Bork: My judging is non-ideological
Associated Press
WASHINGTON - Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork, denying that his judicial philosophies are either liberal or conservative, said Tuesday that judges must be dedicated to restraint and respect for democratic processes.
The federal appeals court judge, in an opening statement to the Senate Judiciary Committee considering his nomination, said:
“My philosophy of judging is neither liberal nor conservative. It is simply a philosophy of judging which gives the Constitution a fair interpretation, but where the Constitution is silent the policy struggles to Congress, the president, legislators and executives of the 50 states and to the American people.”
Meeting head-on some of the attacks of liberal critics, Bork said he values judicial precedent and singled out for special praise the 1954 Supreme Court ruling, Brown vs. Board of Education, that outlawed school segregation.
He also said that as a Supreme Court justice he would look differently upon past court rulings than he has done as a scholastic earlier in his career.
“It is one thing as a legal theorist to criticize the reasoning of a prior decision, even to criticize it severely, as I have done,” he said. “It is another

ND called to divest; Board of Trustees to review policy

Notre Dame will have to undertake a “serious review of the University’s divestment policy” at the Board of Trustnees meeting in November, according to Patric Oliver Williams, associate provost and member of the University’s ad-hoc committee on South Afic investment.
The Sullivan Principles, a set of fair-employment principles calling for total divestment if apartheid is not dismantled, have been widely followed by U.S. businesses and universities and have guided Notre Dame’s policy towards investment in South Africa.
The principles, authored more than 10 years ago by social activist Leon Sullivan, established a deadline two years ago for dismantling apartheid.
The deadline is now past.
In a statement on June 3, 1987, Sullivan called for all American businesses to withdraw from South Africa by March
In his statement, Sullivan said, “As of May, 1986, I stated that in 24 months statutory apar-thheid was not ended... I would call on the companies to leave South Africa, and call for an American embargo. The conditions have not been remotely met.”
The University Board of Trustees has been “following (Sullivan’s decision) closely, since the University’s policies are tied to the Sullivan Principles,” said Richard Conklin, director of public relations and information.
The Board of Trustees will meet Nov. 22, 23, 24, Conklin said, and will discuss divestment.
He said he would not speculate on whether Sullivan’s statement will influence the Board’s decision.
“There’s nothing anyone can say (about whether the Board will decide to divest this time) until the November meeting,” said Conklin. “Then the Board will take a look at Sullivan’s policies and make a decision.”
Conklin stressed that the issue is not divestment versus non-divestment.
“It is between our policy of selective divestment versus those who want complete and immediate divestment,” Con-

According to Peter Walsh, Notre Dame’s director of African Studies, in May of 1986 Notre Dame’s official policy stated that it would divest if the

Flirting: silly and fun but can be disappointing

I hated him at first. At least that's what I told myself. Then the 'E-word'... Emotions took over. We traded gum, shy looks and friendly jabs. Not an unfamiliar situation, flirting is a collegiate occupation.

- The Observer

You know the feeling: missing your chem lab because you wasn't at the first one, sending her flowers from: 'You Who' (saying novenas that she will figure out who they are from because you were too chicken to sign your name). Guffly into a Clint Eastwood triple-feature, writing her name in chalk all over campus to welcome him back, sitting up all night writing bad poetry you'll never send. Of course there are more obvious plays, like planning a family, naming the children, drawing up blueprints and sending it via campus mail.

But for the most part, no matter how obvious it may seem to you, it just doesn't stick in.

Not even with a knowledge hammer.

More often than not; however, it does sink in. These enlightened individuals are the best actors in the world. Innocence and cluelessness are admirable qualities, but not after you realize you've been toyed with for months of googly-eyed nothingness.

Here comes the moment of truth... The Con­solution Prite: "Gee, you've got a great per­sonality, terrific sense of humor and you're smart, too. BUT I'm not interested in this kind of relationship right now. It would ruin my chance to make it into the trombone section of the marching band. Maybe if I'd met you five years from now... etc."

- The Observer

Really, there was nothing to ruin. The whole thing was one-sided from the beginning, but the flirting continued because your "love-binders" tricked you into making a spectacle of yourself. It can go so bad that you are now avoiding the love mufin, and every song on the radio sends you into an emotional frenzy that makes you want to go home and cry.

- The Observer

It stands to reason that subtlety may not be the best way to win the affections of your Adonis or Venus. Live life on the edge. Take the risk. Laugh in the face of rejection and disappoint­ment.

