Plane crashes, 49 people die

Associated Press

RANGOON, Burma - A Burma Airways plane caught fire and crashed about 20 miles short of a popular tourist town in central Burma Sunday, killing all 49 people aboard, including 14 Americans, the government said.

The official News Agency of Burma said 36 foreigners, nine Burmese passengers and four crewmen were aboard. It was the airline's second disaster in less than four months.

The agency said twin-turboprop Fokker Friendship 27 plane, which was midair, crashed southeast of its destination of Pagan, a town whose ancient Buddhist temples attract many foreign tourists.

Iranian missiles bombard Baghdad

Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain - Iraq resumed its aerial blitz of Iran, after four months of targets Sunday, severely damaging a Libyan-flagged supertanker. Two crewmen were reported killed and four others missing in the attack.

An Iranian surface-to-surface missile exploded in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital, as Iran retaliated for the attack on tankers.

Two Iranian missiles from Iraqi jets crashed into the engine room of the 239,435-ton Britannia off the coast of Bahrain, according to gulf-based shipping sources.

It was one of three raids announced by Iraq against tankers along the Iranian coast since Saturday morning.

Shipping sources identified one of the three targets as the Merlon, a 215,325-ton Cypriot-flagged tanker under charter to Iran.

An Exocet missile crashed into the ship but did not explode and damage was minor, they said. The unexploded missile was still aboard.

The identity of the third ship was not known, the sources said.

Both Baghdad and Tehran reported that a long-range Iranian missile was fired into the Iraqi capital overnight but disagreed where it hit. Iran blamed the attack on a major military garrison, while Iraq said it landed in a residential area, killing "numerous" civilians. No figures were given.

The attack on Baghdad was the first since two of the projec­tories, believed to be Soviet-designed Scud-Bs, hit the city of 4 million last Monday.

SMC Science Building dedicated

By MARY CASSIDY

To "prepare women to play key roles in solving major problems facing the human population" will be the pur­pose of a newly renovated science building, said Saint Mary's College President William Hickey at the building's dedication Saturday.

After a $6.5 million expansion project, the building was dedicated before faculty, guests, and alumnae dressed in academic attire. Accepting the degree, Good, Dr. Mary Lowe Good, was awarded a Doctorate of Science.

As part of the ceremony, Dr. Mary Lowe Good, presi­dent of the American Chemi­cal Society, was awarded a Doctorate of Science. Accepting the degree, Good, also president of an engineer­ing division of Allied Signal, Inc., said it is important that individuals pursue science oriented careers since fewer are being attracted to the field. Our economic future is dependent on the new technol­ogy that future scientists will develop, she added.

According to Good, women who attend women's colleges are more likely to pursue a science major. "Achievement stems in part from prepara­tion," she said.

Also speaking at the cere­mony, Monica Creamer, a 1979 Saint Mary's College graduate and manager of the American Chemical Society Manuscript office, said wo­men must overcome many ob­stacles in order to achieve success in a science career. If a woman works hard enough, she can attain high status, she added.

Bork battle marks low point of White House clout

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The likely rejection of Robert Bork as President Reagan's nominee for the Supreme Court marks the low ebb in Reagan's worst year yet on Capitol Hill, and lawmakers say the president has responded to defeats by seeking compromise from a weakened position.

"They are following a scorched-earth policy," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W Va. "Veto, threaten veto, vote no, filibuster, stall, delay. It's a no-win policy."

The year has yielded a string of losses for the administra­tion, growing ever more visible. The year began badly when Reagan vetoed two major spending measures, the clean water bill and a highway au­thorization act. Both vetoes were overridden.

Later, Reagan sought to make budget reform a top domestic policy priority. But while campaigning for reform, congressional Republicans complained, the president was sitting out the real budget fight going on in Congress.

The result was that Reagan was forced to sign a renewal of the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law last month in which he had little say.

Added to those failures has been the Iran-Contra hearings, disputes over more aid to the Contras and the sale of Maverick missiles to Saudi Arabia, and the Bork nomina­tion, which some Republicans said wasn't pushed hard enough.

"I don't think they used the tools of the trade in a way to be successful," said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa. "If they had done half as much as the left did, he would have been approved."

But more than a White House failure, the Bork vote il­lustrates a new partisanship on a Capitol Hill where both houses are under Democratic control, said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

"There is a desire to defeat the president on everything up here," he said. "I think they (at the White House) are being conciliatory with Congress. But there are some things you just have to stand up and fight on."

