NATO requests Soviet cutback

British politician Neil Kinnoch tried to sweep his hangovers off his feet Wednesday when he serenaded them with a vacuum cleaner in the House of Commons. The opposition Labor Party leader p’ayed a few notes on the vacuum cleaner at a news conference to promote a summer concert series in Wales, which will include a piece with the familiar domestic device. Kinnoch called himself “something of a maestro” on the instrument, although he admitted, “my wife would say I’m a little off on Hoover practice at home.” -Associated Press

Parting shots reveal four years of learning

This is my last inside column. Tomorrow I will clean my desk — first collect my clippings, pilfer a few promotional records and Observer notepads from the office and fade into the sunset.

Some editors feel compelled to use their last inside column to reminisce about the good times, to wallow in nostalgia, to sigh about how they are going to miss everyone and everything under the dome.

I, for one, would not dream of boring you that way.

Instead, I would like to use my last column to bore you another way; by reflecting on what I have learned during my four years in the shadow of the dome...

Notre Dame administrators really do set aside an hour each day in order to concoct ideas to make life more miserable for students.

Doctors express concern over boxing dangers

By REGIS Coccia
Assistant News Editor

The annual Bengal Bouts boxing tournament has been popular for entertaining students and aiding the Holy Cross missions in Bangladesh for 38 years. But the event has drawn criticism of late from physicians at Notre Dame.

Dr. James Moriarity, of University Health Services, opted out of the fight for the medical profession's involvement. "It's a question of the whole thing," he said. "I just chose not to be a part of the program. That doesn't mean I won't see boxers or treat their injuries," Moriarity said.

"We are 22 or 24 varsity sports and I approve of every one of them. I just don't like boxing," he said. "I have given physicals for kids in the Bengal Bouts. I just do not support the concept of boxing," Moriarity said.

"I don't like the idea of people banging their heads around. But I'm not going to make an issue of the whole thing," he said, adding that other physicians share his views.

Dr. Bernard Vagner, one of Moriarity's colleagues at University Health Services, has been a physician for the Bengal Bouts for 11 years, but said he doesn't like boxing.

"We have had three broken noses before the bouts even started," Vagner said. "I covered one session. I want to do my share, but it generated as much controversy as it does today," Moriarity said.

"I admire the kids for what they are doing. When I was their age I would have done the same thing. I wouldn't do it knowing what I know now," he said.

Vagner said he can understand why students want to participate in the Bengal Bouts. "I admire the kids for what they are doing. When I was their age I would have done the same thing. But I wouldn't do it knowing what I know now," he said.

"I'll do the job that I'm hired to do here," Vagner said. "But I just don't like boxing."

"Better than alternatives. Now it's a question of the whole thing," he said. "I'll do the job that I'm hired to do here," Vagner said. "But I just don't like boxing."

J-Council elects chairman

The Judicial Council elected junior Arty Feles as its new coordinator for the 1988-89 school year Wednesday night.

Feles said his main goal as coordinator is "to get the council recognized by the student body." This would be done, in part, by "letting more students know who their (judicial board) chairman is and what the Judicial Council is," he said.

Feles will also have to deal with the Office of Student Affairs. He said he will "respect what they have to say," but added, "you have to make sure that . . . students' rights aren't violated."

Running against Feles was junior Tara Gerard. In his first act as coordinator, Feles appointed Gerard as the asis-ant coordinator for next year. Feles will take office on April 1, replacing current coordinator Brendan Judge.

The Judicial Council is made up of the judicial board chairmen from each dorm. It meets about once a month, and tries to foster awareness of student rights, said Judge. "The primary responsibility of the coordinator is to serve as the undergraduate students' advocate," said Judge.

Next year, the Judicial Council will also be reviewing Du-Lac, said Judge.

