Dissidents kept under house arrest

Associated Press

MOSCOW - Three Soviets were kept under house arrest Sunday after sending a protest to a Kremlin-sponsored peace forum, and the official media said Jews demanding emigration rights were trying to "poison" the meeting.

The wife of jailed Jewish dissident Josef Begun, meanwhile, said she had no word on a president Josef Begun, meanwhile, said she had no word on a

The peace conference entered its second day Sunday with a star-studded guest list of about 1,500 Soviet and foreign artists, film stars, writers, politicians, scientists and other participants.

Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov, who spoke to participants Saturday, took the floor again Sunday to criticize the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative and the Soviet position in superpower arms talks, participants said.

The forum, held at various sites throughout Moscow, was due to end Monday with an address by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Some participants said they expected Gorbachev to focus on arms control.

Writers Norman Mailer and Gore Vidal, actor Gregory Peck and industrialist Armand Hammer were among the Americans at the gathering, called the Moscow Forum for a Nuclear-Free World and the Survival of Mankind.

A group of Soviets who want to join relatives abroad were kept at home by police Sunday after sending a telegram to the forum in which they said the protesters seeking Begun's release were beaten by security agents.

"We want this inhumane and illegal action against peaceful people to be known by all members of the forum, including Mikhail Gorbachev and Andrei Sakharov," said the telegram, sent Saturday by Galina Gerasimov, Alexander Zhdanov and Vladimir Pimonov.

Gerasimov told The Associated Press on Sunday that all three were being kept from leaving their apartments by plainclothes security agents.

She said she was not sure if the telegram, sent by the president of the forum, was ever received.

Leonid Yuzefovich, a Jewish activist, said he and two women got through security at one forum site, the Kosmos Hotel, and distributed an appeal for free emigration of Soviet Jews to Israel.

Yuzefovich said Soviet officials there refused to accept the appeal, and he was detained for an hour by militiamen.

Tickets debate goals, administration

By BUD LUEPKE

Seven candidates for student body president voiced their ideas and opinions Sunday night in a debate that focused on "realistic goals" and criticism of the administration.

Each of the candidates began with a two-minute opening statement and then answered two questions from each of the two panelists, Joe Murphy, editor-in-chief of The Observer, and Kathleen McKernan, news editor for Scholastic magazine. The candidates ended with two-minute closing statements.

The Unknown candidate, whose running mate is also unknown, spoke first. He said he was not running "another joke ticket, not just another switch and Montanara." The Unknown candidate proposed more "world-record attempts" on campus and more outdoor band concerts.

He also said he wants to develop a student-run television station. "We've got a $400,000 budget and we're definitely going to spend it," he said.

The Unknown candidate was the only candidate to speak on the gay-lesbian issue. He said he was opposed to any school-sponsored gay-lesbian club.

The next speaker, Marty Rodgers, characterized he and his running-mate Buz Eckelkamp as "normal, laid-back guys who know how to have a good time." Rodgers, the executive coordinator for Student Affairs, said he believes student government should confront the University administration.

Ballot items set for Tuesday election

By SEAN S. HICKEY

Seven tickets are running for the positions of student body president and student body vice president. Junior Vince Willis, currently manager of Theodore's, is running for student body president with Cathy Nunnelking, current student class president. Sophomore Class President Pat Cooke is running for student body president and junior Laurie Bink, chairman of Junior President's Weekend, is running for student body vice president.

Junior Marty Rodgers, currently the executive coordinator for Student Affairs at Notre Dame, is running for student body president with James Killen Hall President "Buzz" Eckelkamp running for vice president. Other tickets include juniors Bill Sammon and Grace Giorgio, running for student body president and vice president, respectively and as well as junior John Lake and sophomore Debbie Delantah, juniors Willie

GLND/SMC knew nothing of flyers, says spokesman

By ANN MARIE DURING

A spokesman for the group called the GLND/SMC, says the group's post office box had no idea who might be responsible for the flyers posted last week that bore the group's name, according to several Flyers, said he posted before Security removed them.

Michael Dini, chairman of the public relations committee of GLND/SMC, said he had no idea who might be responsible for the flyers.

Dini said the posting of the flyers "was done at a time when the Student Senate was debating the issue (of homosexuals). There are lots of people on campus, I suppose, who would want to see that our group doesn't get any official recognition."

