Professor reviews superpower summit, new treaty

By JOHN FAILOR

The upcoming summit between the United States and the Soviet Union and the signing of a new arms treaty on Monday can be expected “to have a positive on relations between the superpowers,” according to Professor George Brinkley, director of the program of Soviet and Eastern European Studies.

Brinkley stated, “The signing of a treaty alone is a major step.” Brinkley said the summit will allow Reagan and Gorbachev to discuss other issues such as the reduction of long range strategic weapons and the resolution of regional conflicts.

The signing of the treaty will increase understanding between the superpowers, but not necessarily good will, since Gorbachev is very much a Communist and is striving to become a more effective Communist.

Although the Soviets have a large conventional superiority in Europe, Brinkley said the elimination of intermediate range missiles will improve security.

“The intermediate range missiles are useless weapons and Gorbachev has indicated his willingness to reduce the ts’s conventional forces in Europe.” Brinkley also acknowledges that the United States has submarines in Europe, and England and France have missiles in Europe to counter the Soviet troops.

Brinkley said he thinks Senate approval will be easy despite likely protest from conservative Senators who feel Russia cannot be trusted to follow the terms of the treaty. Brinkley also said he thinks the public will support the treaty. According to Brinkley, it will be easier to make sure that both superpowers comply with the terms of the treaty since a whole class of weapons will be eliminated.

Brinkley said Gorbachev’s visit to the U.S. will be successful and will maintain the support of the American people because “he is a very effective leader and always well prepared.” Brinkley mentioned, however, that his visit will protest Gorbachev’s visit in support of increased Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union.

Cotton Bowl to raise $2.2 M for ND athletics

Notre Dame can expect to receive approximately $2.2 million for participating in the Cotton Bowl. All of this revenue, minus expenses, will directly into the University’s athletic endowment, according to University Vice President Father William Beauchamp.

Based upon past bowl experiences, “Our expenses will be in excess of $1 million, but I don’t have an exact figure,” he said.

Expenses would include travel, transportation, and hotel accommodations for the players, guests of the University, and the Notre Dame Marching Band, as well as funds directly related to the Cotton Bowl.

The remaining $1 million will go into the athletic endowment, Beauchamp said. University policy is any

What do you want for Christmas, Katie? "A dolphin, a baby sister and an ice skating rink in the back yard!" was my standard reply from the time I was five to about twelve years old. I still don't know why Santa didn't deliver. I was always a good girl (at least not naughty near Christmas) and besides, I didn't ask for Flipper. I said a dolphin. And he could live in the skating rink once it melted in the warm weather. Ridiculous you think? Well, if only we were kids today! My requests don't even compare to what's on the market this year.

One of the hottest selling toys this Christmas season is a hi-tech gun that looks like a spaceships and apt to cartoon characters. Big deal, you say? Right, but these characters shoot back. This is really amazing. Kids can watch the Captain Power television cartoon and fire viable beams of light from their "vehicles" and scree "hits" and are "hit" back by the cartoon characters. How do this, I don't know. I wonder if little kids would find this a bit perplexing? How do the little men get in the television anyway?

Mr. Gameshow is another amazing toy. For the low price of $99.99, you can learn how to play game shows from an animated wisecracking "host," closely resembling Bob Barker. This little plastic guy remembers your name, tells jokes and even manages your money. All you have to do is push a cassette tape in his storage compartment.

And speaking of wisecrackers, Christmas wouldn't be complete without Garfield's newest talking Alf. For a mere $69.99, you can listen Alf say such intelligent phrases as "I'm hungry." Where's the neighborhood just where every mother needs to hear all day long.

So you thought my request for a baby sister was out of line? Nowadays, I could just go to the store and buy one. "Julie" advertised as "The World's Most Intelligent Talking Doll," selling at $99.99, can talk and even read. But who wants this competition? "She's the friendliest and brightest little girl on Jasmine Street. She's everything you could want in a best friend-she's funny, loyal and always ready to turn the neighborhood upside down.

Why even play with the neighbors or make any friends of your own when you can buy one of these?" How's the elderly "Mrs. Beas­ley." "At least we were not in a popularity contest and she never talked back when I told her my requests. Julie's friend, "Jill," selling at $139.99, claims, "I'm a lot like you, my arms move as I speak, my mouth moves and I look around and even blink." "Thanks Jill, but there's a little more to us than blinking and moving our heads.

