Summit details still unclear

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Ronald Reagan on Wednesday renewed his offer to host the next superpower summit meeting in the United States, but administration officials said Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev might prefer another site.

Gorbachev's reservations surfaced as the White House and the Kremlin announced that Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze would fly to Washington for talks Friday with Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

He was expected to deliver a message from Gorbachev to Reagan, who said in speech at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., that "it would be good for Mr. Gorbachev to see this country for himself."

But two U.S. officials, demanding anonymity, told the Associated Press separately that the Soviet leader was reluctant to have the summit held in the United States.

"He is concerned about being upstaged by the president on his own turf," one of the officials said. "They also have said they are worried about security."

The official said the Soviets had hinted that Dublin, Ireland, might be a suitable summit site. "But," he added, "I wouldn't be surprised if they agreed to meet here."

The second official said Gorbachev felt uncomfortable about having the summit in Washington, and that was one of the reasons for his hesitation in setting a date for his third meeting with Reagan.

But another U.S. official said, "Gorbachev, himself, in discussing the summit last week with Shultz in Moscow talked only about Washington."

The leaders' first summit was in Geneva in November 1985.

Notre Dame complaints not an accurate picture

I complain about a lot of things while I attend school here. I admit it. Thousands can confirm it.

From administration policy and the fairness of tests to long lunch lines and the cost of Double Hamburger specials, there is much around here that escapes my wrath. But I am not alone.

An ungodly proportion of my total amount of conversation with other students each day is devoted to our lamenting some facet of Notre Dame - the school we love to hate.

You'd never guess that 92 percent of students who enter Notre Dame as freshmen stay here for all four years (98 percent before the Alcohol Policy). The amount of negative response that I hear leveled at just about every aspect of university life would seem to indicate an impending exodus from this barren abyss of limited freedoms and even more limited promiscuity. But it never happens. Why?

It's easy to explain away the lines: The lines are too long everywhere. The food's rotten. We should all be able to drink outside our rooms. Everyone's too competitive. Cops shouldn't bust us at bars or off-campus parties. It's too hard to get grades. Sex should be legal. The girls are ugly anyway. Too many foreign TA's.

Dillon sucks. Digger can't coach. The weather is ridiculous. The rooms are too small. Weekend fun is restrained at best. Bookstore prices are outrageous. The girls are ugly. That silly Proposition 48 thing kept Tony Rice away this year. A federal investigation is launched every time people try to go on campus. No day off on national holidays. Crunchberries in the dining hall only on select days. The beat goes on and on. But why?

Let's count our blessings, shall we? Sure, we're ambitious and want to see every shortcoming of life at Notre Dame rectified instantly and to our specifications. But complaining only makes the campus partnership's job a bit too fair, considering that Notre Dame serves a lot of pretty darn useful purposes. Not the least of these is an all-purpose, four-year bubble shielding us from the real world. While we're being protected from going out on our own, we're increasing our potential for making megabucks.

Only percent of people in our age group are in college right now, and only half of that percent will graduate. A lot of that final 50 percent go to Podunk U or another state school equivalent. So, when we get out, it's safe to say that we'll be pretty highly covetted by the powers-that-be in the American work force. Don't let that D on your government midterm wash away your dream of a starting salary in excess of $35,000.

Many people on campus got their laundry done for a nominal fee by the University, the University Food Services have won national awards in two of the last three years. And if you enter them with an open mind, 99 percent of the situations you encounters at Notre Dame can be made tolerable.

Really, this school is Fantasyland compared to other situations you could be in. We've got a golf course in our backyard, a national sports reputation unlike almost any other, and as beautiful and scenic a campus as there is. And, when you think about it, the Alcohol Policy isn't that bad when you consider that the drinking age almost everywhere in the country (including Indiana) is 21.

I guess complaining is just a natural tendency for aggressive, informed, cream-of-the-crop folks like us, but when it comes right down to it, Notre Dame offers quite a few more opportunities than headaches.

