Gorbachev meeting.

But the senator said he didn't think the argument has much weight because the United States has relations with 172 nations, and "our policy toward South Africa should not be a driving force" in talks with the Soviet Union.

"I don't think he found too sympathetic an ear from the nine to 10 of us who were present," Grassley said.

When asked if Shultz had changed any votes, Grassley replied, "No."

Reagan said he would impose new sanctions against South African companies as a result of the summit while Danlloff was fined in Moscow, Shultz said. But it will take much more to get the West to put part of a campaign by the administration to win the votes needed to sustain the veto in the Senate and stave off an embarrassing foreign policy defeat on Capitol Hill.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., convened the meeting with Shultz in his Capitol Hill office in the afternoon of the overwhelming 313-83 House vote Monday to override the Reagan veto.

"The president should obviously make every effort to sustain the veto," Dole told reporters. "The president is not going to give up on this early." "I asked my colleagues to hold their fire and give the president an opportunity to visit with them," Dole said. "I believe the veto ought to be sustained."

But in responding to ques-

 associated Press

CROWN POINT, Ind. - The wedding was straight out of the pages of True Detective, not Modern Bride.

The bride would be honeymoon-

ing without the groom at the Westfield Correctional Center. The man who sent the bride to prison was also the one who performed the ceremony.

Fred and Lottie Dozier of Highland were charged with theft after authorities learned they had stolen $25,559 from a trust fund set up to benefit their 10-year-old quadriplegic son.

Court records show the couple spent the money from the fund, awarded in a medical malpractice settlement, on a new car, a cruise, gambling in Las Vegas and other forms of entertainment.

Mrs. Dozier, 38, pleaded guiltyJuly 11 to theft and was sentenced Aug. 11 to one year in prison.

Dozier, an unemployed steel-

worker, pleaded guilty to theft last Friday and was sentenced to two years in prison.

Dozier will begin serving the term Feb. 13, one week after his 38th birthday.

The Doziers filed for divorce in April after the charges were announced. Dozier's atttorney, John Halcarr, said this was part of a campaign by the administration to win the votes needed to sustain the veto in the Senate and stave off an embarrassing foreign policy defeat on Capitol Hill.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., convened the meeting with Shultz in his Capitol Hill office in the afternoon of the overwhelming 313-83 House vote Monday to override the Reagan veto.

"The president should obviously make every effort to sustain the veto," Dole told reporters. "The president is not going to give up on this early." "I asked my colleagues to hold their fire and give the president an opportunity to visit with them," Dole said. "I believe the veto ought to be sustained."

But in responding to questions, Dole said the battle remains an uphill one. "It may lose," Dole said of Reagan.

Dole said Shultz told the group of nine to 10 Republican lawmakers it "wouldn't be of any help to the president when he sits down with Mr. Gorbachev to have been clobbered by the Congress on a foreign policy issue."

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, one of the participants in the meeting, said Shultz made a "very strong pitch that the president's veto ought to be sustained" and clearly linked the override vote with the Reagan-Gorbachev meeting.

But the senator said he didn't think the argument has much weight because the United States has relations with 172 nations, and "our policy toward South Africa should not be a driving force" in talks with the Soviet Union.

"I don't think he found too sympathetic an ear from the nine to 10 of us who were present," Grassley said.

When asked if Shultz had changed any votes, Grassley replied, "No."

Reagan said he would impose new sanctions against South African companies as a result of the summit while Danlloff was fined in Moscow, Shultz said. But it will take much more to get the West to put part of a campaign by the administration to win the votes needed to sustain the veto in the Senate and stave off an embarrassing foreign policy defeat on Capitol Hill.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., convened the meeting with Shultz in his Capitol Hill office in the afternoon of the overwhelming 313-83 House vote Monday to override the Reagan veto.

"The president should obviously make every effort to sustain the veto," Dole told reporters. "The president is not going to give up on this early." "I asked my colleagues to hold their fire and give the president an opportunity to visit with them," Dole said. "I believe the veto ought to be sustained."

But in responding to ques-

 Associated Press

CROWN POINT, Ind. - The wedding was straight out of the pages of True Detective, not Modern Bride.

The bride would be honeymoon-

ing without the groom at the Westfield Correctional Center. The man who sent the bride to prison was also the one who performed the ceremony.

Fred and Lottie Dozier of Highland were charged with theft after authorities learned they had stolen $25,559 from a trust fund set up to benefit their 10-year-old quadriplegic son.

Court records show the couple spent the money from the fund, awarded in a medical malpractice settlement, on a new car, a cruise, gambling in Las Vegas and other forms of entertainment.

Mrs. Dozier, 38, pleaded guiltyJuly 11 to theft and was sentenced Aug. 11 to one year in prison.

Dozier, an unemployed steel-

worker, pleaded guilty to theft last Friday and was sentenced to two years in prison.

Dozier will begin serving the term Feb. 13, one week after his 38th birthday.

The Doziers filed for divorce in April after the charges were announced. Dozier's att-

torney, John Halcarr, said this was part of a campaign by the administration to win the votes needed to sustain the veto in the Senate and stave off an embarrassing foreign policy defeat on Capitol Hill.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., convened the meeting with Shultz in his Capitol Hill office in the afternoon of the overwhelming 313-83 House vote Monday to override the Reagan veto.

"The president should obviously make every effort to sustain the veto," Dole told reporters. "The president is not going to give up on this early." "I asked my colleagues to hold their fire and give the president an opportunity to visit with them," Dole said. "I believe the veto ought to be sustained."