A Notre Dame student will be formally charged today with driving while intoxicated in connection with the Dec. 6 fatal traffic accident involving junior Michael Connell, said Mimi McElroy of the St. Joseph County Prosecutor's Office. McIntire said a court appearance date for the 21-year-old student will also be set today. Driving while intoxicated is a Class A misdemeanor, which carries a maximum sentence of one year in prison and a $5,000 fine. - The Observer

Managing the student body elections on Tuesday was discussed at the Judicial Council meeting last Thursday. According to Judicial Coordinator Marie Cintron, the Judicial Board in each dormitory is responsible for selecting the candidates during the voting periods. According to Dan Gamache, election chairman from Ombudsman, any undergraduate, including those who are sophomores, is eligible to vote. All ballots are then to be returned to O'Shaugnessy Hall for counting. - The Observer

Authorities were searching Sunday for a convicted murderer who foiled prison officials thinking he was a parolee before divesting his wheelchair to overpower a guard and escape. Robert Blackmon, 43, who was serving a life sentence at Avon Park Correctional Institution for second-degree murder in the 1978 slaying of a fellow inmate hostage, but they escaped, prison officials said. The inmate was injured during a tour in Vietnam, but apparently not as severely as authorities believed. - Associated Press

If you care enough to send the very best, send yourself

This year, I forgot to send Valentine's cards to the people I love the most. When I think about it, I realize I haven't sent my parents a card for Valentine's Day for years, although they still keep my collection of preschool paste-and-crayon Valentines.

It's not that I don't love my parents, because I do. And it's not that I don't 'care enough to send the very best.' This year, I did send the very best. I went home.

But this time, situations in the family-at-large were in an uproar. I got home just in time to drive with Mom to the airport for her flight to Austria. Dad and I were in such a hurry that we didn't even remember in what O'Hare lot we'd left the car.

We didn't even remember what level the conservative blue Buick was on. I kept telling Dad that if we'd bought a Mercedes like I had wanted and had it painted pink, this type of thing would never have happened. But somehow I am thankful for the four hours in the airport (two of them in the parking garage), because they brought my father and I closer together.

Somehow, while I was at school, I'd forgotten how interesting my father was. That's a hard thing to do because I'd grown up on his stories of life in Europe and then life in the United States. It was he who originally inspired me to want to write. I started writing when I started writing his biography, because he'd had one interesting experience after another (so now you know who to complain to . . .)

He was also the same man who infuriated me by showing down, the man who wanted me to "get a real job" and be an engineer or doctor. Still, he is the man I love most in the world. It's hard to tell my father what I feel about him, for some reason, as much easier to tell my mother what I feel about her. She cries, I cry, and then we hug madly. But my father is another matter entirely. For example, on Feb. 13, his birthday, I tried to tell him how he is like a hot air balloon to me. You're right if you're thinking that is no great allusion to use. He didn't take all that kindly to it either until I explained that he is a means of elevation, which also sounds nasty until I explain that anything I have become he has brought me to, mentally, financial and psychologically.

Sometimes I have succeeded to please him, and sometimes I have succeeded just to spite him. But however hard it is for me to tell my father I love him, it's hundreds of times harder for him to tell me the same. I was an Innsbruck sophomore when I realized my father had never written me a letter. You know the type, I'm sure. Mom writes the letters and signs them, "Love, Mom and Dad."

But I saw my chance when Mom was in Europe with me, and Dad was sitting at home. I got him and asked him to write me. What I got for the effort was a letter from Grandpa (who used to live down the street from us) saying that everything was fine at home, and how was everything with me? You guessed the rest, "Love, Grandma and Dad."

I don't know where my relationship with my father will go after our weekend at home to gether talking. I know he is worried about where I'll go with the very liberal arts majors I've chosen, and I must admit I'm more worried now than when I was decided on them freshman year. He's also worried about my writing and my friends, but I've finally reconciled myself to his worries. Even if he can't say it in so many words, I guess his worrying means that he loves me. So, Happy Birthday, Daddy. I love you too.

The following incidents were reported to Notre Dame Security this weekend:

Friday
2 a.m. - Staff at the Alumni-Senior Club reported vandalism to the walls in the Club. Two sections of the Club's walls were apparently damaged by someone kicking them. Damage is estimated at approximately $180.
10:03 - A vehicle was towed from the Post Office parking lot for violation of the parking rules. This vehicle had accumulated eight previous tickets.
10:45 - An improperly parked vehicle was towed from the South Dining Hall parking lot. The vehicle had accumulated five tickets.
11:47 - A vehicle was towed from the D-1 lot for violation of posted parking restrictions. Five tickets had been issued to this vehicle.