"Significance for humans, too," says the University of Notre Dame's director of the Lobund Aging Project, which involved scientists from the United States and Canada. The project's goal, he said, is to "understand the mechanism of aging and diet as a determinant of the quality of life." The project is partially funded by the National Institutes of Health in Chicago, says Dr. Morris Pollard, which is pivotal to a better understanding of the effects of food on aging, says Dr. Morris Pollard, a pathologist and director of Notre Dame's Lobund Laboratory.

The Lobund Aging Project is an unprecedented attempt to study food intake and aging. The significance of this project may provide deeper understanding of the effects of food on aging, says a University of Notre Dame researcher.

The growing numbers of older people make related medical studies more important, Pollard said. "It's extremely important to do research on aging, not only to prolong life, but to improve the quality of life," he said.

ND study links aging and diet

SOUTH BEND - A broad ranging study of rats that lived significantly longer on restricted diets may provide deeper understanding of the effects of food on aging, says a University of Notre Dame researcher.

The four-year study will conclude March 27, when more than 30 scientists from the United States and Canada will meet at Notre Dame to present their findings, said Dr. Morris Pollard, a pathologist and director of Notre Dame's Lobund Laboratory.

The Lobund Aging Project is an unprecedented attempt to study food intake and aging from a variety of medical specialties, Pollard said Wednesday.

Although some of the research remains incomplete, early results indicate rats that ate less lived longer and suffered from fewer diseases associated with old age, he said.

The findings may have significance for humans, too, who tend to develop similar diseases as they age.

While the connection between longer life and reduced eating was made 50 years ago, the Lobund study may explain why, Pollard said. "We think this study will contribute substantially to a better understanding of the mechanism of dietary restriction," he said.

All the animals in the study ate the same food - a high-fiber, low-fat vegetarian diet - but some were given less. The rats that were fed 30 percent less lived an average of 38 months, an increase of nearly 20 percent above normal, according to study results. Several rats lived more than 40 months and one rat lived 50 months, Pollard said.

The rats on restricted diets were healthier in their old age, developing fewer cancers of the prostate and liver. Preliminary results also indicate rats on restricted diets suffered less disease of the heart and brain and had better-functioning immune systems, Pollard said.

The keynote speaker for the March symposium, Dr. Jacob Brody, dean of the University of Illinois School of Public Health in Chicago, says 75 percent of Americans survive to age 65, compared with 25 percent in 1900.

The growing numbers of older people make related medical studies more important, Pollard said. "It's extremely important to do research on aging, not only to prolong life, but to improve the quality of life," he said.

PANAMA CITY, Panama - An opposition leader said Wednesday that Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega was purging his army of suspected opponents, and doctors joined businessmen in a general strike aimed at ousting the military strongman.

Guillermo Cochez, a national legislator and vice president of the opposition Christian Democratic Party, told reporters that Noriega apparently had fired two senior colonels and two majors suspected of being disloyal.

Cochez said they included Col. Marcos Justizles, who as chief of staff was No. 2 in the Panamanian Defense Forces and next in line to succeed Noriega.

A spokesman for the Panama Gold Commission said anonymous telephone callers warned both Tuesday and Wednesday that a bomb had been planted in the commission's headquarters.

Spokesman Franklin Castrellon told The Associated Press that the building, next to the waterfront, was evacuated and searched both days but that no bombs were found.

In Washington, William Rogers, a lawyer for a Panamanian opposition group, said the State Department was preparing to notify U.S. banks where the Panamanian government was attempting to conduct any transactions with Noriega's regime.

Cochez said he could not "absolutely confirm" the firings, but several diplomatic sources said they also had heard the reports and tended to believe them.

Study finds one in 500 babies with AIDS virus

BOSTON - A study of Massachusetts women who gave birth in 1986 has found that one in 500 was infected with the AIDS virus, and researchers projecting their findings nationwide say 75,000 AIDS-infected babies could be born in the United States each year.

Most surveys of AIDS infection have concentrated on male homosexuals, drug addicts and others at high risk of catching the disease. Estimating the prevalence of the virus in the general population has been difficult.

