Class of 1991 arrives on campus

More than 500 SMC freshmen are expected

By MARILYN BENCHIK
Saint Mary's Editor

They come from five foreign countries and 34 states. Half were in the top 20 percent of their graduating high-school class. Almost a third were in the National Honor Society.

Saint Mary's Class of 1991 has arrived.

More than 500 freshmen began the first of four years at Saint Mary's this weekend, said Mary Ann Rowan, director of admissions.

"The Class of 1991 seems so eager and excited to be at Saint Mary's," Rowan said. "I don't remember experiencing such enthusiasm."

Sixty-two percent of the freshmen are in the top three-quarters of their high-school graduating class, Rowan said. There are 160 students, about 32 percent of whom are former members of the National Honor Society, she said.

England, Panama, China, Hong Kong and India are the five countries represented in the freshman class, Rowan said.

Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio carry the largest number of students, "but there are strong numbers from Minnesota, Pennsylvania, New York and Wisconsin," Rowan said.

Thirty percent of the class are "alumnae related," which includes any type of connection to the school, Rowan said.

These connections include cousins, daughters, sisters, and aunts. "The solid percentage of alumnae related incoming students clearly indicates that families are happy with Saint Mary's," Rowan said.

First glimpse

It may have been an exciting view from the highway, but the Administration Building's Golden Dome will soon become a common sight.

111 freshmen in study lounges

By JIM RILEY

More than 100 Notre Dame freshmen have been assigned temporary housing in study lounges, according to the Office of Student Residences.

At Saint Mary's, nine students were originally assigned to temporary housing, but were given permanent housing, said Pat Rummeyer, director of residence life and housing at Saint Mary's.

"We were able to move them out before their arrival on campus," she said.

The 111 freshmen at Notre Dame have been assigned to study lounges in four halls on campus: 43 in Flanner, 43 in Grace, and 13 each in Pasquerilla East and Pasquerilla West.

No students have been squeezed into permanent rooms in other dorms, the housing office said. In the past, for example, four students were placed in a triple.

The students will be relocated into permanent housing as soon as spaces become available. The spokesperson from the housing office said she had "no idea on a time frame."

"Freshmen are just arriving now. We have no idea of how many no-shows there will be," she said.

The overflow occurs in part because some freshmen decline their invitations, cancel their confirmations, or just don't show up. Some upperclassmen will unexpectedly move off campus.

Rummeyer said that at Saint Mary's "if depends on the number of students who decide at the last minute. Every year is a little different situation."

"We may have as many as 15 or 20 change their minds," she added.

Eighty-four Notre Dame freshmen began last year in temporary housing. There were 41 lounges the year before. Evelyn Reinhold, director of student residences at Notre Dame, said last year that the 84 students was the largest number in makeshift quarters that she could remember in her 15 year tenure at Notre Dame.

A spokesperson also said that Student Residences had been forced to put freshmen in temporary quarters for a number of years at Notre Dame.

Reinhold could not be reached for comment.

Students in temporary housing will be assigned permanent housing based on how early they turned in their enrollment confirmations, the spokesperson said.

Record number of women arrive at ND

By MARK PANKOWSKI
Managing Editor

They're here. And apparently in record numbers.

More women and minority students than ever before are expected to enter Notre Dame as freshmen this year, said Kevin Rooney, director of undergraduate admissions at Notre Dame.

About 670 of the 1,220 students expected are women. Rooney said.

"This is the largest contingent of freshman women that Notre Dame has ever had," he said. "If the Saint Mary's freshmen were added in, it would come to an even ratio (of men to women)."

About 180 members of the Class of 1991 are minority students, Rooney said.

About 4 percent are Hispanic, 4 percent black, 3 percent Asian and less than 1 percent American Indian.

"For the first time, 10 percent of the freshmen are minority students," he said.

Last year about 520 of the 1,830 incoming freshmen were women, while about 350 were minority students.