Franklin and Jim Magnan; as well as "Unknown." (See page 1 for full story.)

In the senate race, there are eight candidates running. One student is elected from each district for a total of five student senators. In this year's election, three of the five districts have candidates running unopposed: sophomore Sean Hoffman of Stanford Hall in District 2, incumbent Junior Brian Holst from Holy Cross in District 1, and Junior Steve Wene, off-campus, in District 5.

In District 3, two candidates are running: freshmen Dave Bruner and freshmen Mike Carrigan, both from Dillon Hall. In District 4, there are two challengers to the sophomore incumbent Steve Viz of Planner: sophomores Laura Janke from Pasquerilla East, and freshmen Michael Schadek of Grace.

Two referenda have also been added by the senate to the ballot. The first referendum states, "The University should divest of its holdings in companies engaged in business activities in South Africa - Yes, No, or Undecided." The second referendum states, "Every student pays a mandatory $12 annual Oberver fee. The quality of the Observer is: Very Good, Good, Average, Poor, or Very Poor."
and "work in cooperation with the administration, but we cannot be friendly with the administration. We want the ability to constructively criticize." Rodgers distinguished his ticket from the others in saying that he and Eckelkamp "already had the respect of the administration" and knew how to deal with it.

Vince Willis said he and running mate, Debbie Delahanty, have realistic ideas that he promised they would implement if elected. "We will present student opinion to the Board of Trustees and the administration where a lot of the change has to take place," said Willis. Willis said he would make sure students "got their money's worth" out of student government and stressed the need for more awareness of student programs and for more underclassmen involvement.

John Lake also emphasized the need for realism in student government. He criticized past platforms for proposing ideas that have "never been implemented. Basically you can't change the administration," he said.

Lake said he and his running-mate, Debbie Delahanty, do not have much experience, but he said he was glad that he did not because "I don't want to be involved with past governments." Sophomore Class President Pat Cooke said Cooke intends to work on the potential in student government, "potential that has not been realized in recent years." Cooke said his positive attitude and proven effectiveness would "bring student government back to students."

Bill Sammon, who is running with Grace Giorgi, said he would stress the tradition of Notre Dame. Of the University, Sammon said, "It's Irish, it's Catholic, it's everything that's ever meant anything good."

Sammon said, "We'd like to set very realistic goals for what a student government can do. Student government has been basically impotent as far as student governments go."

Cooke said he wanted to come to the debate in a kill, said he wanted to have "a lot of fun" instead of trying to change the administration. "The administration will be the same administration," he said.

Group's literature protests CIA interviews

By JOE MARKEY

Staff Reporter

In reaction to the CIA job interviews held last week, a group of students organized by the campus group Pax Christi distributed information bultelings in front of Memorial Library Thursday.

"We're not trying to protest the right to interview, everyone has the right to choose who they want to work for," said

Student Senator John Gardiner, who helped in what he called an

"information campaign." Gardiner said the purpose of the campaign was to create some awareness of the activities of the CIA.

"For the sake of perspec"tive," he said, the group's point was to offer an awareness of "questionable and unethical" activities of the agency. "It was strictly an information campaign," said Gardiner.

The bulletin reviewed the activities of the CIA in the past 20 years, from its involvement in the 1965 coup in Indonesia which the bulletin said led to the slaughter of nearly one million people to its implication in the recent Iranian arms scandal.

Cooke-Bink ticket deserves your vote

We endorse the ticket of Pat Cooke and Laurie Bink for student body president and student body vice president. Strong, positive leadership that brings results," Cooke and Bink's optimism, experience and professionalism make them the most qualified for the position.

Their platform is based around two main objectives.
The first objective is to bring student government back to the students. In order to do this, Cooke plans to reach the students by sitting in the classrooms. He wants a realistic outlook toward student government and seems to be involved.

Cooke and Bink's experience in student government affairs was greater than the other candidates', Cooke has served as president of the Freshman Advisory Council and currently serves as sophomore class president. Bink is currently JFW commissioner.

Cooke also seemed confident of his ability to deal with the current structure of student government.

