BP, Cavanaugh collaborate to sponsor new talent show

By DEANNA DOBRIOWLSKI
News Staff

Breen-Phillips and Cavanaugh Halls are getting their act together, in the form of a campus-wide talent show. The two halls are co-sponsoring a talent show in answer to a request from the Drug and Alcohol Education Office for new and unusual activities. The office asked hall councils to come up with activities that do not revolve around drinking.

The office gives $500 in financial assistance to each dorm for special activities, said Breen-Phillips president Chris Lee, adding that Breen-Phillips and Cavanaugh decided to combine their funds. Because the Drug and Alcohol Education Office is sponsoring the event, admission to the talent show will be free.

Although the office is helping to support it, the show will be run entirely by students. The only stipulation is that the activities must provide only non-alcoholic beverages. The production will be organized mainly by the hall councils of Breen-Phillips and Cavanaugh.

Breen-Phillips president Kathleen Maglicic said the initial response to the idea has been good. Although the dorm was the butt of many jokes in the Keenan Revue, Maglicic said the talent show is "not meant to make fun of Keenan."

Maglicic said the show will include two categories of artistic talent and comedy. Monetary prizes will be given away, Maglicic said. Two first prizes of $125, two second prizes of $75, and two third prizes of $50 will be awarded.

The show will be held March 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Hesburgh Library auditorium. Seats will be available on a first-come, first-served basis, and doors will remain open until all the seats are filled, Lee said.

Donnelly, Oxirder chosen to manage The Observer

Two Notre Dame students were appointed Thursday to the positions of managing editor and business manager of The Observer.

Chris Donnelly and John Oxirder were chosen by the paper's editor-in-chief, Chris Murphy, as managing editor and business manager, respectively, for 1988-1989.

Donnelly, a sophomore philosophy major, said he is excited about the upcoming year. "We've got a lot of new projects starting. The paper is really growing," he said. "It's a very good time, a time to build and keep improving on the paper."

The Observer's new business manager and junior accounting major John Oxirder agrees. "I feel confident with the way our system is right now. We're going to keep it running smoothly," he said. "I'm really pleased with the opportunity to work with The Observer."

Donnelly, from South Bend, began working at The Observer as a freshman in Cold and flu season: A problem everybody nose

It starts as a tickle somewhere in the depths of your sinuses. You glance to the left. You glance to the right. Maybe you just imagined it. You know how it is. You go into class, prepared as always for a fun and exciting hour and fifteen minutes of intellectual stimulation. You sit down, intensely interested in what the professor has to say. Having read all the required material and more for your own enrichment, you can't help but open your notebook and click that ball point pen into the "on" position. Doctor Dooom walks in, and a hush falls over the classroom.

You try to ignore the tickle by concentrating on the fascinating lecture. But the tickle is turning into a trickle.

As you stare at the blackboard with unseeing eyes, a terrible dread begins to creep through your body. You cling to the hope that it is merely a false alarm, but as the old sinuses begin to churn and the pressure builds, you know your hope is but a pipe dream.

The same word runs through your mind over and over: "KLEENEX . . . KLEENEX . . . KLEENEX." Of course those soft, white, fluffy facial tissues are in your room right now doing their best to notice the sniffles, they'll certainly take note of the sweat you've just broken into. Great. Fantastical.

Dread turns into panic as you frantically try every way to divert the attention of the faculty to your reputation to coax your honker into humidity. Sniffles stretch into sneezes; students begin to turn around and frown at you with disdain. How dare you have the audacity to interrupt their intense concentration?

In a last-ditch effort you tilt your head back, Ears popping, eyes watering, mind racing, you frantically try to ignore the tickle by concentrating on the fascinating lecture. But the tickle is turning into a trickle.

Twice. Accompanied by a brush of the hand. Alas! 'Tis not enough. The flood gates swing open. The walls collapse. If the people around you don't notice the sniffles, they'll certainly take note of the sweat you've just broken into. Great. Fantastical.

