Dole, Gephardt emerge ahead in Iowa caucus

Associated Press

Bush conceded defeat in the first big test of the 1988 presidential campaign and vowed to work harder in New Hampshire, which has the nation's primary next week. "I'm a fighter," he said. "I'm not going to be a quitter." Dole, who urged Iowaans to regard him as "one of us," said his victory demonstrated "I can be elected in November."

Robertson said his showing was a victory for voters "who wanted us to restore the great­est America through moral strength." Gephardt, Simon and Dukakis fought their battle for the people who are in need of emergency treatment. The money would be used for student leaders to go to alcohol awareness conferences such as the National Collegiate Drug Awareness Conference in Washington. Dannison said this would occur only if extra funds were available after treatment of students.

The Counseling Center will apply guidelines to assess the needs of the student. He said the funds will be ad­ministered through Father David Tyson's Office of Student Affairs, which would "review what the need is, and make a determination as to how much funds are available," said Dan­nison.

Firth said she contacted the Cogswell family to receive per­mission to name the fund in honor of the Zahn Hall junior who killed last year "because his life and death had such a profound affect on others around him." Donations to the fund can be made through the senior class or the Office of Alcohol and Drug Education on the second floor of the Fortune Student Center, according to Fitzgibbon.

Senator approves SUB leaders

By GREG LUCAS

The Student Senate approved Brian Riley and Julie Johnson as next year's Student Union Board Manager and Controller respectively at the Senate meeting Monday night.

In other news, the Senate passed an amendment that would provide for the creation of a Student Business Board. "The Student Business Board is parallel to the Student Union Board steering commit­tee, only it is designed strictly to oversee student businesses," said Pat Cooke, student body president.

The amendment, presented by Brian Holst and Paul Bier­busse, student senator and ex­ecutive assistant to the senate respectively, reads, "The Stu­dent Business Board shall in­clude the following student op­erated businesses: the Col­lar, Irish Gardens, and Ad­works."

The amendment provides for the nomination and approval of a business board general manager who would serve as a non-voting member on Student Senate.

The amendment to the under­graduate constitution was passed by unanimous consent by the Senate. In order to be added to the constitution, it must also be approved by the Hal­l Presidents' Council.

In other business, the Senate passed an amendment that would increase the number of voting members on the Senate steering committee from seven to eight. The additional mem­ber would be one of the Student Senators.

"Because SUB is so impor­tant, I think it's vital to have another elected officer voting," said Mike Carrigan, student senator.

Janel Blount, SUB manager, who voted for the amendment said that she had some reserva­tions. "I don't want to bring politics and a political nature to this body," she said.

Senate members agreed to add a clause that would allow the SUB manager to hold the deciding vote in the event of a tie. The amendment must also go before HPC for approval.

In other news, Cooke an­nounced that the student body presidential debates will be Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the Hes­burgh Library auditorium.

Father William Beauchamp, executive vice president of Notre Dame, has been selected by the area United Way to head their 1988 Fund Drive Cam­paign.

"Father Beauchamp will play a vitally important role in the campaign," said Patrick Mangan, director for United Way of St. Joseph County.

Beauchamp's primary re­sponsibilities will include recruiting and training of forty volunteer community leaders, establishing and managing the goals for the year, and ar­ticulating the message of United Way, said Mangan.

Beauchamp was chosen be­cause he has the ability to "at­tract, motivate and lead the more than two thousand volun­teers that will be participating in this year's campaign," said Mangan.

The shortest month is not short enough

My alarm did not go off today, there were pop quizzes in two of the three classes that I skipped this week, my car has been broken into since Christmas and the sun has been taken away by the communists.

It’s the month we’ve all been waiting for. The February blahs have set in and they are worse than ever. It’s that month a broken nail, missing your favorite T.V. show, an empty mailbox or a mouse in your room are potential earth-shattering dilemmas.

Why does the shortest month of the year seem to be the longest one as the days drag on? People are surprised every day at the fact that we are still in the single digits when they date their notes, if they go to class at all.

After all, it’s next to impossible to roll out of bed when you know it’s either snowing or a thousand degrees below zero outside.

On the landmark occasion that the sun does emerge, the only thing it does is blind the brave from the reflection off of the Hoosier tundra. And the snow is not a fun diversion anymore because it has worn out its welcome with even the most playful snow bunnies. It is not even fun anymore. It immediately turns to grime when it hits the slush muck on the ground and stays on your boots all the way into your room and on your car door until March, when it warms up.

You can’t drive anywhere in Indiana without taking your life into your hands because local road crews have never heard of salt. That doesn’t make much sense as snow is not a new concept anymore.

Campus sidewalks are buried under ice, courtesy of the Kamikaze Zamboni driver on campus, making it twice as tempting to stay in for the month. However, there is no need to worry about getting salt stains on your shoes around here in the event you do decide to trek to class.

Maybe February is nasty because there is nothing really exciting that happens all month. January is only about two real weeks long. December has Christmas, October and November have football, March is a celebration of February’s end, April flies and May is play time.

Of course, in February there is always President’s Day. How do institutions have not taken advantage of any excuse to celebrate a national holiday. Valentine’s Day is a fifty fifty gamble that usually makes most people feel miserable.

Football fans are suddenly forced to spend their Sundays watching softball or golf and basketball has bored them already and somehow the Senior Skins tour or bowling championships don’t satisfy that weekly need for a sports fix.

Nothing happens in February because the motivation factor is bottom of the barrel. Academia is the worst of all now because skipping a class temporally sends us into a self-indulgent frenzy that helps us get through the day for beating the February blahs, even if it is to find out if Robin has begun to speak yet on General Hospital.

Money is a resurfacing problem in February, there is no investment, there is no hope when we had summer’s wages to draw from to ease the pain of a semester’s beginning.

Going out is old hat and it’s too cold anyway. You really have to wonder about your motivation to socialize when sock races in the Saint Mary’s tunnels and laundry are more appealing Friday night plans than carousing at Senior Bar.

It’s only a matter of time before the chill thaws, the roads clear, people start walking outside again and our alarm clocks begin to work properly.

But for now only is February Day. After day for twenty more days, we will all fall prey to the blues but whatever our crisis this month, last remember that March and Spring Break are just around the corner.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.—A research satellite rocketed into orbit Monday for a key "Star Wars" test of how well it can track fifteen simulated Soviet nuclear missiles through space.

