Candidates for student body president debate one another in the Hesburgh Library auditorium Sunday night. The elections for student government offices are being held Tuesday. Story at right.

Pravda proposes open voting

Associated Press

MOSCOW - Communist Party activists proposed in an article on the front page of Pravda on Sunday that more than one candidate be put forward for top party posts and that all party members be allowed to vote.

The suggestions, appearing in the party's major newspaper, came from party activists in the Ukraine.

Although the proposals do not have the party's formal approval, they will appear at the 16th All-Union Party Conference, a rare gathering of the nation's Communists to be held June 28 in Moscow.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has said electoral reform will be a key topic at the conference. He has talked about many of the same suggestions printed in Pravda, beginning at a plenary meeting of the party's Central Committee in January 1986.

At that session, he raised the issue of secret ballots and discussed the possibilities of giving party members a choice in voting for top party officials.

He also criticized the system that allows bureaucrats to remain in party posts for life while performing little work. He talked about broadening the nomination procedure for government elections.

Some of the suggestions have been adopted experimentally. Last June, "multiple-candidate elections" for local party posts are being held by closing remarks from each candidate.

The first candidate to speak was Michael Keegan. Keegan said his campaign is based on the premise that student government should take "an active role in finding out the ideas of students." He criticized the current administration's "passive approach" to receiving student input and stated that, if elected, he would establish a "Student Input Council" to actively seek out students' ideas and opinions.

Candidate Mary Berger spoke next. She stressed her ticket's experience and diversity, stating that she and her running mate are from two different classes, two different areas of campus, and two different organizations in student government - Student Senate and Student Cabinet.

Repealed references were made by her and her opponents to her platform's promise to serve for cable television in Notre Dame's dormitory rooms.

SBP candidates outline goals

Nine candidates tried to distinguish themselves from their opponents Sunday night at the debate between the candidates for student body president in the Hesburgh Library auditorium.

Each candidate was given two and one half minutes for an opening statement. This was followed by four questions: two from WVFI news director Lyndsey Strand and two from The Observer Editor-in-Chief Kevin Kecker and student editor Cruise Murphy, editor-in-chief elect.

Following these questions, there was a half hour allocated for questions directed to specific candidates from members of the audience. This was followed by closing remarks from each candidate.

In Brief

Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware was listed in satisfactory condition Sunday after undergoing surgery to correct a burst aneurysm in an artery supplying blood to his brain. Biden, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and a former Democratic presidential contender, had been listed as "seriously ill" following eight hours of surgery. Friday. The senator last June announced he was a candidate for president, but withdrew from the race in September following disclosures that he had borrowed, without attribution, a campaign slogan of a British politician and had exaggerated his academic accomplishments. - Associated Press

Get the scoop on campus candidates

As everyone who has entered a dorm bathroom recently can attest, there are more, and more, banners and posters throughout campus, asking "Have you voted?". For which their posters are already being read. Equally uncommitted seem to be the Keogan and Eiden candidates. In the posters I saw, both are pointing in different directions to unseen people off camera (the other candidates?) and Dodd has an unmistakable "don't look at me" expression. Assertiveness is obviously not the major appeal this ticket.

But then Berger and Carrigan go much further than to point to the other candidates, saying you have to "be a nut" to elect them. The basis of this slogan seems to be a Doonesbury strip.

Accusations can candidate Pat Robertson called from his rivals in the closing hours of the increasingly bitter campaign for the New Hampshire primary. With Republicans George Bush and Bob Dole running neck-and-neck, the five GOP candidates gathered for an hour-long League of Women Voters debate.

Rep. Jack Kemp of New York gave a preview of his approach, charging that Robertson says “off-the-wall things” and that Dole is behind a national economic commission that will suggest increasing taxes.

Hiller reviews GOP, supports Kemp

Congressman John Hiler spoke of the upcoming presidential elections, the Republican party, and his own political experiences in a lecture in the Hesburgh Library Lounge Saturday afternoon. Hiler, a Representative of Indiana’s Third District, said he was optimistic about the Republican party’s candidates for 1988.

“I believe the American people, the people of Indiana and the people of this community appreciate the fact that the Republican party has gone a long way towards alleviating some of the major problems that faced this country when the country turned to the Republican party in 1980 and elected Ronald Reagan,” said Hiler.

“The strong leadership that Reagan has been able to show has helped to base the Republican party,” he said.

Hiller expressed some disappointment, however, with Republican candidates George Bush and Robert Dole. “They are not people who support Senator Dole and those of you who support the vice president. I wish you would send those gentlemen telegrams asking them the debate we are having rather than debate who’s got the bigger trust fund and who came from better or worse conditions when they were young,’” he said.

Hiller supports Jack Kemp. “Jack recognizes the fact that if the Republican party is to become the majority party in this country we are going to have to win the support,” he said. “Jack faces an uphill battle on Tuesday, and he may not still be in the race on Wednesday morning. His time will come. If it is not ’88, it will come some time.”

Hiller said that Pat Robertson’s candidacy brought in a large block of votes, which is good for the party. But, Hiler said, “were he to get the nomination, it would be a very tough election in ’88” because of some of the statements Robertson has made on the television show.