Kathleen Hessert described her first few months after graduating from Saint Mary's as "miserable. I thought that my life had peaked at Saint Mary's at age 22. Eventually I realized that it was time for me to take my own talents and what Saint Mary's had taught me out into the real world." And that is exactly what the 1974 graduate did. Hessert, president of Communications Concepts in Charlotte, N.C., elaborated on her college years and her career in a speech last night at Haggar College Center.

"It was not until I came to Saint Mary's that I realized who I was and what I could do. Saint Mary's gave me a place to grow."

Saint Mary's College has been named one of the best all-women's colleges in America, according to a recent survey of college and university presidents in U.S. News and World Report. The College was ranked seventh out of 170 colleges. Twenty-one percent of the 68.8 percent who responded rated Saint Mary's as a top institution in the survey which ran the Oct. 26 issue.

The presidents of colleges listed the top 10 schools in the smaller comprehensive category based on the following criteria: cohesiveness of curriculum, quality of teaching, the relationship between faculty and students and the atmosphere of learning fostered by the campus. The thing that pleases the College most is that (the recognition) comes from peers of comparable institutions," said Brett McLaughlin, who handles public relations for Saint Mary's.

"A school is considered "smaller comprehensive" if it has an enrollment of 1,000-2,500, if it has a wide variety of professional and liberal arts programs and if it awards more than half of its Bachelor of Arts degrees in two or more areas. Berea College in Kentucky was selected as number one followed by Gustavus Adolphus College (Minn.), Whittier College (Calif.), Augustana College (Ill.), Hood College (Md.), Otterbein College (Ohio), William Jewell College (Mo.), Saint Mary's College, Co., Saint Catherine College (Minn.), Milikin University (Ill.) and Otterbein College (Ohio).

Saint Mary's is one of the three all-women's colleges mentioned. The others are Hood College and the College of Saint Catherine.

1985. There they agreed to have back-to-back sessions the next two years in Washington and in Moscow. But their summit last October was held, instead, in Reykjavik, Iceland.

Without putting pressure on Gorbachev to come here, Reagan said in his West Point speech that "summits can be useful for leaders and for nations - occasions for fresh talk and a bridge to better relations. It would be good for Mr. Gorbachev to see this country for himself."

Reagan added laconically: "when the general secretary is ready to visit the United States, I and the American people will welcome him."

A terse White House announcement, meanwhile, said Shevardnadze would make a brief visit to Washington and meet Friday with Reagan and Shultz. It described the talks as a continuation of discussions Shevardnadze held here in September and again Oct. 22 and 23 with Shultz in Moscow. The agenda accepted by both sides includes arms control, human rights issues, regional problems, including the Iran-Iraq war; and U.S.-Soviet relations, said State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman.

On prospects for a summit, Redman said "our basic posture is that we'll wait and see what the foreign minister has to offer."

U.S. airmen killed in Philippines

Associated Press

ANGELES CITY, Philippines - Suspected communist rebels shot and killed two U.S. airmen and two other people Wednesday in mortar attacks, in what seemed to be a coordinated daylight attacks near the giant U.S. Clark Air Base.

U.S. officials said the dead included two Air Force sergeant, a Filipino retiree from the U.S. Air Force and a Filipino businessman of U.S. ancestry. Assassins also fired on an Air Force captain.

The attacks came within 15 minutes of each other and followed by several hours the slayings of two policemen and the wounding of an army colonel in Manila. Authorities also blamed those on the rebels.

Names of the victims were not immediately available. Base spokesman Maj. Thomas Boyd said both airmen were in uniform.

Maj. Gen. Donald Snyder, commander of the 13th Air Force, said the motive for the killings was unknown. But Col. Manuel Caranza, security officer of the Philippine military's Clark Air Base Command, said he suspected communist rebels were responsible.

He said the style of the attacks and the weapons used - 45-caliber pistols - pointed to rebel assassination teams known as "sparrow units" for the swiftness of their assaults.

Francisco Nepomuceno, mayor of Angeles City, also said he suspected communist assassination squads because of recent U.S. arms shipments and statements of support for President Corazon Aquino's government.