If you get the slickness from somebody, call it the ever popular "Learning experience." Rationale: One of the greatest rewards of an education is an increased awareness of the human rationale. Use it wisely.

"It never would have worked ANYWAY be­cause: our friendship is too strong, he's from Pittsburgh and I'm from Cleveland, I would never get any of my homework done, she doesn't understand football, he's a brain and pencil-neck geek OR I'm not chipped liver and he doesn't deserve my novenas, poetry and blueprints..."

- The Observer

Yes, yaah. Blah, blah, blah... I guess all is fair in love and games, but maybe we should be a little less clueless, and take the misery out of cupid's aim.

Fall Fever is just as contagious as Spring Fever on college campuses. It may be a con­tinuous quest for meaningful affection.

Paul Simon puts it quite clearly, "You don't feel you could love me but I feel you could." Thanks for the gum, the shy looks and the friendly jabs. I guess I didn't hate you at first. But I do now.

Bargainers return to Ford table

DEARBORN, Mich. - The United Auto Workers union and Ford Motor Co. resumed bargaining Tuesday over the crucial issue of protecting workers' jobs after the UAW extended Ford's contract until further notice.

It is the first time the union has agreed to extend talks past contract expiration with its main negotiating target.

UAW and Ford spokesmen declined to reveal details of negotiations.

The extension, which UA President Owen Bieber announced less than an hour before Ford's midnight Monday contract expiration, indicates the union will win much of its job security demand, said Ted Sullivan, analyst with Wharton Econometrics in Philadelphia.

"It gives the union a bargaining chip" for its negotiations with GM because GM workers will be very willing to strike in an attempt to win a contract giving them the same protection as Ford workers, Sullivan said.

situation in South Africa deteriorated. Since then, Valle said, the situation has deteriorated catastrophically, and Notre Dame still has not divested.

In May of 1987, Notre Dame policy makers said they were delaying the decision to divest until South Africa had spoken, said Valle. Then, when Sullivan did speak and decided on total divestment, Notre Dame still did not divest.

"With Father Malloy as president, perhaps it's time to reconsider what Notre Dame has been doing and divest, and live up to past commitments," said Valle.

Notre Dame currently has investments in 25 U.S. companies with employees in South Africa, totaling $4.1 million, or roughly 10 percent of its endowment, according to Connolly.

He said in the last year three companies have been divested as being inconsistent with the trustees' policy guidelines on South Africa, which have been based on the Sullivan Principles.

"They're involved in intensive negotiations which will continue through the night," said Ford spokesman Tom Foote. "We're not sure how long they will last. They have a lot of things to talk about. They're making progress, there is still a lot to be done. They're working very hard and very constructively."

The union has demanded that Ford keep its UAW payroll at the current level regardless of recessions or production cuts.

Ford, in turn, has demanded looser plant work rules and job classifications, which it says would increase efficiency and improve production quality.

Both issues traditionally have been settled on a local level, not at the national bargaining table.

Industry analysts said the extension made a strike at Ford unlikely, but increased the chances of a lengthy strike at General Motors Corp., which will become the focus of the union's attention once Ford's 190,000 UAW workers begin voting on a settlement.

Pope arrives in L.A., urges moral life

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Pope John Paul II opened his visit Tuesday to the world's entertainment capital with an exhortation to cling to "a responsible moral life" even if it means "taking one step at a time with majority opinion."

The notorious Los Angeles freeways flowed unusually well as a crowd estimated by police at 300,000 turned out to see the pope and a seven-mile motorcade that took him through Hispanic, Japanese, Chinese and Korean areas.

Speaking to 6,000 young people at Universal Studios Amphiitheater, an address linked by satellite to youth gatherings in St. Louis, Denver and Portland, Ore., the pope linked suicide with spiritual emptiness.

"Why does it sometimes happen that a seemingly healthy person, successful in the eyes of the world, takes an overdose of sleeping pills and commits suicide?" the pope asked. "Why, on the other hand, do we see a seriously disabled person heeded by John Paul II has been a major part of the nation's Catholics, and of the world, takes an overdose of sleeping pills and commits suicide in Los Angeles.

The unseemly was, however, not taken seriously.

The two stadium masses at the Coliseum and Dodger Stadium were the big public events.

There are 2.6 million Catholic churches in the Los Angeles area, the pope said, of which the nation's Catholics, and of the world, takes an overdose of sleeping pills and commits suicide. The pope said at St. Louis University. "This time, he's being the kindly father.