Despite the personal attacks used in some Republican campaigns, Hiler stated his firm belief that Republican candidates were far more qualified than their Democratic opponents. He said, “Richard Gephardt in the last four years has changed his position on a lot of things.” Hiler called special attention to Gephardt’s change from pro-life to pro-choice on the issue of abortion.

Paul Simon, according to Hiler, is a “nice man” but “just dead wrong on the issues.” And Dukakis’ Massachusetts miracle would not have occurred without the strength of Reagan’s strong economy, he said.

Hiler said of the Republican candidates, “You don’t have to look to what they said last week or the week before, but we are talking about the issues.” Hiler praised Bush’s candidates for not changing their positions quickly and standing staunchly by their beliefs.

According to Hiler, the race will not be an easy one. “We are not only going to present a more forceful and more articulate presentation of the kinds of things we believe the country needs,” he said.

Hiler knows a lot about close races. The Congressman won his fourth-term seat last election by a mere 47 votes. “In politics to win by 47 votes is worse than kissing your sister,” he said.

Hiler plans to run a more aggressive campaign next election.

Libraries’ random survey to review, improve service

By MIKE O’CONNELL

Notre Dame’s libraries recently sent out more than 700 questionnaires to a random sample of undergraduates, graduates and faculty to evaluate how the libraries are meeting students’ needs. Maureen Gleason, assistant director for Collection Development and Coordinator of Technical Services, said, “We want just those who use the library all of the time,” Gleason said.

The survey is part of an external review of all the academic departments over the next few years by the Office of Advanced Studies, said Gleason.

The survey’s purpose is to find out which parts of the library students are using, and the amount of time they spend there, she said. The rest of the survey is an evaluation of library services, such as library instruction, how services can be improved, and any other improvements.

Reviewers will make recommendations to the administration on the areas which require the most attention.

“We want to make the libraries more accessible and encourage students to use them,” she said. The action we will take will depend on the strength of the responses. We are looking for strong signals on what needs to be improved from all the students,” she said.

Applications should include a personal statement and a brief resume.

were held in several areas. The government called the system democratization, although all candidates must be approved by the Communist Party, and no other parties can be created. In

In the June experiments, party members in one of every 25 voting districts chose among more than one candidate for local governing councils. Runoff elections had to be held in 50% of the Soviet Union’s 52,000 districts because candidates tied.

Although there has been no firm indication whether the experiment will be expanded, continuing articles in the press indicate the idea is still very much alive. The party conference in June could set the stage for making the system permanent and nationwide.

Gorbachev has also brought a little democracy to the working place. The Soviet parliament, known as the Supreme Soviet, last June approved competitive elections for managers of state enterprises to make them more accountable.

In its report on a meeting of Kiev University Communists, Pravda said there would be a diversity of views if more than one candidate ran for party first secretary.

Currently, only top party bodies elect the first secretary, and any debate about whom to choose is held behind closed doors. The first secretary is the top party official. The post exists at the city, regional, and republic level.

has responded by opening up the U.S. market to Mexican textile, leather goods and other products.

De la Madrid has strongly pushed the market-opening moves as a way to help modernize the sickly Mexican economy and pull it out of its lengthy economic crisis.

A perennial source of irritation had been the U.S. attitude that Mexico was not doing its best in the fight against illegal drug trafficking because of official corruption.

But the Mexicans now have practically forced the United States to admit that there is corruption on both sides of the Rio Grande and that the drug fight must be a joint effort.

Mexico is a large producer of marijuana and heroin for the U.S. market and a relay point for South American cocaine.

Secretary of State George Shultz stressed the importance of the anti-narcotics campaign, saying Colombia was an example of a situation where drug traffickers can become a powerful and disruptive factor in society.

Clever pilot foils hijacking attempt

Associated Press

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania A Tanzania Airways pilot tricked four hijackers into believing he had flown them to Kenya, then landed his plane at a Tanzanian airport where troops overpowered and arrested the young men Sunday.

Capt. Dominic Ngandile also managed to send a secret distress signal to the Dar es Salaam airport, which turned off its terminal and runway lights, making it look like a small Kenyan airport, authorities said.

After landing, the pilot stalled the assailants, telling them they would have to wait until daylight to refuel the plane. Just before dawn army troops stormed the plane and arrested the hijackers.

The hijackers stabbed Ngandile in the neck and hands after they realized they had been tricked. His co-pilot, Christopher Minika, suffered cuts on his hands. The injuries were not serious, said airline and security sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Among the 70 passengers on the Saturday night flight were two senior government officials Home Affairs Minister Muhidin Kinario and Hamad Rashid Mohamed, deputy minister for finance, economic affairs and planning. None of the passengers were hurt.

Officials said the four hijackers arrested Sunday made no political statements or claimed any affiliations and that their only demand was to be flown to London.

The Boeing 727 carried a crew of six on the internal flight between Dar es Salaam, the nation’s capital, and Kilimanjaro, a northern town near the Kenya border and the site of Mount Kilimanjaro, Africa’s highest mountain.

“The government-owned news agency, said the four hijackers were from Zanzibar, the semi-autonomous Indian Ocean island nation that with the mainland forms the Republic of Tanzania. It said they were aged between 17 and 21 in a wide arc and headed back to Dar es Salaam.