A statement by the Philippine military said the first attack came at about 3:45 p.m. when three assailants shot dead an Air Force sergeant in front of a McDonald's less than two miles from the base.

Moments later, up to 15 gunmen ambushed the car of another Air Force sergeant, killing him instantly. The Filipino businessman, who stopped to investigate, was also slain.

The retired Air Force sergeant was shot dead as he drove his station wagon near a military housing area, the statement said.

The Air Force captain was attacked near another housing area at about the same time, the statement added. When the captain returned fire, the rebels fled.

At the Pentagon, officials who spoke on condition of anonymity said the attacks "were obviously coordinated."

Threats, raids continue in Gulf

Associated Press

KUWAIT - Iraq said Wednesday its warplanes raided three tankers near an Iranian oil platform, challenging the possibility an economic blockade by the Western states.

Iraq also said three of its warplanes approached American warships south of the gulf in defiance of defenses, the sources said, but there might have been one error in the range prescribed "the range prescribed."

Iraq said the pilots "ignored warnings and a threat of attack" transmitted by radio at distances of 20, 22 and 27 miles and replied that they would fly "within the range presribed" by their command.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the Iranian warplanes challenged Navy ships in the Gulf of Oman, south of Hormuz.

It said the pilots "ignited warnings and a threat of attack" transmitted by radio at distances of 26, 22 and 27 miles and replied that they would fly "within the range presribed" by their command.

IRNA said they approached to within 10 miles of the ships and returned to their bases without incident.

S. Korean diplomat released in Lebanon

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Kidnap­pers released a South Korean diplomat for $1 million in ransom after holding him for 21 months, the main­stream Shiite Moslem militia said Wednesday.

Do Chae-Sung was released Tuesday, and "not less than one million dollars have been paid," Nabih Berri, leader of the Shiite Amal militia, told reporters at his residence in Moslem West Beirut.

"Amal did her job to protect him after his release into a safe voyage," Berri said in English. He did not disclose further details.

No information was immedi­ately available about who pur­portedly provided the money and who was paid.

Do, the second secretary at the South Korean embassy in Beirut, was kidnapped in the city's Muslim western sector on Jan. 31, 1985. A group calling itself Revolutionary Cells claimed his abduction, but has made no public demands.

Terrorist organizations in the region have been known to demand large ransom payments for the release of kidnapped foreigners.

Tuesday after the cats began pouncing on them and making strange sounds, Webster said. "The cats were up on the bed and making weird noises, not a mouse, maybe a ghostly noise," Webster said Wednes­day.

Danny Grace of the Charles­town Volunteer Fire Depart­ment said ashes from a fireplace in the living room ig­nited a bucket of pine cones, and the flames spread to papers, blankets and pillows.

The cats - Maddie, which is almost 2 years old, and her 1­year-old kitten, Kitty - came into the bedroom and jumped on the bed, Webster said.

"The older one was up and walking up and down me, pacing almost. They were both very excited and agitated," she said.

"They finally woke me and I became aware of what was going on," she added. "My eyes were stinging from the smoke. I looked down the hall and all I could see was smoke."

CHARLESTOWN, Ind. - A pair of cats named Maddie and Kitty are receiving credit for rescuing a Charlestown woman and her two children from a nighttime fire in their home.

Angie Webster, 24, and children Ashleigh, 5, and Jeffrey, 3, fled through a bedroom window and escaped from the smoke billowing through the brick, ranch-style home early Thursday morning.

 estilo Webste and her husband, Jeff, 27, was at work, so the children were sleeping with her when the fire broke out about 2 a.m.

brokerage gunman a former witness

Associated Press

MIAMI - The man who shot two stockbrokers and himself had tested against organized crime figures in a stock manipulation case before en­tering the federal witness protection program, officials said Wednesday.

