U.S. convoy nears mined region in gulf

Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain - U.S. warships on Tuesday escorted a Kuwaiti tanker toward a major Persian Gulf shipping channel where British minesweepers were searching for explosives believed planted by Iran.

U.S. officials said the Navy would respond strongly if Iran continued "intensified" war activities, which they said increased after U.S. helicopters attacked an Iranian mine layer.

"We're not looking at routine operations," said one U.S. source who spoke on condition of anonymity. But he said the Navy's Gulf-based resources were already seriously strained.

A Greek tanker was attacked in the Gulf Tuesday night by an Iranian gunboat, but there were no casualties or fire aboard the vessel, marine salvage executives said Tuesday.

The 38,689-ton Korianna sent a distress signal about midnight saying it was "attacked by missiles," and that it planned to anchor for the night near the site, 50 miles north of Abu Dhabi, the executives said.

Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence in London confirmed the attack and said the ship's agent was Lykiardopolou and Co., Ltd. of London.

Iraq said its warplanes attacked a ship off Iran and bombed a weapon and ammunition factory in the suburbs of Tehran, a large power plant near the Iran-Soviet border and an oil pumping station in the south.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said a number of people were killed in the raids and in Iraqi shelling of the southern cities of Khorramshahr and Abadan.

It said Iranian artillery shelled the southern Iraqi port city of Basra in retaliation.

The United States began to escort 11 Kuwaiti tankers through the Gulf in July to protect them from attack by Iran, which considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

Hickey: students have stated regret for food fights

By ERIC M. BERGAMO
Senior Staff Reporter

Many students have expressed regret for the food fights that led to the cancellation of picnics and opera­ tions, said Tuesday, Bill Hickey, Director of University Food Services, said Tuesday.

"I think that there is a lot of concern about the whole situation of how and why the events were cancelled," said Hickey. He added the situation brought about a sensitivity for the dining halls and the people who work there.

Hickey cancelled the events after food fights involving approximately 800 students erupted in both dining halls after the Notre Dame-Michigan game. At that time, Hickey said dining hall events for the spring semester would be cancelled if another food fight happened. There have not been any food fights since that weekend, Hickey said.

"There are many students who have spoken with me who said that they felt bad about what happened in the dining rooms," Hickey noted.

Students may not know that trouble they are getting into by starting a food fight, Hickey said.

"The food fighters didn't realize what they were getting into, and I think some of them were caught and are subject to judicial punishment," said Hickey.

Signs have been posted at the checker stations in both dining halls stating that anyone caught throwing food under any circumstances will be subject to disciplinary action by the University, Hickey said, and added he thought people should be aware of the consequences of participating in food fights.

Students who have written letters to the Observer and car­toons on the food fight are expressing their concern, Hickey said.

"I think they do care what happened," Hickey continued.

Companies visiting for Industry Day

Twenty-eight companies will be represented today at Industry Day, an annual event sponsored by the Joint Engineering Counsel and the Society of Women Engineers which includes a fair in Fitzpatrick Hall of Engineering and a banquet in the Monogram room of the Joyce ACC.

The purpose of Industry Day is to expose students to the companies which are at­tending and to make students aware of the opportunities offered by those businesses.

Stewards had just finished serving a meal when the turbulence hit.

"I think that's why they wrote their letters ... the way they have of raising their protest is either by the cartoons or the letters that were written to the student paper," Hickey has also received support for his comments follow­ing the incident.

"A lot of students, by the way, and faculty members have come to me to express their thoughts about it and have said 'Hey, you're right in what you said, and

Shaken passengers arrive home after turbulent flight

NEW YORK - Passengers on an Eastern Airlines jet bound for New York said Tuesday they found themselves in the turbulence, which forced the plane to make an unexpected stop in Bermuda.

Hospital officials said 27 people were treated for minor back and neck injuries in the turbulence, which forced the plane to make an unexpected stop in Bermuda.

Airport officials said 21 people were injured. Eastern spokesman Robin Matell in Miami originally reported that 41 passengers and crew mem­bers were injured.