Where did Light Bright, G.I. Joe and Shrinky Dinks disappear to? And have you seen Barbie lately? Maybe you didn't recognize her. She's got her own band and they've even cut a record, no joke! Barbie and the Rockers is a scary group dressed in silver and neon jumpsuits for its Rockin' House Party. It has a Hot Rockin' Stage Set complete with keyboards and T.V. monitors, a Rockin' Pool Party and even a Fun Hut in Tahiti with a talking Parrot. Oh, and she drives a red Fer­ rari and wears Ocean de La Renta dresses.

And those plastic green army men? They've been overthrown by HeMan-Master of the Uni­ verse, Voltron Defender of the Universe and the rest of their barbaric buddies. It's too bad the world has gone haywire just when I've grown up. Now that I'm mature, though, my Christmas list is a little more realistic. I no longer want the dolphin. I'm too tired anyway? How do the little men get in the television anyway? How do the little men get in the television anyway?

ND drug to fight heart attacks

By NATASHA WILSON
Staff Reporter

Researchers from Notre Dame's Lobund Laboratory have developed a new chemical for dissolving blood clots that has been heralded as the new wonder drug for heart attacks.

Tissue plasminogen activator (TPA), an enzyme naturally present in the body, has been tested on the blood clots of seven species of animals as well as those of humans.

"TPA is very important as a rescue agent for people who have developed blood clots in vital organs, such as the heart, lungs, brain and also in the vascular system of the legs," said Morris Pollard, Lobund director.

Pollard said he has spent the last five years developing cells in laboratory rats which are capable of producing a high level of TPA.

The Food and Drug Administration approved two weeks ago a different recombinant type TPA, produced through genetic engineering techniques.

Using recombinant DNA techniques, biologists have cloned the TPA gene to produce the drug. This recombinant TPA, made by Genentech Inc., has been deemed by much of the medical community, as the best available treatment for heart attacks due to blood clots.

Such clots, scientists believe, cause 85 percent of heart attacks.

Pollard said he and his research staff have renewed their interest in TPA studied at Notre Dame "because of the possibility that it might provide an alternative to the recombinant type TPA. This (the Lobund TPA) is a natural form of TPA which has along with it other agents that might contribute to the clot-dissolving effect."

He said that to his knowledge the Lobund Lab is the sole developer of the natural TPA.

"We are continuing our studies on it (TPA) to determine if it has any toxic side effects, Pollard said. "Thus far they have found no evidence of adverse side effects in lab animals," Pollard said.

The Food and Drug Administration approved for the production of the TPA.

"If the animal experiments are successful, then we're going to have to get permission (from the FDA) to use it on humans."

"We, in the meantime, have a patent that has been approved by the U.S. patent office for the production of the TPA," Pollard received the patent last year and he promptly assigned it to American Biogenetic Sciences Inc., which has a collaborative biotechnology venture with Notre Dame.

Irish ambassador speaks at ND

By PATTI WEED

Peter Gunning, the Consul General of Ireland, spoke Thursday on the economy, foreign policy and internal conflicts in Ireland since the General election of Ireland, the majority of which is Roman Catholic. The emergence of the Irish Republican Army increased the unrest in the North.

Ireland is beginning to increase its participation in foreign affairs. During World War II, Ireland remained neutral and did not join NATO. In 1955 they joined the United Nations. Presently they have soldiers in Lebanon to help resolve the conflict.

The government has also been offering incentives for foreign investments in the Ireland economy. Gunning said.

Gunning also gave a brief outline of recent conflicts in Irish history. He said that in the 1960’s civil rights riots and protests shook Northern Ireland. That area today is comprised of mainly Anglo-Saxon Protestants who want to be recognized as a nation independent from the Republic of Ireland.

Inflation and the birth rate in rural Ireland is characterized by lighter taxes because its inbalance in rural area is benefited directly to the national wealth. Their standard of living has improved to a great extent, farm sizes are growing, and the government purchases surplus goods. The rural sector has also received funds from European nations to produce more milk, butter and beef.

In the urban sector, however, is paying much higher taxes, according to Gunning. However, the high taxes are necessary for free education, health care and modern road systems. Even though the urban sector pays higher taxes, the rural sector states that they are not providing enough raw materials to the wealth of the nation.

The present economic situation involves an imbalance in the 1960’s. Gunning said.

Assistant Saint Mary’s Editor

The Saint Mary’s Business Administration and Economics department honored four of its faculty members with an informal potluck luncheon in Madeleva Hall Thursday. Lynne Wright was recognized as the first Saint Mary’s graduate to become a professor in the business department. Wright, a South Bend native and 1982 graduate, will teach three accounting classes next semester.