Arthur Kane, 53, killed the manager of a Merrill Lynch brokerage office Monday, seriously wounded his brother and then turned the gun on him­self. The longtime dabbler in the stock market had no prior criminal record and told police he did it to avoid being a "liability." Kane's motive for the crime was never clear, but authorities believed he was trying to avoid being convicted of a stock manipulation case before entering the federal witness protection program.

Kane was introduced to the brokerage world by the Magic Marker Corp. of Philadelphia, said Monahan. Later convicted in the scheme was Meyer Lansky, the reputed organizer of the Magic Marker shares, then used for transactions.

They were using (Kane's) name to hide the principals," said Monahan. "His account was used for transactions.""The ring was 16 percent of the Magic Marker shares, then tried to boost its price by bribing market makers and others.

Monahan said he believed Kane was introduced to the scheme through another man more closely related to the ring.

Kane's testimony, although not crucial, helped lead to the convictions of 20 people.

After this weekend's USC game, a new definition of the word "classless" entered the dictionaries of all Domers. It reads: USC's band director.

Eric M. Bergamo
20 seconds into the future

This individual hit a new high in low disregard for Notre Dame. Consider his offenses:

Exhibit one. This so-called "director" forced his charges to play a fight song of the Notre Dame band, played after their quarter-back is sacked.

Don't you think that this band director was playing the song at the end of the game just to get us Domers angry? Exhibit two. USC's halftime show, which was very good, but was spoiled when Mr. USC Band Director decided to run after our gytin leprechaun, Brian Stark, because he was making the halftime show a little more "interesting" for us. Now Mr. USC Band Director, did you think that we, conscious Notre Dame students, would be the least interested by the pseudoleprechaun of yours? No way, Jose. Maybe you could have asked our leprechaun, who is much better than your weak imposter, to be in your show.

Boy, I think you would have gotten a lot more applause from the fans...

But the best offense is yet to come. Exhibit three. As the Notre Dame band was on the field, preparing to play "Notre Dame, Our Mother," Mr. USC Band Director thought it was just the right time to swing into the post-game show. I was quite surprised that a rampaging group of Notre Dame students didn't tear across the field and stuff this idiot of a band director headfirst into a tuba. He surely deserves to be a kind of a fate.

But, despite this glaring insult, the Notre Dame band lowered their instruments and did not play until the low brow USC band stopped. Truly a class act, something Mr. USC Band Director should learn from.

From the reaction of the students, I feel they wouldn't cry over the possibility that the USC band might never again travel to the friendly confines of Notre Dame Stadium.

But more telling was the reaction of some band members. They were genuinely upset and insulted at the actions of Mr. USC Band Director and they would also be glad to see the USC band go and never return.

I don't feel that it has to come to that, but the director of the USC band should get a new attitude and take a few lessons from their classy hosts.

Grace Hall debates: an intellectual forum

Last year marked the inception of the Grace Hall Debates, an event to be conducted annually by its home dormitory. Great success for the competition a year ago was markedly proven, evidenced by both the debaters' skills and the audiences' enthusiasm. Thanks for the competition, Grace Hall is an opportunity for new definition of the word "classless" entered the dictionaries of all Domers. It reads: USC's band director. Dear Editor:

Once again it is time for the annual Grace Hall Debates: an event to be conducted annually by its home dormitory. Great success for the competition a year ago was markedly proven, evidenced by both the debaters' skills and the audiences' enthusiasm. For those who may be unfamiliar to the debates, the teams of debaters are representatives from each section in Grace, which boasts twenty sections in total. Single elimination will ultimately lead to the finals. The final team wins the championship. For each debate, a controversial topic will be assigned by the debating committee, with the teams arguing either the affirmative or the negative. Often these points helped question or even change the viewers' own personal stand on issues. Some of the issues debated last year included the legal possession of hand guns, euthanasia, and the hiring of immigrant workers. Even if one believes he or she steadfastly supports one side or the other, in all likelihood certain aspects of the arguments will help soften his or her own tunnel vision view. The art of debate must be an exercise in creativity, filled with skilled rhetoric and passionate emotions. It is an event all people should witness, especially during college years when one begins to form his or her own opinions regarding controversial issues in our complicated world.