The $250 million exercise will help determine if a split-second response can be developed for a space-based missile defense system and whether orbiting sensors can pick out a real missile from decoy.

Officials called it one of America's most ambitious unmanned space missions and reported the early hours of the flight had progressed smoothly. They promised to provide details of the complex mission when it is completed Tuesday morning.

"We'll have a suite of sensors looking at fifteen objects over many orbits," Gordon Smith, deputy director of the Strategic Defense Initiative Office, told a news conference. "Altogether we're very, very pleased with the start."

A two-stage Delta rocket vaulted off its launch pad at 5:07 p.m. following a secret countdown made public just five minutes before liftoff. The booster quickly vanished from sight in low-hanging clouds.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which launched the rocket for SDIO, announced forty minutes later that the 6,000-pound second stage of the rocket was in the desired orbit.

more than 250 miles high.

The orbiting stage was to release the fifteen mock missiles over a four-hour period and sensors on the stage and at more than one hundred ground sites were to track them through maneuvers over eight hours.

A SDIO said four of the payloads contain motors that were to be fired to simulate a Soviet rocket as it climbs off a launch pad. The other eleven were to play the roles of Soviet missiles coating through space before releasing their multiple nuclear warheads.

Sensors, including laser, radars and optical devices, were to try to follow the payloads against varying backgrounds such as land, ocean, horizon and space.

Radiation poisoning suspected

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—The government has ordered inspections of beer, soft drinks, baby formula and dental and cosmetic products from more than a dozen plants across the country because of possible radiation contamination, officials said Monday.

Production was briefly halted over the weekend at several Coca-Cola plants but they were reopened after no contamination was found in product samples, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and officials for the company said.

Similar surveying was underway at Anheuser-Busch breweries in St. Louis and Jacksonville, Fla., and at an Abbott Laboratories-owned baby formula plant in Arizona, an Avon cosmetics plant in Illinois and a dental products plant in New Jersey.

NRC and Food and Drug Administration officials emphasized that no contamination has been found so far in examination of the products at any of those plants.

Dr. Frank Young, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration said a significant health hazard is unlikely, even if some soft drinks, beer or other products are found to be contaminated.

If ingested, the particles—which are encased in a ceramic covering and come from a static-removing device manufactured by 3M Corp.—are most likely to pass through the body without any radiation being released, he said.

Of twenty-five plants where officials so far have uncovered leaks of the polonium particles exceeding NRC guidelines, fifteen produce food, beverage, drug or cosmetic products, officials said.

"The good news to date is that there is no evidence of contamination," Young told the NRC during a two-hour meeting called hastily on Monday.

The strategy was to release the fifteen mock missiles over a four-hour period and sensors on the stage and at more than one hundred ground sites were to track them through maneuvers over eight hours.

A SDIO said four of the payloads contain motors that were to be fired to simulate a Soviet rocket as it climbs off a launch pad. The other eleven were to play the roles of Soviet missiles coating through space before releasing their multiple nuclear warheads.

Sensors, including laser, radars and optical devices, were to try to follow the payloads against varying backgrounds such as land, ocean, horizon and space.

All Arkied-out

Sophomore Greg Gallant was overcome by sleep as he attempted to accomplish something architectural Monday.

Beauchamp doesn't anticipate any conflicts with his position at Notre Dame and his responsibilities with United Way.

"The chairmanship shouldn't interfere with my responsibilities to the University," said Beauchamp. "It will just mean a little more work."

The United Way is an international network that consists of 2300 local, independent organizations, thirty-seven of which are in St. Joseph County. Last year's goal of $3,225,000 was achieved and will probably be surpassed, said Mangan.

Reagan speaks against drugs

Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. - President Reagan stepped up his campaign against illegal drugs Monday, deriding critics who say employers have no right to search out drug abuse in the workplace.

"The real answer must come from taking the customer away from the drugs, not the other way around," the president said.

Reagan's appearance at an anti-drug conference at Duke University sparked a noisy demonstration by upwards of 200 members of his Central America policy.

His armored limousine passed within ten to fifteen feet of shouting protesters bearing a large placard reading "Terrorist Not Welcome" and carrying signs reading, "Contras paddle drugs" and "Just say no to Contra aid." A line of high-ranking officers stood in front of the crowd, blocking its access to the roadway.

Addressing an audience of about 7,000 people at an indoor stadium, Reagan said that for a long time, political, cultural and media leaders gave the impression that using drugs was all right.

"Well, thank God those days are over," he said. "This conference proves that we no longer shrug off illegal drug use.

He said the federal government, and particularly the Defense Department, have taken the lead toward achieving a drug-free workplace.

The Pentagon has a mandatory drug testing program for all military personnel and certain "critical" civilian workers.

Under an executive order Reagan signed in 1986, federal civilian employees holding "sensitive positions" are required to submit to drug testing.

"We're encouraging state and local government to follow our example, as well as federal contractors, and all of the private sector," the president said. "We got a head start with the military, and since the drug program started there, illegal drug use has gone down by two-thirds.

Reagan said, 'I've heard critics say employers have no business looking for drug abuse in the workplace. But when you pin the critics down, too often they seem to be among that handful who still believe that drug abuse is a victimless crime.

The drug user is a victim," the president continued. "His employer is a victim. His fellow employees are victims. The family that depends on his wages are victims. And America, which is only as strong and as competitive as all of us together, America is the victim.

Waldheim knew of Nazi atrocities, historians conclude

Parliament to vote on TV

Associated Press

VIENNA, Austria. - President Kurt Waldheim knew of Nazi atrocities during his German army service in the Balkans and some kind of crime constitutes some kind of crime is simply not correct," Waldheim said after meeting with the commission. "Every person who served in the war knew about the events and that everyone knew. " Waldheim's admission to the commission's report and quoted it as saying the panel could not find a case in which the former U.N. secretary-general opposed "an official's participation in war crimes."

According to Waldheim, the head of the commission stated that the war crime would not "be so personal as guilt on my part and that I also wasn't involved in any kind of war crime actions."