But in responding to ques-

}
In I could watch the commencement for the CCE auditorium seats. FREE!-----,

"..." I continued from page one

This means the RA's would have to check to see that the men are out of the dorms, said Lisa Lawler, Traditional Events Commissioner. "The RA's at Notre Dame had a job and it works there, doesn't it?" said Lawler.

Jones said the possible method to do it was looking into the lottery to be issued tickets "a bit of a test...

They're anticipated the shortfall for other proposals. It's possible method to do it was looking into the lottery to be issued tickets "a bit of a test for this that is Father Ted's (Bixby's) last year and every-

The ticket will be a warning to motorists that pedestrians are crossing the Intersection, according to Cook.

Jones said she and several others are open to other proposals. It's possible method to do it was looking into the lottery to be issued tickets "a bit of a test for this that is Father Ted's (Bixby's) last year and every-

We're treating it as we go along," said Walter Ryan said Tuesday.

The owner of the trailer told police it was broken into some time between Thursday and Sunday. Officers found disposable razors, hair, fingerprints and evidence that someone had entered the premises, authorities said. That fit a theory that Jackson was hungry after days on the run and tried to alter his appearance. The fingerprints were too smudged for an identification.

Ryan said laboratory tests on the hair discovered a substance used in metallic paint. While aut-

Sally’s Stitches

Quality Yarns, Needlepoint,
Cross Stitch, and accessories

4219 Grape Road
277-6403

Thursday & Friday
18 and OVER NIGHT!

We give it to you
Exactly as you expect it!

Music to suit
ALL tastes

1600 ft. dance floor
4000 watts of sound
Open 9pm - 2am Thursday
9pm - 3am Friday

181 E. Day Rd. Mishawaka 269-7799

"Spackle, laughter, energy, smiles!"

DON'T MISS

NEIL SIMON'S COMEDY NIGHT WITH HELEN HAYES

Plaza Suite

DONATIONS ACCEPTED FOR AFRICAN FAMINE RELIEF-
WASHINGTON HALL
FRI & SAT OCT 3-4 8:00 pm

Sponsored By:
Office of Student Activities

Associated Press

WRIGHT CITY, Mo. - Shaven hair flecked with particles of pain led authorities to suspect Tuesday that a fugitive wanted in a three-state crime spree was still near this small eastern Missi-

Wright City. Michael Jackson, 41, had gray paint in his thick beard Sept. 22 when he allegedly shot a federal probation officer and store clerk in Indianapolis, then embarked on a series of abduc-

Walter Ryan said Tuesday.

"It's not finally that this is Father Ted's (Bixby's) last year and every-

"..." I continued from page one

This means the RA's would have to check to see that the men are out of the dorms, said Lisa Lawler, Traditional Events Commissioner. "The RA's at Notre Dame had a job and it works there, doesn't it?" said Lawler.

Jones said the possible method to do it was looking into the lottery to be issued tickets "a bit of a test for this that is Father Ted's (Bixby's) last year and every-

We're treating it as we go along," said Walter Ryan said Tuesday.

The owner of the trailer told police it was broken into some time between Thursday and Sunday. Officers found disposable razors, hair, fingerprints and evidence that someone had entered the premises, authorities said. That fit a theory that Jackson was hungry after days on the run and tried to alter his appearance. The fingerprints were too smudged for an identification.

Ryan said laboratory tests on the hair discovered a substance used in metallic paint. While aut-

Sally’s Stitches

Quality Yarns, Needlepoint,
Cross Stitch, and accessories

4219 Grape Road
277-6403

Thursday & Friday
18 and OVER NIGHT!

We give it to you
Exactly as you expect it!

Music to suit
ALL tastes

1600 ft. dance floor
4000 watts of sound
Open 9pm - 2am Thursday
9pm - 3am Friday

181 E. Day Rd. Mishawaka 269-7799

"Spackle, laughter, energy, smiles!"

DON'T MISS

NEIL SIMON'S COMEDY NIGHT WITH HELEN HAYES

Plaza Suite

DONATIONS ACCEPTED FOR AFRICAN FAMINE RELIEF-
WASHINGTON HALL
FRI & SAT OCT 3-4 8:00 pm

Sponsored By:
Office of Student Activities

Associated Press

WRIGHT CITY, Mo. - Shaven hair flecked with particles of pain led authorities to suspect Tuesday that a fugitive wanted in a three-state crime spree was still near this small eastern Missi-

Wright City. Michael Jackson, 41, had gray paint in his thick beard Sept. 22 when he allegedly shot a federal probation officer and store clerk in Indianapolis, then embarked on a series of abduc-

Walter Ryan said Tuesday.

"It's not finally that this is Father Ted's (Bixby's) last year and every-

"..." I continued from page one

This means the RA's would have to check to see that the men are out of the dorms, said Lisa Lawler, Traditional Events Commissioner. "The RA's at Notre Dame had a job and it works there, doesn't it?" said Lawler.

Jones said the possible method to do it was looking into the lottery to be issued tickets "a bit of a test for this that is Father Ted's (Bixby's) last year and every-

We're treating it as we go along," said Walter Ryan said Tuesday.

The owner of the trailer told police it was broken into some time between Thursday and Sunday. Officers found disposable razors, hair, fingerprints and evidence that someone had entered the premises, authorities said. That fit a theory that Jackson was hungry after days on the run and tried to alter his appearance. The fingerprints were too smudged for an identification.

Ryan said laboratory tests on the hair discovered a substance used in metallic paint. While aut-

Sally’s Stitches

Quality Yarns, Needlepoint,
Cross Stitch, and accessories

4219 Grape Road
277-6403

Thursday & Friday
18 and OVER NIGHT!