"This paper gives a more accurate way to judge the scope of the epidemic in women," said Dr. Rodney Hoff. "Nothing else comes close to this in being able to measure the prevalence in the United States."

WASHINGTON - The House overwhelmingly passed a landmark civil rights bill Wednesday that would broaden protections for women, minorities, the elderly and the handicapped.

President Reagan has vowed to veto the measure.

The Civil Rights Restoration Act, considered by many lawmakers the most significant civil rights measure in 50 years, was sent to the White House on a 315-18 vote. The Senate passed it by an equally lopsided 75-14 vote in January.

Both chambers passed the bill by the two-thirds margin needed to override a presidential veto, but it was unclear whether the huge margins would hold up following Reagan's vow Wednesday to reject the measure.

The restoration act was designed to reverse a 1981 Supreme Court decision that narrowed the scope of four major civil rights laws meant to prevent taxpayer-financing of discrimination.

Supporters of the act said hundreds of discrimination complaints had been dropped or restricted since the decision.

"We have suffered far too long in waiting for this great and important day," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

In letters delivered Wednesday to several House Republicans, Reagan said flatterly he would veto the measure sentencing hearing before Circuit Judge Robert Anderson, the prosecutor said.

Campaign beats the South

Associated Press

Sen. Bob Dole, bidding to make up ground in the South, said Wednesday the United States should react in any way necessary "including military force" to protect its interests in Panama and the Canal Zone.

Michael Dukakis began airing a new television commercial attacking Richard Gephardt and turning his Democratic rival's populist rallying cry, "It's your fight, too!" on its head.

The advertisement says Gephardt is taking campaign contributions from "big establishment power brokers," and adds, "Kinda makes you wonder, is Dick Gephardt fighting your fight or theirs?"

Dole and Vice President George Bush swapped fresh attacks in new television commercials as the campaign intensified for support in a critical round of Southern primaries next week.

Fresh public opinion polls gave Bush a large lead in Texas and Florida, the states with the two biggest delegate prizes in next week's festival of primaries. Additions to Dole conceded the outlook is generally bleak for their man from one end of Dixie to the other.

"We hope to bounce back the following week," in the Illinois primary, said one aide, speaking on condition of anonymity. "We'll be heavy in Illinois. I think if Dole doesn't win Illinois, it's just about over.

But Dole sought the offensive during the day, saying the United States should "just say no" to Panamanian strongman Manuel Noriega, indicted in this country on drug charges.

Campaigning in Louisiana, he suggested there might be some connection between Bush's tenure as head of the CIA and rumors that Noriega had been on the spy agency payroll. He refused to elaborate, but said he would have a major announcement at a drug conference in Washington D.C. next week.

In cooler climes, former television evangelist Pat Robertson ran away with a 2-to-1 victory over the GOP field in the Alaska caucuses that ended Tuesday night, claiming 47 percent of the vote to 24 percent for Bush and 30 percent for Dole.

But Alaska's 19 GOP delegates weren't much of a prize stacked up against 712 Republican delegates and 1,387 Democratic delegates in next week's Super Tuesday round of balloting concentrated in Southern and border states.

Robertsattorney said Wednesday the GOP presidential candidate is ready to "play a substantial amount of court politics" in dropping his liberal credentials to appeal to a conservative congressman who accused Robertson of allowing criminal duty in the Korean War.
Contras hindered peace process

Editor’s Note: The following is the fourth in a series of five that will coincide with President Reagan’s visit to campus.

Dear Editor:

“The Contras are effective because they force the Sandinista government to the bargaining table to negotiate a peaceful resolution.” I would like to suggest that this belief held by both the White House and much of the American public fails to consider Nicaragua’s willingness to peacefully negotiate with the United States before the Contra movement developed into a full-scale war.