Austria Press Agency obtained a copy of the commission's report and quoted it as saying "that after the general a certain guilt could arise just from knowing about the violations of human rights in the place where a person was stationed, if the person concerned -of lack of strength or courage- with their own eyes to take steps against injustice."

Government sources said privately the report was much tougher on Waldheim than had previously been expected. Austria commissioned the investigation by an international group of the United Nations, but Waldheim's request, and the panel delivered its conclusions Monday. The report is expected to be released officially Tuesday.

In the United States, the House of Representatives has been televised since 1979 and the Senate since 1986.

Televisioning of debates of the House of Lords, Britain's sometimes-somnolent, unelected and politically emasculated upper chamber, began four years ago. A daily half-hour program attracts small audiences. Surveys indicate 500,000 viewers compared with 22 million for the top-rated network soap opera, "EastEnders."

It has only been 10 years since the Commons let in radio microphones.

Radio tapes of shouting exchanges between Mrs. Thatcher and opposition leader Neil Kinnock, against a backdrop of their rank-and-file legislators bickering and catcalling, often accompany the main parliamentary story on TV news broadcasts.

The 159-seat spectators' gallery overlooking the chamber is packed at question time, mostly with people who have worked above the months in advance for tickets.

Three Israeli soldiers patrol the Gaza Strip under the shadow of a Moslem minaret and the Israeli flag. The soldiers, one of whom is a female member of the military police, are able to take a more relaxed stance as tension in the region remained at lowered levels. See story below.

Israelis beat boy to death

Associated Press

JERUSALEM - A Gaza Strip teen beaten to death by angry crowds of Palestinians fought with Israeli soldiers and crowds of Palestinians fought with Israeli soldiers on Tuesday, Feb. 11, after his funeral Monday. Israeli gunfire wounded ten people in the occupied territories, hospitals reported.

Relatives and U.N. officials said soldiers beat 15-year-old Iyad Mohammed Agal to death.

Army spokesman confirmed Agal died of his wounds soon after midnight, but said an investigation showed he was not beaten by soldiers. They said the cause of the injuries was not clear.

Soldiers had eleven Arab towns and refugee camps in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip under curfew Monday, confining 245,000 people to their homes. About 1.5 million Palestinians live in the territories, which Israel captured from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war.

Arab riots began Dec. 8 and forty-nine Palestinians have died at the hands of Israelis, according to statistical figures, nearly all of them shot by soldiers.

In Arab east Jerusalem, riot police commandeered a Palestinian bread delivery van and used it to advance on rock-throwing Arabs in the al-Shwan neighborhood as they flung tear gas canisters.

Soldiers opened fire on Arabs who rioted after Agal's funeral in the Bureij refugee camp, wounding an 11-year-old girl and a 15-year-old boy, an army spokesman reported. He said the army was checking reports of wounded elsewhere in the occupied territories.

Officials at the Ahli Arab hospital in Gaza City said soldiers wounded two other Arabs when the police spread to neighboring Nuseirat camp. Among the wounded was a 17-year-old shot in the chest, they said.

The army said it was investigating the death of a 20-year-old Palestinian who was shot in the head at Kufri Qadim near Nablus in the West Bank.

A military spokesman said soldiers discovered him in a taxi they stopped at a checkpoint, and he died later at Rafidayeh hospital in Nablus. He said soldiers did not appear to be involved in the death.

Shifa hospital officials said a Palestinian from Gaza City was hospitalized with gunshot wounds in the groin and jaw, hospital officials said. Spokesmen at the Ramahal hospital said three Palestinians were treated from Deir Omar, a nearby village, were treated for bullet wounds in the leg and abdomen.

USSR plans to withdraw

Associated Press

MOSCOW Mikhail Gorbachev said Monday that the Kremlin would begin pulling its troops out of Afghanistan on May 15 and complete the withdrawal within ten months if U.S.-brokered talks on the conflict reach a settlement.

Gorbachev also said his country wants no say in who governs Afghanistan or its politics after the estimated 150,000 Soviet troops battling Afghan guerrillas come home.

The Soviets themselves will decide the final status of their country among nations," Gorbachev said. Afghanistan's future "is none of our business!

the future of Afghanistan's Marxist president, Najib, in serious doubt.

The Soviet leader's statements were the clearest indication yet that he is moving rather than to extricate his country from the conflict he has termed a "bleeding wound."

On Monday, the Soviet troops, tanks and military hardware into Afghanistan on Dec. 27, 1979, and earlier over the replacement of one Marxist ruler by another.

Inspection has been a major irritant in Soviet relations with the United States and has soured Kremlin relations with many Moslem and Third World countries.

It also has been opposed at home as Soviet casualties have mounted. Western diplomats estimate as many as 10,000 Soviet soldiers have been killed in the war and that tens of thousands have been wounded.

The cost of the Soviet involvement is thought to total billions of rubles.

Monday's statement was the first mention by Gorbachev of a specific date for the withdrawal of the Red Army units in Afghanistan to prop up Najib's government against a widespread insurgency.

Gorbachev said the date of May 15 was fixed for the begining of the Soviet pullout based on the assumption that U.N.- sponsored negotiations in Geneva will reach an agreement no later than March 15.

Soviet TV interrupted a serial film of Mikhail Sholokhov's "And Quiet Flows The Don," to broadcast Gorbachev's statement, assuring that his remarks would have the widest distribution. The statement also was carried on the official Tass news agency and was the lead item on the eventing TV news.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Gorbachev's statement "sounds like a positive step and we hope it is, but we need to see the fine print to see if there are any conditions. We've got to know what it means."

The 5-year-old U.N.- brokered talks in Geneva between Afghanistan and Pakistan, which stands in for the insurgents, have made some progress, but have been stuck on working out a schedule for withdrawal.

U.N. envoy Diego Cordoves, who has been shuttling between Afghanistan and Pakistan delegations, says the talks are nearing their conclusion. They are scheduled to resume later this month.

Gorbachev indicated the Kremlin was offering a timely table in hopes of forcing a breakthrough in the negotiations.

"Seeking to facilitate a speedy and successful conclusion of the Geneva talks... the governments of the U.S.S.R. and the Republic of Afghanistan have agreed to set a specific date for beginning the withdrawal of Soviet troops-May 15, 1988... and to complete their withdrawal within ten months," he said.