“After takeoff, three youths stormed into the cockpit and announced that the flight had been hijacked and that they were flying to London via Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and Egypt,” government-owned Radio Tanzania reported.

Ngandile told the hijackers that the plane did not have enough fuel to reach Addis Ababa and suggested they refuel instead at a small airport at Ludwar, Kenya, the sources said.

The hijackers agreed. Instead of heading for Kenya, Ngandile flew the plane to Dares Salaam, which was the site of the incident of anonymity.

The hijackers demanded that the flight be flown to London and the young men were arrested.

The Boeing 727 landed about 10:30 p.m. and taxied to the old Dar es Salaam terminal.

South Bend patrol experience shows police officer at work

By ERIC M. BERGAMO
Senior Staff Reporter

Editor’s note: Eric Bergamo rode patrol with Capt. Patrick Cottrell, East Sector supervisor, Friday night. This is his report.

A Friday night patrol can get busy at any time. According to Capt. Patrick Cottrell.

"On Friday night it can start jumping right after roll call," Cottrell said. "In fact, a lot of times it can start on day (shift)."

Fridays in the winter, however, tend to be less hectic because of the cold, he said, adding when the weather is warmer calls increase.

Because Cottrell is the only captain on duty this Friday evening, he must supervise all three of the city’s police sectors: East, West and South.

People may not realize the extent of responsibilities of the police officer, Cottrell said.

"The police officers in this town are not only responsible for the citizens that live here . . . we’re responsible for everyone that lives here and students that live here . . . plus people that are visiting, too," Cottrell said.

On a normal night there are six to seven patrol officers covering the sector. One Evening, Cottrell said, adding that one or two officers may also patrol the sector.

The East Sector alone covers a large area of South Bend, Cottrell explained. Chapin Street and Portage Avenue form the western boundary. The northern boundary runs along Angel M. Edwards Avenue, and the southern end is the southern edge of the city that have problems with crime, Cottrell said.

The 1200 block of West Washington Avenue, lined with boarded-up buildings and rundown buildings, is referred to as "The Shooting Gallery" for the high number of shootings there in the past year, he explained. The Southeast Neighborhood is also a big problem. South Michigan Avenue between Broadway and Bronson, where bars such as Ramona’s Car Wash and the Ace-Hi Lounge are located, is where South Bend’s prostitutes ply their trade, Cottrell said.

Even the downtown area is not immune from crime, suffering from a high number of car break-ins and purse stolen. Cottrell said.

Doyle-Paese ticket deserves support

This year no student body presidential ticket definitively stands above the rest. Of the nine, however, the ticket of Tom Doyle and Mike Paese is the best suited for the offices of student body president and vice president.

Although their ideas are not different from those of their opponents, or those of years past, Doyle and Paese bring the freshest attitude and approach toward achieving their goals.

Doyle’s enthusiasm, sincerity and composure are his greatest assets. These attributes make him the most qualified for a position which entails communicating to students as well as administrators.

During the campaigning process, year after year students are promised cable television, co-educational dormitories, or laundry machines in male dorms. These promises, however, are not fulfilled and often forgotten.

Doyle’s sincerity is convincing in that he will seek out student needs and not forget them if elected. While Doyle may not accomplish all his goals, his enthusiasm indicates that he will at least follow up on his promises.

Make him your choice on Tuesday.

Abortion issue warrants analysis

Dear Editor:

Mr. Gundersen stated in his Feb. 5 letter that "ineffective abortion is an economical choice." I heartily agree, and think that he sorely needs to broaden his view of choice.

Mr. Gundersen referred to a Right to Life "sexist attitude." Apparently he has never heard of feminists for choice. Concerned Women of America, the Eagle Forum, WEBA (Women Ex- plodied by Abortion) or any of the many other women's pro-life groups. Neither did he mention Birthright, Maternity Homes, Rachel post-abortion helplines or the multitude of problem and crisis pregnancy centers, including South Bend’s two Women’s Care Centers. Indeed, the Right to Life movement is very much for the right of all women, including those little wo­men in the womb. Pro-lifers simply do not believe that a woman has the right to destroy the body and end the life of an innocent human being.

Mr. Gundersen would disagree here, for he referred to fetuses as "potential human beings" rather than "human beings." Come now, Mr. Gundersen, even the pro-abortionists recognize that the fetus is a human being. I quote from the Senate report, 97th Congress, S-158: "Physicians, biologists, and other scientists agree that conception marks the beginning of the life of a human being, that the fetus is alive and is a member of the human species. There is overwhelming agreement on this point in countless medical, biological, and scientific writings." The Supreme Court declared however that the unborn human being is not a "person" - in the same way that it declared that the 1857 Dred Scott case that blacks, though human beings, were not persons.

Mr. Gahn, in a Feb. 1 column, states that the millions of abortions today are "an atrocity comparable to the Nazi holocaust." Mr. Gundersen called this argument "ridiculous." But consider the following three excerpts: 1) "An unborn child likely to present heredity and transmissible defects may be destroyed." 2) "It had nothing to do with humanity it was a mass. I rarely saw them as individuals. It was always a huge mass." 3) "If you are going to kill all these people, at least take the brains out so that the material could be utilized." Quotes from modern day Nazi doctors. I am very well aware but in fact they are the words of the 1933 Hamburg Eugenics Court; Franz Stangle, the commandant of Treblinka; and Nazi doctor Julius Hallewalt. The vocabulary and actions of Nazis and abortionists are strikingly similar.