“I believe teaching at Saint Mary’s will be a great experience and will allow me to give students a good insight on the transition from college to the business world,” Wright said.

“I can provide students with insight by having gone through it recently.”

Wright, a certified public accountant, said she believes Saint Mary’s education provided her with an “advantage in the business world” because the issues businesses women encounter were already addressed in the Saint Mary’s classrooms.

“Hopefully I can provide my students with that same experience,” Wright added.

The department also recognized retiring accounting teacher and CPA, Robert Sanford, who will end his seven year teaching career at the end of the semester. Sanford, a Notre Dame graduate and former cheerleader, was in private practice prior to teaching.

“I was attracted to teaching at Saint Mary’s because my wife is a Saint Mary’s graduate,” Sanford said. “I found the Saint Mary’s students to be an interesting and alert group and I enjoyed working with them very much.”

Joe Miller and his son Jim Miller, Saint Mary’s adjunct professors, were also honored but could not be present at the luncheon. Joe Miller, a leading South Bend tax expert, lawyer, and CPA in South Bend will retire at the end of the semester according to William Shannan, acting chairman of the business and economics.

Joe Kernan, South Bend mayor elect, made a brief stop at the luncheon after speaking to a business communications class on the communication of electioneering.

Holder said several steps can be taken to overcome the attrition rate among black students.

The administration needs to be more open and understanding, said Holder. She also cited a need for events which are open to everyone. Although they say they are open to everyone, they don't always have events which are appealing to blacks and other minorities, she said.

Tutors are available to all black students from the time they arrive as freshmen, said Holder. She sees this as helpful in overcoming the academic problems which some black students have.

Kevin Rooney, director of admissions, said that the admissions department is laying out a plan for increasing the number of minorities at Notre Dame. “We are trying to make the environment friendlier for students,” said Rooney. He also said they are trying to provide (minorities) with a social environment and educate students from non-minority backgrounds to make them more receptive to other cultures.

“We are trying to better the situation by having more numbers here which will expose students to different types of people and encourage their growth,” said Durgans.

Durgans also cited the increase of women at Notre Dame as one of the reasons for the increase in minorities.

“You are more likely to see black females than males in college enrollment,” he said.

The efforts of both current (“Minority alumni have been very instrumental in increasing) the minorities at Notre Dame,” said Durgans.

He cited several reasons for giving students the extra day of break: some students have to travel and cannot make their trips in a half-day; students may “take off anyway” and members of the council are unanimously in favor of the Oc-

Winicur said Saint Mary’s would not be affected by any decision of the Academic Council unless it chose to follow the Council, which is a governing body for Notre Dame only,” he said.

The 1987-88 calendar had already been determined before the issue of changing October break came up, Winicur said.

profit made on the bowls goes into the athletic endowment, he said.

Policy concerning bowl revue is made by University officers. Beauchamp said he did not anticipate a change in the policy. The policy also applies to revenue generated by any NCAA post-season tournaments.

The athletic endowment currently stands at approximately $6 million. The $1 million from the Cotton Bowl would be invested by the University with the rest of the athletic endowment and its earnings used for the athletic program if ticket sales and TV/Radio earnings didn’t cover the overall cost of the University athletic program.

“You never include bowl money in a budget,” said Beauchamp. “That’s why the money from the bowls gets put into an endowment for the future.”

“(The endowment) is not large enough and we have to build it up,” said Beauchamp. “Our total athletic program is self-sufficient and by that I mean our whole athletic program,” including all varsity and non-varsity sports.

The University will most likely receive the money in January. “I imagine there’s a settlement check, but I don’t know how they pay it,” said Beauchamp.

At that time, the money would be placed in the athletic endowment, in accordance with current policy.

Dear Editor:

We happened to think that the Dec. 1 column written by fellow Notre Dame students could be solely comprised of questions and slanderous name-calling instead of arguments based on facts. The co-leaders of the College Democrats, who apparently did not do their homework before writing their article.