Previously, the Soviets had talked only about pulling out their troops in twelve months or less. On Jan. 7, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Shevardnadze said the Soviet Union hoped to end its military involvement this year.

A speech on date rape, a broadway musical, and a junior class Mardi Gras were among the coming attractions discussed by Saint Mary's Programming Board in their meeting Monday.

Mary Koss, a clinical psychologist at Penn State Univerquaintance rape at 7:30 p.m. in Carroll Auditorium, according to Smith Heshagen, vice president of Student Affairs. The title of her lecture is "Outrageous Acts and Everyday Seduction." Admission is free to the public.

On Feb. 26 at 8 p.m. in O'Laughlin Auditorium, Daedalus Productions will present for one show only, the hit broadway musical "Purlie." Tickets are $10 for students and $10 for the public. Groups of twenty or more persons may purchase the tickets at $9 each.

"Purlie is supposed to be an excellent show and we encourage everyone to come out and support this classic musical," said Heshagen.

Several of the other activities that will take place at Saint Mary's will be the movie "Pretty in Pink," which will be held on Feb. 12 and 13 in the Carroll Auditorium. at 7, 9, and 11 p.m. and Club Tuesday will feature Mike Callahan, a classic pianist on Feb. 23 from 9 to 11 p.m.

Looking ahead into April, the board will present the popular movie "Three Men and a Baby," April 9, 10 and 11. The times will be announced at a later date.

The junior class is having a Mardi Gras on Feb. 16 from 9 to 11 p.m. at the Elk's Lodge and the sophomore class will be sponsoring a sophomore parent weekend talent show at 8 p.m.

Also discussed was the pos-

For years the writers of the fairytale tale "Beauty and the Beast" have been crafting stories with a message, did they have a TV series in mind? The answer is no. However, the creators of the fairytale tale "Beauty and the Beast" have taken the story to a new level by creating a television series that captures the essence of the original tale.

The story follows the life of Vincent, a young man who is abandoned at birth. Vincent is found and taken in by a man who refers to him as "Father." Vincent is a gargoyle beast complete with fangs, claws, and more hair than Rapunzel. The creators of the show have managed to create a believable character that is both terrifying and endearing.

The acting on the show is actually quite good. The performances of the actors are top-notch, with especially strong performances by Hamilton and DiCaprio. The writing is also quite impressive, with plot twists and turns that keep the audience on the edge of their seats.

The artwork by Klaus Janson and Lynn Varley is stunning, with rich colors and detailed backgrounds that bring the story to life. The camera work is also quite impressive, with shots that are both beautiful and terrifying.

The plots on the show are somewhat interesting. One deal with a coach that has been banished from the family by "Father." John begins to grow a lethal crop of drugs, which cause a great deal of death. The show's premise is too far-fetched to be believed.

The American public deserves more than this show could ever offer.
Coke boycott a wrong step

There are right ways and wrong ways to increase student awareness and participation in showing disapproval for the University's investment policies in South Africa.

One of the recent proposals put forth by the Anti-Apartheid Network is a student boycott of Coca-Cola products in the dining halls, residence halls, and class buildings. The network hopes that by boycotting Coke products, students will voice their opinion on the University's policy and Coca-Cola's practices.

The proposed boycott of Coke products, however, is a wrong step in the quest for student support in challenging the University's policies towards investments in South Africa.

First, why did the Network choose to boycott Coke when there are other major corporations guilty of the same "hypocrisy" in South Africa? Should the students stop using IBM micro-computers and software? Should students stop buying genuine GM parts when their Oldsmobiles and Buicks break down this winter? What about the companies that are still operating in South Africa full bore? Why haven't the students been instructed what products to boycott in these instances?

Second, the boycott of Coke is supposedly unrelated to the fact that Coca-Cola's chairman Donald Keough is also the chairman of the Notre Dame Board of Trustees. Yet, on the same day the Board of Trustees announced that the University would continue its policy of selective divestment, the Anti-Apartheid Network announced that it would organize a boycott of Coca-Cola. The timing of the announcement makes the motive of the boycott suspect.

If the Anti-Apartheid Network wants to increase the student awareness of the situation in South Africa, it should attempt to do so in a way that does not make it appear as if personal jabs at Keough are the motivation for the boycott, which defeats its purpose.

There are right ways and wrong ways to increase the student awareness and participation in showing disapproval for the University's investment policies towards investments in South Africa. The only problem is that a survey of this kind of situation would lead one to believe that all symbolic acts are owned by the Left. Members of Witness for Peace march to Congressmen's offices and read propaganda concerning support of the Contra atrocities. A St. Mary's professor proclaims his intention to go on a week-long hunger strike against apartheid. And last but not least, our local Anti-Apartheid Network desires all of us to affect the course of this winter's events by refusing to guzzle Coca-Cola products.

The arguments both pro- and anti-divestment from South Africa have been exhaustively examined on this page before. There is no need to do so again. Sufficient it is to say that if South Africa economically, and thereby battling blacks, is the answer, South Africans have demonstrated a clear ability to bypass sanctions. Nor do we help our moral cause by supporting the programs of the African National Congress, who are clearly guilty of many terrorist atrocities, ignoring moderates such as Chief Buthelezi.

But that should not be our main concern here. Instead, we should ask a question: why? Why are we being subjected again to the old liberal double-standard (that is, shout opposition to any right-wing regime, such as South Korea, the Philippines, Chile and so on, but urge "understanding" for Vietnam, Aim-babhoe or the Soviet Union? Why is South Africa almost the only foreignpolicy question on this campus' foreign policy agenda? Is it because nothing else catches policymakers' attention? Thousands of Afghan children, with their hands blown off by Soviet "boys," would beg to differ. So would hundreds of Haitians gunned down in the streets as they tried to cast their ballots. So would thousands of Vietnamese "boast people." But what do we hear of these developments from our local activists? Nothing.

Symbolism can play a large role in American politics as well. The only problem is that a survey of this kind of situation would lead one to believe that all symbolic acts are owned by the Left. A St. Mary's professor proclaims his intention to go on a week-long hunger strike against apartheid. "We cannot do things just because they feel good, or because slogans... sound good."