What's more, Hitchcock said, "effective dealing with dissenters would less likely be done in the public forum."

There has been tension between the Vatican and some American bishops, notably over the Holy See's investigation of Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen, and the appointment of a bishop to share power with him.

Another source of tension is a Vatican-ordered investigation of religious orders. So far, however, the pope has been relentlessly upbeat, hailing the dedication of priests, making friends with Protestant and Eastern Orthodox church leaders, praising the involvement of blacks and Hispanics in the church.

He has advocated strong families and marriages, declared the sufferings of the poor and blacks, praised the church's vast charitable and educational works, and condemned dissent.

The royal family is said to be taking a keen interest as the government decides whether to dismantle the memorial and send the components to museums; remove the dangerously unstable spire and do minimal repairs at a cost of about 4 million pounds ($6.6 million); cover it with a greenhouse-style structure to keep out damaging air pollution, or go for a total restoration, with costs in the range of 7 million pounds ($11.5 million).

Elizabeth II's great-great-grandfather, the adored Prince Albert, whose early death plunged Victoria into 40 years of mourning, is going to have his monument to Queen Victoria's grief for her husband, is falling apart.

The government is deciding among several solutions, none of which is cheap and at least one of which - outright removal would outrage many people. One key fact is that the memorial is a tribute to Queen Victoria, the woman who gave up the Iron Throne to found the Commonwealth.
Dating games can lead to rape

By KATIE MOORE

Fifteen percent of college men will admit that they have raped a woman, according to Marianne Martinez, a Notre Dame graduate student in psychology.

Martinez spoke Tuesday at Saint Mary's Walch Parlor in the Haggar College Center as part of the five-part lecture series "No Means No.

The series addresses different aspects of sexuality, including dating games.

The lecture on "The Dating Game" featured two Notre Dame graduate students, Martinez and Michael Jenkins, and a panel of seven Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students.

More than half of college women have been a victim of sexual aggression and/or violence, Martinez said.

One out of every three women will be raped sometime in their lives. A rape occurs every two and a half minutes, she said.

Three-fourths of rape victims are between the ages of 15 and 21, according to Martinez.

The average age is 18.

The most common form of rape is date rape, said Martinez.

One of the reasons for these startling statistics is that the date rapists do not realize they are raping.

Martinez said this occurs because the rapist feels his actions are justified.

"We think of (rape) in the traditional sense," she said. "A girl is walking home, alone, at night, two in the morning. She walks by the bushes and some scruffy character pulls her into the bushes."

Besides the logical perception of not walking alone at night, another preventive measure from rape is to stop "The Game" before it gets too out of hand.

Jenkins, a Notre Dame psychology graduate student, stated, "If you're gonna walk until the game is well into play, you run a lot bigger risks of experiencing a rape." and the male runs a lot bigger risk of committing the act.

In his lecture, Jenkins analyzed in detail people's psychological needs and how these needs tie in with dating.

His general conclusion was that these needs are in contrast to society's common perceptions of male and female roles.

The next lecture in the series will be "Child Sexual Abuse" which will be held tomorrow at 4:45 p.m. in the Stapleton Lounge, Saint Mary's College.

Due to a change in the tradition by taking away their contribution to the Notre Dame tradition, the University has lost the allegiance of some of its members. In this, the tradition plays an even greater role, who lead the band, marching in skirts. The seven received no warning before being officially dismissed, also feel disillusioned.

Fans missing at team's return

Dear Editor:

The student enthusiasm over our win over number nine Michigan on their home field was fantastic on our campus, as well as in Ann Arbor. Cheers could be heard coming from the dorms and this victorious feeling was carried over to the dining hall where the students proceeded to sing and cheer. Unfortunately, this is where the support ended. As is often the tradition, we waited at the main circle for our team buses to return in order to demonstrate our appreciation and support for the players who led us to victory. The buses pulled down Notre Dame Avenue, greeted by six students clapping and cheering, embarrassed that we were the only ones on campus to welcome home the Fighting Irish. Granted, a large number of students were returning from Ann Arbor, but it's truly disappointing that there was not a larger turn-out for the team's return. The players appeared to be rather let down as well, as they looked out the windows for supporting fans, only to find the few. Notre Dame is well known around the nation for its incredible school spirit. Let's keep this tradition alive and well by demonstrating our support for the team.