While they maintain that, “We blew it first by electing Ronald Reagan in 1980...” let’s take a look at the state of the country prior to Mr. Reagan, under the Democratic leadership of Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale. We were experiencing double-digit inflation and unemployment with interest rates hovering near 20 percent. Our country had been completely embarrassed for 444 days while our embassy delegates were held hostage in Iran. It is this weakness that demonstrated that the Democrats could not deliver the house and Senate to Republicans. Since Reagan has been in office, inflation and unemployment have decreased to just over 5 percent, while the Dow Jones industrial average is near 2200, a 100 points higher than it was under Carter. Certainly, mistakes have been made during Reagan’s administration, but the overall state of the country is much better than it was under Democratic leadership. But on the other hand, if you truly dislike a candidate, you would not vote for him anyway. We were not very happy to think that we were voting for the inexperienced and capable Mr. Bush for President in 1988. This will insure a prosperous and safe future for America.

Quote of the Day

"Rose-colored glasses are never made in bifocals, because nobody wants to read the small print in dreams." — Ann Landers aged, they know how right they were: how many of them trust each other. You can't trust the President, the political candidates, or government officials, elected or appointed. You can't trust the clergy, especially the ones seen on television: but for all you know, the most tainted clerics are the ones you don't see, because the may have been trained in an art-form that keeps them invisible. You can't trust the boss you see in the office, or your life, because efficiency in business is the aim of the game, and no time is wasted in weeping over dead wood, because they're right on us television last night. You can't trust the media, the journalists in the trade, the politicians, the unions, or the professional associations of lawyers, doctors, and judges. In a word, you can't trust anything in the world of corporate connections, who has an axe to grind. Does this mean honest clipping can be made in a living breed? Not necessarily; but you can't start trusting strangers until you've seen the colors of their eyes. Distrust has thrown a monkey wrench into the social solution, because if now, more than ever, you've been led back to the vague and agitating candy from strangers.

Who do you trust? That's not just another way of asking: "Where the hell is the bad wolf out there in the real world?" It's an idea no matter if you're a girl or boyfriend, your husband or wife, your brother and sister, your father and mother, or your mate? You've been commanded to love one another. Is that to mean that they'll all be mad at the sound of music like blues in the night. A number of them want you to know something: that anything goes as long as it's anti-establishment, as though the Cross were not the mast they should bind themselves to, nor against the will. Married people who think it's fun to swing live as though they were rejecting the prices of the married state, which could seal their ears against the temptation to wander off the reservation. Thousands of young Catholics are so alienated from the Church you would think the Sirens' song they are hearing were broadcast in stereo. All of us stand, with our nerve ends naked, in the pathway of enticements that can destroy us, body and soul, by pandering to our egos in need of power, or pleasure-trips or other forms of masturbatory satisfaction. So marriages break up; families fragment; relationships disintegrate; trust is betrayed: all because the operative words in the Sirens' song are Me! Me! Me!

Still, you should not become gloomy: the good people are always with us. A man has trouble with his wife went to see a marriage counselor. "She's driving me crazy with her nagging, " he complained. "But she's a generous soul on whom I've become dependent." "You need the eggs," the marriage counselor answered. Seeing that he didn't understand, the marriage counselor told him a story. "A fellow went to see the shrink. "My brother, " he said, "thinks he's a chicken."

"The no big problem," the shrink replied. "We can cure him easily.

"You don't understand," the brother replied. "You see, we need the eggs."

The husband with the naging wife shrugged off the story impatiently. "I don't know what that畜 happens to be. I'm married to a shrew who keeps me bound to the table at every meal. "Sure," said the marriage counselor. "You need the eggs."

Mriages which survive because one spouse needs the eggs that the other provides are on shaky grounds. Has marriage as a permanent union become obsolete? According to a popular song, after the loaves / I have gone back to their spouses, "Diomonds are our girl's best friend." As DeDubers says, "Diomonds are forever," and that's probably important if you're making an investment that means more than the marriage contract. The airline's magazine at Thanksgiving printed that creed of cynicism called: Murphy's Law of Perversity. It reads like this: "Nothing is as easy as it looks. Everything takes longer than you expect. If there is a phenomenon that seems to work, you are going to prove the rule wrong, the one that goes wrong first will be the one that will do the most damage. Leave to themselves, all things go from bad to worse. If you work on a thing long enough to improve it, it will break. If you think everything will be OK, you have surely overlooked something. Mother Nature always slides with the hidden flaw."

Perhaps the Campus Ministry in its marriage preparation should push such sections of the paper aside, and require couples to memorize Murphy's Law. After the couple repeat it to each other three times a day for a month, or once a day for three months, they should be interrogated as follows: "You are talking to each other as husband and wife, for better or worse, in good times and in bad, in sickness and in health, until death do you part. Are you going to make a certain marriage, how faithfully do you think you'll be to your marriage vows?" Following this, a checklist of the subjects to be discussed in terms of Murphy's Law can be included: social expectations, sensuality adjustments, sexual compatibility and conjugal rights, family planning, etc.