"We can't go doing every issue," they will say. But you are responsible for what you stand for. Let's be up front, members of the Anti-Apartheid Network (and Witness for Peace, and others). I'm challenging you. You should examine not only what you oppose but also what you implicitly propose. With your Coke boycott, do you really wish to stand in the same corner as the African National Congress? Do you hope for a bloody revolution in South Africa, which is what a deteriorating conflict would lead to? And you, Witness for Peace? Do you implicitly stand shoulder to shoulder with Daniel Ortega and the Contras? Are you not collaborating with groups of arms dealers supplying the Contras with machine guns and bullets? Is this really what you want? We cannot do things just because they feel good, or because slogans... sound good.

Coke's South African divestment illness

As long ago as 1959, Nobel Peace Laureate Albert Luthuli, the president of the African National Congress (ANC), urged the international community to impose economic sanctions on South Africa. He argued that, "the economic boycott of South Africa will entail untold hardship for Africans. We do not doubt that. But if it is a method which shortens the day of bloodshed, the suffering to us will be a price we are willing to pay." South African organizations such as the ANC, the United Democratic Front (UDF), the Committee of South African Trade Unions (COSATU) and individuals like Bishop Desmond Tutu continue the appeal for immediate international sanctions on the government of South Africa. The divestment movement supports this call for complete cessation of economic ties with South Africa.

guest column

Besides writing to members of Congress, boycotts of companies with ties in South Africa can also have an effect. To further the push toward complete divestment from South Africa, the Anti-Apartheid Network of Notre Dame has decided to join the already-established boycott against the Coca-Cola Bottling Company. Why is this boycott necessary? After all, Coke claimed to have disinvested from South Africa in 1986. However, the Coke divestment was not "the real thing." First, Coke's "divestment" plan merely involves selling its bottling plants to South African investors often its own managers to create a new company called Amalgamated Beverages, and moving its syrup plant to neighboring Swaziland, a black-administered kingdom dependent on South Africa. Second, Coke sells its syrup to Amalgamated Beverages in South Africa, thus enhancing the holdings while it continues to do business, make profits and support the apartheid state through corporate taxation.

Third, despite claims of divestment, Coke continues to have the largest share of the South African soft drink industry (60 percent of sales).

Fourth, the pension fund of Amalgamated Beverages is invested in the South African armaments industry.

Fifth, Coke has not cut its economic ties with South Africa. Its new economic relationship with South Africa is "pseudo - divestment." Coke's example is setting a dangerous precedent, which has already been followed by companies such as IBM and General Motors.

What can members of the Notre Dame community do to combat this problem? Join the National Boycott of Coca-Cola products. Products to boycott, which are sold right here on this campus, include: Coke, Diet Coke, Tab, Sprite, Fanta and Ramblins' Rootbeer soft drinks; Five-Alive, Hi-C and Minute Maid juices.

Remember a percentage of every 50 cents you put in a Coke machine goes to support the racist government in South Africa. Be conscientious. Support the Boycott.

Field hockey fate dishonest

Dear Editor

We have been told that the decision to cancel the varsity field hockey program at Notre Dame is irrecoverable. I suppose there really is nothing more to say. There is only this.

In the winter of 1987 I remember Jill Lindenfeld (the coach) discussing the possibility of starting a field hockey team. She had just returned from South Africa and was convinced that the University should support this new sports program. She wanted to find girls to form a team and the team would be successful. She wanted the female players to be successful in this sport.

As a result of the hard work put into this endeavor, a team was finally formed. We were the first members of this team. We went to training camps and to recruiting clinics to try to find more girls. We were very excited about field hockey.

In the fall of 1988, the athletic department announced that field hockey would be cut because of budget restrictions. We were very upset. I don't think anyone could have foreseen this when the freshman preparing to transfer to Notre Dame in order to participate in field hockey programs (and think of other players who would have transferred elsewhere had they known this coming), I can't help but think these girls thought they were coming to a school to play hockey and get a good education at a University that prides itself on having a sense of human care and honesty.

In the autumn the athletic department didn't worry, and the field hockey team members played their hearts out for their school. By the end of the season the softball field had been installed.

In defense of the CILA program

Dear Editor:

The following article is being presented in defense of the CILA program begun and presently being presented by all of the students in the Mencer's column concerning the Irish hockey team in the Feb. 4 issue. The following quote is from an article by D.L. Stewart in the Dec. 9 issue of the South Bend Tribune.

"...it was exciting to do something in defense of the CILA program..."

In defense of the CILA program, Mary Wagner, an athlete in field hockey, presents her case against the CILA program. Mary argues that the decision to cancel the field hockey program was made because of budget restrictions, not because of a lack of interest or talent on the part of the players. She suggests that the athletic department should have been more transparent in its decision-making process and that the players should have been given more information about the rationale behind the decision.

Mary writes: "In the autumn the athletic department didn't worry, and the field hockey team members played their hearts out for their school. By the end of the season the softball field had been installed." This statement highlights the idea that the athletic department prioritized other sports over field hockey, leading to a lack of investment in the program.

Mary's argument is supported by her own personal experience as a player. She states: "I suppose there really is nothing more to say. There is only this. In the winter of 1987 I remember Jill Lindenfeld (the coach) discussing the possibility of starting a field hockey team. She had just returned from South Africa and was convinced that the University should support this new sports program. She wanted to find girls to form a team and the team would be successful. She wanted the female players to be successful in this sport."

This demonstrates Mary's commitment to the sport and her disappointment at its cancellation. She also highlights the role of the athletic department in not providing adequate support and resources to the field hockey team.

Mary concludes: "I can't help but think these girls thought they were coming to a school to play hockey and get a good education at a University that prides itself on having a sense of human care and honesty."

Mary's letter is an example of how personal experience can influence one's advocacy for a cause. Her story provides a nuanced perspective on the decision-making process behind the cancellation of the field hockey program and raises important questions about the priorities and transparency of the athletic department.
Calgary prepares to host Games

CALGARY, Alberta More athletes, including U.S. bobsledders and speed skaters, converged on Calgary Monday for the Winter Olympics, just ahead of a storm that was expected to drop as much as eight inches of snow in the nearby mountains.

As of noon Monday, 377 of the 1,684 athletes registered to compete in the Games had arrived in this southern Alberta cowtown and oil center of 500,000. "The Games begin on Saturday," said Calgary organizing committee vice president Juan Antonio Samaranch.