Notre Dame loses loyalty of Guard

Dear Editor:

Tradition has always been an integral part of the Notre Dame football program. As the 100th anniversary of Notre Dame football, tradition plays an even greater role, especially in all involved in the special activities on game days. Recently, with the expulsion of the seven Irish Guard veterans, an integral part of the tradition has been abandoned, snuffed out. The Irish Guard is not merely 10 guys who lead the band, marching in skirts. They are carefully selected not only for their marching ability but for their spirit - that loyalty, support and "Domer-ness." In the Oct. 17-18, 1986 Irish Extra Weekend Edition, the article "The Irish Guard, Notre Dame's Colorful Football Tradition" states, "From the moment they don their finery, these men embody the Notre Dame spirit, and their serious expression suggests the attitude with which they undertake their duties." For 10 special students, the Irish Guard was the focal point of all the positive aspects of Notre Dame. They put all their efforts into marching for their school, teaching new members the traditions of the Guard and sharing the spirit of Notre Dame. In this, the 100th anniversary of Notre Dame football, tradition has been abandoned, snuffed out.

Alcohol policy is a sound document

Dear Editor:

I have just finished reading the Observer's editorial which criticizes the University's new driver policy. I have also read the policy. In my mind you have misrepresented the policy to your readers.

The primary criticism of the policy is that "the solution" it presents "will not correct the problem." What you fail to realize is that the committee does not have the authority to offering a solution. This policy, according to the committee's report, is meant to guide the University in matters concerning drunk driving. Other measures have been taken, along with this policy, to help lead Notre Dame toward a solution. Fr. Malloy has established a task force, the University has recently obtained $90,000 to be used in alcohol education; and Dean Hofman has conducted an intensive alcohol awareness program which was mandatory for all freshmen during orientation. The policy is a small part of a larger plan.

Your specific attacks make me wonder if you really read all of the report and the policy. For instance, you claim that students caught "off campus" are unfairly punished twice - once by local authorities and then again by the University. First, there is nothing quite unique about the sanctions for off campus incidents. The penalties are the same for students caught driving drunk on campus and arrested. And the arrests reports are filed both with the state and the Office of Residence Life. Second, the University is not concerned about the problem of drunk driving. For them to leave it up to the local police alone would be an irresponsible neglect of the problem. You also complain that the "recommended action is presented in a negative way" and that "counseling becomes a way to punish students." Counseling is always positive. People who drive drunk have a problem and counseling can only help.

Finally, you criticize the committee for not doing things that it should not be expected to do. It is true, however, that we could have made recommendations for a "Designated Driver" program, but students should assume such responsibilities on their own. The committee is not responsible, as you assume, for the "Buzz Bus." That was a Student Government project. And the committee should not have to offer a way "for an intoxicated student to call...someone at the University as an alternative to getting home in a car." The "Buzz Bus" has gotten very tough to park here this year. We're talking about the six to 16 cars that are always illegally parked in dorms and this victorious feeling was carried over to the dining hall where the students proceeded to sing and cheer. Unfortunately, this is where the support ended. As is often the tradition, we waited at the main circle for our team buses to return in order to demonstrate our appreciation and support for the players who led us to victory. Granted, a large number of students were returning from Ann Arbor, but it's truly disappointing that there was not a larger turn-out for the team's return. The players appeared to be rather let down as well, as they looked out the windows for supporting fans, only to find the few. Notre Dame is well known around the nation for its incredible school spirit. Let's keep this tradition alive and well by demonstrating our support for the team.

A visit of the Pope, the vicar of Christ and the visible head of the mystic body of Christ on earth, is no small occasion. With John Paul II's recent visit, the entire Catholic Church, including its students, was held in suspense, as we all wondered how we could and how we can support the Pope in his mission.

Thomas D'Andrea

guest column

The theme of this visit is "Unity in the Work of Service," and the words of Jesus"s present the views of their authors.

A visit from the Holy Father presents the opportunity to strengthen unity in the one, holy, Catholic and apostolic Church and to pray more, much more, and much more insistently, for that unity, we would make a great contribution to the success of the Papal visit.

But the problem is that many of us are apathetic and indifferent. Our hearts perhaps are not in the right place and our priorities may be a bit mixed up. A visit from the Holy Father fills us with more curiosity than enthusiasm for the Pope's visit. We tend to feel that hope to confront him and relish the notion of being from having a man of the Pope's position and stature. Maybe those of us with more acute theological sensibilities hope the Pope would straighten out the Catholic Church in the United States, that he lays down the law and reproves the do-nothing members of the Church, clergies and laity, theologians and non-theologians alike, who seem to be the very ones responsible for our bad conscience.