We give it to you
Exactly as you expect it!

Music to suit
ALL tastes

1600 ft. dance floor
4000 watts of sound
Open 9pm - 2am Thursday
9pm - 3am Friday

181 E. Day Rd. Mishawaka 269-7799

"Spackle, laughter, energy, smiles!"

DON'T MISS

NEIL SIMON'S COMEDY NIGHT WITH HELEN HAYES

Plaza Suite

DONATIONS ACCEPTED FOR AFRICAN FAMINE RELIEF-
WASHINGTON HALL
FRI & SAT OCT 3-4 8:00 pm

Sponsored By:
Office of Student Activities

Associated Press

WRIGHT CITY, Mo. - Shaven hair flecked with particles of pain led authorities to suspect Tuesday that a fugitive wanted in a three-state crime spree was still near this small eastern Missi-

Wright City. Michael Jackson, 41, had gray paint in his thick beard Sept. 22 when he allegedly shot a federal probation officer and store clerk in Indianapolis, then embarked on a series of abduc-

Walter Ryan said Tuesday.

"It's not finally that this is Father Ted's (Bixby's) last year and every-

"..." I continued from page one

This means the RA's would have to check to see that the men are out of the dorms, said Lisa Lawler, Traditional Events Commissioner. "The RA's at Notre Dame had a job and it works there, doesn't it?" said Lawler.

Jones said the possible method to do it was looking into the lottery to be issued tickets "a bit of a test for this that is Father Ted's (Bixby's) last year and every-

We're treating it as we go along," said Walter Ryan said Tuesday.

The owner of the trailer told police it was broken into some time between Thursday and Sunday. Officers found disposable razors, hair, fingerprints and evidence that someone had entered the premises, authorities said. That fit a theory that Jackson was hungry after days on the run and tried to alter his appearance. The fingerprints were too smudged for an identification.

Ryan said laboratory tests on the hair discovered a substance used in metallic paint. While aut-
We have a tradition here at ND, a special tradition—something that other schools don’t seem to have been told. Many of us have been here for four years now and have continuously heard about the elusive spirit that makes ND “different,” but have we realized what it is, what really is special here? No one will deny that there are a lot of special things around—the annual Emil parade, the grotto, football, and dumpy masses, even the rules here are “special.”

Erica Dahl-Bredine

guest column

But what is at the root of this special quality? As we look around in search of, we can see the common denominator of the values that most of us here have been exposed to all along— in grade school religion class, youth groups, sermon, something that we all consciously accept as part of the creed we profess. But at ND the caring is much more than a theology; here it has become very much a living thing. To serve because we care has become a part of many of our lives here. Just look around at all of it that goes on: Saturday mornings at Logan Center, weekday tutoring, dinners with little “brothers” and “sisters,” fasting for world hunger— we have been committed to care at least for our four years here.

Now after all this time Seniors, we are preparing to leave this place which tends to be so caring. Already we’ve probably all had a task of it- the corporations have no qualms with his special trials. It weems to us that your are condoning the throwing of food. Where or how you vomit in the bathroom is totally ludicrous. We do have personal committment to any kind of campus alcoholism, so do we abuse the opportunity to drink in excess. But to make a statement that people go to SYRs to trash the dorm and vomit in the bathroom is totally ludicrous. You are making a ridiculous generalization. It seems to us that you believe that people go to SYRs to act “Class A Jerks.” Once again, you are not taking the actions of a few and applying it to the whole group. It would be surprising to us that you are excluding non-alcoholic students at this university. It is odd, however, that you do not attend any section football games or section meetings, neither at which alcohol is served. You qualify your abscince from SYRs on the basis of us not attending the non-alcoholic events. The Fisher SYR was held Friday the 19th and the evening went well. Everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. The SYR was far from being an event that promised the trashings of hallways and the throwing of food. Where or how you obtained the idea that SYRs facilitate such activities is unknown to us. Maybe you will attend our next SYR so that the truth will be exposed to you. One way to start out than by continuing the ND tradition? A year or maybe two of post-gradutate service.

“Their must be a way we can keep up the caring tradition, a way we can put this idealism to use even after we’ve gone from here.”

Very human desire to help others, but aren’t we all somewhat reluctant to make that personal commitment to any kind of real service? Or maybe we haven’t even realized that service can be much more than something to do in our spare time.

On Thursday, October 2 from 12:00-4:00 p.m., the Center for Social Concerns will sponsor the second annual Post-Graduate Opportunities Day to help seniors learn about some of these opportunities. Representatives from service organizations including the Jesuit Volunteer Corps, Peace Corps, Covenant House, Holy Cross Associates, and many more will be here to provide us with Information on how to keep on caring, and how we can spend year or two in some type of post-graduate service.

It’s a way of extending the Notre Dame tradition beyond the borders of the world, to take a part of what’s special here with us when we leave and put it to use.

Adding this information to the senior list of options can open quite a few doors, maybe very unexpected doors. As Seniors we seem to feel that we’re entering a new era now— that we’ve got to get to finish grad school, jujus some much mone to get our careers going. We fall to realize that we do have a life time now that this is only the beginning, and what better way to start out than by continuing the ND tradition? A year or maybe two of volunteer service may be just what we need to give our lives the direction and shape they need. At any rate it is worth some serious consideration.

After four years we owe it to Notre Dame and the special lessons we’ve been taught here to give some real thought to what service is all about and what it means to a care for life. Eric Dahl-Bredine is a senior in the college of Arts & Letters.