As you slouch in agony, shunned by all your peers, the professor requests that you leave the room and do something about your raucous probiscus.

Humiliated, you make a noose for the door. Stumbling down the hall and into the bathroom, you grope for a wad of toilet paper. As you bury your nose in the white cloud, heavenly relief cascades over your entire being.

An outcast, you find solace in your solitude, sniffling away. It wasn't your fault you were cursed with perpetual motion of the sinuses today. Then, a wicked thought pops into your head. You smile despite your post-nasal drip and laugh inwardly. This malady is bound to be contagious. It won't take long before the whole snotty class nose this is nothing to sneeze at.

Stock exchanges urge self-reform

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The heads of four major stock and futures exchanges said Thursday that Congress should give the markets a chance to reform themselves before imposing any new regulatory structure. Executives from the American Stock Exchange, the National Association of Securities Dealers, Chicago Mercantile Exchange and Chicago Board of Trade agreed that market officials and federal regulators ought to do a better job of coordinating policy.

But they asked the Senate Banking Committee to hold off before tinkering with the apportionment of power among federal agencies.

"Increased regulatory coordination among markets is clearly needed and can be delivered within the existing regulatory framework," said Joseph Hardiman, president of the National Association of Securities Dealers, which runs the over-the-counter stock market.

The Securities and Exchange Commission regulates stock and stock options trading, the Federal Reserve Board sets margins the over-the-counter stock market. The independent student newspaper serving Notre Dame and Saint Mary's is accepting applications for the following positions:

Lawyers divided on 'surrogate'

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA - Efforts by legal and medical experts hoping to shape the future of surrogate motherhood on the heels of a New Jersey court's groundbreaking decision got bogged down quickly Thursday.

Twenty-six participants in an American Bar Association conference aimed at drafting a model state law found they could not agree easily on an all-inclusive definition of surrogate or on just what constitutes surrogacy or on just what constitutes surrogate motherhood. "Commercial" surrogacy or on just what constitutes a commercial surrogacy agreement.

"If we have two days to come up with something," said moderator Arentstein, a New York City lawyer. "It's a big task."

If the two-day conference can reach agreement, its proposal probably will be sent to the ABA's policy-making House of Delegates in August. If approved, the proposal would spark ABA lobbying efforts in state legislatures.

Much of Thursday's discussion focused on the New Jersey Supreme Court ruling a day earlier in the widely publicized Baby M case. The state court said surrogate motherhood for money violates New Jersey's adoption laws.

The decision ended a dramatic legal battle between a woman artificially inseminated by her husband and another couple who wanted the children, an act that surfaced in what the New Jersey court ruled that the contract was illegal.

"What we first have to decide is whether surrogacy should be prohibited under all circumstances," said Gary Skoloff, the Livingston, N.J., lawyer who represents Baby M's father, William Stern, and his wife.

Only one conference participant, William Pierce of the American Bar Association Committee for Adoption, supported a total ban on surrogacy.

Harold Cassidy, the Red Bank, N.J., lawyer representing Baby M's surrogate mother, Mary Beth Whitehead-Gould, said surrogacy amounts to "forcing women through subtle inducements" to give up their children, an act that should only be a last resort.

"If the court's decision is clear cut as the Baby M case. Citing the transfer of an embryo from one woman to another, she asked, "Who is the mother? Is it the genetic or gestational mother?"

Nuclear power deaths studied

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The National Institute of Health has quietly initiated a study of cancer deaths among populations near nuclear power plants, according to a letter released Thursday by Sen. Edward Kennedy.

The letter, which was sent to the Massachusetts Democrat from Dr. James Wyngaarden, director of NIH, said that the studies were started as a result of leukemia clusters around the Pilgrim power plant in Massachusetts and several plants in the United Kingdom.

The findings, said Wyngaarden, "have led us to initiate a large-scale evaluation of cancer deaths occurring among persons living near the over 100 reactors operating in the United States."

Don Balkovsky, a NIH spokesman, acknowledged that the letter was sent on Jan. 28, but said Wyngaarden was out of town and others who could comment were not reachable.