We delight in this prospect of a tidied ship, but the thought of uniting ourselves to the Pope by sacrifice and intense prayer for unity does not occur to us. Chances are, foolhardy as it may sound, we would rather have the Pope tie us in knots.

We harbor a vague wish that his trip be a failure for the sake of the self-styled "Pope-bashers" who seem to have an unhealthy, if not unhealthy, loyalty to the Church and Her leadership as if it were just another human institution.

As we recall this let us ask ourselves: What do you do in a very serious issue? What do you do in a very serious issue? Our faith in the guidance of the Holy Father is not a faith in human wisdom but in faith in work of the Holy Spirit: What shall you hold on earth shall be added significance because Will is not a member of the Roman Catholic Faith. In the column, Will underscored the need for a sincere apology as a recognition of the need to have a common core of convictions and an authoritative body to defend these convictions, as an effort to defend them. Said Will: "There must be a point at which private judgment by members of the community is circumscribed by institutional judgment. And some people are ready to decide where points are." Yes, the Church is an institution, an institution in which we believe, and in which we want to be well known.

And today within the Roman Catholic Church there are many who are working to formulate Papal authority and Church unity—not a new story, but something that must remain for us a matter of great concern. Masquerading as intellectuals of great and profound learning, these individuals are quick to claim for themselves, if not for the Pope, his authority, his power, and his guidance. Let us support the Pope and the Catholic Church, for its members, have the best of our attention.

As we recall this let us ask ourselves: What do you do in a very serious issue? Our faith in the guidance of the Holy Father is not a faith in human wisdom but in faith in work of the Holy Spirit: What shall you hold on earth shall be bound in heaven." We members of the Roman Catholic Church do not accept the Pope's authority because he is aPontiff, the Vicar of Christ, or the Church of Christ, he has the "keys of the kingdom" and a judgment pertaining to matters of faith and morals which is assisted by the Holy Spirit in a manner unique to the Pope. I think that a sincere apology is a matter of the Church of Christ, then we must beware of the pride that would prevent our access to God's grace and to the Pope's guidance because as the despot who refused it, he was the Pope's guidance. Our hearts and our judgment are not to be directed by him but by his guidance. In short, our hearts and our conscience are to be directed by the Pope's guidance because as the despot who refused it, he was the Pope's guidance. Our hearts and our conscience are to be directed by the Pope's guidance. In short, our hearts and our conscience are to be directed by the Pope's guidance. Our hearts and our conscience are to be directed by the Pope's guidance.

An example of this would be sleeping through a test, wrecking your roommate's car, throwing up in front of your rector or saving Michigan tickets for your friends. This type of anxiety never lasts long because there's no suspense. Your life is over and you are left with a few well-defined choices.

Choice One: Run like hell. Whoever said that running from your problems didn't solve them was wrong. Running away from parents, professors, law officers and friends at high speed is an excellent way to confound the issue and gain valuable time. So the next time you are suddenly faced with the ugly reality of your own stupidity, pig-headedness, just plain-obnoxiousness, etc., turn and run if you stand there you will be held accountable, and there is always someone more accountable, even if they don't know it yet. Running is good for you, too.

Choice Two: Lie. If the most powerful men in our government can do it, why can't you? Start off telling little white lies to your friends and family (" Heck no, I'd never spill Coke on your CD player" and "No, seriously, you look great today!"). This will enable you to master the facial expressions and whiny voice of the victim. Later, when you really mess something up, you will be able to tell the big lies. I can honestly say that I never received a Mercedes or a large cash bonus to play football for SMU..."

Choice Three: Drink. Many people believe, and it's been tested again and again, that being totally unaware of your surroundings, your situation, or even your name is an excellent way to relax and forget your anxieties and problems. Other, smaller-minded people refer to this process simply as "passing out," but those people just aren't very imaginative.

Choice Four: Take Hostages. This seems to be the hip thing to do when faced with a big problem. Resembling the closest thirty or forty innocent bystanders and demand that your "DI" be changed to an "A minus" or you will force each other.