In 1982, Nicaragua formulated a 13-point proposal to the U.S. demonstrating its willingness to sever ties with the Salvadoran guerrillas, limit its armed forces, and allow international verification of compliance with these points. In July of 1983, Daniel Ortega again expressed his willingness to end Nicaraguan support of the rebels in El Salvador and prohibit foreign military bases on its territory if its own security could be guaranteed. In September of that same year, Nicaragua gave complete support to the Contadora initiative and its 21 points.

In October of 1983, Nicaragua drew up four treaties to the U.S. and Central American governments which would have prevented foreign military bases in Nicaragua and prohibited the flow of arms to the Sandinist forces. Sandinistas from other countries would stop buying arms and other countries. The Contadora conference was only able to achieve four treaties to the peace process.

`Amadeus' cast, costumes delight audience

The "Amadeus" cast gathers on stage at Washington Hall.

TAMMY ETTEY
accent writer

I t was the Jack Blakely hour. Or rather, three hours. Jack Blakely, who played Antonio Salieri in last night’s sold-out performance of "Amadeus" in Washington Hall, never left the stage during the three-hour performance.

Salieri, the character who reigns over Mozart’s life, reigns over the performance of Mozart’s life story. The marathon proves successful. He reigns over a brilliant display of Notre Dame acting talent. It is a tragic story—the story of the downfall of two composers—one physical, the other mental.

Predictably, the composer who meets his physical end is the one for whom the play is named. Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. Played brilliantly by Brian Loeffler, the brisk, can­ did, whining composer charms the audience with his hideous laugh and crude remarks.

Mozart’s wife, Constanze, is his suitable match in whim. K. Lynn Berry the actress, his match in talent.

Mozart pursues fame and fortune in a world that cannot appreciate his brilliance. The only man who can truly appre­ ciate it is Salieri. As a child, Salieri makes a bargain with God that if God can provide him with talent, he would glorify God in return. But instead God chooses to give the gift of composition to the Devil’s instrument, Mozart.

This burns in Salieri’s heart, and he decides to devote the remainder of his life to over­ seeing Mozart’s demise. He must see to it that he “teaches God His lessons.”

Salieri narrates the story for the audience as an old man, an adult, and as a child. As Salieri, Blakely skillfully makes these transitions. He plays to his audience—the only audience that Salieri can captivate because of his mediocre composing.

Blakely anguishes in his pain, cries in his sorrow, and laughs at his absurdity. He is a multi­ faceted, evil man. We pity him, while we rejoice in the perfor­ mance of him.

The costumes and sets add to the brilliance of the performance. The 18th century dresses, suits, and wigs bring the audience back to the days of musical domination in Europe. The days of kings and queens, court composers, operas, and cantatas.

The set, a theatrical composi­tion with an elaborate drape and sliding glass doors, is built on a slant, away from the audi­ ence. Simple placing of chairs and tables takes the audience into Mozart’s home, the opera house, or the Waldstadten li­ brary where Salieri learns of Mozart’s music.

It is a tragic story—the story of the downfall of two composers—one physical, the other mental.

Tennis team looks to end slide

By FRANK PASTOR
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's tennis team continues its grueling spring schedule this weekend as it heads to the Eck Tennis Pavilion. The Irish will be trying to halt a three-game losing streak that began last Thursday in a 7-1 loss to Colorado at the Eck Tennis Pavilion.

Third-year Irish coach Michelle Gelfman believes that the team's recent troubles, which include losses to Miami of Ohio and Illinois as well as the setback to Colorado, will give the extra incentive needed to emerge victorious this weekend.

"All of the Big 10 schools will be really good matches," says Gelfman. "With Ohio State and Michigan, I think it can go either way. We have to want it more. We have to be hungry to win."

Notre Dame has managed a total of only two singles and two doubles victories in its last three matches.

Senior Michelle Dasso picked up both the singles victories, winning from the number-one singles position against both Miami and Illinois.

In doubles competition, freshman Cathy Bradshaw and sophomore Jacqueline Uhli emerged victorious over Colorado's number-three doubles tandem. Against Miami, Dasso and sophomore Alice Laber combined to defeat the Redkinks' top-seeded doubles team.