Along with athletes and team officials, tourists by the thousands also crowded into town, some of whom would need help from a crisis committee hastily put together by the city to deal with problems arising from a booking agency scandal in which up to 5,000 people could be left without hotel rooms.

International Olympic Committee president Juan Antonio Samaranch also officially opened the IOC's 93rd Session Monday evening with a speech tough on drugs and easy going on politics.

"An inch or two of snow fell ever Calgary Sunday night. Environment Canada, this country's equivalent to the National Weather Service, said arctic air would drop afternoon temperatures to around 0 degrees, and as much as 8 inches of snow could fall overnight in the mountain areas.

With temperatures expected to rise back above freezing by Wednesday, there was a potential problem at the two Rocky Mountain ski venues: Canmore, site of Nordic events, and Nakiska, site of Alpine events.

John Rule, venue chairman at Canmore, said a few inches of new snow would not be a problem, "as long as we don't get a big dump."

If too much snow falls on the ski trails, it will have to be either removed or packed down.

"We're always packing it, walking it and grooming it," Alpine venue chairman Leo MacEachern said of the ski trails. "That's just part of the game. This won't be enough snow to give us any trouble."

MacEachern said the Alpine trails were ready for racing.

"We would have liked to have races two days ago," MacEachern said. "It's beautiful, just beautiful. This is just what we want every visiter to this country to see so they can understand what we're all about."

The city of Calgary, meantime, formed a committee to help with housing and transportation for visitors stranded by the local booking agency World Marketing Services Inc.Officials estimated that about 3,000 tourists bought tickets, rooms and transportation through the agency, whose local representatives disappeared last week.

Police are investigating to understand what we're all about."

The Winter Olympics are set to take off in Calgary, Alberta this weekend. Calgary officials are batting problems with accommodations, but are pleased with the weather conditions. See story at left.

Calgary Police Sgt. Len Esler said his department had interviewed Richard Allan, World Marketing's operations director who disappeared from his office last week.

"We're not at the point where we can make a decision whether there's a civil or criminal problem," Esler said.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the IOC's session, Samaranch called drug abuse "part of the disease."

"We can tell everyone in the world that we are doing our best to prevent it," he said.

While no countries are boycotting Calgary, three nations -North Korea, Cuba and Seychelles -have announced plans to stay away from the Seoul Summer Games as a form of political protest.

Temple jumps to top spot in Associated Press Poll

Associated Press

Temple became the fifth team to hold the top spot this season when the Owls earned their first-ever No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press college basketball poll on Monday.

Temple, 18-1, jumped from fifth to first with 23 first-place votes and 1,204 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters after a week that saw 13 teams in the Top Twenty lose at least one game.

Purdue, 19-2, improved from sixth to second with 16 first-place votes and 1,181 points after beating then-No. 11 Michigan 91-87 on Sunday.

Arizona, which had held the No. 1 position for six weeks, including the last four in a row, fell to third with 15 first-place votes and 1,162 points, 28 more than Oklahoma, which jumped from seventh. The Sooners, 20-2, won both their Eight Conference games last week, beating Kansas and Missouri.

Arizona suffered its second defeat in 21 games when it lost a Pac-10 game at Stanford. It was the first conference loss for the Wildcats.

Pittsburgh, the only other team to receive first-place votes, finished with two and 927 points after beating then-No. 20 St. John’s in its only game of the week. Pitt, 16-2, retained first place in the Big East with a 6-1 record.

North Carolina, 16-3, tied two spots to sixth with 906 points, five more than Nevada-Las Vegas. UNLV was second last week, but lost to Cal Santa Barbara for the second time this season. The Runnin’ Rebels, 20-1, had a chance to take the No. 1 spot after Arizona’s loss, but failed, as did Brigham Young, 17-1.

BYU, the last major undefeated team in the nation, suffered its first loss of the season Saturday at Alabama-Birmingham and fell from third into a tie for eighth with Duke at 859 points.

Duke, 16-3, won three games last week, but the Blue Devils were beaten at home by North Carolina State 77-74.

Kentucky, 16-3, rounded out the Top Ten for the second straight week with 749 points, 46 more than Syracuse.

Following Syracuse in the Second Ten were Michigan, 16-3, Michigan State, 16-3, Kansas, 16-3, Wisconsin, 17-2, and Minnesota, 16-3.

Last week’s Second Ten were Michigan, Syracuse, Iowa, Georgia Tech, Michigan State, Illinois, Connecticut and Michigan State.

PHILADELPHIA - The slumping Philadelphia 76ers fired Coach Matt Guokas Monday for failing to win with the team they said he designed, and replaced him with assistant Jim Lynam.

Lynam takes over Tuesday night when the sub-.500 team that has lost seven of its last nine and 11 straight on the road opens the second half of the NBA season in Atlanta against the Hawks.

Owner Harold Katz blamed Guokas for the 76ers’ slide from seventh. The Sooners, including the last four in a row, have lost at least one game.

In making the announcement, Nash said, "Matty is a guy who contributed a great deal, but this is part of the package that comes with the territory of being a coach. When things are not going the way you want, coaches go. You bring someone in to try and right the ship."

Guokas, who was told of the change Sunday evening, was not at the news conference. He was not immediately available for comment.

Guokas had been the Sixers’ coach since June 13, 1985, succeeding Billy Cunningham. Three days later, he hired Lynam, who previously had been an assistant in Portland and head coach of the San Diego and Los Angeles Clipper.

The Sixers enter the second half of the season with a 20-23 record in second place, 11 games behind the leading Boston Celtics in the Atlantic Division. They have made less than 50 percent of their field goals in 11 consecutive games, and the opposition has been shooting against them as a 60 percent clip.

Contributing factors to the team’s woes included Andrew Toney’s chronic foot problems, and a back injury that has sidelined starting forward Cliff Robinson for the last seven games.

All-Star forward Charles Barkley missed two recent games with a sprained left ankle, but appeared in the last two games before the All-Star break.

The 76ers’ problems started after Guokas took over. Bobby Jones and Julius Erving retired, and then came the controversy over Lynam, one of the team’s dominating centers.