Both involve the "treatment," "removal" and "evacuation" of the "unwanted," the "defective," and the "economically or socially useless." Both also involve "experimentation." German doctors were killing institutionalized handicapped children in 1939. The murder quickly spread to include the learning disabled, the elderly, am­­ putees World War I veterans and even bed-wetters. In total, 300,000 "defec­tive" Aryans were killed. It was then that an entire race was termed defec­tive, and six million Jews were murdered. As was noted in the 1977 Cancer bulletin (vol. 29, no. 4), "In 1944 a physician in Germany could participate in "euthanasia" with legal sanction; in America he would have been a mur­ derer. In 1977 an American physician could participate in "euthanasia" with legal sanctions; in Germany he would be a murderer. We have come 360 degrees on the moral compass."

Dr. William Brennan’s "The Abortion Holocaust" describes in great detail the atrocities both Nazi and American abortionists. I recommend, in the interest of complete analysis, that Mr. Gundersen read it.

Isis Gallery shows students what's happening in art

Contrary to the belief of some non-art majors, the Isis Gallery is not the only art gallery on campus. Located on the third floor of the Riley Hall of Art and Design, the Isis Gallery offers a wide range of exhibits.

It is said that the Egyptian goddess Isis, after whom the gallery is named, once changed her appearance and continued to be venerated in her new forms. The same can be said of the Isis Gallery itself.

During 1970 a group of students established the gallery, located in the Old Fieldhouse. They initially displayed their own work but later began including the work of faculty members. Gradually, the faculty over took ownership and lending a more professional atmosphere.

The Isis Gallery moved to its present location in the spring of 1983. It is now operated by faculty advisor Richard Gray, assistant professor in Notre Dame's art department, and students enrolled in the gallery management class. The class is limited to five students and, although it is open to students in all majors, priority is given to junior and senior art majors.

Amy Taschler, a junior art major who is taking the class for a second semester, believes the presence of students from other concentrations is a definite benefit. "Everyone has seen a museum and has different ideas on how to approach an exhibition. They (non-art majors) contribute a lot of fresh ideas," she said.

Tuschler stressed that Gray is an advisor only—students take charge. It is a 'hands-on class.' As Gray said, "The idea behind the class is contact with the artists and their art. It is an experiential class in gallery management."

The students work as a group on the first show so that everyone gets a general idea of each task. After that, however, they rotate duties with each exhibit.

Major responsibilities include publicity, graphics, gallery preparation, and opening night arrangements. Work on the last exhibit of the semester counts as a final for the class, and students manage the entire show from start to finish.

Catholic education: a life-long process

You went to Catholic grade school. Catholic high school. C.C.D. and confirmation classes and now you take theology classes at a Catholic university. Should you need more Catholic education?

"I think it's a misnomer that everyone at Notre Dame is Catholic educated," said Sister Pat McCabe, S.C.S., director of religious education for Notre Dame's Office of Campus Ministry.

"Besides, religious education is a life-long process."

"For a long time in the Church, religious education was seen as mostly for children," McCabe continued. "Now we're seeing growth in our faith and it's seen as a life-long process."

The Catholic Faith Series is one of the educational programs that Campus Ministry offers to the Notre Dame community. The program presents a series of guest speakers who discuss issues related to the adult faith experience such as prayer, the Church, Scripture, sacraments and morality.

"All are topics we feel are basic to Catholicism," said McCabe.

In choosing this year's speakers, McCabe "did a lot of listening to students, seeing who they like."

The students also choose the series of shows for the following semester. They discuss ideas submitted by faculty members as well as their own proposals before voting.

Members of the class agree that the opportunity to work with professionals and their art is a great experience whether one is interested in religion or design. "If you're considering showing art in the future, this lets you see the reverse side," Taschler said, referring to the fact that students are involved in everything from hanging and lighting to organizing.

The class also agrees that the Isis Gallery has an important function in both university and local community.

Local residents as well as students attend opening nights and exhibitions. Faculty member Douglas Kinsey, an associate professor in the university's art department, adds, "It's nice to get people involved who aren't taking art classes."

Since the gallery is such a positive presence at the university, Gray and the students hope to re-establish a relationship with the Student Union Board. Presently, the Isis Gallery receives all of its funding from the art department.

Although student work is stillshown (thesis work will be exhibited at the end of the semester), the Isis Gallery tends to focus on new, emerging art from well known beginning artists.

Shows cover a broad range of media including drawing, painting, photography, sculpture, ceramics, fibers, industrial design, and environment.

As an alternate space for contemporary art, the Isis distinguishes itself from the Snite Museum which usually displays established or historical art. The Isis Gallery also offers more flexibility in scheduling.

According to Kinsey, "The Isis is so professional it's booked years in advance."

"The Max Drawings," an internationally recognized series by artist Seymour Abes, will be making a stop at Notre Dame en route from California to Vermont. The drawings document the increasing health of the artist's infant son Max over a period of 50 days. Max, who is now five years old, was born three months premature and was not expected to live. Kinsey says, "It's not a pretty subject matter," but he adds, "It shows the struggle to survive. Abes is the best known artist whose work we've exhibited this year."