The tickets of Marty Rodgers and "Buzz" Eckelkamp and Vince Willis and Cathy Nonnenkamp were also well qualified for the position. Although Rodgers and Eckelkamp's platform was based on the strength of Rodgers' experience as student government's executive coordinator for student affairs, Cooke's work ethic and practical knowledge of the government structure make the ticket superior to Rogers'. Despite Vince Willis and Cathy Nonnenkamp's familiarity with student government affairs, Cooke's assertiveness in dealing with student affairs and the administration make their ticket a better choice.

Pat Cooke and Laurie Bink's ticket is the best, most well-rounded ticket in this election. They seem to have the knowledge of the student government structure, the desire to begin new activities, and the competence and confidence to effectively run student government and truly make it representative of student interests.

I was sitting around my room Wednesday night. Nothing much was happening. I'd done some homework, gone visit a friend, had a beer but still there was something wrong. I was feeling restless, on edge. Something was in the air.

I sat feeling this way for another half hour before the knock came. I opened the door and there she was, in her history in is my room, "I told him. "Sure she is Murph," he chuckled, "that's what you said last Friday night. "I'm serious damn it, Marilyn Monroe is in my room." "Go back to sleep Murph." I realized there was no help to be had there and I ran over to the Oak Room to get some cigarettes. When I got back to my room she was still sitting on my bed. Her shoes were off and her legs were curled up under her body. She was wearing a black cocktail dress and there were diamonds in her ears. She was smiling. The first thing you've got to learn was, she murmured huskily. "I can show you things, take you places, teach you what you could never learn anywhere else."

"I believe that," I replied but asked her if you just a product of her arts-type-weaknessforwomen-mixed-up-life-imagination?"

"Don't be a fool darling," she purred, running her hands through my hair and blowing smoke in my ear. "I'm as real as you, and, yes, I'm here for one person only. "

"That's not easy though," I said. "I can't go to school here. All my friends are here and my parents paid a lot of money for all of this."

"No," she said. "It is easy. Forget all this and come with me. I will show you things that aren't."

"I'm sure you will," I muttered, glancing at her legs. I thought about it for a while. Here was, I was sitting in my room while Marilyn Monroe blew in my ear. Millions of men had dreamed about this moment for an answer to his proposal. Ray forced Patch to admit he'd have to think about it. Clay told Curtis he kept the worst. Suddenly though, it all became clear to me. I would do it but I needed time to say goodbye. I can have weed to get ready."

"I asked as she stroked my chest. "You can have till Monday night. I'll be coming back here? I asked hesitantly."

"That's your decision," she whispered, moving away from me and putting her heels back on. "I'll pick you up Monday night."

Then she kissed me goodbye and left. I stood in the doorway watching her walk down the hall. She was giggling again.

Marilyn Monroe. I was dumbfounded. So dumbfounded that I uttered the word opening line in history: "Uh, hi. I thought you were dead."

"I am darling," she murmured in that incredibly sexy husky voice of hers. "But I've come back for you. You're a special case."

"Thanks," I stammered, not sure whether I should be flattered or insulted and not really caring either way. Then I stared at her for a moment and finally said, "Are you going to invite me in and offer me a cigarette or are we just going to stand here and stare at each other?"

"Sure, ok come on. I don't smoke though so I can't offer you a cigarette."

"Go get me some," she said sitting down on my bed. "Right, cigarettes," I said, feeling like a grade-A moron. "Coming right up." I closed the door behind me and ran up to a friend's room. "The most beautiful woman in the world."

Irish wrestlers’ long weekend exploits

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

Friday night’s dual meet with Michigan was the epitome of a Notre Dame wrestling season that has included more than its share of injuries and misfortune.

In a meet that began more than two hours later than its original starting time, the Irish fell, 39-7, and, more importantly, lost two 20-match winners - Andy Radenbaugh and Pat Boyd. Radenbaugh and Boyd had been among the last few wrestlers from the season’s original starting lineup to survive the year with no injuries.

“Boyd and Radenbaugh had been among the last few wrestlers from the season’s original starting lineup to survive the year with no injuries,” said Head Coach Fran McCann.

“I’ve experienced in my life,” said Coach Fran McCann. “It’s just crazy. I’ve never seen anything like this. You’re going to get bumps and bruises, but these are all serious injuries. I’ve never had anyone out for the season before this year.”

The match, which had originally been switched to an 8 p.m. start just this week, never got started until 9:30 p.m., causing the Irish team that had just gotten off a bus to Michigan to get even more tired.