Other Republicans, however, say Reagan has consciously chosen not to cooperate, which may backfire on those who, unlike the president, have to run for re-election next year.
Reagan thick-headed in Nicaragua policy

There is a stubborn obstinacy to Ronald Reagan that makes one wonder how he ever made it as a politician. It is a foolish consistency that guides his mind and makes some otherwise polices no matter how stupid, how short-sighted, how expensive, how illegal, or even how unpolar. Keen political advice from his own party and the strongest urgings of his wife and close advisors are not enough to keep him from jumping onto his horse backwards.

In Reagan's mind, Daniel Ortega is and will always remain the puppet dictator of the Evil Empire. For this reason the Central American peace plan that looks so promising to everyone else is "fatally flawed," according to Ortega. For him, a negotiated peace that has the potential of leaving the Ortega regime in power is simply unacceptable. Either the Sandinistas surrender or the contras fight on.

Once upon a time Reagan's goal of making the Sandinistas cry "uncle" enjoyed quite a lot of popularity in this country and even moderate suggest that he has grown tired of a plan that is costly, ill-defined, and yields no positive results.

From the new vision shown by Central American governments in finding a diplomatic end to their troubles apparently means nothing to an administration that prefers to solve problems with covert operations and military might. Despite the uproar created by the Iran-Contra scandal this summer, Reagan has by no means abandoned a policy which was shown to be disorganized and riddled with profiteering and corruption. In fact, he wants just the opposite, namely to expand the contra program to the tune of a whopping $270 million dollars.

The decision was made several years ago to play "hardball" with what was taken to be the Marxist forces of Nicaragua. And now it is a line from which Reagan obstinately will not retreat. Major concessions to opposition parties in Nicaragua, such as lifting the 15 month censorship of the newspaper La Prensa or naming outspoken Sandinista critics of the Sandinistas party to a national reconciliation commission, are written off by Reagan as "phony" democratization.

In a speech to the Organization of American States last week Reagan pledged to continue support of the contras until "full democratsion" is established. His words were "to work, strive and struggle as long as there is breath in this body."

The loyalty towards the troops is perhaps admirable from a certain perspective, but what Reagan blindly fails to perceive is the harsh criticism his boys have raised from all quarters. There was a time when dedication to these "freedom fighters" could be passed off as a high patriotic calling. But the hour of Ollie North is clearly gone.

No one serious believes that the Contras are the good guys anymore. Hour after hour of congressional testimony clearly showed that these bands of rebels lacked any financial responsibility, military discipline, organizational hierarchy or noble accomplishments. The only press coverage they legitimately get concerns the latest allegations of brutality and plunder.

The real shame in Reagan's stubborn insistence in unworkable policies is that it destroys the chances of better ideas to take hold. In the words of House Speaker Jim Wright, the current Central American policy of the Reagan team aims to "torpedo the peace process." Where there is a chance for a major foreign policy success Reagan stubbornly will insist on failure.

In Brief

Dozens of police, firefighters, reporters and photographers mobilized when a police officer in Brooklyn reported by radio he had found a "possible nuclear warhead" privately owned truck. A crowd of emergency workers and reporters surrounded the truck in the Flatbush section. Police found two sealed metal, lead-lined containers about the size of three-gallon drums, each holding about 5 grams of radioactive iodine 192, a substance used to treat cancer patients. According to police, someone stole the truck and abandoned it in front of a store with his motor running. - Associated Press

Homosexuals rally at Capitol

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Thousands of homosexual activists, led by AIDS victims in wheelchairs and bearing signs carrying messages like, "Thank God I'm Gay," marched Sunday to demand protection from discrimination and more federal money for AIDS research and treatment.

U.S. park Police said about 50,000 people had gathered by 1 p.m. for the march past the White House and rally near the Capitol. The crowd, carrying balloons and banners and wearing buttons and T-shirts, stretched along the mall for more than a dozen blocks.

"Here we are from California, Alabama, Florida, Arizona, Alaska, Seattle and Delaware - east, west, north and south - in numbers too large to ever be denied again," said Eleanor Smeal, former National Organization for Women.

She told the crowd they numbered 500,000 and yelled, "Look at you!" "Feel the political power of the moment. Spread love and fight hate," she said.

She also said, "We have stopped Bork," referring to federal Judge Robert Bork whose nomination to the U.S. supreme Court appears headed for certain defeat in the Senate. Marchers chanted anti-Bork slogans.

