Bush, Dole neck and neck, Dukakis worried about lead

Associated Press

CONCORD, N.H. - Vice President George Bush forecast a win but Sen. Bob Dole showed confidence Monday as the GOP presidential field sprinted for the finish line in a tight New Hampshire primary race. Democrat Michael Dukakis said his expected win might be smaller than predicted.

Bush campaigned side by side with former Sen. Barry Goldwater as he threw all his campaign could muster into a bid to arrest Dole's week-long surge and regain his own political footing.

One candidate after another posted hopeful predictions of a surprise when New Hampshire voters render their verdict in the nation's lead-off primary on Tuesday. "I don't know where all those political pundits are today but they ran for cover four years ago and they're likely to run for cover tomorrow," said former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont, back in the pack in the GOP race.

Rep. Jack Kemp, his GOP candidacy on the line, held out the hope of a second-place finish that would confound the pollsters. "I'm predicting a good competitive third or higher," he said.

Democratic Sen. Paul Simon, also facing tough times if he falters, said he was sure he'd defeat Rep. Richard Gephardt for second place. Referring to Dukakis commanding lead in the polls, he said, "I think there is a possibility of a real surprise coming tomorrow.

Fellow Democrat Bruce Babbitt, far off the pace in the polls, said he's anticipating a strong showing and a surprise but I can't put a number on it." Former television evangelist Pat Robertson bid to deal with a tempest that arose over his claim that the Soviet Union has

Waldheim says he won't resign

VIENNA, Austria - President Kurt Waldheim rejected the "alleged, hateful demonstrations and wholesale condemnation" of those who want him to resign and urged the nation Monday to unite behind him.

His televised speech appeared certain to deepen divisions caused by the report of an international panel of historians last week. It questioned the president's moral integrity and said he was "in close proximity" to Nazi atrocities during World War II and did nothing to stop them.

On Monday, he claimed that of the report do not correspond to the facts but are built on presumptions and hypotheses. For that reason, the conclusion drawn cannot be upheld.

Waldheim, 60, used highly emotional language in appeals both to World War II compatriots and those too young to know "the horrors of this war.

He said he might have erred in not discussing his wartime past but said he never tried to conceal it. "I have a clear conscience," the former U.N. secretary-general told Austria's 7.5 million citizens. In their 200-page report, the historians concluded that

'Monty Python' star to give show at SMC

By ANGELA MCDONALD

The comedy act of former Monty Python actor Graham Chapman and the upcoming student government elections were topics of discussion at the Saint Mary's program board meeting held Monday night in the Haggar College Center.

Chapman, one of Great Britain's top actors, will perform a comedy act in O'Laughlin Auditorium on April 24. The former actor in "The Holy Grail" and "Life of Brian," Graham is on a college-wide tour, which already includes the University of Alabama and Syracuse University.

"The show is supposed to be spectacular and everyone is encouraged to attend this event," said Smith Has- hagen, vice president of Student Affairs. "The show is sponsored by Saint Mary's and Notre Dame. Tickets are on sale $3 per student and $5 in the general public.

The Junior Class will be sponsoring a Mardi Gras today from 9-1 p.m. at the Els Lodge. Junior class Vice President Rozel Gatz- maian said that although tickets may be purchased at the door, "we encourage everyone to buy the tickets before the Mardi Gras, because we are anticipating a huge turnout." For more information contact Rozel at 284-9063 or Bose at 298-4966.

Elections for the student body and class officers will be held Feb. 24 in the Els Lodge during meal times.

There will also be a "Meet The Candidates" night held on Feb. 22, for students to become more acquainted with the people running for office.

"Everyone is encouraged to note the forthcoming events and come out and support the Saint Mary's community," said Has- hagen.

ND has moral duty to go ‘uncola’

I was disappointed last week to find that The Observer is against the Coca-Cola boycott organized under the Anti-Apartheid Network.

The claim is that the boycott seems more like a personal attack than a valid political pressure. The emphasis is on education and information instead of action.

The Coke boycott was not started at Notre Dame. It is a national effort to pressure the South African government, and Notre Dame is just one of many to join the campaign.

The fact that Donald Kough is chairman of the Board of Trustees is coincidental. It is not a personal attack on him, nor anyone, but the South African government.

Despite previous efforts to roll back apartheid it is still with us, and has been in South Africa for far too long. Deadlines for the dismantling of this racist political system have come and gone, and it does not appear that it will be happening anytime soon. Talk is cheap. Education will not stop apartheid. The time for action has come.

But be aware that I am not your typical political activist, screaming about the latest issue. In fact, I have never participated in a political demonstration, and often I am opposed to them because they cause more trouble than they solve. I find it unbelievable that people think that by starving themselves they can cause significant political change.

Nevertheless, the boycott simply puts economic pressure on a company that has proclaimed divestment, but it is practicing something akin to purity. The boycott is a great tool for the students to collectively let the Coca-Cola Company know that the public is not fooled by their divestment policy. We cannot boycott every company still operating in South Africa, but at least it is a step in the right direction.

Divestment is the only viable policy for the dismantling of the apartheid system. Nothing speaks quite like the Almighty Dollar in our society.

Now the profits from Notre Dame may not be significant enough to force Coke into complete divestment, but if many of the major college campuses across the country also stage successful boycotts, the company will have to rethink its position.

This does not mean we should not use our computers in the Math-Computer Center because IBM is not completely divested. By doing this we would be causing more harm to ourselves than it is worth.

On the other hand, the Coke boycott does not hurt the student body nearly as much since there are many other substitutes. Sure there is no Pepsi at the Dining Hall, but there are many other drinks available other than Coca-Cola soft drinks. Drink milk or water; they are better for you anyway.

Firms like IBM do not escape completely. When the time comes for the university to make another major purchase of computer equipment, it should not buy from companies that have not made sincere efforts toward divestment. There are many other computer companies that can satisfy the needs of the University, besides IBM.