“The meet was scheduled for 7, they called me and said it was going to be at 8, and it didn’t get started till 9:30 because a women’s basketball game was going on. We traveled on the bus for three hours, hung around for three hours, and got on the mat at 9:30,” said McCann. “The sad part is that they (Michigan) knew all along when the meet was scheduled for and they lied to us. I would never treat an opponent like that, and they showed no remorse for it afterward.”

“Things got worse. In the first match, Radenbaugh, leading 4-1, fractured his leg just above the ankle. Radenbaugh underwent surgery Saturday, and will be out for the remainder of the season.”

Two matches later, Pat Boyd hurt his shoulder in the first period of his match. He continued to wrestle, and he went on to win the match, but Boyd is now out for at least two weeks. “We didn’t know how hurt he was,” said McCann. “He showed a lot of guts to continue.”

The injury is similar to one suffered by fellow freshman Jerry Durso earlier in the year, which sidelined him for two weeks.

“It’s a little worse than Jerry’s. The swelling’s pretty good, and he can’t raise his arm at all,” said McCann. “It will be at least two weeks. We hope to have him back for regionals.”

The Irish could not recover after that, as junior Ron Wisniewski’s major decision was the only other Notre Dame victory.

“Ron wrestled very well. It was a nice win for him. He was wrestling a three-time high school state champ in Michigan who was highly recruited, and Ron wrestled hard the whole time,” said McCann. “We were just intimidated by them, and that bothered me.”

“It was not a very good weekend. Once Andy got hurt, it just cast a big black cloud on everything. I was extremely upset about the whole organization of the meet. It may have had some effect on people getting injured.”

“I wasn’t fair to the kids,” McCann continued. “They were put in a bad situation, and I blame Michigan for it.”

Freshman Joe Fredrick is fouled as he attempts to score. Fredrick hit the free throws to help the Irish upset Duke. Rick Riethrock covers the role Fredrick and fellow freshman Scott Paddock played in the game beginning on the back page.
Daytona history most of the day. But he had to watch and wait in the last 13 laps as Bodine took a calculated risk by staying on the racetrack, hoping to squeeze 45 laps of racing out of a nearly-empty garage. Bodine did get in 42 laps and was about 20 seconds in the lead on the 2.5-mile track when his Chevrolet sputtered and quit. The engine stopped just after he had passed the pit entrance, forcing him to roll slowly around the track while Elliott's Ford Thunderbird and the rest of the lead cars raced past.

Elliott then held off Benny Parsons for the victory. The winner crossed the finish line just six-tenths of a second ahead of Parsons.

Daytona, Florida - Bill Elliott won his second Daytona 500 as defending champion Geoff Bodine, losing ground on Elliott, the 1985 winner, out-muscled the fastest field in the 30-car entry list at Daytona International Speedway.

Tennessee forced 28 Irish turnovers and converted many of those into breakaway layup baskets. Meanwhile the Lady Vols featured a balanced attack, with seven players scoring at least eight points.

Notre Dame drops to 6-15 in women's basketball.

The Irish were beaten on the boards, 48-28. Shelly Sexton had 16, while Carla McGhee and Terri Frost had 12 each for the Volunteers.

Elliott then held off Benny Parsons for the victory. The winner crossed the finish line just six-tenths of a second ahead of Parsons.

Lady Vols thrash Irish, 90-55

KNOXVILLE, Tn. - Notre Dame women's basketball team fell victim to Tennessee's relentless pressure defense Saturday afternoon and the Irish fell to the seventh-ranked Lady Volunteers, 90-55, in women's basketball.

Bodine did get in 42 laps and was about 20 seconds in the lead on the 2.5-mile track when his Chevrolet sputtered and quit. The engine stopped just after he had passed the pit entrance, forcing him to roll slowly around the track while Elliott's Ford Thunderbird and the rest of the lead cars raced past.

The Irish were plagued with foul trouble from the outset. Buneck, Sandy Bot-ham and Cathy Enrigault all fouled out, leaving Notre Dame with just six players in the final minute.

Phipps said it would. "He kept telling me this was going to be my game," Fredrick said. "I remember riding around since the first week of practice, he told me I was going to win a game and it wasn't going to be a little one, it was going to be a big one on television."

"Friday when I went into practice, he and I shot about 1,000 free throws. I just shot free throws and he told me 'You know it's going to be a little different with all the fans here but it's the same thing, just keep your routine and hit.' He told me all week I'd be on the line with a chance to win."