Under skies threatening rain, the rally began with music and a poignant statement from Dan Bradley, a White House aide in the Carter administration, who is suffering from acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Bradley said that what he was most proud of was that "after a lifetime of struggle and fear ... I had the courage (in 1982) to say, loud and clear, 'I'm gay and I'm proud. I'm gay and I'm proud.'"

Activists say the AIDS crisis, which has hit the homosexual community in the United States especially hard, has spurred an increase in violence and discrimination against the nation's lesbians and homosexual men, who they estimate number 25 million.

Organizers were hoping to use the march and rally Sunday and a planned non-violent protest in front of the Supreme Court building on Tuesday to dramatize their calls for more federal assistance.

"The Reagan administration is allowing millions to die," said one of the marchers, Jim Merriam, an AIDS victim from Miami. Its "response has been an ineffective, inincere commission on AIDS." Suzanne Phillips of Brooklyn, N.Y., a medical student who works with AIDS victims, carried a bumper sticker reading "Fight AIDS, not people with AIDS."

"I can't do anything for the patients but watch them die. I can't stand it anymore," she said, calling on the Food and Drug Administration to speed the process of approving new drug treatments for AIDS.

Activists began their day Sunday at sunrise on the mall, with the unfurling of a 7,000-pound quilt bearing the names, personal effects and, in some cases, the ashes of victims of AIDS.

The quilt bears 1,920 panels made by companions or relatives of people who have died from the disease.

Radical plan unveiled for Poland

Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland - Prime Minister Zbigniew Mesner unveiled a radical economic reform program Saturday that stresses lifting barriers to initiative, slashing bureaucratic power and letting market forces influence prices and wages.

The program amounts to a rejection of many of the economic mechanisms built up over the 43-year history of the Polish communist state, and is line with the restructuring taking place in the Soviet Union under Mikhail Gorbachev.

Mesner said the reforms also should persuade Western lenders to quickly restore trade credits to Poland. Credits dried up after the 1980 martial law crackdown on the Solidarity independent trade union movement.

In an unprecedented move, the government called for a nationwide referendum Nov. 29 to let the public itself determine the "degree and rate" of the reform.

Addressing the Sejm, or parliament, as Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski looked on, Mesner said the reform package will spur socialist enterprise on the principle that "everything which is not prohibited is permitted."

He complained of a lack of visibility in Poland's economy, saying, "In extreme cases, the people pretend to be working and the enterprise pretends to pay them."

He said one goal of the reform is to activate the "immense latent capacity" of the Polish people.

The Sejm called a session Oct. 23-24, when it is expected to ratify the package. Mesner said the reforms would be implemented in 1988-90.

The reform would make it much easier for individuals or enterprises to start new businesses or engage in foreign trade.
China bans press from Tibet

Associated Press

CHENGDU, China - Chinese officials barred foreign reporters from entering Tibet Saturday, and the official media quoted an official as saying foreign tourists were among the leading rioters in recent pro-independence demonstrations.

Saturday's order follows the expulsion of 14 Western journalists who covered the protests in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital, in which at least 16 people died.

Xinhua News Agency quoted a police official as saying foreign tourists were last seen somewhere between the C1 parking lot and Lhasa railway station. The keys are valued at $85.

saw at least 50 foreign tourists were seen among the rioters attacking a police station Oct. 1, throwing stones at police and inciting violence among the protesters.

The unidentified officer said participation in the riots by the tourists is evidence of their ulterior motives, Xinhua said.

The protests began Sept. 27 with a march by about two dozen Buddhist monks. On Oct. 1, at least 2,000 people led by monks clashed with police and at least 14 people were killed.

Monks in Lhasa said two colleagues died after being beaten by police in a third riot last Tuesday in which about 100 monks marched.

The Xinhua report, monitored in Tokyo, said the riots were instigated by Tibet's exiled spiritual leader, the Dalai Lama, and that many of the rioters were former prisoners.

It quoted a deputy secretary of the Tibet Autonomous Regional Committee, Raidi, as saying the government would not hesitate to severely punish those carrying out separatist activities.

Girl mauled by lion in flea market

Associated Press

HOUSTON - A lion being walked through a flea market suddenly grabbed an 8-year-old girl and mauled her, then grabbed her head between its jaws, only letting go after it was shot twice, police and witnesses said.

The girl was in critical but stable condition Sunday, and authorities considered whether to file charges against the lion’s owner.