Many people try to argue that divestment of American firms from South Africa will just allow for investment by foreign firms. First of all, the U.S. is a political and economic leader in the world. If the U.S. and its allies boycott South Africa, it would put pressure on many other countries to follow our lead. Obviously, we cannot force every country to boycott, but we must as a country follow our own path and do what is right for us regardless of our neighbors' policies.

It is my sincere hope that the Notre Dame community can unite to send a small, yet significant signal to the Coca-Cola Company and the world, that we will no longer put up with a country that refuses to initiate reforms to dismantle apartheid. -Mike Moran, Assistant Photo Editor

Israelis clash with Arabs, may have buried 4 alive

Associated Press

JERUSALEM - Police fought Palestinians in the holy city Monday, and hospital officials said an Arab was wounded by gunfire. It was the first bloodshed reported in Jerusalem since riots in the occupied lands began Dec. 8.

In the West Bank town of Kfar Salem, 40 miles north of Jerusalem, military investigators questioned four young Arabs who say Israeli soldiers used a bulldozer buried them alive after a protest Feb. 5.

"I am afraid. I thought I was going to die," Abdel Latif Mahmoud Ishtiah, 19, said soon after he was questioned in a white police van. "I dream about it all the time."

Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna, military commander in the West Bank, said a sergeant-major from the military governor and two or three other soldiers were involved and would be tried.

He told army radio: "Even in my worst dreams, I would never imagine such a thing even though I constantly warn commanders to expect the most awful things that could happen when soldiers find themselves all of a sudden commanding and deciding the lives of citizens."

In another case, the newspaper Hadashot said three soldiers of the elite Golani brigade were given jail terms of at least 21 days each for violating orders against excessive use of force. The army said it had no information.

According to U.N. figures, 54 Arabs have been killed by Israelis since protests began in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel captured from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war. Most of the dead were shot by soldiers, and hundreds have been wounded.

Israel radio said 21 arrests were made Monday in Jerusalem, which Israel has annexed, bringing to 437 the number of Arabs detained in the city since trouble began in December. It said the latest arrests include four activists who had been leaders in organizing protests.

Jerusalem police spokesman Rafi Levy said arrests were made in the Shufat refugee camp and Silwan village, both inside the city limits.

He said police fired tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse stone-throwing protesters who built roadblocks of twisted metal and burning tires.

Officials at Mukassad hospital said a 23-year-old Arab from Jerusalem was brought in with a gunshot wound in the abdomen. The Arab-run Palestine Press Service said he was shot during a clash in Shufat.

Border police in Jerusalem's Sur Bahir neighborhood fired tear gas to subdue protesters who built roadblocks in the area.

Mustafa Abdel Majid points to the spot where he alleges Israeli soldiers buried him and three other Arabs alive. The Israeli army confirmed two soldiers were detained for the incident. Story at left.

Trial date set for Stevenson

By CHRIS BEDNARSKI

Notre Dame basketball forward Mark Stevenson had his trial date for underage drinking and improper car registration charges set Monday for May 19.

Stevenson was not present at the hearing because he had flown with the team to New York for tonight's game against Rutgers. The date was set by Stevenson's lawyer and judge William Whitman.

Stevenson was arrested for the Class C misdemeanor early in the morning of Sunday, Jan. 24 by St. Joseph County police officer Pat Ferrell, a St. Joseph County police officer. Ferrell stopped the vehicle Stevenson was flown with the team to New York for tonight's game against Rutgers in the North Village Mall's parking lot at a speed the officer considered excessive.

Stevenson also faces an April 8 trial for criminal conversion charges, stemming from his Dec. 13 arrest at University Park Mall.

According to Cpl. Charles Ferrell, a St. Joseph County police spokesman, Stevenson was stopped by a county police officer about 2:30 a.m. on the 24th when the officer saw his 1987 Camaro moving through the North Village Mall's parking lot at a speed the officer considered excessive.

A Breathalyzer test administered at the county jail registered Stevenson's blood alcohol level at .09. A person is considered legally drunk in Indiana if their blood alcohol level is .10 or above.

Following the arrest, Stevenson was suspended from the team for two weeks by Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps. After missing four games, Stevenson returned to action Feb. 10 against Fordham.
US ‘prepared to deal’ with Soviet behavior

Associated Press
WASHINGTON-The Reagan administration’s policy of keeping military and espionage blows up with the Soviet Union from slowing a drive for better overall relations is back in operation following the collision of US and Soviet warships in the Black Sea.

The United States complained about Soviet actions in last Friday’s incident by summoning Soviet ambassador Yuri Dubrinin to a 30-minute protest meeting with the State Department’s third-ranking officer.

The department issued a public condemnation.

Yet Secretary of State George Shultz has no plan to dwell on the incident when he goes to Moscow next week to discuss arms control, regional issues like Afghanistan and the superpower summit envisioned for the spring, according to an aide who spoke on condition of anonymity.

How much damage will the Black Sea incident do to the broad range of U.S. Soviet relations?

“Not much,” the aide said. Indeed, the State Department’s on-the-record reaction to what Navy officers called the deliberate and dangerous Soviet bumping of American warships operating innocently in the Black Sea included comments that conveyed more exasperation than outrage.

“As Secretary of State Shultz said just a week ago, we are prepared to deal with the best and worst of Soviet behavior,” said spokesman Rudolph Boone.

It is, after all, “a competitive relationship,” Boone said.

The statement reflected the administration policy, since the rise of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in 1985, of keeping distant and bitter bilateral disputes from poisoning efforts to elicit from Moscow a better human rights record, arms control promises and a withdrawal of troops from Afghanistan.

Over the past three years, whether the issue has been alleged Soviet spying, the jailing of U.S. journalist Nicholas Daniloff, or attacks on American military observers in East Germany, the Reagan administration has complained — taken retaliatory action in some cases — and then gone back to the bargaining table.

Chief among the rival camps are the revolutionary parties personified by Prime Minister Hussein Musavi and those called pragmatists, who are led by the parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani.