A pair of victories by the Irish women this weekend will catapult the team back over the .500 mark for the season and will most certainly eradicate all memories of its recent three-game slump.

Irish host 'wide open' meet

Swimmers climax season with Midwest Championships

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Writer

It's one of the meets swimming coach Tim Welsh has been pointing toward all season. The Irish host the men's Mid-west Independent Invitational Championships starting today at Rolfs Aquatic Center. Action begins at noon with trials and the first-day finals are set for 7 p.m. The meet continues on the same schedule Friday and Saturday.

Welsh has spent the majority of the year preparing his squad for the championship season and this meet is the climax of a season of work and success. The Irish took ninth in last year's meet, but used a split squad.

"Last year we split our teams, and I sent one to another meet," Welsh said. "This year we didn't do that. We're trying to concentrate on this meet and have our fastest team swim. We've improved a lot from last year."

Southwest Missouri is the returning champ. Western Illinois was second at last year's meet followed by Illinois-Chicago in third. Welsh says it's hard to pick a favorite in this year's field because of the increased parity among the teams.

"I think the meet is a lot more wide open at the top," Welsh said. "A lot of the power has balanced itself out."

If their record and individual performances mean anything, the Irish are definitely ready for the meet. They finished the season 13-3 in dual meets and took second in the National Catholic Meet to a strong Villanova team.

Notre Dame is coming into the meet after winning the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Championships two weeks ago in Evansville. The Irish easily outdistanced the host Aces 588-397. Brian Rini garnered Most Valuable Swimmer honors in that meet, winning the 200, 500 and 1650 freestyle events.

"It reaffirmed that our preparations seem to be working for the championship season," Welsh said of that win.

The women took fifth in the Midwest Independent Championships last weekend in Chicago, while the men had the weekend off. The women finished the season with a 9-7 ledger.

The week of rest will prove valuable to the men in the event. Welsh used the time off to concentrate on becoming mentally, as well as physically, prepared for the meet.

Semifinal action of the 58th annual Bengal Bouts took place Wednesday night at the Stepan Center. The Bouts, which benefit the Holy Cross missions of Bangladesh, conclude with the finals on Friday night at the Stepan Center.

Fencers set for Regionals

The Notre Dame men's and women's fencing teams have selected the participants for the NCAA Midwest Regionals at Evanston, Ill. This year, senior fencing captain Mitch Hannahs, 5'9" and 145 lbs., already qualified for the NCAA as their respective weapons. Both fencers are looking forward to the Regionals as the Irish face a big challenge this year.

Baseball team back on the road

BY STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

Part two of the Notre Dame baseball team's road trip is as the Irish tour their home state of Indiana. The Irish come into this weekend as the number-two team in the country, having faced some tough competition this season, including games against the University of Kentucky, the University of Michigan, the University of Illinois, and the University of Notre Dame. The Irish will face off against the Indiana Hoosiers this weekend, looking to continue their winning streak.

If the Irish are to change things this time, they will have to keep Hoosier shortstop Steve Blankinship's average of .306, hit minus 1.00, and a general pain in the neck to opposing pitchers. The Hoosiers have a strong pitching staff that will be difficult to hit.

Duke loses in ACC upset

Associated Press

CLEMSON, S.C. - Grayson Marshall made a short jumper with 1:11 left, and Tim Kincaid made four free throws in the final minute as Clemson stunned No. 9 Duke 79-77 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game Wednesday night.

With the score tied 72-72 with 1:11 left, Marshall drove the lane and made a 13-footerr to give Clemson its first lead since midway through the opening half.

Quin Snyder hit the second of two free throws to cut it to one with 45 seconds left. But Mar­shall, who had been in the stu­dent infirmary with the flu on Monday, hit the front end of a one-and-one eight seconds later.

Kincaid then hit two straight one-and-ones - with 31 seconds and 19 seconds left - to give Clemson a 79-72 lead.