“The lion knocked over an ornament and became excited,” said Mason, 27. “He grabbed her and started dragging her across the floor. She was screaming and everybody starting running around.”

A security guard accompanying the lion and its owner shot the lion with a .44-caliber handgun but that didn’t stop the attack, said police Lt. C.W. Driskell.

“That seemed to aggravate the lion, and it grabbed her by the head,” he said. “We then shot the lion again, and they still had trouble getting it to release the little girl.”

The lion’s 35-year-old owner had operated a booth at the Texas Flea Market for about three months, letting shoppers have their picture taken with exotic snakes and the lion, said Driskell.

Harris County prosecutors will decide what charges, if any, to file against him, police said. The owner was taken to police headquarters where he gave a statement. He declined comment to reporters.

Roxanne Hernandez suffered a cracked skull and part of her brain was exposed during the attack, said paramedic J.W. Hays.

After six hours of surgery at Hermann Hospital, she was in critical but stable condition Sunday, said hospital spokeswoman Barbara Cafferty.

“Her brain damage was very extensive,” said Ms. Cafferty, adding that it was too early to determine whether there was brain damage.

“All we can do is wait and see,” she said.

City health officials and a Houston Zoo veterinarian were called in after the attack and injected the lion with tranquilizers and taped its mouth. But while being loaded into a truck, the lion reared and suddenly grabbed an 8-year-old girl and mauled her, then walked through a flea market starting running around.

Peacem Cups: a rewarding alternative

When I was asked to write a letter to the students of Notre Dame describing my "Peace Corps Experience," I was enthusiastic at the prospect of being able to share my experiences here in Thailand with you. However, when I began contemplating all that I have experienced in just one year here, I realized that this would not be an easy letter to write. How could I possibly sum up a year and three months of the most amazing and most frustrating, yet culturally unfamiliar and sometimes frustrating, experiences of my life in a single letter? I have been sending letters home to family and friends weekly since I've been here, and I have the vague feeling they still think I'm living in a grass hut in the middle of a rice field somewhere in Southeast Asia. (Actually it's a wooden house in a village, surrounded by rice fields.) What follows is just a brief description of how I have found life in the Peace Corps to be from first applying while at Notre Dame to where I am now, one year down and only one more year to go unfortunately.

Tracy Thornbury

During my senior year at Notre Dame, two years ago, I began the process of applying to the Peace Corps. Shortly after returning from a taped-recorded talk by my junior year, I was pretty intent on the idea of entering the Peace Corps upon graduation. However, being a conscientious senior at that time, and mostly worrying about the future of May approaching and having no letter to go home to Mom and Dad, I began basing myself with job interviews at Career Placement (few and far between thanks to my psychology and Spanish major), applications for grad school, and any volunteer programs which sounded as inviting as the Peace Corps (none did, but I applied anyways). I applied to Peace Corps in October and spent the rest of my senior year anxiously awaiting an invitation. The application process turned out to be long and sometimes frustrating, but as I was told by some returned Peace Corps volunteers, if you're patient and persistent, chances are you will get accepted eventually. In May I finally got an invitation to go to Thailand. Although I was thrilled that I would soon be on my way to becoming a Peace Corps volunteer, I was still pretty clueless as to what the next two years and three months would have in store for me. I had never even set foot in Thailand before, let alone known where it existed on a map, and all I could imagine of this place was scenes from "The King And I." In July I bid farewell to family and friends and arrived armed with Swiss army knife and mosquito repellant, set off for San Phanang and a six-week pre-training briefing. It was there I was thrown together with fifty other trainees, and we all flew to Bangkok together. Training was to consist of three months of language and cultural lessons during which time we also had several weeks of technical training on topics of our program. Since I was to be a TEFIL (teaching English as a foreign language) crossover agriculture volunteer, I was six weeks in agriculture training and another four weeks in teacher training. In training we were taught the importance of assimilating into the culture. This meant adopting the language (learning to speak the dreaded five tones of the Thai language) and customs of the Thai people. We were told to dress and act conservatively. Women were advised not to wear shorts or other revealing clothing in public, and not to smoke or drink amongst the Thais. Men were warned against having beards or mustaches and having little hair and regard unshaven foreigners as suspect. The male trainees were also notified about the Thai males' custom of visiting prostitutes and that they should be go out of their way and should only been invited to join co-workers for after-hour activities. After three months of living out of a suit case (duffle bag I rather) and being constantly evaluated by our Thai training staff, we were sworn in as Peace Corps volunteers and sent off to do our duty in the rice fields of Thailand. After three months of being in close quarters with fifty other trainees, it was hard saying goodbye and going on our own, but to serve the South Bend community which in turn, implicitly helps students build their individual charisma, spirituality and sense of social issues. It also provides services which are geared to help students in a more explicit fashion.