No threat is evident to the regime itself despite political rivalries and domestic grumbling.

Senior revolutionary leaders acknowledge public discontent but say economic hardship stems from the war, not the revolution. Iraq invaded Iran in September 1980 after several border incidents.

They also claim more public projects have been completed than under the shah and more has been done for the “moftat-haftoon” (deprived), the millions of slum dwellers and peasants who formed the bedrock support for Khomeini.

Streets are full of people searching for bargains in the well-stocked stores, which are prohibitively expensive, or standing in long lines outside shops that sell rationed goods at government-controlled prices.

Everything is available on the black market — or “free market,” as the Iranians call it — at 10 times the official price.

Hojatoleslam Sadegh Khalikai, a former Islamic prosecutor who ordered the execution of hundreds of opponents in the revolution’s early days, had this to say about political disagreement during a recent Majlis debate: “The brave troops at the front should not be worried by what may appear to be irreconcilable disagreements. Security remains tight, there is great distrust of foreigners, and the United States still is the ‘Great Satan.’ Revolutionary Guards, fanatical followers of Khomeini who are present in every village and city neighborhood, appear to have stifled resistance.

Islamic puritanism, pervasive in the early days after Khomeini’s return, has been relaxed somewhat.

“There’s dissatisfaction with the strict Islamic rules imposed on people and with the economic hardship, but at the same time most people are proud that Iran has resisted the Iraqi invasion and so much pressure from the United States,” one Western diplomat said privately.

“People realize there’s little they can do. They live in hope that the war may end one day, either through victory or a settlement, so that at least their economic hardship will be alleviated.”

Iran regime in 10th year

Associated Press
TEHRAN, Iran—Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini’s regime is in firm control as his fundamentalist Islamic revolution begins its 10th year, but a power struggle looms when the 87-year-old patriarch dies. His lieutenants appear to be preparing for Khomeini’s death, which will be a major test for the revolution at a time of war, economic hardship and increasing international isolation.

Khomeini is reported in poor health and has sought recently, after years of reluctance, to eliminate obstacles to economic and social reform.

He remains the revered Imam, symbol of an Islamic resurgence that toppled the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and brought Khomeini home in triumph on Feb. 1, 1979, after 15 years in exile.

The old man’s messianic charisma and authority have held the revolution together through the long war with Iraq, and Iran’s other pressing international and domestic problems.

Jockeying for position in the main political currents has intensified because of elections for the 270-seat Majlis, or parliament, scheduled for April 8.

Lithuanians protest Soviets

Associated Press

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. Soviet authorities staged an outdoor rally to protest alleged U.S. interference in Baltic affairs Monday, and officials cracked down on nationalists to prevent protests marking Lithuania's short-lived independence.

About 2,000 people gathered in a chilly wind on Gediminas Square in central Vilnius for the official rally. Most kept their hands in their pockets and chatted with neighbors during the hourlong protest, and then quickly disappeared down the city's narrow streets.

Tuesday marks the 70th anniversary of Lithuania's declaration of independence on Feb. 16, 1918, only months after the Bolshevik revolution brought Communists to power in Russia.

Lithuania, along with the neighboring Baltic states of Estonia and Latvia, was absorbed by the Soviet Union in 1940, a year after the Ribbentropp-Molotov Pact between Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union consigned most of the country to the Soviet sphere of influence.

About 80 percent of Lithuania's 3.6 million people are of Lithuanian descent, the highest percentage of native population of any of the Baltic republics.

Lithuanian Foreign Minister Vladimiras Mikulianas, asked by foreign journalists who travelled from Moscow on a trip sponsored by the Soviet Foreign Ministry if people could mark the independence day, said: "personally, yes. But it is forbidden to organize anything."

The men are Michael Taylor (Paul Reiser) and Joey Harris (Greg Evigan). Michael is a financial advisor who decides to kill and lives according to his appointment book. Joey’s dress could kill him, an artist who owns the loft in which they live. This fact is evidenced by the furniture and interior decoration. Their daughter is Nicole (Staci Keanan), a sweet girl concerned about her father’s work and their relationship. Since the judge (Pierce, Stanley) lives in the same building, it is easy for her to check on Nicole and the kids. One final show regular is “Nawicki” (Dick Buski), the owner of the restaurant in the building.

The episodes are entertaining but not always funny. They do not always happen as expected, from Michael and Joey or the traumas of being a 12-year-old girl. What, no diaper changing scenes? Nicole’s too old for that. In one episode, Michael and Joey compete in a racquetball tournament to determine the champion of the world.” Another plotline deal with Nicole’s desire to be a proper adult, which is a difficult problem if for Michael and Michael to satisfy.

All the episodes are full of one-liners (Michael: “We’re father of the year.”); however, be considered outstanding, a sitcom needs more than that. With an unoriginal and quite unbelievable premise, the writing of the show must be clever enough to bring the viewers beyond these drawback.

The performances on “My Two Dads,” however, are worthy of praise. Paul Reiser is usually getting fun-creation editors and portrays his character with class and responsibility.

Greg Evigan also shines, keeping in character right down to the hand gestures he makes while saying, “Now that we’re going to become fathers, why don’t we become adults, too?” Staci Keanan is a young actress with a bright future ahead of her.

Besides the actors, “My Two Dads” has another priceless advantage–its time slot. Positioned snugly after “Family Ties,” “My Two Dads” maintains a huge portion of the “Hit” viewing audience. Since time slot can mean life or death for a show, NBC blessed Joey and Michael with not only a daughter, but a great plot to raise her.

“My Two Dads” is a typical TV comedy that does have good actors and an enviable time slot. The show’s need for improvement lies in the writing, but once that’s been improved, NBC’s comedy can emerge as a well-constructed fresh show. One question: Why didn’t all those writers who are obsessed with “baby” plots just get together and create one good show in which three men and a baby inherit a daughter for whom they make gourmet baby food (which becomes a marketing success) and move into “Our House”? Of course, then the brine would be so crowded the show would have to be titled “Full House,” which is already in use. Hey, which one of these guys shot J.R. anyway?