Clemson is 13-13 and 3-10 in the league after only its second victory in its last 10 games. Duke dropped to 20-6 and 8-5.

Seton Hall 83, Pitt 79

PITTSBURGH - Mark Bryant had 23 points and 13 rebounds and Ramon Ramos converted a three-point play in the last minute Wednesday night as Seton Hall beat No. 7 Pittsburgh 83-79, its second vic­tory over the Panthers this year.

Seton Hall, 20-10 and 8-7 in the Big East, overcame a 12-point deficit in the final four minutes and ended Pittsburg's 14-game home winning streak for the league after only its second victory in its last 10 games. The Observer

UNC 97, Ga. Tech 80

ATLANTA - J.R. Reid scored nine of his 24 points in a 23-4 second-half burst that carried No. 6 North Carolina to a 97-80 Atlantic Coast Conference vic­tory over No. 13 Georgia Tech Wednesday night.

The five-minute run stretched a six-point lead to 90-­65 with 10:45 left, and capped it with a basket with 4:10 left in the game.

The victory gave Carolina, 22-4 overall and 11-2 in the confer­ence, the outright regular season title in the ACC, marking the 20th time the Tar Heels have either won or shared the top spot in the 25-year history of the conference.

The setback snapped a seven-game winning streak for Tech, 21-7 and 8-5.

Temple 75, St. Joe's 62

PHILADELPHIA - Fresh­man Mark Macon scored a season high 35 points as No. 1 Temple rolled 91-64, South Carolina and 8-7 in the Big East.

The victory allowed the Owls to end their regular season with only one defeat in 27 games.

They won the Big 5 city title for the second straight year and were undefeated in the Atlantic 10 with 18 victories.

The game was marred by several fights, and at one point both coaches were shouting at each other on the sidelines.

St. Joseph's fell to 14-13 and 3-10 in the A-10, losing 77-74.

Michigan 105, NU 67

ANN ARBOR, Mich. - Glen Rice scored 20 points and Gary Grant added 24 Wednesday night, leading No. 10 Michigan to a 109-67 victory over Northwestern in the Big Ten.

In other college basketball action Wednesday, West Virginia whipped St. Bonaventure 83-64, Florida State scalped Virginia Tech 92-79, Southern Mississippi soared past Cincin­nati 86-64, North Carolina killed Oral Roberts 81-62, Virgin­ia edged Wake Forest 69-67 in double overtime, Holy Cross trounced Iona 91-86, Louisville defeated Austin Peay 84-78, Tennessee turned back Ala­bama 81-58, Kansas State shocked Nebraska 77-67, Ohio State bucked Minnesota 77-74, Baylor annhilated Texas Tech 91-49, Iowa State flew past Oklahoma State 97-88 and SMU outscored TCU 87-54.

Track has 11 reach IC4A's

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

With the rising of the sun on Friday, 11 Notre Dame men's track team members will begin their journey to the campus of Princeton University and the Intercolligate Amateur Association of America Championships (IC4A's). The IC4A conference is the oldest in the country and features 123 teams. It includes all East Coast teams north of Washington, D.C. Notre Dame remained in the Conference when the NCAA created its own version of the indoor championship over twenty years ago.

"It is a half step from the NCAA Championships," said Irish coach Joe Plano.

Plano has high expectations for his team this weekend.

"If we finish in the top 10, then we've done a great job," said Plano. "Nine of our athletes are from the east coast, so they're really pumped up about going back home. It should be a good meet." Favoring this weekend include Penn State and Georgetown, but no one team is expected to dominate.

The Irish will be sending a variety of athletes to Princeton. Sophomore Glenn Watson will run in the 30-meter hurdles. Watson had his best time of the season (7.39) at last weekend's Alex Wilson Invitational, and will be seeded sixth in the meet.