This year's incoming class "is every bit as strong as classes of recent years," Rooney said.

Thirty-five percent of incoming freshmen ranked in the top five in their graduating high school class. 80 percent were in the top 10 percent and 94 percent in the top 20 percent, according to Rooney's 1987 Fact Sheet.

The class's median Scholastic Aptitude Test score is 580 verbal, 660 mathematics.

About 3,100 of the 7,985 students who applied to Notre Dame were accepted. Rooney said. Of those expected to enter Notre Dame as freshmen this year, said Kevin Rooney, director of undergraduate admissions at Notre Dame.

ND freshman's father killed in two-car crash

By MARK PANKOWSKI
Managing Editor

The father of an incoming Notre Dame freshman was killed late Wednesday night in a two-car collision on Juniper Road.

Thomas Naddy Sr., 65, the father of Thomas Naddy Jr., was driving south and Lynda Maike, 28, of Mishawaka, also suffered internal injuries, Feirrell said.

Maike was admitted Wednesday into the intensive care unit of St. Joseph's Medical Center Feirrell said. Hospital administrators would not release any information about her condition Friday.

Funeral services for Naddy, of Wailuku, Hawaii, will be held in Honolulu, said Father Gerald Lardner, rector of Grace Hall. A memorial service was held Thursday at the Grotto.

Naddy was at Notre Dame to drop off his son, a Grace Hall freshman who had arrived early because he is an Air Force ROTC cadet, Lardner said.

Naddy occurred at about 11:10 p.m. as Naddy was driving south and Maike was heading north on Juniper Road, Feirrell said.

Frustration, excitement mark students’ first year

It can all be quite overwhelming.

The freshmen have all arrived at Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s and are now going through the brief weekend called orientation. Through the course of these two days, the new kids on the block are expected to meet a new roommate, to get acquainted with the campus, to learn about life in college, to absorb all of the hype about getting involved and to say good-bye to the most important people in their lives - their parents.

Walking into this scene can be as intimidating as it is exciting; frustrating as it is interesting. Freshmen and parents alike should not let it get to them.

I think back to three years ago when I pulled up on this campus with my parents, all of us seeing the Golden Dome for the first time in our lives. I was so anxious to get going and to get into life here that I forgot how much I was leaving behind at home, how much I knew I was going to miss my parents and friends who were to remain 1,000 miles away for my four years here.

I very much wanted just to be dropped off and left alone with all of the new people in my life. I did not try to make my parents feel like they belonged here; I had lived with them for 18 years and thought that it was time for a change of scenery and a little more freedom. I looked and saw that I was foolish. I can look into the eyes of the parents walking across these campuses and see the faces of my father and mother three years ago. They did not like the idea of leaving their oldest child far away from his home. Even with all of the efforts Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s put forth to make this weekend enjoyable for everyone, nothing could change parents from feeling like they were going to miss me. And I did not help matters because I wanted to play the tough guy and act like I belonged here from the start.

A week after I watched my parents drive away, I missed them as I always knew I would but never wanted to admit. Mom and Dad were not here, and the guys they left behind was the same little boy they had always known. This world that I had always dreamt about was still a foreign place; I was more of a stranger than a Domer.

Remember, freshmen, that Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s are not the stuff that dreams are made of, they are the places where dreams are made. You are just starting your life here and, I can almost assure you, it will be quite different than you expect.

Many of you who have the intention of being doctors and engineers will be sitting with fellow Business and Arts and Letters majors in May of 1991. Rest assured, many upperclassmen have made that same decision and would never have it any other way. I am one of them. And this is just one example of how your life will change after some time in college.

In the next four years you will make too many decisions to count and will go through more unimaginable crises and situations than you would like to think about at this point.

So, what little advice I have to offer to the members of the Class of 1991 is simple. Do not be overwhelmed by the fantastic images you have of college right now. Grow to love this community for what it really is, not for what you think it might be.