I am specifically writing to praise Mary Anne Roemer's efforts for organizing the Senior Reflection Groups. The groups offer seniors an excellent environment to relax and discuss their lives, goals, and values cultivated over the past four years. They offer a way to pull together the bits and pieces of our experiences realized here, to reflect on the "big picture" of the meaning of our college years, and to provide a framework of direction for our lives.

CSC lauded for determined efforts

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter to commend the staff's efforts at the Center for Social Concerns. The Center provides students with many opportunities and is a chance to be a voice for a group. Since I've been here, it has also gotten, or at most seems trivial, when I look back on the sacrifices I have made in coming here is my Peace Corps experience begins. It is the daily life in the village of Moeiwadee that has shown me what the real Peace Corps experience begins. It is the people, the administration of either institution. The News is reported as

Tracy Thornbury is a 1985 graduate of Notre Dame and is currently serving as a member of the Peace Corps in Thailand.
In 1987 the group released Darklands. It is only their second released full-length album, but the talent that the band are very apparent. Too often bands release great first albums and then don't even seem to reach that height again. Not so here. Instead of trying to recreate the fenced drones of their unique first album, the Reids have changed and moved on.

This album emphasizes the vocal harmony as well as the acoustic guitar, and there is virtually no feedback. It sounds great as a whole and has a haunting, meaningful tone, which very few other albums can convey. Early Love and Rockets and Bauhaus LP's are probably the closest comparisons to this album.

"April Skies" is the first single and is generally good although not exactly what they had in mind. It got a lot of airplay and caused trouble for the band, but it is another strong cut. "Fall" is also a cool tune. It is one of the slower songs but it works. After "About You" and "Chicago," I think this is the real evolution of this band emerging.

The Jesus and Mary Chain have that certain something, that sound that makes a listener want more and more. Ask for it on WYFI and hopefully you'll like it as much as I do.

Darklands has that 'certain something'

By MARK MCLAUGHLIN
Projects Manager

Fall break is a good time to check over your car in preparation for the winter months, according to Michael Plank, sales representative at the Chicago Motor Club.

"This is the time of year people should be thinking about cold weather," Plank said. "The most important thing is to check over your tires. They will behave differently in colder temperatures and on ice and snow." Cold weather will cause the tires to become harder, Plank said, so checking the pressure periodically is also a good idea.

Plank also said that a tune-up would help cars start more consistently in winter weather. Other preventive maintenance measures Plank mentioned include:

- Flushing the radiator to avoid clogging with debris. Radiators are stressed more in winter months.
- Checking the antifreeze level.
- Changing spark plugs.
- Checking over the fan belts and other belts in the engine compartment.
- Topping off the windshield washer fluid tank. "All the salt and sand used on the roads in this area tends to cake up on the car's windshield. People go through wiper fluid pretty quickly," said Plank.

Terrell: A 16-yard run by Rice for Notre Dame's first points capped that drive.

After Todd Lyght blocked a Panther punt, Rice led off the fumble 19 yards to cut Pitt's lead to 10-7.

In the fourth quarter Rice again connected with Brown on a 46-yard pass. But with first and goal at the nine, Rice rushed twice for three yards. After a third-down incompletion, the pressure was on to score as Holtz called for a pass on fourth down. The Irish had the right play called, but Rice was blotted out before his receivers turned around.

The contrasts continued as Rice hit Brown for three yards, then pitched to Mark Green who carried it from 17 yards. A two-point conversion move the Irish to within eight of the Panthers.

"Tony came in and did great," said Brown, who helped Rice with three receptions for 94 yards. "He scored 22 points in a half. Hopefully he can look at the things he did wrong and right and come out next week and do the job." Rice got a taste of pressure football in the final minute when Notre Dame recovered the on-sides kick. After two runs moved the ball to the Pitt 36-yard line, Rice completed passes to in-completions and was sacked, setting up fourth down and 17 with time running out.

Rice dropped back to pass, but he could not find a receiver. Then he spotted the clock with 10 seconds left. He rolled right and headed for the sideline, forgetting it was fourth down. The game was over, but Rice's future at Notre Dame's quarter-back was just beginning.