As is the usual procedure for visiting artists, Abes gave a lecture on the February 8 opening of the show and held a workshop. Through his drawings, pastels, etchings, lithographs, and sculptures he has gained widespread critical acclaim. His work is included in collections of the Museum of Modern Art, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Smithsonian Institute and the British Museum of Art, among others.

Presently, Abes is an emeritus professor at the university of New Hampshire.

The Isis Gallery is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. For additional information about the current exhibition, on display through February 26, or upcoming events, contact the Department of Art, History and Design at 239-7602.

Students can also hear professors whose classes they are not able to take. A senior who attended last week's presentation agrees: "John Dunne is a resource that the entire student body should tap."

The lectures are held in the Keenan-Stanford chapel from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. on Sunday and Tuesday evenings. The speakers give the same talk on both nights so that as many people as possible can take advantage of the program. "Lots of people cross-over to a different night," said McCabe, "and that's O.K."

The format of the program allows for interaction with the speaker. After the talk, McCabe encourages the participants to introduce themselves to two or three other people around them and to raise any questions they might have about the speaker's presentation or the topic.

Students can pre-register at the Campus Ministry offices in Badin Hall or in the Hesburgh Library.

"I would like to challenge students to continue their religious education," said McCabe. "There are so many good opportunities out there and you've got to keep learning."
Penny stocks offer the risks and rewards of stock speculation

By JOHN WHOLIHAN
Business Writer

Editor’s Note: This is part of a continuing series on investment opportunities available to Notre Dame students.

"In my campaign, I Wanna make a quick buck!"

This is the common perception of "penny stocks." They are usually viewed as worthless stock, issued by a fly-by-night operation.

The series today will discuss penny stocks, an investment, the risks and rewards of this type of investment.

There are several companies that have grown enough financially to be listed by the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation System (NASDAQ). These stocks are listed everyday in the paper, and a regular customer can handle their purchase and sale.

The majority of penny stocks are small exchanges and are traded by what are called market makers. Generally, a market maker making institution is found by looking up the stock on the "pink sheets." Pink sheets are a listing of the non NASDAQ stocks, and although a person knows these stocks are listed, they are known among brokers as "pink sheets."" Penny stocks are also traded on smaller exchanges such as the OTC (for over the counter) market.

When one wishes to invest in a stock listed on one of these smaller exchanges may have to deal with a broker that specializes in smaller stocks.

There are a few characteristics that make a certain small exchange not a favorable investment. The first is an established pattern of earnings. Penny stocks are not traded if they have not established earnings. Another characteristic to look for is whether or not the company has any contracts with any other companies. A company that finds a new contract with another company may develop a new technology that can be favorably invested in.

There are many publications that cover penny stocks. The Penny Stock Journal is the penny stock what the Wall Street Journal is to New York stocks. Many penny stock newsletters provide the essential information for finding a broker, routinely follow stocks, and discuss new stock issues. The criteria for choosing a penny stockbroker are the same as the ones used in choosing a regular broker, though the levels of service will be lower.

IRISH PREPARES TO MEET CZECHS

CALGARY, Alberta - This U.S. hockey team is already one game up on the last one, but the coach wasn't sure the Americans Saturday night and beat them four years ago says the 1984 loss was no fluke.

"The 1984 team was a stronger team," Austrian coach Ludek Bukac said in the aftermath of the 10-0 loss to Saturday’s opening game. "The players were generally better skilled, they were a faster team, and it played with great emotion.

BUKAC COACHED THE CHECOSLOVAKIAN team, which beat the United States 4-1 in 1984 at Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

That loss was the second in a row for the Americans en route to a disappointing seventh-place finish, but the coach had nothing to do with lack of ability, Bukac said.

"The reason they didn't do a better job was that they had no pressure to win," because of the "Miracle on Ice" gold medal at Lake Placid in 1980, he said. They weren't able to play under the pressure.

The pressure will return quickly for the current U.S. team, which will face Czechoslovakia Monday night.

The third-seeded Czechoslovakia team is coming off a 5-0 win over Great Britain in the opening game by West Germany.

"I don't think the Czechs had a good day," U.S. coach Dave Peterson said. "They've been a strong. I guess that they'll react and come back strongly.

"There was no trouble getting up for the game," starting goateader Mike Richter said of the Austrian game.

ALLSTON BEACH - Bobby Allison raced to his third Daytona 500 victory Sunday, qualifying his son Davey to win the 50th edition of stock car racing's premier event.

The race was marred by a spectacular crash from which seven-time Daytona 500 winner Richard Petty miraculously escaped serious injury.

Petty, 30, skidded sideways coming off turn four and was hit and launched into the wall by Phil Borkdoll on the 106th lap. Petty's car pirouetted into the air, then barrel-rolled seven times, coming to rest on its wheels.

It was then sent spinning again after being hit by Brett Bodine's car. Eddie Bierschwale, A.J. Foyt, Rusty Wallace and Alan Kulwicki also were involved in the accident.

There were no other injuries, and Bierschwale, Wallace and Kulwicki were able to continue racing after repairs.