And take some time out from your frantic socializing and orienting to pay attention to your folks. They love you and you love them. Keep them up on your lives here and never forget how much they have given you.

Finally, welcome to college. The Observer is looking forward to serving you almost every class day for the next four years. I, more than anything, cannot wait to see some of you up here in our offices helping to put out our newspaper - we need your talent, ideas and excitement.

Enjoy yourself for the rest of the weekend and start holding on to the time you have here. For this senior, it flies by way too fast.

Unity a goal of SMC government

By SANDY CERIMELE
Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

Overall cohesiveness and unity among all organizations and student involvement are among the priorities of the Saint Mary's Student Government Association for the 87-88 academic year, according to SGA President Eileen Hetterich.

SGA is comprised of three groups: Board of Governance, headed by Hetterich; Programming Board, under Vice President Smith Haszagen; and the Student Academic Council, directed by Vice President Julie Parrish.

Board of Governance is comprised of the class and hall presidents and commissioners, according to Hetterich. "We deal mainly with policies, alteration of library hours and present them to the administration," she said.

"Our main goal is to resolve the senior comp confusion by proposing a preparation outline which would be guided by a faculty advisor on a one-on-one basis," she said.

Another change to Programming Board is a Freshman Class Advisor who will assist the freshmen in programming class events, according to Haszagen. "It's a great avenue," she said.

"They're student government people great people to work with and you can learn a tremendous amount," he added.

The primary way freshmen can participate is through the Freshman Advisory Council, according to Laurie Bink, student body vice president. The Council organizes events for the freshman class.

Interested freshmen should check with their hall rectors and rectresses, Bink said, because the hall representative is chosen by the rectors.

Another method of participation, Bink said, is to come up to the offices on the second floor of LaFortune Student Center and work on one of the many commissions and committees in student government.

Student government also plans special projects throughout the year. One project will be planning activities for the inauguration of University President Father Edward in September, Bink said.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime, it's not something we plan for every year. It's a once-in-a-lifetime deal," he said.

The involvement of many people is needed to pull off these types of projects, Cooke added. "These are projects that take a lot of planning, a lot of people. Just a ton of people are involved in logistics," he said.

"The freshmen are more than welcome," Cooke continued. "We want to get as many freshmen involved in student government. The more the merrier. The more people the better.

Student government's main goal is to serve the student population, Bink said.

NORTH DINING HALL EXPANSION
UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME  NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

This project will take two years to complete because the dining hall must continue to operate in segments during the school year and close totally during the summer and breaks. At the conclusion of this project, you will have a fully renovated facility with 500 additional seating spaces, two private dining spaces for 100 with fireplaces, cathedral ceilings, double level dining areas, facing the quads with many window seats, all new fry stations on the line. Dining rooms will be aesthetically uplifted with carpeted floors, wall and ceiling treatments.

ADVISORY:

Some of the North Quad Dorms will be asked to use South Dining Hall during construction to avoid long lines at North Dining Hall.

Check Dining Operating Hours and try to avoid the traditional rush hours.

The University and Contractors will work to make this project as painless as possible.

Transfers to ND also must adjust to a new life

By KIM YURATOVAC
Staff Reporter

Freshmen are not the only students attending orientation events - transfers and readmitted students participated in Thursday's mass and campus tours.

The Transfer Committee, led by Chairman Susan Droge and Bill Kelly, has been coordinating transfer activities since May.

"We want the transfers to get to know one another so that they feel more a part of campus life," said committee member Julie Casco. "We want them to get to know names and people they can contact during the school year."

Casco said that one of the most difficult adjustments transfer students have to make is living off-campus. "Dorm life is so important at Notre Dame. Because transfers are forced to live off-campus, they don't hear about all of the on-campus activities. This year, we have a bulletin board in LaFortune and a mailbox in the Student Government Office dedicated to them.

Young men who decided to attend Notre Dame this year, there are about thirty women living in study lounges until housing becomes available. There are still many transfers from last year on the housing waiting list who are now behind these freshmen on all the list.