The shaken and weary pas­sengers arrived at Kennedy International Airport at 3:15 a.m. Tuesday. At least 10 were weari­ness, braces, one was in a wheelchair, and some had blood on their shirts.

"It took off from San Juan on Mon­day afternoon and encountered the turbulence about 180 miles west-southwest of Bermuda, said Matell.

"Flying at 33,000 feet, the plane suddenly plummeted. It "just dropped, and it just kept on dropping," said Nelson Gonzales, 21, of the Bronx.

"People were screaming, going hysterical. A lot of little kids were flying all over the place. I was on the floor, I thought the plane was going down," said Kevin Stokes, of Queens.

"I was very scared," said Randy Schwartzman, 24, "We hit a bump and bounced. Before we knew it, everybody hit their heads." The Queens resident said he clung to his fiancee, as neither was wearing seatbelts, and they both bounced out of their seats and hit a wall. Neither was seriously injured.

Watergate investigators give anti-Bork testimony

Associated Press

WASHINGTON Robert Bork was accused Tuesday of rewriting history to make himself "the hero of Watergate," while former Attorney General Elliot Richardson vigorously defended the Supreme Court nominee's conduct in the firing of the Watergate special prosecutor 14 years ago.

Richardson told the Senate Judiciary Committee, "I think the nation owes Robert Bork a substantial debt."

But members of the special prosecution team that investigated the Watergate scandal made it clear they felt otherwise.

Meanwhile, Sen. Alan Cranston, the Senate's second-ranking Democrat, said support for Bork's confirmation has slipped so much that "I think he's licked."

At the White House, Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bork himself is very belligerent regarding what occurred on Oct. 20, 1973, and in the following days.

On that Saturday night, in rapid succession, Richardson resigned rather than obey President Nixon's order to fire Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, Richardson's top deputy was fired, and finally, Bork, the third-ranking Justice Department official at the time, carried out Nixon's command.

Edward Hickey, director of food services, spoke to the HPC meeting last night at Lyons Hall.

Hickey addressed the issue of food fights, stating that his staff "works very hard to eliminate food fights" and has tried to do so for the past six years that he has been director. He also told the council that the canceling of special food events for the semester is a "protest, not a punishment" and that he is "not indicting the entire campus."

However, his main message to the council was that there are "real people" working in the dining halls who "need more consideration" because their job is to prepare food for the students "can enjoy and are entitled to."

"The food service industry is not an easy business," Hickey said, adding that his staff often has to do work and for long hours. As an apology to Hickey and those who work in the food services industry, the HPC and the Student Senate have joined forces and tentatively scheduled Oct. 8 as food services appreciation night. From 4:15 to 7:15 p.m. volunteers from the HPC and the senate will work in the dining halls to show the services staff that the student leaders are supportive of them and appreciate their efforts, according to Pat Cooke, student body president.

"We want people to know that we're working on behalf of food services," he said.

The HPC also discussed measures to prevent food fights from happening again. Included among the ideas: having monitors in the dining halls for football games, serving dinner later in the evening and serving food on paper plates and cups. Another suggestion was to increase the awareness among students of the penalties of throwing food, which can be up to $100 in fines, confusion of a $7 fine, and 25 hours of service in the dining halls.

"We want the students to realize how good the workers and the system are," one HPC member said.

In other news, the annual multi-cultural fall festival is approaching. Some special events this year include: an Indian pow-­-­wows Oct. 4 at 5 p.m. on White field, a concert lecture on the history of jazz at Thursday's Oct. 7 at 7:30 p.m., and "A Taste of Nations," Oct. 10 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Shanian Center.

Sign-ups for the Oct. 11 10-K Crop Walk to benefit the poor people of the world will be held the week of Oct. 5 in the dining and residence halls.

In most cases, those who participated in the food fight were not showing their displeasure with Food Services, Hickey said.

"In some cases the students are very belligerent regarding the staff and have been extremely insulting. But I think there are others you in the dining halls, you got it by something and what's your reaction? You strike back. And I think a lot of those students were innocent," he said.

"There's a couple that I have talked to . . . who said 'I was only reacting to a situation when I got bad and I was doing nothing or throwing stuff off or was throwing something back in retaliation,' " Hickey added.