When Duty whispers low, "This is your work." "I can," wrote Emerson. The "I can" of people considering marriage as a bridge over troubled waters, may be romantic idealism. "I can," with the help of God, is more inspiring to the ears of a priest. Yet in the end, there are so "right" answers. There are only people trying to be right for the other. The proposed interrogatory could frighten people away from marriage for all eternity. Any couple has a right to expect they will get a few of the breaks, despite the perversity of Murphy's Law.

Who do you trust? Who can you trust to be there in good times and bad, in suffer-age, love, and, if necessary, forgivingness? Who can trust you to be there in good times and in bad, with encouragement, love, and forgiveness? The pain you must most often today is in the victim who feels betrayed, by a sexual partner who loved, and then left the scene, unwilling to be held accountable, and amid and or about creature he/she had burned; or by a fairweather friend who took off when the rainy season arrived. You can complete the itinerary by listing the ways you know about yourself.

We worry about the super-bombs going off. But the bomb that hurts most is when, in a hour of need, we look for someone who love, who, to our surprise, isn't there, then or later. In religious terms, we describe this kind of abandonment as Gethsemane, the dark night of the soul when it is always twilight. In the morning, day after day.

Villanova men’s swimming completed a perfect season on Friday as the Wildcats won the Big East Conference title with a 195-194 victory over Notre Dame at the Villanova Natatorium.

Despite the loss of 10 seniors from the 1986-87 season, the Wildcats have maintained their competitive edge. Coach Greg Bollinger said the team’s success can be attributed to the excellent coaching staff and hard work of the players.

Bollinger praised the work of the freshmen, particularly Andrew Hagen, who contributed significantly to the team’s success. Hagen won the 100-yard backstroke, 200-yard individual medley, and 200-yard freestyle.

Cotton Bowl sales lower than expected

By PETE GEGEN
Sports Writer

The instructions for the Cotton Bowl ticket sale said that no lines were to form before 6:30 a.m.

But students, fearing the student allotment of tickets would run out early Thursday morning, arrived at Gate 10 of the Joyce ACC as early as 5 a.m. “We didn’t want to take the chance of not getting tickets,” said junior Dan Izzo.

The funny thing is, there really was no need to rush.

Out of Notre Dame’s allotment of 13,000 tickets, about 1,000 were sold to students on the first day, according to Ticket Manager Mike Bobinski. Any student who wanted a ticket had no problem buying one.

The sale of tickets for the student section continues today until 5 p.m., and Bobinski said he hopes the number sold to students will double.

Notre Dame’s allotment includes all tickets which will be sold to alumni. If tickets are still available after alumni requests are satisfied, a general sale to students, faculty and the South Bend community will be held Monday.

Early Thursday morning Bobinski was concerned about an early sluggish response from the alumni. He said there was a chance that the allotment will not be completely sold by the Cotton Bowl committee’s deadline of next Friday.

“We may not see (the response) until Friday or Monday,” said Bobinski. “But it’s not quite what we expected.”

He later indicated that Thursday’s mail doubled the number of ticket requests from alumni.

Meanwhile Bobinski said he was happy with the strong student response, despite the cold and rain.

Izzo and Mike O’Leary, two juniors from Keenan, arrived at Gate 10 at exactly 4:47 a.m. to claim the first spot in line. They bought six tickets, two for themselves and four for friends.

“They said they all had tests today,” said Izzo. “They were girls, so we believed them.”

Even though the next student did not arrive until 6 a.m., there was a mad dash for the door.

“It was so cold that we waited in the car until the next person came,” Izzo said. “As soon as we saw a person coming, we ran to get ahead of her.”

They outpaced Amy Wertheimer, a sophomore from Lyons and the second person in line. A free place to stay in Dallas was her motivation for rising out of bed early to buy the tickets for herself and three friends-two of whom are sisters who live in Dallas. She also wanted to experience the thrill of standing in line for tickets to the New Year’s Day classic.

“It’s just like waiting in line for Bob Dylan tickets,” says Wertheimer, who apparently was trying to flatter the football team.

Several Dallas natives also arrived early, including Dan Janick, a junior from Morrissey. He indicated that the club might sponsor events for students making the trip to Dallas. The details should be announced before students leave the campus after exams.

Spielman takes ’87 Lombardi

HOUSTON - Ohio State All-America linebacker Chris Spielman, a finalist for the Lombardi Award in 1986, won the 40-pound granite trophy Thursday night as the nation’s outstanding collegiate lineman of 1987.