The 76ers sent the 6'10 Malone, Terry Coles and two No.1 draft choices to the Washington Bullets for center Jeff Ruland and Robinson.

Ruland played five games and suffered a knee injury that forced him to retire. The 76ers have been struggling without a big center ever since. They have tried Jim McCormick, Tony McNamara, Hin sons and last year’s top draft choice, Chris Welp. Welp suffered a knee injury that has sidelined him for the season.

BC rallies to top St. John's

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Dana Barros scored 22 points, including five during a 12-0 run in the final four minutes, as Boston College rallied to beat St. John's 80-76 Monday night, sending the Redmen to their third straight Big East defeat.

St. John's, 16-4 and 5-5 in the conference, was beaten by Pittsburgh and Syracuse last week. The Redmen lost three straight in 1983-84, falling to Villanova, Georgia and Providence.

The Eagles, 13-9 and 7-7, led most of the game but fell behind 71-68 on a 3-point goal by Greg Harrington with 2:05 left in the televised game.

Harvey followed with a layup after his own steal to open St. John's lead to 73-68 with 3:23 left.

Bob Francis then made a three-point play to pull the Eagles to within 3 with 2:04 left, sparking a 12-0 run. Barros regained the lead on a 3-point goal, his third of the game, with 1:48 left. The way was opened by Tyronne Scott, who scored 10 points, made a pair of free throws with 1:44 left to stretch the lead to three. James Denton added two more foul shots and Barros made a layup to open the lead to seven.

Erlander Lewis' 3-point goal at the buzzer pulled St. John's within 76-73 with 1:02 left.

“We'll be stepping up to keep close track of military movements in Korea, the officials said. There is a chance, however, that a small number of additional Air Force planes might rotate through the country during the time of the games, the source added.

“Basically, we just don't want the Korean Americans to forget we’re there and that we’re even more ready than usual,” said another official.

Last month, South Korea and the United States announced they were going to be on guard to avoid tempting North Korea. That exercise, starting Tuesday and lasting until early May, will involve 60,000 U.S. soldiers and 140,000 South Korean troops.

Navy to protect at Games

Washington: The United States Navy's reserve football team will conduct naval exercises of the South Korean coast next fall as part of a campaign to deter North Korea from disrupting the Olympic Games in Seoul, administration officials said Monday.

The officials, who agreed to diking public interest in the details, said they were working toward a complete Dog-printing t-shirts awarded for working out.

Proof of insurance is required for all contact and non-contact sports. Forms and more information are available in the NVA office.

Students, faculty and staff may rent cross-country ski equipment from NVA, Thursday through Sunday at the Rockeye Memorial, inside the golf pro shop entrance. Check out are available from 9-30:30 p.m. Thursday, Saturday and from 12-1 p.m. Saturday Check in takes place 4:30-5:30 p.m. Friday, Sunday and 12-1 p.m. Saturday.

Rates are $3 overnight, $5 for two nights, $6 for three nights and $7 for Saturday. Noon-5 p.m. There is a $5 late fee for equipment returned after 5 p.m. Sun.

The Joyce center weight room is available for student use. The hours are: 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 6:30-10:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 1-4 p.m. Sunday.

maybe she wasn't accustomed to it. The third-year Notre Dame coach said: "I think that attitude might have rendered military assistance in South Korea, the request to be a host, North Korea would be more likely to attempt to disrupt the military assault across the Korean coast that straddles the border.

The administration sources said today they did not disagree with that assessment, but that U.S. and South Korean military forces had to be on guard to avoid tempting North Korea. The United States also sent in additional troops, one of the units, according to the Pentagon officials, has pledge cards available for the Century Club until March 2. Members fill out a pledge card at NVA, pick an aerobic sport, choose a goal to work toward and complete a log book. Free t-shirts are awarded for working out.

A U.S. Navy battle group consisting of an aircraft carrier and escorting warships will sail with 16 McDonnell Douglas F/A-18s and U.S. Air Force planes and units, according to the Pentagon officials.

The North Koreans have been training to disrupt the recent political turmoil in South Korea while at the same time competing in some of the Olympic events. After being rebuffed on the request to be a host, North Korea announced that its athletes will boycott the games.

Pentagon officials said North Korea would be more likely to attempt to disrupt the games using terrorism than a military assault across the Demilitarized Zone.
Men take second in volleyball tourney

It's that time of the season when the Volleyball Club picks up the pace and finds out just how good it really is. So far, coach Bill Anderson likes the results.

The Irish capped off a busy weekend with a second-place finish in a 20-team tourney at Michigan Saturday after downing Miami (Ohio) Friday, 15-4, 15-6, 11-13, 15-7. At Michigan, the Irish won three of their first four pool matches to advance to the quarterfinals.

They defeated Indiana State, Worcester College and Calvin College in straight games and split games with Ohio State. In the quarterfinals, the Irish downed Eastern Illinois 15-6, 15-12.

Notre Dame then got the chance it had been waiting for—the opportunity to play the host Wolverines, a team that beat the Irish a week ago in the championship of the Rich O'Leary Classic. The Irish responded with a 15-5, 14-16, 15-12 victory and a match with Ohio State for the title. The Buckeyes, though, downed the tired Irish squad 15-4, 15-9 to win the tourney. Mike Shimota was named to the all-tourney team for Notre Dame.

Greg Guffey
Club Corner

Even with the loss in the final game, Anderson was ecstatic about the success of the team during the weekend.

"We played a great tourney," Anderson said. "The Michigan game was the most important since they beat us a week ago. I guess we put all of our energy into that one game because against Ohio State, we just ran out of energy. I'm not disappointed about the way things ended."

The Irish are not yet to take their conference's final standings, but it is clear that they have improved significantly over the season.

Hockey All-Stars taking the game seriously

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS - In a game that is basically for show, Glen Sather thinks that Mike Keenan might be considering Tuesday night's NHL All-Star Game a little too seriously.

However, that doesn't stop him from admiring the Philadelphia Flyers' coach.

"He's a competitor," said the coach of the Edmonton Oilers who will lead the Campbell Conference in the NHL's showcase game at The Arena. "I like guys who don't like to lose, no matter what the circumstances."

"I liked Bob Johnson when he was in the league for the same reason. He was a very intense guy. I miss Bob."