Sarabando’s article was overexaggerated

Dear Editor:

This letter is in regard to Lou Sarabando’s opinion in recent Viewpoint column. He felt that the consumption of alcohol is encouraged at this university. That implied that an SYR is nothing more than a way to care about us, the race of brothers and sisters. There’s nothing more than SYRs. It is strange to me that a recent guest column could be printed a letter of mine addressed to Mr. John A. Moorman, Director of Maintenance, concerning the pot-hole in D-2 parking lot. The letter was dated Friday, Septem­ber 26, 1986. It is a common thing that the truth will not be exposed to you. One way to start out than by continuing the ND tradition? A year or maybe two of post-gradutate service.

Maintenance director very quick to respond

Dear Editor:

On Friday, September 26, The Observer printed a letter of mine addressed to Mr. John A. Moorman, Director of Maintenance, concerning the pot-hole in D-2 parking lot. The letter was dated September 9, 1986. Here is Mr. Moorman’s response, dated September 17, 1986.

John Gardiner

Stanford Hall
American! Students in other lands

KATHY SCARBECK Features writer

Many students who spent time abroad last semester brought back more than just hard Rock Cafe menus, Oklohomerfest beer, and memories of those who wanted them to be out of their country at a time when fear of American movie theaters or made you throw away your Nike sneakers for things that wouldn't say, "Hey, I'm American," says Joanie Long, another junior who was in Rome.

Because of the tenseness of the situation in Rome, the students were given the option of returning early to the United States and finishing classes here. At the beginning we weren't sure if Libya would go out of control with its actions, but after that I wasn't really scared at all. "What angered them most was that they felt they were being treated as children," she says, "Reagan would listen to them, cool their head, and turn around and do exactly what he said he'd do."

Joe Marx, a Notre Dame junior who was also in Birmensleld, also recognizes this problem. "Americans should at least try to listen more to Europeans and thereby gain their respect. They don't like being treated as inferior."

During the Libyan crisis, Americans often found it difficult to understand why Europe wasn't giving the United States more support. Marx attributes this to an error in America's picture of Europe. "There is no central unity in Europe as in America, and that can obviously be attributed to the vast number of cultures," claims Marx. "Europe is not a homogenous unit, and because of this Europeans work for their own countries. This is perceived as being something anti-American, but it's really self-interest."

One student who spent last semester abroad did encounter physical hostility. Notre Dame senior Alice Groner, who was in the London program, was riding the subway one day when a man sitting across from her told her to turn down her Walkman, but she didn't do anything at first. He then struck Groner on her knee, causing her to ask what his problem was. "He took off my hair and threw me against the door and yelled You Americans think you can come over here and walk all over us," she says. "What made me maddest was that nobody would do anything about it. They just watched."

Groner states that there were generally a lot of anti-American feelings in London and that the Libyan crisis really bolstered that problem. "I was the only one who was physically attacked for being an American, but other people were verbally," she says. Some students question the way in which the American media covered incidents of terrorist violence. Junior Mike Jones, who was in the Angers program, feels that events which occurred abroad were "much more blown up in America."

There certainly was cause to worry, Jones admits. "Fifteen people were killed, but that was out of the millions who have gone over. Granted that's fifteen more than there should have been, but it wasn't as dangerous as Americans thought."

Being abroad gave students the opportunity to distance themselves from how the Libyan situation was being perceived in America. Because members of the Saint Mary's Ireland program didn't have television sets in their homes, they were at a disadvantage in receiving the immediate information which most Americans take for granted.

We were surprised to hear statistics that the vast majority of Americans supported Reagan's actions, says Saint Mary's junior Joan Everett. "We began to view America's actions negatively. They were so extreme... America looked like a new country wanting to change things overnight."

Students in other parts of the world also had reactions in the Libyan crisis. Joe Mazzone, a Notre Dame senior who studied in Jerusalem, says that he felt safer even in his room. "I'm really in no danger while abroad. "Israelis have nothing against Americans. Palestinians on the whole just want to live and get along with their people," he says. According to Mazzone, the Jews and Israelis are supportive of U.S. action against Libya, but the Arabs did not. "They didn't understand the U.S. always talking about peace," Mazzone says. "Reagan was as hard to understand as other states."

Clarice Keizer, a senior in the Cairo program last year, reports that most of the people there were supportive of the action taken by America against Libya. "Egyptians thought someone needed to do it, and they were glad that they didn't have to," she says.

According to Keizer, safety during the Libyan crisis really wasn't a major concern. "I felt totally safe in Cairo," she states. "The media in Cairo were limited. It made us not worry about anything, because we didn't know what was going on until after the fact."

The situation in Mexico was much like that in Europe, as that people were treated as other.
many people were strongly against the bombing of Libya. According to Notre Dame senior Tom Hardiman, who was in the Mexico City program, many people supported America's actions while others demonstrated against them. Rocks were thrown at the American embassy, and at one point there were one hundred guards posted in front of it.

"The Mexican press was pro-American," Hardiman says regarding the bombing. "To justify the act, it said that in the thirteen days before it there had been ten terrorist actions."

Notre Dame junior Paul Flynn, who was in the Tokyo program, recounts a similar division of opinion among the Japanese. "Older people supported America and thought that America had made some sort of attempt to prevent terrorism," Flynn says. "The younger people questioned how strongly Libya was linked to world terrorism."

Flynn sympathizes with Americans who didn't want to travel to Europe because of the terrorism: "It's like people on a beach who know a shark might be there, and they're afraid to go in, even if they can't see it.