New Haven, Conn.- Yale University President Benno Schmidt has labled as "drivel" a newspaper article that depicted Yale as a "gay school," and a school officer said Tuesday that homosexuals make up only "a minute fraction" of its population.

Iran-Iraq war. Kuwait insists Weinberger, back in town after a trip to the gulf, said it is neutral.

University Secretary Sheila Wellington said Schmidt wrote his letter in response to letters from alumni who were upset by the article. But . . . we have no concrete evidence that there are any mines there. So based on present information, reports of extensive new mine fields in the southern Persian Gulf are . . . overdrawn."

Schmidt harshly criticized both The Wall Street Journal and the free-lance author of the article in a letter written to about 40 alumni and then distributed to about 2,000 fund-raisers.

Weinberger on Friday in Dubai, said the guided-missile frigate USS Gas Prince was escorting the 46,723-ton tanker Gas Prince. "Three possible mines were sighted Sunday by the Navy destroyer Kidd and its anti-submarine helicopter about 15 miles north of Dubai," Hefman said. "But . . . we have no concrete evidence that there are any mines there. So based on present information, reports of extensive new mine fields in the southern Persian Gulf are . . . overdrawn."

The article goes on to conclude that "suddenly, Yale has a reputation as a gay school." Schmidt and Wellington challenged the assertion that 25 percent of Yale student were gay. "The attribution . . . has no basis in fact," Wellington said.

Yale Daily News, as research for the article. "I'm not saying that Yale is overrun by gays, which, by the way, what's wrong with that," she said.

In the article, Iovine quotes one Yale student who said she received a notice calling one in four Yale students a gay. "The article goes on to conclude that "suddenly, Yale has a reputation as a gay school." Schmidt and Wellington challenged the assertion that 25 percent of Yale student were gay. "The attribution . . . has no basis in fact," Wellington said.

Kris Franklin, a junior and the co-coordinator of a group called Yalesbians, agreed with Schmidt, saying she didn't think Yale had more gays than anyplace else.

"Possibly people here are more open about coming out," she said, referring to the liberal nature of student life.

Another student, Anna Louise Tittmann, a junior from Concord, Mass., echoed Franklin's point: "I think Yale is a place where people stand up for their rights and are more obvious about it, but I don't think Yale is a gay school."

In 1986, the student Yale Gay and Lesbian Cooperative estimated that about 10 percent of Yale's students, faculty and staff were homosexual. The figure was based on a 1948 study by the Kinsey Institute that estimated that 10 percent of the general population had primarily homosexual tendencies.

In a telephone interview from New York, lovine said Schmidt was "taking some low blows" in criticizing her. "I think the reaction has been really extreme," she said.

She said she had talked to 25 people and extensively read the Yale student newspaper, the Yale Daily News, as research for the article.

"I'm not saying that Yale is overrun by gays, which, by the way, what's wrong with that," she said.
Wedtech arranged to have him bribed says former SBA official

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - A former Small Business Administration official who was instrumental in Wedtech Corp.'s receipt of a $135 million in no-bid Navy contracts testified Tuesday he was offered a $12,000 payoff by a middleman representing the defense contractor.

H. Robert Saldivar said he rejected the offer by Steve Denlinger, a former president of the Latin American Manufacturers Association, but never reported it to any government investigative agency.

Saldivar approved crucial extensions in 1983 and early 1984 for Wedtech so it could continue as a minority contractor in an SBA program.

The company's status was in doubt because it had offered stock for sale to the public and $135 million in no-bid Navy contracts testified Tuesday he was offered a $12,000 payoff by a middleman representing the defense contractor.

H. Robert Saldivar said he rejected the offer by Steve Denlinger, a former president of the Latin American Manufacturers Association, but never reported it to any government investigative agency.

Saldivar approved crucial extensions in 1983 and early 1984 for Wedtech so it could continue as a minority contractor in an SBA program.

The company's status was in doubt because it had offered stock for sale to the public and $135 million in no-bid Navy contracts.

Denlinger's attorney, Terence O'Donnell, was not immediately available for comment.