Last year the transfer committee started the Adopt-a-Transfer club where transfer students could be adopted by individual dorms. Due to a lack of organization, the club never achieved its goal. "Since our committee is made up mostly of former transfer students," said committee member Slobodan Kukovec, "we know what worked last year and what didn't. We'd like to have more transfers do dorm activities so they could go to SYR's and participate in dorm activities."

"Transfers come from schools with Greek systems and a lot different programs so they have a lot of good ideas, and we have Hibel art, Collector Dolls, flowers and gifts.

Organizing SMC orientation fun but not easy

By MARIA DOTI
Staff Reporter

Saint Mary’s freshman orientation: It has taken more than 100 people to put it together.

"Getting this many people to work together is not easy," said Mary Ellen Smith, director of student activities. "But students involved in orientation do it because they love it."

Smith aids the students in brainstorming and planning freshman orientation.

"I think planning orientation this year was especially fun for the committee because we were able to develop a new theme and create activities to enlighten that theme," said Smith.

The theme of this year’s orientation is a boat cruise. New students already have attended movies, mixers and academic information sessions.

This afternoon new students will have the opportunity to meet representatives from various administrative and academic departments at the College Open House at Angela Athletic Facility at 1 p.m.

Afterwards, there will be a session for students and their parents from 3 to 4 p.m. in O’Laughlin Auditorium. Here they will be introduced to a number of student support services on campus, such as Counseling and Career Development, Student Activities and Campus Ministry.

Beginning at 6 tonight, there will be a Beach Party on Library Green. The Opening of School Liturgy will take place at 9:30 a.m. the next day in Angela Athletic Facility.

All of this would not have been possible without the help of those organizing freshman orientation. The large group of people involved breaks down into three smaller committees.

The largest group consists of 95 "survival leaders." Each is responsible for helping a small group of new students in their orientation to Saint Mary’s.

"A survival leader’s responsibilities include corresponding with their group members over the summer, meeting them when they arrive on campus, meeting with them as a group to answer questions and troubleshooting, attending special sessions and doing follow-ups throughout the year," Smith said.

The head committee consists of nine members who are responsible for planning and executing all social aspects of new student orientation.

Two people share the title of social chairperson. They plan all special events such as movies, get-togethers with Notre Dame students and plant and poster sales.

Investigators are still trying to determine why Naddy’s car was in the northbound lane, Feirrell said. Both drivers, the only occupants of the cars, were reportedly not wearing seat belts.

Police tests showed Maike’s blood-alcohol level “was substantially higher than the legal limit," Feirrell said. The blood drawn from Naddy has been sent to a state police laboratory, Feirrell said. The results of the blood-alcohol test won’t be available for one or two weeks.

Paperwork from the investigation is being forwarded to County Prosecutor Michael Barnes, Feirrell said. Barnes could not be reached for comment.

Naddy is survived by his wife, three sons and a daughter, Lardner said.

Making a long drive across the flatlands of Illinois and Indiana allows one to mind to wander. Each year of school is a new beginning, whether you've a freshman looking at four years under the Golden Dome or a senior looking at the rest of your life. And as I drove, I came to the conclusion that freshman aren't much different from anyone else when it comes to approaching the start of a new year.

Chris Murphy
under pressure

Despite being halfway through college, I still have experienced many of the same anxieties and many of the same hopes that I did when I entered Notre Dame. I still felt that strange awe, or whatever you would like to call it, when driving down Notre Dame Avenue under the Dome. As comfortable as I am here, I still feel uncomfortable in being overwhelmed right away. The first week you walk by under the Quad, it's not just mere coincidence or something new if for no other reason than to get your money's worth. It's likely you'll find something new than you'll like.

Academic life here is obviously the key reason why most students come to Notre Dame. Again, don't be overwhelmed on Tuesday when classes begin. You probably will be assigned a major now. Student Government is a great way to meet different kinds of people. Don't just sign up for activities you are familiar with but look for something new.