He has been called the "Master of Horror" by his readers, but no matter what he is called one thing is certain: Stephen King is an extremely popular writer. This success may be attributed to King's exciting writing style, which is virtually unmatchable. King is also prolific; he usually publishes more than one work every year.

According to Notre Dame senior Paul Flynn, who was in the Tokyo program, many people supported America's actions while others demonstrated against them. Rocks were thrown at the American embassy, and at one point there were one hundred guards posted in front of it.

"The Mexican press was pro-American," Hardiman says regarding the bombing. "To justify the act, it said that in the thirteen days before it there had been ten terrorist actions."

Notre Dame junior Paul Flynn, who was in the Tokyo program, recounts a similar division of opinion among the Japanese. "Older people supported America and thought that America had made some sort of attempt to prevent terrorism," Flynn says. "The younger people questioned how strongly Libya was linked to world terrorism."

Flynn sympathizes with Americans who didn't want to travel to Europe because of the terrorism: "It's like people on a beach who know a shark might be there, and they're afraid to go in, even if they can't see it.

He has been called the "Master of Horror" by his readers, but no matter what he is called one thing is certain: Stephen King is an extremely popular writer. This success may be attributed to King's exciting writing style, which is virtually unmatchable. King is also prolific; he usually publishes more than one work every year.

According to Notre Dame senior Paul Flynn, who was in the Tokyo program, many people supported America's actions while others demonstrated against them. Rocks were thrown at the American embassy, and at one point there were one hundred guards posted in front of it.

"The Mexican press was pro-American," Hardiman says regarding the bombing. "To justify the act, it said that in the thirteen days before it there had been ten terrorist actions."

Notre Dame junior Paul Flynn, who was in the Tokyo program, recounts a similar division of opinion among the Japanese. "Older people supported America and thought that America had made some sort of attempt to prevent terrorism," Flynn says. "The younger people questioned how strongly Libya was linked to world terrorism."

Flynn sympathizes with Americans who didn't want to travel to Europe because of the terrorism: "It's like people on a beach who know a shark might be there, and they're afraid to go in, even if they can't see it.

He has been called the "Master of Horror" by his readers, but no matter what he is called one thing is certain: Stephen King is an extremely popular writer. This success may be attributed to King's exciting writing style, which is virtually unmatchable. King is also prolific; he usually publishes more than one work every year.

According to Notre Dame senior Paul Flynn, who was in the Tokyo program, many people supported America's actions while others demonstrated against them. Rocks were thrown at the American embassy, and at one point there were one hundred guards posted in front of it.

"The Mexican press was pro-American," Hardiman says regarding the bombing. "To justify the act, it said that in the thirteen days before it there had been ten terrorist actions."

Notre Dame junior Paul Flynn, who was in the Tokyo program, recounts a similar division of opinion among the Japanese. "Older people supported America and thought that America had made some sort of attempt to prevent terrorism," Flynn says. "The younger people questioned how strongly Libya was linked to world terrorism."

Flynn sympathizes with Americans who didn't want to travel to Europe because of the terrorism: "It's like people on a beach who know a shark might be there, and they're afraid to go in, even if they can't see it.

He has been called the "Master of Horror" by his readers, but no matter what he is called one thing is certain: Stephen King is an extremely popular writer. This success may be attributed to King's exciting writing style, which is virtually unmatchable. King is also prolific; he usually publishes more than one work every year.

According to Notre Dame senior Paul Flynn, who was in the Tokyo program, many people supported America's actions while others demonstrated against them. Rocks were thrown at the American embassy, and at one point there were one hundred guards posted in front of it.

"The Mexican press was pro-American," Hardiman says regarding the bombing. "To justify the act, it said that in the thirteen days before it there had been ten terrorist actions."

Notre Dame junior Paul Flynn, who was in the Tokyo program, recounts a similar division of opinion among the Japanese. "Older people supported America and thought that America had made some sort of attempt to prevent terrorism," Flynn says. "The younger people questioned how strongly Libya was linked to world terrorism."

Flynn sympathizes with Americans who didn't want to travel to Europe because of the terrorism: "It's like people on a beach who know a shark might be there, and they're afraid to go in, even if they can't see it.

He has been called the "Master of Horror" by his readers, but no matter what he is called one thing is certain: Stephen King is an extremely popular writer. This success may be attributed to King's exciting writing style, which is virtually unmatchable. King is also prolific; he usually publishes more than one work every year.
Lettie Hall, 50, of 19 Hurley Hall, Hurley Heights, Delaware, died Monday. She had been a resident of the area for 50 years. Mrs. Hall was a member of the First Baptist Church of Hurley Heights. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Hurley and is survived by her husband, Mr. Hurley, and two children, Mr. Hurley and Ms. Hurley. Services will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at the First Baptist Church of Hurley Heights. Burial will be in the church cemetery. Visitation will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday at the church. The family requests contributions to the Hurley Heights Fire Department.
Crimson Tide ranked 2nd
Hurricanes should remain on top

Associated Press

For the second time this season, Notre Dame will be facing the second-ranked team in the nation. Alabama moved up to second in the Associated Press poll yesterday, replacing the Irish faced Michigan in their opening game when the Wolverines were ranked second.

Miami of Florida Coach Jimmy Johnson says he's wary about whether his team can remain No. 1 the rest of college football season, but Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer thinks the Hurricanes should have smooth sailing.

"It's obviously early in the season and there's a lot of football left to be played," Johnson said. "I look at Miami of Ohio beating LSU, and I know that if this game you'd better be ready to play every week."