In other testimony to the Senate subcommittee on oversight of government management, two former Pentagon officials said their criticisms of Wedtech on the Navy contract was disregarded by their superiors.

Capt. David de Vicq, a retired Navy acquisitions manager, said a plan proposed by one of his superiors, L. Wayne Arny, on behalf of Wedtech was "imagine. It was a license to steal."

Under the plan urged by Arny, the Navy's principal deputy for shipbuilding, Wedtech in late 1984 was to be allowed to continue building pontoons, with the cost to be negotiated later.

Army's boss, Everett Wyatt, the Navy's assistant secretary for shipbuilding, rescinded part of the plan after protests from de Vicq and others. Nonetheless, the Navy extended Wedtech's pontoon contracts in 1985 and 1986 without competitive bidding.

De Vicq said a 1984 tour of Wedtech's facilities was "frightening."

The company, he said, proposed to build pontoons in a South Bronx, N.Y., warehouse with no roof, no electricity and no plumbing.

When it began turning out pontoons, "they weren't square," he added.

"They had to use sledgehammers to try to get some of the pontoons to fit," testified Col. Don Heim of the Defense Contract Administration.

Wilfong, former associate administrator for minority small business, reported the conversation to Sanders, "who was pretty blase about it; he said we don't deal in rumors," said Wilfong.

Reagan signs balanced-budget bill

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Reagan on Tuesday signed legislation reviving the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law and vowed that "the big spenders in Congress will have a fight on their hands."

In a Rose Garden ceremony, Reagan put his signature to a bill that would require $22 billion in deficit reductions in the fiscal year that begins Thursday, and a balanced budget by fiscal 1993. It would cut military and domestic programs across-the-board if its goals are not met.

The president complained bitterly about the legislation, saying Congress was seeking to raise taxes or cut the Pentagon budget to comply with it. He had no choice but to sign it, he said, because it included an urgently needed increase in the national debt limit.

"I will not allow the American people to be blackmailed into higher taxes," Reagan said, repeating his call to trim "pork-barrel spending" that he said was at the root of the deficit.

"The big spenders in Congress will have a fight on their hands," he said, adding that those who expect him to agree to tax hikes or defense cuts were "nuts."

Reagan's harsh words at the ceremony contrasted sharply with his statements earlier Tuesday before an audience of international financiers critical of the huge U.S. deficit.

There, he praised the bill as "a signal that America is not backing down from its responsibilities."

In a speech to a joint meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, the president called for a cooperative effort among the world's financial powers to help Third World nations solve their debt crisis. But he said he cannot lecture others without dealing first with America's own problems.

"It is imperative that the United States consistently reduce its federal deficit spending," Reagan said, taking sole of the Gramm-Rudman bill.
No one ever said that the road to the White House would be paved with gold. This was certainly the case for Senator Joseph Eiden (D-DE) learned last week when he announced his withdrawal from the 1988 presidential elections. Senator Gary Hart, another presidential hopefuls have been derided, at the Gallop Polls, was destroyed. And then there were six.

The timing of these media incidents was no coincidence as Eiden even stated himself. As chairman of the Senate Judicary Committee, this was his golden opportunity to introduce himself to the public during the Judge Bork confirmation hearings. At a time when he was questioning Bork’s morality, the American people questioned Eiden’s credibility. But sabotaging Biden’s campaign meant more than ruining his chances of becoming president; after all, he wasn’t exactly the front runner. The controversy surrounding Biden un-equivocally served to impede the American public’s ability to examine, without distraction, Bork’s qualifications.

The media coverage given to the Biden scandal shifted the spotlight away from Bork and his controversial judicial philosophy while projecting a dark cloud of doubt over Biden, who has lead the troops to battle Bork’s confirmation. Now, the rumors are circulating as to how and when the presidential race as the details of presidential politics has turned into ridiculous— it should. The environment consumed to Senator Eiden, President Dukakis, is the guilty culprit. Who better than Bork? Who knows if this will eliminate Biden from the presidential race as the details take time to unfold.