Junior Ron Markelich qualified for the 5000 meters with a time of 14:19 at the Central Collegiate Conference Meet. Markelich will be seeded fourth in the IC4A's. Junior David Warth will compete in the 800 meters after qualifying at 1:50.40 in the Ray Meyo Invitational.

Notre Dame also has a pair of freshman jumpers participating this weekend in John Cole and Jeff Smith. Smith qualified in the long jump with a leap of 23' 11". Cole will be competing in the high jump qualifying with a jump of 6 feet 10 1/2 inches. Smith should be seeded 10th while Cole should be seeded eighth.

Sophomore Chris Componovo will represent the Irish in the pole vault after vaulting a 15' 3" at the Central Collegiate Conference Meet.

Sophomore Yan Searcy will run in the 5000-meter competition after qualifying with a 1:54 time at the Indiana Intercollegiates. The distance medley relay team, comprised of sophomores Mike Logan, freshman Robert Harris, sophomore Mike O'Connor, and senior co-captain Dan Garrett will see plenty of action. They will run in the 1:19.00, 2:06, and the 1500-meter competitions. The relay qualified by running 9:57 and will be one of the favorites at the meet.

Less than a week after being named the new coach of the New Jersey Nets, Willis Reed has gotten his team off in the right direction with a major upset. The Nets surprised the Atlantic Division-leading Boston Celtics 117-107 on Wednesday.

Year of the Boilermakers?

No. 2 Purdue eager to change its post-season fortune

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS-Purdue's closest challenger for the Big Ten basketball championship is the same team that kept the Boilermakers from the outright league title last year and an automatic NCAA berth a year ago.

Then, as now, Purdue had sole possession of first place in the conference and had to win the rest of its games to clinch its first outright championship since 1969.

But the Boilermakers stumbled 104-68 in a nationally televised game at Michigan in the season's final weekend. That gave Indiana a share of the Big Ten crown, and the Hoosiers—not the Boilermakers—were given a first-and-second-round advantage with an NCAA assignment to the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis.

If second-ranked Purdue can hold onto the lead this year, its reward likely would be a jaunt up Interstate-65 to Indianapolis, the site of the first and second rounds of the NCAA Tournament.

"I think what we did last year showed a pretty good ability to hold on to the lead," says Keady, whose Boilermakers have a better record in Big Ten games (9-4) than any other conference team over the past eight years since he came from Western Kentucky.

Led by seniors Troy Lewis at 16.4, Mitchell at 16.4, Purdue is 13-1 in the conference, with its only loss at Indiana. Overall, Purdue is 34-2, already matching the school record for regular-season victories. The Boilermakers play at Wisconsin Thursday night before the big battle against Michigan at Mackey Arena on Saturday.

"We're not getting carried away. As far as pressure, that's always the same. We're not concerned. We just want to be successful coming down the stretch."

The difference, possibly, this year?

"What's pleased me most is the way they've played relaxed and still with intensity. The fact we've refused to quit and seem to have a great will to win," Keady said. "All of our athletes are from the east coast, so they're really pumped up about going back home. It should be a good meet."

Favoring this weekend include Penn State and Georgetown, but no one team is expected to dominate.

Overall, Purdue is 34-2, already matching the school record for regular-season victories. The Boilermakers play at Wisconsin Thursday night before the big battle against Michigan at Mackey Arena on Saturday.

"We put a lot of pressure on ourselves to win. When we did that, it was like somebody poking a needle in our balloon and let the air out," Coach Gene Keady says of last year's collapse.

"We haven't talked about the Big Ten championship (this year); we have talked about getting a good NCAA draw."

Instead of a trip down Interstate-65 to Indianapolis, Purdue went east to Syracuse and lost to Florida in the second round of the 1987 NCAA tournament.

Indiana, of course, swept through the first two rounds at Indianapolis, the regional at nearby Cincinnati and captured its 15th NCAA crown in New Orleans.

Now the Boilermakers have a two-game lead on Michigan's sixth-ranked Wolverines with four games left, and the two contenders meet for the second time this season on Saturday at West Lafayette.