"We'll just have to stand on the letter," he said. In the letter, Wyngaarden said the NIH also is collaborating in a Swedish study of 46,000 patients who have received low doses of iodine-131 for medical diagnostic reasons. Iodine-131 is described as "one of the major radioactive isotopes emitted during nuclear plant operations and from nuclear weapons testing."

"We have also evaluated descriptive mortality data regarding possible cancer risks in the general population living downwind of the Nevada nuclear test site," the letter said. "While many reported associations are unsupported by these data, a small increase in leukemia in southwest Utah cannot be ruled out at this time."

A site in Nevada has been used for years for underground nuclear weapons testing.

Wyngaarden said results are expected within a year from both the Swedish study and the Utah study.

The letter said that the NIH also has "confirmed that leukemia was increased above expectations" among military personnel who participated in at least one nuclear weapons test series.

Wyngaarden said that the most serious impact on health of the Three Mile Island nuclear plant "is mental stress to those living near the plant."

Dole, Bush very close in race, says Iowa poll

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - A new Iowa poll suggested on Thursday that three Democrats are in a tight race and George Bush is closer to Bob Dole than some other polls have indicated.

A second poll said Bush and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis still hold strong leads in New Hampshire, which has its first-in-the-nation primary on Feb. 16. The Iowa presidential caucuses are Monday.

In still another poll, this one suggesting election-year voter dissatisfaction, nearly half the respondents said they wished someone else were in the race.

For Bob Dole, the Republican leader of the Senate, bemosed the vice president a copy of a statement Wednesday that he had authorized it "locked in a blind trust."

Locked in their own tight race in Iowa, the Democratic presidential candidates crowed over Wednesday's narrow House vote of aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Republican candidate Pat Robertson looked to score a victory in Hawaii's rescheduled GOP caucuses and straw vote Thursday night. The Bush and Dole campaigns acknowledged that Robertson -- who nearly doubled GOP membership in that state since December -- had the numbers to win.

Police disperse Poles during riot in protest over price increases

Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland - Police shot clubs and dispersed Solidarity supporters who protested price increases after a strike on Thursday, government sources said. Lech Walesa was at the church in Gdansk, but the protest "was an unusually brutal action," Joanna Wojciechowicz said. "Police beat people with clubs unusually severely ... It was a nightmare." Wojciechowicz was a witness outside St. Brygida's Roman Catholic Church in the Baltic port city, Walesa's hometown and birthplace of the now-outlawed free trade union movement. She said by telephone that police detained at least 10 people.

Father Henryk Jankowski of St. Brygida's, one of Walesa's close advisers, said he would file a complaint about the police action.

Thursday's protest was the second in Gdansk since the weekend, when the government announced price increases of 40 to 200 percent for most basic foods, fuel, alcohol, cigarettes, transportation and services. They are the steepest price hikes since 1982, when the country was under martial law.

Police did not intervene Thursday when several thousand Solidarity supporters marched through Gdansk and chanted anti-government slogans outside the local Communist Party headquarters.

Indiana Education Board accepts standardization of competency testing

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS - An estimated 31,270 pupils in five grades will have to take remedial work this summer after falling below a new standard on statewide competency tests, according to Department of Education figures released Thursday.

The State Board of Education approved on Thursday the cut-off scores that pupils in grades 1, 2, 3, 6 and 7 will have to exceed to avoid going through summer remedial work.

The department also estimates that 11,877 children could be retained in their previous grade after failing to show enough improvement after remediation. Under the 1987 education reform law, children in the five grades, plus grades 9 and 11, will participate in the Indiana Statewide Testing for Educational Progress program by taking exams in mathematics and English in March. Students in the two higher grades will not face remedial work.

Pupils who score below both the state standard and the 16th percentile on the test will go through remediation and retesting. If a child remains below the same standards on the second test, he or she can be retained in the grade just completed.

The new law caps at 16 percent the total number of pupils that could be put into remedial courses.