Spielman, named Tuesday to the Associated Press first team, was the third Ohio State player to win the award, named for the former Green Bay Packers and Washington Redskins coach who died of cancer in 1970.

Ohio State’s Jim Stillwagon won the first Lombardi in 1970 and Ohio State tackle John Hicks won it in 1972.

Spielman’s personal achievements were somewhat overshadowed this season by the troubles surrounding the Buckeyes football program, including a 6-4-1 record and the firing of Coach Earle Bruce.

“When I look up and see myself around guys that are going to bowl games, it hurts me deep inside,” the 6-foot-2, 234-pound Spielman said. “I’m jealous of them.”

Guay boosts Irish hockey

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

Just a year ago this weekend, the Notre Dame hockey team hosted Michigan-Dearborn, and a freshman wing named Bruce Guay scored a goal for the Irish.

The Irish host Michigan-Dearborn again this weekend, and a freshman wing named Guay has a good chance of scoring another goal. But that's where the similarities between this season and last season end for the Irish hockey team and Guay.

Notre Dame struggled to a 10-19-1 record last year with Guay scoring just seven goals. The Irish already are close to matching last year's win total with an 8-1-2 start, and Guay has doubled his scoring production with a team-leading 15 goals. But Guay is not about to credit himself for the improvement.

"I'm playing with two of the finest hockey players I've ever had the fortune of playing with in Mike McNeill and Tom Mooney," says the North Smithfield, R.I., native. "It's not necessarily me, it's the whole line as a unit. We play the same aggressive style and we click really well."

And he is not about to take any credit for the team's improvement. "I've scored more than one-fourth of Notre Dame's goals," says Guay. "I'm a talented player, and we only lost two players from last year," says Guay. "We're coming together as a team, we're playing a lot better and the coaching system is a lot better."

Coach Rick Schafer acknowledges that the presence of McNeill, Notre Dame's top scorer the past two years, has helped Guay's statistics improve. But he thinks an added dose of confidence also has played a major role.

"Last year he only had seven goals, and he's already doubled that and he's playing with good linemates in McNeill and Mooney," says the first-year head coach. "He sees he can score, and we always knew he could score."

Guay realizes his confidence has increased, but he connects that to what he thinks is a changed attitude on the team this season.

"With the new coaching system, our line and our team in general has a lot more intensity and desire in the practices and games," Guay says. "We've got a lot more serious about the game."

"We wanted to improve our record from last year, which was kind of dismal. Our goal was to turn that around and win a lot of one-goal games and overtime games. Then we could turn ourselves around and be winners." says Guay. Guay has played a big role in turning around the close games, starting with shutting out Windsor. Behind 3-1 after two periods, Guay scored two goals in the final period as the Irish won, 5-4, in overtime. The next weekend at Kent State, Guay scored the final goal of the game both nights, one with just 21 seconds left in regulation, as the Irish came away with two ties.

Guay has shown no signs of slowing down. In three games last week at Mercyhurst and Canisius, Guay scored six goals, but one hat trick, to become the ACHA player of the week.

"He's been in the right spots at the right times," says Schafer. "He's taking more shots, and we like him to take a lot of shots. He doesn't have the hardest or most powerful shot on the team, but he is accurate. Sometimes it doesn't have to be a hard shot."

But Guay's improvement has not come entirely on the offensive end.

"He's certainly not a one-way hockey player," Schafer says. "I've talked time and time again about forwards helping out with defense, and he's been very unselfish."

Perhaps the only negative statistic attached to Guay's name this season can be found under the penalty minutes column. His 38 minutes in the box are almost twice as much as any other Irish player.

"A lot of people think 'That's great, you're leading the team in penalty minutes,' but that doesn't help the team at all," Guay says. "There's nothing you can do in the box, and you get the team in a shorthanded situation. I have to be more patient with myself. At times I get too aggressive and get stuck with a penalty.""

Louisville freshman

Smith sparks Crum's Cards

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. - The word "immediation" does not appear to be in LaBradford Smith's vocabulary. He is, a freshman guard for the University of Louisville, has been talked about Coach Denny Crum to start in Saturday's season-opener against Notre Dame in the Big Four Classic at Indianapolis. Crum has never started a pure freshman in the Cardinal backcourt in his 17 seasons at the helm.