Freedom of college life comes an appreciation for family. You'll probably get lost on your way to campus. I guarantee that before long you'll find that it's not. There is a lot of pressure here to succeed, but strive to succeed on your own terms. Also, don't feel uncomfortable in being overwhelmed right away. The first week you walk by under the Quad, it's not just mere coincidence or something new if for no other reason than to get your money's worth. It's likely you'll find something new than you'll like.

Malloy welcomes the Class of 1991

Dear Freshman Student:

I want to welcome you to Notre Dame. I feel a special affection for you as a group because we are beginning to take a new stage of the University's history. The future lie[s] years ahead. Hopefully, for the first time in life, you're responsible for your own future. The longer it takes you to realize this, the further you're going to fall behind here. Many of eight-year-olds have been pushed by their families to excel in various endeavors. Now it's time to do it on your own.

With the freedom of college life comes an appreciation for family. When you say goodbye this weekend, you start your own life going to be great making your own decisions. It's going to be sad, but soon your phone bills will reflect how much you miss the influence they've had upon you. Your classmates will be there for you. And when you get home for a weekend, your parents will hopefully see the maturity process that will have begun on being solely responsible for yourself.

Freedom is a most enjoyable aspect of college life, then the pressure involved with living on your own and finacing your education and social activities while still keeping up with your laundry is one of the toughest. Sometimes it's easy to feel lost when you find yourself in the midst of all this. It's not unnatural to feel these now as you look at the next four years of your lives.

Freedom is the aspect of college life that students will come to enjoy most. Every step you take at this university will be yours and yours alone. Basically, for the first time in life, you're responsible for your own future. The longer it takes you to realize this, the further you're going to fall behind here. Many of eight-year-olds have been pushed by their families to excel in various endeavors. Now it's time to do it on your own.

As your parents leave you behind at the end of this weekend, take the time to thank them for both of us. Their love and support will continue even at a distance. Now it's up to you to make the most of this blessed opportunity.

Frosh Commissioner greets incoming class

Dear Class of 1991.

Hey, you're here and others like you are coming. Great! So welcome and let's get started.

Welcome to Notre Dame and South Bend where you are coming. What makes things happen. Notre Dame is a great place, and don't make it greater. Just relax and get ready.

As you should know by now, August 23, Student Government is sponsoring Musical Chairs at 9:00 p.m. on the Stepan basketball courts. Musical Chairs will be immediately followed by a Tie Dance in the Quad. All freshmen are welcome. All of Student Government and I look forward to having you.

Founded November 3, 1936

President, Chris Murphy
There are only so many campus tours and orientations - meetings that any freshman could stand. And after all of the formality, most freshmen are still spirited as to what life under the Golden Dome is really like.

After the ceremony ceases and the parents have gone, freshmen realize that they are foreigners in a strange land. In order to thrive, they need to know the campus language.

The following is an informal dictionary that will give you a glimpse of the Notre Dame lingvo.

A Homor Dictionary

Domer - a Notre Dame student. Even after you graduate you will be a domer.

Park. for Notre Dame and Saint Washington Ave., year and is located on Grape edy. Chris' homemade ice South Shore train, which leaves J.C. Penny. if you're in the such as easy chairs, couches, Boulevard.

ACC - the Edmund P. Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center, which houses the basketball and hockey arenas as well as the athletic offices. Larger than the housing, the ACC is said never to be able to make use of (let alone find) all the facilities it offers students.

CEC - not to be confused with the ACC, it is the Center for Continuing Education located on the post office.

SRY - a dance held in a dorm. Short for "screw your roommate?," it's an event in which you set your roommate up with a date.

O.C. Off Campus. Off campus is a refuge from partials and the alcohol policy, selective parties aren't anything anymore, thanks to the South Bend and Indiana State Excise Policy.

Ethanol if you think the water is bad, just wait until one morning when at a terrific stink the South Bend air. That's ethanol, and it's bad enough to make you lose your appetite.