"The young man performed very admirably in the game," said Holtz, "but he has a lot to learn. He's a true freshman, and he has a lot to learn."

"There are a lot of things I need to work on, a lot of mistakes to correct," said Rice. "But I'm ready to do what needs to be done."
Pittsburgh's Craig Heyward turns the corner and outruns Notre Dame's Brandy Wells. Heyward scored two touchdowns and rushed for 132 yards in the Panthers' upset win. Game stories begin on page 16.

DETROIT - Kirby Puckett and Greg Gagne homered, moving the Minnesota Twins within a game of their first World Series in 25 years with a 5-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers Sunday night.

The victory broke a traveling jinx for the Twins - the worst road team in the majors - and gave them a 5-1 advantage in the best-of-seven series.

Bert Blyleven, 15-12, and the winner of Game Two at Minnesota, will go against Doyle Alexander, 9-6, Detroit's opening game loser, in Game Five Monday.

Detroit's Darrell Evans cost his team two runs with his baserunning and fielding.

Evans was picked off third base by catcher Tim Laudner in the sixth inning with the Tigers trailing 4-3. Two pitches later, reliever Juan Berenguer threw a wild pitch.

In the eighth, Evans, the Tigers' regular first baseman, made an error at third base as the Twins added their insurance run.

Gagne, the Twins shortstop, made a first-inning error that cost his team a run, but so did Tigers right fielder Larry Herndon.

Herndon's fifth-inning run, scored by the third baseman, brought in the difference as the Twins, 5-4 here during the season, beat Tigers left-hander Frank Tanana, who contributed to his own downfall with a playoff record three hit batters.

The Twins had a 3-29 record on the road this season - worst of any division or pennant winner in history.

Puckett hit a solo homer in the third, and Gagne had one in the fifth. Eleven of the two of them, they were for 2-32 in the first three playoff games.

Giants 6, Cardinals 3

SAN FRANCISCO Kevin Mitchell homered and drove in two runs Sunday and the San Francisco Giants ran past the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3, sprinting to a 3-2 lead in the National League Championship Series.

The Giants moved within one victory of their first World Series appearance since 1962, using their power and stealing the Cardinals' speed. Game Six will be Tuesday night in St. Louis, away from the swirling winds of Candlestick Park.

Mitchell explained the steady march to the World Series, "We're going to hold a 3-1 advantage in this matchup.

Third and 17. Rice threw in complete to Green on the next play, and the Cardinals got a break. With hopes of a comeback tied it when he fumbled the snap two yards down and didn't even throw one up for grabs.

"I didn't know what kind it was," Rice explained. "I knew time was running out, so I ran it all the way in. The next thing I knew, they said it was their ball."

Rice was 10-of-12 passing for 125 yards. Brown, often single-covered because of frequent Panther blitzes, caught six passes for 156 yards, picked up nine yards rushing on two carries and had six total return yards.

In addition to losing their 2-1 series lead, the Cardinals, who came into the game 3-1 on the season, the Irish have lost their last two games. Burt Grossman lost on the next play, and Rice threw the ball out-of-bounds to stop the clock with 20 seconds left.

The Cardinals finally found a way to contain Jeffrey Leonard, who went 6-for-4 after homering in the first game of the four games, but could not control his teammates. This best-of-seven match had been billed as power-versus-speed, and the Giants had both.

San Francisco Manager Joe Altobelli promised before the game that his team would show his team was in a position, and that showed immediately. Robby Thompson and Mitchell stole home, and the 20-yard play was further off the field.

Jose Uribe stole another in the fourth after his two-run single, and a four-run rally that made it 6-3.

The Giants stole only 136 bases to St. Louis' 248 during the season, but swiped more in the first four innings in Game 5 than the Cardinals have stolen in the series. Meanwhile, Pittsburgh's Rickey Henderson continued to flex his muscles.

Mitchell singled home Thompson in the first and expanded the lead to 4-0 in the third. The Giants out-homered St. Louis 20-94 during the regular season, and held a 3-1 edge in this matchup.

Irish win tourney, dominate North Star

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

Despite receiving a little bit of a scare on the tournament’s opening day, the Notre Dame women’s tennis team came away with its fifth-consecutive North Star Conference tournament championship.