An Altered sense that something is about to go horribly wrong, or it's the horrible, gnawing feeling that invades your body and mind when you realize that something has already gone horribly wrong and it's too late to blame it on someone else. It may also be a combination of those two or maybe something completely different. Thinking about it fills me with anxiety so we'll give that up.

To make matters more complicated, there are several different kinds of anxiety. The first type we'll label Type A anxiety occurs when you're absolutely sure that you've botched something in a big way and it's all over.

Hernandez hits milestone, leads Mets over Cubs

Associated Press

Hernandez drove in five runs with two singles, a double and a three-run home run triggered a three-run fourth inning and a five-run eighth. Mattingly singled to put runners at first and third before Mark Knudson scored the eventual winning run.

NEW YORK - Rickey Henderson's home run triggered a three-run fourth inning and left-hander Al Leiter won his first major league start Tuesday night as the New York Yankees edged the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3.

Leiter, 1-0, allowed a first-inning run on Greg Brock's RBI single but he held the Brewers to only four hits and four walks while striking out eight over the first six innings.

Henderson's 14th homer tied the season's highest total and third in as many starts against the Mets.

White Sox 6, Twins 2

CHICAGO - Rookie right-hander Jack McDowell, making his major league debut, got hitting support from Donnie Hill and Harold Baines to pitch the Chicago White in a 6-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Tuesday night.

McDowell became the first White Sox pitcher to win his first six innings, with only five hits and four walks.

Pirates 5, Expos 1

TORONTO - Mike Flanagan, with last-inning help, defeated former teammates for the second time.

Lloyd Moseby hit a homer and a triple to drive in four runs Tuesday night as the Toronto Blue Jays handed the Baltimore Orioles their eighth consecutive loss, 6-2.

Reds 21, Braves 6

CINCINNATI - Dave Parker drove in a career-high eight runs with two singles, a double and two home runs and Terry McGriff hit a grand slam at the Cincinnati Reds uncharacteristically walked a seven-homer, 19-hit attack in a 21-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday.

The Mets used a pair of five-run innings in the sixth and eighth, to bury the Cubs and remain 1 1/2 games behind the front-running St. Louis Cardinals in the National League East.

ATLANTA - Dave Parker drove in a career-high eight runs with two singles, a double and two home runs and Terry McGriff hit a grand slam at the Cincinnati Reds uncharacteristically walked a seven-homer, 19-hit attack in a 21-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday.

Cincinnati's run total was the third highest in the National League this season. The New York Mets scored 25 against the Chicago Cubs on Aug. 18 and the Cubs scored 22 against the Houston Astros on June 3.

Tigers 9, Red Sox 8

DETROIT - A three-run homer by Darrell Evans and a two-run shot by Kirk Gibson helped hook up a 5-0 Boston lead as the Tigers beat the Red Sox 9-4 Tuesday night and stayed in a first-place tie with the Toronto Blue Jays in the American League East.

Boston's Todd Benzinger hit his first major-league grand slam and knocked in three more runs with two singles.

Pearson overcomes trouble to join offensive line

BY STEVE MEGARGEE   Sports Writer

When Chicago Catholic League rivals St. Laurence and St. Rita faced each other in the 1985 Illinois football state semi­finals, it looked as though it might resemble a future Blue­Gold game.

St. Rita had John Foley, Jason Cegielski and John Zaleski on its side. All signed with the Irish the following spring. So did St. Laurence stalwarts Paul Glonek, Tim Grunhard, Mike Harrison, Stan Smagala and Jeff Pearson.

"Originally, I was going to go to Michigan, Tim was going to go to South Carolina, and Stan's scholarship was up in the air with the (Lou) Holtz­(Gerry) Faust coaching switch," said Pearson, "and just by chance we all decided in the last week before signing day.

"I liked the national exposure Notre Dame gets on television, and Lou Holtz coming here was a big factor. Also, coming from the Chicago Catholic League, it's kind of a dream to come to Notre Dame."

For many of the signees, this dream did not come completely true. Cegielski and Zaleski were dismissed from the University after a year for academic reasons. From Pearson's team, which was ranked among the top five in the nation before losing to St. Rita, Glonek is now at the University of Iowa, and Harrison is sitting out this year with appendixitis.

But Pearson, a USA Today and Parade high school All­American and one of the more celebrated recruits, has overcome difficulties in his freshman year to find a starting spot at right guard this season.

"Last year, I was still on the high school level," said the 6-2, 290-pound offensive guard, "You've got to do a lot of things on your own that you didn't do in high school. This year I'm doing more on my own, like watching the films and working with my position coach. I'm doing more of the extras and getting more mentally disciplined."