Miami, which beat Oklahoma 28-16 Saturday, replaced the Sooners as the top-ranked team by receiving 56 of first-place votes.

The Hurricanes have seven opponents remaining on the regular schedule with a combined record of 10-18-2—none of which, East Carolina, has the longest Division I losing streak at 13 games.

"They shouldn't stub their toe of the way with the schedule they have," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer after Saturday's loss.

Miami's remaining seven regular-season opponents are Northern Illinois (0-5), West Virginia (1-2-1), Florida State (1-2-1), Tulsa (3-2-1) and East Carolina (0-4). Only Florida State has been in the Top Twenty this year.

"It's ironic that statements have been made about the rest of our schedule," Johnson said. "Before we beat Florida and Oklahoma, everybody talked about how tough it is. We beat West Virginia and Pitt games would be on the road, and Florida State at home."

"I know how good West Virginia, Pitt and Florida State can be. Florida State lost to Michigan by two points in Ann Arbor so I know how tough that game will be," Johnson added. "It's a lot tougher schedule than people think.

The Hurricanes received 1,156 out of a possible 1,190 points. Both Alabama and Penn State the only other schools to receive first-place votes. Alabama, Nebraska and Michigan, which knocked Florida State out of the Top Twenty for the first time in three years with a 20-18 victory, each moved up one spot to be ranked second, third and fourth, respectively.

Penn State, which downed East Carolina, 42-17, moved from seventh to fifth, while Oklahoma dropped to sixth and Arkansas advanced to eighth and ninth, and Southern California jumped from 12th to 10th. The second 10, in order, consists of Iowa, Washington, Baylor, Texas A&M, UCLA, Arizona State, Michigan State, Louisiana State, Fresno State and North Carolina State.

Why is Vinny Testaverde smiling? It could be that his Hurricanes just became the No. 1 team in the country. The story on this week's poll appears at right.
Irish golfers defeat W. Michigan, take 3rd at Ind. Championship

BY ORLANDO RUBIANO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame golf team enjoyed a successful weekend by winning a dual match on Friday before taking a third-place finish Sunday at the Indiana State Golf Championship.

The Irish went to Kalamazoo on Friday where they defeated host Western Michigan by a stroke (336-339). Although the Irish were unable to get in a practice round for the 18-hole match, they were still able to win in somewhat abbreviated form.

Facing the victors was senior captain Chris Bona who fired a 73, among the club. Doug Giorgio followed closely with a 79. The team took third place. In order, with Dick Connelly (80), Pat Mohan (81), John Connely (83), and Mike Culver (84). Each side's high-score was not included in the team totals.

Notre Dame coach Noel O'Sullivan commented that his team did show signs of nervousness in its first action of the season.

"Three of our six guys (Mohan, Culver, and John Connely) were playing in their very first collegiate tournaments," he said. "That showed at times."

O'Sullivan also noted that a primary reason for his young players' nervousness may have been due to the course, which has a high rating that lends itself to higher than average scores.

O'Sullivan then took his troops south to Zionsville, Ind., Sunday, for the state golf championship. Fifteen colleges from Indiana were invited to participate in the 36-hole event. There, the Irish gave another good performance, for which they were rewarded with third place. Had it not been for an unfortunate wrist injury sustained by Dick Connelly, who had to withdraw after the first round, the team had a solid bid for second place.

Noneetheless, O'Sullivan was pleased by his team's showing. "Our third-place finish leaves me and the team with a positive feeling of accomplishment," said O'Sullivan. "The numbers were not wonderful, but were good relative to the rest of the field."

Notre Dame finished with a two-day total of 646, and Pat Mohan took the runner-up medalist trophy after shooting a 154 total. Ball State's Jeff Galagher was the medalist winner with a 151. In addition, Ball State won the championship with a team score of 618. Franklin College came in second at 644.

The club's individual numbers stacked up with Mohan's 154 (73-81), Giorgio hit a 162 (83-83), John Connely a 165 (82-84), and Dick Connely an 81. All the players were invited to participate in the state golf championship. hod record, sympathy

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS - It's not sympathy that Burt Blyleven is looking for after setting a major league record for home run pitches in a season, but sympathy is what the Minnesota Twins hurler is getting from Hall of Fame pitcher Robin Roberts, the previous record holder.

"Bert Blyleven is probably pitching in the worst home run park ever built," Roberts said Monday night after Blyleven gave up three homers to the Cleveland Indians for his 47th, 48th and 49th of the year at the Metrodome.

"I don't like to see a guy with that ability have it detracted from him," Roberts added.

Blyleven broke Roberts' 1956 record when he gave up a two-out, third-inning homer to Indian rookie Jay Bell, who was involved in a 1956 trade for Blyleven. Bell hit on the first pitch he saw in the major leagues 589 feet into the left-field bleachers.

Despite the three homers, Blyleven's 16-14 gave up the overall lead and emerged the winner when the Twins rallied in the eight for a 6-5 victory.

Roberts, contacted by the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch at his Florida home after Blyleven tied his mark with 46 home run pitches, also expressed little patience for reporters.

"I don't think it's fair to Bert Blyleven, especially considering the phenomenal record he's had, that you guys bring that up," Roberts said.

The First Annual respect Life Mass and Dinner sponsored by Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Right to Life and originally scheduled for October 4th has been postponed until December 6th due to conflicts with the televised ND/Alabama game.

Bishop John D'Arcy and U.S. Deputy Assistant Attorney General Douglas Kmiec will be present on December 6th and tickets bought for the 4th will be honored.