Petty was kept overnight at Halifax Medical Center for observation. The elderly Allison, already the oldest man to win a stock car event, became the first 56-year-old to win a 500-mile race. He won the Firecracker 400 here last July at the age of 49.

He showed his strength throughout the $1.5-million Rookie of the Year by about 1½ car-lengths. It is the first time the father and son from Hueytown, Ala., have finished one-two.

There were 17 drivers on the lead lap at the end, the most in the history of the race, as well as 26 lead changes among 13 drivers.

But for the race, the first run with NASCAR's new carburetor restrictor plates, intended to slow the cars in the interest of safety, was the third slowest Daytona 500 ever.

Seven caution flags for 42 laps-nearly a quarter of the race-held the average speed to 137.331 mph. The slowest previous race was in 1960 when Junior Johnson won at 134.740.

One of the caution periods was caused by Petty's crash.

That caution period lasted 31 laps as a track crew replaced the boards, and with his big body put on the kind of performance expected of senior captains in a big game with a long-term rival. Senior leadership. You can't define it, exactly, but you know it when you see it.

ND perfect in dual finale

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Writer

It was the perfect way to end the dual-meet season for the Irish swim teams.

The men's and women's squads routed their weekend opponents in a final tune-up for the upcoming championship season. The men downed Illinois-Chicago 112-87 Friday and topped Cleveland State 121-83 Saturday. The women, meanwhile, defeated the Flashes 118-88 and turned back the Vikings 135-118.

The convincing victories gave the women a big lift going into the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Championships. The women finished the season at 9-7 and hope to put a season of close losses behind them in championship action. This was a strong, spirited finish for the women," Irish mentor Tim Welsh said, "and it solidifies a winning record. This is the fastest, most complete team I have coached at Notre Dame. Against Cleveland State, Amy Darlington won the 100 backstroke, Moston the 200 medley, and Quirk the 100 free. All three were part of the winning 200 medley relay team.

The men finished the dual-meet season with a 13-3 ledger, winning 10 of their last 11 meets. The Irish won the Midwestern crown in 1986 and hope to recapture the title after reopening the conference this season.

"The men's objective was to win more dual meets than any other season and they accomplished that," Welsh said. "We've achieved some real flexibility in the lineup and that has assisted in our preparation for the championship season."

Jim Byrne led the Irish attack against the Flashes with first places in the 200 backstroke and the 200 individual medley. Dave Thomon won the 50 free Saturday, while Bill Jacko took the 100 butterfly. Both were part of the winning 200 medley relay team.

"Cleveland State played a very important role in the development of the swimming program here," Welsh said. "This meet was the first away for the seniors, it was the first meet in Roll's Aquatic Center and it is the last for the seniors now. It has been great to watch the progress."

LEAD THE ADVENTURE

It wasn’t too hard to predict the outcome of the Notre Dame Villanova hockey series before it started last weekend. But the two teams went ahead and played anyway, and the result was just as expected—two Notre Dame routs. The Irish, using several players who hardly seen game action all season, defeated the Wildcats for almost an easy shutout, as Notre Dame outshot Villanova 61-16.

The 14-0 score represented the largest margin of victory for Notre Dame since the Irish pounded Culver Military Academy 18-1 in the 1921-1922 season.

Notre Dame had to cope with an epidemic of sickness that affected several key players in Saturday’s game. That may have been the reason why the Irish only managed to win by 18 goals in a 15-5 annihilation.

Lerman, who usually does not suit up for the Irish, provided the scoring heroes again, with a hat trick to give him five goals for the weekend.

"This is his opportunity to really shine, and I thought he played pretty well," said Schaefer.

At one point, it actually looked like the Wildcats might make a game of it. After George Schneider gave the Cats an early 1-0 lead with a breakaway goal, the Irish exploded with four unanswered goals within six minutes of each other to gain control. But Villanova rallied, as Kevin Stadler scored on a breakaway in the last second of the first period, and Rob Talland tallied three minutes into the second period to make the score 4-3.

The Villanova highlights were few. Notre Dame scored six unanswered goals in the next 12 minutes to make the score 14-3 after two periods. Rob Bankoske led the run with two goals.

Notre Dame continued the onslaught with five third-period goals, including two goals by freshman John Ghia, to make the final score 15-5.

Notre Dame tied a school record of 23 wins in a season with the sweep. Schafer didn’t think a series with the 7-18-1 Wildcats did anything to help prepare the Irish to try and break the record this weekend at Michigan-Dearborn.

"Our scrimmages are probably more worthwhile," Schaefer said. "It was a mismatch. This is nothing against Villanova; we’re just two different levels of competition.

The Irish hockey team put the pressure on Villanova all weekend as they crushed the Wildcats. Steve Megargee has the details of the sweep at left.

The Saint Mary’s basketball team won its final home game of the season defeating Hope College 78-61 Saturday night. The Belles improved their record to 10-9 with the victory. The Belles got off to a bad start as Hope College took an early 9-2 lead. Hope was not able to sustain the lead, however, as Saint Mary’s stormed back to erase the deficit and take a significant lead.

The Belles were up 38-15 at the half and cruised in the second half to win.