Launch of Star Wars satellite is postponed

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. - The launch of a "Star Wars" research satellite carrying 15 simulated Soviet nuclear missiles was postponed Thursday because of a potential problem with the Delta rocket, NASA said.

The launch was not immediately rescheduled.

Instruments indicated trouble with an oxygen vent on the Delta's second stage with five minutes to go in the countdown, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

"It has not been determined if it is a vehicle or a ground system problem," NASA spokesman Hugh Harris said. A Delta missile calls for the Delta's second stage to go into orbit and release 15 payloads. It did not join the rocket motors that will fire to simulate a Soviet missile rising from a launch pad; the 11 others will play the roles of missiles coasting through space before releasing their multiple warheads, officials said.

Once released, lasers, radars and other devices on the second stage and at ground stations are to track the objects while they maneuver through space for 12 hours.

This spring, make a break for it.

A new attitude toward drugs

"Alcohol is a drug."

Most of us have heard this fact before, but who takes it seriously?

Apparently the administration does.

Today's dedication of the new Office of Alcohol and Drug Education marks another step in the administration's continued efforts to address the problem of alcohol abuse in our community. The administration has committed itself to educating students and raising awareness of the dangers of alcohol misuse through policies, task forces and educational programs.

But unless student attitudes change, this effort will go to waste.

The environment where alcohol is associated with fun times and release from the demands of school, is difficult to treat alcohol for what it is -- a potentially addictive drug. We need to learn to respect it as such.

Deaths from alcohol-related highway deaths are the number one killer of 15- to 24-year-olds. At Notre Dame, two tragic alcohol-related deaths have made statistics and reality.

Another tragedy of which most of us are not aware continues every day: Based on national estimates, we can project that 700 Notre Dame students are in the primary to advanced stages of alcoholism.

In light of this, we cannot afford to continue treating alcohol use casually. Student attitudes which not only permit, but encourage, drinking to excess must be changed.

We must work to recognize alcohol abuse in ourselves and others and take steps to deal with it.

Whether we like it or not, the drinking habits which we form in college will affect us for the rest of our lives. It's time we started using this drug responsibly.

The administration has shown that it takes the problem of alcohol misuse seriously; it is time for the students of Notre Dame to follow that lead.

P.O. Box Q

Fanaticism has no use in debate

Dear Editor:

Mr. Hahn, in his Feb. 1 column, "Abortion issue needs rethinking," states that he wants "opinion forming thoughts" on the volatile topic of abortion. So do most people, but for this to occur, hyperbole, incomplete analysis and colossal must be avoided. Mr. Hahn states that we are encountering "an activity comparable to the Nazi holocaust." Over six million Jews died in Hitler's Germany. To equate any number of abortions with this ultimate expression of hate and bigotry is ridiculous. Remember, human beings die, not potential human beings. Furthermore, to infer a parallel between a Nazi and an abortionist is hypocritical and cruel.

Mr. Hahn cited the decision of some doctors to selectively abort fetuses and commented, "How low has the medical profession sunk this time?" I will grant that this is a potentially unethical practice, but if Mr. Hahn had explored the issue deeper he would have learned that in many instances the survival of any of the fetuses depends on the abortion of the others.

Another difficulty with his article was the lack of discussion about a very important person in any birth—the mother. Any analysis of this issue must involve the rights of women, to omit them evidences a sexist attitude which too often prevails on the Right to Life side.

In any discussion of a controversial issue it is important to avoid fanaticism, but it is particularly vital on the abortion question. If the U.S. is to reach a consensus on this pressing issue we must do so after examining and respecting all sides with objectivity and compassion.

Roe anniversary lacked coverage

Dear Editor:

In reading the Jan. 32 Observer, I was dismayed at reading not about human interest but about animal interest. The anniversary of the Roe vs. Wade Supreme Court decision, which precipitated the legalization of abortion, was almost entirely overlooked (with the exception of a short and ambiguous pro-life quotation). I fail to understand why Friday's or Monday's edition could not have featured at least a brief report on the NDSMC Right to Life rally in the capital. Perhaps a few comments from spokesmen of both the NDSMC and NOW (National Organization for Women) could have been printed. Each group has something to say, but we read nothing from either side.