Wind tunnels enhance lab’s ‘air’ of professionalism

NORMAN CAMPBELL

What is that ugly building?

“Of, it’s just a place to store the baseball equipment and a few of the engineering students.”

This scene is replayed year after year as Donnelly pass the small building next to the Joyce ACC, which is affectionately known to aerospace engineering students as the “aero shack” or “the garage.” Few people outside of the engineering department realize that within the pre-World War II walls lie some of the best research wind tunnels in the United States.

After founding the aerospace program in 1957, which was one of the first degree programs in the United States, Dr. Frank Brown was interested in creating a department with a solid foundation in research. With this thought in mind, Brown and Professor Emeritus Robert S. Elkenberry designed the wind tunnels that lie within the Aerospace Engineering Laboratory.

Built in 1947 from World War II surplus compression, the wind tunnels were originally housed in the aerospace lab and help complete much of the low-speed wing testing that is done in the United States. Wind tunnels are used to speed air through a small test section and simulate airflow over any object that travels through the atmosphere, such as an aircraft. Through the use of wind tunnels, researchers can test new technology in realistic situations without endangering human life, while saving valuable time and money that can be better spent on more research.

The tunnels are composed of twouru supersonic ducts for flow velocities to a limit of Mach 0.8-1.2, and two supersonic tunnels for flow velocities of greater than Mach 1.2. They allow researchers at Notre Dame to study components for aircraft ranging from slow propeller planes to the most modern jet fighters,” said Stephen B. Batill, Associate Professor of Aerospace and Mechanical Engineering.

Notre Dame has had a great tradition in the field of aerodynamics research dating back to the 1870’s, when Albert Zahm performed tests on glider type aircraft. The University has enhanced that reputation. According to Robert C. Nelson, Associate Professor of Aerospace and Mechanical Engineering, more than 840,000 has been appropriated for tunnel research in the last year. “We have two three-dimensional tunnels for flow visualization in the world,” said Batill. Batill, who is also the United States Air Force has just completed a 820 million project, which is a completion of the basic wind tunnel design created at Notre Dame.

The power of the tunnels is very impressive. They are so powerful, in fact, that the power plant must be notified before use to insure that no circuit overloads occur.

“When Fitzpatrick Hall of Engineering was constructed, the tunnels were to be moved to this new site. However, calculations showed that the tunnels could extract the air from the entire building over a period of a few hours,” commented Batill. So, for ventilation and sound dampening purposes the tunnels remained in the old building at the east end of campus.

“Future plans call for the equipment to be moved to the heat and power lab, which is located between the Maria Press and the maintenance building near Stepan Center,” said Patrick F. Dunn, Associate Professor of Aerospace and Mechanical Engineering. There they will join an 80-foot-long atmospheric wind tunnel which serves the needs of the aerospace program.

Along with the tunnels in the aerospace lab and heat and power lab, there are three small tunnels located in the basement of Fitzpatrick Hall. These tunnels are mainly for the use of undergraduate students for the basic curriculum requirement.

With the equipment that is available at Notre Dame, the research ranks with the latest technological developments in small tunnel facilities. As the Domers walk by that ugly little building next to the Joyce ACC, they will know that some of the most sophisticated aerospace testing equipment is right under their noses.
Precautions a positive step

In a seemingly secure university environment, students are not always as careful as they should be. Crime, physical assaults and even rape remind us that students are not as safe as they might think.

Last Sunday, Feb. 7, a female Notre Dame senior was assaulted in the D-2 parking lot. Though the victim was not sexually assaulted, the incident is a reminder that our community is not immune to the possibility of assault, whether sexual or physical.

Students must take precautionary measures in order to avoid the possibility of sexual assault.

A positive step in educating our community has been made by inviting Dr. Mary Koss, a clinical psychologist and one of the country’s foremost researchers in the fields of crime, rape and sexual assault, to speak at Saint Mary’s Carroll Auditorium. Her lecture tonight at 7:30 p.m. will provide the professional insight necessary to alert students, both male and female, about the reality of sexual and physical assault and how each can be faced or even avoided.

It is encouraging that more than 20 Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s organizations have sponsored this lecture. This awareness then should manifest itself in different programs, such as discussion forums with assault victims and experts or self-defense requirements in physical education classes.

Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s have very effective counseling networks. Perhaps an increased awareness of these counseling resources could prevent future attacks.

It is encouraging that this step has been made. Now, students must work in order to understand the reality of sexual assaults and what can be done to avoid or combat the possibility from occurring.

Information can dispel myths

Anyone, Anytime, Anywhere. These are the myths about rape. Rape is sexual abuse amid the myriad of myths and misinformation. Sexual victimization pervades our society.

It can happen to anyone, at anytime, even Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame.

Sexual assault runs the gamut from the non-touching offenses such as obscene phone calls to sexual harassment in the workplace to the most violent and abusive touching offense, rape. Recent studies indicate that one in four American women will have been sexually abused in some fashion during her lifetime.

The FBI reports that rape is the fastest growing violent crime in the nation. The Bureau also estimated that 10 to 30 percent of all rapes are not reported. Rape is not something that only happens in the dark alleys in the bad parts of town. Victims of rape come from every race, creed and socio-economic class.

Perhaps the most frightening fact about rape is that it is a myth that the rapist will be known to the victim. Psychologists and professionals in the criminal justice field are becoming increasingly aware of this phenomenon known as “date rape” or “acquaintance rape.” Victims are often manipulated by a “friend” or date into a dangerous situation in which they have no control; they can be forced or blackmailed into having sex against their will.

These past few weeks The Observer’s Viewpoint pages have been filled with issues clarifying the need for more education: AIDS, alcohol abuse, apathy. But as a community we are in need of education regarding sexual abuse and rape perhaps more than any other issue.