"There's just something about him," he continued. "I don't know how he knows these things are going to happen."

After those free throws, it was: Pumped up for the opportunity of the day, Paddock, to do his part. Put into the game when Donald Royal was hitting two free throws with 24 seconds left to give the Irish the lead for good, Paddock rebounded the missed free throw by Smith, a 79-percent free-throw shooter on the season, and was fouled. Paddock, shooting 36 percent from the line, then hit both ends of the one-and-one to secure the win.

"We were in the huddle and the guys said, 'Smith's going to miss that free throw and just make sure you box out,'" Paddock said. "Everything worked out well, I boxed out, Paddock rebounded and when I went to the line, I tried to block out all the distractions and just remember what I worked on in practice. Once I made the first one, the second one was easy."

Fredrick gives a lot of credit to Scott Hicks, his roommate on the road, for curing the "freshman blues."

"He had a really big day," Fredrick said. "He's helped to keep me up. It's a big day for our veterans and I'm really happy for him.

"The final statistics give a modest report of the freshman's performance. Paddock finished with four points, one foul and one turnover in seven minutes of play. Paddock ended with four points, two rebounds, one foul and one blocked shot in eight minutes of play. But those numbers hide what the game meant to the Alumni Hall roommates."

"We've been standing in for the Gold team all week so we knew the coaches were giving us the chance," Paddock said. "I think we took advantage of it."
Stanford/Lewis squad wins LNO

Special to The Observer

The team representing Stanford and Lewis halls won the overall championship in the first-annual Late Night Olympics, held Friday at the ACC.

Fisher-Howard, Pasquerilla West was second, with 89 points. Adam Clayton, placed third with 86. Points were awarded for participating in events, winning games and heading into a pair of games late last week, and riding a six-game winning streak. Bailey, their main offensive weapon, was fourth in the nation in scoring with an average of 28 points per game, and the 1986 champion.

"Bailey is a tremendous talent who does everything for Wagner," said Phelps. "They're strong on the boards and right now they're just really in a groove in terms of playing well and doing the right things to win games."

The senior guard is complemented in the backcourt by another senior, Andre Van Droost, who averages eight points per contest.

At forward are a couple of players with foreign playing experience. Fastest Agbekemang (no, we're not kidding) stands 6-7 and hails from Ibadan, Nigeria, while 6-4 Dean Borges, who played high-school ball in Puerto Rico, fills the other forward slot. Agbekemang averages better than 12 points and 11 rebounds a game, while Borges contributes 13 points and five boards per contest.

Sophomore Todd Grain, 6-8, fills the middle and averages eight points and six rebounds a game.

But perhaps even more powerful than Bailey, although a lot less exciting, is that invisible opponent that seemed to haunt the Irish after their last upset win over a nationally-ranked team - the letdown.

It happened in a Notre Dame overtime victory over LaSalle after the Irish had knocked off top-ranked North Carolina, and Phelps thinks it might happen again after yesterday's 76-66 upset of 15th-ranked Duke.

I'm concerned about having a letdown after this big win," Phelps said yesterday. "We're playing Wagner here and everybody's going to laugh. I guarantee that, in the first half, that's not going to look like the same team that played Duke here (yesterday). That's just human nature."

The last time the Notre Dame played on back-to-back days was on a January road swing. The Irish fought back to earn a 71-67 victory over Penn, and then routed Yale by a 64-40 score.

Soccer team plays well in tourney

The Irish soccer squad performed well but a sidestep on an offensive misstep kept the team out of the finals of the Rudwreder Indoor Soccer Classic in St. Louis.

In a three-game set on Saturday, the Irish defeated Meremac 3-1, and Sangamon State 3-2, but fell to rival Indiana 4-1.

A controversial goal by Indiana gave the Hoosiers a 2-1 lead, Notre Dame rallied keeper Dan Lyons for an extra period, including two wins, while Cavanaugh/Breen-Phelps Hall tied third with 864. Points were awarded for participating in events, winning games and taking part in the not-quite-so-Olympic activities.

Stanford/Lewis also won the grand-prize competition, in which eight of the 12 teams participated. Teams put in 800, and the winning dorms averaged 80 percent of the total. The other 20 percent, as well as all other funds raised in the evening were donated to the St. Joseph County Special Olympics.

The total amounted to approximately $1,700.

"We were very pleased," said Sally Derengoski, Assistant Director of Non-Varsity Athletics, who sponsored the event. "The participation level was real high and a lot of the events went well."