One must certainly give credence to the genuineness of the Grace Hall Debates. Certain sections last year boasted previous high school, nationally ranked debaters. The judges who decide the winners are professors from throughout the university, each representing his or her own academic specialty in the related topics.

Grace Hall is proud for the success it witnessed in its first year hosting the debates, and avidly awaits for the ensuing second annual event. Grace Hall encourages everyone to invite all students to join us in this special occasion. The debates will take place in Grace's "pit" on dates and times announced in The Observer, the first taking place Oct. 29. We guarantee all who attend will witness top flight debating, and more importantly learn many new opinions about important issues in the world we live in today.

Boss searches for light at end of “Tunnel”

MATT SITZER
accent assistant editor

For the last 15 years, the popularity of Bruce Springsteen has been largely due to his image as a voice for the masses. Whether this voice was reflected in the adolescent rebelliousness of 1975’s Born to Run or the early-Reagan years pessimism of Nebraska, Springsteen’s albums have all gone on to reach anthem-like status with the American blue collar.

Bruce Springsteen

With his latest album, Tunnel of Love, Springsteen continues in this same tradition, except this time something seems to be missing. Absent from many of the songs on the album is that crutial element which had made his earlier working class hymns so palpable—hope.

One also, are many of the stirring rock and roll chartbusters which attracted Springsteen so many years ago the “pseudo fans” following the release of 1984’s Born In The U.S.A. and his subsequent world tour. If these people are expecting a comparable follow-up album, they will certainly be sorely disappointed. Listening to Tunnel of Love does not leave one in a particularly festive mood. Yet, this may not be entirely bad.

The album opens rather unpretentiously with the bluesy, introspective “Al Ain’t Out Yet,” which features an unaccompanied Springsteen possibly reflecting upon his rise to superstardom (“When I walk down the street people stop and stare / Well you’d think I might be thrilled but baby I don’t care”). Springsteen clearly does not seem to be revelling in his fame. Many of the following songs echo the tone and tempo of the first. In fact, It is not until the bayou flavored fourth track “Spare Parts” that we get any hint of the backbeat and rhythm which made Springsteen so famous. Even then, the tune epitomizes the hopeless, despairing theme inherent throughout much of the album. The chorus conveys this idea effectively, albeit quite pessimistically (“Spare parts / And broken hearts / Keep the world tumrin’ around”).

Although the most commercially successful song on the album will most likely be the already overplayed “Brilliant Disguise,” the true jewel of the album is most certainly the title track E Street Band member Roy Bittan’s synthesizers and Nils Lofgren’s guitar blend perfectly with Springsteen’s incisive lyrics to create the Coney Island atmosphere around which the song revolves.

Springsteen uses the song to convey the fear and confusion felt by many in today’s younger generation. He seems to be telling us that we must keep searching hard to find the goodness in the world (“But the house is haunted and the ride gets rough / And you’ve got to live with what you can’t have above . . .”).

The bleak “One Step Up” picks up the ball where “Spare Parts” left off, further accentuating the idea that something is definitely wrong in the world— or, at least, in Springsteen’s world (“I’m sittin’ here in this bar tonight / But all I’m thinkin’ is / I’m the same old story, same old ad . . .”).

This is definitely not an album for everybody. For those who have identified with Springsteen over the years and have stuck with him through thick and thin, this album will simply be seen as a new direction for “the Boss.” However, for those expecting a carbon copy of Born in the U.S.A., Tunnel of Love may prove to be a great disappointment.

But at the Naval Academy, just about everyone knows, Notre Dame is always a big game for the Midshipmen, who seem to have more rivalries than they know what to do with. Perhaps the Irish would pay more attention to the rivalry if the recent series was a little closer. Last year's 33-14 victory was the 23rd in a row for Notre Dame over the Midshipmen, who had $175,000 to the winner, in the Championships of Golf, the richest tournament golf has ever seen.