Against Notre Dame, Smith will be matching dribbles with David Rivers, a senior who is considered one of the best guards in the country. And it doesn't get any easier in the next three games as he will face Rex Chapman of Kentucky, Ken "Mouse" McFadden of Cleveland State and Keith Smith of Indiana.

So I'll ask about LaBradford, are you nervous?

"I'm hoping they look at me like I'm a freshman who has to prove to them that I can play," Smith said. "I'm looking forward to clearing the air of all of them. I'll show them how far along I am and how much I have to work on."

He smiles.

"Like I'm a very good player, but they have to prove it to me they're all-Americans, just like I have to prove to them that I can play.

Crum acknowledges that Smith is the best guard he has, but notes that freshmen are prone to mistakes.

"He'll have his ups and his downs," Crum said. "But he's got the mental toughness to fight through the downs, and the physical ability to give us the kind of guard play we didn't have last year.

Smith's life has been lined with examples of instant excellence in many sports, but his first love has always been basketball. His father, Earnest Smith, played in the 1987 Gatorade National Player of the Year. "For as long as I can remember, my brother has been in love with basketball, working and trying to do the moves I do."

LaBradford Smith

"He has great athletic skills, is very quick with the ball, is fundamentally sound and he's a great leaper," Crum said of the 1987 Gatorade National Player of the Year. "That's the kind of guard they needed," Phelps noted. "He'll give them the strength in the backcourt they lacked last year.

Louisville's strength on the front line is even more impressive than the new backcourt dynamo.

"Never Nervous" Pervis Ellison, at 6-9, returns to anchor the team at center and big forward. Ellison averaged 15.2 points and 8.7 rebounds per game last year, blocked at least three shots in 17 contests and was a summer standout on Crum's Pan-American squad. "Pervis Ellison is one of the premier players in the country," Phelps said. "To me he's one of the five best players in the country because he's so active defensively, he's so active blocking shots and he's so active on the boards."

Tony Kimbro (11.1 points) and Herbert Crook (13.5 points, 8.0 rebounds), both 6-7, also return to the starting lineup and, according to Phelps, will be tough to keep off the boards.

"We've got to improve our shot selection and get on the boards if we're going to win Saturday," Phelps said. "I don't think we have the front line to match up with Louisville.

"They're a powerhouse. You look at Louisville, they're only bigger every four years, and they're in the Final Four. This is one of those years, and that's the kind of team we're up against."

in 1986-87, when it posted a 18-4 record. The Cardinals won the National Championship just one year earlier, in 1986.

Crum's troubles last season have been tabbed by Coach Keith Smart of Indiana. "I'm always told LaBradford he could pick up those shoes any time." Crum said.

Smith didn't. And now he's controlling the Louisville defense. Smith's older sister, Annette Smith. "Bay City was definitely a football area, but I decided early that I wanted to make it in basketball," Smith said. He quit football after the eighth grade.

"I kept a pair of shoes his size in my office in case he changed his mind," said Ron Mills, Bay City's football coach. "I still believe he's the best football prospect we've had here, and we've put three years of NFL." "I always told LaBradford he could pick up those shoes any time," Smith said.

ND faces first-place Dearborn

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame hockey team can be excused for thinking it is looking in the mirror when it faces its opponent on the JACC ice this weekend.

In the Michigan-Dearborn Wolves, the Irish face a team that has a new coach (24-year-old Tom Anastos) like themselves, is coming off a mediocre season (21-18-2) like themselves and, most importantly, is having a great start (10-1-3) like themselves.

"They're going to be the best team we've played so far. They're on a par with Windsor," said first-year Irish coach Ric Schafer. "They've got a new coach, had a successful recruiting year, and they're a good team in our league, so it's going to be an important series."

Notre Dame and Dearborn will fight for first place in the ACHA in games on Friday and Saturday night at the JACC. Action for both games starts at 7:30.

Dearborn struggled to a 19-18-1 regular season last year but came on in the post-season, defeating the Irish, 6-4, for the ACHA title. The Wolves have carried that momentum into this season, as they lead the ACHA with a 3-0-1 league record and an 8-1-3 record overall.

But the Irish are not far behind. Following a 10-19-1 campaign last year, Notre Dame has turned things around under Schafer with a 2-0-2 league record and an 8-1-3 record overall.

Notre Dame has played particularly well recently, riding a seven-game winning streak and a nine-game unbeaten streak. Dearborn also has a nine-game unbeaten string going into this weekend's showdown.

"I suspect they'll be close games," said Schafer. "We need to keep improving our defense. They have proven scorers, so we have to be especially attentive in that regard."