On Jan. 22, 1973, the Supreme Court sparked a huge controversy that has become progressively more dynamic and intense. On Jan. 22, 1988, it would have enjoyed reading in an impartial school newspaper a little bit about this monumentally important issue. I would have been interested to read about how different people are reacting to one of the most widely disputed decisions in the history of Constitutional interpretation.

Now, there lies a profound irony in all this. Humanity is subverted; human beings are expendable to the tune of about 1.5 million lives per year in this country. Simultaneously, however, animals are being elevated to the status of humanity. Last Friday, we read about some gallant cat that was trapped in the cargo hold of an aeroplane, journeyed several thousand miles, and was later rescued. "I love her so much," said the feline's joyfully sobbing owner of her pet, as the cat "nibbled tuna, steak, and creamed chicken." This animal was even "toasted with champagne." That's news? That's trivial. I think of how many rats and vermin have seen the same kind of mileage in the storage compartments of ships and choo-choo trains. And they only get to eat moldy trash and industrial waste. So, it's not news, but it got the print. The newsworthy issue didn't.

Letter to a Lonely God

Undergoing hypnosis as part of his therapy, the boy remembered a fairy tale where a naked woman did an erotic dance with a chicken. The main question was: were the weird events part of the worship carried on by a Satanic cult? Are witches and warlocks now holding their covens in the Windy City? It wouldn't be surprising to hear that black magic is being carried on as a publicity gimmick, or a cult following by the fringes, or as a game teenagers are playing to shock their parents.

Does this mean that the devil is alive and well and working in Skokie? Based on the evidence I've heard, I'm not going to get any testimonials as a activist from me. Does Zebub's existence, I'm an agnostic. The Gospels mention the enemy of God, out to ruin sinners, the question of Zebub's existence is an island of my thoughts. Each one is a child of the only-begotten Son. Does anyone feel short-changed when compared with others, as though he or she were lacking in some advantage? That could be a summing block, but it shouldn't defeat us. Didn't Christ promise: "My grace is sufficient for thee?" What, then, could defeat us, to leave us losers? Nothing can cheat us of our fulfillment, if we rest believing the enticing lies. Adam and Eve believed an enticing lie. Of Snake-hips in the garden, promised them: "You shall be as God." Wanting to please their parents, they put their misery on themselves. Their bad luck should be a warning to us: "Keep an eye on those angels of light, flattering you with what you must want to hear. A number of those angels of light may be in the devil's camp, without even knowing it."

I offer you a warning season; everything you read or hear— including this column— with a grain of salt. Season any gospel of liberation that is preached to you—no matter what, it's a field with a grain of salt. Religion used to represent a body of doctrine that was not going to be agreed on; but that was before the electronic age. Do the preachers seem in love with? By their fruits, you'll know them. Is it the Lord. The tree of love can bear bitter fruit.

"It's the 20th century the cruellest of all centuries! The cream of the first five generations perished in the great wars, and every decade since, the same cycle."

"On the Eighteens, when America has no war of its own to call forth, its heads are exhumed of death are we keeping, and what are the battlecries that ease us towards the cults of death?"

"But our questions change the truth or forcefulness of what Dennis wrote; but after twenty years, I want him to say more than that blacks have felt uncomfortable on campus.

If we treat the blacks here now as part of the family, maybe their children and their children's children will be in love with the place. As Jesse Jackson says of Harvard, Notre Dame isn't perfect, but God hasn't finished with it yet. May the devil and his angels of light stay away from our door, but may the students of the university always bear witness.

This weekend the Irish soccer team heads to Chicago to begin what should be an interesting spring season for the team.

Northwestern is hosting its 16-team two-day indoor tournament in the Marriott Yard at Northwestern. Indiana and several of the top soccer schools from across the nation and Wisconsin will participate.

While the spring season is usually evaluated to use talent understanding the game, the head coach Dennis Grace said the team is ready to play.