Advance entries amounted to better than 300 teams and 1,200 participants. Derengoski said approximately 1,000 people actually took part in the Olympics, which lasted from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m.

Los Angeles tops Boston

Associated Press

INGLEWOOD, Calif. - Earvin " Magic" Johnson scored 30 points and led Los Angeles back from a 17-point third-quarter deficit to a 106-103 victory over the Boston Celtics, giving the Lakers the best record in the NBA.

Johnson scored eight points over the final three and a-half minutes, including two clinching free throws with four seconds to play, to lift the Lakers to their 38th victory in 50 games this season, one game better than the Celtics.

With the Lakers down by three, Johnson hit a 15-foot jumper and then made a spinning layup with 1:29 to play to give Los Angeles a 96-97 lead.

Irish dump Duke in OT, 70-66
ND adds No. 15 Blue Devils to growing ACC casualty list

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

If Notre Dame's upset of North Carolina two weeks ago was a Notre Dame Moment, then Notre Dame's 70-66 overtime upset of 15th-ranked Duke has to at least qualify as a mini-moment.

Senior guard and co-captain Scott Hicks scored a season-high 19 points, and freshmen Joe Fredrick and Notre Dame's combination with his classmate, Scott Paddock, to seal another Notre Dame hockey team loss one and tied one this weekend against Michigan-Dearborn. Chris Dallavo recaps the action at left.

Although few fans would have guessed it, Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps knew it all week. He told Joe Fredrick he was going to be the hero against Duke.

Fredrick replaced Mark Stevenson, who fouled out just two seconds into overtime, hit a jumper and two free throws, while Paddock gathered in John Smith's missed free throw with four seconds remaining and made two more free throws to ice the game.

"I'm not surprised at all," Fredrick recalled. "I know I can go out there and do some things. It's not about being a hero, now you've got five minutes to do it," Fredrick recalled. When Fredrick entered the game in the overtime, the Irish ran the same offense that had opened Stevenson for jump shots earlier. The Cincinnati native produced the same results as Stevenson had by burying a baseline jumper to tie the game at 62. Then, after getting a player control foul, Fredrick got open in the lane and David Rivers fouled him off a drive. Fredrick was fouled and nearly hit the shot. That left him at the line for two his first free throws of the season with 1:04 left in overtime and the game tied at 64. He made both foul shots. Once again, it happened just as Hicks said, "When the Irish pull their game plan, they can do anything." It was telling anyone who would listen we were in great shape," he said.

"I don't know why, I just felt it. That was just something that came out, that Joe Fredrick was going to be the guy that's not going to be afraid to come off the bench and stick them when we need them no matter what the situation was going to be. And I prepped him on it all week," Phelps said. But their success came as no surprise to the Irish coach. He was telling anyone who would listen all week long that it was going to happen.

"I mentioned to people all week the hero of this game was going to be number three (Fredrick)," Phelps said. "I don't know why, I just felt it. Hockey team remains inconsistent; loses, ties in frustrating weekend

By CHRIS DALLAVO
Sports Writer

Let's just say the Irish basketball team fared a little better than the hockey team this past weekend. Coach Lefty Smith's squad dropped a 9-1 decision at Michigan Dearborn Friday night, but rebounded Saturday to tie the Wolves, 4-4.

"Friday's game was one of those that you see in a nightmare," lamented Smith. "We played so poorly it was pathetic." The lone Irish goal was scored by freshman defenserum Brandon Haikola in the third period, which averted the shutout.

Contrary to what the score indicates, goaltending was not the main problem. It was more of an overall lack of enthusiasm at both ends of the ice.

"We were hurt by poor play up front, and also on defense," Smith continued. "Four of their goals came right after a face-off, which indicates how bad it was.

Saturday was a different story, however, as the Irish fought back to tie the game with only 28 seconds left. The comeback was spurred by the return of Irish captain Mike McNeill to the center position. McNeill, who had been moved to defense because of injuries, ignited the offense with two goals, including the game-tying tally.

"If we could split McNeill in half, we would be in great shape," praised Smith. "He really means a lot to this team.

The Irish got goals from Matt Hamel and Bruce Guiry prior to McNeill's crucial score.

The Irish travel to Lake Forest next weekend for a pair of games as they try to gain some momentum for the upcoming American Collegiate Hockey Playoffs to be held at Notre Dame March 6-7.