The Irish sent five of a possible six singles players and two of a possible three doubles teams to the tournament finals. Northern Illinois, a team the Irish had shut out in a dual meet earlier this season, accomplished the exact same feat, and the two schools were tied going into Sunday’s finals.

“We probably went into it a little too confident, and that might have been my fault,” Irish coach Michele Gelfman said. “Northern Illinois was a little couple of changes in their lineup, and they moved all their doubles partners around.”

Notre Dame came on strong in the finals to take the North Star title, sweeping Tolstedt, Michelle Dasso, and Kim Pacella, who defeated Illinois opponents in singles finals, and the doubles teams of Cahill and Illig and doubles partner Illig/Cathleen Bradshaw also beat foes from NIU.

Tolstedt won the last two sets of her match after dropping the first set. In the eighth game of the final set, Tolstedt won her service game after being down, 5-6, 4-6, and broke NIU’s Lee Ann Milne in the ninth game, then held service to win, 6-3, 6-4.

Irish

Maureen Shea registered 17 kills, 53 percentage, to lead the Irish. Junior Whitney Shewman, who played all weekend coming off the bench, added 10 kills in the contest.

On Sunday, Notre Dame defeated Minnesota three games to two. Three of the day’s games, including two Irish wins, went to 16-14 scores before a winner was claimed.

Notre Dame jumped out to a 10-3 lead in the first game, but slid back and allowed the Golden Gophers to rally back and tie the score at 11 and then again at 14. A Bennett ace and Shea Walker block gave the win to the Irish.

Game two was nearly a carbon copy of the first outing, with the Irish jumping ahead 7-3 and the score eventually tied at 14. Notre Dame was slow reacting to Minnesota kills, and the Gophers scored seven kills: two on the Irish’s first serve, six on the second serve. Notre Dame pulled even at 14, 14, and then pulled away for a 16-14 win. After battling to 3-3 tie in the first two games, the Irish came out as a 17-15 lead at 11, 11, and the Irish pulled away for a 16-14 win.

Irish

Dasso, by contrast, cruised through the weekend, winning her singles matches by scores of 6-0, 6-1, and 6-0. She almost matched that success in doubles, with she and Ceci Cahill trouncing their opponents by scores of 6-0, 6-0, and 6-1.

“Stephanie Tolstedt played one of the most outstanding matches I’ve ever seen in her play,” said Gelfman. “Michelle Dasso was so steady. Every time she stepped on the court this weekend I knew she was going to win. She really ripped through her opponents and destroyed some people.”

Cahill closed her perfect fall season with a 21-0 singles record, eliminating a pesky Meg Murdoch of Marquette in the final round, 6-3, 6-2, after shutting down first-round opponent Kim Ingraffia of DePaul, 6-0, 6-0. Cahill’s classmate, fourth-seeded freshman Pacella, having to move up to the fourth seed because of Alice Lobert’s injury, still had relative ease in winning her matches, 6-1, 6-1, and 6-2.

“Kim Pacella played outstanding,” Gelfman said. “She was feeling kind of weak, and she was playing the personally who’s normally number-three at Northern Illinois in the finals and still won.”

In singles action, Illig placed second and Julie Sullivan finished in third place. Illig and doubles partner Cathy Bradshaw took their doubles title with two straight-set wins, 6-3, 6-1, and 6-1, 6-1.

NFL negotiations on blink

Associated Press

TYSONS CORNER, Va. - The owners’ negotiators walked away from the bargaining table Sunday, dashing any hopes for a quick end to the nearly three-week-old NFL strike. No further talks were scheduled.

Management blamed the breakoff on the players’ continuing demands for free agency. The union said it was a deliberate move to put more pressure on the players to break ranks and cross picket lines.

“We’re at a roadblock, we’re mired down,” said Jack Donlan, who had negotiated with union head Gene Upshaw for a little more than five days, the longest single bargaining session of the strike.

In fact, on a day the second round of games were played with non-strikers and replacement players, the two sides seemed as far apart as ever. The 28 player representatives are to meet again Monday in Chicago, as they did a week ago, to plot their course.

Scores - p. 13, Sports Briefs

Upshaw and Donlan not only disagreed sharply on free agency and two other major issues - the pension plan and management’s demand for a six-year contract - they also disagreed on just what the major roadblocks are.

Upshaw claimed that the players had thought they could break the stalemate on free agency with a proposal this week that he said complied with management’s demand to stay within the present system. That plan allows teams to make a qualifying offer with a 20 percent raise, then match any offer made to a player.