What makes the upcoming weekend's series so important is that there is more at stake for the players. It's not just about winning the game, but also playing in front of a large benefactor to the facility.

Bullets great, coach Unseld tops Hall of Fame inductees

Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. - Wes Unseld, the first year he was up for election, Clyde Lovellette and Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller were named to the Basketball Hall of Fame Thursday.

A fourth man whose election was announced was the late Bobby McDermott, who dropped out of high school to star in the pros in the 1940s.

Although Unseld made it in his first try, the Honors Committee passed over his flashier former teammate Earl Monroe for a second consecutive year.

"I wasn't flashy and I never played partly," said Unseld, who last month became head coach of the Washington Bullets in the NBA. "My contributions were in the things most people don't notice. They weren't in the high score or dunking or behind-the-back passes.

But during his 13-year playing career with the Bullets, the 6-foot-9-Unseld, who also played center on his high school football team and won the Kennebunk state high school shot put championship, averaged 14 rebounds and 10.8 points in 844 games and led the Bullets to the 1978 NBA title.

His impact on the Bullets was immediate. A first-round draft pick, who had averaged 18 rebounds and 20 points a game at the University of Louisville, Unseld was named the NBA's Most Valuable Player as well as Rookie of the Year in 1969.

The only other player to gain both honors was Wilt Chamberlain.

Following his retirement, Unseld was named vice president of the Bullets in 1981. He began this season as an assisttant coach.

Unseld was surprised that Monroe again failed to win election. "If anybody in his era revolutionized the game it was Earl. We have Michael Jordan and Magic Johnson now, but he was the one who set the standard for that type of play," Unseld said.

Lovellette, who ushered in the era of the high-scoring big center in the early 1960s at the University of Kansas, said he also had felt ignored by the Hall of Fame.

"It seems somewhat overbear. I used to read about guys who came after me geting elected, and it sort of made me wonder. But I'm just glad it happened, before I passed away," said Lovellette, in a telephone interview between classes at White's Institute in Waltham, Ind., where he teaches teen-agers who have been in trouble with the law.

After leading Kansas to the NCAA championship in 1962 and the U.S. Olympic team to the gold medal in Helsinki, he averaged 17 points a game in an 11-year professional career with the Minnesota Lakers, Cleveland Indians, St. Louis and the Boston Celtics.

After his retirement from the game in 1972 as a television sports director, sheriff of Vigo County, Ind., owner of a antique shop on Cape Cod and coached at St. Anthony's High School in New Bedford, Mass.

Lovellette is the winningest active coach in Division I.

"I think anybody who goes into basketball one day he might be elected and I'm just as happy as can be," said Miller.

Winter’s over for Robinson

ND teams face highly-ranked Duke squads

Men face tough team, wild crowd

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

DURHAM, N.C. - Sunday, the Christians really are going to the lion's den, or is that the cuckoo's nest? When the 12-6 Notre Dame men's basketball team ventures into Cameron Indoor Stadium for a contest against fourth-ranked Duke (3:30 Sunday afternoon on NBC), it will be entering what is considered the toughest place to play in the country. The main reason is the Duke student body. Al McGuire, who will be part of NBC's broadcast crew for the game, calls Cameron the zoo and has thrown peanuts to the animals.

Duke's students are notorious for their antics. In years past they've thrown pizza boxes at an opposing player who got in a scrape with a pizza company, records at another player who got in trouble for stealing a stereo and papers at yet another who got in trouble for plagiarism. All in all, the Duke student body is the perfect host. "The Duke student body is very vocal," Irish head coach Digger Phelps says. "Beating Duke at Duke is an accomplishment. But no matter where we play, the crowd is pumped. We're used to that."

The bigger test for the Irish will definitely be on the court, as Mike see IRISH, page 11

Women ready for big challenge

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

DURHAM, N.C. - The schedule doesn't get any easier for the Notre Dame women's basketball team this weekend, as it travels to face 17th-ranked Duke Saturday. The game is the second straight against a Top 20 opponent after dropping a deciding 66-71 decision to fourth-ranked Tennessee Wednesday night.