While Johnson, the former Calgary Flames' coach, was receiving the Lester Patrick Award for his services to hockey, Sather held court at an All-Star news conference Monday that included most of the 40 All-Star players.

Included were Edmonton goaltender Grant Fuhr and Pittsburgh center Mario Lemieux, who will use the tourney as a warm-up to the Wales voting in the starting lineup. Meanwhile, many of the players agreed with Sather's sentiments regarding the purpose of an All-Star Game.

"We're not here to win," he said. "This is a showcase for the league. I just hope it's a good game."

Sather was not entirely enchanted with Keenan's picks that filled out the Wales Conference following the fans' vote.

"I'm not necessarily here to win, but if Keenan is, I just hope we have a good game, one the fans enjoy.

In defense of his choices for the team, Keenan said he was looking for "leadership qualities" as much as anything in his players.

I picked three players from the Montreal Canadiens (Larry Robinson, Mats Naslund and Patrick Roy) because they were in first place at the time, he said. "For the same reason, I selected three from my own team (Mark Howe, Kjell Samuelsson, and former Notre Dame star Dave Poulin). We were leading the division at the time."

The Flyers also placed goaltender Ron Hextall, fan favorite in the Wales voting, in the All-Star lineup.

Irish swimmers beat St. Louis U. and ORU

Also lose to Ball State in tough weekend action

The Notre Dame men's and women's swimming and diving teams participated in three meets over the weekend, winning two and losing one. Greg Guffey details the action at right.

Notre Dame is walking tall this week after defeating the highly-ranked Cornhuskers of Nebraska last Saturday in Lincoln.

Expecting a tight dual meet, the Notre Dame wrestling team returned with a key team victory that will highlight the '88 dual meet record.

"The real key thing that we started out with was Andy," said Notre Dame coach Fran McCann. "Andy's win set the tone for the meet." At 118 pounds, Andy Radenbaugh defeated a "pretty good sized" wrestler, said McCann. "Andy's win set the tone for the meet." At 142 pounds, senior Ron Winnikowski won by a decision.

Junior Chris Geneser collected the team's only pin of the meet (177 pounds).

Dan Delaney of the most crucial match of the meet, however, was won by Irish freshman Todd Layton.

"I think the big match for us was Layton. Todd did what he had to do to beat the guy," commented senior co-captain Jerry McCann, who struggled to a 3-3 tie at 135 pounds. Layton defeated a wrestler ranked ninth in the nation. "One freshman had to win," according to McCann.

Also spotlighting the dual meet was George Logsdon's victory at 190 pounds. Coach McCann commented that the match iced the sin for the Irish.

Senior Jerry Russo concluded "George and Layton picked up the slack and really performed." George Logsdon has been working himself back into the groove after a temporary abstain in the army. McCann feels Logsdon has been a healthy shot in the arm for his team. Logsdon proved his match to be the final word for the Irish against the 'Huskies.

The only Irish losses were dealt to Dave Smith, Mark Gerardi, and Todd Tomazic, who have fallen just short of a victory. Welsh, though, has not lost hope for the women.

"We're swimming aggressively, swimming to win and going faster," Welsh said. "We're getting faster as we go. We're turning into a gudy, competitive team." Welsh will not have time to make many adjustments with the men's team as Bradley in-\n volves Rolf's Aquatics Center tonight for a dual meet. The women are idle until Friday when Illinois-Chicago comes to town.

"It (Bradley) is a team that has faced some hardships this year," Welsh said. "Their coach retired this year after a serious illness, and the new coach started midway through the season. They're a smaller team than us, and we have been able to use depth to our advantage. We expect the Irish to bounce back with resilience." The men fell behind early against Ball State and could never recover. The Cardinals took the top two spots in the first event, the 400 medley relay, and led 13-2.

"We knew what to expect, but we just couldn't handle it," Welsh said of the Cardinals. "It's always a big disadvantage to be behind 13-2 after the first event. That was one thing we could have won. We were beaten and beaten by a good team." Taking firsts in the meet for the Irish were John Koselka in the 50 freestyle, Jim Byrne in the 400 individual medley and Paul Godfrey in the 500 freestyle.

The Irish dominated the three-way meet at St. Louis. Adam Ritschel defeated Notre Dame with firsts in the 1- and 3-meter diving events, qualifying for the NCAA Championships in the 1-meter event. The Irish lost to Ball State in diving by the 500 butterfly, Bill Jackoboice the 100 butterfly, Brian Kini the 100 backstroke and Todd Gaffney the 200 freestyle. The team of Jackoboice, Tom Ponn, Jeff Grace and Rogelio Miro won the 400 free relay.

The team jumped out early against Oral Roberts and St. Louis and never looked back on their way to the two victories. The Irish only failed to win first place in two events.

Traci Oudendrop and Andrea Bonny led the rout with two firsts each. Bonny won both diving events, while O'Connell took the 500 free and the 100 breast. Other Irish winners included Christy Moxton.

Cahill falters twice in Rolex Tournament

GeCe Cahill met a lot of old friends at last weekend's National Rolex Indoor Championships, but it wasn't the most pleasant of reunions.

Cahill, the top seeded player on the Notre Dame women's tennis team, lost her first two matches in a tournament that featured several players she had seen in previous competitions.

"I knew a lot of people from Junior Nationals that I hadn't seen in a long time," said the freshman from Hinsdale, III. "I used to practice with a lot of them before they went to college, and it was great seeing them again.

In Cahill's first match, she faced Elizabeth Alexander from the University of Georgia. Cahill had a first-set lead, but Alexander came back to take the set 7-5. Alexander won a 7-5, 6-3 straight-set decision in a three-hour marathon.

"The people I played beat me, but they weren't really better than me," said Cahill. "It was frustrating."

Trinity University's Jane Holdren, ranked 30th in the nation in the Volvo pre-season rankings, beat Cahill 6-2, 6-0 in her second match.

"I knew her from Juniors, and she's a pretty good player," said Cahill. "She was pretty much better than me."

Irish coach Michele Gelfand attributed Cahill's lack of success at the Rolex to inexperience, and considered the tournament a major learning experience for her prize recruit.

"Even though there were a lot of people she's played in Juniors, they were a few years older than her, and they had a different style of play that