"This game was an important victory for us," said Head Coach Marvin Wood. "We beat a team with a winning record which is important as far as helping to prepare for the playoffs. "Our offense played as well as it has all year."

In addition to gaining a victory for their record, the final home game served as senior recognition night. The Belles honored four senior team members, Tammye Radke, Stephanie Duke, Donna Wolf and Rachel Bir.

Tammye Radke received special honors as her jersey (No. 20) will be retired after this year for her outstanding contributions to the team. Radke has set three new school records for shooting percentage, free throw percentage and assists.

Jansen loses shot at 500-meter gold

Associated Press

CALGARY, Alberta - The day began in tragedy and ended in disaster for Dan Jansen, a U.S. speedskater who carried the Winter Olympic hopes of America and the inspiration of his dying sister.

Jansen's sister, Jane, died of leukemia back home in Wisconsin several hours later, the world sprint champion fell in the 500-meter race.

"Maybe it just wasn't meant to be," he said. "My family doesn't want me to go home now and I know Jane wouldn't want me to." After one false start, Jansen slid out of the inside lane and crashed into the outside lane. Jansen got up and slapped his knees. He jerked his hood off and hid his head in his hands. Frustration and sorrow were etched on his face.

Kuroiwa was given another chance in the 500 meters. Jan, 28, not returning to Japan, will have to wait until Thursday's 1,000 meters to go for the gold medal.

Jansen said the fall came so fast "I can't really remember it." My first 100 wasn't normal for me. It felt like it slipped out from under me, and the next thing I knew I was in the mats."

Early Friday, a 23-year-old brawler from Finland, Matti Nykanen, easily won the 70-meter throw to become the first jumper in the Olympics to win two gold medals if his heptathlon victory in the 90-meter hill Wednesday.

At the same time, the Olympic comeback of Finland's 1984 bronze medalist, Marja-Liisa Hämäläinen, was spoiled by a young student from the Soviet Union.

An hurricane-force winds that made it difficult to stand, left alone race on skis, forced postponement of the men's downhill. The race was rescheduled for Monday, a narrow 36 mph winds were expected to abate.

The speedskating gold went to Jens-Jeuris Mey of East Germany in a world-record time of 9.99 seconds. An.Println of the Netherlands won the silver, and Akira Kuroiwa of Japan got the bronze. Thomaz finished eighth. "It's been a real tough time for the people on the team," U.S. Coach Mike Crowe said.

"We pulled together tonight for Dan. It was difficult for people to get up and skate the way they would have liked." The 24-year-old Nykanen soared 9.5 meters on both his jumps to easily win the 70-meter. If he wins the 90-meter, he would become the first man to win both jumping gold medals since the event was split in 1964.

"Polish Coach Matti Puli thinks Nykanen has a good chance for the other medal because he has got Nykanen into barroom fights and suspended from the team, and almost made him the nick name Matti Nukes.

"Yes, he's still strong-headed at times," Puli said. "But you need to be like that to win gold medals. In Finland we have many nice athletes, polite people, but they don't win gold medals. Pavel Ploc of Czechoslavia won the 70-meter silver, and the 20-meter silver medal.

Vida Ventzone, a 23-year-old Soviet, won the first gold medal of the Games when she finished first in women's 10-kilometer cross-country ski race in 30 minutes, 8.3 seconds. Kirvesniemi, who won all three individual events and had a bronze medal in the relay at the 1984 Sarajevo Games, won the 500-meter.

At age 32, Kirvesniemi came back from two years' retirement and the birth of her daughter, and she still has three more chances for a medal--in the 5- and 20-kilometer races and the 50-kilometer.

Raissa Smetanina, 36-year-old Soviet veteran, won the silver, and Marjo Matinainen of Finland took the bronze. Jansen, the youngest of nine children, won the World Sprint Speed Skating championships last weekend at West Allis, Wis. His sister, Jane Beres, was too sick to accompany him to Calgary, so he had hoped she could watch him win gold on television.

packed it in and when we couldn't score from the outside, they were great on defense." Notre Dame shut 10 of 27 (37 percent) in the first half and finished the game 23 of 55 (42 percent). Going into the second half, the Irish led the nation in field goal percentage at over 53 percent.

"We just shot so poorly." McCann said. "We were awful in the first half. That won't happen again. We weren't taking bad shots, we were just missing them. We looked real tired through the whole game and I don't know why.

The Irish had better rest up, as six of their remaining seven games are on the road, including this week's contests: at Cleveland State and Marquette.

The Notre Dame wrestling team had a lackluster performance as it fell to the 16th-ranked Ohio State Buckeyes Friday. John Green details the disappointing 23-13 loss below.

Flat. That's how Irish wrestling coach Fran McCann described his team's performance after he watched his squad's record fall to 5-4 with a 23-13 loss to the 16th-ranked Ohio State Buckeyes Friday night at the JACC.

"We just came out flat tonight, and I'm not sure why," said McCann. "This was a big meet for us. We were facing a top-20 team in Ohio State, and I felt that we matched up very well against them. But the kids did not seem to be up for this one. They just did not wrestle aggressively enough to win.

A perfect example of the Irish being too conservative occurred in the first match of the evening, when Notre Dame's 118-pound sophomore Andy Raderbaugh was held to a 2-2 tie by Buckeye David Range. "That match set the tone for the whole meet," said McCann.