"We're tired, that's for sure," Irish head coach Muffet McGraw said Thursday of her 12-6 squad. "We're more physically tired than emotionally, (but) we really have to win to keep our AA hopes alive.

The Irish head into the game against the Blue Devils a little banged up. McGraw said that both Lisa Kuhns and Heidi Bunek would not practice Thursday. Kuhns injured a knee in a fall against the Lady Volunteers, and Bunek is suffering from some tendinitis. Their status was to be evaluated following Thursday's practice. Bunek leads the Irish in scoring at 18.9 points per game and rebounding at 8.8 boards per contest. Kuhns is the team's leading three-point shooter, having connected on 37-of-68 attempts (54.3 percent).

Fencers prepare for season's lone home meet

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Sports Writer

It's here. It happens once a year. It is the only home fencing event of the season, and it is expected to be filled with exciting bouts.

The Notre Dame fencing team plays host to numerous teams over the weekend, facing rival Wayne State on Friday night and six schools on Saturday. Instead of an annual ACC event, the meets will be held at the Angela Athletic Facility at St. Mary's.

The women's team is probably counting the hours until Wayne State arrives on Friday. Last week, in a fiercely competitive meet, Wayne State barely edged out the women by a score of 9-7.

"Our Head Coach Yves Auriol would like another chance. "It's going to be a big rematch," said Auriol, who also will be a fencing coach in the 1988 Olympics. "Wayne State has two talented German and two Italians that are strong additions to the team.

"Our girls need to regroup and focus on their abilities. This Friday night's match is a very big one. We really need to beat Wayne State to regain our confidence."

The women's team was hurt by losing junior Janice Bynes, its number-three fencer, for the season. However, sophomore Anne Barreda has responded to the challenge by compiling a 6-1 record, which is tops on the team. Barreda's only loss came in a bout against Wayne State.

Senior Molly Sullivan, currently rated as one of the top five women fencers in America, struggled against Wayne State last Friday with a 2-2 record. With her quest to regain the national championship, she won as a sophomore, you can expect that she will be ready. Her overall season record is 39-2.

The men's team coasts into the meet with a 15-0 season record, after defeating Wayne State last Friday by a score of 18-9. Its victories over the weekend extended its winning streak to 90 meets, dating all the way back to 1984.

"We had a very good tournament at Wayne State," said head coach Mike DeCicco. "The two teams had great German epees. I hope the foil and sabre squads will give us a repeat performance."

The foil and sabre teams were convincingly, but the epee team lost 7-2. The performances by the foil and sabre squads were enough to ensure the Irish a win.

You can bet that Notre Dame will be looking to avenge its loss by upsetting the Irish at home.

"The Wayne State-Notre Dame annual meet has often dictated who would win the Midwest Championship," see FENCING, page 13

Air Force will test red-hot hockey team

By PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame hockey team is 19-2, riding a ten-game winning streak, and having one of the best years in its existence as a varsity sport. But there have been questions about a relatively weak schedule and the ability to win the big games.

The Irish can take a giant step toward answering those questions by sweeping their two-game series against Air Force this weekend at the JACC. Both games, on Friday and Saturday nights, are at 7:30 p.m.

The Falcons are 12-9 on the year, but their wins include two victories over top-five independent power Alaska-Anchorage and one over Western Mich.

higan, one of the leaders in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association. Because of their tough schedule and despite Notre Dame's sterling record, Air Force has been placed ahead of the Irish in the independent rankings.

Only one independent squad is given a berth in the NCAA playoffs, and as Irish head coach Ric Schafer explains, if Notre Dame is to have any shot at all at that spot, a sweep of the Falcons is crucial.

"The team we're chasing is Merrimac," said Schafer, in his first year as the Irish mentor. "A couple of wins this weekend and they could stumble a bit. Who knows? They've (Merrimac) played a tougher schedule than we have, and we see HOCKEY, page 11