Mary Koss, Ph.D., the country’s foremost expert on acquaintance rape, conducted a survey among college women which indicates our ignorance. The survey began: “Have you ever been raped?” Most answered no. Later the same survey asked, “Have you ever been forced to have sex against your will?” Many of those who answered negatively to the former question wrote yes to this latter one. What, then, is our criterion for rape? That it be done by a stranger? That it be done at gunpoint or knife point? Rape is a sexual act that occurs without the consent of both parties. Rape is not erotic, or some expression of uncontrollable passion. Rape is a crime of violence. The rapist most often has the need to assert his power and control over that of the victim. And he usually succeeds. Even if the rape is prevented somehow, the victims of assault and attempted rape still experience confusion, fear and a sense of lack of control over their own lives. Violation has many more implications than the merely physical.

The most pervasive and sinister misconception about rape in our society is that it is somehow the victim’s fault. Rape is never the fault of the victim. It does not matter how it happens or where it happens, it can be a random attack in a dark parking lot, it can be husband raping wife or it can happen at the end of an SRY. Our prejudeice for “blaming the victim” reveals itself constantly, from the impertinent locker room quips about how “she wants it” to the scandalously light prison terms for convicted rapists in our criminal justice system.

If our society Quietly but consistently reinforces these myths about rape and sexual abuse, in stereotypes, as a "she-done-something-wrong"...where do we begin to fight? Perhaps it is best to own attitudes and begin a new step is to be realistic believe that at zero, Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s organizations have sponsored this lecture. Both females and males suffer in this crime

Last semester I tripped all over Notre Dame's campus and publicized for a rape awareness week sponsored by CARE (Campus Alliance for Rape Elimination). When I entered some of the male dorms, I was surprised when some of the men questioned why they needed to know about rape because, obviously, they themselves could never be victims. This is estimated, however, that one in three women is at some point in her lifetime. This means the chances are high that most men will at least meet a victim of rape. In have not yet caught the male ear, then may this fact grab you: The FBI estimates that 10 percent of all sexual assault victims are men. Under this fact alone rag victims are unwilling to report their assault and only recently have their reports been heeded with seriousness by the police. This is especially true in the case of prison rape, in which victims who reported to the authorities risk being further abused or even murdered by their fellow inmates. Mary Huffman is a senior history major and a member of CARE.

| Security lacking at St. Mary's |

Dear Editor:

This letter is to voice our disgust with the Saint Mary's Security system. To us the display of security protects the students' well being. This, however, is not how the people of our security system feel. They feel that they are only responsible for the students when they are on the actual campus.

Our disenchantment with the system became apparent to us last Saturday night when the car we were driving stalled on Ironwood Road along the toll road. For some reason, I slammed into the car and the man was unhappy. He was driving ours in the middle of 45 mph road. After about 30 minutes a man pulled over and offered to drive us to his house to call Security or a tow truck. Not feeling safe about that we asked him to open the door and took a ride with a stranger. We thought that both options were absurd. With the crime wave we hear about on the news everyday we felt that we would possibly be jeopardizing our lives. The ironic part of this story is that last week we all received posters indicating that Saint Mary's had implemented a system in which people stranded off campus could be helped if they called Security. Security would either come pick them up or would send a cab. They chose to do neither for us. They didn't even call for a tow truck. How much trouble would it have been to call us a tow truck even if it was a prank? Second, who are they to decide whether or not it is a prank? Wouldn't it be better to take the time out to check it out than to abandon the girl in the zero degree weather got frostbitten, were assaulted, abducted, and the girl was found frozen to death on Ironwood. We feel that it's better to be safe than sorry. Obviously this isn't the opinion of Saint Mary's Security.

We hope, by exposing this fault, that in the future Security will think twice after receiving a similar phone call. And remember next time you feel the need to criticize Notre Dame Security, just think about how much more worse off the girls at Saint Mary's are.

When we asked why they didn't check into it, they said that the two of us were just running away from our car while it was in the middle of the street. The Security people said that they didn't understand what we expected them to do. I explained that I felt that it wouldn't be outrageous for them to drive out and let us sit in a warm, safe car while they called us a tow truck and then provided us a ride home. With the crime wave we hear about on the news everyday we felt that we would possibly be jeopardizing our lives. The ironic part of this story is that last week we all received posters indicating that Saint Mary's had implemented a system in which people stranded off-campus could be helped if they called Security. LOS ANGELES—The Loyola Marymount Lions may not even notice they've broken into the national rankings for the first time in the school's history, for they quickly disappear from the Top Twenty.

A second seven-second span makes it difficult to absorb information.

"There's nothing very mysterious about it, but I think we're starting to gel, and coaching," said Coach Paul Westhead, whose high-scoring team won 17 of its first 22 games and are ranked 20th this week in the Associated Press poll. "It's nothing new or fancy. We're just running the ball, shoot the ball and let them shoot the ball."

Temple held on to the No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press poll, with the Owls, 20-1, receiving 25 first-place votes and 1,456 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters. The next three teams—Purdue, Arizona and Oklahoma—remained the same from last week.

Rounding out the top 10 teams in this week's poll were No. 5 North Carolina, Duke, Texas, Stanford, Michigan, Kentucky and Michigan.

A loss to Temple, coupled with a loss to then-No. 5 Pittsburgh, enabled Villanova from the Kansas. State, which lost twice, and Indiana, split two games, also fell from the poll.

Missouri, which was ranked for five weeks in the top 20 this season, came in at 15th and got returned to the poll at No. 18 after one week's absence.

Irish soccer team loses one, ties two

By PETE GEGEN
Sports Writer

Regional rivals Indiana and Evansville may have been at the St. Louis Budweiser Indoor Invitational last weekend, but the Irish soccer team never got the chance to face them.

The Irish failed to advance out of their four team preliminary bracket, losing one game and tying two. "It was a nightmare," said Irish head coach Dennis Grace. "The ball wasn't bouncing our way. We would make one little mistake, and they would score every time."