Refunds will be granted upon request. Thursday and Friday in the Dining Halls.

The Notre Dame Alumni Club of LaPorte County requests that people (men and women) from Michigan City.

Questions? Call Tim McBride at 289-2468 (LaPorte Co. Alumni). For SENIORS only: Post-Graduate Opportunities Day! 10 am - 4 pm: Center for Social Concerns by Thursday, October 9th.

Limit: 40 people (men and women) from Michigan City. The tickets will be handled by responsible people.

For information, call Sue Cunningham: 239-1987 at the Center for Social Concerns.

Jeanine Powers is 22!

Who knows what she does behind closed doors?

We love you Niners! Cath and Sarah

SAB Sponsored

USC TRIP

Information Meeting
7:00 pm, Monday Oct. 6
Lower Level LaFortune

 Quad Roommate & Ticket Signups

SAB Sponsored

USC TRIP

Information Meeting
7:00 pm, Monday Oct. 6
Lower Level LaFortune

 Quad Roommate & Ticket Signups

N.D. RUGBY CLUB:

JOIN A WINNING TRADITION

* No experience necessary
* Looking for new players
* Stepam Field

Tues., Wed., Thurs., 4:15 - 6:00
Call Sean 277-2613

We love you Niners! Cath and Sarah

For SENIORS only: Post-Graduate Opportunities Day! 10 am - 4 pm: Center for Social Concerns

The First Annual respect Life Mass and Dinner sponsored by Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Right to Life and originally scheduled for October 4th has been postponed until December 6th due to conflicts with the televised ND/Alabama game.

Bishop John D'Arcy and U.S. Deputy Assistant Attorney General Douglas Kmiec will be present on December 6th and tickets bought for the 4th will be honored.

Refunds will be granted upon request. Thursday and Friday in the Dining Halls.

Wednesday, October 1, 1986, -page 10

Read Football Notebook - Thursdays!
Today

Campus

12:10 - 1:00 p.m.: Closed meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous, Holy Cross House
12:15 - 1:15 p.m.: Center for Spirituality's Issues Facing Women in the Church Fall '86 series. Speaker: Dr. Doris Donnelly, SMC. Topic: "Women and Conflict." Free and open to the public. Stapleton Lounge
4:00 p.m.: Post-Graduate Opportunities Day. Students invited to discuss the volunteer options available after graduation. All seniors invited. Patio outside the Center for Social Concerns
6:00 - 6:30 p.m.: Sign ups, Wisconsin Club, chartering bus for fall break to Kenosha, Racine, and Milwaukee, $25, bottom of LaFortune

7:00 p.m.: Organizational meeting of the French Club for past and future Anglèvités and all those interested. Dues $1. Important issues to be discussed. 341 Newland Science Hall. Venez, Venez! Towal
7:00 p.m.: General meeting of Notre Dame College Republicans. All interested welcome. Library Lounge
7:00 p.m.: Wednesday Night Film Series. "The Music Man," 1962. color. 151 minutes. Morro Da Costa, USA. O'Shaughnessy Hall Loft
8:00 p.m.: Exxon Distinguished Visiting Scholar Series. College of Arts & Letters and Dept. of Art. Art History and Design. Topic: "Values for an American Culture." Speaker: Don Bush, Design Historian, Dept. of Art, Arizona State University. Annenberg Auditorium

The Daily Crossword

ACROSS

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

Down

SAB presents

48 HRS.

The Daily Crossword

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

Across

Down

Help Woody spread the word.

Sound off against noise pollution.

announces the opening of their new offices located on the 2nd floor of LaFortune.

Far Side

Gary Larson

"Uh-oh... The Beaumont's mouth is on fire."
By MIKE CHMIEL
Sports Writer

Freshman Kathy Cunningham has already had an impact on the Notre Dame volleyball team. Brian O’Gara profiles Cunningham and tonight’s match with St. Francis in his story at right.

CFA represents issues, coaches, not just TV contracts

By MIKE CHMIEL
Sports Writer

(Editor’s note - Today the Observer begins a three-part series on the College Football Association and its impact on college football. The series begins with a look at the CFA’s formation.)

For the third-straight year, the College Football Association (CFA) will come to dominate Saturday afternoon television with an array of top football matchups throughout the college football season.

Contrary to the beliefs of many football lovers, the deregulation of the college football television contract by the National Collegiate Athletic Association did not create the CFA. The Freedom afforded to schools by the NCAA in 1984 allowed schools to negotiate individual television contracts and merely afforded the CFA the chance for broader recognition.

“The CFA was not formed with television in mind,” says Chuck Neinas, Executive Director of the CFA. “The television issue was not raised until the CFA was already functioning.”

The CFA actually began in the fall of 1975 with a meeting of representatives from seven major conferences and a number of major institutions. These representatives recognized a desire to organize the NCAA’s top level, Division I, to include only major programs with similar philosophies. Such programs sought a division in which their problems and concerns would not be ignored or compromised.

“The CFA was to provide a forum for those of the major college programs to come together and discuss concerns and issues of mutual interest,” Neinas says.

Neinas has been leading the initial meeting in 1975, the NCAA appointed a steering committee to develop guidelines for a recognition organization. In April, 1976, however, the NCAA rejected a set of guidelines developed by the steering committee, which precipitated a continuance of the conference’s work in the organization of the CFA by the end of 1976.

In June, 1977, the CFA admitted 60 schools that met the criteria set forth by the conference in its membership and amended its Articles of Organization.