Mary's - A person from Indiana is proud to be one, a person outside Indiana likes to make fun of one. We'll just leave it to Webster's Third New International Dictionary to define a hoosier as "an awkward, unshaped or unshapen, especially an ignorant rustic."

SAGA - Officially, SAGA is the Saint Mary's food service. It is otherwise known as the Soviet Attempts at Gag America, or the home of free soft serve ice cream popular with the freshmen.

Oetting - The Oetting Brewery. The classier hotels found in the south end of the campus, like the Stanley Inn, have a special sign above the door that says "cheer!"

North Quad - The general feeling you'll get after a few years is that townies don't like domers, and you really can't get into their secrets. The dorms soon to be completed.

Bandera - Notre Dame or Saint Mary's students who are from South Bend. They are caught in the middle of the townie - dormer clash.

New Coles - A shuttle bus travels from the South Bend State bus station to the South Bend Amtrak station. The Jamison Inn, a "bed and breakfast" Inn, is located on South Bend Avenue south of the ACC.

Inexpensive motels can be found on State Route U.S. 31.

Transporto offers bus service throughout South Bend and Mishawaka. The cost to ride is 50 cents. Transpo bus stops are at the Main Circle and the Library Circle. Taxi companies also offer a way to get around the city.

If the "Windy City" of Chicago is where you want to go, there is a bus from the train station at U.S. W. Washington Ave., will take you there at a reasonable price.

So there you have it, South Bend at a glance. But in order to really get to know the city, you'll need to go out and explore it for yourself.

Academic reasons. The two offensive guards from Chicago's St. Rita High School were on academic probation during their 1986-87 freshman school year.

Cegielski and Zaleski were two of the five players suspended from spring football for disciplinary reasons, and also were suspended by Holtz last November for infractions of team rules.

Meanwhile, senior split end Tony Eason will sit out the entire 1987 season after undergoing surgery to his left knee in July.

Sophomore center Steve Huffman also will not see action in an Irish uniform. Huffman quit the team this past week.

But even with those setbacks, the situation is more optimistic than one might think.

Sophomores Tony Rice and John Foley, sidelined last year under NCAA Proposition 48, have completed their freshman year successfully and are in Notre Dame uniforms for the first time.

There's also a pretty talented returning starter at the flanker position. He's a senior and his name is Tim Brown, but publications like the Sporting News are just calling him the top preseason pick for the Heisman Trophy.

Brown is the top returning NCAA all-purpose runner with 176.09 yards per game in 1986, and is second among returning kickoff returners at 27.92 last year.

Sports facilities offer diversion

Whether you enjoy playing football, basketball, tennis, golf or racquetball, or just like to be outdoors, you can find an athletic facility for you. The facilities are open to all Notre Dame students and faculty, and are open to students for the first time this fall. Located east of the South Quad, the facility is country-club quality, housing six laykold courts and an observation deck. Court time can be reserved in one-hour blocks by calling 339-6959. Fees are $1 for students, $2 for faculty and $4 for guests.

Loftus Indoor Athletic Facility - Still under construction, this facility, hidden among the trees east of Jake Kline Field, will house a football field, a six-lane, 300-plus meter track and a new varsity weight room. Once this building is completed, work will begin to convert parts of the North Dome of the ACC for student use, including the current basketball and tennis courts.

Burke Memorial Golf Course - On the west end of campus is the 18-hole, 6,000-yard University golf course. The course is open until late fall and reopens in early spring. Green fees are $3 for students, faculty and staff. Alumni can golf for $6 on weekdays and $7 on weekends. The course is a par 71 and does not require that the golfer have great skill.

K neat Rockne Memorial - Located at the west end of South Quad, "The Rock" is the center for the physical education program. The brick structure contains basketball courts, racquetball courts, a weight room, a light apparatus room, a swimming pool and the golf pro shop. Use of the Rockne Memorial is free to all students and faculty members upon presentation of a University identification card. Closing time is 11 p.m. daily.