Notre Dame faced former NCAA champion Southern Illinois-Edwardsville Saturday. The Cougars jumped out in front, but the Irish closed the lead to 1-3 in the fourth quarter. With Dave Augustyn in goal as a sixth attacker, SIU-E rallied a late goal to win 4-2.

Notre Dame was hoping to get back on the right track against Sangamon State, but the former NAIA champions erased a 3-0 deficit to tie the Irish 3-3.

The icing on the cake was Sunday's match against former junior college champ Florissant Valley. The Irish jumped to a 3-1 lead, but Florissant Valley answered with three goals to take the lead. A late goal by Bruce "Tiger" McCourt off a restart by John CEgon gave Notre Dame a 4-4 tie.

The Irish, whose inexperience hindered their chances at the tournament, will have at least a month off before playing two outdoor scrimmages.

"I wish we were playing next weekend so we could get those games out of our system," said Grace. "If we just have to realize it was one of those things and then forget about it."

NVA announces deadlines, hours

6-3, 6-2; Paul Dagg defeated Christian Capelli, 6-2, 6-3; Sean O'Brien defeated Mike Riden, 6-4, 6-2. Bayliss said that Bayliss had a particularly intense match.

"Paul won by keeping the ball in play in the backcourt and coming into the net whenever possible," Bayliss said. "He kept the pressure on Capelli for the entire match." In doubles action the Irish team of David Kuhlman and Wenger beat Bowers and Siminski, 6-2, 6-2. Pat Walsh and Ron Shadys of Notre Dame edged Eastern Michigan's team of Polito and Riden 6-2, 4-6, 6-0. Finally, the Irish sophomore tandem of Arnaud Galanosa and Jim Kilway outlasted Dancer and Capelli 6-4, 6-3.

The men's tennis team is definitely on a roll. In the next five matches the Irish will have to defend their undefeated record on the line against the likes of Northwestern, Miami, Purdue and Colorado.

"We're making a big jump," Bayliss said. "I think we are ready." Senior in high school Mergen finished 23rd in the same tournament.

Also attending the Junior World's from the Notre Dame fencing squad will be freshman Leszek Nowosielski, who will be representing Canada. Nowosielski won the junior tournament in Canada which assured him a spot in the Junior Worlds and also holds a perfect record for the entire year.

Distance medley highlights Irish track action

BY MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

The Irish men's track team was on the run again this past weekend, in this case in Cedar Falls, Iowa. The Irish competed in the Central Collegiate Conference Meet against some of the fastest competition of the indoor season and returned with some "very satisfying" results, according to Head Coach Joe Piane.

The meet was highlighted by the distance medley team's impressive victory over such strong teams as Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, and Michigan State. The team consisted of sophomore Mike Hogan, freshman Robert Harrs, sophomore Mike O'Call, and senior co-captain Dan Garrett, running the 880, 400, 1000, and 1600 meters, respectively.

Other impressive individual performances turned in by the Irish included junior Ron Markel's 4th place finish in the 5000 meter race. Markel's gutted out the distance in a time of 14:16.90, a time which qualified him for the ICA Championships by twelve seconds.

Freshman high jumper John Cole placed in the top six with a jump of 6 feet 10 1/4 inches. Sophomore Glenn Watson also placed in the top six in the high hurdles with a time of 7.32. The Irish finished in 13th place, but in no way was the performance indicative of the team's capability and talent.

"Track is not at all like a sport like basketball where it's strictly wins and losses. We went into the meet with specific goals, among them to prepare Garrett and O'Connor for our upcoming meets," proclaimed Piane. "We competed as well as we thought. Our goal was not to go into the meet to score as many points as we could. If we did, we probably could have finished as high as fifth."

As with previous meets, this one included some key performances by Irish athletes who finished out of the top six. Among those include senior Rick Mulvey, who placed 7th in the 5000 meters. Also performing well was freshman runner Kevin Whalen, who turned in a 1:55.90 in the 800 meters.

"All in all it was a very pleasing meet. We are continuing to improve with every meet," said Piane.

Barreda qualifies for Junior World Championships

BY SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Sports Writer

Over the weekend, the Irish fencers competed with the best young competition across the nation in the Junior Olympic Fencing Championships. The meet, held in Cleveland, was comprised of contestants under 20 years of age, and resulted in one Irish fencer qualifying for the Junior World Championships.

As was expected, sophomore Anne Barreda earned enough points at the Junior Olympics to qualify for the Junior World Championships to be held in April. Barreda, who was practically a shoe-in for the Junior Worlds, finished sixth in the tournament even though she was seeded first.

"It was a little bit disappointing," said women's head coach Yves Auriol. "She should have done better. In fact, she almost went out in the first two rounds.

Barreda, however, managed to get the job done. She pulled herself together and came over her poor start to earn her sixth place finish.

In a tournament with the best 110 fencers from across the nation competing, finishing sixth is more than respectable.

Barreda will be one of three Irish fencers who will represent the entire United States, competing against 34 other countries and 450 athletes. The Junior sabre men.

"Our sabremen Chris Bauger finished highest among all Irish fencers, placing 13th in his division, competing 7-6, 6-4. Irish doubles teams have yet to lose a match this year. The men's tennis team finished 24th, 14th, 5th."

The tournament served as a dedication to Frank and Bryce Eck for their contributions to Notre Dame tennis. Frank Eck attended the entire tournament and the Irish women's tennis team gave the Ecks a mantel clock with an engraved plaque.

Zurbriggen launches quest for five skiing golds

CALGARY, Alberta - Pyrmin Zurbriggen won the first Alpine medal of the Winter Olympics on Monday, using the men's downhill as a first step in his quest for an unprecedented five gold medals in skiing.

Zurbriggen won the race by a half-second over Swiss teammate Peter Mueller in a battle of past and present on the slopes, while preventing an Eastern European sweep of medals during the third day of the Games.