San Francisco Giants right fielder makes a diving catch against St. Louis in the League Championship Series game Saturday night. The Giants took a 3-2 lead in the series with a win yesterday. A story on both playoff games yesterday is on page 13.

Offer valid only on Monday. Offer may expire without notice. Not valid with any other promotion.

Rice thrust into QB limelight

By PETE GEGEN
Assistant Sports Editor

When Tony Rice lined up be hind center at the beginning of the second half, nobody but the team realized that he would be the starting quarterback for the rest of the year.

Senior quarterback Terry Andrysiak had to be helped off the field after being hit on the last play of the first half. It appeared at first that Andrysiak had suffered a broken right collarbone on the play, ending his season.

Andrysiak had started the game not just for one series, as he had done against Ohio State and Purdue. He was now the leader of the offense.

"It kind of surprised me," said Rice. "But that's my job. The other guys gave me confidence at halftime.

Rice sparked the offense into gear. He completed 5-of-12 passes for 123 yards and, with a new emphasis on the option game, rushed the ball 19 times. With the Pitt defense penetrating the backfield, Rice usually kept the ball on the option, breaking tackles and dancing around defenders.

"We had to (change the offense for Rice) to some extent," said Holtz. "We'll probably have to continue to do that.

As Pitt head coach Mike Gottfried noted, it was a different game with Rice at quarterback. Like the Wizard of Oklahoma, Rice is dangerous with both his feet and his arm.

At the same time Rice cannot be expected to turn Notre Dame into an Oklahoma school. After sitting out football last season, Rice has hardly any experience on the college field.

Most of the drives Rice led featured tight end Dave Dobnick, who caught all five of Rice's completions in the second half. The senior, who is one of the most experienced players on the team, had trouble with his protection.

With the Pitt defense penetrating the backfield, Rice usually kept the ball on the option, breaking tackles and dancing around defenders.

"We had to (change the offense for Rice) to some extent," said Holtz. "We'll probably have to continue to do that.

As Pitt head coach Mike Gottfried noted, it was a different game with Rice at quarterback. Like the Wizard of Oklahoma, Rice is dangerous with both his feet and his arm.

The second game was a battle of ties, finding the two teams knotted at four, five and seven until the Wildcats found openings in the Notre Dame defense to pull away, 15-10, and even the match. Kentucky's momentum continued in game three, as the Wildcats out-paced the Irish and continuously tipped the ball over and around Notre Dame blockers and pulled away for a 12-9 victory.

With their backs to the wall, the Irish scrapped for every loose ball in the evening's fourth game, broke an 8-0 tie and forced a fifth game with a 15-11 win.

Looking rejuvenated and inspiring the crowd of 88,383, Notre Dame was one game away from perhaps the biggest win in its history. Kentucky had an other idea, and, with the game tied at three, ran away with the ball.

Volleyball wins two, drops one

By BRIAN O'GARA

They came away with two wins in three matches, but the big one got away.

After dropping a near-upset to Kentucky Friday night and sweeping Northern Illinois Saturday, the Notre Dame volleyball team held off a pesky Minnesota team Sunday afternoon, 16-14, 16-14, 15-8, 14-16.

Despite coming away with the win on Sunday, the Irish may have lost outside hitter Kathryn Cunningham for two or more weeks with a separated shoulder. The sophomore went down after attempting a dig early in the third game and most likely will not play in the team’s October break road trip on which she will travel.

On Friday night, the Irish had the upset in mind against the ninth-ranked Wildcats after winning the opening game, 15-9. Notre Dame jumped out to an 8-0 lead behind Kentucky missteps and an aggressive offensive attack led by the kills of junior Zanette Bennett. The Wildcats fought back close to close the gap to 10-7, but their .365 hitting percentage allowed the Irish to win the first game.

The second game was a battle of ties, finding the two teams at four, five and seven until the Wildcats found openings in the Notre Dame defense to pull away, 15-10, and even the match. Kentucky's momentum continued in game three, as the Wildcats out-paced the Irish and continuously tipped the ball over and around Notre Dame blockers and pulled away for a 12-9 victory.

With their backs to the wall, the Irish scrapped for every loose ball in the evening's fourth game, broke an 8-0 tie and forced a fifth game with a 15-11 win.

Looking rejuvenated and inspiring the crowd of 88,383, Notre Dame was one game away from perhaps the biggest win in its history. Kentucky had an other idea, and, with the game tied at three, ran away with the ball.