According to Neinas, the CFA is a voluntary organization that hopes to recognize the problems of the Southern big college programs. The key role of the CFA in its ability to exist lies in its ability to create a needed change in the NCAA and act according to the needs of its members.

“We are a voluntary organization,” says Neinas. “We have no rules or regulations. We are all members of the NCAA, and if we want to bring about change, we go through the NCAA. If there are changes primarily what are cast as a lobby group.

Neinas also explained that while the CFA includes the major college programs, these programs constitute a minority in Division I and the NCAA. Of the almost 6,000 schools in Division I and 105 in Division I-A, only 66 institutions belong to the CFA. This number could increase if a CFA majority vote on the Division I-A level and enables certain regulations to get passed.

The members of the CFA include the schools of the Western Athletic Conference, the Southeastern Conference, the Big Eight and the Big Ten Conference. The CFA also includes northern independent schools.

I hate to use the term, “big game” when describing an upcoming contest. It seems tite and it is overused every year, especially if it is a lot of Brent Mustanger.

What about “important game” or “key game” you ask? Sorry, I hate those, too.

I realize that these terms are accurate most of the time, but it’s those other times that really get me. Like when Mississippi and Northwestern play at the end of the season, and it is called a big game because the winner goes into the next season with more momentum.

Noire Dame’s schedule, therefore, presents a problem because the opponent is a worthy one just about every week. Even if the opponent aren’t top-notch, like Purdue, something unbelievable is on the line like the Shillelagh. I know we’re all relieved to have that baby back in our possession.

This week’s opponent is definitely a worthy one. The second-ranked Alabama Crimson Tide are unbeaten, with wins over Ohio State, Vanderbilt, Southern Mississippi and Florida.

The list of Crimson Tide tide weapons is a long one. Heisman trophy candidate Mike Shula is the quarterback. He does not possess the flash of some other Heisman candidates, but he steadily gets the job done and has been extremely effective in late-game drives.

The running backs are an explosive group. Junior fullback Kerry Goode had an outstanding freshman season before a knee injury ruined the ‘94 season and half of last season.

Sophomores Bobby Humphrey and Gene Jelks share the backfield spot and have combined for 541 yards and six touchdowns in Alabama’s first four games. All three backs present heavy threats to the Irish defense.

Shula also has good targets in Albert Bell, an all-America candidate. Bell, a wide receiver, is to a slow start, with ten catches in four games for 88 yards, but it looks like Purdue, something unbelievable is on the line like the Shillelagh. I know we’re all relieved to have that baby back in our possession.

This week’s opponent is definitely a worthy one. The second-ranked Alabama Crimson Tide are unbeaten, with wins over Ohio State, Vanderbilt, Southern Mississippi and Florida.

The list of Crimson Tide tide weapons is a long one. Heisman trophy candidate Mike Shula is the quarterback. He does not possess the flash of some other Heisman candidates, but he steadily gets the job done and has been extremely effective in late-game drives.

The running backs are an explosive group. Junior fullback Kerry Goode had an outstanding freshman season before a knee injury ruined the ‘94 season and half of last season.

Sophomores Bobby Humphrey and Gene Jelks share the backfield spot and have combined for 541 yards and six touchdowns in Alabama’s first four games. All three backs present heavy threats to the Irish defense.

IRealize that these terms are accurate most of the time, but it’s those other times that really get me. Like when Mississippi and Northwestern play at the end of the season, and it is called a big game because the winner goes into the next season with more momentum.

Noire Dame’s schedule, therefore, presents a problem because the opponent is a worthy one just about every week. Even if the opponent aren’t top-notch, like Purdue, something unbelievable is on the line like the Shillelagh. I know we’re all relieved to have that baby back in our possession.

This week’s opponent is definitely a worthy one. The second-ranked Alabama Crimson Tide are unbeaten, with wins over Ohio State, Vanderbilt, Southern Mississippi and Florida.

The list of Crimson Tide tide weapons is a long one. Heisman trophy candidate Mike Shula is the quarterback. He does not possess the flash of some other Heisman candidates, but he steadily gets the job done and has been extremely effective in late-game drives.

The running backs are an explosive group. Junior fullback Kerry Goode had an outstanding freshman season before a knee injury ruined the ‘94 season and half of last season.

Sophomores Bobby Humphrey and Gene Jelks share the backfield spot and have combined for 541 yards and six touchdowns in Alabama’s first four games. All three backs present heavy threats to the Irish defense.

IRealize that these terms are accurate most of the time, but it’s those other times that really get me. Like when Mississippi and Northwestern play at the end of the season, and it is called a big game because the winner goes into the next season with more momentum.

Noire Dame’s schedule, therefore, presents a problem because the opponent is a worthy one just about every week. Even if the opponent aren’t top-notch, like Purdue, something unbelievable is on the line like the Shillelagh. I know we’re all relieved to have that baby back in our possession.

This week’s opponent is definitely a worthy one. The second-ranked Alabama Crimson Tide are unbeaten, with wins over Ohio State, Vanderbilt, Southern Mississippi and Florida.

The list of Crimson Tide tide weapons is a long one. Heisman trophy candidate Mike Shula is the quarterback. He does not possess the flash of some other Heisman candidates, but he steadily gets the job done and has been extremely effective in late-game drives.

The running backs are an explosive group. Junior fullback Kerry Goode had an outstanding freshman season before a knee injury ruined the ‘94 season and half of last season.

Sophomores Bobby Humphrey and Gene Jelks share the backfield spot and have combined for 541 yards and six touchdowns in Alabama’s first four games. All three backs present heavy threats to the Irish defense.