"It was my biggest goal, and I'm so happy," Zurbriggen said. "It was a great feeling."

Alexei Prokourorov of the Soviet Union won the men's 30-kilometer cross-country skiing race, and Jens Mueller of East Germany won the men's luge in the day's two other medal events.

The Soviet Union leads the medal standings with five—two gold, two silver and one bronze. East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Finland and Switzerland are tied with two apiece. Both of East Germany's medals are gold.

Franck Picard, who skied right behind Zurbriggen, won the bronze medal in 2:01.24, becoming France's first Alpine medal-winner since Killy. The best the United States could do was 26th by 19-year-old A.J. Kett of Rochester, N.Y., who finished in 2:04.94. Jeff Olson of Bozeman, Mont., was 28th in 2:05.09.

Four years ago at Sarajevo, the Soviets went 1-2 in the 30-kilometer cross-country race with Nikita Zabrotski and Aleksandr Zavialov, the famed "2 boys." In a postscript to '84, the Soviet's did it in 1988 with the "P.S. boys," Prokourorov and Smirnov.

Prokourorov won in 1:24:26.3, followed by teammate Vladimir Smirnov, the early leader who finished in 1:24:42.8 seconds back. Vegard Ulvang of Norway won the bronze in 1:25:11.8.

self in last year's Western Regionals, where he clinched a spot in the NCAA Championships by defeating Schmitt. "He really calls the shots around here, and we're very lucky to have him." After a fairly slow start in his senior season, Wiesniewski has won five of his last six matches to raise his record to 12-6. And he is gradually starting to shake his problems with inconsistency.

"In the beginning of the season and last year, my coaches and parents would wonder which Ron was going to come to the match—the one who could wrestle well or the one who couldn't wrestle so well.

"I've lost some matches that I shouldn't have, but I'm a little more consistent this year.

"Having moved from the 190 weight class to 142 classification this year, Wiesniewski looks to be seeded second in the region going into the Regionals. The top two wrestlers at Regionals in each weight class advance to the national championships.

"If he goes out and wrestle like he can, he should be able to make nationals," says McCann. "He's wrestling with a lot of confidence, which has been a big problem for him in the past."

"Technique, inconsistency, confidence—Wiesniewski has spent his entire college career solving problems he had in his past.
Men's volleyball dominates club foes

The Men's Volleyball Club continued its streak against club teams last week, but still cannot seem to maintain that consistency when it meets varsity squads.

Their record to 14-3, but faltered against ninth-ranked Ball State in straight games. Notre Dame came back to down Hope College 15-4, 15-3, 13-15, 15-7 Tuesday. Those wins, both over club teams, hardly tested the Irish, according to coach Bill Anderson.

"We dominate the club teams," Anderson said. "We played extremely well."

The downfall of the week came Thursday when the team traveled to Muncie to face the Cardinals, a varsity squad. The Cardinals dominated the Irish 15-8, 15-7, 15-4.

Club Corner

"Whenever we play a varsity team, we don't seem to get as enthusiastic or prepared as we should be," Anderson said. "We seem to put our effort and enthusiasm into beating the club teams. If we want the program to advance, we have to play good against the good varsity teams."

While he admits the varsity schools have an advantage in terms of recruiting and exposure, Anderson thinks his squad can be competitive with anyone.

"They get psyched out before the match," Anderson said. "I feel the team can play with any varsity team in the Midwest. I have trouble motivating them that they can play against these teams."

The Irish rebounded from the loss to the Cardinals with a 15-4, 15-5, 15-7 victory over Calvin College Friday.

"We played extremely well and did the things we had to do," Anderson said. "We played with more intensity than we did the night before. You have to play at the same level no matter who you play."

Czechs rally to defeat Americans 7-5

Associated Press

CALGARY, Alberta - The United States blew a 3-0 lead and collapsed under the weight of a final-period barrage in a 7-5 Olympic hockey loss to Czechoslovakia Monday night.

The victory kept alive the Czechoslovakians' hopes for a spot in the medals round. They had lost 3-1 to West Germany in their opening game and seemed on the way to another defeat when they rallied for four third-period goals, the winner a short-handed goal with 5:29 left.

The Americans scored on their first three shots against No. 1 goaltender Dominik Hasek in the opening 6:08. But their composure collapsed in the final two periods as they allowed several breakaways. Goaltender Mike Richter played strongly in goal, but was unable to stop the Czechoslovak charge.

The United States, which beat Austria 10-6 in its opener, will meet the unbeaten Soviets Wednesday night. The Americans and Czechoslovaks are 1-1 behind the Soviet Union and West Germany, both 2-0.

The top three teams in each pool advance to the medals round.

Dusan Pasek led the Czech comeback, scoring the tying goal with 7:25 left, then setting up Igor Liba's game-winner with a perfect pass to cap a two-on-one break.

Men stay unbeaten; women host Eck tourney

By GEORGE TRAVERS
Sports Writer

The Norte Dame men's tennis team protected its undefeated record on Sunday as it marched over Eastern Michigan 8-1. The Irish are now a surprising 5-0, the Hurons fell to 0-1.

For the Notre Dame team, this has been an unbeatable year. Coach Bob Bayliss himself is surprised with the way things have gone.

"I thought we'd be 3-2 at this point," said Bayliss. "Needless to say this has been a pleasant surprise. Now we've got five consecutive matches with teams that beat us last year or are better than us on paper. The next week and a half is crucial."

For the next few weeks the Irish will be unchallenged, but on Sunday they were the favorites all the way. Senior captain Dan Walsh came from behind to defeat Dean Dancer 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Walsh is a notoriously slow starter and often drops the first set before bouncing back.

Freshman Ryan Ryan also lost a set early but went on to victory over Mike Timmis 6-2, 6-7, 6-2. Bayliss was impressed with Wenger's play. "Ryan had some big shots at key points. He just overpowered Siminski."

In other singles matches, Dave Reiter trounced Eastern Michigan's Aziz Hoosenally for the Irish before they host Eck tourney.