Norman is among the elite 30 golfers who are competing for $2 million, with $360,000 to the winner, in the Championships of Golf.

In addition, the tournament that begins Thursday on the Oak Hills Country Club course serves as the culmination of the Nabisco Grand Prix of Golf, a season-long point list based on players' performances in regular-season events.

But at the Naval Academy, perhaps the Irish would pay more attention to the rivalry if the recent series was a little closer. Last year's 33-14 victory over Navy was the 23rd in a row for Notre Dame over the Midshipmen. The last Navy quarterback to beat the Irish was Roger Staubach in 1963.

Senior sweeper Lowney provides leadership

By MOLLY MAHONEY
Sports Writer

Talent, quickness, experience and leadership.

These qualities are bound to get an opponent's attention. Add to that list an air of confidence and a tenacious style of play and now you have also earned his respect.

For the past four years when the Notre Dame soccer team needed a sufficient dose of these they simply turned to one player: senior co-captain Steve Lowney.

As both a sweeper and a wingback, Lowney has had a significant impact on the team since he earned his starting position his freshman year.

"We would not be the same ball club without Steve Lowney," said Irish head coach Dennis Grace, "his leadership, attitude and work ethic are tremendous."

Lowney has scored two goals this year, including the game-winner against Illinois State. He found the net for the first time since tallying three goals as a freshman.

Yet his limited scoring is hardly an indication of his great importance to the team.

It is defensively, when he is on the other side of the ball, that Lowney becomes dangerous. Whether he is shouting his advice to the offense or frustrating his opponents with his aggressive marking, Lowney's leadership is one of the main reasons for the team's success.

"I have to let the other team know that we've got someone in command," said Lowney, "and I'm very conscious of that. We become a lot more intimidating if we talk a lot."

Consistent defensive ability and the experience gained from playing 77 collegiate games has made Lowney a candidate for all-Great Lakes Region honors as well as making him one of top players in the history of Notre Dame's program.

"He has really learned to read the game," said Grace. "He is very quick and is a good athlete. On the field and off he is busy guiding and directing teammates."

Lowney strives to improve his game, especially his heading and shooting, but focuses his efforts on his job as the team's co-captain for the second year in a row.

"My responsibility this year has been to make sure that the freshman are integrated into the team," said Lowney, "but I also have to take charge on the field and let the referee know if he's not doing his job."

Lowney has been a model of consistency for the Irish and confidence in his abilities has helped Notre Dame attain a great deal of success during his four-year career.

Yet one goal still remains to be achieved as his last season winds down: a bid to the NCAA Championships.

To get that bid the Irish will have to perform well this weekend in California where they will play UCLA and San Diego State in the Metropolitan Life Tournament.

The games have a special significance to Lowney, a native of San Jose, California, because they will serve as a homecoming as well as factors in deciding the team's post-season fate.

SMC soccer splits over break

By MOLLY MCNEILL
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's soccer team came out strong Saturday after a week off, combining consistent offensive pressure with unbreakable defense to shutout Wheaton College, 2-0.

With the score tied 0-0 at the half, the Belles wasted no time in taking the lead. Three minutes into the second half, opportunity arose when the ball went out of bounds off a Wheaton player, giving the Belles a corner kick.

Sophomore Mollie Meehan booted the ball to the center of the goal box where Celeste Aquino got her foot on it and put it in the net, putting the Belles on top.

The Belles controlled the majority of the game, keeping the ball in enemy territory and only allowing five shots on goal.

The icing on the cake came with ten minutes left in the game when Gina Di Tinto stole the ball, dribbled down the field, and put the second point on the board for the Belles.

"I was pleased with our team cohesiveness, especially after a week off," said coach Tom Van Meter, "the forwards worked together passing the ball well and our defenders kept the ball out of our zone."

The week vacation and only two days of preparation took its toll when the Belles faced Michigan State on Tuesday and fell 6-0.