Pearson's chances of starting in his sophomore year did not appear so bright last spring, when the University suspended him from spring practice for disciplinary reasons. But he used the time to do individual work that helped him prepare for fall practices.

"I knew I had a lot of things against me because I missed spring," said Pearson, "but he (Holtz) told me the spot was open, so I had confidence in myself. I knew if I did the job, Coach Holtz would be fair. If I was good enough, he wouldn't keep me from playing just because I missed spring."

According to offensive line coach Tony Yelovich, Pearson's work over the fall partially made up for his missing spring practice.

"He was behind because of the time he missed, but with hard work he made up a lot," said Yelovich. "He worked hard over the summer, and he made up for some of the time."

Pearson had his first starting assignment last Saturday at Michigan, as the lone starting underclassman on an offensive line that includes four fifth­year seniors.

"It was a disadvantage because I missed a lot on the field, but I was able to concentrate more in the weight room and on my speed," Pearson said. "It gave me a chance to improve physically."

Pearson then impressed coaches enough to earn the only available starting slot on the offensive line, the right guard position vacated by Shawn Hefren.

"Coach Yelovich worked really hard with us, and we were really prepared for the Michigan defense," Pearson said. "Byron and Chuck helped a lot with the calls. It's an honor playing next to Lanza and Harrison can all make an impact on the Notre Dame offensive line in the next few years. It could be similar to the two men on the line that had Harrison, Grunhard and Pearson playing next to each other.

"I know Tim's going to play a lot for us. He's definitely going to help us a lot this year," said Pearson. "If Harrison comes back from his injury, he's a good player, and he'll make a good contribution."

ND soccer’s LaVigne brothers

Double trouble for opponents

By MOLLY MAHONEY
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame soccer team has had its opponents seeing double this season.

The twin brother combination of freshmen Steve and Paul LaVigne has arrived to add its talents to the team.

The St. Louis natives turned down offers from several prestigious soccer programs, including Indiana, Richmond, Wake Forest and Miami of Ohio.

They opted instead to follow the path of family tradition that had led their father and uncle to Notre Dame. In addition, they both attended the LaVigne’s high school.

First glance and past history may lead a casual observer to assume that Paul and Steve are merely carbon copies of each other. But further investigation will prove a smooth one and both insist that the attitude of their teammates and the warm welcome they received have been the keys.

"The people on the team have been great," said Steve. "They've accepted us from the beginning and that really makes me want to work hard and be a determining factor in the team's success."

Still, the adjustment to the level of college play has been a smooth one and both insist that they should prove to be what Grace considers his "double jackpot."

"They have outstanding potential," said Grace. "We believe in attitude and character, not characters, and they are bright kids that are going to be a positive force."

Irish football back in the high life

By BRIAN O'GARA

Though a copy of Friday's Irish Extra did appear out of the blue.

Once the game began, it was evident that the crowd at Dooley's was overwhelmingly for Notre Dame. The regulars must have taken notice Friday night when Irish fans staged an impromptu pep rally on Maynard Street outside the bar, announcing that Notre Dame football was back in the high life.

Extra time pays off. When Mary Kay Waller went out with an ankle injury, Coach Art Lambert had to make some adjustments. After moving Zanette Bennett to the middle spot, a space was open for an outside hitter and Wagner got her break. "I am pleased with the improvements Colleen has made since she got here," says Coach Lambert. "I find her positive attitude refreshing. Her performance against Michigan was very good, and against Southern Cal she played as well as a freshman could be expected to under the circumstances."

Even though she has been given an early chance to start, Wagner doesn't expect it to last. "Playing so soon is exciting, but the line-ups change so easily," says Wagner. "My goal is not to continue starting, but to get a chance to play." Right now, she is on a roller coaster; my playing is going up and down.

Coach Lambert agrees with this assessment. "Right now Colleen is very inconsistent," says Lambert, "but that is typical of freshmen. She has the potential to become an excellent player. She just needs to concentrate more on her mental effort."

While Wagner was happy today when the Irish visit the Lady Ramblers of Loyola, III., Coach O'Gara, definately showed the ability and the desire needed to be a part of this strong Irish team.

Following today's game, the women's volleyball team will head to Richmond, Kentucky to compete in the Eastern Kentucky Invitational on Friday and Saturday.