"Last week against Michigan, Andy defeated one of the top wrestlers in the Big Ten. Now tonight, against an average Big Ten wrestler, he's too hesitant and has to settle for a draw." However, the Irish did come out on top in the most anticipated match of the evening.

Notre Dame's Chris Genese, ranked No. 12 in the country, was pitted against the Buckeye Ron Garboro, who entered the match rated No. 10. Watch for those rankings to switch now. Genese dominated the match from the outset and looked very impressive as he coasted to a 10-4 win over Garboro.

That was an important match up for Chris," McCann commented. "With nationals coming up, he knows that he has got to go out and win each match decisively. And that's exactly what he did tonight. It was just a tremendous performance on Chris' part.

Other victors on the evening for Notre Dame were 144-pound junior Jerry Durso and 142-pound senior Ron Winiarski. Freshman Todd Tomazic also managed to come away with a draw at 167 pounds.

Despite the loss of the meet, Coach McCann is still very optimistic about his Irish squad. "We're a young team," he explained. "Ohio State starts five seniors, Michigan had six, but we start only two. And with youth like that comes inconsistency.

"But now we're through the toughest part of our schedule, and the kids have done well. A big thing is that we have hung in there against schools ranked in the top-20. We stayed competitive.

"And we had our chances to win. If we get another point tonight in each of those two ties (at 118 and 171), and pull out another win somewhere, then we win this meet. It was that close.

The Irish will try to get back on track by playing host to the Olivet Comets tomorrow night in the last home meet before the NCAA Western Regionals. The match will begin at 7 p.m. in the auxiliary gymnasium of the JACC.

Irish women dump Dayton on Kuhns' last-second shot

BY THERESA KELLY
Sports Writer

Losing at the buzzer is like finding the best Valentine card in the world and having no one to send it to but your mother. Fortunately for the Irish, it was Dayton’s Lady Flyers, not the Notre Dame women’s basketball team, who were beaten 60-58 on Lisa Kuhns’ jumper in the final seconds of Saturday’s North Star Conference game at the Joyce ACC.

With 2:10 left in the contest, the Flyers led the Irish 58-53. Mary Gavin hit two free throws to bring the Irish to within three. Both teams played tough defense for the next minute until Irish forward Heidi Bunek worked her way into the paint and brought the house down by making the layup and drawing a foul.

Bunek completed the three-point play to tie the score, and the Notre Dame defense took over again.

Dayton missed a go-ahead shot with 22 seconds left. The Flyers grabbed the rebound for another chance at the lead, but Irish guard Sara Liebergh put the pressure on and the Flyers lost the ball out of bounds.

With a three-second difference between the shot clock and the game clock, Gavin took the ball down the court and the Irish waited as the clocks ran down. Gavin got the ball to Kuhns and just as time ran out on the shot clock, Kuhns launched a 17-foot jumper that swished through as the game clock ran out.

“I felt relieved when I let it go,” Kuhns said. “I knew it was going to go in. We were working for the last shot, to try to get the ball in to Heidi. If that didn’t work, we were looking to shoot the jumper.”

As if the game weren’t exciting enough, the referees awarded the Flyers a time out and put one second back on the clock. Dayton was unable to capitalize on the break as a desperation shot went far left of the basket.

“We said we’d either go overtime or hit the buzzer,” said Irish head coach Muffet McGraw. “We showed a lot of composure at the end. Heidi made a big play and Lisa’s shot at the buzzer was great. And Mary did a good job getting her the ball. She was in a lot of traffic out there.”

Bunek led the Irish with 21 points and 10 rebounds, despite the fact that the Flyers played tougher defense on the Irish inside game than any other team has managed to do this season. Kuhns totaled 13 points, including three three-pointers, and Sandy Botham scored 10.

The Flyers’ defense and poor first-half shooting put the Irish up by only one at the half in a game they should have had less trouble with.

“They were big, they played good defense,” McGraw said of the Flyers. “They really

The Irish may have been refound the consistency they were looking for two weeks ago against Kansas three weeks ago. Joe Fredrick added 15 points and four assists. With Mark Steven- son getting back into form, the Irish are looking better as the season heads into the stretch.

When we play smart bas- ketball, we’re a very talented team,” Phelps said. “We get mileage out of the people we have. Stevenson’s a better player than he’s playing right now. He’s not in a rhythm yet. We’re not there right now. But when it’s over on March 12, we’ll be in a position to show what we are as a basketball team.”

Trevor Wilson led the Bruins with 15, 13 of which came in the first half. Pozzi accounted for 13 points, but only had four assists, short of his average.

“We would have like to have had [Wilson] more in the first half,” Voce said of the second half defense. “We ad- justed to that by putting Mark on him and giving him some help. He’s a good turnaround jump shooter, and we tried to put more pressure on him up front and deny him the ball on four minutes.”

The first half began with a bit of surprise, David Rivers, who practiced Friday for the first time since injuring his right ankle last Sunday at Duke, missed a three-point shot and then committed a foul trying to steal a pass. Andy Richardson, Phelps subbed Tim Singleton for Rivers for four minutes.

“I was honest with him,” Phelps said. “I said, ‘David we...