"The week off hurt us in our consistency of play," said Van Meter. "Michigan State is a very well coached team with a lot of talent," said Van Meter.
Fifth-year senior guard

Freeman plays key role on offensive line

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

Consider five to be Tom Freeman's lucky number. At his fifth position for the Irish - offensive left guard - and playing as a fifth-year senior, Freeman, wearing uniform number 5, has earned his starting position and his team enjoy the most success since he arrived on campus.

"Tom has been steadily improving year in and year out since I've been here," says second-year offensive line coach Tony Yelovich. "He's giving tremendous effort, he's a very dedicated young man who strives to improve and he has good work habits."

It took Freeman all those work habits to survive his freshman year, where he was shuffled through various positions on the defensive line before finding a home on the offensive line.

Freeman played both offensive tackle and defensive end at Lutheran High School in Kansas City, but he earned his reputation at defensive end. He switched to defensive end to outside linebacker early in his freshman year. After suffering a groin injury, Freeman moved to middle linebacker in the spring of his freshman year. Then, after running through various positions finally ended with his arrival on the offensive line.

"Gerry (former head coach Faust) decided I'd contribute more on the outside as an offensive lineman," says Freeman. "I always thought I would be too small for the offensive line. When I graduated from high school, I was 220 pounds."

The 6'4" guard from Shawnee Mission, Kan., has bulked up to 270 pounds since that time, and earned a starting position last year, in the first season of current Head Coach Lou Holtz. He joined classmates Chuck Lanza, Tom Behrder and Byron Spruell on what figured to be an inexperienced line. The line instead contributed the season ranked 14th in the nation in total offense.

"We had more experience than anyone thought," says Freeman. "During Gerry's last year the second team. We knew just had to be aggressive and play the way we were capable." After the season ended, Freeman decided to use his fifth year of eligibility upon graduation. Once again, he was joined by Lanza, Behrder and Spruell to form an offensive line that includes four fifth-year seniors.

The four have played together since they were on the second team as juniors during the 1985 season.

"We all know that we had a chance to come back and that we hadn't reached our potential," says Freeman. "We all realized Lou Holtz was a great coach, great things could happen and we wanted to make a contribution. We all love the game and playing for Notre Dame, and we wanted to make it last as long as possible."

Freeman's experience on the line has helped both the starters and reserves on the line, according to Yelovich.

"His experience has helped, and his work habits have helped because it shows the other young men how to develop and, how we work hard in practice to develop to your maximum ability," says Yelovich.

For now, Freeman, having graduated as a history major with a 3.013 grade point average, is making sure he can make his final year in a Notre Dame uniform a special one for both himself and for the team.

"We’re not a great team yet, but we have the potential to be a great team," Freeman said. "We have to keep improving and eliminate our mistakes. The only thing that can stop us is ourselves. We can beat anyone in the country if we do all the little things right."

Heans prepares for Roldan Hagler interested onlooker

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nevada - Thomas Hearns will try to become the first boxer to win titles in four weight classes when he fights Juan Domingo Roldan Thursday night.

At 171 pounds, Hearns is the IBF super welterweight champion, which became vacant when Sugar Ray Leonard retired after upsetting Marvin Hagler last April.

On hand for Hearns' bid to make history will be Sugar Ray Leonard, who stopped Hearns in the 14th round of a battle for the undisputed welterweight championship in 1981, and Marvin Hagler, who knocked out Hearns in the third round of an undisputed middleweight title defense in 1985.

Leonard will attend as a spectator, while Hagler will be a color commentator on the closed-circuit and pay-per-view telecast of the scheduled 12-round bout at a 10,100-seat outdoor stadium at the Las Vegas Hilton.

"I'm evaluating the situation," said Hagler, who is a possible opponent for the winner. "I want to sit back, watch these guys and see who happens."

"This fight will put me above everyone else out there," the 28-year-old Hearns said. "This fight definitely will make up for those two losses."

Hearns, an 8-5 favorite, is one of 10 men to win at least 12 points of three titles. Six of those 10 won their third titles in the 1980s when the number of weight classes doubled from the traditional eight and most championships have been split.