The Wolves do indeed have an abundance of proven scorers. Mike Humitz leads the team in scoring with nine goals and 22 assists. Tim Osburn (12 goals, 15 assists), Joe Burton (12 goals, 14 assists), and Ron Duda (12, 14) all are in double figures in both goals and assists.

Dearborn also has Mike Klavon, the leading goalie in the ACHA. In his nine appearances, Klavon has a save percentage of over 90 percent and has allowed only 2.64 goals per game.

"We've played good goalkeepers before," said Schafer. "We just have to get a lot of shots. We need to get at least 30 shots off."

Notre Dame has gotten much of its scoring from the front line of Tom Mooney, Mike McNeill and Bruce Guay.

McNeill leads the Irish in points with nine goals and 17 assists, while Guay has a team-leading 15 goals. Sophomore Kevin Markovitz has seven goals and 13 assists, while Mooney has recorded six goals and 13 assists.

And the defense has improved drastically after allowing an average of six goals in its first four games. Since then, the Irish have allowed less than four goals, triggering the team's seven-game win streak.

Brown's dislocated shoulder kept quiet by Holtz and ND

Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz announced Thursday that Tim Brown played the last five games of the season with a slightly dislocated shoulder, but should be ready to play in the Cotton Bowl against Texas A&M.

"We didn't want to say much about it for a few weeks," Holtz said of the injury to Brown, left shoulder. "He suffered a slight separation, but we think he will be much better by the Cotton Bowl.

Holtz said the injury occurred in the sixth game of the season (against USC), but Brown said it was in practice when he first felt it.

Brown slipped on the wet grass during a pass pattern and fell directly on the shoulder.

"I think that was the week of the USC game," Brown said. "The turf, but it didn't bother me too much at that point."

When it did start to bother Brown, he re-injured it in the eighth game of the season against Boston College. Brown tackled Ed Duran after Duran picked off a Tony Rice pass in the third quarter, and Brown once again landed on the shoulder.

"It really hurt after that tackle," Brown said.

Brown left the field for a good part of the first quarter of the Alabama game the very next week, but the senior was right back in the game making things happen the rest of the way.

"Timmy took a pounding," Holtz said of the year Brown had. "He also played with a broken ring finger."

"(The shoulder) still bothers me now," Brown continued. "In the games I just wore equipment to protect it."

The shoulder still bothers Brown enough to keep him out of the two weekend practice sessions the Irish have scheduled before final-exam week, Brown said, but he will practice regularly until Dec. 26 in Dallas, Brown's hometown.

"I still can't lift weights," Brown added, "but I'm sure it will be fine by the time we get ready for the Cotton Bowl. It's just one of those things that you have to deal with in the course of a season."

And Brown certainly found a way to deal with it, as indicated by the attention he's getting heading into this weekend's Heisman Trophy presentation in New York.

The multi-talented flanker is one of the leading candidates in the balloting for the award, which will be presented on Saturday.

Holtz said he will make the trip to New York City with Brown for the announcement of the award given annually to the nation's top football player.

Holtz reiterated that Brown "is the best player I've ever seen. He was double and triple-teamed most of the season yet he did some great things. He was really pushed around."

Irish face second straight power, open Big Four against Louisville

INDIANAPOLIS As if Indiana wasn't enough, another national basketball power awaits the Irish.

The Notre Dame basketball team, fresh off a 76-69 loss to the defending National Champion Hoosiers on Tuesday, continues its bid first plunge into the 1987-88 basketball season Saturday afternoon at the Hoosier Dome against Louisville. The game (2 p.m., ABC national television) is the first in the Bank One Big Four Doubleheader. Indiana plays Kentucky in the second contest.

"This is a moment for college basketball," Irish head coach Digger Phelps said of the first-year event, which is scheduled for the Hoosier Dome the next four years. "We're very fortunate to have the Hoosier Dome, where we can do something like this.

"It can be one of those things like the Final Four, that you can go witness and be a part of. If you're a basketball junkie, this is one of the best shows you'll ever see.

But Phelps is more concerned about the kind of show his Irish are going to put on. The Irish have teemed most of the season yet he did some great things. He was really pushed around."

Denny Crum's Cardinals are in an unfamiliar position coming into this season. Louisville did not receive a bid to the NCAA Tournament for only the second time in the last 11 years and have a 2-0-2 overall record. The Irish are 2-0-2 in conference play. Attendance this year as been way up, and these are the biggest games yet.