Voices, Rivers enjoy homecoming; Irish face Rutgers

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. - When Notre Dame meets Rutgers tonight at the Byrne Arena in the Meadowlands (9 p.m. WNOU-AM 1500, WSBT-AM 1500), the game will be almost a secondary attraction. The main focus will be on senior co-captains David Rivers and Gary Voce.

Rivers, from nearby Jersey City, and Voce, from Queens, N.Y., will be making their final appearance in the New York area as members of the Irish. Both players say they're looking forward to the homecoming.

"It's going to be a going out thing for me at home," Voce said of the trip. "I will never wear a Notre Dame uniform again. This will be the last time going back, and just I want to enjoy it as much as possible."

"I'm looking forward to seeing my family," said Rivers, who denied having anything special on his mind when he takes to the floor. "I have a job to do. I can't really pay much attention to what the fans may think. I'll be myself, and it will still be an exciting game."

What may make the contest between the 5-8 (0-3 in the Atlantic 10) Scarlet Knights and the 14-7 Irish may be the fact that Irish head coach Digger Phelps and his squads have a 0-5 record in the Meadowlands, including a 14-6 loss to North Carolina in last year's NCAA East Regional Semifinal. Rutgers beat Notre Dame 61-59 in 1983-84 season in, you guessed it, the Meadowlands.

"I'm looking forward to a win in the Meadowlands," said Rivers, who lost to Duke 83-69 there in his freshman year. "We've never won there. If we come away with a victory in the Meadowlands, I'll be very happy."

If there was ever a team that could put an end to this streak, it's Rutgers. The Scarlet Knights are on a streak of their own, having lost a school-record 15 games in a row. There has been much speculation that third-year Head Coach Craig Littlepage, who previously was the head man at Penn and assistant at Virginia, will be losing his job when the season ends. His current record at Rutgers is 19-59. Rutgers leading scorer is 6-5 senior Darren Campbell and 6-3 freshman forward Tom Savage, a transfer from Virginia Tech. Savage is averaging 11.3 points per ballgame to go along with 4.7 rebounds. His partner on the frontline is Steve Perry. The 6-7 sophomore is averaging 8.2 points and 5.1 boards a contest.

The Knights will start either Anthony Deckert or Mark Peterson in the pivot. Deckert, a 6-6 junior, averages 10.0 points per game and 4.7 rebounds. Peterson, a 6-9 senior, is averaging 3.2 points and 2.3 rebounds.

The backcourt is made up of 6-5 senior Darren Campbell and 6-3 freshman Craig Carter.

Wisniewski gets consistent

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

With a 22-2 record, Olivet hardly can be considered a pushover despite its Division III status.

But after facing three top 30 teams in the last week (Nebraska, Michigan and Ohio State), the Notre Dame wrestling team is in a class in tonight's home dual meet with the Cornhuskers. Action starts at 7 p.m. in the Joyce ACC Pit.

"Olivet can't compete with the last three teams we've played as far as ability," said Irish coach Fran McCann. "It's the kind of meet that can come out and dominate if we come out with any kind of intensity."

"They won't be used to our type of competition," continued the Irish coach. "They shouldn't stay with us if we come out and wrestle."

Tonight's match will represent the last home dual meet for the Irish before they host the NCAA Western Regionals on March 4, and also will be the last home dual meet in the collegiate career of 142-pound co-captain Ron Wisniewski.

If McCann had his choice, Wisniewski would be staying for one more year.

"He still has a lot to learn," said McCann. "It would be great if he could have been able to sit out a year because he's so young physically."

It's not as though Wisniewski, an NCAA qualifier last year, has disappointed anyone at Notre Dame. In fact, it's the opposite.

Wisniewski has had to spend all four years trying to adjust to the collegiate brand of wrestling.

"He had an extremely poor wrestling background," says McCann. "He didn't come from a good program. His technique was extremely crude, and he had a lot of bad habits."

Although Wisniewski still managed to record a 29-16 record in his freshman season, he admits he was no expert on the finer points of his game.

"I had the strength and desire to win, but I didn't have any technique whatsoever," Wisniewski recalls. "It was quite a struggle for me to do moves right."

"A lot of times I won just by strength, and I didn't think of trying to do moves correctly."

Wisniewski was able to find success without the correct style in his sophomore year as well, coming just one point short of qualifying for the NCAA Championship. McCann was trying to raise the stature of Notre Dame's program by upgrading the schedule. No longer could Wisniewski rely on strength alone.

He finished his junior year with a 20-14 record, but he was plagued by inconsistency. A prime example came in the National Catholic Tournament, where Wisniewski lost to Marquette's Jim Schmitz by a 15-7 score.

"My head was out of the match," Wisniewski said. "I thought I was doing well and no way he was 15 points better than me."

Wisniewski redeemed himself. see IRISH, page 13.

Doubles Classic a two-way success

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

Last weekend's first annual Eck Doubles Classic was a two-way success for the Notre Dame women's tennis team.

The Irish won 70 percent of their matches in the last two days of the tournament. But that was almost secondary to the way in which Notre Dame handled a tournament that included 115 matches, nine teams and a dedication.

"It was excellent," said Irish coach Michele Gefman. "The tournament went extremely smoothly. We had a lot of good people on our support staff."

Gefman had no reason to be disappointed with the efforts of her players either. After a relatively slow first day of action, the Irish doubles teams posted a combined 14-6 record on Saturday and Sunday.

"One of the big problems with hosting a tournament like this, especially when the players are going to class during the day, is that it serves as a disturbing factor," said Gefman. "Some of our players virtually walked from the classroom onto the tennis court."

"On Saturday and Sunday, all we were concerned with was tennis, and it was obvious by our record."

Irish center Gary Voce, along with teammate and co-captain David Rivers, will be returning home to the New York area tonight to take on Rutgers at the Meadowlands. Dennis Corrigan details the trip home and previews the game above.