If all of this seems confusing and ridiculous— it should. The environment of presidential politics has turned into a three-ring circus. It resembles the plot of some network soap opera more than it does a campaign election for the nation’s most coveted office. There is, however, one resounding message in all this madness: If you have any skeletons in the closet, politics is not a wise career. It’s any con-

Irish defensive tackle

Gorman switches to defense

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

Tom Gorman did almost everything - everything at Brother Rice High School in Chicago, as the president of the National Honor Society, captain of the basketball team, and at the end, punter, and linebacker on the football team.

But after one year without seeing any playing time in college, he found out that Notre Dame was going to ask him to add yet another skill to his repertoire - defensive tackle.

I was recruited as a tight end out of high school, but when I got here I gained about 45 pounds and lost about 1 1/2 seconds on my time, so they moved me to defense," said the 6'6" 260-pound senior. "I was kind of glad because I was fifth-string tight end, and I know I had a chance at the defensive line because not many people were coming back here."

While Gorman no longer had the worry about beating out the likes of Joel Williams and Andy Heck, he did have the problem of trying to hold off the likes of Jeff Kunz and Peter Gorman.

"My freshman and sophomore years in high school I played defense at linebacker, but my junior and senior years I was strictly tight end," said Gorman. "It was sort of starting from scratch. He (defensive line coach Joe Yonto) has a free mold to play with because I was virtually an infant."

But Yonto saw a definite advantage in Gorman's experience at tight end that would help on the defensive line.

"By playing on defense, he knows what the various blocks were, and the thing on defense he has to do is learn how to counter those blocks," Yonto said. "By knowing what those blocks were, it kind of gives him an advantage. It's like your studies - you have a better chance of doing well if you know what the test's on."

Gorman progressed enough to earn a starting position on the defensive line, but not until he made another switch. Gorman had planned on sharing time with nose tackle Mike Griffin, a pre-season knee injury to Ted FlitzGerald, the projected starter at left tackle, put Gorman in that spot, where he has started ever since.

"They moved me there three weeks before the Michigan game," said Gorman. "I was sort of starting from scratch. He (defensive tackle) Jeff Kunz helped me out with technique and gave points on how to play the Michigan State game."

"It's a little marching to the tune, keeping your blocks and finding the football, but he keeps hustling and working at it."

His improvement has helped a defense that features only four returning starters to allow less than ten points per game so far this season.

"Coach Yonto and (defensive tackle) Jeff Kunz helped me out with technique and gave points on how to play the Michigan State game."

The Notre Dame defense has seen its share of playing time in the last three games, and the Irish are putting up points on the board.

The Saint Mary's soccer team clashed with the Fighting Irish Tuesday on the campus field at Saint Mary's. In a physical battle the two teams played to a 0-0 tie.

The Belles and the Irish played the last few games and Coach Tom Van Meter knew it would be difficult to beat the Irish twice in such a short span.

"It's hard to play a team twice in one week and come out on top both times, especially when it is an emotional game," said Van Meter.

The Belles' goalie, Patty Hatfield, kept the ball out of the net, making 15 saves to earn the shutout.

Early in the first half, Irish forward Kate Tifferton challenged the Saint Mary's defense, but her shot deflected off Hatfield's hands and hit the crossbar, falling behind the goal.

The Irish kept coming on strong but it was Hatfield who beat the Irish forwards to the ball and time again.

Early in the second half an Irish defender tripped Meehan, giving the Belles an indirect free kick.

Mollie Meehan placed the shot behind the Irish wall, but her pass was deflected off Hatfield's hands and hit the crossbar, falling behind the goal.

Volleyball team wins crunch week

By BRIAN O'GARA

It's crunch time for the Notre Dame volleyball team and the Irish hope to be doing the crunching, starting tonight at 7:30, against formidable opponents who will be attempting to end an eight-match winning streak for the Irish.

The Wildcats come into the contest ranked No. 16 in the nation and sparring an 11-12 record on the season. Meanwhile, the Irish are ranked ninth in the nation by the American Volleyball Coaches Association and sit at 12-8.

Notre Dame defeated Northwestern last fall at home and is looking to make the most impressive of the 39-7 campaign.