Purdue won the first game 91-87 at Ann Arbor.

Students fight to reach Bengals finals

Semifinal winners include both favorites and upstarts.

By PAT KEARNS
Sports Writer

Boxing fans packed Stepan Center last night to watch students pummel each other for charity in the semifinals of the 58th annual Bengal Bouts. The night at the fights included wins by many Bengal Bouts veterans and some impressive showings by newcomers.

Bantamweight John 'All Man' Manfredy started off the evening right with a show of boxing skill in his unanimous decision over Mike 'The Polecat' Polcari. The younger Manfredy kept his distance from Polcari and landed his left jab effectively throughout the match to have his hand raised for a unanimous decision.

The crowd then saw two matches that ended in questionable calls by the judges. Unorthodox crowd favorite Eric 'Dingo' Becker chased Joe 'Doomsday' Dieterle around the ring for three rounds, only to lose in a split decision in their bantamweight match. Then featherweight Chris 'Mad Dog' Boroski, after suffering a bloody nose early on, came back to land several strong rights in the second round of his match against Eric 'Smillin' Fedor. Despite Boroski's efforts, he lost in another split decision.

Later in the night, junior Mike 'High' Noone was very impressive in his unanimous decision over Mike 'Mr. Magoo' Joyce. Noone pounded away on Joyce early and often but just somehow managed to remain standing for the duration of the fight.

In a bit of an upset, Tim 'T-Bone' Reardon took out the 'Sugar' Kane the distance to win their Junior Welterweight bout. Reardon was slightly faster - see BENGALS, page 10.

Irish douse weak Flames 79-50 after slow first half performance

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

CHICAGO - Notre Dame head coach Muffet McGraw said before Wednesday night's game at Illinois-Chicago that her team needed a big win to wash away the after effects of Sunday's heartbreaking loss to DePaul.

While the 79-50 win over the Flames was big scorewise, it wasn't the type of win that she had expected.

'UIC, which fell to 2-25 with the loss, trailed only 29-28 at the half and were down 37-35 with 16:19 to play. That's when the Irish turned up their heat, outscoring the Flames 21-2 for the next 6:21, to end any hopes of an upset that would have been near biblical proportions.

The Notre Dame women's basketball team blew out the University of Illinois-Chicago Flames 79-50 last night in Chicago. Dennis Corrigan details the Irish win below.

Olympians need country's support

The close of the 1988 Winter Olympics has left many Americans wondering what happened to the stars of the past Olympics.

The especially disappointing losses of both Dan Jansen and Debi Thomas crushed the spirit of many Americans. The Americans sadly ended-up with only six medals.

Americans wondering what happened to the stars of the past Olympics.

The prominence of Steinbrenner brings more attention to the Olympic Committee and its need for a change.

The Olympic Committee realized the need for a change, so they put George Steinbrenner in charge of an improvement committee. Now that change is a big one, but only time will tell if it is a change for the better.

The sensibility of Steinbrenner brings more attention to what will be done. The New York Yankees have not won a World Series in a long time, but when they did win they won convincingly. Perhaps Steinbrenner can put America back on that winning track.

The American Olympians need the support of the country more now than they ever have. The losers always need more attention than the winners.

Instead of making jokes or whining about how poorly the Olympics performed, people should find solutions. America must never again let their athletes suffer so many losses.

Lack of money is a problem that needs to be remedied. People love to support a winning team and if people believe that the Americans will win, they will support them.

Americans can produce the best athletes in the world if the time and money put into them exceeds that of other countries.

Young athletes need the inspiration of past Olympic greats like Dorothy Hamil and Eric Heiden to encourage them to strive for excellence.

Mike 'High' Noone took the next step toward winning a third consecutive Bengal Bouts title on Wednesday night, as the junior from Keenan defeated Mike 'Mr. Magoo' Joyce to reach the finals. The finals of the 58th annual Bengal Bouts will be Friday night at the Stepan Center.