The Rockne Memorial Gymnasium, better known as The Rock, stands at the west end of South Quad and is home to some of the best pick-up basketball games in the country. And league play. Many of the interscholastic sports are conducted in this area of the campus.

Regina Pool - This small pool located in the middle of Regina Hall on the Saint Mary's campus is popular for swimming laps.

Bookstore Courts - These two courts are what gave the world's largest basketball tournament its name. Availability depends on the courts which use the courts as a parking lot.

Meet the people of the Irish Athletic Dept.

Father E. William Beauchamp - Beauchamp begins his first year as the University's Executive Vice President. Beauchamp replaces Father Edmund P. Joyce who held the post for 35 years. As Executive Vice President, Beauchamp will head the faculty board in control of athletics. This body is responsible for overseeing Notre Dame athletics.

Richard Rosenthal - A 1954 graduate of Notre Dame, Rosenthal was named the school's Athletic Director Aug. 4. Rosenthal previously served as chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the St. Joseph Bancorporation and St. Joseph Bank & Trust Co. for 25 years. Rosenthal was a three-year starter at center for the Irish basketball teams of Joel Jordan and was captain of the team his senior season. He is a two-time All-American.

Dr. Jo-Ann Nester - Nester is in her fourth year as Director of Athletics and Recreation at Saint Mary's College. In her fourth year as Director of Athletics and Recreation at Chester State in Pennsylvania, in his fourth year as Director of Personnel Administration, Mr. Nester holds bachelor and graduate degrees with a minor of Rockne Memorial pool. In his fifth year as Associate Athletic Director, Nester's accomplishments in the varsity level, in addition to arranging for the chief executive officer of the St. Robert's Arch Award for outstanding contribution within and outside the profession.

Joe O'Brien - A 1949 graduate of Notre Dame, O'Brien is in his fifth year as Associate Athletic Director after a seven-year stint as an Assistant Director. He also continues to manage the department's finances as Athletic Business Manager. In 1965, O'Brien was named Director of Personnel Functions at South Bend's largest employer, Notre Dame. He has been here ever since, joining the athletic staff in 1976. He served as president of the College Athletic Business Management Association in 1983 and was named business manager of the year in 1983 by CARMA.

Dr. Tom Kelly - As Director of Non-Varsity Athletics, Kelly oversees 11 club sports and 63 intramural events in addition to over 40 recreation programs for both staff and students. Kelly was named the Irish women's basketball team's head coach in 1983, received a law degree in 1985 from Kansas and then joined the NCAAs educational administration from Notre Dame. He previously was NVA's assistant director for 11 years (until 1979) and varsity baseball coach 1976 through the 1980 season.

Brian Boula - A former Notre Dame tight end, this 1965 University graduate was named Assistant Athletic Director in 1983 following 13 seasons on the Irish football coaching staff. During that time, Boula was recruiting coordinator for seven years, an administrative assistant to Dan Devine for two years, and a coach of the offensive and defensive lines, receivers, and specialty teams over that span. Presently Boula's job is to offer direct assistance to Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal in a wide variety of areas.

Missy Conboy - A 1982 graduate of Notre Dame, Conboy is in her fifth year as an Assistant Athletic Director. Conboy will aid Assistant Athletic Director Brian Boula in overseeing Notre Dame's non-revenue athletic programs and will be the school's primary representative to the North Star Conference. Conboy is a former captain of the Notre Dame ice hockey team his senior season. He is a two-time All-American.

Holtz pleased early, but still too soon

By MARTY STRASEN
Assistant Sports Editor

Before anyone asks, the answer is "You just can't tell." This is the time of the year when all the questions, all the debating—and inevitably all the optimism—begin. The season opener against Michigan is exactly three weeks away, and everyone wants to know how the Notre Dame football team is shaping up this fall.