The Irish then played at DePaul on Thursday. The Blue Demons are 6-10 on the season. Friday's match will be a key battle between the last two Big Ten teams since September 16 of last year, 13 matches ago.

Still, Head Coach Art Lambert says the Irish have not yet played their best volleyball of the season. "We've been playing well at times, but not as well as others," said Lambert. "This is crunch time and we have to be ready. This is when the season really begins."

Irish jump to fifth in AP Poll

Associated Press

The Fighting Irish football team moved a day early and made an Associated Press College Poll this week, jumping from eighth to fifth following Saturday's 44-20 victory over Purdue.

Oklahoma remained No. 1 for the fifth straight week, but No. 2 Nebraska moved closer to its Big Eight Conference rival.

The Sooners, who routed Texas 35-28 Saturday, received 44 of 60 first-place votes and 1,881 of a possible 2,000 points Tuesday from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Nebraska, which beat Arizona State 35-28, received 12 first-place votes and 1,138 points.

Florida State became the first team in three weeks other than Oklahoma and Nebraska to get a vote for No. 1. The Hurricanes received the other four first-place ballots and 1,088 points in climbing from fifth place to third with a 31-7 drubbing of Arkansas that knocked the Razorbacks, ranked tenth last week, out of the Top Twenty.

Miami moved ahead of Auburn and Louisiana State, last week's Nos. 3 and 4 teams, which played tie games and slipped three places in the rankings to sixth and seventh, respectively.

Florida State jumped from sixth to fourth with 960 points after defeating Michigan State 44-20. The Seminoles entertain Miami Saturday.

"It's too early to pay much attention to the rankings," Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson said. "I'll know more about what kind of team we have after Saturday."

Notre Dame took the fifth spot with 890 points. Auburn, which played a 30-20 tie with Tennessee fell from third to sixth with 859-12 points. Ironically, the come-from-behind tie was good enough to push Tennessee from 11th to 10th. LSU's 13-12 tie with Ohio State dropped the Tigers from fourth to seventh with 821-1/2 points. Clemson moved from ninth to eighth with 810 points following a 33-12 victory over Georgia Tech.

Ohio State skidded from seventh to ninth with 715 1/2 points and Tennessee rounded out the Top Ten with 616 3/4 points.

Week 2 last week, it was Tennessee, Arizona State, UCLA, Michigan, Penn State, Texas A&M, Alabama, Washington, Iowa and Georgia.

The National League East battle has been particularly much a Cardinals-Mets confrontation, but Montreal is still mathematically alive at 25-27 and it can pick up ground this week with their series at St. Louis. In all probability, though, it's a two-team battle between the last two National League champions.

Detroit-Toronto is not the only head-on collision of the title this weekend. Down three games to St. Louis at this writing, the Mets will come to Busch Stadium on Friday and will probably need to sweep, or at least take two-of-three.

Call them chokers after last year's 75-87 record and the Mets have been playing well at times, but not as well as others," said Lambert. "This is crunch time and we have to be ready. This is when the season really begins."

The NVA golf tournament was held at the Burke Memorial Course. Philip Rojas and William O'Rielly took first place in the advanced (under 50 strokes) division. There was a tie for second between Randy Kolar and Mike Eppley and Steve Morse and Matt Nickel. The Irish beat Bowling Green

By PETE GEGEN
Assistant Sports Editor

Off to its best start ever, the Irish soccer team improved its record to 10-6-1 Tuesday night by edging Bowling Green to hold on to its No. 3 ranking in the Great Lakes region. The Falcons entered the game with a 7-0-1 record and a No. 4 ranking in the region.

After a scoreless first half of a kick-and-run game, the Falcons stormed back and took a 1-0 mark when Steve Alverie stole an outlet pass by Irish keeper Danny Lyons. Alverie sent a bouncing shot over Lyons' shoulder into the net.

The Irish have not lost an overtime game in over two seasons, and in 36 overtime matches in its altitude, Notre Dame has lost just four.

Notre Dame needed a victory over Bowling Green to hold on to its No. 3 ranking in the Great Lakes region. The Falcons entered the game with a 7-0-1 record and a No. 4 ranking in the region.