Only of two those six champions held an undisputed title - Roberto Duran, lightweight, and Leonard, welterweight.

Six to challenge for Interhall football title

By TIM SULLIVAN

The games are over - the WARS have begun. Now, the regular season is nice, but everyone knows that the postseason is the real test of championship teams - it's playoff time in men's interhall football.

The year began with sixteen teams, all with nice fresh uniforms, and high hopes for a trophy. But now, two months later, just six teams - Alumni, Dillon, Fisher, Flanner, Panghorn, and Stanford - still have a chance to play on the grass of Notre Dame Stadium.

Herewith, a capsule review of each of these teams:

Stanford (4-0)
Defending champion Stanford is again the favorite to win the crown. Using quarterback and player-coach Al Martin, wide receiver John Sheehan (7 TDs), and talented running back Dan Diebel, Stanford lit up the scoreboard for 102 points in just four games. Martin credits the team's offensive line for the scoring prowess. "They're the best part of our team," said Martin. "They're big, they all played last year, and they're great pass blockers." Martin's defensive team hasn't been too shabby either. Only six points by the Dogs of Alumni stopped Stanford from going unscored upon.

By virtue of its undefeated season, Stanford will enjoy a bye in the first round of the playoffs, and then play the winner of the other Alumni game.

Even though every other coach names Stanford as the favorite, Martin isn't so sure. "We're confident, but it's so hard to tell," said Martin. We just haven't seen the other teams play.

Dillon (4-1)
The Big Red are a big question mark. Their defense, and Wells made the opener, jumped out to a 9-2 lead as the Irish narrowed the score to 13-15. Seven digs, but was not happy with the results of her efforts. "We're confident, but it's so hard to tell," said Martin. We just haven't seen the other teams play.

Boilermakers went through a brief period of poor serves and missed connections. The rattle the Irish, and inconsistency seemed like we gave up when the Purdue service game got the best of the Irish in kills with 15, 15, 16, 15-2, 15-4.

Irish narrow the score to 13-15. Seven digs, but was not happy with the results of her efforts. "We're confident, but it's so hard to tell," said Martin. We just haven't seen the other teams play.

Irish head coach Lou Holtz often speaks of the importance of something called chemistry on a football team.

The Irish volleyball team is no different. When senior quarterback Terry Andrysiak's passing ability was put to the test a new chemistry under sophomore Tony Rice.

"That's the way Notre Dame's "No-Name Defense" has maintained its edge in the face of adversity;" Holtz said. "But we really haven't had that luxury on the line and in the secondary.

This week, it's sophomore Bryan Flannery sitting out practices. Flannery stepped in at right tackle when senior Ted Fitzgerald start along with (sophomore Marty Strassen)

In the secondary, Brandy Wells is doing it again. The senior, who has spent the last three years switching from cornerback to free safety and back to corner, has been called on to try his hand at yet another position - free safety. Freshman Todd Lyght started the Air Force game after junior Corny Southall tore knee ligaments against Pittsburgh. But the Irish coaching staff decided it needed Wells' experience at the signal-calling slot on the defense, and Wells made the tackle at one game each with the Irish 16-14 victory.

The Boilermaker power showed itself in the third game as the Irish were blown away, 15-2, despite several errors by Purdue. "They gave us every chance in the third game," Hagameyer said. "We had opportunities that we didn't take advantage of." The Irish played stronger in the fourth game, but Purdue had the momentum. The Boilers jumped out to a 5-0 lead before Bennett took over for the Irish and ran off four straight kills to move Notre Dame within one point, 3-4.

But again, the Boilermaker service game got the best of the Irish return game, as Danny Onin served 10 consecutive points to give Purdue the game and the match, 15-4.

Zanne Bennett lead the Irish in kills with 10 and added seven digs, but was not happy with the results of her efforts. "First of all, we lost confidence too easily," Bennett said. "We also didn't communicate well - one was talking. It seemed like we were frozen. The bench got down, and it seemed like we gave up when the subs came in. Nothing gave us any spark."