"If I could evaluate a team in shorts, I'd be coaching basketball," Irish head coach Lou Holtz said.

The Notre Dame freshman class reported early for a few days of orientation, and the returning players began two-a-day practices this past Monday. After three days of shorts, the players put on pads for the first time Thursday, and Holtz has slated the team's second fall scrimmage for this afternoon. That's when Holtz and the staff should be able to tell more.

The first scrimmage was held Thursday, but the first team and most of the regulars sat out and watched the freshmen, walk-ons and reserves knock helmets.

"It's very tiring and the guys are so much bigger and faster (than in high school)," said Brooks, the former star lineman from New Wilmington, Pa. "They throw a lot of things at you, but you do what you have to do. I think we all have a pretty good idea of what the coaches want from us by now.

The class started out with 30 new faces, but is down to 28 because of an injury to Brian Shannon, a 6-4, 220-pound lineman from New Wilmington, Pa. Shannon broke his left ankle in the Pennsylvania Big 33 all-star game earlier this month and will be sidelined for the entire season.

"Where we really have a long way to go is in the offensive and defensive line," Holtz said. "Those are things that can be worked on over the next few weeks. It's just really hard to tell much of anything this early.

"We've had very physical practices— even in shorts. We have a lot of good athletes and we've been pleased with them." Holtz has the first team offense and defense in gold and green jerseys, respectively, while the rest of the team wears white (offense) and blue (defense). A few starting spots are still unclaimed, and pending academic decisions aren't helping the matter.

Inside linebacker Mike Stonebreaker, outside linebacker Cedric Figaro and center Jim Dadio are awaiting decisions concerning their academic eligibility.

Figaro, a senior, has been given permission to practice until a decision is reached. The two sophomores have not and will remain in street clothes.

In addition, Jason Cegielski and John Zaleski have been dismissed from the University for academic reasons.

To that end, Irish head coach Lou Holtz gave the first team and many of his regular a breather in the first fall scrimmage Thursday afternoon. While familiar names like Tim Brown, Terry Andrysiak, Mark Green and Darrell "Flash" Gordon were making noise from the sidelines, less-familiar names like Kent Graham, Bobby Carpenter, George Williams and Frank Jacobs filled the Notre Dame videotapes.

"We'd like to see what they (the freshmen) can do and where they can contribute," Holtz said. "It's difficult to tell until we look at the film, but Ricky Watters and Tony Brooks are doing some good things.

"They're all awfully good athletes. Now it's going to take some time to see if they're going to be good college football players."

And after only a week of practice with the veterans and the initial few days of orientation to the Irish football program, most of the freshmen seem relatively comfortable with the system.

Highly-regarded freshman class making adjustments to college

By MARTY STRASEN
Assistant Sports Editor

It was touted as possibly the best recruiting class in Notre Dame football history.

Notre Dame history. We're talking 100 years here.

But for now, the class of 1991 has to take its lumps like every one else. And when the freshmen donned pads and knocked heads with the veterans for the first time in Thursday morning's session, the glory days of high school never seemed so far away.

"Practices are really tough," said Ricky Watters, a highly-touted running back from Harrisburg, Pa. "They just expect great things from you, and that makes it difficult at first.

"Once you get everything down and get the confidence of the upperclassmen, it just gets better and better. It's a big adjustment— we have to go out and prove ourselves."

To that end, Irish head coach Lou Holtz gave the first team and many of his regulars a breather in the first fall scrimmage Thursday afternoon. While familiar names like Tim Brown, Terry Andrysiak, Mark Green and Darrell "Flash" Gordon were making noise from the sidelines, less-familiar names like Kent Graham, Bobby Carpenter, George Williams and Frank Jacobs filled the Notre Dame videotapes.

"It's very tiring and the guys are so much bigger and faster (than in high school)," said Brooks, the former star running back at Tualatin's Washington High School. "They throw a lot of things at you, but you do what you have to do. I think we all have a pretty good idea of what the coaches want from us by now.
